EXPANSION.

In another column of the PRESS is the astonishing announcement that certain real estate in Marion will be given away. The names of three reliable citizens are at the foot of the announcements, which means that the matter is one of business, and not a freak of fun, a joke nor jest. These gentlemen mean what they say and say what they mean. With the primary desire to help themselves, and a secondary desire to benefit the town, they propose to give away, absolutely, every second lot of certain real estate in the immediate neighborhood of the O. V. depot. Recently there has been a demand for business houses; the probability of supplying this demand with houses in the old business portion of the town is not promising, and these public spirited gentlemen propose to undertake the herculean task of breaking the old conventional style of grouping all the town around the court house square, and when the lots, thus located, are occupied, writing on the business circle of the place, the word, "Completed." They realize in common with everybody else that, if this perceivable, yet intangible dam, thrown around the town, is broken away, the business will spread over more territory and increase. By the extension of Depot street they propose to connect it with the West with the S. L. road, and at the East with the Morganfield road. Then extend the street running North and South through that vicinity, connecting with the Princeton and Port Ferry public roads. New streets will be opened east of the depot, and the beautiful lands divided into business and dwelling lots. An admirably located lot in that section will be reserved for a large Academy building, and in addition to the lot, valuable aid will be extended to parties who desire to take hold of an enterprise of this character. The present school building will soon be inadequate for the accommodation of those who desire to attend a high grade school. A site has been selected for a handsome hotel. Some months ago, a gentleman from the east talked of locating a machine shop here, but the citizens gave him but little encouragement. Correspondence will be opened with him, and a generous offer made to have him locate in east Marion. Inducements will be offered for a chair factory, broom factory and other enterprises in the new town. At the proper time, action will be made for a new office. This looks rather gigantic to us rather sleepy Marionites, but enterprising people have done greater things than this under less favorable circumstances. We are all inclined to grumble about the contracted state of affairs in Marion, this opportunity must remove either or grumbling proclivities or expand the town. Which shall it be.

The Constitutional Convention is getting down to its work in a way that promises good things for the State. The prelude was without circumlocution. There was no dilly dallying; no cantering around the length, breadth and depth of the work before it, and immediately went at that work in a workmanlike manner. The Convention in the main is composed of men of experience, men of...

While other Congressmen are away from Washington looking after the condition of affairs in their respective districts, Hon. W. J. Stone is standing by his post of duty at the capital.

It looks like the First district is going to send Stone back to Congress without a convention to nominate him. He'll be none the less a Democrat, however.

The tariff bill was amended and passed by the Senate. The House will doubtless concur in the amendments.

Mr. Blaine did not go home to vote in the recent State election. Straws show which way the wind blows.

The Committee on Temperance in the Mississippi Constitutional Convention reported that it is impracticable and in opportune to bring the question of whisky selling before the convention.

Our Congressional Timber.

Paduach, Ky., Sep. 10.—The Republican District Executive Committee met here this afternoon, and, after a canvass of the matter, issued a call for a convention, at this place, on October 2, to name a candidate for Congress. All but three counties of the district were represented either by delegates or proxies, and the decision was unanimous. All delegates are asked to send delegates and they are left free to choose them when and how they please.

In a discussion of available men, favor was shown to Dr. Deboe, of Crittenden county, who is a prominent young physician in Marion, and who was recently elected School Commissioner in his county. As he is understood to have the bee in his bonnet it is more than possible the nomination will be offered, if not pressed upon him. The old standbys in the district are either in office or have had enough of the empty honor of running for Congress here.

The Frankfort correspondent of the Courier-Journal, says: Sam Nunn, of Crittenden, has also been mixing up with the First district delegates. Congressman Stone can stick a pin in this, for he will have Nunn to beat for Congress two years hence. Nunn has plenty of friends down in the Purchase, and he has started to electioneering early in the game.

On the streets Monday a cutting affray that occurred in Union precinct last week was freely discussed. The particulars, as we were able to glean them from street talk were as follows:

Mr. Ace Hodge and Mr. Stubblefield, the latter living in a house on the former's farm, had some cross words about some breezy steers belonging to Stubblefield. Later in the day R. L. Hodge, a son of Ace Hodge, and two of Stubblefield's sons, met and the quarrel between the old man was renewed between the young men, and a personal encounter followed, and Phil Stubblefield was stabbed by young Hodge. Ugly gashes were made in several places on Stubblefield's body, and he is said to be dangerously, if not fatally wounded.

The funeral sermons of Anthony Franklin and W. H. Franklin will be preached at Union church the second Sunday in October, at 11 o'clock a. m. Elders T. C. Carter and J. S. Henry will conduct the services.

The Republicans of Crittenden county are requested to meet in Convention, at Marion, Ky, Saturday September 27, 1890, at 1 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of selecting a delegate to the district Convention at Paducah on Oct. 2nd 1890.

The Marion Brass Band was drawn up in line before Photographer Wathen's gaunting gun, Monday afternoon. We were able to get only a portion of the result in print. The gentleman with the little horn is John Glaseock, a musical genius, who writes as well as makes music. He has composed some fine overtures and marches, and will some of these days publish his productions. The next in order is Claude Wheeler, who is full of music as the big bass horn is of noise. The next is the duke of the band, "R. T." Williams; he beats the bottoms out of all of his motenars tin pans long before he advanced to the proprietorship of a well regulated snare drum. The gentleman with the large veranda is Joe Clark. Joe experiences some trouble in getting over rough ground with his instrument, but when he has a good foot-hold on level ground he makes corns on that drums pacific face.

Bacon, lard and all kinds of produce wanted at Hays.

John Walker Murdered. It was reported some days ago that John Walker, son of Allen Walker, an old citizen of this county, had been killed. Wednesday T. W. Walker, brother to John, was in town and from him we got the following statement: John Walker, in company with two other men, started down the Ohio river from near Elizabethtown, Ill; Walker had some $200 in his pocket. After traveling some time in the skiff his companions went ashore to hunt, borrowing Walker's pistol. After going down the river some distance they called to Walker that they wanted to get in the skiff, when he rowed to the shore he was shot by the parties and robbed and his body put in the skiff and the latter set afloat. The next day the skiff was caught by a fisherman near Metropolis and Walker was still alive and told his story. He fared for three days and died.

The news from Maine is not so cheering, but there are the "Green Mountain" boys. You'll get first class goods at bottom prices from S. A. Frazier at Shady Grove.

Radam's Microbe Killer Co., Nashville, Tenn. Gentlemen—I take pleasure in testifying to the remarkable benefit I have recently received from the use of Radam's Microbe Killer. I have been much troubled with chills and night sweats for months, and after trying a great many remedies to no avail, bought a jug of Microbe Killer and was completely cured in ten days. Respectfully, J. J. Smith. Frankfort, Ky., March 15, 1890. For sale by H

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Our Organic Law-makers Begin in a Business Like Way.

TUESDAY.

The Constitutional Convention was permanently organized by the election of Cassius M. Clay, of Bourbon county as President, on the second ballot; the vote was 52 for Clay; 22 for McHenry; 22 for Knott. Those 6. Moore was elected Secretary, Jas. B. Martin Assistant; R. H. Tyler, a Bullett, Sergeant-at-Arms. R. T. Haley, of Jefferson, Door-keeper; E. Polk Johnson, Convention Printer; Clarence Walker, of Jefferson official Reporter.

WEDNESDAY.

A committee of twelve was appointed to prepare rules for the government of the Convention.

A committee of nine was selected by lot to whom the contest for a seat in the convention between Lewis and McChord, of Washington county, was referred. Both contestants announced themselves satisfied with the committee.

THURSDAY.

The committee on rules submitted its report. The bulk of the rules are of the usual parliamentary order. Twenty-one standing committees are provided for. In the matter of appeal from the decision of the chair two persons instead of one are necessary. Two thirds of the whole number of delegates constitute a quorum, but ten members may adjourn from day to day. Every motion must be reduced to writing. No delegate shall be allowed to speak more than twice to any one question. The report of the committee was ordered printed and recommended to committee on rules.

Mr. Burnam offered a resolution, striking out the word "white" in the first line of the second article of the present constitution. The resolution was ordered printed.

Dr. Clardy offered a resolution in structing the Convention Printer to publish daily 3,000 of the proceedings, five to be furnished daily to each member for contribution among his constituents, the remainder to be saved for binding. Referred to committee.

C. T. Allen offered the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That the Auditor of State be and he is hereby directed to furnish this convention with a tabulated statement of all the Judges and Chancellors who are drawing salaries from the Treasury, and how much each one is drawing per year. Also, that he state what amount has been paid out of the Treasury during the twelve months ending September 1, 1890, to special Judges, and in what districts said special Judges served."

"Second—That said Auditor be and he is hereby directed to correspond at once with County Clerks of the State and find out what amount is paid the County Attorney of each county as a salary, and that he furnish this convention with this information as soon as it can be obtained."

FRIDAY.

A resolution to make the State pay for two daily papers for each member was promptly voted down.

The report of the Committee on Rules, relative to pages, janitors, etc., was read and adopted. It provides for only four pages, a cloakroom keeper and a janitor. The compensation to be $2 per day.

Judge De Haven submitted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That at 12 o'clock on the day next after the announcement of the standing committee, the Secretary of the Convention be directed to read the present Constitution; and when no amendment is proposed to any section, it shall be informally passed over; and when any delegate may desire to amend any section thereof, he shall offer his proposed amendment or amendments, in writing, which shall be printed and referred by the President of the Convention to the appropriate committee without debate."

Judge Rhodes, of Warren, introduced a resolution to the effect that the principle of the present constitution limiting and restricting the Legislature in the creation of debts against the State be retained and that the same be extended cities, counties, and towns, that the Legislature should have no power to pass any law authorizing the State, or any county, city or town to contract any debt on the construction of any railroad, that tax shall be levied and collected by general law, and for public purposes only.

These resolutions were referred.

SATURDAY.

The report of the Committee on Rules was discussed, amended and adopted. According to the report the work of the convention will be divided between 25 committees. These committees will be known by the following titles, and the work referred to each to report upon will be matter german to the name of the committee.

1. A committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights.
2. Committee on Elections.

3. Committee on the Legislative Department.
4. Committee on the Executive Officers for the State at large.
5. A committee on Executive and Ministerial Officers for Counties and Districts.
6. Committee on Militia.
7. Committee on Judicial Department and Court of Appeals.
8. Committee on Circuit Courts.
9. Committee on County Courts.
10. Committee on Education.
11. Committee on the Revision of the Constitution.
12. Committee on Corporations.
13. Committee on Municipalities.
14. Committee on Revenue and Taxation.
15. Committee on Rules.
16. Committee on Crimes, Punishments and Criminal Procedure.
17. Committee on Printing and Accounts.
18. Committee on Enrollment.
19. Committee on General Provisions.
20. Committee on Division, Arrangement and Title of the Constitution.
21. Committee on Location of the Capital.
22. Committee on Charity and Charitable Organizations.
23. Committee on Schedule.

Sections 21, 22 and 23 provide for General committees on Executive, Judiciary and Legislative Departments.

The Convention adjourned until Wednesday, to give the President time to appoint the committees.

SEVEN SMOKING MOUNTAINS.

Smoke Again Emitted In Considerable Volume From Peaks of the Blue Ridge Chain Near Asheville.

Asheville, N. C., Sept. 10.—Reports received here from reliable citizens in the neighborhood of Bee Tree Creek, a tributary of the Swannanoa river, twelve miles east of this city, state that for the third time since the Charleston earthquake smoke has for some days been regularly emitted in considerable volume from Seven Mountain Peaks of the Blue Ridge chain. The peaks have come to be designated the "Seven Smoking Mountains."

J. W. Boone, a citizen of the Bee Tree creek neighborhood, says that for the past two weeks, each morning about 9 o'clock, vast volumes of black smoke, running to a height of five hundred feet have issued from Watch Knob, Rocky Knob, and five other Blue Ridge mountain peaks, which are visible from Bee Tree creek. Mr. Boone says that these peaks were first observed to be smoking on October 5, of the year of the Charleston earthquake. That year the smoking lasted two weeks. It then ceased until last year, when for three weeks, beginning in September, the peaks were again in a state of activity.

An effort is being made to have Prof. C. D. Smith, the geologist of Macon county, and Gen. T. L. Clingman, investigate the matter, as many people have become so alarmed that they say they will leave the neighborhood.

The ideal magazine should be like a perfect dinner; seasonable, tempting, satisfying, never heavy, each course perfect in itself, with dainty entrees and accompaniments to give zest and piquancy, the whole affording such pleasure and satisfaction that it leaves a desire for a repetition of the feast. This is the case with Demorest's Family Magazine for October, just received; when one has read it all through (and everyone who takes it up will do so) there is a desire to begin at the beginning and enjoy it all over again.

The October number takes us visiting again, this time to the palatial residence of Senator Hearst, of California; and when one has looked through the magnificent illustrations, one feels quite at home "upstairs and downstairs and in my lady's chamber." The young folks will all be interested in the "The Game of Golf for Ladies," which is quite new on this side of the water; and old and young will read with interest and profit the curious facts about animals embodied in "Diagnoses in Animal Life," and soft-shell crabs will be invested with a new interest after one has read about "The First Armor-Wearers." In fact, every page is as good as it can be; Demorest's Family Magazine is the ideal magazine.

But this month there is a special attraction: the new List of Club Premiums. Not only is there a host of handsome as well as useful articles offered, including material or an elegant silk dress, but the more than liberal offer is made that if this generous list does not include the thing or things desired, the prospective getter-up of a club may write to the publisher stating what would be liked better, and special terms will be made for the coveted article. The offer is unprecedented, anything from a paper of needles to the complete furniture of a house being obtainable without paying out a cent!

The Pulpit Advertising Bureau.

To Ministers and Church Committees:

The undersigned begs to announce that he has undertaken a new adventure in advertising, which is one of the most promising ever offered to the public patronage.

Those who have given attention to the subject of advertising know the great need of finding new channels or the proclamation of business enterprises. Vast and multitudes as they are, the present channels for advertising seem to be well-nigh exhausted. Signs and placards are old-fashioned and no longer attract. The establishment of barbed wire fences has removed the opportunity once so common of painting the country fence-board. Natural scenery on a railroad line this side of the Rocky Mountains that has not been stenciled over with patent medicine announcements. The horse-cars (where they have them), are now filled with more advertising proverbs than Solomon ever dreamed of; and the poetry which infests these public conveyances moves the reader simply because it is dragged through the street by two powerful horses.

The painted and bedizened man, marching with unique or flaring banner, dressed as Indian or Continental or Santa Claus, or any other of the old patriarchs, has passed upon the public eye. He has added the disrepute of the tramp to the advertising profession. He is, we affirm, nothing more than a literate instance of professional vagrancy.

In view of this death of new instrumentalities and opportunities to the advertiser, we are proud to be able to offer to the readers of this article a new combination of unsurpassed opportunities. While the press, the circular, the sign-board, the bare rocks flanking our railroads, and the grotesque itinerants of the trade no longer seem to attract, there remains one resource which has not yet been fully developed. We refer to the American Pulpit.

We do not mean that the pulpit has not been used for advertising purposes. On the contrary, its efficiency has been so well tested that we can offer our subscribers substantial proofs of the advantages which they may derive from its use. So confident are we of the value of our scheme that we unhesitatingly and unblushingly assert that the day is not far distant when the bureau will have the honor to represent all other advertising bureaus in the volume of its patronage and the extent of its influence. The plan is briefly this:

First, we propose to enlist in the services of the bureau the ministers of this country. It is well known to people who are in the habit of attending church that every minister does from Sunday to Sunday a good deal of gratuitous advertising. On every order of service will be found somewhere in the programme the word "Notices."

And at this point in the service the minister is at liberty to advertise those public and private enterprises which have been thrust upon him. Our readers will further observe that if there is any time when a congregation pricks up its ears, it is when the notices are read. However heavy and somnolent it may be at any other time, when the minister begins to prophesy what is to take place in the week to come it must be a sleepy dolt that does not listen. This liberty of prophecy is an inalienable privilege of the ministry, and a very ancient one; but it has never been put to the fullest use. We propose now that the prophet shall not only prophesy, but that he shall be paid for his predictions.

We do not see why pulpit advertising should be any more free than advertising of any other kind. There are always people who want to get their newspaper advertising done without charge to themselves. They have an ingenious way of sending to the editor the item which ought to go to the publishing department; and there are people who are mean enough to think that the pulpit advertising ought similarly to be rendered free of charge. It is time that the pulpit was protected against such imposition. We propose that the minister who joins this bureau shall receive a fixed rate for every advertisement which he issues to his Sunday congregations.

Secondly, we propose also to engage the cooperation of the various parish committees throughout the country. While it is true that some parish committees impose upon their ministers in the way of advertising it is also true that some ministers impose upon the parish committees. It is right that the minister should receive pay for the Sunday advertising; it is also fair that the parish committee should charge him a certain rent for carrying on the business in the pulpit. Under the arrangement we propose the minister will not only receive pay for what may be called eleventh-hour bill posting, but the parish itself will receive pay for furnishing the walls and the brush. It is true that the advertising proclamations thus made within the walls of a church are not as prominent as if they were posted up over the fences. But scientifically we know that every vibration of the minister's voice which strikes the church walls makes it impressive; and if with a phonograph we could appeal from these sensitive walls the advertising record which has been made there in recent years, especially in some of our sensational churches, what a long and interesting record it would be! We repeat that there is no bill poster so effective as a minister's tongue, when one end is loose and the other end is well handled. But this ministerial gift ought not to be exercised without bringing in a revenue to the pews as well as to the pulpit. If people come to church to attend divine worship, and to hear a sermon, and are compelled in addition to listen to a whole column of double leaded, well displayed advertisements, they ought to share the dividends.

It might be difficult to show what profit there is in some of the advertising in which ministers have been accustomed to deal. We freely confess that much of it has not been profitable for minister or congregation. We intend that the bureau of which we have charge shall only issue such "ads" as are thoroughly "reliable" and "good" in a pecuniary sense.

We have not yet arranged a tariff of charges. We can assure our patrons that we shall charge all that the goods are worth. Prices will be governed somewhat by the social standing of the church, and by the efficiency of the minister in this line of work. It is apparent that the rate must be effected somewhat by the size of the congregation and also by its "style." Advertising for first class, aristocratic churches, with proprietary pews and all other luxuries, will be furnished on gold edged "notice" paper at high toned rates. Advertisements intended for "churches of the people" arranged in popular form in taking style, with democratic flourishes, will be a specialty. An extra charge will be made on sensational pulpits. All notices personally indorsed, ratified, explained and otherwise cracked up by the minister, in addition to the written notice, will be charged double rates. For witty allusions, producing a congregational smile, for pathetic references and all other stimulating effects, a still further charge will be made.

No advertising will be excluded from this bureau that is big enough to enter the church door. But if in any case it is necessary to take down the side of the house to get it in, an additional charge for rebuilding will be made. In view of the exhilarating effects of aerobically performances and the consequent physical danger threatening all the small boys in a town, therefore, a special rate must be paid for every circus notice, unless such circus is accompanied by a great moral show; and free tickets in all such cases must be furnished to the minister and the deacons. Old folks concerts, church minstrels, chorales, wax figures, dancing parties, concerts, sociables, I scream parties and all other kinds of religious entertainments are especially solicited. As patent medicines are accepted by a large portion of the daily press, we do not see why they may not also be legitimately advertised from the pulpit. We draw the line, however, at one point; since cleanliness is next to godliness, no soap ads will be taken by the bureau.

All applications for memberships, agencies, or for business in this bureau, should be addressed to Fernandez Foghorn, Pulpit (Gibraltar) Rock, Piney.

October 8th Nichols & Young give up the Tolu mills. The boys have done a good job during the past year and made many friends. This is a good opening for some one as this mill is a paying investment.

One of the creme de la creme is C. Ed. Weidman. Ed. is a vivid blonde about 31 summers old, and the Lord knows how many winters. He persists in saying he is but 18, but the dry rot of age shows him to be quite antique. Ed has recently discarded his favorite surcoat with the abbreviated tail, and now sports a long tailed clerical cut. He smokes "2 furs" and makes a good display of wax, and the girls say, although remote he is not slow. He clerks for Beard & Bell.

Quite an accident occurred Saturday morning at the stove yard. Wm. Hardin was just driving in with a load of railroad ties, when the breast strap broke and the horses started to run and overturned the wagon, pinning him beneath the log. He is considerably bruised up, and we understand one of his ankles is broken. Dr. Carty set the injured member, and at this writing he is resting easy.

My talented and versatile young friend, Charles A. Gray, the Tolu lawyer, has a level head. I received a note from him the other day, from which I extract the following:

"FRIEND R: I forgot the last time I was up, to officially inform you that my hair (now eight months of age) was christened Russell Gray. If you are anywhere inclined to be proud of it, drop it. I only hope he may never dishonor the honorable name you bear."

I owe that youngster a silver spoon and he shall have it—and it won't be one of your German silver affairs either. You commence grooming that young man for the Presidency in 1890. He's bound to get there. Last week little Miss Mary Russell Brown, who was named for my better half and myself, paid us a visit, in company with her parents. She is now two years old, and is an intelligent and beautiful child. So you see, friend Gray, there must be something in the "power of association" after all.

New Good Hope.

The protracted meeting closed at this place yesterday. The meeting was conducted by Rev T. C. Carter and Rev J. W. Grewson. There was a great revival among the people; it is said to be the best meeting ever yet at Good Hope.

Rev J. B. Lowry is carrying on a meeting at Daley Bluff this week. He is a good christian man and is loved by all who know him.

Billie Faulkner is on the sick list this week.

Miss Alice Browning is teaching school at the Reekdale school house.

Mr. Van Werten is teaching at the Keibler school house.

Miss Lora Coram will begin her school at the Reekdale school house Oct. first. Miss Lora is a good teacher and is kind and affectionate to her pupils. She will board at P. M. McGraw's.

Miss Jesse Thompson is teaching at the Skelton school house. [We guess Mr. Albert Lockins, of Carville, will take Sunday lessons.]

Miss Gerie Owen, of Carville, is visiting in this neighborhood this week.

Mr. Clint Leming talks of moving to Lolo soon.

Mr. Scott Quarterman has quit carrying pencils as his mule became unruly.

Mr. Shouse is repairing his barn. U. R.

MISSOURI LETTER.

SENECA, MO., SEPT. 9, 1890.

Editor Press:—If you will allow me space, I will give you a few items from Southwest Missouri. Seneca is a town of 1500 inhabitants, on the western line of Mo. and eastern line of Indian Territory. Mining and milling are the chief industries. Six or eight mines are being opened and lead, in paying quantities, it is thought, has been found. If these expectations prove to be realities, this country will take a boom. The country is rough and broken, and like old Crittenden, rocky too, and too rocky. Just west of here in the Indian Territory it is nice, and level and productive, a fine wheat country, furnishing wheat sufficient to keep two roller mills running day and night. There are two tripoli mines here. The rock is quarried and ground and shipped in considerable quantities, to be used in polishing metals.

This has been a year for good crops here. Across in Kansas it is different, crops are failures. Corn is 90 cents, wheat from 85 to 90. I meet a great many Kentuckians out here, and most of them are doing well. The boys who went up Salt river in August will find more profitable employment out here than fishing on the brink of those turbulent waters.

Modoc.

Dycusburg Democracy.

Mass meeting of the Democracy of the Dycusburg precinct pursuant to a call of the State Central Committee with a view of selecting three committeemen in this precinct in common with all the precincts of Crittenden county, in order to organize the Democracy of Crittenden county: this committee shall be ordered and privileged to cast the vote at Marion, Ky., on Monday, Sept. 8, 1890, for a Democratic Chairman for the county, the purpose in whole with the several counties of the State to well organize the Democracy of Kentucky. W. T. Graves, chairman of this district, called the house to order, and J. A. Graves and T. F. Newcomb were nominated for temporary Secretaries of the meeting, and upon a report of the house being elected, there being a tie vote. T. J. Newcomb declining the nomination, J. A. Graves was appointed by acclamation, upon suggestion of T. J. Yates. The chairman then declared the house open for remarks and T. J. Yates and W. S. Graves made Democratic speeches. Jas. W. Brazier, John R. Jackson, and W. T. Graves were nominated an elected committeemen.

Mr. Goleman Koon then moved that more committeemen be elected, being large and the motion prevailed. Owen Boaz and Arch Wicker were also nominated and elected. On motion the house adjourned, thoroughly imbued with the honest spirit of Democracy.

MIDDLESBORO

The Press Representative Enjoys her Hospitality.

Notwithstanding the rain and mud, the editors of the Monitor, Advocate and the writer made their way to the depot in time for the train on Tuesday last on our way to the Press Association at Middlesboro.

We arrived at Princeton in due time and boarded at 2 o'clock a. m. the "Cannon Ball" for Louisville, where we arrived after a six hours run.

We were met by Col Thomas H. Arnold, editor of the Middlesboro News, at the Fifth Avenue hotel, and from there at 8 o'clock p. m. to the Louisville and Nashville depot, where pullman cars were in waiting for us. After a good night's sleep in a pullman car we were in the magic city of Middlesboro only fifteen months old, with its six thousand inhabitants, all busy as bees and seemingly vying with each other as to who shall add most to the beauty of their mountain city, which already has seven churches, six hotels, about fifty brick business houses, to say nothing of about 25 tenements in which business is carried on for want of a better place.

The reception committee met and escorted us to the magnificent and beautiful Middlesboro hotel, situated on Arthur heights, with its beautiful walks and drives.

The city is situated on a plane, surrounded by the mountains, with the historic Cumberland Gap in full view. The Belt railroad encircling the city, which is fifteen miles long, runs along the base of the mountain where endless quantities of mineral are buried. The Dummy railroad, which is no small factor in its make up, reaches out, as it were, in every direction, lest a lump of coal or bar metal should go unnoticed. The electric lights, which make the night the same as the day, must have been imagined something new to those mountaineers. Cumberland Avenue, the main business street, is valuable, as I am told the lots sold from three to five hundred dollars per front foot. It is needless to say the writer, with all his anxiety to stay, came away without purchasing.

Although young, the city has a fire department for its protection. Mr. Barnett, a contractor, told me day hands could get $1.50, carpenters $2.50 to $3.50, while brick layers were getting $5 per day. The company has paid out thousands of dollars to make and beautify this mountain city. If you want a home among the mountains go to Middlesboro, where you can get mountain air to breathe, visit Solomon's cave, and enjoy a stroll to the pinnacle rock over 600 feet above the level of Middlesboro.

THE REPORTERS DEFENSE

City Engineer Jungerman, of Newport, Ky., Assaults a Newspaper Man, who Kills Him.

Cincinnati, Sept. 14.—Thos. Riley a reporter for the Daily Commonwealth, printed at Covington, Ky., shot and killed C. L. Jungerman, the City Civil Engineer of Newport, Ky.

Yesterday a local article in the paper written by Riley severely criticised some work done by Jungerman in Newport. This afternoon the two met by chance in Newport City Hall, Jungerman accosted Riley, saying: "Did you write that yesterday?"

"Write what?" replied Riley.

"You know what" answered Jungerman with a vile epithet, accompanied by a blow of a heavy cane that sent Riley across the hall. Jungerman then ran out and hid behind a high stone step. Riley staggered out, revolver in hand, asking where he was. "Behind the steps" replied some little girls, pointing out his hiding place. Riley found him and Jungerman sprang and grappled his adversary. Two shots rang out quickly on the Sabbath eve. Jungerman fell dead, one ball through his heart, one in his mouth and into the spinal column. Riley was taken to Covington to give Newport time to cool off.

IN MEMORIAM.

J. M. Roney, the subject of this sketch, was born in Robinson county Tenn., Sept. 10, 1846. In November, 1866, he came to Salem, Ky. In October he was married to Miss M. E. Grassham, daughter of Mr. P. Grassham. They lived happily together until April 10, 1872, when death separated them. On November 25, 1875 he was united in marriage to Miss M. D. Barnes, daughter of L. Barnes, with whom he lived happily until his death, which occurred June 12, 1890. He was a kind husband and an affectionate father. It was his heart's delight to do every thing he could to make his wife and children happy, he was not only kind to his family, but was a kind and obliging neighbor. He was free hearted, always ready and willing to assist the poor and needy. He contributed to the building of the church house in Salem very liberally. He had never made any public profession of religion, his wife and Dr. Hayden are of the opinion that he realized a change; some time before he was taken down he told a number of his friends that he intended to live a different life, his great desire was to be a christian. After he was taken down, when his sister was at his bed side, he said to her: "Tell me what I must do to be saved." His wife, a good christian woman, got the Bible and read to him what God required of all in order to be saved. He had two of the best doctors in this part of the state—Hayden and Threlkeld—who did all that could be done to give relief, but all in vain. He had to die. The funeral services were conducted by the writer, surrounded by a large concourse of sorrowing friends, the remains were deposited in the Salem cemetery to remain until the resurrection morn.

He left behind a dear wife and a beautiful daughter of thirteen summers, a little boy of four summers, an aged father, brothers and sisters and a host of friends to mourn his loss. May God comfort his wife in her lonely hours and enable her to raise her children to love the God she loves, is my prayer.
