COMPROMISE IN SIGHT.

The Details Practically Agreed
Upon This Afternoon.

It Provides That Repeal Shall Take Effect On October
1st, 1894.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The details of the forthcoming compromise on the silver question have been practically agreed upon, and a few moments before 1 o'clock this afternoon Democratic Senators began pledging themselves in writing to abide by it. The compromise agreed upon provides that the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act shall take effect October 1, 1894, and that the bond question shall be eliminated entirely. It also provides that the four and a half million of silver which must be purchased under the act shall be coined from time to time, as shall the seigniorage now in the treasury and that which shall grow out of the further purchase. All greenbacks and Treasury notes under ten dollars in value shall be retired and silver certificates or coined silver dollars shall take their place.

As soon as the committee reached this conclusion Senators on the Democratic side were sent for, and there was a steady stream of Senators wandering their way to the committee room. Mr. Voorhees, in charge of the bill, having been previously and for some time closed with the committee.

A paper was drawn up, addressed to Mr. Voorhees, in which Senators pledged themselves that if he would move to amend his bill in accordance with the outlines given above they would support it and then vote for the bill as amended. It was a noteworthy fact that the silver Senators signed this document, although there were some who did it under the most vigorous protestations, looking upon the compromise, as they expressed it, as an object surrender of all that for which they had fought these many weeks.

As soon as this paper has been signed its purpose having been previously discussed with the Chairman of the Finance Committee—the amendment will be prepared and introduced in the Senate. It is hardly expected that this will be done this afternoon, although such action is not without the range of possibility.

It is hoped by the Conference Committee that every Democrat will sign the pledge and that Mr. Voorhees will act promptly upon its reception. The Republicans decline to talk in regard to their course, saying that they must first see the proposed amendment. There is a disposition on the part of some of the Republicans to repudiate any compromise that enlarges the volume of silver money without a corresponding increase in the issue of bonds for its protection. The Democrats, however, expect to be able to draw their entire vote to the support of their compromise bill and force it through without the aid of the minority.

The secretary of the Treasury was heard from during the morning on three different occasions through the agency of a trusted friend, the gentleman so acting appearing before the committee so late in the day as 2 o'clock this afternoon. One of the members of the committee, when asked after this late visit of the representative of the Secretary of the Treasury whether the compromise would be acceptable to the President, said that it was drawn on the lines of the suggestions that emanated from the Administration itself. So far every Democrat who has seen the pledge has signed it, but this does not mean that a majority have yet signed it.

Many Democrats, owing to the fact that the truce was being maintained, put in some time about the department and were not present to sign it, but the Senators in chance of the measure assert that will have every signature.

The Republicans say that they are opposed to this sort of a compromise and will vote against it, claiming that it is not a repeal of the law such as is demanded in the platform of the party. The silver Republicans, speaking through such men as Senators Wolcott and Teller, say they will not filibuster against any measure upon which the Democrats agree, for that would be futile. They will not, however, vote for the bill. The Populists—Senators Allen, Kyle and Peffer—are unalterably opposed to the agreement that has been arranged and declare they will not support it.

Mr. Peffer says the only compromise he will favor is free coinage at 16 to 1 There was a time earlier in the fight he said, when he might have considered something in the way of compromise, but he could not do so now.

Mr. Allen will not give up without a further contest, and say he will not permit the compromise to come to a vote without his having something to say upon it, and if the Senate is kept in session but seven hours a day he declared that he will be able to consume a number of days in stating his position on this compromise. Mr. Kyle will be found voting against the bill, and it is said that Mr. Irby has said that he could not say how he would vote until he had considered the matter further.

The appearances are, therefore, that the Democrats will be called upon to pass the compromise, if they pass it as a purely party measure, without aid from either Republicans or Populists.

THE MOB TOOK A VOTE.

Peculiar Manner By Which the Lynching of John Cole Was Prevented in Alabama.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 20.—The lynching of John Cole was prevented last night at Cuba Station, in Sumter county, in a rather peculiar manner. Day before yesterday he assaulted a young woman near that place and was captured yesterday evening. He was identified by the young woman. The infuriated mob put a rope around the negro's neck and proceeded to the woods to hang him up. When they reached the outer edge of the town one of the party called a halt and made an appeal to the crowd against lynching. He occupied a stump for about ten minutes. In his speech to the mob it was finally decided to settle the matter by a vote. Thirty-seven stood on one side of the road against lynching and on the other side stood twenty-five who said lynch. The rope was removed from the negro's neck and he was sent to the county jail and he was sent to the county jail at Livingston.

MIDNIGHT TO MIDNIGHT.

What the New Election Law
Means.

In the Court of Appeals to-day, Chief Justice Bennett writing the opinion, the case of the Commonwealth against G. W. Murphy, of Lebanon, was reversed. Murphy was indicted for giving away liquor on election day. Circuit Judge Patterson ordered his acquittal by the jury, because the offense was committed the night of election day and not when the polls were open. It is this ruling of the Circuit Judge which the Court of Appeals reverses. The latter holds that both the Constitution and the new election law say and mean that intoxicating liquors must not be sold, loaned or given away "on the day of any election." And construes "day" to mean the whole twenty-four hours and not just the hours during which the polls are open all of which is important, for hereafter the election day prohibition will apply from midnight to midnight.

AFRAID OF A MOB.

Edmond Davis in Jail at Morganfield For Shooting Gip
Barnett.

Morganfield, Ky., Oct. 21.—Marshal Hodgins arrived here this evening with Edmond Davis, charged with shooting Gip Barnett. The shooting occurred in Uniontown, about five miles from here, over a game of cards. Davis and Barnett were playing cards in the White Cottage saloon, when a dispute arose, resulting in the shooting. Barnett, it is thought, can not live. Davis seems to be afraid of a mob.

THE SMITHLAND WELL SENSATION.

A Bottle of Supposed Poison and Other Articles Found in One
—An Investigation On Foot.

The excitement at Smithland over the condition of the public wells of that town continues unabated. It is now certain that the vial of fluid found in one of the wells was poison. A sack of flour was also found in this same well. There is still no clue as to how the remains of the infant came to be in the well near the Methodist church, but there is said to be some suspicion from a certain quarter. The whole case calls for a thorough investigation, which is now under way, but so far the case is yet enveloped in mystery.—Paducah News.

GHASTLY!

The Worst Railroad Wreck of
The Season.

Nearly Two Scores of Charred Bodies Taken From the Debris.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 20.—One of the most frightful wrecks of the year occurred on the Grand Trunk near Battle Creek early this morning.

A Rain and Whitecomb special train of passengers from New York and Boston were returning from Chicago. The train was in charge of Conductor Scott, of this city, and Engineer Woolley, and took orders at this station to meet at Nichols No. 9, the Pacific express going West, due at this station at 1:35 o'clock this morning, but which was three hours late.

The conductor or engineer, or both, of the Rain and Whitecomb special orders and passed Nichols station and collided with the Pacific express coming West at the rate of about thirty miles an hour. The two engines were driven into each other and are a total wreck.

When the collision took place the second and third day coaches on No. 9, the train going west, were completely telescoped. It was in these cars that the great sacrifice of life took place. The second coach cut through the third coach like a knife and the roof passed over the heads of the sleeping, and alighted passengers were completely entombed.

The engine and baggage car of the special were badly wrecked, but the coaches being sleepers and the train moving slowly, escaped serious injury. The passengers on the four coaches were more or less injured, and in one of them "No. 13," called the unlucky coach, which has been in several accidents before, there were twenty-five dead bodies taken from the wreck this morning by the firemen. They were pinned under seats and jammed up against the end of the coach by the next coach, which had telescoped it and then burned like rats in a trap. The bodies were burned so badly as to be unrecognizable. Nearly all had their heads, arms, or legs burned off, and they cannot be identified as yet.

A temporary morgue was made of a freight car, in which the disfigured bodies were placed in charge of local undertakers. So badly charred and burned are the bodies lying in this impromptu morgue that it is hardly possible that their names will ever be known. Twenty-six dead bodies were taken from the ruins of the wrecked cars, this is supposed to be the total number of victims.

HOUSE COLLAPSED.

A Man Crushed to Death and Others Hurt.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 19.—This morning at 8 o'clock the Blumenstein carriage factory, which was in process of reconstruction, collapsed without warning and one man was killed and three others hurt. For some days past workmen have been engaged in tearing away part of the building, with the intention of adding thereto and running up another story. The roof had been torn off and some part of the walls taken down. A quantity of brick had been piled up on the second floor, to be put in the walls by the workmen this morning and just as they were about to begin their work the weight of the bricks caused the joists to fall, and the building instantly collapsed, burying the men in the debris.

John Warner, a bricklayer, was crushed to death. Two other workmen were seriously hurt.

Faith in Womanhood.

Henry Ward Beecher once said: "I think I am more grateful to God for the sense that came to me through my mother and sisters of the substantial integrity, purity and nobility of womanhood than for almost anything else in this world. After a long life I can say that I not lost faith in women. The longer I live the more I value my regard for them. I should look upon it as a fatal symptom of canker in my soul if I fell from my confidence in the general trustworthiness, honesty, honor and charity of womanhood. Therefore when I hear young men, or men in middle life, or old men, cast men in middle life, or old men, cast down aspersions on the character of women, I feel as if I were in the den of hissing serpents. My soul, come not into communion with such men, abhor them, pass by them, for they are themselves far down in corruption. If I hear a man speak contemptuously of women, my heart sighs at the thought that he had a mother whose memory he insults."

F. A. A. M.

The Grand Lodge of Kentucky
Completes Its Labors.

The Children of the Masonic Home Go To The Fair.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 19.—The Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Kentucky adjourned this afternoon after being in session three days. Important business of the session to-day was the election of Grand Lodge officers.

J. Speed Smith, of Richmond, who was Grand Master, was made Past Grand Master, and James W. Seaton, of Brookville, the deputy Grand Master, next in promotion, was made Grand Master. Henry Hopson, of Madisonville, Grand Senior Warden, was promoted to the position of Deputy Grand Master, and Frank C. Gerard, of Bowling Green, the Grand Junior Warden was made Grand Junior Warden.

R. F. Peak, of Bedford, was chosen Grand Junior Warden, Henry B. Grant was re-elected Grand Secretary and Capt. John H. Leathers, Grand Treasurer, Jos. J. Davidson was re-elected Grand Tyler.

One of the most interesting features of the session to-day was the subscription to send the children of the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home to the World's Fair.

The Grand Lodge appropriated $500 for this purpose, but fearing this would not be sufficient to send the children, the lodges, chapters and individuals are asked to subscribe. The result was that $1,200 was received. The children will go to Chicago Monday or Tuesday.

New Game Law.

The new game law makes it unlawful for any person to catch, kill or pursue with intent to kill any black, gray or fox squirrel between the first day of January and the 15th day of June; wild goose, woodcock, teal or duck between the first day of September and the 1st day of May; and the 1st day of September; quail or partridge between the 1st day of February and the 20th day of October; dove between the 1st day of February and the 1st day of August. The fine shall not be less than $5 nor more than $25. The law positively forbids at all times the killing of night hawk, whippoorwill, sparrow, thrush, martin, lark, finch, swallow, woodpecker, flicker, robin, oriole, red bird, cat bird, cedar bird, tanager, blue bird, or other song or insectivorous bird, except where the same shall be destructive of the grain crop.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY.

[From the News.]

Mr. John Danlap, of Vicksburg, started to join a party of friends at Grand Rivers and to Chicago, but while riding alone through the woods his horse, which is a young animal, became frightened and threw him against a tree. The accident occurred about 8 o'clock in the forenoon and late in the afternoon he was found by an acquaintance still lying against the tree and insensible.

Dr. W. H. Padon leaves this week for Oklahoma and will locate at Backwell Rock, where he will enter upon professional duties.

On Oct. 11, 1893, Mr. Chas. Nelson, son of H. Nelson, our County Assessor, and Miss Nettie Ramage, daughter of Mr. John Ramage of this county, were married. Rev. C. W. Crowson officiating. The Smithland News with many others friends extend congratulations.

Geo. Watson, a prisoner, who is held over in jail for a new trial, on last Friday afternoon became intoxicated on whiskey his friends had furnished him and being in possession of a pistol, assaulted a fellow prisoner. It required the jailor, the sheriff and a posse of men to over power and quiet the desperate man.

Tradewater Dike.

Just below Caseyville, and directly opposite the mouth of the Tradewater river, a dike is being built from the Illinois shore, the end of which will be about 2,000 feet from the Kentucky shore. This dike partly crosses the old low water channel, but the bar is rapidly cutting out in front of it, and the channel moving to the Kentucky side. The top of the dike will be 4 feet above low water, as that at 12 feet on the Evansville gauge there will be 8 feet over it. From present indications it is believed that the Tradewater bar will soon be cut out, and the channel will be along the Kentucky side from Caseyville down past the Tradewater towhead.

HE MUST DIE.

Bob Marler Convicted of Murder
In the First Degree.

Middlesborough, Ky., Oct. 20.—Bob Marler was convicted of murder in the first degree and his punishment fixed at death. He, it will be remembered, with his brother George conspired against the life of Conductor Lang, and fired into a Belt Line train killing Mrs. Mary Bolling. He was saved from the fury of a mob by the skillfulness of Sheriff John C. Colson. The verdict gives general satisfaction and is the only death penalty ever given by a jury in Bell county.

THE ELEPHANTS' MISHAP.

One Lost His Trunk and Several Others Were Badly Injured.

(Youth's Companion.)

Not a few people in India have decided objections to the railways, which in recent years have been introduced in that country. Among these objections are the elephants, to whom railway travel seems to be especially hazardous. More than one elephant, even on the American continent, where elephants are scarce, has been killed by collision with a train. The most famous of all elephants, the great Jumbo, met his death in this way.

The Indian locomotives are more in danger of grasshoppers, it appears, than they are of elephants. When a rain runs into a great army of grasshoppers covering the track to a depth of several feet, it is sure to be stopped and in grave danger of being derailed. Accidents of this nature appear to be not infrequent in India.

But in a collision with an elephant, it is usually the elephant which suffers most. He can hardly get under the wheels; and as the locomotive has more power within it than the elephant, the animal is generally the one of the two antagonist who is thrown off the track.

In the domains of the Nizam of Hyderabad, an Indian potentate of great consequence and of extensive domains, the railway is so new a thing that the people are not yet accustomed to it. Not long ago the Nizam, having occasion to make a journey, preferred to travel by a special train instead of on elephant back; but he sent his elephants of before him, over the highway.

As the mahout, or elephant-driver in charge of the herd, was proceeding on his way, he came to the intersection of the railway with the public road. As it made a short cut, and was level and smooth; while the road was bad, the elephant driver thought he would take the railway. So he conducted his animals upon the embankment, and they went lumbering on over the rails and ties.

Presently the Nizam's special train came whirling round the curve. The engine driver saw the elephants, and reversed his lever and gave the signal; but an elephant is a slow animal to move. By the time the astonished mahout had begun to deliver his orders to the elephants to get off the track, the train was upon him.

The largest elephant in the company said to be without the rival in India, was overthrown, crushed and killed. His mahout was also killed. Another elephant lost his trunk, and another one of his tusks, while several more were badly damaged.

The Nizam was a sorrowful witness of this destruction. He wept with grief, and is said to have lamented the introduction of railways into his dominions. The unfortunate man who was the cause of the disaster lost his life as the penalty of the offense of traveling on elephant-back on a railway track.

Gored By a Cow.

Mrs. Joseph LeRoy, of Lyon county, was probably fatally hurt by a vicious cow one day the past week. She was preparing to tie the cow to milk her, when the brute made at her and before she could get out of the way she was fatally injured by the cow goring body.

A postage stamp conundrum is going the rounds. A young lady entered a postoffice, handed in a dollar bill and said she wanted twice as many two as ones and the balance in threes. The clerk smilingly started in off hand to count out the stamps, grew perplexed, commenced figuring and figured until he got red in the face, when the young lady politely told him she was in no hurry, that he could figure it out and she would call next day for the stamps. Now who can figure out the problem of how many stamps were given the young lady by the clerk when she called next day?

SAWED THE BARS.

Ten Prisoners Escape From the Covington Jail Some of Them
Disgraceful Characters.

Cincinnati, O. Oct. 21.—Ten prisoners in the Covington, Ky., jail sawed their way to liberty late to-night. A number of fine steel saws had in some way been smuggled into the jail, and with these they easily cut the soft iron grating and scaled the walls of the yard. The city and adjacent country are now being scoured and it is thought that most if not all of them will be captured before sunrise. Among the number are some of the worst characters in the State, two of them being murderers.

Caldwell County.

(From the Banner.)

The October term of the Caldwell circuit court convened Monday morning, with Hon. C. J. Pratt on the bench.

The grand jury returned the following indictments: Henry Gaither and Annie Jones, fornication; Tom Wooten, selling liquor to minor, two cases; John Southard, selling liquor to a minor; Newborn Bright, carrying a deadly concealed weapon; F. L. Bobbitt, willful murder; W. A. Taylor, petit larceny; Wright Standard, petit larceny; Lizzie Jones, breaking into a house.

Bob Dunn was fined $300 and sentenced to fifty days in jail for violating the prohibition law.

Mack Dunbar was fined $300 for violating the prohibition law and was sentenced to fifty days' confinement in the county jail.

E. H. Daniel appeared in court and entered a plea of guilty of the charge of violating the prohibition law and was fined $300. On payment of the fine and costs all the other cases against him were dismissed.

Mitton Dudley was fined $25 and costs for selling liquor on election day.

In the case of the commonwealth against Robert Pogue for violating the prohibition law, the indictment was dismissed with leave to recall by the commonwealth's attorney.

The suit of J. J. Ray against his brother T. J. Ray, for shooting a mule was dismissed without prejudice.

Mr. Jake Meyers, a notice of whose illness was made last week, died Friday at his home at Troy, Tenn., of typhoid fever. His body was brought here Saturday and buried at Bethlehem, five miles in the country.

Old Uncle Stanley Bowers died at the residence of his son, D. L. Bowers, October 18th, in the 86th year of his age.

SHADY GROVE.

Jack frost is here. A flock of geese passed over Monday night going South.

Fell Wacker, of Iron Hill, fell in John Asher's drug store.

John G. Asher and his daughter, Miss Myrtle, left Monday for Louisville, thence to Chicago.

Thos. Moreland and Truitt, of Weston was in town last week.

M. Schwab, of Marion was in town Tuesday.

D. J. Hubbard and Mrs. Dr. Todd, went visiting this week.

Joe L. Cardwell has returned home from Greenville.

Beard and Asher will soon have their new drug store done, then Fell want have to be a clerk.

Our little town is coming, three daily mails on Tuesday and Saturday from different points.

Bro Robinson closed his meeting here Sunday, with grand and glorious results. Many were brought to realize their condition, and to accept Christ as their saviour. We can say that this man is sent of God, to teach the people the way of life eternal, for he teaches that in Jesus only, there is contentment in this life, and in the life to come. We as a people, should "behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us; and what great things he has done for the children of men. Bro Robinson will be blessed while he discharges his as he did here. May God ever keep him under the hollow of his hand, and at last given him a home with his family in Heaven.

F. M. Clement is the Democratic nominee for the Legislature. He will appreciate your vote and influence.

We are authorized to announce ISAAC LINLEY a candidate for the Legislature, to represent Crittenden and Livingston counties in the next General Assembly of Kentucky. Election November 1893.

FOR THE SENATE.

We are authorized to announce S. O. NUNN a candidate for the State Senate in the district composed of the counties of Crittenden, Caldwell and Webster, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce MISS MINA WHEELER a candidate for Superintendent of the Public Schools of Crittenden County. She will appreciate your vote and influence.

Vote for Sam Nunn.

Tuesday Nov. 7, 1893.

Vote for F. M. Clement.

Vote for S. O. Nunn, Tuesday, Nov. 7.

Vote for Miss Wheeler, Tuesday, Nov. 7.

Grover's backbone appears to be as stiff as ever.

Senator Hill is coming to the front. Keep your eye on him; he will be heard from again.

H. H. Holston, of Paducah, has been appointed Special Land Agent for the State of Washington.

We hear no more about "the female tenderness of woman," the crack of the party lash is now sounding.

The penitentiary commissioners have bought a chair plant, and the prisoners in the Frankfort prison will be put to work.

Under the new system of letting the public printing to the lowest bidder, the Courier-Journal Job Printing company secured the lion's share of the work. Good.

Gen. Leonidas Crittenden died at his home on States Island Monday. He was a son of the great John J. Crittenden, in whose honor our county was named.

There is not a man in the district who disapproves Sam Nunn's record as a member of the House; he was always active; always in earnest; always on the right side of every question. He was continually at his post.

Drs. Appleman, of Louisville, and Roberts, of Nashville, have been arrested at Paducah, charged with violating certain provisions of the State medical laws. They are itinerant doctors, and the old line doctors are after them.

Paducah needs a new Mayor. The gentleman who now occupies that high position finds it necessary to make a pugilistic attack upon Mr. Dilday, editor of the Paducah Standard, because the Standard had criticized his official acts. The officer who has nothing but his fist to discuss official acts with, had better be retired.

Everybody is talking about the admirable canvass Miss Wheeler is making. And her bitterest opponent can find no fault with her speeches nor do they talk anymore about incompetency. She has proven beyond the shadow of a doubt that she is, in every way, qualified for the office.

Sam Nunn has fought the battles of every Democratic nominee in this county from the time he was old enough to appreciate politics. He has never been a chronic office seeker, preferring to work for the election of others, he has not sought the spoils of office. Now he is a candidate himself, and every Democrat who has been through a canvass in this county, should remember Sam's unselfish devotion to his party. He will make an splendid Senator, and ought to be elected. Go to the polls Nov. 7, and vote for Sam.

Miss Wheeler's addresses to the people of the county have been far above the level of the ordinary campaign speeches made by that lord of creation, commonly known as man. Go, if you please, and hear any of the present candidates for the Senate and for the House, deliver their stormy talks, full of the bragadoio and bombast, so natural for the man and the politician, and then go hear Miss Wheeler's lecture, so placid, so pleasant, so plain and withal so full of good common sense. The first arouses our prejudices, the last sets us sober thinking; the first makes us believe, while the last leads the mind along green pastures and beside still waters. The first makes us want to down the other fellows by any means at command, we are ready to dab on the war paint, call to mind all the mean things the other fellows have done, and we go forth bristling for gore, ready to quarrel with our next door neighbor, put the bottle to the mouth of all John Smiths, and tell the hired man he must vote our way or move on.

Hear Miss Wheeler and you have a friendly feeling for all mankind; you think of the golden opportunities for social and mental improvement that you thoughtlessly flitted away. A determination to educate your children take hold upon you, and feeling that you owe a great debt to your family, your neighbor and your country, you want your way peacefully homeward.

Men object to women in politics. If it is hush, whooping, yelling, fighting kind the objection is well founded, but if it is the kind Miss Wheeler is engaged in, man can improve himself by deserting the old, and following the new. Hurrah for Miss Wheeler.

Sam Nunn has always worked for every nominee the party ever put forward in this county. His time was always at his party's command, and every candidate acknowledged his worth as a party worker, and was helped by his work. Now Sam is a candidate; he is competent he is worthy, and let the party do the hand-some thing by the man who has always so handsomely helped the party.

Mr. S. O. Nunn returned from Webster county Saturday. He is gratified at his prospects in that county. "My majority in that county," says Mr. Nunn, "will not be less than 500, and many of my friends think it will reach 700. The talk about the Third party over there voting for my opponent is all bosh. I will get more Third party votes than he. The bulk of the Third party in that county were formerly Democrats and they tell me that they are for me."

A statement of the exports of tin plate from Wales during the nine months ended September 30 shows that, despite the McKinley tariff, the United States still receives nearly three-fourths of the entire export product of Great Britain. The exports for the period stated were 212,244 tons, against the 214,527 tons during the corresponding period of last year.

The Senatorial canvass appears to be mighty warm in Caldwell county. The candidates spoke at Princeton Monday of last week and according to the Banner, Sam Nunn was stronger after than before the speaking. Unless all signs fail, Sam will be the next Senator.

One day brings the news from Washington that a compromise has been effected, the next day brings a denial, and the Senators go on speaking forever.

There is no better men in the Legislative district than F. M. Clement. A solid, sound man, firm and faithful to his convictions, he will do to trust in the House.

Mr. Jas. A. Denaree, the Grand Reporter of the Knights of Honor, and founder of the order, died at his home in Louisville Tuesday.

And now the glorious news comes that a vote will be reached on the silver question in the Senate on Saturday. Let us hope that Saturday will soon come.

The cat's Telephone says: The white branch of the Republican party met in town Monday of last week and put Prof. Tooke in the field for superintendent. He is a talented young man and bears a good reputation.

The colored Republican wing also met in another room and nominated Tom Wright, of Cerulean Springs, as their candidate for Representative. Tom is one of the most moral, progressive popular men among his race in the county, and his name at the head of the ballot would, the rule of consistency prevailing, merit a full recognition of his party at the polls.

The Princeton Banner very truthfully says: The law closing barber shops on Sunday will be like the law closing saloons on Sunday. It will be enforced where public sentiment demands that it be enforced, and it will be nullified where the people want to shave on Sunday. It will be observed in Princeton.

A Negro Colony.

The scheme planned by the Cherokee allotted and E. P. McCabe, the colored ex-Secretary of State of Kansas, to establish the negro town of Liberty in the Cherokee Strip has been surveyed and Mr. McCabe has sent a delegation of colored ex-Methodists ministers and deacons into the Southern States to proselyte for him. The new town is three miles north of Perry. The people who are booming Perry are greatly excited at the prospect of a colony of negroes so near them, and some hot-heads have threatened violence when they begin to arrive. Mr. McCabe has let contracts to build a number of small dwelling houses, for which the negroes will be allowed to pay on the installment plan, and he will put the necessary business houses in operation as soon as the first of the colonists arrive.

SHERIDAN.

I saw in the last Press an article over the signature "18-year-old-girl," stating that Rev. Roney had torn sanctification all to pieces. As the author of that article is so young (?) we will have to excuse her on the grounds that she knows no better. It will take one with more reason than Rev. Roney to change any one on that subject. I have not heard of a single change made. She bragged about what a good meeting they had. I have attended every protracted meeting at Deer Creek for 18 years, and I never saw as little good done as was accomplished in the last effort. She speaks about seeing a sanctified man going to heaven on a bicycle. If she gets there at all, she will have to do better.

18-year-old-boy.

At Hebron.

EDITOR PRESS.—Miss Mina Wheeler addressed a crowded house at this place Monday night. For two hours she held the closest attention of every body, and when she closed it was the unanimous opinion that she had made one of the best speeches ever heard in this neighborhood. We are for her down here and we are for her strong. She is one of the people coming from humble paragonages, with no golden opportunities, she has worked in season and out of season to acquire an education. She has prepared herself for the work, she is in every way worthy, and we believe that her election would be a just recognition of merit, and an encouragement to our girls, many of whom are now doing a great work in the school room.

But I am digressing a little, I started to tell you that an effort was made to keep Miss Mina from speaking in the school house at this place. The effort was confined to one or two men, however, and they were afraid that the benches would get damaged. There were plenty of men here who were ready to stand good for all damages, and the objections had to relent, while the objectors were delaying matters, Mr. Lewis Daugherty, one of our best citizens, invited Miss Mina and the audience to his residence, he said his house was open for her to speak.

When the speech was finished, Miss Mina pleasantly and lady-like said that if any damages had been done, she would be glad to have it reported to her at once, and she would settle the bill. Hurrah for Miss Mina. A Reader.

GOLDEN HARVEST NO COMPROMISE.

Made By the Ferris Wheel and Other Features of the Fair.

BUFFALO BILL'S GOLD MINE

World's Fair Grounds, Chicago, Oct. 23.—With only one full week left of the official Exposition season a close estimate can be given of the profits made by the hundreds of concessionaires in Jackson Park and the Midway. Chief Clerk Blackman, of the Admissions and Collections Department, figures that the profits of the concessionaires will aggregate $4,900,000 after deducting the percentage to the Exposition. This represents about 20 per cent. of the gross receipts. Most of the concessionaires have made money after paying from 25 to 50 per cent. into the Exposition treasury. The Ferris Wheel will pay a profit of about $260,000 after deducting $300,000 and 50 per cent. of the receipts paid to the Fair after that amount was taken in.

When the Dockery Congressional Committee was in Chicago investigating the finances of the Exposition and its estimates of revenue while the $5,000,000 loan bill was before Congress, as little as $2,000,000 was estimated as the income from concessions. The big restaurants in the park, particularly those of the Wellington Catering Company, have found their concessions the most profitable. The electric launch, soda water, popcorn and souvenir concessions come next on the profit side of the ledger.

But the men who will leave the World's Fair with fortunes in their pockets are Col. Oddy and his colleagues, who were told by President Higginbotham, when they were negotiations to put the Wild West show in the grounds, that it was not refined enough. They leased a big tract of land just outside the Fair gates and reaped a golden harvest.

Off For Eddyville.

Sheriff Davis and Special Deputy Robt. A. Davis, left for Eddyville at 6:30 this morning, having charge the three prisoners convicted at the last term of Circuit Court and sentenced to the penitentiary. Following is a list: W. R. Howell, white, grand larceny, one year; Tandy Williams, col., house breaking, seven years, and Stephen Thomas, col., house breaking, six years. Judge Grace passed sentence upon the prisoners Friday. Mat Reavly, col., who was convicted of hog stealing and given one year, was permitted to go free on promise of good behavior. Reavly will be required to report at the February term of court, and if it is shown that he has not been walking in the path of the righteous, he will then be sentenced and will have to serve his term. There was some doubt as to his guilt.—Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

Blind Woman's Horrible Death.

Martha Osborn, an old colored woman who has been totally blind for seven years, was burned to death in a cabin on Mr. Jesse Giles' farm, near Howell, a few days ago. The woman, who was 70 years old, was left alone by the colored family for several hours. On their return they found that she had been burned to a crisp, presenting a most shocking spectacle. When the family left the cabin they left a small fire in the fireplace, and the supposition is that the old woman in hovering over the coals to keep warm got too near and her clothing caught. The cabin was situated some distance from any other dwelling and her screams could not be heard. The charred remains were placed in a box and buried in the colored burying ground in the neighborhood.—Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

The Railroad Debit.

In 1887 Marion precinct began paying interest on $15,000 railroad bonds, to pay which an ad valorem tax of 15 cents was and has been annually levied. In addition to paying the interest the 15 cent tax has put $920.25 into the sinking fund, and when this years tax is turned in over $1100 will be on hand to liquidate that amount of the bonds, and will be so applied. County Clerk Woods estimates that it will take 24 years to pay off the entire indebtedness at that rate.

INCORPORATED.

THE PRESIDENT OPPOSES THE COMPROMISE, AND A FINAL VOTE TO BE TAKEN.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Late tonight the Courier-Journal correspondent was informed from the most trustworthy source that the President and the Secretary of the Treasury are bitterly opposed to the compromise gotten up by the Steering Committee of the Senate. The President denounces it, and says that he knew nothing about it, and desires to it defeated.

The report given out to the correspondents yesterday and to-day that all of the Democratic Senators but three had signed the compromise is untrue. There are eight who had refused to sign the surrender, and will continue to refuse. They are senators Hill, Mills, Vilas, Voorhees, Mitchell (Wisconsin), Caffrey, McPherson and Irby. Only thirty-six have signed the paper and it is now not probable that enough votes can be obtained to pass the compromise measure, even should it reach a vote.

Bulletin—Washington, Oct. 24.—Senators Voorhees, Harris, Aldrich and Dubois, representing the two factions in each party, have authorized the statement that they believe the fight is ended, and that the vote will be taken on unconditional repeal at the earliest possible moment. This is understood to mean as soon as the silver Republican Senators have concluded their speeches—a matter of a few hours, or perhaps a day or two.

Washington, Oct. 24.—It is the intention of those in charge of the bill, now that the struggle has been abandoned, not to push the measure to a vote with unbecoming haste. Senators Jones, Teller and Stewart will finish the speeches they have left uncompleted, and it is not probable that one or two others may be made. The belief that but little will be said by the silver Democrats. A quiet canvass was made this morning to ascertain how long it would take for the delivery of the remainder of these speeches and from that inquiry grows the opinion that the votes on the amendments will be taken by Friday. The vote on the bill itself will probably not be taken until Saturday, unless there should be an unexpected disposition manifested not to consume any more time in debate.

THE SUIT FILED.

The Long Expected Test of the Separate Coach Law to be Made at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 23.—A suit to test the constitutionality of the separate coach law was filed in the Federal Circuit Court here to-day. It is a suit by the citizens of the settlement Centralia, on the Louisville Southern railroad against the East Tennessee and Georgia company, which is now operating the Southern. The plaintiffs claim that the town was laid out under contract with the railroad company to give its citizens equal railroad facilities with other towns on the line, and that the use of separate coaches is a discrimination which violates this contract.

Obituary.

Julia Homer, daughter of W. H. and M. J. Franklin, was born Feb. 24 1869, was married to Wm. J. Coran Feb. 24 1892 and departed this life Aug 16 1893 aged 24 years 5 months 22 days.

Of her childhood the writer knew little, save that at home and school she was universally loved for her kind and gentle disposition, but during her married life we were with her almost daily. We too learned to love her as well as others, for her kindness of heart was shown to us in many ways. She was taken by that dreadful disease, Blood-poison, which for eight months was sapping her body and mind. Yet with what patience and Christian fortitude did she bear with the pain. Never did we hear her murmur, but often could we catch the whispered words, "my grace is sufficient for thee," and even in the dying hours she tried to raise her feeble voice in that grand song, "Wait and Mourn Not," but on realizing that she could noting she clasped her hands and told her friends around that she was going home.

The funeral service was preached by Eld. E. B. Blackburn, from John 14:1, 2, and 3 verses, in old Union church, where she had been accustomed to go from early childhood and also the place of her conversion. After the delivery of the sermon we laid her to rest in the Union cemetery with father, sister and numerous friends gone before. We left her to rest until the resurrection knowing that she is safe in the arms of Jesus.

The writer dedicates these few lines to the husband, dear little babe, mother and many relatives and friends in memory of our beloved Julia.

TAX WINS.

The People of Marion Vote for a Good School House and a Graded School.

The Tax Carries by More Than Two to One

Monday morning when the book was opened for recording the votes on the proposition to levy a tax of 50 cts ad valorem and $1.50 per capita in school district No. 27 for the purpose of building an $8,000 school house, and establishing a graded school, voters were on hand for business, and at it they went.

When the book was closed at 4 o'clock the vote stood as follows:
For the tax 91
Against the tax 42

Majority for the tax 49

Trustees were voted for, and the six receiving the highest number of votes were elected, the vote was as follows:

H. A. Haynes	100
R. C. Walker	101
J. N. Clark	99
J. W. Blue, Jr.	90
J. M. Freeman	74
W. B. Yandell	71
M. H. Weldon	21
Geo. Parr	1

The vote polled is a light one: many of the citizens preferring to abide the result without voting, and among those who did not vote are some of the heaviest tax-payers.

Those who did vote, however, were in earnest. The matter had been discussed pro and con and there were determined men on both sides, and an exciting time was expected. After the first rush, however, it was apparent that the tax was going to win, and if the opposition was ever organized, it never came to the front; from the very start the tax took the lead and kept it all day long, and when the vote was counted the friends of the graded school were more than gratified at the result.

Only a few months ago, a proposition to levy a tax to build a house was voted down. The voting down of this tax, called attention to the condition of Marion's school affairs, and the people began to think. The result is we are going to have a handsome brick school building, large enough to meet all demands, and supplied with all of the modern conveniences for a first class school. Marion is not only going to have a school but she is going to have the best there is.

The old folks, the old grumblers, and the continued strife has all reached the end of the chapter. The voting of the tax necessarily unites the people of Marion, on the school question.

Of course there are those who will hang back, look ominously and predict dire results. They will talk about what might have been, about what will be, and show how little faith they have in the verdict of the majority. They will suggest plans other than those provided for in the law, schemes that can not be carried out; we will do these things when defeated, but by and by, the cheery winds will blow the clouds away, we will see that but one thing can be done, and all will be united to do that thing properly, and in order. There is not a man in the whole community who wants anything but prosperity to come to our own dear town—all want a good school, and out of the multiplicity of plans one has been chosen—let us stand by it, and bend our energies to bring about the desired result.

In Trouble.
A few days ago deputy U. S. Marshals swooped down upon Blackford arrested ten of the citizens and took them to Owensboro, and then to Louisville. The men are accused of stopping an O. V. freight train during the late strike and forcing the breakmen to leave the train. This a violation of the interstate commerce law and it is said the men were indicted by the Federal grand jury at Owensboro, and went to Louisville for trial. The punishment for such an offense is a fine of not more than $1000 and may be coupled with not less than a year's imprisonment.

Not a Lunatic.
Monday a jury could not agree as to whether or not Andy Belt was of sound mind. He was put on trial according to the forms of law, and after hearing the evidence, the jury simply failed to return a verdict and Andy went on his way.

Two Divorce Suits Filed—Other Matters.

John P. Reed filed suit asking to be divorced from his wife Eliza A. Reed. The petition says: On or about Feb. 1, 1892, the defendant abandoned the plaintiff, without any fault on his part, that so long as the defendant lived with him he treated her kindly, as a dutiful husband, and in an affectionate manner, and provided comfortably for her support. The plaintiff further states that when the defendant abandoned him he by agreement with her paid her $500 and each released all right in the property of the other.

Laura A. Burke through her attorney, has filed a suit asking to be divorced from her husband James Burke. In her petition she alleges that the husband without cause abandoned her, and that he has failed to provide for her in any way whatever.

Another Burglary.
Saturday night a burglar entered the business house of Pierce, Yandell, Gugenheim Co., and got about $3.00 in small change from the cash drawer. An entrance to the building was effected by cutting out a panel of the rear door. Our burglar appears to be particularly about the nature of the goods he wants. He bothers nothing but cash—outside of an occasional watch he is on an absolute cash basis. He has visited several stores and the cash drawer is only thing that suffers.

Sheriffs Notice.

On and after Wednesday, Nov. 1, 1893 six per cent will be added to all unpaid taxes. This is the law and there can possibly be no exception. Under the new law I have to make a settlement Dec 1, and I must collect all taxes on or before that day. There will be no exception to this rule, where property can be found, I will make the tax before that day. Under the law all who have not paid on or before Dec 1, 1893, will be put on the delinquent list, and the law requires that this list be published. If you want to save the 6 per cent, pay up before Nov. 1. If you do not want to save the expense of a levy pay at once, if you want to keep off the delinquent list pay up before Dec 1.

JNO. T. FRANKS, S. C. C.

The marriage of Mr. Claud Wheeler and Miss Mattie Clark was solemnized last Wednesday evening at the residence of the brides father, Dr. J. R. Clark. The Rev. Mr. Guthrie officiated; the service being performed at 7 O'clock p. m. The happy couple started immediately for the World's Fair.

The parlor was beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens. The bride never looked lovelier, she was married in an elegant grey traveling costume trimmed in fur, and carried a magnificent bouquet of flowers presented by Mrs. W. B. Yandell and Mrs. Robertson.

Quite a number of their friends came to witness the ceremony and brought with them substantial gifts that will doubtless serve as a happy reminder of Oct. 17 all along the voyage of their life. The presents consisted of silver and glass ware for the table, table linens, napkins and towels, counterpane, rug, wash bowls, pitchers, lamps and many other beautiful little souvenirs which we will not mention in detail excepting an elegant little Bible presented by W. P. Maxwell, may it serve as a lamp to their feet is the prayer of their friends.

To My Old Friends and Patrons Of Crittenden.

Last April I moved to Henderson and since that time have engaged in business and it takes money to run it. I was in business at Marion 17 years and not one of you ever saw a notice in the paper from me asking for money. I always tried to treat you kindly and trusted you for medicine when you were sick to make you well, now I want money to run my business here and don't ask you to help me other than to pay what you owe. Some time in November I will be at Marion to make a final wind up of my business there and if your accounts owing to J. H. Hillyard and Hillyard & Woods are not settled by that time I will put same in the hands of an attorney for collection. Merchants don't usually mean this when they say it but I positively will do it. I have authorized H. K. Woods to make settlements for me, so please call and see him at once and save further trouble.

Very truly your friend,
J. H. Hillyard.

NOTICE.

We desire to say to those indebted to the estate of R. L. Moore, sr, dec'd that we have waited on them as long as we can. The law requires us to make a settlement, and we can't do so, until we have collected what you owe. Settle up now and save cost.

Respectfully,
R. L. and E. C. Moore, Exs.

SOFT-SHELL LOBSTERS.

They Are Such Good Eating That They Never Get to Market.

"Never seed a soft-shell lobster? Well, that's not surprising. You see, they never get to market. They're so good that they always get ate first." The grizzled fisherman wrung the water out of his whiskers as he talked, having just landed through the surf in his boat with a fine cargo of fresh-catch lobsters.

"A soft-shell lobster does not turn up every day, even at this season," he went on. "When I catch one my wife cooks it for our own dinner. Good! Well, you can bet. Fried in boiling lard, just like a new shell crab, it's the finest thing on earth in the way of food. Something like a crab, you know, but a great deal more delicious. Delicacies would give $10 a dozen for 'em, only that they can't be got for any price."

"You see, when the lobsters are shedding they hunt for holes among the rocks to hide in. Until they get their new coats they don't usually walk abroad, but stay quietly in dark crannies where no enemy is likely to find them. At such times they are not apt to be looking for food, and they don't get into the pots at that account. There isn't any animal that is traver than a lobster when he is in fighting trim, but without his armor he is defenseless and helpless, and it can't be expected that he should take any extra risk. It's only a foolish one now and then that strays into one of the traps."

"Suppose you had to take off your skin every now and then and wait for a new one to grow. P'raps you'd feel a trifle sensitive and retiring. That's just the way with a lobster. His coat is of plate mail. It doesn't expand as he develops. So the time comes when he must swell or bust. He busts, and when he comes out of his shell he is bigger by a considerable than he was before. The process is a great strain on his health; sometimes he dies in getting through it. He has to do the same thing a good many times before he gets his growth, but after that he doesn't shed any more."

"This is the season when lobsters shed. Most of those we catch are busters. That is, what we call those that are on the point of changing their coats. To do it they go away out to sea, so that just now we have to go twenty miles from land to catch them. It doesn't take much skill. You see we find them wherever there are rocky bottoms. Out where we go to look for them there are great reefs of rocks outcropping at depths of nearly one hundred feet. There the lobsters make their home in summer, shedding their coats as people shed their clothes to go in bathing along this shore in the hot months."—Washington Star.

WISE WORDS ABOUT WRINKLES.

It Is Much Easier to Avoid Having Them Than It Is to Cure Them.

"Don't try to cure wrinkles—avoid them," was the practical bit of advice that dropped from the lips of a woman. The speaker passed on with her friend, but left behind one who meditated long and thoughtfully upon what she had just heard. It is true wrinkles are in themselves incurable save by the gentle process of nature known as "fattening up," which so often comes at the age when wrinkles commence. As long as matter is supreme wrinkles will be subjugated. But there is a good deal in avoiding the telltale lines. Care of the eyes and face, proper use of the things which count. Cheering-up is responsible for many wrinkles in American faces, as is emotion. People who make faces for a living, such as clowns and comedians, people who squint and people who laugh and chatter perpetually, all have prematurely worn and haggard faces. Therefore the great preventer is rest.

As for the eyes, just notice how much earlier in life the weak-eyed woman wrinkles than does her keen-sighted sister. Trying to face the intensity of the sunlight or to sew or read by artificial light strains the eyes until the facial muscles as well as the optic nerves are taxed to the utmost. In winter the refracted sunlight from the snow or ice under foot, and in summer the blinding glare from the sunshine on the sea and the beach, are influences as prolific as the unrelenting hand of time. Society women are the only class of weak-eyed people who take proper care of their faces. They wear glasses. If they are too vain to wear glasses they don't try to read under trying circumstances. In public places the fashionables make little use of opera-glasses and no use of librettos, programmes, catalogues and prayer-books. You will never catch the society beauty burning holes in her eyes to study a stage artist. But the staple article is a fan, and women who know their real value aside from the decorative use, sleep, read and live with it in hand. It is this sort of protection for the eyes that retards the accumulation of wrinkles and preserves the sight. The early adoption and continuous use of broad-rimmed hats for weak-eyed girls is a timely preventive of untimely crow's toes and wrinkles.—Chicago Post.

Home-Made Fortifiers. Unbleached cotton sheeting may be so treated as to make most artistic porcelains. Choose a firm web, deep cream in color. Cut it half a yard longer than the height of the door, and turn over this extra length at the top. Take a huge oak or maple leaf, lay it on stiff paper and draw around the edge cut this out for a pattern, and outline on the "fall-over" of the curtain a border of these leaves laid directly on the edge, over the body of the curtain scatter single leaves—put too many of them, with the stems all pointing like those on the border, slanting upward.

With tapestry dyes, paint these leaves in that tone of green, dark and light, not attempting to shade. When dry, buttonhole about the edge and rein with floss of the same shade as the body of the leaf. The border should be cut out along the buttonhole edge. The leaves through the body of the curtain are to be outlined with cable stitch. The cost of this is quite disproportionate to its simple beauty.—American Agriculturist.

BLOATING IN CATTLE.

Some Simple Means of Alleviating the Dangerous Affliction.

When detected in the beginning, give every half hour half an ounce of aqua ammonia in a quart of cold water. When bloating has lasted over twelve hours, a different kind of gas is generated, and different remedies must be used, such as two drachms of chlorinated lime dissolved in a pint of cold water and repeated every hour. After a severe attack of bloating, always give a laxative dose of medicine, such as a pound and a half of Epsom salts dissolved in a quart of cold water, and which solution should be given in small and an ounce of ground ginger.

In urgent cases when medicine cannot be had, plunge a trocar into the left flank inward, downward and forward, in the direction of the right elbow, inserting it midway between the last rib and the hipbone, and about eight inches from the loins of the loin. When away out in the field and no trocar is obtainable, a long-bladed penknife may be used, putting it in to the handle, and holding it in this position so long as gas escapes. By this knife is not a safe instrument as parallel of food are apt to pass into the abdominal cavity, where it may cause fatal inflammation.—Frisco Farmer.

THE BAGPIPE.

It is by No Means an Exclusively Scottish Instrument.

The bagpipe is not as is generally supposed, an exclusively Scottish instrument. It is, indeed, the national instrument of Scotland, but it is also that of the hill countries in India, and is still popular among the mountaineers of Turkey, Roumania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Italy and Sweden. It was known in China centuries ago and is yet to be heard in Tibet. The Persians had a bagpipe, and so had the Egyptians, and in the British museum may be seen a set of small pipes, without the bag, of the time of Moses.

It is certain that the bagpipe was in use among the Hindus and Greeks, and it is supposed the Romans borrowed it from the latter. The Greeks learned its use from the Celtic races with whom they came in contact, the music of the pipe having always had a peculiar fascination for the Celts.

In its primitive state the instrument consisted of a simple chanter and drone with bag attached. The pipe called the chanter, is a kind of oboe, a tube with eight holes, and is handled like that instrument. The drones are pipes that sound each only one continuous low note.

The music proceeds from the chanter and drones, whose mouthpieces are inserted in a leather bag, which the player inflates by blowing with his mouth through a tube, the wind being forced out by pressing the bag under the arm. During the sixteenth century another drone was added, and from the early part of the eighteenth century till the present time all Scotch bagpipes have had three drones.

The music played on the bagpipe is called the pibroch, and has wonderful power in exciting the martial instincts and bravery of the Scottish Highlander. To an American its rhythm is so irregular and its notes in stirring pieces appear to be so jumbled that he can hardly reconcile his ears to them, but those who understand pipe music affect to discover in a well-composed pibroch the imitative sounds of march, conflict, fight and pursuit, and all the movements of a desperate fight.

Although not the most tuneful of instruments, no sound, however melodious, can thrill the hearts of Highlanders, whether Scottish, Swedish, or Indian, like a burst of their own wild native pipes. On the battlefield it has animated those who followed it to the intensest frenzy, when all other music has been drowned by the confusion and carnage of the scene it has been borne into the thickest of the fight, where its followers could be always found struggling fiercely to its strange, weird notes.

And not only on the field of battle, but on their return from foreign campaigns, it has welcomed them back to the home of their loved ones and the hills of their native land that recalled the memories of the past as no other music could do.

Many remarkable instances have been recorded of the effect of the pibroch on the Highlanders of Scotland. When they marched across the desert sands of Egypt, beneath the burning sun, under command of Sir Ralph Abercrombie, at the beginning of the present century, weary, footsore, short of water, the pipe struck up "Lochaber No More." Tears filled the eyes of many a soldier as the plaintive melody filled the air, and first one and then another faltered in the march and lagged behind.

One of the officers, on noting the men falling out, ordered the piper to play the "Cameron's Gathering." The tune worked like magic. The stirring memories of a thousand years were aroused, the stragglers fell into line again, the ranks were closed, and all marched resolutely forward to victory.—Kate Field's Washington.

SUPERSTITIONS IN UMBRIA.

Some of the Querer Contents of the Family Medicine Chest.

In a land where even the doctors believe, or feign to believe, in the virtue of numbers, we may expect an unlimited faith in the village wise woman. The gossip believes not only in numbers, but only in the virtue of names, such as the whispering of the words, "Gaspard! Melchior! Bathazar!" in the ear of an epileptic patient—but in charms, in the magic of a curl, in the secret of the fat taken from a human corpse. The witches in "Macbeth" would doubtless find in Umbria an ample custom for their pilots' thumb, while the toad, the snake, the newt, the frog, the lizard's leg, and the owl's wing are still daily ingredients, not of the witch's hell broth, but of the family medicine chest.

The girls of the Persian highlands believe as firmly as any heroine of Theocritus that a person possessing a lock of another person's hair can will pain, disease, and even death on the owner of the hair; and thus when maidens give their betrothed lovers the customary plaited tress, it is virtually their life and all their power of suffering that they give into those trusted hands. If the man should prove unfaithful and disease descend upon the unhappy woman, she is not, however, utterly lost; the experienced matrons of her village have means to transfer the complaint to a tree, to an animal, or to east it into running water. The patient must rise in the early dawn, touch a certain plant in a certain manner, saying: "May thou wither and I flourish again;" or bind her complaint to a tree in a given fashion, taking care never to pass again before the tree lest the disease, recognizing its former possession, return to her again.—The Athenaeum.
