THE IMMINENT COMING OF CHRIST

Prophecies of Holy Writ as Interpreted by the Seventh Day Adventists.

"The Chariots Shall Rage in the Streets, They Shall Jostle
One Against Another."

People of This Generation Will Witness the Second Coming of the Savior, Says Elder Reed.

Since Saturday Elder H. W. Reed, of Nashville, Tenn., has been holding daily meetings at the opera house; he has large congregations and his sermons are the talk of the town. But little has been known of the sect in this county, and the doctrine he preaches is new to most of the people.

Elder Reed estimates the number of Seventh Day Adventists in the United States at 50,000, and he says they are growing in numbers now more rapidly than ever before. They have a general conference that meets once in two years; an annual conference, and the country is divided into districts, and each division has its presidents. They are building churches at many places; the nearest one to us is at Bowling Green, where a brick edifice is in process of construction.
When asked how his ministry was supported, Elder Reed said:

"Our people adhere strictly to the doctrine and practice of giving one-tenth of their income to the Lord, and we have no use for church festivals, grab-bags, church fairs and the like for raising money for the church.
The following is a synopsis of sermons preached Sunday and Sunday night:

Mr. Reed teaches that the coming of Christ the second time is an event near at hand. He is not a time setter, because the Holy Scriptures do not warrant any one to set time, for they have never revealed the definite time for the Lord to come. He does not agree with another class who say they can tell nothing about his coming.

His position he claims is the Bible one and that is that those who are to see the Lord at his coming will know of it. That the generation who are to behold his glorious appearing will be warned of that event. He teaches that the generation who will witness this solemn day has been here for more than fifty years, and as a generation will be alive at the Lord's coming.

Mr. Reed uses many scriptures to prove the imminent coming of Christ.
His first sermon was based upon the 24th chapter of Matthew—our Lord's great prophecy. Upon this chapter he remarked as follows:

The Master had visited the temple, and as he passed out his disciples came to him to show him the buildings of the temple. And Jesus said unto them, See ye not all these things? verily I say unto you, there shall not be left here one stone upon another that shall not be thrown down." Astonished at such a statement, they came to him privately for an explanation. Mark their question, "Tell us when these things shall be, and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world." Did the Saviour reprove them? Did he tell them that they were to know nothing about it? Ah, no; on the contrary he gave them a reply which was probable not only for them, but also for all his people in every generation, and especially for those who should live to see him come. Let us study his reply carefully, that we may profit by it:

His first words are a warning, "Take heed that no man deceive you." Mat.
24:4. There is greater need to heed that admonition today than ever before. In verses 4-13 inclusive, he passes rapidly down the stream of time to the end, naming those things which shall be of common occurrence. In verse 14 he gives a positive sign of the end, "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world, for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." Not simply the gospel is to be preached, but a message which announces the coming kingdom, and under which a people shall be prepared to become subjects of that kingdom. When that message shall have gone to all nations the end will come.

Having carried them hastily down to the end, Christ now goes back and answers each question more directly and minutely. 1. "When shall these things be?" "When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place (whose read-eth let him understand) then let them which be in Judea flee into the mountains." Verses 15, 16 Luke 21:20 reads: "And when ye shall see Jerusalem compassed with armies, then know that the desolation thereof is nigh." Here, then, is a positive sign by which they might know when to flee in order to escape the coming destruction. Shall we simply say that it was their privilege to know when this sign appeared? Ah, no; it was their duty to know it, and not knowing it meant to be destroyed among the wicked inhabitants of that city.

But the true disciples of Christ did heed the sign, and did flee to a little mountain town named Pella, so that history tells us that not a single Christian was destroyed at that time.

The Saviour next speaks of a time of tribulation: "For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be." Mat.
24:21. We do not understand that this refers to the destruction of Jerusalem, for the following reasons: In the first place there has been as great tribulation in the destruction of other cities as was witnessed in the overthrow of this. And again, this tribulation was to effect and to destroy the people of God, as is evident from the reading of verse 22, "And except those days should be shortened, there should not flesh be saved; but for the elect's sake, those days shall be shortened." The seige of that city did not distress the elect, and had it continued for years it would never have destroyed them, for the simple reason that they had followed the instruction of their Lord and deserted it before the final seige began. To what, then, does the Lord refer? You will remember that he has just called attention to the prophet Daniel. Dan. 7:25 reads thus: "And he shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws; and they, (God's saints and laws,) shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time." This is the 1260 years of Papal supremacy lasting from A. D. 538 to A. D. 1798 during which time the saints of God were literally worn out.

But Jesus said: "For the elect's sake, those days shall be shortened." How could this be? The 1260 years of Papal supremacy could not, of course, be shortened, but the persecution could be cut short, as it actually was. In 1773, just twenty-five years before the ending of the days, the Order of Jesuits, through whose instru-mentality the persecution had mainly been perpetrated, was suppressed by the Pope. The suppression of the Jesuits and the Inquisition may be regarded as the event referred to by our Saviour as the shortening of the days for the elect's sake. He then proceeds:

"Immediately after the tribulation of those days, or as it was in Mark 13:24, "in those days after that tribulation," "shall the sun be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken; and there shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven; and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven, with power and great glory."

Here we have a series of signs that are to bring us to the appearing of the Son of man. The first is the darkening of the sun, and when is it to appear? In the days immediately after the tribulation. The days of tribulation ended in 1773. Then immediately after 1773, and before the year 1798, when the days end, the sun must be darkened. This was fulfilled on the 19th day of May, 1780, for account of which see Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, edition of 1869.

"And the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind," Rev. 6:13. The stars fell as thus predicted in prophecy November 13, 1833. See Barritt's Geography of the Heavens, p. 163. ed.
1854—Christian Advocate and Journal Dec. 13, 1833—Edward Dunkin, F. R. A. S. of the Royal Observatory Greenwich, in "The Heavens and the Earth," p. 186, and a host of other reliable authors.

We have seen the falling stars, we praise the Lord and know that we are living in the generation who will see the Lord come. So here we stand today; these signs are all fulfilled; they are all in the past. Now are we ready for the parable of the fig tree? for indeed it contains a very important lesson for this generation. "Now learn a parable of the fig tree: When his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is nigh; so likewise, when ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the doors." What things? The signs of which he has just spoken; and now we are to know that it is near, even at the door. "Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass till all these things be fulfilled." What generation? The one, of course, which should see all these signs. My dear hearers, I wish to say that you are living among the people who will live to see him come. Jesus says, Know it. Do you know it?

Reflect for one moment. It would have proved fatal to the Christian who failed to recognize in the Roman army the sign given by the Saviour to indicate the coming destruction of the city of Jerusalem. So it will be fatal to you if you fail to see in these things the sign that he is near, even at the door.

It is but a short time until the heavens will be rolled together as a scroll; until the sign of the Son of man shall be seen; until Christ shall come in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory; until the graves of the saints will be opened and they shall come forth clad in immortality and caught up to meet the Lord in the air, 1 Thess. 4, 13:18.

At the glory and brightness of that day, sun and moon will be confounded. Heb. 8:11. One angel by his brightness smote the Roman guard so they became as dead men. What will it be when all the angels shall appear, in that day there will be two classes; one will be calling for rocks and mountains to fall on them and hide them from the face of a rejected Saviour, Rev. 6:12-17, while the other class will joyfully go to meet him in company with the angels of God, and above all the noise and confusion of that hour will be heard the triumphant shout: "He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from all faces; and the rebuke of his people shall he take away from off all the earth; for the Lord hath spoken it. And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our Lord; we have waited for him; we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation. Isa.
25, 8-9. Dear hearer, you will be a member of one of these classes; which one?

In respect to the time of the end, Daniel says: "But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end; many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." Dan. 12:4. Two points are introduced in this text, to which we will call attention. The first is that the book or prophecy of Daniel, was to be shut up and sealed to a specified time; and the second is, that after that specified time arrived, many were to run to and fro, and knowledge was to be increased. From the text itself it is evident that the book was not to be closed up until the end; for then a knowledge of its contents could help no one. But there is a time spoken of in other places in the Bible as "the time of the end," which refers to a point just prior to the end itself.

But to remove all doubt upon the matter, we have only to read Daniel, 11:35: "And some of them of understanding shall fall, to try them, and to purge, and to make them white, even to the time of the end; because it is yet for a time appointed." See also verses 33, 34. In these verses we are informed that those persecuted by the Papal power, during the Dark Ages (for that is its meaning), should endure this to the "time of the end."

We can learn the time when the power to persecute dissenters was taken from this hierarchy, then we ascertain when the time of the end commenced; for they are identical, as we learn from the verses already referred to. It is well known that in 1798 the power of the Pope was broken by the temporal detroning of the Pope, and the establishment of a Republic in Rome by the French army under General Berthier. Since that time the people of God have had immunity from persecution and have been allowed to propagate their faith at will.
Here then in 1798 is "the time of the end" commenced. Up to that time the book of Daniel was a sealed book. But since 1799 there have been five great Bible and tract societies organized. With the increase of scriptural knowledge there has been a corresponding advance in the arts and sciences. We are, therefore, to regard the wonderful inventions of our day a sign of the time of the end.
Nearly 6,000 years had passed, as it were, are hatched out at one brood.
Why is this? The answer is, the time of the end has come, when "knowledge shall be increased."

THE DEAD LETTER OFFICE.

Letters That Have Miscarried—Valuable Articles Lost in the Mails.—Curios of the Museum in the Dead Letter Office, Etc.

ED. PRESS: As I was sitting the other day in my study, lost to the world in delightful recollection of my recent rambles in the forest covered mountains of Europe, the shrill whistle of the postman was heard, and a moment later my attention was concentrated on a curiously marked letter which had been dropped in my hand.
It was a letter written and dispatched by a friend in America while I was exploring the forests of Thuringia, and after crossing the ocean it had followed me from city to city, and from country to country, only to return again across the stormy waters, bearing on its envelope the postmark of many principalities. Close beside that of old Munich, famous for its art and its beer, crowded a curious triangular postmark, which I at once recognized as that of the dead letter office. "Ah now I know how the letter was returned to me, and through what final channel it reached its destination; and yet this associates me with an institution beside which I have lived all my life and have never visited."

The next time I was in town I ran into the Dead Letter Office and there are a few of the novel attractions I found there:
One hundred clerks or more were busily engaged at various desks handling and disposing of thousands of letters which for one reason or another had been turned over to this department. Some were occupied in attempting to read the odd handwriting shown on the ill fated letters. These they would take up, look at steadily, turn over, screw around, hold up on end, and in most cases all of these evolutions resulted in successful deciphering. Then, when a record had been made of the transient letters, they would be dispatched in all haste to the point whither they ought to go. Other clerks, finding no clue on the outside of the letter as to whom it was intended for or from whom it came, quickly opened the missive and as quickly sought out the inner address. Thousands such letters as these must be opened here every year; and

Naturally many of the 7,000,000
letters and packages turning up annually in the Dead Letter Office have brought with them no clue to the owners, while they have contained articles of more or less value and curiosity. Some of these have been retained by the department and now constitute the museum of the institution. Here, for instance, is a New Testament in Chinese, and near by a blood stained knife used by Apaches in killing a western mail carrier; then there is a copy of the Lord's Prayer in 54 languages, and chips from the floor of the room in which Jesse James was brought to bay and killed. Coins of great historic value crowd the shelves as spread out for display, while stuffed birds, seashells, Easter eggs, bowie knives and other curios, including, of course, numerous specimens of minerals, are also to be seen.

The exhibits comprise articles of both great and little value; hand painted miniatures on ivory, a crucifix of gold and carnelian, a sapphire ring set with diamonds, and another ring of moss agate. All bid for attention with boxes of wedding cake, false teeth, bottles of salad oil, a coffee pot, strange are the romances of love and the sorrowful tales of misfortune that now and then greet the eyes of the clerks.

And speaking of these faulty addresses, which result in far too many letter wanderings—addresses supplied both for the want of any better, and because of the monumental stupidity of the sender—the inscription of an eastern hayseed who wrote—"For my Son out West; he drives red oxen and the railroad goes by thar,"—is probably unique. No help could be offered this aged offender by the Dead Letter Office, but it is almost surprising that no solution was forthcoming, considering the extraordinary accomplishments of these sharp witted and clear sighted officials.

Not long ago a letter reached its proper destination through the Dead Letter Office addressed merely, "Mr.
James Gunn, Powerloom Shuttle maker, Mass., America," and a letter sent from Boston—Boston, the Hub, and the city of culture—bearing the simple address, "Dr. Washburn, Roberts College," was properly forwarded to Constantinople. Inscriptions in Greek, Syriac, Chinese, Bohemian, and "modern English," both amuse and worry these long suffering servants of the people.

Naturally many of the 7,000,000
letters and packages turning up annually in the Dead Letter Office have

The pension appropriation bill has been reported to the house; it carries $148,381,570.

Two Republican Congressmen elect have died since the election; the latest to join the silent majority was Campbell, of New York.

Judge Denny has served notice of contest upon Hon. W. C. Owens, in the Lexington district. Denny claims his election by 600 majority.

Shelby & Soaper proprietors of the big honkey mill at Henderson, have made an assignment. Liabilities are estimated at over $80,000.

A caucus of Democratic Senators endorsed the proposition to elect U. S. Senators by a direct vote of the people. The country is pretty well agreed upon this amendment to the constitution.

The present Congress ought to make a bold attempt to improve the currency situation. Fortune favors the brave. The legislation of the party on the tariff was in the right direction and time will prove it; now get down into the currency problem and place the party flatfooted on some plan.

The Lecture Club agreed to give all the net proceeds of the Dixon lecture to the town clock, and now that the lecture is over, it may be remarked that there is no danger of the club meeting with a fate like that of Ananias, because of the club has no proceeds, net or otherwise, worth lying about.

When the editor of this paper was a boy, he had serious objections to the use of the rod in, at or around the school houses he frequented a few months in every year. He always thought somebody would come to a bad end for that practice. He has been a mighty long time waiting for the fulfillment of his prophecy, but all things come to those who wait, and Kirk and Lynn are in the soup.

The new poor house keeper, Geo. McBride, has taken charge of that well known institution. There are only five paupers or one for about every 3000 inhabitants of the county. That does pretty well. Crittenden is not rich, nor proud nor beauty. She has hog, hominy and hospitality for all who honestly earn bread by the sweat of the brow.

AMONG THE SCHOOLS.

The Schools As I Find Them.

Perhaps the Press thinks Bonaparte and I have gone to the bonnyard or to some other land of do-nothing; but the truth is we have been so busy we have not had time to tell what we were going to do even after we had done it. Since last we mentioned our humble selves, we have viewed territory from many hilltops of Crittenden, and have tasted hay and hockeys in remote corners of her domain.

Monday morning, Oct. 22, dawned bright, warm and dusty. Bonaparte and I put on our working dress and set out for Frances. The school house is on the Dycusburg road, about 12 miles from Marion. Mistaking the distance we started late, and it was nearly noon when we saw the end of our journey. To propitiate any fault-finding disposition that I might have brought with me, the teacher made haste to spread his dinner and invite me to stay with it as long as it remained. I found the trustees present and the treasurer soon came. There were fifty pupils present; they seemed to be nice boys and girls. I hope they will always be so. The school appeared to be doing well. The teacher, Mr. R. B. Gass, has had much experience. He is a very pleasant gentleman, and always makes friends, both among children and older people. The house is tolerably good and they have patent desks. The house has been enlarged once but it still rather small. It is much easier and cheaper to make a house large enough at first than it is at last. These people have learned it by experience.

That evening I refused kind invitations to spend the night in that district, in order to keep a promise with the next teacher. We were a little late getting to Mr. F. M. Clement's, but we knew "the litchstring a ways hung out," so we did not care. Miss Jennie Clement went with us to White Hall next morning. As we started Mrs. Ida Clement said there was lunch in the basket for me; and Jeff Clement said for us to go over in the field at noon and get a lunch for Bonaparte. White Hall is situated on Mr. F. M. Clement's farm. It is a small district; 26 pupils were present, a very good attendance for that district. The house is large, so large that it has been partitioned, so that the teacher can observe the motions of the fattest pupil without the aid of a telescope. I found excellent order in the school; each little boy and girl acted as if they were conscious of the presence of nobody except self and teacher. They were working well for little people. Miss Jennie has taught several terms there. At noon I hurried on to Cicero's Chapel. Mr. Albert Crider is teacher there. It is a small district and not very many were present. Two trustees and some patrons came in. The house is of logs. It is large and is heated by both a fire place and stove, but I doubt whether both will keep it comfortable on cold days. The work so far as I saw it, was very good. Mr. Crider is a young teacher, but he was always industrious as a pupil. Industry is an excellent quality in a teacher. The district has not prospered.

The next day I visited Midway. As near home as it was I took the wrong road and reached the school house rather later than the other side. Mr. Grant Hughes is teacher; fifty pupils were present; also one trustee, Mr. H. S. Wheeler. They have a nice new house; it is a pretty one in a pretty place; but I am sorry to say that it is rather small for the district. The trustee saw that as clearly as we did. Trustees who build houses should allow for growth in district. A few feet added to dimensions does not greatly increase cost. The Midway people also have patent seats, charts and globes. Now if they will not mind the good work by grumbling at the tax, we will say what we have thought for some time—that they are people who keep abreast with the times. Mr. Hughes is another young teacher; most of the lessons were very good; the only objection I found was a disposition on the part of some to play during work hours. This is very apt to be the case in large schools. It is very hard for one teacher to keep so many busy all the time, and just as certain as a child does not work he will play. Parents should talk more with their children about behavior at school than they do, especially those who live in large districts. Do not just drop the whole thing on the shoulders of the teacher, for if he can do it all, he can do more than you could, were you in his place.

MINA WHEELER.

MARION GRADED SCHOOL.

What It Offers to the Public.

To parents who contemplate sending their children out of the immediate vicinity of home to school, and to young ladies and young gentlemen who think of sending themselves to some literary school, we wish to speak a few plain words to you through the Press; words which we had rather speak for potent reason to you face to face, but that we are unable to do so.

It may be we do not know you nor you us, but what matters that. We are sure as educators and those interested in education, with desires in common to grasp and possess ourselves of the high grounds of knowledge, or assist others in their efforts to do so, there should exist a feeling of comradeship between us upon reading this through our places in the vast army of education has been far apart.

So we pluck you gently by the sleeve, and granting you that you are in earnest, and asking that you grant that the Trustees of Marion Graded High School know their business when they placed us in charge of that school's initial term, which commences soon, we shall point you briefly to the merits which that school hopes to possess, and some which it possesses, although not yet begun. We said briefly we would be in doing this, and it would be unwise and tedious should we dwell upon matters in detail; as to the school's regulation and management they are dismissed with the remark that those plans shall be used which modern progressive usage has proved to be sensible and best.

Now we wish to say to all youth who have moved along the slopes, gentle or rugged, of a common school curriculum, until they stand upon its heights conquerors we commend them. But if looking up you behold fairer prospects of learning than you had hitherto known or seen and feel a desire to go up and take them, we congratulate you; for no nobler impulse than this stirs the human heart. Yet when you yield to that impulse and show by bold actions that you are going up to stand among the peerless, we rejoice, for you proclaim yourselves devotees of the highest of all arts, the art of well living. Far beyond the beauty and potency of sculpture, of painting, or music or poetry, is the beauty and godly power of a rounded, well spent life.

Yes it is very gratifying to observe youths with assisting parents, young ladies and young men who, having acquired some education are not content with a little of a good thing, but are striving for the highest and the best, who, if a high school is within their reach take in all the advantages, and then if opportunity be caught, go to college afterwards.

And now it may be that many of those who purpose leaving home soon to attend school, and who may read this, have not finished a high school course. If so we ask you for the sake of economy, for the sake of convenience, for the sake of a local pride, which you must possess, to pause ere you go away to some school far removed, for a Graded High School is at your doors.

A school whose course of study is founded upon the strongest and safest laws of natural development, and keeps practically in view ever.

Thematics is closely graded a thorough and will embrace all from lessons in number to plane and spherical geometry. In language it will include ex- haustive treatises of Rhetoric and Literature, and involves a completion of Caesar's commentaries in Latin.

It will not be a school either where the herculean task of enforcing this lengthy course of study is laid upon the shoulders of one teacher or two; but where five efficient, zealous teachers shall be found supporting each his or her adopted part, permitting the tasks of each to be of a lighter, cheerier nature, imparting a vigor and life to the school from which its students must receive the greatest good.

You are very well aware that a higher course of study and an efficient corps of instructors are two of the chief inducements which lead students to attend school away from where these can not be found. And these preceding, in a word, yet sufficient form, we trust we have stated how these things will be in the school at Marion.

But perhaps you say, "I wish to become a teacher, surely it would be best for me to attend some Normal school which gives special training to those who wish to be teachers." Let us, my friend, extend our earnest approval for the desire you have of truly equipping yourself for the honorable calling of school teaching; a calling requiring more and rarer qualifications, natural and acquired, than any other. But let me tell you that which I do know. We have attended the foremost Normal school of this country; we went for the very reason you have just put forth, and this fact was discovered by us, that the best and cheapest training acquired by those aiming to teach is not to be found in any Normal school, save in their methods employed as you see them in your classes there from day to day.

In the calling of teacher you find these things to be true, that your own school drill and acquisition of knowledge will stand you in best stead. A teacher needs accuracy and method and these he must acquire by his own school discipline. He needs versatility to know how to do things in many ways. His education should have no increased and unfolded his mental powers that he can turn them with facility upon any object of thought. The teacher should have an enthusiastic love for learning to enable him to inspire his pupils with the same feeling; and this must come to him in the days of student life. The teacher should have the highest moral qualities, so that he may appear to his pupils like Arnold of Rugby, such a type of complete manliness as shall inspire the crudest child with noble aspirations; and we who keep these things before us as a guiding star in the school room, who has helped to mold such characters as this, do pledge you young man or young lady, if you attend Marion school with desires to become teachers in truth, you shall have our time and labor, and what talent we may possess to help you.

Every one expects on attending a school where a little more expense is incurred than heretofore, that they find there more conveniences. They expect day after day as they go to class to have a splendid edifice of brick or stone to break on their view, and as they step over its steps into the class rooms and seat themselves upon the latest "patent," and find at all angles objects of beauty meeting their eyes, it fills them with a satisfaction which proves an incentive in their work, strong and of a kind which could come from no other source. And not far away from their student abode, perhaps, lie great bars of iron which link some of the world's busiest marks; and over them, from time to time, rush massive locomotives, roaring into one's ears the fact that he is in touch with the living, thinking world that some day he longs to cast his lot with; and that very thought is a pleasure, is education to any student, and it's right and consistent with man's nature that the student should like, expect and almost demand in these progressive times that these things should be his when he leaves the old place and goes away to school. And how glad are we that we can offer such advantages and conveniences even far better than they are noted here, to the student who will come to Marion's Graded High School.

Here you will find a two and a half story brick building, as spacious, elegant and equipped with all modern school appliances, as capable of affording satisfaction from an attendant pupil as any in Western Kentucky. Here you will find a town more infused with a spirit of thrift, having as good social and religious facilities, as good a lecture course and a better railroad than has Lebanon, the great University town of Ohio.

Add to all this the pleasure arising from being within a few miles of friends and kindred whom you would wish to see, and could do so at intervals, and remembering you could attend as cheap here as anywhere, surely you who wish to go to school, or you who wish to send a pupil or pupils away from home to school, could ill afford to ignore the invitation which Marion's Graded High School offers to its doors.

With this we have done. If you should desire to know anything further concerning the school, call on or write to Teachers Association.

The Crittenden County Teachers Association met at Shady Grove on Saturday, Nov. 17. The morning was cool and frosty, followed by a day of both cloud and sunshine. The teachers at that place, Messrs. Wilcox and Towery, had worked up a lively interest among the citizens, and early in the morning there were seen coming up the hill toward the school house little people, large people, old people, babies and all. In almost every crowd some two or three were seen bending under the weight of baskets. Men left their stores, farms and workshops to join our ranks. Such royal welcome it is seldom the lot of teachers to meet. Everything said as plainly as actions can speak, "Our homes, our food, our time are yours while you remain with us; use them as you like." But oh what a pity! only a few teachers were there to enjoy it. The people were looking forward to the day with great expectations. They thought it would give a new impetus to the cause of education in their midst. Had we only had a few more, we could have done it. A golden opportunity was partially lost. "Four things come not back again, the spoken word, the sped arrow, the past life, and the neglected opportunity." Most of the teachers near Shady Grove were present, but no others. The programme published was carried out; the teachers present did their work well; they were Messrs. Oscar Towery, Fred Casner, Charles Towery and J. B. Simpson. Messrs. Gora Gardner and Laura Wood. Several visitors assisted in the discussions. Mr. John Reynolds came down from Caldwell county and gave a timely aid; Mr. Todd, once a teacher, made some good talks; and Bro. Archie, pastor of the Methodist church, helped us in many ways; there was nothing lacking about the dinner except more people to eat it. Yet, amid all these pleasant surroundings, our souls, like the day, were under a shadow. We sadly missed a guiding spirit; Mr. W. E. Wilcox had been called away by the sickness of his son; and ere the meeting convened, there fell upon our ears the sad news that Edwin Wilcox, our brother teacher, was no more.

Many times that day did our hearts go out in sympathy to that grief-stricken father, whose ailing hands had sown that we might reap. From a large family the first had been taken. Only God and those who have felt it can know what that means. In Edwin's death the profession suffers a great loss. Endowed by nature with a good mind he had been carefully trained from childhood. Industrious, methodical and progressive, he threw into his work all the strength of a vigorous, hopeful young manhood, and bade fair, in a few years, to become a leading light in the profession. "God's ways are mysterious, but he doeth all things well."

No other division of the Postal Department serves the people better than the Dead Letter Office. No other branch is more interesting in its management and methods of procedure. No other department is inspected more frequently by those who visit Washington. And yet, for all this, but little is known of the Dead Letter Office by the public.

The present railroad system is forcibly described by the prophet Nahum as follows:

"The chariots shall be with flaming torches in the day of his preparation, and the fir trees shall be terribly shaken. The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings." Nah. 2:3-5.

These are to be in the day of his preparation. As this is a prophetic description of our railroad cars, we have reached the day of his preparation. "Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel!" Amos 4:12, is God's message for us today. Prepare; yes, why not!

and numerous dolls, a hat box and a coat suggestive strongly of Joseph's little garment, of many colors. Kid gloves and other articles of feminine apparel, wrapped in newspapers and various other covers, calculated to attract a fair sex smugglers, gave one a suggestion of the methods resorted to by those who professionally defraud the government, or who are tempted to become dishonest.

One of the most interesting collections in the museum, not displayed to view, but safely secreted and recorded on the office books, is the fund of hard cash, collections from several sources, some of it is found in letters which can not be returned to the sender nor forwarded to those for whom they were intended; more come loose to the office in packages of a few cents at a time. This "loose money" as it is called, was originally secured in letters and packages, but has been shaken out by the violent handling it has received while being transferred from the mail bag crane at way stations to rapidly moving trains. Thus it is a common experience for the mail ladies hustling about in our speeding postal cars, to thrust their hands into the canvass pouches and find there a number of rolling coppers.

No other division of the Postal Department serves the people better than the Dead Letter Office. No other branch is more interesting in its management and methods of procedure. No other department is inspected more frequently by those who visit Washington. And yet, for all this, but little is known of the Dead Letter Office by the public.

Look Out For Him.

A short time ago a man representing himself to be J. C. Wilson, of Louisville, was in the western portion of Crittenden and in Livingston county writing insurance. He claimed to be one agent for all the companies and wrote insurance at about half the regular rate. His low rate caught a good many people. In this county he placed the insurance with the Farmers and Mechanics Insurance Co., of Milwaukee Wis. Since his departure the local agents have been investigating him. The Mayor of Milwaukee writes that there is no such company in that city. Mr. Duncan the insurance commissioner for this state, writes that no such company is authorized to do business in this state and expresses the hope that Wilson may be caught and punished.

It looks very much like the people who insured with him have thrown their money away. They have this consolation, however, the insurance is as good as any, except in the event of a fire.

A Lively Campaign in Trigg.

The prohibition campaign in Trigg county is getting very hot. Thursday night Elder T. D. Moore and Judge Robert Crenshaw spoke at Golden Pond, in Trigg county, and just after they had closed their addresses, an attempt was made to burn the house in which they had spoken. Several piles of shavings that had been saturated with coal oil were placed about the sides of the building and were fired, but the flames were soon discovered, and, with some difficulty, were extinguished. There is no cine as to the would-be incendiaries, but it is thought to have been the work of persons who did not like the sentiments of Messrs. Moore and Crenshaw, who are strong advocates of prohibition.—Paducah News

Walker-Black.

Wednesday Dec. 12, 1894, at 12:30 P. M., Mr. W. H. Walker, of this county, and Miss Mollie Black, were united in marriage at the home of the bride in McMinnville, Tenn. The happy couple is due at Marion this morning; and from here they go to Mr. Walker's country home where a wedding dinner will be served with a few friends as guests.

Mr. Walker is one of the well known and prosperous farmers of the eastern portion of the county, and his many friends wish him and his honny bride all the happiness that the heart can desire.

Religious Notes.

Rev. W. R. Gibbs closed a meeting of ten days at Liberty, Lyon county, Saturday; there were a number of conversions and the church was greatly revived.

Rev. J. J. Franks has been holding a meeting at Old Salem, Livingston county; there were twenty conversions and seventeen additions to the church. Rev. E. M. Eaton assisted in the work.

A Crayneville correspondent writes: Great revival here; from 50 to 60 converts, with good interest and large crowds. No time for anything else. House is filled all the time, night and day. Many are joining the church.

Our Frances letter arrived too late for publication this week. Among the news items it contained are the following:

The Yandell Mines are in operation again. Lead is the mineral wanted this time.

W. A. Lewis and family returned from Florida Sunday; they intended spending the winter there, but one week's residence was enough.

The Press is requested to state that Miss Mina Wheeler can not be in Marion next Saturday on account of the Teachers Association at Weston; and also to remind teachers that it will be worth their while to attend these Associations.

The partnership heretofore existing between Dr. R. L. Moore and J. H. Orme, as druggists, was dissolved some months ago. Dr. Moore retiring, but permitting the use of his name in the business. The firm name will be used no longer, and the business will be in the name of J. H. Orme. Dr. Orme has long ago proven his efficiency as a druggist, and has grown popular as a business man.

Dr. Thomas Dixon delivered his lecture, "Fools, or the School of Experience," at the Opera House Thursday night. He is a speaker of great force, and for an hour and a half commanded the unwavering attention of the audience. His lecture is brim full of good sense from the beginning to the end, and he speaks as one pouring forth his very soul. When he paints a scene the colors are strong but bleed harmoniously, and the picture is indelibly impressed upon the mind, when he tells a story the characters, whether they play the comedy or tragedy, stand out before the eye like living creatures. The audience that heard him was comparatively small, but never a more appreciative one assembled in Marion.

People interested in the Kilpatrick graveyard are requested to meet there Tuesday, Dec. 18, 1894, for the purpose of putting up a fence.

HELD OVER.

James Kirk and John and Dink Lynn Must Answer at Circuit Court.

The examining trial of James Kirk and his two boys, and John Lynn and his two boys, charged with whipping young Pierce, was held Saturday, county Judge Moore presiding. When the case was called the court house was packed with people, and through the day and up to 8 o'clock at night there was but little abating of public interest in the case.

Messrs. James & James, Cruse & Nunn were employed to assist in the prosecution, and Moore & Moore were for the defense. Every inch of the ground was fought over for all there was in it. After the testimony was heard the cases against the two boys who did the whipping, and Bud Kirk was dismissed, and the court held Jas. Kirk and John Lynn and Dink Lynn in a bond of $250 each to answer any indictment the grand jury might find against them for banding together and going forth armed and forcing G. C. Pierce to submit to a beating with switches. The parties executed the bond. The punishment for the charges named is confinement in the penitentiary for from six to twelve months.

Programme

For Teachers Association to be held at Marion Dec. 29, 1894:

Opening exercises with prayer, B. E. Martin.

A Severe Fall.

Friday night, as Dr. Moore started from his home up town and while still on his porch, his feet slipped on the damp floor and he fell upon his side, breaking three of his ribs. He will be confined to his room some days.

Deaths.

Mr. J. S. Bugg, an old and well known citizen of the county, died at his home in the Piney Forks neighborhood Friday, and was buried with Masonic honors Sunday. I

Mr. Bugg has been for years a Justice of the Peace in Marion precinct, and was re-elected in November. He was an honest man and a good citizen.

Judge Skelton.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the town Tuesday night, H. F. Ray resigned as Police Judge and John W. Skelton was chosen to succeed him. Mr. Ray has made a splendid record as Judge, and Mr. Skelton will doubtless make the town a splendid officer.

TWO IMPORTANT CASES.

The Court of Appeals has affirmed the judgment of the Crittenden Circuit Court in the cases of the widow of the late S. C. Haynes against the A. O. U. W. and Buck McKinley against the C. O. & S. W. railroad. Mrs. Haynes gets judgment for $2000 full amount of the insurance policy. McKinley gets judgment for $2500, for damages received by the premature explosion of dynamite at a rock quarry, while he was working for the road.

DYCSBURG.

Rev. H. B. Fox closed a very successful meeting here Thursday night and began a meeting at Hebron, in Lyon county, Sunday night.

J. H. Clifton attended court at Smithland this week.

Preparations are to be made for a Christmas tree here.

Rev. W. J. Weller, of Kelsey, preached at the Baptist church Saturday night and Sunday.

R. D. Browning is in town. Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Dycus visited relatives at Kuttawa Sunday.

Miss Carrie Vosier is on the sick list this week.

Mr. W. B. Grove went to Marion Sunday, but it was on "business," of course.

River is rising and the boats are beginning to make their appearance again.

Miss Helen Boyd visited the family of Mr. Dave Glenn, near Glenn's Chapel Saturday and Sunday.

Messrs. S. W. Burks and Lewis Clifton returned from Paducah Sunday.

Dr. Watkins and Ed. Ramage went to Carversville Saturday.

GREENS CHAPEL.

Rev. Hayes delivered an excellent sermon at this place Sunday.

John Walker, who received a severe kick from a mule several days ago, is now recovering.

The musical entertainment at Robert Sullivan's Saturday night was largely attended.

Misses Ursie and Gertie Nunn attended meeting here Sunday.

Miss Dixie Cain of Marion visited relatives in this neighborhood Friday and Saturday.

W. D. Cain spent Sunday at R. N. Grady's.

We have had no weddings here for some time, but still we only wait, hope, and trust.

Christmas trees are coming, and a Christmas tree expected at our church.

Wheat crops are looking better. Look out, boys; road work's coming.

R. N. Grady spent Monday in Marion. Chums.

CLEAR SPRING.

As I have seen nothing from this section in a long time, thought I would send you a few items.

Mrs. Brown, who has been sick for some time, is able to visit her mother, Mrs. Beard, of Shady Grove neighborhood.

Willie Casper, who has been confined to his bed for some time with a broken leg, is able to be up again.

Mr. Robert King and wife of Hopkins county have been visiting H. H. King and family this week.

Mr. Tucker Horning, Miss Lizzie Mitchell, Annie Horning and Lara Todd took a flying trip to Providence on the 4th.

The young people of this neighborhood are very much delighted to have Miss Lizze Casper back near her old home again.

To the Young Men of Bells Mines: You should not have left out the young girls of Clear Spring neighborhood on the kissing question, for they obey kisses like Mr. Hayseed used to buy rabbit hides; five cents apiece and pay in advance, and when the young man receives the money he looks up and says, why papa can kiss you.

Miss Ollie Baker, of Salem, is making her home near Mr. Red Harris, near Shady Grove.

Obituary.

Little Nellie Ray Ralston was born October 29, 1892, and passed away November 14, 1894. We can not understand why a life so bright and promising should end so soon, and why he was taken from the home where he brought so much sunshine and happiness. Yet we are consoled by the truth that the Lord never makes a mistake, and we bow in meek submission to the Divine will; but it satisfies the pangs of our bleeding hearts to know that while we must drop his dear name from the roll here on earth that it has been registered on high, and that our loved one has gone to Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." We know that God doth He doeth through love, and that our angel darling has just crossed over to the other side and is waiting under the Tree of Life for the dear ones that mourn for him, so if we live right while here we can cross over and join him where all will be reunited to separate no more.

A very dear relative.

A LOVER KILLED.

His Sweetheart's Papa Shot Him. Tragedy Near Henderson.

A Henderson special says: A shooting took place in Webster county Friday night near Clay, in which John Clayton shot and killed Jesse Driver. Driver was a near neighbor of Clayton and was a lover of his 14 year old daughter. He had been forbidden to come on the Clayton farm, but persisted in his attentions to the girl. Friday Clayton learned of a plan agreed upon between Driver and his daughter to elope that night. As Driver approached the house in a buggy he was met by Clayton, shotgun in hand. What passed between the men is not known, but this morning the dead body of Driver was found in the road where the meeting took place. Clayton fled.

County Court.

W. P. Crider qualified as administrator of the estate of S. F. Crider deceased.

W. P. Montgomery, E. F. Wade, B. F. Horning, were appointed road supervisors.

The following claims were allowed: John Merriweather, moving election booths, $1.

R. F. Dorn, pauper coffin; $5.
E. E. Crane, plow and team on road, $1.50.

J. O. Taber, same, $1.50.
R. W. Taylor, supplies and hire of cook for poor house, $13.30.

M. S. Horning, plow and team on road, $4.50.
D. J. McDowell, plow and team on road, $7.50.

M. S. Horning, plow and team on road, $4.50.
A. T. Gore, plow and team on road, 3.00.

W. F. Paris may be a Justice of the Peace if he chooses. Judge Moore will tender him the position made vacant by the death of Mr. J. S. Bogg. Mr. Paris is a sensible, safe man, and the appointment will be a good one.

Teeth Extracted Without Pain.

Dr. M. D. Halsey, of Lexington, who has extracted teeth for more than Eight Thousand people within the last four years, without the slightest accident or injury to the patient will be at Marion Hotel, in Marion for 4 days, beginning Dec. 14. At this visit Dr. Halsey will, for the first time introduce his Antiseptic Restorative to the public. And in order to save a large amount of newspaper advertising, and to bring this medicine before the people as rapidly and cheaply as possible, hereafter all who purchase a certain amount of this Restorative may have their teeth extracted free of charge, but no others. Within the past year the doctor has made valuable improvements in the painless extraction of teeth, and for the past eight months has extracted at a uniform price of one dollar per tooth, and even at these figures has been obliged to turn away many for want of time. By the present arrangement the public get the Antiseptic Restorative, which is worth more than it costs, and will also get their teeth extracted, and all at an expense of but little more than one half of what the doctor has been charging for extracting teeth alone. Do not wait until the last days of the doctor's visit. All interested should meet the doctor at this visit as he will not extract teeth very much longer, but will give his time to making his medical preparations and dental instruments. Those who dress warmly and wrap up the face need not fear taking cold after extracting, even in winter. For description of the Restorative see hand bills. Dr. Halsey will be remembered as being in Marion something like a year ago.

THE KINDERGARTENS.

The Little Children Seen in Them At Lexington.

Many mothers who have not had the chance to see the working of the new Kindergarten system for little children will no doubt be glad to know that in the Lexington Manufacturers Exposition classes of the little tots will be shown playing in their fascinating educational games as taught in the schools. The system as taught in the public schools of Lexington and in Sayre Institute, and mothers of little ones will be greatly interested, as the Kindergarten system is a beautiful one. The Exposition opens December 10, and continues three weeks. Greatly reduced railroad rates.

FIVE HORSES BURNED.

Dan Babb's Heavy Loss by Fire Last Night.

About 2 o'clock last night Dan Babb was awakened to find his barn and stables burning. Nothing was saved; the loss amounts to about $1200 and includes, besides the building, five head of horses, farming implements, hay and corn. Mr. Babb is a prosperous farmer of the Fishtrap neighborhood. He had insurance to the amount of only $350 in town. We want to remind you that we will sell, cheaper than any one,

HONOR FOR THE DEAD.

A MAUSOLEUM FOR THE MOROSINI FAMILY.

The Wealthy Banker Is Spending No Expense to Honor the Last Resting Place of the Family Home—Like a Greek Cross.

IN MEMORY OF his wife, Giovanni P. Morosini is having a beautiful mausoleum erected in Woodlawn cemetery, New York city. It is on the summit of Oak Hill, overlooking Long Valley, in a circular plot of ground.

The plot contains 4,000 square feet, the equivalent of ten ordinary lots. The architecture is Byzantine in style, and the mausoleum is to form a Greek cross, measuring twenty-five feet square. It is to be approached by a path 22 feet 6 inches long by 10 feet 6 inches wide.

THE MOROSINI MAUSOLEUM. The height is to be thirty-five feet from the grade of the plot to the top of the dome. The exterior is to be built of a fine quality of rose granite from the Western, R. L. quarries, and will be finished with a rough hammered effect.

The interior is to contain ten catacombs, which are to be ranged along either side of the entrance hall. The front of each will be decorated with fine Venetian marble work. The main hall of the building will be cruciform, and is to have a pendentive ceiling, supported by four columns, carved from Cipollino marble, beautifully veined with violet and green. The ceiling over the catacombs is to be a masterpiece of mosaic of Venetian marble. It is to be made and put together in Venice, and is to be decorated with some of the finest examples of Florentine mosaic ever brought to America. The floor is to be of fine mosaic marble, the design of which has been adapted from St. Mark's in Venice.

The windows are wonderful specimens of perforated white marble, streaked with delicately shaded green veins. Over the main entrance is to be a white marble window with a grill of the same material. The rear window is to be stained glass, over which is to be a grill of bright yellow bronze.

The contract for the bronze doors has been given to a well known artist of that city. They are to be thirty-six inches wide, eighty-four inches high, and are to weigh one ton. Across the top, in recess letters will be the date MDCCCXIV. Over this, on a polished granite lintel, will be in raised letters "G. P. MOROSINI." The pattern of the doors is geometric in design, decorated with panels bearing fruit and flowers, of emblematic and symbolic significance.

It is intended that the dome shall be the masterpiece of the mausoleum. It is to be composed of four huge monoliths, the largest of which will measure thirteen feet six inches in diameter. The granite has been brought from the Western quarries. So unusually large was the principal piece that a special car had to be constructed for its conveyance.

The matter of ventilation has been carefully attended to. In the main

MRS. GIOVANNI MOROSINI. doors a grill of bronze has been inserted for the purpose of causing a draught of air through the rear windows, which swing on a pivot. There is also a draught of air from the lower windows to the dome.

Eighteen Heart Beats a Minute. It is generally supposed that when a man's heart pulsations go down to forty a minute death will follow unless restoratives are administered. Paradoxical as it may seem, it is said, puzzled over a man in one of the hospitals whose pulsations have sunk as low as eighteen a minute, although to all appearances he is well and strong.

Why Cotton Becomes Cheaper. A cotton picker which may revolutionize the whole process of gathering cotton has been invented by Eli Whitney of New Haven, the grandson of the famous Eli Whitney who invented the cotton gin. By means of this machine, which is called the Whitney harvester, the work of 100 men can be done by two men and two horses.

HOW THE PARTY DEGENERATED.

What Lincoln Said When He Was Thought of for the Presidency. W. W. Danenhower, the father of Lieut. Danenhower of Arctic fame, who died the other day, up to the day of his death preserved in a little glass covered frame a brief note written him by Lincoln on the day of his first inauguration, March 4, 1861. Danenhower, who was a close friend of Lincoln, had called to see him that morning and admittance had been refused him. The president, hearing of it, in spite of his many cares, took time to pen a note of apology, telling his friend not to think he was "putting on airs" because he was "in the White house," and asking him to call again and he would see that he was admitted. Danenhower was the first to announce to Lincoln the decision of the national convention committee conference to recommend Lincoln to the national convention. Lincoln's look of surprise, he said, was genuine. He laughed a deep inward ripple, and, dropping his hands and removing his hat from a table before which he ward after he had paid us but two or three visits.—Forest and Stream.

was seated, he arose and paced the room, saying: "Why, Danenhower, this shows how political parties are degenerating. You and I can remember when we thought no one was fit for the presidency but Harry Clay. Now you are seriously considering me for the position. It's absurd."

FIGHTING WITH A SHARK.

A Man Out Swimming Is Attacked by a Big Man Eater.

Milton Shane, of Pablo, Florida, was recently swimming around outside the surf and enjoying himself in the water, only an expert swimmer can. When he was about six hundred yards from the beach, floating on his back, he was attacked by a shark. Shane immediately realized his danger and exerted every effort to fight the fish off and at the same time reach shore. But the shark was ferocious, and as often as repulsed would return again to the attack. The young man by clear-headedness and bravery was able in some degree to evade the monster's attacks, but not altogether, as at every dash of the fish part of the unfortunate swimmer's flesh was torn away. But it was a struggle for very life, and finally the young man reached shallow water, and then the beach, almost exhausted from exertion and loss of blood.

It was found that his thigh bore no less than twenty-six separate wounds made by the shark's teeth, which, owing to their peculiar formation, tore away the flesh at every incision. A sea captain, who examined Shane's hurts, said that judging from the marks the shark could not have been less than ten feet long.

Shane's wounds, though many and painful were not considered dangerous.

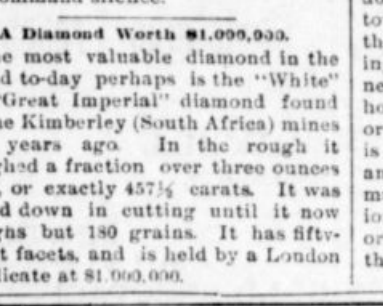

Eclipses. Every year there must be two eclipses of the sun, and there may be five. These are partial eclipses, however, except in the comparatively rare case in which the moon passes nearly centrally over the sun's disc and produces a total obscuring of his light. Since the invention of the spectroscopic in 1860 there have been nearly a score of total eclipses, and many of these could not be observed because the belt of totality fell at the earth's regions or upon the oceans. The belt of totality is a narrow strip—never more than 170 miles wide—where the point of moon's shadow falls upon the earth. Total eclipses rarely occur, therefore, at the same point of the earth.

Holland's Mischiefous Queen. Young Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and the queen-regent were on a special train between Munich and Wuerzburg recently. Suddenly the signal for the emergency brake was pulled and the train stopped abruptly. The guards and chief engineer hurried in alarm from the engine to the train, and the queen-regent, who was leaning out of the window, with the blush of guilt all over her face, exclaimed: "Don't you come here! I didn't do it!" The young woman had pulled the signal merely to see what would happen.

The Mace. The mace of the house of representatives consists of a bundle of thirteen ebony rods entwined and bound together with silver bands. The thirteen ebony sticks represent the thirteen original states of the union. They are surmounted by a globe of silver upon which the hemispheres are traced, with a silver eagle with outstretched wings is perched upon the summit of the globe. It was made in 1851, and weighs twenty pounds.

What Hissing Signifies. Hissing means different things according to where you happen to be at the time. In West Africa the natives hiss when they are astonished; in the New Hebrides when they see anything beautiful; the Basutos applaud a popular orator in their assemblies by hissing at him. The Japanese, again, show their reverence by a hiss, which has probably somewhat the force of the "hush" with which we command silence.

A Diamond Worth $1,000,000. The most valuable diamond in the world to-day perhaps is the "White" or "Great Imperial" diamond found at the Kimberley (South Africa) mines five years ago. In the rough it weighed a fraction over three ounces, or exactly 457 1/2 carats. It was pared down in cutting until it now weighs but 180 grains. It has fifty-eight facets, and is held by a London syndicate at $1,000,000.

FIVE FOOTBALL CAPTAINS. Five talented football captains this year are Knipe, of Pennsylvania, King of West Point, Warner, of Cornell, Allen of the University of Chicago, and Townsend of Williams College. Townsend overruled and has tripled fever.

The German custom of some one going in a state of nudity, at midnight on Christmas eve, to bind the fruit trees with ropes of straw, or the fruit themselves shaking the crumbs from their tails, cloth around their roots in order that they become more fruitful, clearly points to the mysterious influence attributed by the ancient Germans to the time of the Twelve Nights. In the Tyrol the fruit trees for a similar reason are soundly beaten.

A Stone Marvel. There is, on a mantel in one of the residences of a Georgia family, a piece of stone which bears a striking resemblance to an ancient castle, the turrets, massive doors and strong foundations being distinctly marked. The peculiar feature about the little oddity is that it holds it as if a great light gives the stone the appearance of the building, with many lights radiating from the windows.

Any one who has children will rejoice with L. B. Mulford, of Plainfield, N. J. His little boy, five years of age, was sick with croup. For two days and nights he tried various remedies recommended by his friends and neighbors. He says: "I thought sure I would lose him. I had seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised and thought I would try it as a last hope, and am happy to say that after two doses he slept until morning. I gave it to him the next day and a cure was effected. I keep this remedy in the house now, and as soon as any of my children show signs of croup I give it them and that is the last of it." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Moore & Orme.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

THE ONLY ADMITTED

READ RULE XV.

"Articles that are in any way dangerous or offensive, except patent medicines, are not to be admitted to the Exposition." Why was Ayer's Sarsaparilla admitted? Because it is not a patent medicine, not a nostrum, not a secret preparation, not dangerous, not an experiment, and because it is all that a family medicine should be.

DO NOT LIKE THE BED. Sarah Offers a Conciliatory Reason for Her Dislike.

Two maiden ladies walked into a New York furniture store the other day and asked to be shown some chamber suits of reasonable price. They were tall, thin, prim and sisters.

The salesman showed them an extensive line of bedroom furniture. At last a suit was reached that pleased one of the women. "What's the price of this?" she asked. "Twenty-eight dollars," replied the salesman. "Seven pieces in the set. Made of thoroughly seasoned wood. Everlasting! First-class! You can't buy one like it anywhere else in the city for less than $35. It's a bargain."

"It does seem reasonable," Sarah said, scrutinizing carefully from several points of view, and finally shook her head. "It don't suit me," she said. They left the store. They had reached the sidewalk Mary said: "Sarah, I think we made a mistake in not taking that suit."

"Do you really believe that?" asked Sarah. "Yes, it was a bargain." "But that bedstead, Mary?" "Well, what about it? I didn't see anything the matter with the bedstead. It was a sturdy-looking, well-made, as far as I could see." "Yes, yes, but it was so low."

"Well, what of that?" For my part I like a low bed." "But, my dear sister," said Sarah, reproachfully, "that bedstead was altogether too low. It would be utterly impossible for a man to crawl under it."

The first match was the product of the insanity of John Friedrich Komper, who early in this century was imprisoned in the penitentiary at Hohenasperg, in Germany. He invented the Lucifer match while in his gloomy dungeon. The German government forbade the manufacture of matches on the ground of public policy, because some children playing with them had caused a fire. Komper was released from prison and died a pauper. Up to 1882 the Vienna manufacturers controlled the match business of the world.

The Judgment Seat. A high seat called "kura" is to be found in the courtyard of all well-to-do houses in Cairo and other large towns of the East. It is occupied by the master of the house when deciding domestic affairs. Such seats are never wanting in the courtyard of the houses of the sheikhs, lords of robes, or of persons in authority. The seat is placed in a shady part of the courtyard, and judgment is delivered from it on matters which arise. For decision by the inhabitants of the district, or by members of the tribe over which the master of the house presides.
