THE NEWS.

Baltimore has been selected as the place to hold the next general conference of the Methodist church South.

John Brown, a son of the historical John Brown of the Harpers Ferry affair, died a few days ago at Sandusky, Ohio.

A cyclone passed through portions of Kansas near Wichita and Hutchinson Wednesday of last week. Twenty or more people were killed.

Attorney General Olney has instructed the Federal authorities in California to drop all proceedings against the American Railway Union rioters.

Mr. Phil West, an aged and highly respected citizen of Christian county, who resided six miles east of Crofton, committed suicide last week by cutting his throat with a razor.

Jesse Fields and Joseph Adkins have been found guilty, of the murder of county judge S. H. Combs, of Hazard, Perry county, and the punishment fixed at imprisonment for life in the State penitentiary.

Judge Myers, of the Federal court, in granting the petition of E. F. John son, of Topoka, who sued Dr. Leslie F. Keeley for $100,000 damages, has ruled that Dr. Keeley must make known the ingredients of his biobio-logic of gold compound. Johnson alleges he has been made a physical wreck by the gold treatment.

The dead body of Geo. Newcomb, alias "Slaughter Kid," and Charlie Pierce, brother of Tulsa Jack, notorious members of the old Dalton gang, were taken into Guthrie, they were waylaid by Sam Shafer, Deputy United States Marshal, and a posse, near Ingalls, and both were brought down with warring aim.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says: "In the case of the Ohio Valley Railroad against Capt. Sam Brown, of Pittsburg, Judge Barr rendered a decision yesterday giving the plaintiff judgment for $24,000 of the $100,000 sued for in the original bill of complaint. This suit grew out of a disagreement as to a contract about the road ferry at Evansville.

Herron & Co., a general merchandise firm of Dixon, Webster county, has made an assignment, which has created a veritable sensation. The liabilities will reach $42,000, and the assets about $5,000. Farmers in various parts of the country are caught as endorsers, in sums ranging from a few hundred to thousands of dollars. A number of persons duped recently have threatened violence. One man swears he will kill Herron.

The movement in opposition to the "Sound Money" Convention to be held in Memphis May 23, assumed definite shape last week; the Central Bimetallic League of Tennessee was organized; a silver convention to be composed of delegates from the South and West was called to meet at Memphis June 11 and 12, and extensive plans were outlined for the propagation of the doctrine of the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. A manifesto, which was widely circulated, was issued.

The detailed monthly report of receipts and expenditures was stated last week. The receipts for April were $24,247,836 against $22,692,364 in April 1894. The expenditures for April were $32,990,760, against $32,072,836 in April 1894. The receipts for the ten months of the current year are $257,000 greater than for the ten months corresponding of last year and the expenditures are less for the same time. Customs receipts have increased $77,000,000 over last year. Pension payments have increased $1,000,000 over the ten months of 1894, and interest payments and the public debt have increased $2,000,000 over the same period. This is because of the new bond issue aggregating $202,400.

The faculty of the Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio, has after investigation called upon all of the tobacco users among its eight hundred students to quit the habit, and hereafter persons must give up the habit before they will be permitted to enter the school.

Mr. West was 89 years of age; when he left his house he went to his stable, and procuring a rope he made an attempt to hang himself, so it is thought, as the rope was in his hand when he was found. It was thought that, being too feeble from old age to climb up and tie the rope to a rafter in the stable, he abandoned that idea, and taking the razor from his pocket, he drew it across his throat with terrible force, as the wound was a very long and deep one. He had been dead some time when he was found. About five months ago Mr. West's eldest son, aged sixty-four years, suicided by hanging himself in his stable, and it is thought that the matter had preyed upon the aged father's mind until he determined to end his life in the same manner.

BROWN A CANDIDATE.

He Will No Prosecute the Slayer Of His Son.

[Henderson Journal.]

"You may say that Gov. Brown will continue in the Senatorial race," said Secretary of State J. W. Hendley last night.

"Of course he will cancel the engagement he made to speak at Russellville Monday," Mr. Hendley went on, "but his canvass will be conducted all the same. He has expressed his position fully and freely in the newspapers heretofore, and everybody knows just where he stands. It will be some time before Gov. Brown will begin any active personal canvass."

WILL USE THE NEWSPAPERS.

"For the present," continued the speaker, "the Governor will use the newspapers as a medium for communicating with the people. His only object in making a personal canvass anyway was to meet and shake hands with his old friends about the State, and receive personal assurance of support from them."

Mr. Hendley spoke as one having authority, but one of Gov. Brown's close relatives was not so sure. He said he thought it very likely that the Governor would continue in the race, he would be urged to do so by those close to him, and all possible pressure will be brought to bear to prevent him from giving up the contest. The speaker thought matters had gone too far and that Gov. Brown had too good a chance to win to give up now. Many of the Executive's friends expressed themselves in a similar manner. Bowed down with grief, as he now is, it will be hard to bring Gov. Brown's mind to political matters. It is for this very reason that his friends will urge him to stand in the fight. It will keep him from brooding over his sorrows, and give him something to think about and look forward to.

WILL NOT PROSECUTE.

If Fulton Gordon is prosecuted neither Gov. Brown nor any of his relatives will have anything to do with it. Their wish is that the slayer of Arch Brown and his own wife be allowed to go free. The Governor himself made this statement to a near relative and close friend yesterday afternoon. Both himself and all whom he has taken into his confidence, the matter think this is the wiser course.

Out Seeing Sights.

There was a man in the city yesterday from near Dycusburg, Crittenden county, named Porter Phelps. He is 45 years of age and unmarried, and his trip to the city yesterday is the first time he has ever seen a street car home. He never saw a street car nor a railroad train until yesterday. He left for home last night on the steamer Alex. Perry, after taking in the sights of the city.—Fad. News.

RENEWING THE FISH SUPPLY

The Work of Artificial Propagation as Carried on by the Fish Commission

Special to the Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.

One of the surprising achievements which the ingenuity of man has attempted in recent years is to maintain the supply of food fish in the various lakes and rivers of the country. Protection of the fish by judicious laws was formerly thought to be sufficient to secure this end, and while these laws are very good of themselves and no doubt if enforced would do much towards preserving the fish, yet it has been found difficult, in the first place, to enforce them, and in the second place, even where a reasonable observance of these legislative enactments have been secured, still each year witnessed a falling off in the catch. No doubt the increased demand keeping pace with the growth of the population, as well as the poisoning of streams by the impurities from manufactories and great cities has had a great deal to do with the rather alarming falling off in the supply of food fish.

Some twenty years ago the National Fish Commission was organized, raising fish from the eggs and distributing them throughout the rivers and lakes of the country. In thirty-four of the States fish commissions are carrying on the same work, although perhaps not on as extensive a scale as the National Commission. Yet the sum total of the efforts of all these agencies is claimed to be an actual expansion in the supply of the food fishes.

In spite of the fact that more food fish are consumed by the inhabitants of this country than was the case 20 years ago, yet it still remains true not only is the supply in the market more abundant but prices are actually lower. Millions of baby fish are each year set free in the various waters throughout the country. A large percentage are destroyed before they reach maturity, and in many cases, owing to local conditions, the entire number of fish placed in certain lakes and rivers lose their lives. Every effort to stock a pond or river is not successful. It is stated, however that these are exceptional cases.

At this season of the year the center of perhaps the most active work carried on by the National Fish Commission is at Fort Washington, a few miles below this city. At this point there is located one of the principal stations of the commission, and the purpose is to collect the eggs of the Potomac shad, which is regarded as the finest species of this fish in the country. Under the supervision of the employees of the commission great nets are stretched across the river, into which the fish find their way in their journey towards the spawning grounds, which are in the fresh water of the upper river.

The eggs are taken from the females, who give up their lives in the process. From the males the milt is secured, and the process of hatching the young from the eggs is carried on in tanks owned by the fish commission. As soon as the young shad are sufficiently developed they are put in cans, and the latter are loaded on cars and in this way the fish are transported to various points, throughout the country. It is of course necessary in finding homes for the young fish that the proper climatic conditions should be considered, otherwise the entire supply is likely to meet an untimely end.

The various species of food fish are furnished by the Commission, and are placed in localities where the conditions seem to promise a healthy existence. It of course takes time for the fish to mature before they are ready to be served up as an article of food. There are many perils which surround the early years of their existence, but it is evident that enough of these artificially propagated fish survive to renew the depleted stock.

Even where the natural process goes on there is an immense destruction of life. Of the millions of eggs which are deposited by the fish in the rivers, a large proportion are destroyed before the little ones are matured, or if this stage is passed in safety, then a large number of the young fish fall a victim to various enemies. It is believed that the Fish Commission does almost as well as the parent fish when left to its own resources; and when it is considered that the Fish Commission can in addition reproduce so to speak the places once teeming with a fish population, then it may be said that the methods of modern science has achieved a decided triumph over those of nature.

TOOK POISON.

Miss Lucy Hamilton, of Marshall County, Attempts to Commit Suicide.

The report reached the city today that Miss Lucy Hamilton, the pretty eighteen year old daughter of L. C. Hamilton, a prominent farmer of the hamlet neighborhood of Marshall county, attempted suicide Tuesday evening at her home by taking morphine. Miss Hamilton for the last few days has been the central figure of a sensation in her section of Marshall county. As will doubtless be recalled by the readers of the News, she was engaged to be married last Sunday to Mr. S. L. Grace, a produce dealer of Benton, who is 46 years of age. It was during one of his buying tours through the county that he met and became enamored with Miss Hamilton.

It was only about a month ago when they first met, but Grace is not a man to waste his time and he industriously went to work to win the affections of the young lady in question. He succeeded in gaining her consent to the marriage, and last Sunday was the day for the happy event to take place. Grace procured a marriage license on the appointed day, and was in the act of starting to the domicile of his affianced when to his astonishment a note was handed him by a courier from Miss Hamilton declaring the marriage off.

The news of course at once became public, and created quite a sensation, owing to the prominence of all the parties concerned. The cause of the young woman's fickleness also became at once a topic of discussion among her friends and acquaintances. Among her admirers was a young man named Cox. He is a son of Rev. Cox and nineteen years of age. It is said that she was in love with him and in all probability engaged to be married to him. According to the gossip it was for his sake that she broke her engagement with Grace. After Cox learned about Grace securing a marriage license to wed Miss Hamilton and of her discarding him at the eleventh hour he too became uneasy and tilted the young lady on Monday; the following day she took morphine and it is said with suicidal intent beyond a doubt. She was found lying on her bed at home in an unconscious condition by her parents. A physician was hurriedly summoned and the young woman partially relieved. After she had somewhat recovered she denied that she had taken the morphine with the intention of committing suicide, and asserted that she would not kill herself for any man. She claims that she has been suffering greatly from a spinal trouble, and that she only took the morphine in order to relieve the intense pain. Today she is reported as being in an exceedingly precarious condition and it is seriously doubted whether she will ever recover from the effects of the morphine.—Paducah News.

EDUCATIONAL.

Timely Suggestions for Trustees, Teachers and People.

"We must educate or we must perish," "As is the Teacher so is the School," "Public Office is a Public Trust."

In the teacher scholarship is indispensable; normal training is desirable. Do you now see their relative importance?

Those Trustees who have not already done so, will call on the County Superintendent for notices of election and for poll sheets at once.

"As is the teacher so is the school." There never was a truer maxim; trustees must be governed by it, if they would have a school worthy of the name. They should have at least three considerations in mind when selecting the teacher, viz: moral character, scholarship and normal training, which are important in the order of their statement. The trustees—holders of a trust as the name implies—should adopt a resolution, at their very first meeting after July 1, that they will employ no teacher who can not make a first-class certificate.

The writer knows one county in which the schools are observed in fully three-fourths of the districts. The result was gratifying in the highest degree. The schools improved a hundred percent at least. Examinations these days means something, and if trustees will cooperate with the county examiners, the problem is already well nigh solved.

It is the mean, selfish, narrow minded and little hearted men in the land who impede the progress of education; the men who demand exorbitant prices for school house sites, instead of donating the land; the men who can't appreciate the fact that a dollar invested in education by the individual, by the district or by the state will speedily yield a hundred percent on the investment and compound it.

What bright young man or young woman desires to attend the State College next year. The County Superintendent has the right to appoint one person between the first day of June and the first day of August, to attend said institution. The person appointed will have traveling expenses refunded and be exempt from all charges for tuition, matriculation, room rent and dormitories, fuel, and lights, provided he or she will remain consecutive months. The person so appointed shall first pass an examination from questions furnished by the faculty of the college, which are not very difficult. All persons are eligible who are between the ages of fourteen and twenty-four, and who have completed the common school course. With the advantage of an appointment the necessary expenses of attending ten months not to exceed $125. The County Superintendent will be glad to furnish any information that may be desired. This is a rare opportunity. The State College is a great institution, having an able faculty, admirable buildings, a very elaborate supply of apparatus and an extended curriculum.

Higher education in county schools without any neglect of the common branches, that's the problem. The people of the State should consider it with serious thought, for it presses for solution. The opportunity to take something like a high school course ought to be furnished to every pupil who will embrace it; and it can be furnished in many a district for less money than is ordinarily expended on a few pupils in the district who are sent away to high schools or to the preparatory departments of our colleges.

When a pupil completes the common branches, he is not prepared to enter college; he is not prepared for business; he is not prepared for citizenship—he is an unfinished factor in the community.

Before he may enter the Freshman class at college he must spend one or two years in preparatory, at a cost of $250 to $350 per year, and during all that time, though at a critical period of his life, he is not only removed from home influences, but receives no better instruction than he might receive in the common school at home. In many country districts from one to six boys and girls are sent from home every year, to enter these preparatory schools, at a total cost of at least $1,500. How much better it would be to pay say $50 for each of them and have them properly prepared for college in the home school under the watch and care of parents. It is deemed more expedient to meet the expense by taxation, it may be accomplished under Article X of the school law, entitled Graded Common Schools. An additional teacher and usually another room, will be required—and these are the items of expense.

The strongest argument in favor of such an arrangement is that it would afford the opportunity for a more liberal education to that class of pupils who are not able to attend college, and who, having completed the common school course, are cut off from further educational advantages. Economy, the safety of the child, and benevolence are all in favor of better facilities for high school education in many of the common schools.

HEURED A PILE.

John D. Weller, Cerulean's General Postmaster, Has Some Good Luck.

Mr. John D. Weller, the genial postmaster and druggist at Cerulean, has fallen into a streak of good luck of which his friends will be glad to learn. Mr. Weller was born in Princeton and his father died when he was two or three years old. As a boy he had a pretty hard time of it, but he came out all right and started in as a young man with the confidence of all who knew him. Being left an orphan at so tender an age, he knew little or nothing of his family, and worked his way in the world alone.

Some time ago an uncle, Mr. Wm. Weller, died in Nashville and left an estate valued at $100,000 to $125,000, which devolved to the heirs or his brothers and sisters. There are fourteen of these, and the money is to be equally divided among them. While the share of each will be no great fortune, it will be enough for a comfortable start in the world.

An interesting part of the story is that the publication of the will disclosed to Mr. Weller the existence of his sister, of whom he was entirely ignorant. He was separated from her at his father's death, and never heard from her afterwards, and of course all recollection of her had faded from his mind. Since they heard of each other's whereabouts an affectionate and constant correspondence has been kept up, and Mr. Weller will shortly make a visit to his sister, who lives in Central Kentucky.

As other citizens of Cerulean, Prof. Thomas, has recently fallen heir to about ten thousand dollars, which he will get as soon as the estate in which it is involved can be settled.—Princeton Banner.

A Felicitous Speech.

The Republican State League was held at Owensboro last week. A report says:

"The best speech of the occasion was made by a Democrat. Judge J. D. Atchison, in welcoming the delegates, made a humorous address, in which he assured the Republican visitors that the Democrats of Owensboro welcomed them with open doors, open arms, and wide open eyes. He told them that the Reception Committee was composed of ex-rebel guerrillas, who would say that they were poorly entertained and performed no political tricks. His entire speech was felicitous and happy, and cordially received."

Depew Makes Silverites.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 3.—United States Senator Daniel, of Virginia, in an interview today said that he was a free silver man and a stronger one than ever after listening to Dr. Depew's attack on "Coin's Financial School."

Asked about the proposed international monetary conference, of which he is a member, Mr. Daniels said that in his opinion it was extremely doubtful if it would ever be held. Even if it should be held, the senator thought it would not result in an international agreement on the silver question. England was unfavorable and France was the only country favorable to an extended use of silver.

15 Years With Salt Rheum Hood's Sarsaparilla Gave a Perfect Cure.

"C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: Hood's Sarsaparilla is an excellent medicine. I had eczema in my left leg for fifteen years. Part of the time my leg was one mass of scabs, and about every week corruption would gather under the skin and the scabs would slough off."

The Itching and Burning sensation made me suffer indescribably agonies. I spent a great deal of money for different remedies but did not get relief. About a year ago, reading physicians advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did so and have taken five bottles. Now all the sores, scabs and pain have vanished and I am enjoying perfect health. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is second to none and highly recommend it to all suffering humanity."

A large percentage are destroyed before they reach maturity, and in many cases, owing to local conditions, the entire number of fish placed in certain lakes and rivers lose their lives. Every effort to stock a pond or river is not successful. It is stated, however that these are exceptional cases.

At this season of the year the center of perhaps the most active work carried on by the National Fish Commission is at Fort Washington, a few miles below this city. At this point there is located one of the principal stations of the commission, and the purpose is to collect the eggs of the Potomac shad, which is regarded as the finest species of this fish in the country. Under the supervision of the employees of the commission great nets are stretched across the river, into which the fish find their way in their journey towards the spawning grounds, which are in the free water of the upper river.

The eggs are taken from the females, who give up their lives in the process. From the males the milt is secured, and the process of hatching the young from the eggs is carried on in tanks owned by the fish commission. As soon as the young shad are sufficiently developed they are put in cans, and the latter are loaded on cars and in this way the fish are transported to various points, throughout the country. It is of course necessary in finding homes for the young fish that the proper climatic conditions should be considered, otherwise the entire supply is likely to meet an untimely end.

tifically propagated fish survive to renew the depleted stock.

Even where the natural process goes on there is an immense destruction of life. Of the millions of eggs which are deposited by the fish in the rivers, a large proportion are destroyed before the little ones are matured, or if this stage is passed in safety, then a large number of the young fish fall a victim to various enemies. It is believed that the Fish Commission does almost as well as the parent fish when left to its own resources; and when it is considered that the Fish Commission can in addition reproduce so to speak the places once teeming with a fish population, then it may be said that the methods of modern science has achieved a decided triumph over those of nature.

Miss Lucy Hamilton, of Marshall County, Attempts to Commit Suicide.

The report reached the city today that Miss Lucy Hamilton, the pretty eighteen year old daughter of L. C. Hamilton, a prominent farmer of the famous neighborhood west of Mc. S. county, attempted suicide Tuesday evening at her home by taking morphine.

Miss Hamilton for the last few days has been the central figure of a sensation in her section of Marshall county. As will doubtless be recalled by the readers of the News, she was engaged to be married last Sunday to Mr. S. L. Grace, a produce dealer of Benton, who is 46 yrs of age. It was during one of his buying tours through the county that he met and became enamoured with Miss Hamilton.

It was only about a month ago when they first met, but Grace is not a man to waste his time and he industriously went to work to win the affections of the young lady in question. He succeeded in gaining her consent to the marriage, and last Sunday was the day for the happy event to take place. Grace procured a marriage license on the appointed day, and was in the act of starting to the domicile of his affianced when to his astonishment a note was handed him by a courier from Miss Hamilton declaring the marriage off.

The news of course at once became public, and created quite a sensation, owing to the prominence of all the parties concerned. The cause of the young woman's fickleness also became at once a topic of discussion among her friends and acquaintances. Among her admirers was a young man named Cox. He is a son of Rev. Cox and nineteen years of age. It is said that she was in love with him and in all probability engaged to be married to him. According to the gossip it was for his sake that she broke her engagement with Grace. After Cox learned about Grace securing a marriage license to wed Miss Hamilton and of her discarding him at the eleventh hour he too became uneasy and "fitted the young lady on Monday; the following day she took morphine and it is said with suicidal intent beyond a doubt. She was found lying on a bed at home in an unconscious condition by her parents. A physician was hurriedly summoned and the young woman partially relieved. After she had somewhat recovered she denied that she had taken the morphine with the intention of committing suicide, and asserted that she would not kill herself for any man. She claims that she has been suffering greatly from a spinal trouble, and that she only took the morphine in order to relieve the intense pain. Today she is reported as being in an exceedingly precarious condition and it is seriously doubted whether she will ever recover from the effects of the morphine.—Paducah News.

EDUCATIONAL.

Timely Suggestions for Trustees, Teachers and People.

"We must educate or we must perish." "As is the Teacher so is the School." "Public Office is a Public Trust."

In the teacher scholarship is indispensable; normal training is desirable. Do you now see their relative importance?

Those Trustees who have not already done so, will call on the County Superintendent for notices of election and for poll sheets at once.

"As is the teacher so is the school." There never was a truer maxim; trustees must be governed by it, if they would have a school worthy of the name. They should have at least three considerations in mind when selecting the teacher, viz: moral character, scholarship and normal training, which are important in the order of their statement. The trustees—holders of a trust as the name implies—should adopt a resolution at their very first meeting after July 1, that they will employ no teacher who can not make a first-class certificate.

The writer knows one county in which this has been observed in fully three-fourths of the districts. The result was gratifying in the highest degree. The schools improved a hundred per cent. at least. Examinations these days means something, and if trustees will cooperate with the county examiners, the problem is already well nigh solved.

It is the mean, selfish, narrow minded and little hearted men in the land who impede the progress of education; the men who demand exorbitant prices for school house sites, instead of donating the land; the men who can not appreciate the fact that a dollar invested in education by the individual, by the district or by the state will speedily yield a hundred per cent. on the investment and compound it.

What bright young man or young woman desires to attend the State College next year. The County Superintendent has the right to appoint one person between the first day of June and the first day of August, to attend said institution. The person appointed will have traveling expenses refunded and be exempt from all charges for tuition, matriculation, room rent and dormitories, fuel, and lights, provided he or she will remain ten consecutive months. The person so appointed shall first pass an examination from questions furnished by the faculty of the college, which are not very difficult. All persons are eligible who are between the ages of fourteen and twenty-four, and who have completed the common school course. With the advantage of an appointment the necessary expenses of attending ten months not to exceed $125. The County Superintendent will be glad to furnish any information that may be desired. This is a rare opportunity. The State College is a great institution, having an able faculty, admirable buildings, a very elaborate supply of apparatus and an extended curriculum.

Higher education in county schools without any neglect of the common branches, that's the problem. The people of the State should consider it with serious thought, for it presses for solution. The opportunity to take something like a high school course ought to be furnished to every pupil who will embrace it; and it can be furnished in many a district for less money than is ordinarily expended on a few pupils in the district who are sent away to high schools or to the preparatory departments of our colleges.

When a pupil completes the common branches, he is not prepared to enter college; he is not prepared for business; he is not prepared for citizenship—he is an unfinished factor in the community.

Before he may enter the Freshman class at college he must spend one or two years in preparatory, at a cost of $250 to $350 per year, and during all that time, though at a critical period of his life, he is not only removed from home influences, but receives no better instruction than he might receive in the common school at home.

In many country districts from one to six boys and girls are sent from home every year, to enter these preparatory schools, at a total cost of at least $1,500. How much better it would be to pay say $50 for each of them and have them properly prepared for college in the home school under the watch and care of parents. It is deemed more expedient to meet the expense by taxation, it may be accomplished under Article X of the school law, entitled Graded Common Schools.

An additional teacher and usually another room, will be required—and these are the items of expense. The strongest argument in favor of such an arrangement is that it would afford the opportunity for a more liberal education to that class of pupils who are not able to attend college, and who, having completed the common school course, are cut off from further educational advantages. Economy, the safety of the child, and benevolence are all in favor of better facilities for high school education in many of the common schools.

A cyclone passed through portions of Kansas near Wichita and Hutchinson Wednesday of last week. Twenty or more people were killed.

Attorney General Olney has instructed the Federal authorities in California to drop all proceedings against the American Railway Union rioters.

Mr. Phil West, an aged and highly respected citizen of Christian county, who resided six miles east of Crofton, committed suicide last week by cutting his throat with a razor.

Jesse Fields and Joseph Adkins have been found guilty, of the murder of county judge S. H. Combs, of Hazard, Perry county, and the punishment fixed at imprisonment for life in the State penitentiary.

Judge Myers, of the Federal court, in granting the petition of E. F. John son, of Topeka, who sued Dr. Leslie F. Keeley for $100,000 damages, has ruled that Dr. Keeley must make known the ingredients of his bicycle ride of gold compound. Johnson alleges he has been made a physical wreck by the gold treatment.

The dead body of Geo. Newcomb, alias "Slaughter Kid," and Charlie Pearce, brother of Tulsa-Jack, notorious members of the old Dalton gang, were taken into Guthrie, they were waylaid by Sam Shaffer, Deputy United States Marshal, and a posse, near Ingalls, and both were brought down with unerring aim.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says: "In the case of the Ohio Valley Railroad against Capt. This suit grew out of a disagreement as to a contract about the road ferry at Evansville.

Herron & Co., a general merchandise firm of Dixon, Webster county, has made an assignment, which has created a veritable sensation. The liabilities will reach $42,000, and the assets about $5,000. The movement in opposition to the "Sound Money" Convention to be held in Memphis May 23, assumed definite shape last week; the Central Bimetallic League of Tennessee was organized; a silver convention to be composed of delegates from the South and West was called to meet at Memphis June 11 and 12, and extensive plans were outlined for the propagation of the doctrine of the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. A manifesto, which was widely circulated, was issued.

The detailed monthly report of receipts and expenditures was stated last week. The receipts for April were $24,247,836 against $22,692,361 in April 1894. The expenditures for April were $32,390,760, against $32,072,836 in April 1894. The receipts for the ten months of the current year are $257,000 greater than for the ten months corresponding of last year and the expenditures are less for the same time. Customs receipts have increased $77,000,000 over last year. Pension payments have increased $1,000,000 over the ten months of 1894, and interest payments and the public debt have increased $2,000,000 over the same period. This is because of the new bond issue aggregating $262,400,000.

RENEWING THE FISH SUPPLY

The Work of Artificial Propagation as Carried on by the Fish Commission

Special to the Press. WASHINGTON, May 7.

One of the surprising achievements which the ingenuity of man has attempted in recent years is to maintain the supply of food fish in the various lakes and rivers of the country. Protection of the fish by judicious laws was formerly thought to be sufficient to secure this end, and while these laws are very good of themselves and no doubt if enforced would do much towards preserving the fish, yet it has been found difficult, in the first place, to enforce them, and in the second place, even where a reasonable observance of these legislative enactments have been secured, still each year witnessed a falling off in the catch. No doubt the increased demand keeping pace with the growth of the population, as well as the poisoning of streams by the impurities from manufactories and great cities has had a great deal to do with the rather alarming falling off in the supply of food fish.

Some twenty years ago the National Fish Commission began its work of raising fish from the eggs and distributing them throughout the rivers and lakes of the country. In thirty-four of the States fish commissions are carrying on the same work, although perhaps not on as extensive a scale as the National Commission. Yet the sum total of the efforts of all these agencies is claimed to be an actual expansion in the supply of the food fishes.

In spite of the fact that more food fish are consumed by the inhabitants of this country than was the case 20 years ago, yet it still remains true not only is the supply in the market more abundant but prices are actually lower. Millions of baby fish are each year set free in the various waters throughout the country. A large percentage are destroyed before they reach maturity, and in many cases, owing to local conditions, the entire number of fish placed in certain lakes and rivers lose their lives. Every effort to stock a pond or river is not successful. It is stated, however that these are exceptional cases.

It is of course necessary in finding homes for the young fish that the proper climatic conditions should be considered, otherwise the entire supply is likely to meet an untimely end.

The various species of food fish are furnished by the Commission, and are placed in localities where the conditions seem to promise a healthy existence. It of course takes time for the fish to mature before they are ready to be served up as an article of food. There are many perils which surround the early years of their existence, but it is evident that enough of these are Even where the natural process goes on there is an immense destruction of life. John D. Weller, Cerulean's Genial Postmaster, Has Some Good Luck.

Mr. John D. Weller, the genial postmaster and druggist at Cerulean, has fallen into a streak of good luck of which his friends will be glad to learn. Mr. Weller was born in Princeton and his father died when he was two or three years old. As a boy he had a pretty hard time of it, but he came out all right and started in as a young man with the confidence of all who knew him. Being left an orphan at so tender an age, he knew little or nothing of his family, and worked his way in the world alone.

Some time ago an uncle, Mr. Wm. Weller, died in Nashville and left an estate valued at $100,000 to $125,000, which devolved to the heirs of his brothers and sisters. There are fourteen of these, and the money is to be equally divided among them. While the share of each will be no great fortune, it will be enough for a comfortable start in the world. An interesting part of the story is that the publication of the will disclosed to Mr. Weller the existence of his sister, of whom he was entirely ignorant. He was separated from her at his father's death, and never heard from her afterwards, and of course all recollection of her had faded from his mind. Since they heard of each other's whereabouts, and of course constant correspondence has been kept up, and Mr. Weller will shortly make a visit to his sister, who lives in Central Kentucky.

Another citizen of Cerulean, Prof. Thomas, has recently fallen heir to about ten thousand dollars, which he will get as soon as the estate in which it is involved can be settled.—Princeton Banner.

A Felicitous Speech.

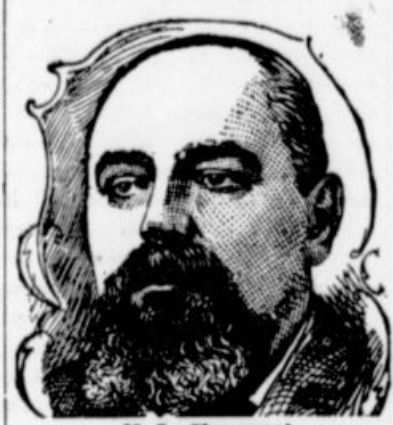

The Republican State League was held at Owensboro last week. A report says:

"The best speech of the occasion was made by a Democrat. Judge J. D. Atchison, in welcoming the delegates, made a humorous address, in which he assured the Republican visitors that the Democrats of Owensboro welcomed them with open doors, open arms, and wide open eyes. He told them that the Reception Committee was composed of ex-rebel guerrillas, who would say that they were properly entertained and performed no political tricks. His entire speech was felicitous and happy, and cordially received."

THE NEWS.

Baltimore has been selected as the place to hold the next general conference of the Methodist church South.

John Brown, a son of the historical John Brown of the Harpers Ferry affair, died a few days ago at Sandusky, Ohio.

A cyclone passed through portions of Kansas near Wichita and Hutchinson Wednesday last week. Twenty or more people were killed.

Attorney General Olney has instructed the Federal authorities in California to drop all proceedings against the American Railway Union rioters.

Mr. Phil West, an aged and highly respected citizen of Christian county, who resided six miles east of Crofton, committed suicide last week by cutting his throat with a razor.

Jose Fields and Joseph Adkins have been found guilty, of the murder of county judge S. H. Combs, of Hazard, Perry county, and the punishment fixed at imprisonment for life in the State penitentiary.

Judge Myers, of the Federal court, in granting the petition of E. F. John son, of Topeka, who sued Dr. Leslie F. Keeley for $100,000 damages, has ruled that Dr. Keeley must make known the ingredients of his highly priced gold compound. Johnson alleges he has been made a physical wreck by the gold treatment.

The dead body of Geo. Newcomb, alias "Slaughter Kid," and Charlie Pearce, brother of Tulsa Jack, notorious members of the old Dalton gang, were taken into Guthrie, they were waylaid by Sam Shaffer, Deputy United States Marshal, and a posse, near Ingalls, and both were brought down with unerring aim.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says: "In the case of the Ohio Valley Railroad against Capt. Sam Brown, of Pittsburg, Judge Barr rendered a decision yesterday giving the plaintiff judgment for $24,000 of the $100,000 sued for in the original bill of complaint. This suit grew out of a disagreement as to a contract about the road ferry at Evansville.

Herron & Co., a general merchandise firm of Dixon, Webster county, has made an assignment, which has created a veritable sensation. The liabilities will reach $42,000, and the assets about $5,000. Farmers in various parts of the county are caught as endorsers, in sums ranging from a few hundred to thousands of dollars. A number of persons duped recently have threatened violence. One man swears he will kill Herron.

The movement in opposition to the "Sound Money" Convention to be held in Memphis May 23, assumed definite shape last week; the Central Bimetallist League of Tennessee was organized; a silver convention to be composed of delegates from the South and West was called to meet at Memphis June 11 and 12, and extensive plans were outlined for the propagation of the doctrine of the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. A manifesto, which was widely circulated, was issued.

The detailed monthly report of receipts and expenditures was stated last week. The receipts for April were $24,247,836 against $22,692,364 in April 1894. The expenditures for April were $32,390,760, against $32,072,836 in April 1894. The receipts for the ten months of the current year are $257,000 greater than for the ten months corresponding of last year and the expenditures are less for the same time. Customs receipts have increased $77,000,000 over last year. Pension payments have increased $1,000,000 over the ten months of 1894, and interest payments and the public debt have increased $2,000,000 over the same period. This is because of the new bond issue aggregating $262,400,000.

The faculty of the Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio, has after investigation called upon all of the tobacco users among its eight hundred students to quit the habit, and hereafter persons must give up the habit before they will be permitted to enter the school.

Mr. West was 89 years of age; when he left his house he went to his stable, and procuring a rope he made an attempt to hang himself, so it is thought, as the rope was in his hand when he was fouled. It was thought that, being too feeble from old age to climb up and tie the rope to a rafter in the stable, he abandoned that idea, and taking the razor from his pocket, he drew it across his throat with terrible force, as the wound was a very long and deep one. He had been dead some time when he was found. About five months ago Mr. West's eldest son, aged sixty-four years, suicided by hanging himself in his stable, and it is thought that the matter had preyed upon the aged father's mind until he determined to end his life in the same manner.

BROWN A CANDIDATE.

He Will Not Prosecute the Slayer of His Son.

[Henderson Journal.]

"You may say that Gov. Brown will continue in the Senatorial race," said Secretary of State J. W. Headley last night. "Of course he will cancel the engagement he made to speak at Russellville Monday," Mr. Headley went on, "but his canvass will be conducted all the same. He has expressed his position fully and freely in the newspapers heretofore, and everybody knows just where he stands. It will be some time before Gov. Brown will begin any active personal canvass."

WILL USE THE NEWSPAPERS.

"For the present," continued the speaker, "the Governor will use the newspapers as a medium for communicating with the people. His only object in making a personal canvass anyway was to meet and shake hands with his old friends about the State, and receive personal assurance of support from them."

Mr. Headley spoke as one having authority, but one of Gov. Brown's close relatives was not so sure. He said he thought it very likely that the Governor would continue in the race. He would be urged to do so by those close to him, and all possible pressure will be brought to bear to prevent him from giving up the contest. The speaker thought matters had gone too far and that Gov. Brown had too good a chance to win to give up now. Many of the Executive's friends expressed themselves in a similar manner. Bowed down with grief, as he now is, it will be hard to bring Gov. Brown's mind to political matters. It is for this very reason that his friends will urge him to stand in the fight. It will keep him from brooding over his sorrows, and give him something to think about and look forward to.

WILL NOT PROSECUTE.

If Fulton Gordon is prosecuted neither Gov. Brown nor any of his relatives will have anything to do with it. Their wish is that the slayer of Arch Brown and his own wife be allowed to go free. The Governor himself made this statement to a near relative and close friend yesterday afternoon. Both himself and all whom he has taken into his confidence in the matter think this is the wiser course.

Out Seeing Nights.

There was a man in the city yesterday from near Dyeburg, Crittenden county, named Porter Phelps. He is 45 years of age and unmarried, and his trip to the city yesterday is the first time he was ever ten miles from home. He never saw a street car nor a railroad train until yesterday. He left for home last night on the steamer Alex. Perry, after taking in the sights of the city.—Pal. News.

RENEWING THE FISH SUPPLY

The Work of Artificial Propagation as Carried on by the Fish Commission

Special to the Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.

One of the surprising achievements which the ingenuity of man has attempted in recent years is to maintain the supply of food fish in the various lakes and rivers of the country. Protection of the fish by judicious laws was formerly thought to be sufficient to secure this end, and while these laws are very good of themselves and no doubt it enforced would do much towards preserving the fish, yet it has been found difficult, in the first place, to enforce them, and in the second place, even where a reasonable observance of these legislative enactments have been secured, still each year witnessed a falling off in the catch.

No doubt the increased demand keeping pace with the growth of the population, as well as the poisoning of streams by the impurities from manufactures and great cities has had a great deal to do with the rather alarming falling off in the supply of food fish.

Some twenty years ago the National Fish Commission began its work of raising fish from the eggs and distributing them throughout the rivers and lakes of the country. In thirty-four of the States fish commissions are carrying on the same work, although perhaps not on as extensive a scale as the National Commission. Yet the sum total of the efforts of all these agencies is claimed to be an actual expansion in the supply of the food fishes.

In spite of the fact that more food fish are consumed by the inhabitants of this country than was the case 20 years ago, yet it still remains true not only is the supply in the market more abundant but prices are actually lower. Millions of baby fish are each year set free in the various waters throughout the country. A large percentage are destroyed before they reach maturity, and in many cases, owing to local conditions, the entire number of fish placed in certain lakes and rivers lose their lives. Every effort to stock a pond or river is not successful. It is stated, however that these are exceptional cases.

At this season of the year the center of perhaps the most active work carried on by the National Fish Commission is at Fort Washington, a few miles below this city. At this point there is located one of the principal stations of the commission, and the purpose is to collect the eggs of the Potomac shad, which is regarded as the finest species of this fish in the country. Under the supervision of the employees of the commission great nets are stretched across the river, into which the fish find their way in their journey towards the spawning grounds, which are in the free water of the upper river.

The eggs are taken from the females, who give up their lives in the process. From the males the milt is secured, and the process of hatching the young from the eggs is carried on in tanks owned by the fish commission. As soon as the young shad are sufficiently developed they are put in cans, and the latter are loaded on cars and in this way the fish are transported to various points, throughout the country. It is of course necessary in finding homes for the young fish that the proper climatic conditions should be considered, otherwise the entire supply is likely to meet an untimely end.

The various species of food fish are furnished by the Commission, and are placed in localities where the conditions seem to promise a healthy existence. It is of course takes time for the fish to mature before they are ready to be served up as an article of food. There are many perils which surround the early years of their existence, but it is evident that enough of these artitificially propagated fish survive to renew the depleted stock.

Even where the natural process goes on there is an immense destruction of life. Of the millions of eggs which are deposited by the fish in the rivers, a large proportion are destroyed before the little ones are matured, or if this stage is passed in safety, then a large number of the young fish fall a victim to various enemies. It is believed that the Fish Commission does almost as well as the parent fish when left to its own resources; and when it is considered that the Fish Commission can in addition rearing so to speak the places once teeming with a fish population, then it may be said that the methods of modern science has achieved a decided triumph over those of nature.

TOOK POISON.

Miss Lucy Hamilton, of Marshall County, Attempts to Commit Suicide.

The report reached the city today that Miss Lucy Hamilton, the pretty eighteen year old daughter of L. C. Hamilton, a prominent farmer of the Hamlet neighborhood of Marshall county, attempted suicide Tuesday evening at her home by taking morphine. Miss Hamilton for the last few days has been the central figure of a sensation in her section of Marshall county. As will doubtless be recalled by the readers of the News, she was engaged to be married last Sunday to Mr. S. L. Grace, a produce dealer of Benton, who is 46 years of age. It was during one of his buying tours through the county that he met and became enamored with Miss Hamilton.

It was only about a month ago when they first met, but Grace is not a man to waste his time and he industriously went to work to win the affections of the young lady in question. He succeeded in gaining her consent to the marriage, and last Sunday was the day for the happy event to take place. Grace procured a marriage license on the appointed day, and was in the act of starting to the domicile of his affianced when to his astonishment a note was handed him by a courier from Miss Hamilton declaring the marriage off.

The news of course at once became public, and created quite a sensation, owing to the prominence of all the parties concerned. The cause of the young woman's fickleness also became at once a topic of discussion among her friends and acquaintances. Among her admirers was a young man named Cox. He is a son of Rev. Cox and nineteen years of age. It is said that she was in love with him and in all probability engaged to be married to him. According to the gossip it was for his sake that she broke her engagement with Grace. After Cox learned about Grace securing a marriage license to wed Miss Hamilton and of her discarding him at the eleventh hour he too became uneasy and "told the young lady on Monday; the following day she took morphine and it is said with suicidal intent beyond a doubt. She was found lying on her bed at home in an unconscious condition by her parents. A physician was hurriedly summoned and the young woman partially revived. After she had somewhat recovered she denied that she had taken the morphine with the intention of committing suicide, and asserted that she would not kill herself for any man. She claims that she has been suffering greatly from a spinal trouble, and that she only took the morphine in order to relieve the intense pain. Today she is reported as being in an exceedingly precarious condition and it is seriously doubted whether she will ever recover from the effects of the morphine.—Paducah News.

EDUCATIONAL.

Timely Suggestions for Trustees, Teachers and People.

"We must educate or we must perish." "As is the Teacher so is the School;" "Public Office is a Public Trust."

In the teacher scholarship his indispensable; normal training is desirable. Do you now see their relative importance?

Those Trustees who have not already done so, will call on the County Superintendent for notices of election and for poll sheets at once.

"As is the teacher so is the school." There never was a truer maxim; trustees must be governed by it, if they would have a school worthy of the name. They should have at least three considerations in mind when selecting the teacher, viz: moral character, scholarship and normal training, which are important in the order of their statement. The trustees—holders of a trust as the name implies—should adopt a resolution at their very first meeting after July 1, that they will employ no teacher who can not make a first-class certificate. The writer knows one county in which this rule was observed in fully three fourths of the districts. The result was gratifying in the highest degree. The schools improved a hundred per cent. at least. Examinations these days means something, and if trustees will cooperate with the county examiners, the problem is already well nigh solved.

It is the mean, selfish, narrow minded and little hearted men in the land who impede the progress of education; the men who demand exorbitant prices for school house sites, instead of donating the land; the men who can't appreciate the fact that a dollar invested in education by the individual, by the district or by the state will speedily yield a hundred per cent. on the investment and compound it.

What bright young man or young woman desires to attend the State College next year. The County Superintendent has the right to appoint one person between the first day of June and the first day of August, to attend said institution. The person appointed will have traveling expenses refunded and be exempt from all charges for tuition, matriculation, room rent and dormitories, fuel, and lights, provided he or she will remain ten consecutive months. The person so appointed shall first pass an examination from questions furnished by the faculty of this college, which are not very difficult. All persons are eligible who are between the ages of fourteen and twenty four, and who have completed the common school course. With the advantage of an appointment the necessary expense of attending ten months not to exceed $125. The County Superintendent will be glad to furnish any information that may be desired. This is a rare opportunity. The State College is a great institution, having an able faculty, admirable buildings, a very elaborate supply of apparatus and an extended curriculum.

Higher education in county schools without any neglect of the common branches, that's the problem. The people of the State should consider it with serious thought, for it presses for solution. The opportunity to take something like a high school course ought to be furnished to every pupil who will embrace it; and it can be furnished in many a district for less money than is ordinarily expended on a few pupils in the district who are sent away to high schools or to the preparatory departments of our colleges. When a pupil completes the common branches, he is not prepared to enter college; he is not prepared for business; he is not prepared for civilzanship—he is an unfinished factor in the community.

Before he may enter the Freshman class at college he must spend one or two years in preparatory, at a cost of $250 to $350 per year, and during all that time, though at a critical period of his life, he is not only removed from home influences, but receives no better instruction than he might receive in the common school at home. In many country districts from one to six boys and girls are sent from home every year, to enter these preparatory schools, at a total cost of at least $1,500. How much better it would be to pay say $50 for each of them and have them properly prepared for college in the home school under the watch and care of parents. If it be deemed more expedient to meet the expense by taxation, it may be accomplished under Article X of the school law, entitled Graded Common Schools. An additional teacher and usually another room, will be required—and these are the items of expense.

The strongest argument in favor of such an arrangement is that it would afford the opportunity for a more liberal education to that class of pupils who are not able to attend college, and who, having completed the common school course, are cut off from further educational advantages. Economy, the safety of the child, and benevolence are all in favor of better facilities for high school education in many of the common schools.

HEURED A PILE

John D. Weller, Cerulean's Genial Postmaster, Has Some Good Luck.

Mr. John D. Weller, the genial postmaster and druggist at Cerulean, has fallen into a streak of good luck of which his friends will be glad to learn. Mr. Weller was born in Princeton and his father died when he was two or three years old. As a boy he had a pretty hard time of it, but he came out all right and started in as a young man with the confidence of all who knew him. Being left an orphan at so tender an age, he knew little or nothing of his family, and worked his way in the world alone.

Some time ago an uncle, Mr. Wm. Weller, died in Nashville and left an estate valued at $100,000 to $125,000, which devolved to the heirs of his brothers and sisters. There are fourteen of these, and the money is to be equally divided among them. While the share of each will be no great fortune, it will be enough for a comfortable start in the world.

An interesting part of the story is that the publication of the will disclosed to Mr. Weller the existence of his sister, of whom he was entirely ignorant. He was separated from her at his father's death, and never heard from her afterwards, and of course all recollection of her had faded from his mind. Since they heard of each other's whereabouts an affectionate and constant correspondence has been kept up, and Mr. Weller will shortly make a visit to his sister, who lives in Central Kentucky.

Another citizen of Cerulean, Prof. Thomas, has recently fallen heir to about ten thousand dollars, which he will get as soon as the estate in which it is involved can be settled.—Princeton Banner.

A Felicitous Speech.

The Republican State League was held at Owensboro last week. A report says:

"The best speech of the occasion was made by a Democrat. Judge J. D. Atchison, in welcoming the delegates, made a humorous address, in which he assured the Republican visitors that the Democrats of Owensboro welcomed them with open doors, open arms, and wide open eyes. He told them that the Reception Committee was composed of ex-rebel guerrillas, who would say that they were properly entertained and performed no political tricks. His entire speech was felicitous and happy, and cordially received."

Depew Makes Silverites.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 3.—United States Senator Daniel, of Virginia, in an interview today said that he was a free silver man and a stronger one than ever after listening to Dr. Depew's attack on "Coin's Financial School."

Asked about the proposed international monetary conference, of which he is a member, Mr. Daniels said that in his opinion it was extremely doubtful if it would ever be held. Even if it should be held, the senator thought it would not result in an international agreement on the silver question. England was unfavorable and France was the only country favorable to an extended use of silver.

15 Years With Salt Rheum Hood's Sarsaparilla Gave a Perfect Cure.

"C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'Hood's Sarsaparilla is an excellent medicine. I had eczema in my left leg for fifteen years. Part of the time my leg was one mass of scabs, and about every week corruption would gather under the skin and the scabs would slough off. I spent a great deal of money for different remedies but did not get relief. About a year ago, reading physicians advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did so and have taken five bottles. Now all the sores, scabs and pain have vanished and I am enjoying perfect health. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is second to none and fully recommend it to all suffering humanity.' E. L. Treat them both alike—silver and gold.

Hon. Henry C. Dixon is now Gov. Brown's private secretary. A good selection.

Bradley is having a walk-over for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Senator Jones, of Nebraska, thinks an international monetary conference will be held this year.

The income tax question is before the Supreme Court of the United States for a rehearing.

Let a reward be offered for that rapist. The citizens should contribute towards a fund of this kind.

At Durant, I. T., an outlaw resisting arrest, killed an officer and a bystander and was himself fatally shot.

"Free silver" is a craze the National Democratic Convention was crazy when it demanded that gold and silver should be treated alike.

The Democrats of Cook county, Ill., and this includes the city of Chicago, have declared for free coinage of silver at the old rate.

At New Orleans Dr. Samuel P. Schwing shot and killed Dr. Emile Herat. Both were prominent men. Schwing's wife and Herat were too intimate.

The Paducah News announces for Buckner for United States Senator, and wants the man who goes to the Legislature from that county instructed to vote for him.

Pete Turney is like Collins' ram, he has a head of his own, and despite the expressed feelings of a large percentage of Democrats of the country, Pete is going to keep his head in the Governor's office down in Tennessee for another term.

The Tennessee Legislature has settled the gubernatorial fight by declaring Turney elected. The majority report of the committee which investigated the charges of fraud in the State election gave Turney 91,744 votes, Evans 92,440, and Sims 23,088. The vote in the Legislature to adopt the report of the committee stood 70 to 57—eight Democrats voting against the motion.

Mr. A. J. Nickell, of Grand Rivers was in town Monday getting acquainted with the people and taking about his candidacy for the Legislature. He is a genial, pleasant, companionable gentleman, and makes a good impression upon those with whom he meets. He is an outspoken silver Democrat, and makes that point known wherever he goes. He holds that candidates for the Legislature ought to commit themselves on this question.

Don't get it out of your head that free silver Democrats want nothing more nor nothing less than to put more of silver on the same basis as gold. No discrimination. That is what the platform of 1892 says. When you hear a Democrat bawling silver he is not only not in accord with the spirit of the party today, but he is crawling down from the form of '92.

Ex-Governor Beck, like Senator Blackburn, does not mix matters in defining his position on the currency question, but he takes a view quite opposed to that of the Senator. He is for the single standard, and that gold. The candidates for the Senate have now plainly defined themselves, and their action will make it necessary for the candidates for the Legislature to take positive grounds. The man who is elected to the United States Senate has directly a hand in shaping the financial laws of the nation; the man who is elected to the Legislature has a hand in naming the United States Senator; the place where the people have a hand in the affair is in selecting the man for the Legislature. The candidates for the Senate recognize the issue by announcing their respective positions, and the candidates for the Legislature had as well make up their minds on the issue.

The people who favor gold and gold alone as a basic money are to themselves the sole use of the terms "sound money," "honest money," and the like. They ought in all fairness to refer to themselves in terms that will more specifically define their position. If you are for the use of gold alone as redeemable money, say so in plain terms. If you are for both gold and silver, say so. Don't hunt up a term which describes the ideas of all and be so Phalarisical as to claim the sole use of it. If the great bulk of those on both sides of the issue are not honest in their opinions, the country is in a bad way, and nothing will perpetuate its good name.

Another of the scarecrows which is used to frighten the friends of the silver coinage is the statement that if we adopt free and unlimited coinage all the silver of other countries will be brought here and dumped on us, the gold driven out of the country and our country made a single silver standard country. Such an argument is not now used, except among those too ignorant to know what they are talking about. If all the gold and silver in the world could be utilized as money there is not enough of it to meet the needs of the world's commerce, which is annually increasing, while the gold and silver production of the world is decreasing. Where is that silver to come from? What country can spare it? And how is it to get here? There is at this time more than $1,000,000,000 in silver in circulation in Europe, and every dollar of it is at par with gold, at the rate of 15 1/2 to 1. The dollar there, to use our denomination, is worth about three cents less than our dollar, which is as 16 to 1, because of the difference in ratio. If, therefore, the owners of silver there should bring their silver here to exchange it for gold, they would lose three cents on the dollar. Then there would be the expense of getting the silver together in that country, the cost of freight and insurance to this country, the cost of exchange here, the cost of freight and insurance back to that country and the cost of recoinage. Able financiers estimate that these expenses would amount to 12 or 15 per cent. That man of sense would make such a sacrifice? And why should it be made? Money only goes where it is to be used in buying other things. If it should come to this country it would be brought here to buy our products, would improve our markets and benefit our people. But why discuss the impossible? The governments of Europe control but little of their coin money. It is in the hands of the people, and it is possible to take this money from the people it would produce a general panic, cause strikes everywhere, and in all human probability a revolution. This view is too absurd to be talked about.—Texas Democrat.

The Ballot Commission.
The thirty-one counties composing the first judicial commission's district held conventions last Saturday, and according to the latest advices we have the delegated votes is divided among the candidates as follows: Campbell 95; Richardson 54; Moore 24; McFay 26; Miller 24; Morrow 19. It is not known how the other parties will cast their votes. The counties instructed for Dr. Moore are Caldwell, Crittenden, Hancock and Livingston, while Trigg and Lyon are uncommitted, it is known that they are first for Crittenden's candidate, and in addition to these some other uncommitted votes are for him, giving him 37 votes—third place in the race in which are six candidates. That is not altogether what Crittenden county Democrats hoped for, but such is the fate of politics. The Convention meets in Owensboro May 15, when the candidate will be named.

Watterson's Confession.
Replying to a critic Mr. Watterson in yesterday's Courier-Journal admits that while in Congress in December, 1890, he voted with John Young Brown, Proctor Knott and others for Mr. Blain's bill for the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1, and he also admits that he supported the Bland-Allison bill in 1878. In excuse for these acts he now candidly pleads ignorance. Furthermore Mr. Watterson admits that for ten years afterward he marched in a parade for silver, and under the leadership of Senator Beck, explaining that he "was involved in another economic battle which was, in his opinion, more important, and was undoubtedly more immediate and direct—the revenue reform—and, having as for this an earnest and able comrade in Mr. Beck, it cost him nothing to submit himself to Mr. Beck's judgment as to silver, particularly as he knew little about it himself, had no time to learn, and felt that acquiescence would keep peace in the family."

Here is, indeed, candor for you, gentle reader! Those able editorialists in the Courier-Journal for years that made so many advocates of free silver were pointed only to "keep peace in the family," only as compensation to Beck for his co-operative in the battle for revenue reform. Thus does Mr. Watterson invite his subscribers to view with skepticism anything they may read in his paper.

Continuing his confession Mr. Watterson says, after the death of Mr. Beck has a word appeared in these columns about that side of the question. Of course not. Mr. Beck was dead. Mr. Watterson's compact with him was ended. He cancelled it. Mr. Watterson must needs find new political alliances. When Beck was buried he looked out for another political partner. He found him in Carlisle. Carlisle was also a good revenue reformer. Carlisle went into Cleveland's cabinet. Cleveland was a goldbug. Watterson, "to keep peace in the family," went with him. And there you have it!—Owensboro Messenger.

As the smoke clears away Gordon's excuse for killing his wife flimsier. The awfulness of the crime becomes more apparent the more it is thought of. Star Spangled Banner's Author.
Many interesting things about Francis Scott Key—the author of the Star Spangled Banner—are contained in a pamphlet, which may be obtained free, from the Key Monument Association of Frederick City, Maryland, by sending one 2 cent stamp for postage. This Association is raising funds for a suitable monument to the poet, and they suggest, that in the "Key" and every where, upon or before flag day (June 14th), this subject be suitably recognized. Contributions, however small, are asked for. Every one who loves the flag, ought to have some small share in building this monument. The Governor of Maryland has strongly endorsed the movement. GORDON'S TRIAL.

Court Room Packed, Seething Arraignment of the Accused.

Wednesday morning Fulton Gordon, who killed his wife and Archie Brown, was before Judge Thompson's court for trial. We give the following from the Louisville Post:

The people began arriving in season as the court room was opened, and waited patiently through the intervening time. About the bar was a throng of lawyers intent on hearing the case, and just beyond, and feebly clanking over each other in an effort to get to a point of vantage was the eager expectant throng.

Judge Thompson took his seat on the bench, bailiff Vetter called for order and the Judge said: "Gentlemen are you ready in the case of Fulton Gordon?"

At this instant almost, Gordon entered the court room, leaning on the arm of Mr. Dulaney. Except for a slight pallor and a nervous twitching of the face, he betrayed at this time no great emotion. At times he passed his hands over his face as if his eyes to the ground.

That he was suffering a great nervous strain was evident by the continued moving of his hands and blinking of his eyes. But when the name of his wife was mentioned for the first time by Counsel Hood, a great change came over him. He pressed his hands to his eyes and sobbed his head but only for a moment. He then with a mighty effort he controlled himself.

Counsel J. C. Hood being sworn testified as follows:

I saw the bodies lying where they were said to have fallen. I saw an autopsy in the case of Mrs. Gordon, and an examination of wounds in the case of Brown.

There are two bullet wounds in two contused wounds that were shortly mentioned. There may yet be some slight scratches besides that, but those were the principal wounds.

The contused wounds were one on top of the head, and looked like it had been made with some blunt instrument, and one at the summit of the forehead, made by a blunt instrument.

MRS. GORDON'S WOUNDS.

She had two bullet wounds: one was the wound of entrance and the other the wound of exit. The wound of entrance was on the left side about two inches to the left of the left nipple, and the wound of exit was under the right arm. The ball passed in about two inches to the left of the left nipple, passing in front of the left lung. It pierced the right ventricle of the heart and passed through the right lung and out through the right chest wall.

There were powder burns, abundance of powder burns about each of the wounds of entrance on the body of each, and on the body of Mr. Gordon the entrance was burnt showing the pistol was very close.

There were no marks of any kind on the bodies; there was but one other thing I noticed on the body of Mrs. Gordon that perhaps might have something to do with circumstantial evidence—the soles of her stockings were caked with blood, showing she must have tramped around the room in the blood.

COL. SCOTT'S OBSERVATION.
Col Scott took occasion to make a seating arrangement of Gordon, during which the muscles in the face of the latter twitched convulsively. The evidence, Scott contended, proved that Gordon went to the Smith house as a victim, as though he were going to buy a hat, paid for the room and calmly and coolly sat down. "Like a man-hunter," exclaimed Col Scott, "trailing upon his victim, he steadily crept up the stairs, after having taken off his shoes, and he stands in a listening attitude; when the cigars were brought to him he coolly lit one; it was no effort to smoke; he did that just as he would in his office." Detailing further the conduct of the man Col. Scott, holding his hand impressively toward the court said:

"In all the history of the world did your Honor ever hear of any crime more deliberately planned and executed. Was there anything to denote insanity?"

SHADY GROVE.

Attorneys Recheiser and Keil were at a trial before Judge Williams last Saturday. There was a strong array of counsel, and a goodly number of witnesses testified. The warrant was against several parties, charging with "An Unlawful Assembly."

But the causes were severed, and W. G. Williams was put upon trial. After the prosecuting attorney had examined his witnesses and had withdrawn a list from the witnesses for the defense, and finding nothing upon which to hang a hope for conviction, he dismissed the prosecution as to all.

It is now of record, that Mr. W. G. Williams is not an "Unlawful Assembly."

Let a reward be offered for that rapist. The citizens should contribute towards a fund of this kind.

At Durant, I. T., an outlaw resisting arrest, killed an officer and a bystander and was himself fatally shot.

"Free silver" is a craze the National Democratic Convention was crazy when it demanded that gold and silver should be treated alike.

The Democrats of Cook county, Ill., and this includes the city of Chicago, have declared for free coinage of silver at the old ratio.

At New Orleans Dr. Samuel P. Schwing shot and killed Dr. Emile Heriat. Both were prominent men. Schwing's wife and Heriat were too intimate.

The Paducah News announces for Buckner for United States Senator, and wants the man who goes to the Legislature from that county instructed to vote for him.

Pete Turney is like Collins' ram, he has a head of his own, and despite the expressed feelings of a large per cent. of Democrats of the country, Pete is going to keep his head in the Governor's office down in Tennessee for another term.

The Tennessee Legislature has settled the gubernatorial fight by declaring Turney elected. The majority report of the committee which investigated the charges of fraud in the State election gave Turney 94,744 votes, Evans 92,440, and Sims 23,088. The vote in the Legislature to adopt the report of the committee stood 70 to 57—eight Democrats voting against the motion.

Mr. A. J. Nickell, of Grand Rivers was in town Monday getting acquainted with the people and talking about his candidacy for the Legislature. He is a genial, pleasant, companionable gentleman, and makes a good impression upon those with whom he meets. He is an outspoken silver Democrat, and makes that point known wherever he goes. He holds that candidates for the Legislature ought to commit themselves on this question.

Don't get it out of your head that free silver Democrats want nothing more nor nothing less than the putting of silver on the same basis as gold. No discrimination. That is what the platform of 1892 says. When you hear a Democrat bragging silver he is not only not in accord with the spirit of the party today, but he is crawling down from the platform of '92.

Ex-Governor Buckner, like Senator Blackburn, does not mince matters in defining his position on the currency question, but he takes a view quite opposed to that of the Senator. He is for the single standard, and that gold. The candidates for the Senate have now plainly defined themselves, and their action will make it necessary for the candidates for the Legislature to take positive ground. The man who is elected to the United States Senate has directly a hand in shaping the financial laws of the nation; the man who is elected to the Legislature has a hand in naming the United States Senator; the place where the people have a hand in the affair is in selecting the man for the Legislature. The candidates for the Senate recognize the issue by announcing their respective positions, and the candidates for the Legislature had as well make up their minds on the issue.

The people who favor gold and gold alone as a basic money arrogate to themselves the sole use of the terms "sound money," "honest money," and the like. They ought in all fairness to refer to themselves in terms that will more specifically define their position. If you are for the use of gold alone as redeemable money, say so in plain terms. If you are for both gold and silver, say so. Don't hunt up a term which describes the ideas of all and be so Pharasical as to claim the sole use of it. If the great bulk of those on both sides of the issue are honest in their opinions, the country is in a bad way, and nothing will perpetuate its good name.

When the fellows who hold the smaller offices get to mixing up in political affairs, or go to making political speeches they are pretty sure to get out of a job, if Grover hears about it, but the members of the cabinet are busy making "sound currency" speeches over the country. We are not complaining about the latter, for the currency question should by all means be discussed, and Carlisle, Smith and Morton are able men and good men, and good should grow out of their honest efforts to disseminate information, but if the policy of the administration is wrong when a small man makes a speech, why not the same rule work the big boys who go to frolics.

Another of the scarecrows which is used to frighten the friends of the silver coinage is the statement that if we accept free and unlimited coinage all the silver of other countries will be brought here and dumped on us, the gold driven out of the country and our country made a single silver standard country. Such an argument is not now used, except among those too ignorant to know what they are talking about. If all the gold and silver in the world could be utilized as money there is not enough of it to meet the needs of the world's commerce, which is annually increasing, while the gold and silver production of the world is decreasing. Where is that silver to come from? What country can spare it? And how is it to get here? There is at this time more than $1,000,000,000 in silver in circulation in Europe, and every dollar of it is at par with gold, at the rate of 15 1/2 to 1. The dollar there, to use our denomination, is worth about three cents less than our dollar, which is as 16 to 1, because of this difference in ratio. If, therefore, the owners of silver there should bring their silver here to exchange it for gold, they would lose three cents on the dollar. Then there would be the expense of getting the silver together in that country, the cost of freight and insurance to this country, the cost of freight and insurance back to that country and the cost of recoinage. Able financiers estimate that these expenses would amount to 12 or 15 per cent. What man of sense would make such a sacrifice? And why should it be made? Money only goes where it is to be used in buying other things. If it should come to this country it would be brought here to buy our products, would improve our markets and benefit our people. But why discuss the impossible? The governments of Europe control but little of their coin money. It is in the hands of the people, and if it were possible to take this money from the people it would produce a general panic, cause strikes everywhere, and in all human probability a revolution. This view is too absurd to be talked about.

The Railroad Commission, The thirty-six counties composing the first rail at commissioner's district held conventions last Saturday, and according to the latest advice we have the delegated votes is divided among the candidates as follows: Dempsey 95; Richardson 52; Moore 29; McElroy 26; Miller 24; Morrow 19. It is not known how the other parties will cast their votes. The counties instructed for Dr. Moore are Caldwell, Crittenden, Hancock and Livingston, while Trigg and Lyon are uninstructed, it is known that they are first for Crittenden's candidate, and in addition to these some other uninstructed votes are for him, giving him 37 votes—third place in the race in which are six candidates. That is not altogether what Crittenden county Democrats hoped for, but such is the fate of politics. The Convention meets in Owensboro May 15, when the candidate will be named.

Watterson's Confession. Replying to a critic Mr. Watterson in yesterday's Courier-Journal admits that while in Congress in December, 1893, he voted with John Young Brown, Proctor Knott and others for Mr. Beck's bill for the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1, and he also admits that he supported the Bland-Allison bill in 1878. In excuse for these acts he now candidly pleads ignorance. Furthermore Mr. Watterson admits that for ten years afterward he marched in the free silver column under the leadership of Senator Beck, explaining that he "was involved in another economic battle which was, in his opinion, more important, and was undoubtedly more immediate and direct—that of revenue reform—and, having taken to this an earnest and able opponent in Mr. Beck, it cost him nothing to submit himself to Mr. Beck's judgment as to silver, particularly as he knew little about it himself, had no time to learn, and felt that acquiescence would keep peace in the family." Here is, indeed, candor for you, gentle reader! Those able editorials in the Courier-Journal for years that made so many advocates of free silver were printed only to "keep peace in the family," only as compensation to Beck for his co-operative in the battle for revenue reform. Thus does Mr. Watterson invite his subscribers to view with skepticism anything they may read in his paper.

Continuing his confession Mr. Watterson says, after the death of Mr. Beck, a word appeared in these columns upon that side of the question. Of course not. Mr. Beck was dead. Mr. Watterson's compact with him was ended. He cancelled it. Mr. Watterson must needs find new political alliances. When Beck was buried he looked out for another political partner. He found him in Carlisle. Carlisle was also a good revenue reformer. Carlisle went into Cleveland's cabinet. Cleveland was a goldbug. Carlisle has to go over the goldbugs. Watterson, "to keep peace in the family," went with him. And there you have it!—Owensboro Messenger.

GORDON'S TRIAL.

Court Fourth Avenue, Louisville Arraignment of the Accused.

Wednesday morning Fulton Gordon, who killed his wife and Archie Brown, was before Judge Thompson's court for trial. We clip the following from the Louisville Post:

The people began arriving as soon as the court room was opened, and waited patiently through the intervening time. About the bar was a throng of lawyers intent on bearing the case, and just beyond, and fairly climbing over each other in an effort to get to a point of vantage was the eager expectant throng.

Judge Thompson took his seat on the bench, bailiff Vetter called for order and the Judge said: "Gentlemen are you ready in the case of Fulton Gordon?"

At this instant almost, Gordon entered the court room, leaning on the arm of Mr. Dulany. Except for a slight pallor and a nervous twitching of the face, he betrayed at this time no great emotion. At times he passed his hands over his face or cast his eyes to the ground.

That he was suffering a great nervous strain was evident by the continued moving of his hands and biting of his nails. But when the name of his wife was mentioned for the first time by Coroner Hood, a great change came over him. He pressed his hands to his eyes and bowed his head but only for a moment for with a mighty effort he managed to control himself.

Coroner J. C. Hood being sworn testified as follows: I saw the bodies lying where they were said to have fallen. I made an autopsy in the case of Mrs. Gordon and an examination of wounds in the case of Brown.

COL. SCOTT'S SCORCHES. Col Scott took occasion to make a scene in MONTGOMERY BY Gordon, dyed and charged with the face of the accused, convulsively. The jury, Uniontown, contended, proved this. Gordon went to the Smith house as calmly as though he were going to buy a hat, paid for the room and calmly and coolly sat down. "Like a man-hunter," exclaimed Col Scott, "stealing upon his victim, he stealthily crept up the stairs, and he stands in a listening attitude, when the cigars were brought to him he coolly lit one; it was no effort to smoke; he did that just as he would in his office." ONE YEAR ONE DOLLAR a candidate to represent Crittenden and Livingston counties in the next General Assembly of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce

We are authorized to announce

as a candidate to represent Crittenden and Livingston counties in the next General Assembly of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce

T. J. NICKELL

as a candidate for Representative from the legislative district of Livingston and Crittenden, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Treat them both alike—silver and gold.

Hon. Henry C. Dixon is now Gov. Brown's private secretary. A good selection.

Bradley is having a walk-over for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Senator Jones, of Nebraska, thinks an international monetary conference will be held this year.

The income tax question is before the Supreme Court of the United States for a rehearing.

Let a reward be offered for that rapist. The citizens should contribute towards a fund of this kind.

At Durant, I. T., an outlaw resisting arrest, killed an officer and a bystander and was himself fatally shot.

"I free silver" is a craze the National Democratic Convention was crazy when it demanded that gold and silver should be treated alike.

The Democrats of Cook county, Ill., and this includes the city of Chicago, have declared for free coinage of silver at the old rate.

At New Orleans Dr. Samuel P. Schwing shot and killed Dr. Emile Herat. Both were prominent men. Schwing's wife and Herat were too intimate.

The Paducah News announces for Buckner for United States Senator, and wants the man who goes to the Legislature from that county instructed to vote for him.

Pete Turney is like Collins' ram, he has a head of his own, and despite the expressed feelings of a large per cent. of Democrats of the country, Pete is going to keep his head in the Governor's office down in Tennessee for another term.

The Tennessee Legislature has set the gubernatorial fight by declaring Turney elected. The majority report of the committee which investigated the charges of fraud in the State election gave Turney 94,744 votes, Evans 92,440, and Sims 23,088. The vote in the Legislature to adopt the report of the committee stood 70 to 57—eight Democrats voting against the motion.

Mr. A. J. Nickell, of Grand River was in town Monday getting acquainted with the people and talking about his candidacy for the Legislature. He is a genial, pleasant, companionable gentleman, and makes a good impression upon those with whom he meets. He is an outspoken silver Democrat, and makes that point known wherever he goes. He holds that candidates for the Legislature ought to commit themselves on this question.

Don't get it out of your head that free silver Democrats want nothing more nor nothing less than the putting of silver on the same basis as gold. No discrimination. That is what the platform of 1892 says. When you hear a Democrat bawling silver he is not only not in accord with the spirit of the party today, but he is crawling down from the platform of '92.

Ex-Governor Buckner, like Senator Blackburn, does not mince matters in defining his position on the currency question, but he takes a view quite opposed to that of the Senator. He is for the single standard, and that gold. The candidates for the Senate have now plainly defined themselves, and their action will make it necessary for the candidates for the Legislature to take positive grounds. The man who is elected to the United States Senate has directly a hand in shaping the financial laws of the nation; the man who is elected to the Legislature has a hand in naming the United States Senator; the place where the people have a hand in the affair is in selecting the man for the Legislature. The candidates for the Senate recognize the issue by announcing their respective positions, and the candidates for the Legislature had as well make up their minds on the issue.

The people who favor gold and gold alone as a basic money arrogate to themselves the sole use of the terms "sound money," "honest money," and the like. They ought in all fairness to refer to themselves in terms that will more specifically define their position. If you are for the use of gold alone as redeemable money, say so in plain terms. If you are for both gold and silver, say so. Don't hunt up a term which describes the ideas of all and be so Pharisaical as to claim the sole use of it. If the great bulk of those on both sides of the issue are honest in their opinions, the country is in a bad way, and nothing will perpetuate its good name.

When the fellows who hold the smaller offices get to mixing up in political affairs, or go to making political speeches they are pretty sure to get out of a job, if Grover hears about it, but the members of the cabinet are busy making "sound currency" speeches over the country. We are not complaining about the latter, for the currency question should by all means be discussed, and Carlisle, Smith and Morton are able men and good men, and good should grow out of their honest efforts to disseminate information, but if the policy of the administration is wrong when a small man makes a speech, why not the same rule work the big boys who go to frolics.

Another of the scarecrows which is used to frighten the friends of the silver coinage is the statement that if we accept free and unlimited coinage all the silver of other countries will be brought here and dumped on us, the gold driven out of the country and our country made a single silver standard country. Such an argument is not new, except among those too ignorant to know what they are talking about. If all the gold and silver in the world could be utilized as money there is not enough of it to meet the needs of the world's commerce, which is annually increasing, while the gold and silver production of the world is decreasing. Where is that silver to come from? What country can spare it? And how is it to get here? There is at this time more than $1,000,000,000 in silver in circulation in Europe, and every dollar of it is at par with gold, at the rate of 15 1/2 to 1. The dollar there, to the our denomination, is worth about three cents less than our dollar, which is as 16 to 1, because of this difference in ratio. If, therefore, the owners of silver there should bring their silver here to exchange it for gold, they would lose three cents on the dollar. Then there would be the expense of getting the silver together in that country, the cost of freight and insurance to this country, the cost of exchange here, the cost of freight and insurance back to that country and the cost of recoinage. Able financiers estimate that these expenses would amount to 12 or 15 per cent. What man of sense would make such a sacrifice? And why should it be made? Money only goes where it is to be used in buying other things. If it should come to this country it would be brought here to buy our products, would improve our markets and benefit our people. But why discuss the impossible? The governments of Europe control but little of their coin money. It is in the hands of the people, and it is possible to take this money from the people it would produce a general panic, cause strikes everywhere, and in all human probability a revolution. This view is too absurd to be talked about.

The Railroad Commission.

The thirty-six counties composing the First rail and commissioner's district held conventions last Saturday, and according to the latest advice we have the delegated votes is divided among the candidates as follows: Dempsey 95; Richardson 52; Moore 29; McElroy 26; Miller 24; Morrow 19. It is not known how the other parties will cast their votes. The counties instructed for Dr. Moore are Caldwell, Crittenden, Hancock and Livingston, while Trigg and Lyon are uninstructed, it is known that they are first for Crittenden's candidate, and in addition to these some other uninstructed votes are for him, giving him 37 votes—third place in the race in which are six candidates. That is not altogether what Crittenden county Democrats hoped for, but such is the fate of politics. The Convention meets in Owensboro May 15, when the candidate will be named.

Watterson's Confession.

Replying to a critic Mr. Watterson in yesterday's Courier-Journal admits that while in Congress in December, 1890, he voted with John Young Brown, of Kentucky, and others for Mr. Blount's bill for the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1, and he also admits that he supported the Bland-Allison bill in 1878. In excuse for these acts he now candidly pleads ignorance. Watterson must admit that he was undoubtedly more immediate and direct—of revenue reform—and, having, as to this an earnest and able champion in Mr. Beck, it cost him nothing to submit himself to Mr. Beck's judgment as to silver, particularly as he knew little about it himself, had no time to learn, and felt that acquiescence would keep peace in the family.

Here is, indeed, candor for you, gentle reader! Those able editors in the Courier-Journal for years that made so many advocates of free silver were printed only to "keep peace in the family," only as compensation to Beck for his co-operation in the battle for revenue reform. Thus does Mr. Watterson invite his subscribers to view with skepticism anything they may read in his paper.

Continuing his confession Mr. Watterson says, after the death of Mr. Beck, a word appeared in these columns upon that side of the question. Of course not. Mr. Beck was dead. Mr. Watterson's compact with him was ended. He cancelled it. Mr. Watterson must needs find new political alliances. When Beck was buried he looked out for another political partner. He found him in Carlisle. Carlisle was also a good revenue reformer. Carlisle went into Cleveland's cabinet. Cleveland was a goldbug. Carlisle has to go over the goldbugs. Watterson, "to keep peace in the family," went with him. And there you have it!—Owensboro Messenger.

As the smoke clears away Gordon's excuse for killing his wife similes. The awfulness of the crime becomes more apparent the more it is thought of. The killing of the man who wronged him is by the written law so to some extent bearable, but the shooting down of that woman, when feeling from his wrath, is a new and fearful feature in such experiences, and the whole country will watch with growing interest the course of the courts in this case.

Star Spangled Banner's Author.

Many interesting things about Francis Scott Key—the author of the Star Spangled Banner—are contained in a pamphlet, which may be obtained free, from the Key Monument Association of Frederick City, Maryland, by sending one 2 cent stamp for postage. This Association is raising funds for a suitable monument to the poet, and they suggest, that in the schools and every where, upon or before flag day (June 14th), this subject be suitably recognized. Contributions, however small, are asked for. Every one who loves the flag, ought to have some small share in building this monument. The Governor of Maryland has strongly endorsed the movement. The names of all contributors will be preserved in the crypt of the monument, and published (without amount) in the history of the monument when completed.

GORDON'S TRIAL.

Court and Jury Arraignment of the Accused.

Wednesday morning Fulton Gordon, who killed his wife and Archie Brown, was before Judge Thompson's court for trial. We clip the following from the Louisville Post:

The people began arriving as soon as the court room was opened, and waited patiently through the intervening time. About the bar was a throng of lawyers intent on hearing the case, and just beyond, and fairly climbing over each other in an effort to get to a point of vantage was the eager expectant throng.

Judge Thompson took his seat on the bench, bailiff Vetter called for order and the Judge said: "Gentlemen are you ready in the case of Fulton Gordon?"

At this instant almost, Gordon entered the court room, leaning on the arm of Mr. Dulaney. Except for a slight pallor and a nervous twitching of the face, he betrayed at this time no great emotion. At times he passed his hands over his face or cast his eyes to the ground.

That he was suffering a great nervous strain was evident by the continued moving of his hands and twitching of his face. But when the name of his wife was mentioned for the first time by Coroner Hood, a great change came over him. He pressed his hands to his eyes and bowed his head, but only for a moment for with a mighty effort he managed to control himself.

Coroner J. C. Hood being sworn testified as follows: I saw the bodies lying where they were said to have fallen. I made an autopsy in the case of Mrs. Gordon and an examination of wounds in the case of Brown.

There are ten bullet wounds and two contused wounds that we worth mentioning. There may yet be some slight scratches besides that, but those were the principal wounds. The contused wounds were one on top of the head, and looked like it had been made with some blunt instrument, and one at the summit of the forehead, made by a blunt instrument.

The bullet wounds were two in the left arm, through the fleshy part of the biceps muscle, one on the left side, about four inches diagonally above and to the left of the left nipple, one bullet hole about two inches above the left nipple, and one bullet wound about four inches diagonally below and to the left of the left nipple, one bullet wound in the right side about one inch below and two inches to the right of the right nipple, and one in the right arm, on the outer side of the arm, about three inches below the acromion process, of the shoulder, one in the thigh near the upper and inner extremity of the right thigh above the region of the femoral ring. I believe I have named all the wounds.

She had two bullet wounds: one was the wound of entrance and the other the wound of exit. The wound of entrance was on the left side about two inches to the left of the left nipple, and the wound of exit was under the right arm. The ball passed in about two inches to the left of the left nipple, passing in front of the right ventricle of the heart and passed through the right lung and out through the right chest wall.

There were powder burns, abundance of powder burns about each of the wounds of entrance on the body of each, and on the body of Mrs. Gordon the chemise was burnt showing the pistol was very close. There were no marks of any kind on the bodies; there was but one other thing I noticed on the body of Mrs. Gordon that perhaps might have something to do with circumstantial evidence—the soles of her stockings were marked with blood, showing she must have tramped around the room in the blood.

COL. SCOTT'S SPOONFEED.

Col Scott took occasion to make a speech in the town branch. Gordon, who killed his wife and Archie Brown, was before Judge Thompson's court for trial. We clip the following from the Louisville Post: The people began arriving as soon as the court room was opened, and waited patiently through the intervening time. About the bar was a throng of lawyers intent on hearing the case, and just beyond, and fairly climbing over each other in an effort to get to a point of vantage was the eager expectant throng.

"In all the history of the world did Your Honor ever hear of any crime more deliberately planned and executed. Was there anything to denote insanity?"

SHADY GROVE.

Attorneys Rochester and Keil were at a trial before Judge Williams last Saturday. There was a strong array of counsel, and a goodly number of witnesses testified. The warrant was against several parties, charging with "An Unlawful Assembly." But the cause were severed, and W. G. Williamson was put upon trial. After the prosecuting attorney had exhausted his witnesses and had vainly sought relief from the witnesses for the defense, and finding nothing upon which to hang a hope for conviction, he dismissed the prosecution as to all. So it is now of record that Mr. Williamson is not an "Unlawful Assembly."

Some of our farmers have their ground ready for planting corn, but are putting it off on account of the adverse wind. Morton Birch, who has been very sick with pneumonia, is convalescent. Dr. Todd is for free silver, but the writer can't accommodate him. If the Doctor is in accord with the Press and the Press is in touch with the people, how is this cat going to jump anyhow.

WALNUT HILL.

Perhaps some one would like to know where Walnut Hill is located. It is two and a half miles from Belmont water mill.

And furthermore, it is said to be the third highest peak in the county, and it is surrounded by many noble headed and industrious farmers.

The farmers have suspended corn planting on account of the immense crop of cut worms.

Not Found Yet.

John M. Howerton the man who is accused of one of the most atrocious crimes known to the law is still at large. The officers have been faithful and earnest in their efforts to arrest him but so far have failed and it is now thought that he has left the county. The good people of Crittenden county, those who love their homes and esteem above all things else, the honor and good name of their wives and daughters can not afford to let such a crime go by without an earnest, continuous, persistent effort to bring the perpetrator of the deed to a trial. There is not one single mitigating circumstance surrounding this crime; as the details come out the act of Howerton grows more revolting.

Where Is He At?

The good natured, sensible, warm hearted magistrate of the Dycusburg precinct dropped into the Press office Monday and said: "I come in to find out where I am at, officially. Now, I was elected magistrate, and with a copy of the General Statutes and some handsome record books I opened shop with high hopes and higher ambition. The first thing I did was to proceed to try a man charged with homicide; before getting through with the case I came to town and found out that I had no jurisdiction. A little later on some parties were brought before me charged with a breach of the peace. I brightened up at this appearance of business, and proceeded to furnish up for the trial. When the day came the boys swore me off of the bench, and my anticipations vaporized again. I then proceeded to shape me up a nice marriage ceremony, and let me tell you I have a dandy, but nobody comes to get married. The only thing so far I find that I can do, is to issue warrants, and when the boys are taken before somebody else for trial they are acquitted. Now I am discouraged about my official career, and really don't know where I am at," and as John left the office he was repeating these lines:

"Tis a sight to engage me if any thing can,
If anything can, to ponder over the
perishing pleasures of man,
As short lived as we all are enjoy-
ments I see,
Have a still shorter date and die
sooner than me."

The School.

According to the census this year there are 408 school children in the Marion graded school district—203 males and 205 females—an increase of 43 over last year.

The result of the election of Trustees Saturday was the selection of the old trustees—J. M. Freeman and R. C. Walker.

Saturday was the last day for paying the school tax, before the addition of the penalty. All who failed to settle on or before that day will find 5 per cent. added. The law for making this addition can be easily found in the act establishing graded schools. Neither the collector nor the trustees have any right to remit the 5 per cent. penalty. About three fourths of the taxpayers settled up before Saturday.

The school board held a meeting Tuesday night to discuss matters pertaining to the school this year, as well as next. So soon as the present term closes, the work of cleaning off and grading the yard, building a handsome fence around the property, and constructing a sidewalk will be done.

Princeton has another smallpox scare. According to reliable reports a young lady who was a member of the school became ill, and no one thought of smallpox at the time; in a short time the nature of the disease excited suspicion. COUNTY CONVENTION.

Dr. Moore Strongly Endorsed by His Home People.

The Democrats of Crittenden county in Convention assembled, on the 4th day of May, 1895, pursuant to the call of the Democratic District Committee of this Railroad Commissioner's District, for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend the general Convention to be held at Owensboro, Ky., on May 15, for the purpose of nominating a candidate of the Democratic party for the office of Railroad Commissioner of this District, and at said Convention the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

THE RUNAWAYS.

Mrs. Brown and Lease Lawson Brought Back to Their Deserted Families.

FOUND AT WORK IN ILLINOIS

Yesterday morning a two horse wagon came into town and discharged its freight of a woman and two men.

The woman was the wife of Bob Brown, of the Blackford neighborhood, one of the men was Lease Lawson, a native of the same neighborhood, and the other was Bud Daniels, and the latter had charge of the other two.

Some two weeks ago while Bob Brown was sleeping sweetly away the hours of the night, in the bosom of his family, his wife disappeared from home, and no search next day could reveal her whereabouts. Every hook and corner of the locality was searched and it is said that Tradewater was dragged, her friends thinking horribly that its peaceful waters were hiding her body. Nothing, however, revealed the dead nor the live body of the missing woman. It was finally discovered that Lease Lawson, a neighbor, had also mysteriously disappeared, leaving a wife and numerous progeny to mourn his untimely departure. It was finally concluded that the two missing people had wandered away together, forgetting their marital vows and family ties. Search was instituted in surrounding counties, and Tuesday in the neighborhood of Rosi Clark, Ill., the pair was found by Daniels. Lawson was plowing and Mrs. Brown was industriously at work over the wash tub. They readily agreed to come home and Daniels secured a wagon to bring them as far as Marion; and here they were transferred and left adrift for the scenes of their former domestic relations. A warrant had been issued by Squire Cully at the instance of the deserted husband, charging Lawson with a breach of the peace. He was turned over to the justice and Mrs. Brown will probably return to her spouse, and thus closes the first chapter of what was at first thought to be a tragedy, but turning out as it does the public is at liberty to denominate it a tragedy, or comedy, or farce.

The Mills of Justice.

A few days ago Al Travis, Tom Travis, W. G. Williamson and Robt. Hodge's were put under a $100 bond, each, to answer the charge of throwing rocks at a neighbor's house. The cases were tried before Squire Williams Saturday and the boys were acquitted.

Shelly Baker, Monroe Ashley and Leck Hughes were on trial Saturday before Judge Moore charged with disturbing the congregation at Lone Star. They were acquitted.

O. D. Burgess, was fortunate in taling into the hands of the officers of Webster county a few days ago. He was under bond to answer, in that county the charge of shooting at the marshal of Blackford. His bonds-men gave him up, and but a little while after the officer had started to Dixon with him, a crowd of probably fifty men went to his house on an unpleasant, but determined mission. It had been reported that Burgess knew something of the whereabouts of John M. Howerton, the man who is charged with rape, and the business of the visitors, according to reliable reports, was to make Burgess tell what he knew. It was fortunate for him that he was wanted at Dixon the people of that section are in no humor to be trifled with.

Lin Armstrong was placed under a $50 bond last week to answer at circuit court a charge of a breach of the peace.

Bud Matthews, two of the Brashe boys and two of the Yandell boys were before Judge Moore Monday charged with reckless riding on the public highway. They were acquitted.

Not Found Yet.

John M. Howerton the man who is accused of one of the most atrocious crimes known to the law is still at large. The officers have been faithful and earnest in their efforts to arrest him but so far have failed and it is now thought that he has left the county. The good people of Crittenden county, those who love their homes and esteem above all things else, the honor and good name of their wives and daughters can not afford to let such a crime go by without an earnest, continuous, persistent effort to bring the perpetrator of the deed to a trial. There is not one single mitigating circumstance surrounding this crime; as the details come out the act of Howerton grows more revolting.

Where Is He At?

The good natured, sensible, warm hearted magistrate of the Dycusburg precinct dropped into the Press office Monday and said: "I am at, officially, now. I was elected magistrate, and with a copy of the General Statutes and some handsome record books I opened shop with high hopes and higher ambition. The first thing I did was to proceed to try a man charged with homicide; before getting through with the case I came to town and found out that I had no jurisdiction. A little later on some parties were brought before me charged with a breach of the peace. I brightened up at this appearance of business, and proceeded to burnish up for the trial. When the day came the boys swore me off of the bench, and my anticipations vaporized again. I then proceeded to shape me up a nice marriage ceremony, and let me tell you I have a dandy, but nobody comes to get married. The only thing so far I find that I can do, is to issue warrants, and when the boys are taken before somebody else for trial they are acquitted. Now I am discouraged about my official career, and really don't know where I am at," as John left the office he was repeating these lines:

"Tis a sight to engage me if anything can,
If anything can, to ponder over the
perishing pleasures of man,
As short lived as we are enjoyments I see, we
Have a still shorter date and die
sooner than me."

The School.

According to the census this year there are 408 school children in the Marion graded school district—203 males and 205 females—an increase of 43 over last year.

The result of the election of Trustees Saturday was the selection of the old trustees—J. M. Freeman and R. C. Walker.

Saturday was the last day for paying the school tax, before the addition of the penalty. All who failed to settle on or before that day will find 5 per cent. added. The law for making this addition can be easily found in the act establishing graded schools. Neither the collector nor the trustees have any right to remit the 5 per cent. penalty. About three-fourths of the taxpayers settled up before Saturday.

The school board held a meeting Tuesday night to discuss matters pertaining to the school this year, as well as next. So soon as the present term closes, the work of cleaning off and grading the yard, building a handsome fence around the property, and constructing a sidewalk will be done.

Princeton has another smallpox scare. According to reliable reports a young lady who was a member of the school became ill, and no one thought of smallpox at the time; in a short time the nature of the disease excited suspicion. After a careful diagnosis the physicians pronounced it a genuine case of smallpox and containment prevailed. School closed for the present.

Henry Bros. have just completed a handsome monument at the new cemetery for the Blues. It is a gray granite obelisk, 18 feet high, and is composed of four pieces; the base is five feet square, and the rustic shaft tapers to a point at the top. It is a tasty piece of work, and shows that the marble dealers of Marion are capable of executing any grade of work as neatly as any firm in the county.

All persons knowing themselves indebted to me by note or account will please come forward and settle at once, as I will be compelled to put all such debts in the hands of an officer for collection by June 1st. I feel deeply grateful to the people of Crittenden county for their kindness and patronage while here and do not hope to meet a better class nor one for whom I have a more kindly feeling.

Very truly yours,

Not Found Yet.

John M. Howerton the man who is accused of one of the most atrocious crimes known to the law is still at large. The officers have been faithful and earnest in their efforts to arrest him but so far have failed and it is now thought that he has left the county. The good people of Crittenden county, those who love their homes and esteem above all things else, the honor and good name of their wives and daughters can not afford to let such a crime go by without an earnest, continuous, persistent effort to bring the perpetrator of the deed to a trial. There is not one single mitigating circumstance surrounding this crime; as the details come out the act of Howerton grows more revolting.

Where Is He At?

The good natured, sensible, warm hearted magistrate of the Dycusburg precinct dropped into the Press office Monday and said: "I come in to find out where I am at, officially. Now, I was elected magistrate, and with a copy of the General Statutes and some handsome record books I opened shop with high hopes and higher ambition. The first thing I did was to proceed to try a man charged with homicide; before getting through with the case I came to town and found out that I had no jurisdiction. A little later on some parties were brought before me charged with a breach of the peace. I brightened up at this appearance of business, and proceeded to burnish up for the trial. When the day came the boys swore me off the bench, and my anticipations vaporized again. I then proceeded to shape me up a nice marriage ceremony, and let me tell you I have a dandy, but nobody comes to get married. The only thing so far I find that I can do, is to issue warrants, and when the boys are taken before somebody else for trial they are acquitted. Now I am discouraged about my official career, and really don't know where I am at," and as John left the office he was repeating these lines:

"Tis a sight to engage me if anything can,
If anything can, to ponder over the
perishing pleasures of man,
As short lived as we all are enjoy-
ments I see, #
Have a still shorter date and die
sooner than me."

The School.

According to the census this year there are 408 school children in the Marion graded school district—203 males and 205 females—an increase of 43 over last year.

The result of the election of Trustees Saturday was the selection of the old trustees—J. M. Freeman and R. C. Walker.

Saturday was the last day for paying the school tax, before the addition of the penalty. All who failed to settle on or before that day will find 5 per cent. added. The law for making this addition can be easily found in the act establishing graded schools. Neither the colt nor the trustee have any right to remit the 5 per cent. penalty. About three fourths of the taxpayers settled up before Saturday.

The school board held a meeting Tuesday night to discuss matters pertaining to the school this year, as well as next. So soon as the present term closes, the work of cleaning off and grading the yard, building a handsome fence around the property, and constructing a sidewalk will be done.

Princeton has another smallpox scare. According to reliable reports a young lady who was a member of the school became ill, and no one thought of smallpox at the time; in a short time the nature of the disease excited suspicion. After a careful diagnosis the physicians pronounced it a genuine case of smallpox and conformation prevailed. School closed for the present.

Henry Bros. have just completed a handsome monument at the new cemetery for the Blues. It is a gray granite obelisk, 18 feet high, and is composed of four pieces; the base is five feet square, and the rustic shaft tapers to a point at the top. It is a tasty piece of work, and shows that the marble dealers of Marion are capable of executing any grade of work as neatly as any firm in the country.

I feel deeply grateful to the people of Crittenden county for their kindness and patronage while here and do not hope to meet a better class nor one for whom I have more kindly feeling.

THE RUNAWAYS.

Mrs. Brown and Lease Lawson Brought Back to Their Deserted Families.

FOUND AT WORK IN ILLINOIS

Yesterday morning a two horse wagon came into town and discharged its freight of a woman and two men. The woman was the wife of Bob Brown, of the Blackford neighborhood, one of the men was Lease Lawson, a native of the same neighborhood, and the other was Stud Aniel, and the latter had charge of the other two.

Some two weeks ago while Bob Brown was sleeping sweetly away the hours of the night, in the bosom of his family, his wife disappeared from home, and no search next day could reveal her whereabouts. Every hour and corner of the locality was searched and it is said, that Tradewater was dragged, her friends thinking horribly that its peaceful waters were hiding her body. Nothing, however, revealed the dead nor the live body of the missing woman. It was finally discovered that Lease Lawson, a neighbor, had also mysteriously disappeared, leaving a wife and numerous progeny to mourn his untimely departure. It was finally concluded that the two missing people had wandered away together, forgetting their marital vows and family ties. Search was instituted in surrounding counties, and Tuesday in the neighborhood of Rosi Clare, Ill., the pair was found by Daniels. Lawson was plowing and Mrs. Brown was industriously at work over the wash tub. They readily agreed to come home and Daniels secured a wagon to bring them as far as Marion; and here they were transferred and left afoot for the scenes of their former domestic relations. A warrant had been issued by Squire Cully at the instance of the deserted husband, charging Lawson with breach of the peace. He was turned over to the justice and Mrs. Brown will probably return to her spouse, and thus closes the first chapter of what was at first thought to be a tragedy, but turning out as it does the public is at liberty to denounce it a tragedy, or comedy, or farce.

The Mills of Justice.

A few days ago Al Travis, Tom Travis, W. G. Williamson and Robt. Hodge were put under a $100 bond, each, to answer the charge of throwing rocks at a neighbor's house. The cases were tried before Squire Williams Saturday and the boys were acquitted.

Shelly Baker, Monroe Ashley and Lock Hughes were on trial Saturday before Judge Moore charged with disturbing the congregation at Lene Star. They were acquitted.

O. D. Burgess, was fortunate in falling into the hands of the officers of Webster county a few days ago. He was under bond to answer, in that county the charge of shooting at the marshal of Blackford. His bondsmen gave him up, but a little while after the officer had started to Dixon with him, a crowd of probably fifty men went to his house on an unpleasant, but determined mission. It had been reported that Burgess knew something of the whereabouts of John M. Howerton, the man who is charged with rape, and the business of the visitors, according to reliable reports, was to make Burgess tell what he knew. It was fortunate for him that he was wanted at Dixon. The people of that section are in no humor to be trifled with.

Lin Armstrong was placed under a $50 bond last week to answer at circuit court a charge of a breach of the peace.

Bud Matthews, two of the Brashe boys and two of the Yandell boys were before Judge Moore Monday charged with reckless riding on the public highway. They were acquitted.

Fatal Game of Craps.

Kuttawa, Ky., May 6.—Albert Coleman and Sam Edmonds, colored, while engaged in a game of craps just before noon yesterday, a dispute arose about the money. Edmonds grabbed a quarter of Coleman's money and started to make away with it. Coleman drew his revolver, shooting Edmonds twice in the back, which will prove fatal. Coleman ran home and was preparing to leave the country but Edmonds' friends surrounded the house and guarded Coleman until the city marshal arrived and placed him in jail.

CRISP

Adheres to the Doctrine of Free Coinage.

Washington, May 6.—Ex-Speaker Crisp arrived here today on his way South from New York. He reiterates his firm adhesion to the doctrine of free coinage.

"Will the next National Democratic Convention declare for unlimited coinage?" he was asked.

"It would be hard to tell what the convention will do," he replied. But it is manifestly impossible to hold this country to a single gold standard.

"How about the Memphis convention?"

"That," he replied, "will represent the sentiment of the Board of Trade and the banks, and not the sentiment of the South."

"Who did you have in mind when you suggested in a recent interview that the party should nominate a good Western man?"

"That man," he replied laughing, "is still in the woods."

Violence was feared.

Princeton, Ky., May 3.—Milton Henderson was brought here from Muhlenburg county and lodged in jail for safe keeping this afternoon. He is charged with criminal assault on his 15 year old daughter. The act was committed about three years ago, but from some cause it was kept secret until the sitting of the grand jury just adjourned, when a bill was found.

As soon as this was learned the citizens of the community became very much enraged, and violence was anticipated, so the Circuit Judge ordered him here.

HOPKINSVILLE!

Some Facts About The

Business Center and Tobacco Market of the Entire Dark Tobacco District.

The county of Christian has sent forth into the world many men of national reputation, who have written their names indelibly in the pages of history.

In a part of Christian afterwards placed in Todd county, and within ten miles of Hopkinsville, was born Jefferson Davis, the leader of the Southern Confederacy. Upon his birthplace a memorial church has been erected, which was dedicated a year ago, Mr. Davis himself being present.

Near the present town of Herndon, just eleven miles south of Hopkinsville on the Palmyra road, vice President Adlai E. Stevenson was born. In the same neighborhood was born and reared Jas. A. McKendie, the present Minister to Peru, who is known in forty-four States as "Quinine Jim," the author of the bill putting cinchona on the free list.

Just outside the city limits of Hopkinsville is the birthplace of Gen. Jno. M. Palmer, United States Senator from Illinois, who has enjoyed a national reputation for years as a soldier and a statesman.

In this section Roger Q. Mills, of Texas, spent his boyhood days, and still has a brother living in Hopkinsville.

Jno. C. Latham, the New York banker, Addison Carmack and J. H. Moore, all prominent in the business circles of the great metropolis; W. S. Matthews, Geo. M. Davis, John Stites, and Arthur Wallace, who have made their marks in the business or professional circles of Louisville, and many others too numerous to mention, who have won distinction in life, first saw the light of day in Christian county.

In the farming business Capt. McNeil, in his day the richest farmer in Kentucky, W. T. Radford, the wheat king of Kentucky, and J. S. Summers, the largest planter of tobacco in the West, are remembered for the good records as men of progress they left behind them. Though Hopkinsville has sent forth many men of fame and distinction, she still has left as fine a class of business men and progressive citizens as are to be found in any city. They may not become Presidents, Senators or great bankers and lawyers, but they are doing their part toward making Hopkinsville the "Pearl of the Pennyroyal District."

M. C. Forbes. Prominent among the leading citizens of Hopkinsville stands M. C. Forbes, the head of the largest business house in the city. He is in all things public spirited, progressive and enterprising, and Hopkinsville is proud of him and delights to honor him. He has for several years been a member of the City Council, and is a moving spirit in all works of progress and improvement. He is a native of Christian county, and has risen from a poor boy to his present standing in the community by dint of his own energy and exertions. As contractor, builder, hardware dealer and wagon manufacturer, the firm of Forbes & Bro. has no rival in this part of Kentucky in the volume of business done.

W. E. Ragsdale. W. E. Ragsdale, the senior member and salesman of the firm of Ragsdale, Cooper & Co., is the head of the largest warehouse in the city, and one of Hopkinsville's most prominent business men. He was born in Trigg county, near Lafayette, Ky., not far from the Christian county line. He developed a natural aptitude for the tobacco business at an early age, and when 16 years old was found making purchases of loose tobacco and shipping to market. Being successful in his trading and winning quite a reputation as a fine judge of tobacco, he came to Hopkinsville and started in the warehouse business at the very starting of the local tobacco market. With his business foresight and sagacity he realized that Hopkinsville, by reason of its location and favorable surroundings, was destined to be the "Natural Market for all Tobacco grown in the Dark Tobacco District." He was then called the "Boy Warehouseman," but by his energy and business qualities he soon forged to the front rank. Later he retired from the warehouse business and opened a tobacco broker's office. It was in this branch of the business that he equipped himself fully as a tobacco man, as he bought tobacco for the largest concerns in the world, and acquired a knowledge of the trade unequalled by but few men. His judgment as to qualities and values is often consulted and regarded as authority by tobacco men. This is the reason he has been so successful in the warehouse business, and has at all times been considered the leading warehouseman. He devotes his entire time to his business and is ever on the alert in guarding the interests of his patrons.

W. T. Bonte. No list of Hopkinsville's prominent and representative business men would be complete without the name of W. T. Bonte, the veteran carriage manufacturer, who has been for twenty years building up a reputation second to that of no manufacturer in the State in his line. All over Western Kentucky he has sent out work that has been a constant advertisement of the superiority of his vehicles. He deserves to rank among the substantial, reliable and wide-awake business men of the most flourishing city in Kentucky.

C. M. Latham. In every city there is some one man who stands head and shoulders above his fellows in his branch of trade. In Hopkinsville the first and foremost dry goods man is Chas. M. Latham, whose store is headquarters for all that is latest, best and most desirable in dry goods. A brother of Mr. Jno. C. Latham, of New York, and a son of the distinguished Hopkinsville banker of the same name, he is a native Hopkinsville boy, who has been educated from boyhood in the business in which he has attained such success. For 25 years he has been a merchant, and a successful one. He is known far and wide for his thorough reliability, his taste in selecting, his care in buying and his honesty in selling. Though still counted among the young men, his is the oldest house in town in his line. Whatever is to be found in dry goods in Hopkinsville is to be found in his handsome store on Main street.

JOHN R. KITCHEN. In Hopkinsville's various branches of trade there is to be found no greater "hustler" for business than John Kitchen, the enterprising young furniture dealer, who runs a big double store on Main street. He belongs to the enterprising young men who have taken in hand the work of making a big city out of the Hopkinsville of five years ago. He has put new life and vigor in his line of business, and has been wonderfully successful in reaching out for trade, and firmly establishing himself in the favor of the public. Mr. Kitchen is a gentleman in every sense, honest in his dealing, reliable in his representations and reasonable in his margins on sales. These characteristics are bound to win, and in a city that is growing as rapidly as Hopkinsville, his success is assured in advance.

J. H. ANDERSON. J. H. Anderson, the head of the firm of J. H. Anderson & Co., is one of the most successful of Hopkinsville's younger business men. In a career of about seven years he has built up a business that is surpassed by few houses in this section of the State, and established a reputation that will undoubtedly bring him continued and increased prosperity. He is a native of Hartford, Ky., and his father before him was a successful merchant. He has been brought up to the business, and understands it in all its details. He is a close buyer, a liberal advertiser, a square dealer and a seller who lets no stock stagnate on his shelves. His house is one of the leading mercantile establishments of Hopkinsville, and a visit to the city is incomplete without a look through his big double store rooms.

TAMM G. YATES. Located on the corner of Main and 8th streets is one of the handsomest jewelry stores in this portion of Kentucky. The presiding genius is T. G. Yates, a young man who has caught the prevailing spirit of progress and is determined to keep fully abreast of Hopkinsville's business men. Here can be found whatever is desirable in the jewelry line, and his constantly increasing trade bears testimony to his popularity with the public. Dr. Yates—for he quit the practice of medicine to enter into his present business—deserves the high rank he has attained among our leading merchants.
