A CITY WORK-HOUSE.

The City Council Agrees to a Plan for Working Penitentiaries.

The legal and natural treatment held to be the best for the health and safety of prisoners. To provide for such treatment, a City work-house is to be built. The new house is to be located on the west side of the city, near the railroad. It will be a three-story building, containing 200 cells, and will cost $30,000. The building will be of brick, and will be surrounded by a high wall. The prisoners will be divided into three classes: those who are able to work, those who are not able to work, and those who are dangerous. The able-bodied prisoners will be employed in various trades, such as carpentry, masonry, and tailoring. The inmates of the work-house will be fed on a diet of vegetables, fruits, and bread. The prison will be under the direction of a committee of five, composed of the mayor, the sheriff, the alderman, the treasurer, and a physician. The committee will be responsible for the good order and health of the inmates.
