Uncle Sam's Seals.

A great deal of interest is being taken in the conference of seal commissioners now being held in the city of Washington.

A very careful study has been made of the life and habits of the seal, on account of the dispute between this country and England, as to the right to take seals in the open sea. It has been found that soon after the ice disappears from Behring Sea in spring the seals come up out of the water, swimming from a southerly direction.

The old male seals appear several weeks before the others. As soon as the first come ashore they select their favorite spots and then begin a continuous series of battles with the younger ones, to maintain possession of the ground chosen. This fighting goes on night and day until the females begin to arrive. Each of the males will then collect a mass of the females as he can defend. The presence of young males, that is, those less than about 4 or 5 years of age, is not tolerated at all. They live by themselves on one side of the main land. The young are born on the land and when a few weeks old are driven into the shallow water by the mothers and compelled to learn to swim.

If born at sea they would immediately drown.

Continual vigilance is the price of domestic sovereignty, and the father of the family never leaves his post of duty. For four months he guards his flock faithfully, without eating or drinking. When he comes from the sea in the spring he is enormously fat but in the autumn, at the close of his long fast, he is reduced to a mere shadow of his former self.

On the other hand the females go to the sea daily in search of food, sometimes traveling as far as a hundred miles from home. When they return they utter a peculiar cry to attract the attention of their young and this is instantly recognized and answered. The mother can distinguish the voice of its own offspring, even if in the midst of ten thousand other young seals. It goes to it at once and it will never pay any attention to or permit the approach of any but their own young.

DRIVING SEALS.

The young male seals, which live in colonies by themselves, are the only ones permitted by law to be killed. They are driven like flocks of sheep back to the killing grounds. The taking of moderate numbers of these will not tend to destroy the colony as when fully grown each male seal will collect a family of perhaps forty females.

Formerly the Alaska Commercial Co. took 100,000 skins each year, and for this privilege it paid the government $2.50 per skin. When this contract expired the government refused to renew it on the same terms. A new company, called the North American Commercial and Trading Company, was given the privilege of taking the seals, paying the government $100,000 a year, in addition to a tax of $9.62 on every skin taken.

The colony has been so reduced in size by pelagic sealing that only some 20,000 seals are killed on the island this season. When the seals leave the islands in the fall they pass through the Aleutian Islands and go on to the broad Pacific, as far down as opposite San Francisco. They then turn eastwardly toward the coast and then turn up the coast to the breeding grounds for eight or nine months. When on their journey they never go ashore anywhere. [They are never seen to leave the water excepting on St. John and St. George, of the Pribiloff group.]

It is upon this fact that our government bases its right to prevent pelagic sealing. The United States claims to own the seals, wherever found, because they breed on our soil and always return to our soil at the end of their sea journey.

The Canadian seal hunters put out to sea in boats, head off the returning herd, and shoot them indiscriminately male and female, old and young. If they do not instantly kill the seal hit it sinks below the surface and is lost. This practice has in a few years so reduced the herd that it is now very much decreased, and the seal promises to follow the buffalo to oblivion. It has been proposed, if pelagic sealing can not be otherwise stopped, to kill all the seals on the land, and so end the controversy by exterminating the race.

THE TOBACCO TRADE.

An Owensboro dealer explains the situation to the Messenger as follows: "For over thirty years, according to my own personal knowledge, Italy has advertised for bids, annually, to furnish the government with tobacco. Nor a long time Reusen, of New York, has always received this contract, his bid being best. This year, however, Italy did not advertise for bids, but made a private contract with E. C. Morrow & Bro., the big Tennessee tobaccoists of Springfield and Clarksville for ten thousand and hogheads, the amount wanted by the Italian government for 1898. The Morrises already had a large quantity of the kind of tobacco required by Italy on hand, and they are making a hard pull to get what they are yet lacking. Of course Reusen did not like to lose out on the Italian contract, and he is making a big strike to buy up all the classes that are used to supply the Italian order. Of course if he succeeds he would have the Morrises where the hair is right, but it is a play for big game, and doubtful whether it will be a success. The figures are at the present against Reusen, as the Morrises now have twelve million pounds of Italian tobacco on hand, while Reusen has only nine million. The question naturally arises: 'If the Morrises get enough tobacco to fill their contract, what is Reusen going to do with his immense purchase of Italian tobacco?' Several years ago Sawyer, Wallace & Co., of New York undertook to corner all the Italian tobacco against the contractor for that country. The contractor got enough tobacco to supply his demand and you know the fate of Sawyer, Wallace & Co. Of course there is no danger of this play on Reusen's part resulting in financial disaster to him, as he is immensely rich, and has a large capital at his command, but he takes the chance of having a lot of Italian tobacco left in his possession.

It is claimed that this fight has advanced the price of tobacco, and as soon as it terminates a decline of the market will follow. I do not know whether this is true or not, but it is quite reasonable to suppose that it has aided in advancing the prices on Italian tobacco, and it is just as reasonable to suppose that when the Morrises get enough tobacco to fill their contract that prices will weaken.

The Morrises are placing their buyers throughout the del. They have rented the Newberry factory at Henderson, have already bought a lot of tobacco and will buy more.

SILENCED BY DEATH.

Singing Evangelist E. T. Rhineheart
 Passes Away in Chicago.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 2.—Dr. E. T. Rhineheart, the noted singing evangelist, who has labored so extensively throughout Kentucky and the South and West, died of typhoid fever at the Homeopathic Hospital in Chicago yesterday. The remains were shipped to this city and are now at the residence of Z. A. Massie, Twenty-sixth and Magazine. Dr. Rhineheart had gone to Chicago to conduct the singing during the revival at the Metropolitan Methodist church, when he was stricken. He traveled with the holiness evangelist, Dr. B. Carradine.

THE HOLY LAUGH.

The most remarkable religious demonstration ever witnessed in a civilized community during the nineteenth century is now being enacted daily near Brunswick.

With the mysterious power of a hypnotist the strange preacher of holiness is his tent at the six mile cross in continues to work communications into perfect frenzies, of religious excitement.

For days wonderful stories of the extraordinary scenes have reached Brunswick, but the half has not yet been told. To this strange religion now being expounded is charged the death of young William Hickman, who died in a religious trance several days ago.

Sunday a party of Brunswick people visited the holiness grove; around the tent in which it is located were bunched over one hundred vehicles. The all day Sunday service was at its height.

A WOMAN'S WEIRD LAUGH.

Suddenly from near the altar a woman gave vent to a weird, unearthly laugh. In quick response came cries from every side. Then like a pent up torrent the religious frenzy burst forth in all its tempestuous earnestness. Men laughed and laughed, women cried and laughed, children tore their handkerchiefs to shreds, men beat men on the back and fell about weeping. "Glory to God" is the highest tones possible.

A woman, one of the preacher's traveling companions, stepped to the organ and began playing.

A pause ensued, momentarily, but almost immediately again the "holy laugh" returned and was as up and repeated in one wild, mad refrain. On the ground lay prostrate many people, digging their hands in the earth and singing Glory to God until exhausted. Then they lay as dead, their bodies stiff and cold. This they called the religious rigor, and it is alleged that in a similar one young Hickman died after forty eight hours unconsciousness.

TAKES A COLLECTION.

At this juncture the preacher left his Bible, and grasping his hat began taking up a collection. Contributions of all descriptions poured in. Jewelry was discarded and emptied in his hat, pocketbooks were turned inside out, coats and vests were torn off and thrown on the altar, while their former owners, unmindful of the shivering blasts of a northeast wind stood with awailing bodies laughing and shouting, Glory to God.

This was their refrain, and when the Brunswick party left, the few enthusiasts whose voices still held out were laughing and shouting with all the fervor and strength of their beings.—Atlanta Constitution.

THE DEAD MULTITUDE.

Havana, Dec. 1.—The first figures of Cuba's starvation were timely moderate. They showed the death of only two hundred thousand persons. But every painful fact unearthed but tends to prove them nearly double that number.

When the grim returns are all in, it is now almost certain that Cuban massacre of innocents will reach four hundred thousand. And this awful number does not include those killed in battle or the thousand and thousands of women and children who have died of exposure, disease, and also of massacre in the managuas and swamps.

A week's trip through the province of Havana, Matanzas and Santa Clara, has tended to make moderate this tremendously extreme figure. The figures of Spanish official reports show but a part of the mortality. They only give the number buried in consecrated ground—and they do not give that fully. At yet these official ultra Spanish reports of burial permits issued admit that in the province of Santa Clara there have died and been buried since Weyler's fiat, 71,847 persons. The number of people for whose death Weyler is directly responsible, is 155,132 in Santa Clara province. Santa Clara has so far been by far the least destitute of the provinces. It has many cattle and not a very thick population. Between its 53 per cent dead to Pinedel Rio's admitted 80 per cent., are the provinces of Matanzas and Havana, with a 60 and 70 per cent mortality respectively.

These percentages are established now by the actual figures in some thirty cities and towns. Applied to the denser population of their respective provinces, the total deaths since Weyler's "bando" will foot up a very million.

THE FIERCE CONDOR.

Exciting Adventure at the Top of a Big Peak in Peru.

The three of us had been prospecting for gold along the Purus river, 150 miles southwest of Lima, Peru, for three or four weeks, before I had the good fortune to get a near sight of a condor. I had seen them at such a distance that they might have been mistaken for crows, but though we had all kept our eyes open and rifles ready no specimen of the big bird had come within cannon shot. When we complained of our bad luck to Jose, our cook, who had been born and reared among the foothills of the Andes he said:

"There is no other bird living so strong and fierce as the condor, and yet the sight of man frightens him. He seems to know just how far a rifle will carry, and he always keeps beyond it."

"How strong is a full grown condor?" I asked.

"No man can tell you that," he replied, "but I will tell you what I have seen with my own eyes. One day, a few miles from my home, as a man who had been hunting sat upon a rock in the open, to rest, he was attacked by a condor, which suddenly dropped from the skies. As it came down it fastened one claw in his back and the other in his shoulder and struck him a fearful blow with its beak. It could not lift the man, or he weighed 150 pounds, but it dragged him along the ground for many rods before it let go. The blow from the condor's beak had stunned the fellow, and the wounds inflicted by its talons were so terrible that the man died of his injuries."

This simply whetted my desire to see one of these mighty birds. For a time it seemed as though I would be disappointed. One day, however we came upon an old native and his son the latter about twelve years of age. He was talking of condors and pointed out a place high up on the mountain spur.

"It has been there," said he "since my grandfather was a boy. I was close to it once but it was empty. My son here was near it too, only a few days ago. For a little money he will show you a path."

That was exactly what we wanted and I soon struck a bargain. The lad had not approached the nest from below but from above, and had he not found the route very difficult. He had gone near enough to see a fledgling in the nest and being afraid of the old bird's return had retreated, after a brief view. He was a fairly intelligent lad and proud to go with us, and he led the way in a manner to give us confidence. It was rather a tough climb, but finally he reached the peak.

"Just beyond the curve is the condor nest," whispered the boy, as we came to a halt. "If the old bird is there what will you do?"

"But if both are there,"

"Then we will shoot both."

He looked serious and doubtful. I did not expect him to go further but he started off, having his bow and arrow in hand, and we followed. As we turned the curve we came full up on the nest. The mother bird was there feeding a fledgling.

With a shrill scream of rage and surprise the old bird lifted herself about ten feet into the air and as I fired at her she fell. The lad rushed forward to the nest; Jose and I were advancing upon the fluttering, screaming bird, which was only wounded, when there was a whirl of wings and the male bird dropped from the clouds fair upon the boy's back, and what happened passed so quickly we stood in dumb surprise. The condor simply swooped down, fastened his talons in the boy, and was in full flight with him, all in the space of ten seconds. The lad must have weighed at least 50 pounds, but the bird lifted him easily and flew in the direction of our camp, sinking a little in his flight down the slope, yet keeping above the trees.

As we stood paralyzed with surprise, the wounded bird fluttered over the edge of the cliff and was lost to us.

It was night when we got down the mountain, and soon the next day before we found the father of the boy. I had expected an outburst of sorrow and indignation with a claim for heavy damages, but when he heard the story he simply said:

"It is no one's fault and it is no use to look for the dead. He was a good boy, but it was to be so. Perhaps you will give me a few pieces of silver to comfort his mother. Ph'd delphia P. as.

Some people think that because the weekly paper published in the city is larger than the country weekly that the latter ought to be had for about half the price of the former. Now, candidly which paper do you enjoy reading most? Which one does your family enjoy reading most? When that horse ran off and broke John's leg, was it mentioned in the city weekly? When baby died where did you read of its death? Was it in the city weekly? When Mary got married, was it mentioned in the city weekly? Where did you read that kind notice of the death of your friend? These are only a few questions for you to ponder over. Weigh them well, and you will decide that your home paper comes near "filling the bill" than any other.—Hickman Courier.

Congress convened Monday, and the important matter presented at the beginning of the session is the President's message. The message is a lengthy document, and the main questions now before the public are treated at some length.

The President advocates currency reform. He says: "I earnestly recommend, as soon as the receipts of the government are quite sufficient to pay all the expenses of the government, that when any of the United States notes are presented for redemption in gold and are redeemed in gold such notes shall be kept and set apart and only paid out in exchange for gold. This is an obvious duty. I concur with the Secretary of the Treasury in his recommendation that national banks be allowed to issue notes to the face value of the bonds which they have deposited for circulation, and that the tax on circulating notes, secured by the deposit of such bonds, be reduced to one half of one per cent per annum."

After reviewing the Cuban question he argues against the recognition of Cuban belligerency, the recognition of Cuban independence, and the acquisition of the island. In fact he offers nothing whatever encouraging to the Cubans, and closes his dissertation on the subject as follows:

"Sure of the right, keeping free from all offense ourselves, actuated only by upright and patriotic considerations, moved neither by passion nor selfishness, the government will continue its watchful care over the rights and property of American citizens and will abate none of its efforts to bring about by peaceful agencies a peace which shall be honorable and enduring. If it shall hereafter appear to be a duty imposed by our obligation to ourselves, to civilization and to humanity, to intervene with force, it shall be without fault on our part and only because the necessity of such action will be so clear as to command the support and approval of the civilized world."

The annexation of Hawaii is strongly advocated.

On the Nicaragua canal matter he says: "A subject of large importance to our country and increasing appreciation on the part of the people is the completion of the great highway of trade between the Atlantic and the Pacific, known as the Nicaragua canal. Its utility and value to American commerce is universally admitted."

Reviewing the work of the International Bimetallism Commission he appears to entertain some hope of success along that line. He says:

"Meanwhile, it gives me satisfaction to state that the special envoys have already demonstrated their ability and fitness to deal with the subject and it is to be earnestly hoped that their labors may result in an international agreement that will bring about recognition of both gold and silver as money. On international arbitration he says: "The best sentiment of the civilized world is now moving toward the settlement of differences between nations without resorting to the horrors of war. Treaties embodying these humane principles on broad lines without in any way impeding our interests or our honor, shall have my constant encouragement."

About the Navy he says:

"The present immediate effective force of the navy consists of four battle ships of the first class, two of the second and forty eight other vessels, ranging from armored cruisers to torpedo boats. There are under construction five battle ships of the first class sixteen torpedo boats and one submarine boat. No provision has yet been made for the armor of three of the five battle ships, as it has been impossible to obtain it at the price fixed by Congress. It is of great importance that Congress provide this armor, as

La Grippe Cured

This modern malady has become dreaded not more for its direct fatality than for the weakness of body and mind it leaves behind it. Prolonged debility, permanent prostration, melancholy and suicide follow La Grippe. For this disease there is no remedy superior to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"The best remedy for La Grippe that I know of is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."

Rev. JOHN K. CHASE, South Hampton, N. H.

"My wife and five children were taken down with La Grippe, while the disease was widely prevalent. I doctored them with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and before using quite two bottles my family was restored to health. I know of several obstinate cases of the same complaint which were also cured by this remedy."

J. FARMINGTON, Paquette, Minn.

"I was cured of La Grippe by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."

until then the ships are of no fighting value. The present naval force, especially in view of its increase by ships now under construction, while not as large as those of a few other powers, is a formidable force, its vessels are the very best of each type, and with the increase that should be made to it from time to time in the future, and careful attention to keeping it in a high state of efficiency and repair, it is well adapted to the necessities of the country.

A just government for Alaska is advocated. The affairs of the Indian territory, quarantine laws, and the Union Pacific railroad are all discussed at some length.

Referring to the civil service law he says:

"Much, of course, still remains to be accomplished before the system can be made reasonably perfect for our needs. There are places now in the classified service which ought to be exempted, and others not classified may properly be included in the classified service, or into those which, in my judgment, will best promote the public service. The system has the approval of the people, and it will be my endeavor to uphold and extend it."

A baggage check and Illinois Central mileage book and a recent letter from his wife, which was dated at 1690 Hayes street, Nashville, Tenn., were found among the effects of the dead man.

Dick as Robin.

Hon. Dick Taylor, of Hickman, has told a Courier Journal reporter that he favors continuing the gold Democratic organization. Mr. Tyler said: "So far as I am concerned, the fight has not been abandoned." He is about as hard headed as a negro named Robin, who once got into a row with a Mr. Vesch at Moscow, in this county. When the white man knocked the negro down the latter slowly scrambled to his feet and was asked: "What have you got to say now Robin?" "Not a word, Mr. Vesch," said Robin. He was promptly knocked down again and when he got up the same question was fired at him. "What have you got to say now Robin?" "Not a word, Mr. Vesch." Down he went again and up he came as soon as he could get himself together, and then the same question was given, followed by the same answer. There is no telling how long Vesch's muscles and Robin's head would have lasted had not something turned up to stop the dialogue and its inevitable consequences. In history to repeat it self, with Dick Tyler in the character of Robin, and the Democratic party playing the character of Mr. Vesch?—Clinton Democrat.

Obituary.

The subject of the following sketch, W. L. Mayes, departed this life Sept. 5, 1897, aged 30 years. He professed a hope in Christ Nov. 1, 1894. Was married to Miss Lizzie A. Bradley December 22, 1895. He was taken sick March 1, 1897, and his sufferings though severe were endured with patience; he was never known to murmur during his long continued affliction; he was a true and loving husband, a good neighbor, and a friend to all. During his illness his first expression was that he desired to get well, but afterwards he was reconciled to the Lord's will, and said that he would not turn his hand over to get well. During his long continued afflictions and severe sufferings his wife, despairing of hope would weep, but he would cheer her and say, weep not Lizzie, we must endure afflictions as they come upon us, for "All things work together for good to them that love God," and we verily believe that he loved God, and did honor and serve him from his heart. He expressed a desire to join the church and be buried with Christ in baptism, but as his health did not permit, his will is taken for the deed. Therefore weep not, dear sister, your husband is gone home to glory and to God. He sleeps in Jesus, blessed sleep, from which none never wake to weep. But he shall wake in the likeness and image of his blessed Lord and Saviour. Truly it is said by the Psalmist, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints," so then, "Why do we mourn departing friends, or shake at death's alarms," 'tis but the voice that Jesus sends to call them to his arms." Then let us understand, in the death of the saints that our dear brother is gone. He will escape all trouble to come; he has paid the debt that all the living owe, and in the death of brother Mayes we were privileged to witness the truthfulness of the poet, when he said, "Jesus can make the dying bed feel soft as dying pillows are." In the arms of Jesus the brother could lay "And breathe his life out sweetly there."

A precious one from us is gone, A voice we loved is still, A vacant place is in our home That never can be filled.

But the God that hath bereft us he can all our sorrows here.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired and nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centers in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it is the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sells for 50c and $1 per bottle at Orme's.

There is no need of little children being tortured by scald head, eczema, and skin eruptions. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve gives instant relief and wears permanently. At Haynes.

To make the complexion good and the breath sweet, use Dr. Bell's Peppermint Chili Tonic. It purifies the blood, rids you of malaria and is an upbuilding tonic, aiding digestion. Pleasant taste and pleasant effect. I am guaranteed by all dealers.

Victim of His Own Pistol.

Providence, Ky., Dec. 7.—Fred Long, a promising young man of this place, shot himself in a most peculiar manner yesterday morning. Mr. Long was on his way from town to his boarding house, and was taking a pistol home which he had in his pocket. He slipped and fell on the icy walk and the weapon was discharged, the ball taking effect in the back and lodging in the spinal column, making a dangerous wound.

Yesterday was the day for examination before the school board but there were no applicants.

Mr. J. N. Franks has moved to the Mattson neighborhood.

There will positively be no hunting allowed on my premises this year.

J. B. Kevil, T. I. M.
The Bigham mill always did make good flour. It is now in prime condition in every way, and in charge of men who know their business. Try this mill and you will have no other flour.

J. A. Perkins, at Antiquity, O., was for thirty years needlessly tortured by physicians for the cure of eczema; he was quickly cured by using DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, the famous healing salve for piles and skin diseases. At Haynes drug store.

Mr. G. M. Yancy and two daughters, of Dycusburg, were guests of Mr. J. H. Clifton's family Sunday and Monday. It is said that this is the first time George Yancy has spent a night away from Dycusburg since he was a boy—many, many years ago.

Your eyes need toning up, just as well as your system. Don't think because you have never had sore eyes that you've no use for Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve. It is cooling, healing, and strengthening. It will clear your sight.

When he retires from office sheriff Franks may go into business in Marion. He has a flattering offer to go elsewhere, but his predilections are for Marion, and Crittenden county. The Press hopes he will remain with us. There are few better men than John Franks, and we can ill afford to lose such good citizens.

The friends of the late W. B. Franks request us to return their sincere thanks to the warden and deputy warden and other friends at Eddyville for their unstinted care and attention given Mr. Franks during his illness. Brothers could not have been kinder or more considerate and this is appreciated by the friends of Mr. F. beyond the power of words to express.

The residence of Mr. Geo. Howell three miles north of Marion, on the Ford's Ferry road, was destroyed by fire Wednesday night. When the family was awakened by the roaring of the fire, the house was almost enveloped in flames, and there was no time to save any of the household goods.

Mrs. Will Tabor who died at her home near Francis some days ago, had a policy on her life for $1000 in the Home Life Insurance Co., of New York. W. B. Orichlow, local agent, was in town yesterday preparing the proof of the death. The policy will be paid in a short time.

Mrs. Stark, Pleasant Ridge, Ohio, says: "After two doctors gave up my boy to die, I saved him from croup by using One Minute Cough Cure." It is the quickest and most certain remedy for coughs, colds and all throat and lung troubles. For sale at R. F. Haynes drug store.

Mr. R. K. Woods, the well known and popular druggist of this place, has purchased a drug store at Princeton, Ind. He was in the drug business in Marion several years, and enjoyed an extensive trade. Our physicians, as well as the public in general have the utmost confidence in him as a druggist and pharmacist. Besides years of experience in all branches of the business he has a diploma from the State Board of Pharmacy, and the Princeton people may unhesitatingly place the greatest confidence in him, both as a professional man and a citizen. He is a good man in every way.

BROWNIE FRANKS DEAD.

Passes Away at Eddyville Sunday Morning After an Illness of Five Days.

Mr. W. B. Franks died at Eddyville Sunday morning at 4 o'clock, the remains were brought to Marion Sunday evening, and the funeral took place from the Baptist church Monday at 10 a. m. An appropriate and touching address was delivered by Rev. J. S. Henry, to a house crowded with the friends of the deceased, after which the interment took place at the new cemetery.

Mr. Franks was taken ill some five days previous to his death. On Saturday Dr. J. H. Clark and J. O. Dixon of this place were called to Eddyville to consult with Dr. Lynn, and all that human skill could do to relieve the patient was done. Intussusception of the small bowels was the immediate cause of death. For several months Mr. Franks had been doorkeeper of the state prison at Eddyville and was highly esteemed by the other employees; Warden Happp and other officials of the prison attended the funeral.

He was born and reared in this county and had the respect and confidence of our people. Among the young people of Marion he had many warm friends. He was a brother of sheriff Franks and collector E. T. Franks, and a scion of one of the oldest and most highly respected families in the county.

Watters-Lear.

Yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the residence of J. H. Clifton, of this place, Mr. John Watters and Miss Jane Lear, of Dycusburg, were united in marriage. Rev. Mitchell officiating. After the ceremony Mr. Watters and bride left for their home at Dycusburg. Both are well known and popular young people of that section of the county, and they have many friends who wish them a married life of unalloyed happiness.

John Skipped.

Yesterday John Crow a negro who was paying a fine, for carrying a pistol, by a jail sentence coupled with hard labor, took advantage of an opportunity to jump his boarding house and skipped out for parts unknown. If John will just remain away from Crittenden county, the courts should extend him a vote of thanks. He is never more at home than when in jail and his absence would save the county some money and in no wise detract from its good name.

County Court Order.

R. S. Hill was appointed and qualified as administrator of the estate of Mrs. M. V. Hill deceased.
R. B. Gass tendered his resignation as guardian for Thos and Ida Rush, and same was accepted.

Sheriff Pickens's Deputy.

Mr. Julian Ainsworth, a well known young man of the Hurricane country has been selected by Sheriff elect Pickens for his deputy. Mr. Ainsworth is a young man of splendid business qualifications and sterling worth. He will make a splendid officer, and the new sheriff who goes into office in January is to be congratulated upon his selection.

J. F. Dodge, M. of F.
E. A. Haynes, M. of E.
A. C. Moore, Trustee.

Yesterday the semi-annual interest on the school bonds was paid.

They Want a Railroad.

Last week a number of the citizens of Marion were invited and requested earnestly to meet a delegation of Elizabethtown, Ill., citizens at Tolu Saturday for the purpose of considering ways and means to interest capital in the construction of a railroad from Marion via Tolu to Elizabethtown, and then to some railroad point north. Notwithstanding the rainy, inclement weather some of our people went to Tolu to keep the engagement, but not a man from Elizabethtown put in his appearance, and our people are a little inclined to think that our Illinois friends are just joking about the matter and really do not desire a railroad.

They Are Coming.

Tolu, Ky., Dec. 8.—The committee appointed by the people at Elizabethtown to represent them in a joint meeting of citizens of Tolu and Marion to discuss the railroad enterprise, and to take such steps as may be deemed advisable, paid Tolu a visit today. The gentlemen composing the committee expect to be in Marion Thursday, the 9th, to hold a conference with Marion people.

Missionary Convention.

Salem, Ky., Dec. 8.—The missionary meeting of the Christian church convened here yesterday, and will complete its labors and adjourn tonight. Quite an interest has been taken in the meeting, and the work has been of an instructing and entertaining nature. Some eight or ten ministers are in attendance, and several lady visitors.

Our Roll of Honor.

The following persons have our profound thanks for payment of subscription:

R. H. Morris, Bentonville, Ark., H. H. Loving, Bardwell; Dr. A. S. H. Boyd, Tolu; J. W. Farris, E. E. Hill, Wm. Belt, P. C. Stephens, Marion; Freddie Vandell, Eddyville, J. J. Nunn, Sullivan; E. N. Easley, Providence; W. B. Orichlow, Salem; J. H. Robinson, Mounds.

Mrs. M. B. Ford, Ruddells, Ill., suffered eight years with dyspepsia, chronic constipation, and was finally cured by using DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills for all stomach and liver troubles. At R. F. Haynes drug store.

Not the Teacher.

It transpires that the negro, Tony Hughes, who shot Smith at Sturgis last week, is not the teacher by that name. There are two men having that name; the teacher is from Crittenden county and is at present teaching school at that place, where he stands high and is appreciated as a teacher, and is known to be a man who never gets into trouble. It was the other Tony that did the shooting and skipped out.

At The Old Stand

I have just received, fresh from market, a complete stock of Family Groceries and Confectioneries, the best and nicest I could find, opened up at the old stand in the Bigham block, where I would be pleased to see all of my old friends and customers. Will not be undersold by any one. In connection I have a first class Restaurant under my own supervision. You all know whether I can cook or not. If you don't, when in town and hungry, come in and see, and I will convince you. Remember me for your Xmas goods. I can and will please you, both in goods and prices. Yours as of old,
A. M. Hearin.

Free of Charge to Sufferers.

Cut this out and take it to your druggist and get a sample bottle free of Kr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. They do not ask you to buy before trying. This will show you the great merits of this truly wonderful remedy, and show you what can be accomplished by the regular size bottle. This is no experiment and would be disastrous to the proprietors did they not know it would invariably cure. Many of the best physicians are now using it in their practice with great results, and are relying on it in most severe cases. It is guaranteed. Trial bottles free at J. H. Orme's drug store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.

The True Remedy.

W. M. Repine, editor Tiskilwa, Ill., says: "We won't keep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Experienced with many others but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for coughs, colds, the whooping cough, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. They are not as good because this remedy has a record of cures, and besides is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottles free at Orme's.
