We Regret
The Necssity of continually calling upon our delinquents to pay up, and we are going to quit it—just as soon as they all settle. We need the money, need it now and need it hard. The occasion demands a persistent effort at making collections, and unless Sampson turns one of big guns on us, we are going to keep this up. We have obligations that must be met, and the little $1, $2, $3, $4 or $5 due from delinquents will help do the work beautifully. It is a small thing to you, but a big matter to us, when the aggregate of these small sums is considered.

Your prompt response will be appreciated.
Sincerely Yours,

ONE YEAR ONE DOLLAR

The Cuban Junta has issued an appeal for funds to help the cause.

The Louisville baseball team is unfully holding its own this year, down at the foot.

We are likely to have some real fighting now, as our army of invasion will touch Cuban soil today.

Congressman Wheeler has appointed Charles Charles of McCracken county to the West Point cadetship.

G. W. Bailey has sent troops to Clay county to assist the court, and he proposes to send them to Mayfield to see that the negro rapist, Blanks, gets a hearing in court.

O. H. Jones has received scores of letters from over the district commending the spirit of his early withdrawing from the race and pledging him support two years hence.

Everybody wants good roads, but only a few are willing to pay for them. We get few good things without paying for them, and good roads do not belong to that class.

Judging from the pre-arrangements which Gov. Bradley handles, it might safely be suggested that he would make a good working member of President McKinley's strategy board.

If there is no primary election and a meeting of the committee is held, the committee will doubtless declare that the nominee must pay the expenses of the committee meeting.

According to the government estimates the wheat crop will amount to 640,000,000 bushels. The largest crop previously harvested was 615,000,000. This estimate is not altogether reliable.

If Louisville's boasted legions make no better showing on the field of orange than her boasted baseball team makes on the diamond, Kentucky will have to depend on the soldier from the rural districts to maintain her prestige.

Kentucky seems not altogether satisfied with the way the Cuban war is being pushed, and she has one of her own in the mountain counties, and there is no complaint because of tardiness on the part of any of the opposing factions.

There is no good sense in holding a primary election, when there is but one candidate for Congress, and then we don't want to see the rule of the committee requiring the candidates to pay the expense of a primary election ever put in operation in the old Gibraltar.

As the case submitted to the courts touching the validity of the prison law was an agreed case, and as both parties agreed to abide by the decision of the court of appeals it is not likely that the report that the case will be taken to the United States court is true.

Let the man who came into fame and fortune through his dealing in wheat has collapsed. He sold, according to reports 10,000,000 bushels of wheat, and the putting of this quantity on the market forced the price down 11 cents despite the efforts of the bulls to hold the prices up. Let the man who has made an assignment. All the conditions appear to be against the holding up of prices when the farmer is ready to market.

The sinking fund, commissioners of Lyon county have caused to be made a tax levy of $2 upon each $100 worth of taxable property in the county for the year 1898. They announce that $12,000 has been saved to the county by a compromise of one of the judgments. Lyon is a plucky little county. A $2 tax would almost stop the wheels of progress in any other county of equal size and capacity in the State, but Lyon is going to pull through that railroad tax yet, and prospering as she is with the tax, the Democratic vote to its full proper how she will bloom out, when the tax is finally paid.

Three firms in New York want all of the $200,000,000 bond issue. It is claimed that there is a congestion of money in the New York banks. The owners of this money have been anxious for a bond issue; it affords them a safe and profitable investment; they draw the interest quarterly and the bonds are exempt from taxation. The bonds are simply the promissory notes of the people. It is not strange that the money devils favored and forced the issuing of bonds. They have a place to put their money without taking any of the risks that an investment in any kind of business subjects them to. Then had greenbacks been issued instead of bonds, the greenbacks would have added to the stock of money in the country and would have subjected the "congested" dollars in the banks to that much more competition. The greenbacks would have borne no interest, and in that respect would have been a saving to the people of an amount equal to the interest on the bonds; but what is a saving to the people compared to the satisfying of the natural desire of the bond buyers to draw interest? The war has not killed the silver craze, but on the other hand it has accentuated the financial issue: it has made plain if possible the motive of the bond buyers and gold standardists.

The President has signed the bill providing for an issue of $200,000,000 three per cent bonds, and the Secretary of the Treasury invites subscription from the people. Subscriptions will be received at par for a period of thirty-four days, the subscription being open from this date on to the 14th day of July, 1898. The bonds will be issued in both coupon and registered form, the coupon bonds in denominations of $20, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. They will be dated August 1, 1898, and their terms will be redeemable in coin at the pleasure of the United States after ten years from the date of their issue, and due and payable August 1, 1918. The bonds will bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent per annum, payable quarterly; the interest on the coupon bonds will be paid by means of coupons to be detached from the bonds as the interest becomes due and the interest of the registered bonds will be paid by checks drawn to the order of the payees, and mailed to their addresses.

Germany keeps stalking around with a chip on her shoulder. It is announced that she is going to make a naval demonstration in the Philippines and do other things to tempt Uncle Sam into a row.

The withdrawal of Ollie James from the congressional race has left a good many Democratic voters at sea. It is hardly probable that Congressman Wheeler will have any opposition for the Democratic nomination. There is no man in the district who could hold him such a race as James, and every advantage he had over James he would have over any other possible candidate, and none of them could bring into the race the personal strength that James has. After Wheeler has been made the Democratic nominee of course he will have on his hands Ben Keys and some Republican to keep up the fight until November. Should the Republicans support Keys, as some of them seem disposed to do and Wheeler lose the Democratic vote he did two years ago, would be defeated. But we do not believe that either of these things is going to happen, and therefore we may safely count on Wheeler's re-election. In the first place, there is no disposition among a large part of the Republican voters to surrender their party to Ben Keys. They prefer to have their own candidate and give him all the votes they can muster and thus maintain their party organization and hold the respect of their fellow Republicans in the state and nation. The faction controlled by Happy is favorable to a scheme to give the Republican vote to Keys, but the goods cannot be delivered because the more respectable element in the party will never consent to it. True Wheeler cannot bring out the full Democratic vote and his majority will fall short of the normal Democratic majority in the district by several thousand; but the division of the opposition vote insures Wheeler's election. Ollie James would have piled up the Democratic vote to its full proper proportion—but that's another matter.—Clinton Democrat.

GREAT NAVAL BATTLES

It was more than 200 years after this that the Romans, during the first Punic war, turned their attention to naval affairs. Many improvements had been introduced into naval warfare in the meantime, though the general method of sea fighting was the same as at the time of Salamis. Carthage was the great maritime power of the western Mediterranean, while the Romans had not so much as the beginnings of a navy. In the "war for Sicily," however, the struggle had gone so far that the Romans, their land forces having taken possession of the island, could do nothing more against Carthage unless they attacked her on her own element the sea. They at once began, therefore, the construction of a fleet. A Carthaginian war galley, which had by chance stranded on their shores, served them as a model. While the galleys were building a sufficient number of men were trained to man them. Benches were erected on land and rowers taught to use the oar before they had even been on the sea. In a short time the Romans had equipped a fleet of 120 war galleys and 40,000 rowers and soldiers. But they were lacking in skill and experience, and were beaten in the first engagement. The Roman commander, the Consul Gaius Duilius, at once exerted himself to find some way of neutralizing the superiority of the Carthaginians in naval tactics. This he effected by the invention of the "corvus," a sort of bridge suspended over the bow of the vessels, which could be let down upon the enemy's ships.

At length the two fleets came in sight of one another near Uryia, the modern Milazzo, and prepared for battle. The Carthaginians, realizing that they were superior in numbers and in naval skill, and expecting that the battle was to be decided by maneuvering, were confident of victory. As the Romans advanced they were met by a shower of arrows and other missiles, but without pausing to return the fire they pushed on until every Roman galley had struck a Carthaginian sail. The ropes to which the corvi were suspended were loosened and the heavy bridges fell upon the enemy's decks, crushing those who had gathered to defend the entrance. The sharp iron spikes on the bottom of the corvi pierced the decks and the contending vessels were finally grappled. Raising the war cry, the Romans rushed, sword in hand, across the bridges, and met the enemy. The Carthaginian galleys were soon turned into slaughter pens. Eighty of them were taken or destroyed, and many of their benches, or rostra were taken to Rome to adorn the forum.

One of the bloodiest battles of history that took place in the bay of Lepanto, in 1571 between the Papal Venetian and Spanish fleets and that of Selim, sultan of Constantinople. The Christian fleet consisted of 250 ships and more than 50,000 men, under the command of Don John of Austria. The Turkish fleet which was under command of the Pasha Ali much larger. But the Christians had the advantage of equipment. They made use of helmets, coats of mail and fire arms, while many of the Turks had no better defensive weapons than leather shields, and no more formidable missiles than arrows.

The admirals began the battle. The vessel of Don John and Ali, after a short cannonade, closed the grapple. The crews of both vessels rushed to the assault and met in a fierce struggle on the gunwales. Three times the Spaniards boarded the Turk and were driven back. A fourth time, with a re-enforcement of 200, they rushed to the assault and then carried everything before them. An indiscriminate slaughter followed. The crescent was quickly replaced by the cross, and the bloody head of Ali, planted on a pole, was raised on the masthead of his flagship. At the sight of this the Christians, with cries of "Victory! Victory!" rushed upon the enemy. But the Turks did not yield. The ships grappled, and a hand-to-hand combat throughout the fleet ensued. Both sides were fired with religious fanaticism, for the pope had promised absolution to all sinners who fought, and heaven to all who died, and Selim, in like manner, had promised the delights of Paradise to all his followers. Pike, javelin and arrows, cannons, mallets and arquebuses, used with deadly effect, soon made the decks run with gore. But the result was still doubtful, when the Christian galley slaves in the Turkish vessels revolted, broke their chains and turned on their masters. The criminals who served as galley slaves in the Christian fleet, were at the same time set at liberty and joined in the attack on the Turks. This decided the result. The Turks took to flight. Only thirty of their galleys (on one of which Cervantes was borne off a captive), escaped to Constantinople; 130 were captured, the rest destroyed; 10,000 Turks were taken and 25,000 slain. But the victory had cost the Christians 10,000 men.

JOHN PAUL JONES'S VICTORY.

The most brilliant naval victory of our revolution was won by the adventurer, John Paul Jones, when he captured, with the old hulk, the Bon Homme Richard, the British frigate Serapis. Jones had been cruising along the British and Scottish coast when he fell in with the Serapis and a smaller vessel, the Countess of Scarborough, conveying a fleet of merchantmen. The British men-of-war approached to engage the American vessels and give the convoy time to escape. It was 8 o'clock in the evening, the moon was just rising, and the neighboring heights were covered with people who had come to watch the battle. One of Jones's consorts engaged the consort of the Serapis; the other did not enter the action till toward the close, when she fired with equal injury to friend and foe. The Bon Homme Richard and the Serapis approached within pistol shot, and then opened fire. At the first discharge three of Jones's guns burst, causing terrible havoc. The Serapis, having the advantage in number and caliber of guns, and being more manageable, was able to choose raking positions. This advantage was finally lost, however, by running her bowsprit between the poop and muzz-mast of the Bon Homme Richard, where Jones, with his own hands, made it fast. The two vessels were now lying side by side, their guns muzzle to muzzle, and fighting desperately. The Bon Homme Richard, her rotten sides pierced through and through, was soon in a sinking condition, but procuroers were made to man the pumps, and so kept the vessel afloat. Jones's sharpshooters meanwhile were clearing the deck of the Serapis. Some of his men climbed over by the parrels into the tops of the Serapis, and threw stinkpots, flasks and grenades down into her hatches. Captain Pearson finally, to save the remainder of his crew, struck and transferred the command of the Serapis to his crew on board her. The loss on the Richard was 300 killed and wounded, that on the Serapis nearly as great. The Bon Homme Richard was left to her fate, and went down next day with many of her wounded crew aboard.

BATTLE OF TRAFALGAR

The battle of Trafalgar, Nelson's last fight, took place off Cadiz, between the allied French and Spanish fleet of thirty-three sail and the British fleet of twenty-seven. On October 21, 1805, the two fleets came in sight of one another and prepared for fight. The allied fleet drew up in an irregular, crescent shaped line on the larboard tack. The British fleet bore down under full sail, in two single columns, the left of four, ten vessels, led by Nelson in the Victory, and the right, of thirteen, by Admiral Collingwood in the Royal Sovereign. Nelson's object was to break the enemy's fleet up into sections inferior to his own and then engage in a fight at close quarters. The signal, "England expects every man to do his duty," was raised on the masthead of the Victory. Collingwood reached the enemy's line first; broke through the asters of the Santa Anna, and raked her with a broadside. Meanwhile Nelson who course was at less acute angle with the enemy's line than Collingwood's, was bearing down exposed to a raking fire from the ships under his lee. Finally breaking through the enemy's line, the Victory opened with both broadsides. The other ships one after another, followed the admiral's example, breaking through the enemy line and engaging their vessels at close quarters. Nelson, from a feeling of humanity, had given orders that sharpshooters should not be employed to pick off the enemy's officers or clear their rigging. To this order he owed his death. A bullet fired from the mizzenmast of the French vessel Redoubtable struck him on the epaulette and entered his back. He fell with his face upon the deck. When an hour later, as he lay dying below, he learned that fifteen of the enemy had surrendered, he said: "That is well—but I bargained for twenty." And twenty did surrender before the day was over. When he had ordered the fleet to be anchored and requested that they would not throw him overboard, he said: "Now I am satisfied. Thank God! I have done my duty."

The Health of the Hair

is indicated by its condition. When the natural secretions decrease, when the hair becomes dry, splits at the ends and comes out in combing; when the gloss disappears and the hair becomes gray or faded, the full health of the hair is indicated. The success of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is due to the fact that it restores the hair-producing organs to their natural vigor. It encourages and promotes the secretion of the hair follicles, and thus gray or faded hair regains its original color, new growth begins, and lost lustre is restored.

WEATHERFORD PARDONED.

Brought From Missouri and Restored to Citizenship by the Governor.

Some weeks ago, Rev. Weatherford, formerly of Livingston county, was brought from Missouri to serve out an unexpired term in the penitentiary. His friends went to work to secure a pardon for him, and last Friday the pardon was issued by Governor Bradley. It was chiefly through the efforts of Hon. L. E. Weatherford, a son of the minister, that the pardon was so readily secured. He is a member of the Legislature from Graves county, and is an able gentleman, and his course in the Legislature won the friendship of almost every member. Gov. Bradley endorsed the pardon as follows:

"The applicant was a minister of the gospel before the charge was brought against him and enjoyed the confidence of all who knew him. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence and sent out under contractors to work, from whom he escaped some twelve years ago, and since that time has borne himself as an upright, Christian gentleman. I would not, except under the most extraordinary circumstances, pardon one who is a fugitive from justice. This man, I am satisfied, has been a fugitive from injustice. I have carefully examined the facts of this case and am satisfied, especially from matters which have developed since the trial, that Weatherford is innocent.

"Under these circumstances at the instance of many good citizens, including the attorneys who prosecuted and the trial judge, Weatherford is now pardoned."

Weatherford was sent from Livingston county, and is the father of Mr. R. E. Weatherford, the representative from Graves county in the last legislature.

FOUND DEAD.

A Corner's Jury Says Jerry Bloodsaw Died of Heart Disease.

Jerry Bloodsaw, an old colored man, who lived alone on Melvina Turley's farm, in the New Salem neighborhood, was found dead in his cabin on the 9th. Coroner Sisco was sent for, but he could not be found and Esquire Tom Harpending was called on to hold an inquest. He summoned a jury, and after investigation, returned the following verdict: "We the jury empaneled to hold an inquest over the body of Jerry Bloodsaw, would say that we believe that the said Jerry Bloodsaw, came to his death from heart trouble, and are satisfied that no foul means were used."

Texas Letter.

GAINEVILLE, TEX., June 3, 98.
ED. PRESS.—Dear Sir:—Our correspondent "Sambo" being now in your midst, and as there is no one else in this part of the country to contribute to the Press, I take this opportunity of forwarding a few lines for your excellent paper.

We are having abundance of rain; many farmers have finished plowing corn and are now ready for harvest, which will be in full blast as soon as the weather clears up.

Wheat and oats are short in this part of the state on account of dry fall and a cold spring. Corn and cotton is late but looks well. Much damage was done in the western section of this country by the recent hail storm; many crops were entirely destroyed.

From a me of my Kentucky correspondent, I learn that several of my old friends have expressed a desire to make Texas their home. This is a fine country, and is full of excellent people; a better, more sociable lot of people I never met, and my Kentucky friends could do no better than to cast their lot among them, but I would not over persuade, but would only say "come and see." Gainesville like the little city of Marion has been pervaded by the war spirit and many of the boys have shown their patriotism by enlisting to fight for our nation's honor.

What has become of Chapel Hill correspondent? Would be glad to see one would contribute a few lines from that section of the country.

A fire broke out in Gainesville last night doing a considerable damage. Among the property destroyed was a livery stable and seventeen head of horses. With best wishes for the Press I remain yours in the "Lone Star."

A GOOD COMPANY.

MARION, KY, June 14, '98.

Mr. H. A. Hodge, Agent Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Kentucky, Princeton, Ky.

Dear Sir:—I received check for $— from your company, this morning, in full settlement of policy No. 145 upon the life of my father. We are well pleased with the promptness of your company on the settlement of this claim, it being the first to pay.

My father died May 23rd. I did not write for blanks of proof of death for several days and did not receive them until the 3rd of June, upon receiving the receipt I had to forward it to St. Louis for my sisters to sign, and payment was delayed several days on that account.

I have been insured in this company for a long time and have had a great deal of business with it in various ways and have always found it prompt and reliable, and from my observation of it, I prefer it to any other and can willingly recommend it to any one desiring insurance.

Your friend,
J. W. Blue, Jr.

The policy was for $5000.

The Gilbert Sanitarium.

It is an interesting and instructive fact that Evansville, Ind., has been a surgical center. The results as shown by the first six months' work at the Gilbert Sanitarium, indicate that it is not necessary to go to other cities to achieve good results in surgery. There have been performed during the first six months of its existence, 58 surgical operations, 19 of which have been in the abdominal cavity and are known as operations of a most serious character. Out of the entire 58 operations there were only three deaths, and the most interesting thing in connection with this matter is, up to last week of the six months, there has been 56 operations and only one death, the other two deaths occurring in the last week and were of a most difficult and dangerous character; in fact they were the last resort. The above results lead one to think that Dr. Gilbert, his staff of assistants, and his corps of nurses, are to be congratulated upon this splendid showing.—Evansville Courier.

CASTORIA.

Dr. J.C. Wells

I was seriously afflicted with a cough for several years, and last fall had a more severe cough than ever before. I have used many remedies without receiving much relief, and being recommended to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, by a friend, who, knowing me, to be a poor widow, gave it to me, I tried it, and with the most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved me very much and the second bottle has absolutely cured me. I have not had as good health for twenty years. I give this certificate without solicitation, simply in appreciation of the gratitude felt for the cure effected.—Respectfully, Mrs. Mary A. Beard, Claremore, Ark. For sale by J. H. Orme, druggist.
