Twenty Years Ago

The PRESS rounds out its twentieth year with this issue. As we are no much given to the habit of wasting breath in "blowing our own bugle"preferring that our work, rather than our words, tell the tale of the twenty years that have swiftly, and withal not unpleasantly, glided by, we have no personal reminiscences, nor pointed pages of history to set before our readees. The county has grown in many respects since June, 1879, and the PRESS flatters itself that it has assisted along some lines in that growth. The PRESS has grown since June, 1879, and the good people have assisted in that growth, hence has each not been benefitted by the existence of the other? As there is still room for growth, in both, and as each knows the other after a journey of twenty years together, may they not still be benefitted by keeping company? The PRESS believes so, and in pondering over this, a glorious opportunity for recounting the past and d shing up some "lotty sentiment" presents itself, but this is the age of practical things, now if you think so, please drop the little amount you owe us on our counter at the earliest date now as we close up the two decades, we are not going to deliberately cast a shadow over that beautiful record by even jarring the atmosphere in which truth lives, therefore when we tel-

Next Saturday, June 17, at 2 P M. the Democrats of Crittenden will atsemble at Marion to express the r choice for a candidate for governor to be voted for in November. Three men are seeking the honor, and as earnest, conscious men and Demoerats, those who assemble ought to e governed by a desire to do thing that will best serve the interests o the party, and thereby, as we believe the best interests of the State.

This we believe can be done by the nomination of Hon, W. J. Stone, o our neighboring county of Lyon. He is a plain man of the people-a ma whose calling in life is and has been along the same line as that of the great mass of the people of the county and State. He met the same hard ships made the same struggles that have come and are coming to nine out of every ten men in the county, and it is but natural that his thoughts and his sympathies are with the men who toil in the field.

He has been in positions where the courage and the honesty of men were put to the test, and as an humble toil er in the ranks of those who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow, as a soldier on the battelfield and as a representative of the people in Congress he has shown his patience and energy, his courage and devotion, his honesty and faithfulness As a free silver Democrat, he be gan the fight for true bimetalism in Congress in 1890, in 1892 he introduced a free silver bill, strongly advocating possible. For twenty years we have its passage, and all along the line his not intentionally printed a lie, and record unerringly points to the financial policies embodied in the Chicago platform of '96, Because he voted along with other good free silver men not for a bill, but to put it upon a final vote that it might be effectually killed, there are those, who, hoping to you that we need every dollar due us, profit by his downfall, charge him you may write it down as A FACT. with voting for the bill, and they raise J. Besides these potent reasons, he is our neighbor-a home man, a good bome man, and as such is admired and and appreciated in this section irrespective of politics, and as governor he would reflect credit upon this section of the State. MURDEROUS ELEPHANT.

Dan Rice, the Old Circus Man, Telia How He Found a Boy Keeper for the Vicious Romeo.

My elephant, Romeo, was a murderous Before coming to this country he had killed three men, and after his arrival he killed four more.

I bought Romeo in Berlin in the lete forties. On the journey to this country he killed his keeper on shipboard. Later he killed Joe Nobles in Pitts burgh, Frank Gray in Louisville, Calvin Porter near Indianapolis, and little Eddie Smith near Yonkers, N. Y. The great creature either killed or frightened away every person who had the one, and that was

It was at a little town in Dutchess county, N. Y. A throng of idlers surrounded the notorious elephant one moreing. Among them was a 12-yearold boy, named Arthur Searles, the son of a local mechanic. He unconsciously stood dangerously close to Romeo, who suddenly put out his trunk, grasped the lad around the body, and raised him to rest. The little company was doubt-

When he had securely seated the boy, Romeo lowered his trunk and left him there, more surprised than frightened. while Romeo was eating some peanuts, lad did: but no sooner had his feet caught up and seated upon the elephant's back. Three times Arthur Searles attempted to escape, but each time the elephant recaptured him. An alarmed messenger summone me, and I arrived on the scene in time to see Romeo foil the boy's third attempt to escape. A happy thought struck me. I promised the lad five dollars if he would remain and ride Romeo in the street parade, which would soon take place. The little fellow smiled faintly and said that, as Romeo would not let him go, he would have to stay and earn the five dollars. As a result, half an hour later Romeo paraded the streets of the town peacefully and contentedly, with the boy on his back, to the great surprise of the citizens. The line of parade led directly by Arthur Searles' home, and when his horrified mother saw her son perched upon the back of the notorious elephant, whose record was familiar to nearly everyone, she was almost too frightened to protest; but she followed her boy and Romeo throughout the parade until she saw the elephant, when he arrived at the exhibition grounds, raise his trunk and tenderly set down his youthful rider.

I at once sought the boy's father and so arranged matters with him that when the circus left town Arthur Searles went with it as Romeo's keeper. This was the only master that Romeo never attempted to harm. But the elephant gradually grew more and more intractible, until, to keep him anywhere within bounds, Arthur Searles had to sleep beside him. Even this was effective only for a short time, and Romeo gradually became such a constant source of anxiety that it finally was necessary to have him killed.—Dan Rice, in Youth's Companion.

A SNOW-WHITE ROBIN.

A large tract, not very far from Chi cago, unfrequented even by sportsmen, has been taken possession of by birds and "beasties." Hundreds of them live here the year round. Warm-weather birds spend the summer months here, and throngs of hardy little creatures shelter themselves here throughout the winter and listen for the spring.
One day last September I pushed my way through this wood down to the creek to see what condition the fences were in-for sometimes old Mosquito carries off the rails-and to say goodby to the summer birds. It was a lucky day for me. Besides being near to a lark when he rose with his song in his throat, I flushed a covey of quail from the edge of the brush, I heard a flicker drum his best tune on a halfdecayed limb, and, best of all, I saw a white robin! This was the way it happened: I was coming home about four o'clock, when just before me in little open space on the ground were five or six robins, supping on some berries. Among them was one white as the driven snow. I could hardly beieve my eyes. Involuntarily I stood still and riveted my gaze on the little albino. The flock lingered several see onds on the ground and then flew, lighting in a tree not far away. I moved earefully till I could command sight of this tree, and in a few minutes I saw them fly again, this time to disappear in the tree tops. The fact which im-pressed me most in my observation of this robin and its companions was that neither the white one nor the redbreasts seemed conscious of any pe culiarity in its appearance. Unlike the white blackbird of the old Latin reader, the bird appeared to be on the most friendly terms with those around it picking up seeds and chirping with the

By fall i will have made a good growth of roots when it may be cut from the main cane, and if strong it may be divided into two plants. This form of layer is illus trated in Figs. 1 and 2. By a little dif ferent treatment of the spring layer a vine may be grown from each bud on the layered cane. For this purpose some thrifty cane should be selected in autumn, pruned of its laterals and buried. In the spring it should be un covered and only one shoot permitted to grow from each joint. After the new growth has started about six inches

BIRD DESTRUCTION. Growing Evil Against Which the Farmers of the Country Should Protest Emphatically.

Through the middle states and in some parts of the south, a mischievous trade is carried on during the winter and the early spring. It is the slaughter of insect-destroying birds, to be sold as "reedbirds" in the city markets. 'Reedbird on toast" is a favorite dish with the epicures; but the epicures selom get the "reedbirds" they order. Authorities at Washington declare that hundreds of thousands of robins, bluebirds, cedar-birds, shore larks and ther insect-eating birds are killed for this purpose every year. A single dealer in Washington received 5,000 robins n one shipment from North Carolina and sold them all as reedbirds.

Not only is the traffic reprehensible is a commercial fraud, but it is a direct and very grave injury to farmers, whose fruit trees, shrubs and crops would be seriously injured, and in some cases uined, if insectiverous birds were exerminated.

Through the work of the men of scince in the government departments at Washington, our farmers are learning the value of insect-destroying birds to their fields and gardens. They are, therefore, neglectful of their own inter-ests if they do not protest against this cruel and ruinous traffic, not only in the name of humanity, but because of the imperative needs of agriculture .-Youth's Companion.

CHICAGO DOG BANKER.

New Tales About Echo, Wh Knows the Value of a Dollar and Is a True Miser.

There is a dog belonging to Mr. Frank Wright, of 113 Cass street, Chicago, who is a veritable banker among animals. He knows the value of money hoards it like a miser and answers to the name of Echo.

He is a silver dog and also a sly dog. If he wore stockings it is certain that he would keep his savings securely tied up and hidden in an old one. As it is, he utilizes cracks between the floors and walls, in bad weather, and during the summer solstice plants his hoards here and there in the back yard and jealously guards them with his beady black eye for fear of possible onslaught from those watchful felines on the Echo is supposed to carry his account in his head, and his buried treasure in no way resembles that of Capt. Kidd's except in its magnitude. The question may have arisen in the mind of the reader: "How does this canine hero make his money o begin with?" His method is unique and final, and came to his consciousness about two years ago, when he had just passed the door of pampered puppyhood. He is idiosyncrasy is accepted as a necessary part of his make-up It is sad to relate, but true, that Echo does not earn his wage by the sweat of his brow, but rather takes advantage of the love his master bears him.

His system is to refuse meat or drink unless he is paid in advance for his part of the transaction. For example, he loves coffee, but will not touch it unless he is favored with

Old Coins

There are thousands of people whose hobby is to collect old coins and stamps Some dates or kinds are easy to get, but others are not so hand. Rich persons making collections gladly pay high prices for kinds of coins and stap ps wanted. It often happens that coins that are hard to find in one part of the country are easily obtained in other places, you may find coins in your locality which are worth big premiums. In big cities there are regular dealers who buy such pieces and sell to collect ors. Thes dealers pay big prices. Our Coin and Stamp Value books tell you all about these; they contain more illustrations than any other coin and stamp book of their size ever issued. These pictures tre of great value to all who are looking up the worth of any specimens. Save all the stamps you find on letters, you can get cash for them, even the common kinds.

Our Set of Coin and Stamp Books contain a complete list of 1200 varieties them; also value of o d stamps. The books also tell to what firms you can sell most advantageously, By sending 10 CENTS in stamps, you will receive the two books by mail. Address all orders to BOOK & NOVELTY CO. Marion, Ky

The "White"

IDDEN by the professional racer, it has proven a winner oftener than any in competition. Ridden by the nonprofessional, by the "scorcher," for business or pleasure, it has a record second to none. Material used in its construction, pains-taking care in manufacturing details, ease in running, and handsome, symmetrical design are a few of its claims for superiority. Reasonable prices, coupled with high values, are characteristics of the "WHITE." Our long established reputation guarantees the excellence of our product.
