

MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

Now than at any other time And Here than at any other place And No Trash at Price.

The time has arrived when we are compelled to clean up stock and get ready for the next season. In every few days new arrival of goods will be reaching us and we must have things in shape to receive them. All Summer Stock Must Take its Departure. It is not a matter of how much our stock is worth, but how quick we can clean our counters. Of course, the only way to make such a clearance is to CUT PRICES, and this we have done with a greater liberality than at any other time yet. Almost every item in our store has come under the reduction knife. Remember this is not a sale of old shop-worn goods, but bright, up-to-date, this season's best and most fashionable Clothing, Furnishings, Dress Goods, and Shoes. Every item printed below will be found a fact. To Disappoint you would be Poor Business Policy.

This is an Opportunity that You will do well to Look into.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

ONE YEAR ONE DOLLAR

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

We are authorized to announce
T. J. NICKEL
a candidate to represent Crittenden and Livingston counties in the next General Assembly of Kentucky. His candidacy is subject to the action of the Democratic party. Election November 1899.

The Post charges Goebel up with the Chinn School Book and the Prison Commission Bills, and gives the evidences of his unfitness for office. Granting, as the Post claims, that Goebel is responsible for these measures, let us see how the account stands. The school book measure was fashioned after the Indiana law. The people of Indiana pay about one third less for their school books, bought under a law similar to the Chinn bill, than do the people of Kentucky for books bought under our present system, and the total saving to the people of Kentucky, could they buy books at the Indiana price, is estimated at $500,000. In other words could Goebel have had his way, the people of this State would have kept $500,000 in their pockets, that they will turn over to the book trust. Let every man who buys a speller for his boy, when schools open, paying 17 cents therefore, remember that practically the same book is purchased by the Indiana school patron for 10 cents. The seven cents saved to the Indiana represents Goebelianism in so far as it applies to school books. If Kentuckians want to keep Goebelianism out of the school book business in this State, they may follow the Post and continue to pay the seven cents royalty to the book trust. Put Goebelianism into the school book business in Kentucky and you save seven cents on every speller, and make a proportionate saving in the purchase of all other books you must buy for your children.

How about the prison commission bill? We have before us a statement from the warden of the branch prison at Eddyville, making a comparison of the cost of that institution to the State in the month of July, 1898, under the old system, and the month of July, 1899, under the new system—or what the Post is pleased to call Goebelianism, and here is the comparison:

Disbursements for July, 1898, $5,664.15
Earnings for July, 1898, $1,677.20
Deficit for July 1898, $3,986.95
Disbursements for July 1899, $5,316.77
Earnings for July 1899, $2,511.99
Deficit for July 1899, $2,804.78
Retrenchments for one month $3,121.78
Number of men confined in hospital July 31, 1898, 33
Number of men confined in hospital July 31, 1899, 40

Here we have a saving to the State of $3,121.78 in one month of Goebelianism. Now if the Post is correct, and the two measures referred to fairly illustrate what the Post is pleased to term Goebelianism, has it not, after all, some commendable features?

The election law has been on the books some little time, but it seems there are some prominent politicians who have just discovered that it is a "pernicious piece of legislation." We have had one State election under the law, and there was no complaint from any source as to its malodorous influence; we had a warm canvass for the Democratic nomination for governor and each candidate and his followers had occasion to discuss every phase of Kentucky politics and not a raised an objection to the law; on the other hand two candidates endorsed it, and Mr. Hardin said that it should not be an issue at all. In the State convention it was endorsed and not a delegate raised his voice against its endorsement. Now, after the State convention is over, and after a persistent effort to nominate the man of their choice on the platform endorsing the law, we find some of the delegates declaring against the law and in glittering generalities talking about the rights of the people being interfered with in that law. And men who were not sworn candidates before that convention, but who had an itching for the "lightning to strike them" as dark horses, and are now seeking the nomination at other hands, are now declaiming against the law. If the law is so pernicious, and so gravely interferes with the rights of the people, why did not these gentlemen raise their voices against it when it was before the legislature? If it was so vicious in its tendencies, why did not these patriotic Democrats, who are swearing allegiance to Jackson and Jefferson, speak out in the canvass months ago, and call upon the Democrats, prior to the Louisville convention, to vote against an endorsement of the law? If the law was a standing menace to the liberties of the people, why did these gentlemen, now so patriotic and so broad gauged, remain so silent on this point while they followed the banner of Stone, who endorsed it, or Hardin, who said it should not be an issue? Had they spoken out while there was still a chance for their favorite to win, or had they resorted to the invective while there was yet an opportunity for the "dark horse" to gallop away with that nomination, there could have been no doubt of the sincerity of their objections. But now after the law has been in vogue all these months, and they had no objections to offer, after the long period of discussion, when the issues for the platform were being shaped, after following their favorites to the last ditch for the nomination on a platform endorsing the law, we must confess that it is somewhat difficult, to say the least of it, to tell whether these gentlemen are really opposed to the law or are endeavoring to boost themselves a little bit.

If the war is really for the purpose of christianizing the Filipinos, the old fashion missionary plan, though a little slower—not much—is cheaper. We paid $20,000,000 to the field in which to work, and have expended many times that amount already, to say nothing of the 750 lives it has cost. Notwithstanding all this, it is doubtful whether the Filipinos think more of our refined, christian civilization now than at the beginning of hostilities, when, after using them to assist us in driving out the Spaniards, we told them to "git."

CHARGED WITH RAPE.

Wm. Bailey Arrested at Paducah and Will Be Brought Here.

Tuesday Sheriff Pickens received a letter from Paducah inquiring if Wm. Bailey was wanted here. There are two indictments against Bailey here, one for rape and the other for assault. The papers were forwarded to the Paducah officers and Bailey will be brought here as soon as they get through with his services at Paducah. He was fined $20 at Paducah for immorality and is settling it on the chain gang.

He has a family in the Dycusburg section, and has been inside of the Crittenden jail before.

The serious charge against him was made by his step-daughter.

Not a Bolter.

FORDS FERRY, Aug. 5.

ED PRESS:—Dear Sir: In your paper of Aug. 3, I see my name on the list as a delegate from that "Bolter" meeting. I want to say I did not know that such a gathering was to be, was not in the county at the time it was held, and am surprised to see the names of some others on that list, whom less my own. I am for Hon. Wm. Goebel for Governor first, last and all the time.

Respectfully,
W. B. WILBORN.

Delegates Elected

The executive committee of the Kentucky Sunday School Association met Monday evening at the C. P. church to elect delegates to the State convention which meets at Louisville, Aug. 29, 30 and 31. The following delegates were elected: Robt. Robinson, Chas. Evans, B. F. Jacobs, G. M. Travis, James Hill, J. H. Morse, C. E. Weldon, J. M. McCaslin, John Sullenger, Rev. W. H. Miley, T. H. Cochran. Please inform the county president at once if you can, that your name may be sent in as a delegate. Call and get your credentials as soon as possible. Committee will meet at the C. P. church Sep. 1st at 3 p. m.

Gill-Terry.

Married at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. J. B. Gill, Wednesday evening Aug. 2, Mr. Clarence E. Terry and Miss Grace Gill, Rev. W. H. Miley, officiating. Many friends witnessed the union, after which the party went to the home of the groom's father, Mr. Zuo Terry, where an elegant supper was served and a reception tendered the bride and groom. A most joyous evening was spent at this hospitable home. The bride is the daughter of one of the best citizens of this section, and she is a lovely and handsome young lady, worthy of the love and homage paid her by the sterling young man who has won her. The groom is an industrious, and prosperous young farmer and justly popular among his many friends.

Marriage License.

Aug. 2—Clarence Terry and Miss Grace Gill.
Aug. 8—David Pruitt Cook and Miss Annie Allen.

Owen Boaz was in town yesterday. The fine rains, he reports, have improved matters in his neighborhood.

ANOTHER TICKET.

THREE STATES

Revaged By Grasshoppers, and Farmers Lose Hevily.

[Denver Spec. Chicago Times-Herald]

Eastern Colorado, Western Nebraska and Kansas are just now in the throes of a grasshopper plague, the worst on record for 15 years. Crops are being devastated and the farmers are driven to distraction by the inroads of the pest, according to reports received at the State Horticultural Department this morning. In fact the grasshoppers are doing so much damage that the entomologists of the three states have decided to hold a meeting to devise a plan to combat them. Prof. L. Bruner, State Entomologist of Nebraska, arrived in Denver at noon from the affected district, and, after a consultation with Mrs. Shute, Secretary of the Horticultural Board, left for Ft. Collins, where he will consult Prof. C. P. Gillette, the Colorado Entomologist, and S. N. Hunter, the Kansas authority on bugs, on some method of getting rid of the pest that is now making life a burden in rain belt country.

Card of Thanks

EDITOR PRESS:—Please permit us through your valuable paper to return our sincere thanks to the many kind friends who so lovingly and willingly assisted us in caring for our dear wife and mother during her fatal illness. May heaven's greatest blessings be with them in our prayers.
A. C. Deboe and family.

Between fifty and sixty lives were lost in two accidents Sunday, one at Bar Harbor, Me., the other at Bridgeport, Conn. At Bar Harbor a gang-plank on which were upward of 200 persons broke in the middle and all fell into the water below. At least twenty-five perished. At Bridgeport a trolley car went off a trestle and sank in the flats forty feet below. The number of victims is estimated all the way from thirty-five to forty.

No Right to Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good looking, charming woman of a run down invalid. Only 50 cents at J. H. Orme's drugstore.

IN MEMORIAM

Emily Faxon Wadlington, Died of Typhoid Fever at Hopkinsville, July 18, 1899.

How inscrutable are thy ways, Oh Lord!

Thou didst give just one lovely flower to a fond mother's keeping. It rested in tenderest nurture on her heart till its leaves unfolded gently, gloriously, shedding fragrance and beauty everywhere.

Then, in its white purity, too soon broken from its stem, it fell from that mother's bosom into Eternity's vast abyss.

The flower floats on those pure waters, to be gathered again after the dreamless night of long repose. But there is a grave and a pall; one yawning so wide between the loved and lost, one with its heavy folds, yet full of tenderest memories.

Tread we softly, reverently, and strew the flowers of love on the grave of this fair young being, who, 'were every one for whom she did some loving service, to bring a blossom, would sleep tonight beneath a wild rose of flowers.

Death lies on her like an untimely frost upon the sweetest flower of all the field.

Remember we are selling calico at 5 cents per yard.

If you want a nice black dress we have a piece that we are selling at $1 per yard. No merchant in this town dares to keep anything near so fine, and merchants in other towns will charge you $1.25 per yard for same, this is no lie or rigger news, but facts. Come and see for yourself.

COMMISSIONER'S LAND SALE.

I will on Monday, August 14, 1899 at the court house door in Marion, Ky., sell to the highest bidder on a credit of six months, the place known as the old Allen Walker farm in Bell's Mines precinct. It will be sold in two tracts, No. 1, on left of Morganfield road, containing 45 1/2 acres. No. 2, on right of road containing 42 acres. Purchaser required to give bond.

L. W. CRUCE, Com'r.

Wheat!

I have very fine wheat and well matured, have grown it for two years. Seed originated by J. A. Everett, seedman, Indianapolis, Ind., and I find it a sure crop yielder, forming quite a turf of roots, and its stalling qualities makes it the wheat for our and adjoining section. Wheat $1.00 per bushel.

H. L. ELDER.

There is no ? About it.

No question indeed with those who have used it, but that Foley's Kidney Cure is absolutely reliable for all Kidney and Bladder diseases.

P. Lites and "Joss swapping" seem to be about the same kind of business in some respects. The idea seems to be, as David Harum expresses it: "Do unto the other fellow the way he'd like to do unto you—an' do it fust."

Wonderful! Marvelous!

are expressions frequently heard about Foley's Kidney Cure. Do not fail to try this great remedy for all kidney trouble.

Kidney Dyspepsia Cure completely digests food within the stomach and intestines and renders all classes of food capable of being assimilated and converted into strength giving and tissue building substances.

Hughey was born in this county near Piney Fork church, was educated at umbarland University, and preached for several years at Bethlehem and Fredonia. Since that time he has been past of the C. P. church in several important cities in Indiana and Illinois. We hope he may have a good audience.

Deaths.

Mrs. James Belt, an old and well known citizen died at his home in Tolu Tuesday night, after some weeks illness of typhoid fever. He was a blacksmith, and had followed that trade at Tolu for some years. He came from Hardin county, Ill.

Miss Dedie Sullivan died at the home of her father, Mr. H. L. Sullivan, near Belle Mines Sunday afternoon. The funeral took place Monday, Rev. Love of Caseyville officiating.

Mrs. A. C. Deboe died at her home two miles northeast of Fredonia Thursday after an illness of several months. She contracted measles last spring and from this she never fully recovered, the disease seemed to have settled on her lungs and she gradually grew worse until the end came peacefully Thursday, when surrounded by friends and loved ones she passed away.

Funeral services were held at the residence, Rev. J. S. Henry delivering an appropriate and touching discourse to the large crowd of relatives, friends and neighbors who gathered to pay the last sad tribute of respect to one whom they had so long known, loved and admired for her many virtues.

The interment took place at the Freeman graveyard.

Mrs. Deboe was 52 years old; her husband and eight children survive her. She was a sister of our fellow townsman, Mr. Jas. M. Freeman.

Mr. Wright, who lived near Mr. A. H. Cardin, died Monday, and his remains were shipped to Pennsylvania for burial. He moved here with his wife about a year ago from near Pittsburgh.

A child of Mr. Lee Gray died at his home in this city Monday.

Residence Burned.

The residence of Mr. John Kemp, of the Shady Grove neighborhood, was destroyed by fire last Wednesday. Practically all of the contents of the house was lost. It is not known how the fire originated, probably from a defective flue. The building was insured for $600, and its contents for $800.

Raised the License.

At the meeting of the city council Tuesday night, the ordinances were amended changing saloon license from $500 to $750, and drugist license to sell liquor from $250 to $300. As we have no saloons the raising of the license would seem to indicate that the council believes that it will not always be thus.

County Judge Rochester wants to find good homes for four children. Their parents are unable to provide for them, and want to bind them to persons who will give them good homes. One is a bright girl of eight years, and the other three are boys, three, four and six years old. All are healthy, intelligent children. For other information see the county judge.

Damage Suit.

Mr. W. T. Williams and wife have filed suit against the Singer Manufacturing Company for damage. The petition states that two of the defendants' agents and servants were sent to the plaintiff's house, and while there acting in line of duty, they used profane, insulting and threatening language to and in the presence of Adeline Williams one of the plaintiffs, and in the absence of her husband, greatly frightened her, thereby shocking her nervous system, causing her to be sick three weeks, that by said wrongful acts of defendants said agents and servants she suffered great pain and distress, damaging the plaintiffs in the sum of $500.

Successful Meeting.

A successful ten days meeting closed with Sulphur Springs church Aug. 3. About twenty professions, and seventeen additions to the church. Others will join soon. The pastor had the efficient assistance of Eld. J. S. Miller, of Smithland, Ky.

Respectfully, R. A. LaRue.

Deeds Recorded.

FRED CARTY HURT.

An Engine Runs Over His Arm and Leg

Thursday evening Fred Carty, a son of Dr. J. H. Carty, of the Hurricane neighborhood, had a close call for his life. He had been running an engine with a threshing machine when going down a hill with the engine, young Carty locked and took a seat upon one of the wheels. The chain which locked the wheel broke and as the wheel turned Carty was thrown forward to the ground and the wheel passed over him. It was thought he was crushed to death, but when examined by Dr. Dixon it was found that there were ugly contusions at one knee and at one elbow, and the wheel did not pass over his body. The wounded boy was taken to his father's Saturday, and will recover, though the bruised limbs are in a bad condition.

THE OLD CEMETERY

To Be Cleaned Off Saturday August 26th.

The old cemetery at Marion is the last resting place of many of our friends, and we owe it to their memory as well as to ourselves to keep it in good condition—in a condition that we would not be ashamed of were our dead to come back and test our love for their memory by the manner in which we kept their silent dwelling place. This cemetery has not always been kept in a way that we would feel proud of, and at the solicitation of persons interested and after a conference with quite a number, it has been decided to ask all who are interested in the cemetery, and especially those who have friends buried there, to meet there on Saturday August 26, for the purpose of cleaning off the ground. Let all come as early as 8:30 a. m., and bring moving blades, briar scythes and good sharp sprouting hoes. Come to do a good day's work, and bring your dinner with you. Let all who read this notice tell their friends of the gathering and its purpose and urge all to come.

I have been requested to take charge of the work, and sincerely hope that all will come.

Respectfully, W. D. HAYNES.

Piney Creek Meeting.

The brethren met at Piney Creek Baptist church the fourth Sunday in July, Rev. Bentley preaching that day, then Brother Waters preached the three following days which revived the church very much. Rev. J. B. Wallace, of Blackford, who had been called to assist in the meeting came in Wednesday evening and preached, and continued to labor with us for eight days. There were five conversions, and many others at the anxious seat, deeply interested for their eternal welfare. But this does not tell all the good done. One of the marked features of the meeting was the visit and power of the Holy Spirit. The church greatly revived and quickened in interest, and all Christians were greatly impressed with the force, character and loyalty to God and the truth, so earnestly preached by Bro. Wallace. The services closed leaving great many anxiously inquiring for salvation.

Bro. Wallace has the prayers and best wishes of the church and community.

Rev. Bentley was present the last days of the service, and by his earnest talks and prayers, assisted in the meeting.

On the following Saturday the church at its regular session called Rev. Wallace as pastor.

J. B. M.

Pleasant Hill.

The annual eight day meeting began at Pleasant Hill church Sunday. Eld. T. P. Moore, of Sardis, Tenn., is assisting the pastor Eld. J. R. Clark. There will be two services each day, at 10 a. m., and 2 p. m., and the congregation will take dinner each day on the grounds. This is always looked forward to with interest by the people of that neighborhood, and everybody attends the meeting, which usually results in much good.

Pleasant Hill is a Primitive Baptist church and has no connection with any other ecclesiastical body even of that denomination. It was organized in 1853 with thirteen members, and was identified with the original Little River Association of Primitive Baptists until 1870, when Pleasant Hill was dropped from the Association. Some years after its organization, the subject Re-baptism presented itself to Pleasant Hill, and after investigation the brethren saw that the ordinance of baptism as administered by the Missionary Baptist was legal, it being on the same principles and under the same constitution as that of the Regular Baptist. Having determined this the church received two members from the Missionary Baptist without Re-baptism.

Muddy Fork and Dry Fork objected to this and correspondence followed but the matter was amicably adjusted without a disruption of the Association. In 1870 Muddy Fork and Dry Fork objected to the doctrines preached by Rev. P. L. H. Walker, who was then pastor of Pleasant Hill, and called upon his church to disavow the doctrines which they denominated "heresy." The church declined to do this, but stood by its pastor, and the Association withdrew its fellowship from Pleasant Hill, since which time the latter has belonged to no association. In 1889 a history was published, and from that we take the following:

"The true charges preferred against us by Muddy Fork and Dry Fork church:

1st. That it is by and through the instrumentality of preaching the gospel that sinners are quickened into life.

2nd. That God had sent the gospel to save sinners, that God required every individual to obey it and they could not obey it, and God sent them to hell because they did not.

3rd. That by the death and sufferings of Jesus Christ the way was made possible.

Now, dear brethren, several years have passed, during which time we have thought much upon the above, notwithstanding the Association failed to tender us the sympathy we think a Christian council should have done, however we realize the fulfillment of Paul to the Rom. viii. 28, and we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose. We are looked upon by some as being cast off, and in fact we do feel somewhat alone but, however, we have evidence to believe the Lord has strengthened and blessed us out of his abundant mercies while undergoing those afflictions. The question has often been asked, to whom will you go? Will you join the Missionaries or go back to the Original Little River Association? We can do neither as we understand. Without leaving Primitive faith and sacrificing Apostolic practice and principles, for we believe both parties have departed to some extent. Therefore we feel persuaded to follow neither one but hope and pray that we may be led by the spirit of God in the strait and narrow path, ever endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace, according to the commandments of the Lord. We realize that we are living a strait; that is between Arminianism and Anti-nomianism. The people have watched us closely, thinking we would fall upon one or the other but we hope the Lord will keep us in the narrow path, notwithstanding it is humiliating to the flesh, for we believe the Lord Jesus traveled that way and bids us follow him. He was not an extremist but was temperate, meek and humble in all things. Then if we are living in a strait, we hope to ever be striving to enter in at the strait gate that Jesus told his disciples to strive to enter in at. We love the doctrine of salvation by grace through faith in Christ, therefore cannot afford to adopt Arminianism, Antinomianism, Eternal Two-Seedism or Non-Resurrectionism to maintain a standing or name among sect. We have many trials some of which are hard for us to bear. But thank the Lord, his blessings have ever been extended unto us. The following are the statistics of the Association and Pleasant Hill church according to the Minutes of 1870, the year in which they were drawn from Pleasant Hill church, the whole Association embracing nine churches, Pleasant Hill included. No. 208, Pleasant Hill, 41. In the year 1878, the Association still numbering nine churches, having Zion, No. 195; Pleasant Hill 60. In 1888 the Association still embracing nine churches, No. 183, with three ordained ministers, Pleasant Hill at same date No. 80, with ordained ministers.

As before stated, the church was organized A. D., 1853, and called Eld. P. L. H. Walker to the pastoral care at her first meeting after organization. He served the church from that time until his death which occurred April 15, 1886, making 33 years, during which time he proved a faithful servant of the church and an able minister of the gospel of Christ both in word and spirit, and stood our defense during all our trials, and by the help of the Lord, was able to set forth the doctrine of Christ beyond successful contradiction among his brethren, though it was contradicted, but without success. We praise the Lord for his protecting care; bless His holy name for such faithful watchmen upon the walls of Zion, who are able to feed the flock, and give warning and protection against the intrusion of the enemy. Notwithstanding the Lord saw fit to call the dear old Brother home, to reap his reward, we feel that the Lord is yet mindful of us and has called from among us three brethren to the work of the ministry. They having gifts differing but all manifesting that it is the same spirit and we hope they will prove faithful to the cause of Christ, and we pray that the Lord may ever give them grace sufficient to come off conquerors through him who said, "I will not suffer you to be tempted above that which you are able to bear."

Now, in conclusion, we will say, we have not written this defense in malice, or ill will toward anyone, neither in a boasting way, but in the love and defense of the truth, and desire that the Lord may enable each one under whose notice this may fall to read it with an unbiased mind as searching for the truth as it is Jesus, and try it by the Scriptures and if anything is found herein that is heretical, receive it not. It is not our intention to lead men astray, knowing we have to render an account to Him who knoweth all things whether good or bad, and be judged according to the deeds done in the body. We desire that peace, love and fellowship may abound among the Primitive Baptist everywhere, that we could all worship God in spirit and truth—God is a spirit and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth—knowing many good brethren are under false impressions in regard to our faith. We have heard brethren express themselves, when visiting us, that they had been wrongfully informed concerning our faith, but rejoiced with us in the doctrine of salvation by grace. For this reason we place this before the public that others may know our standing and do likewise. We love to meet with our brethren in the Lord. We will say to our brethren in the ministry, that our doors are ever open to those who come in the name and strength of Israel's God, proclaiming life and salvation, through a crucified Redeemer. Our regular meeting days are 2nd Sunday and Saturday before, monthly; also preaching 4th Sundays. We are in peace among ourselves; the attendance on meeting day is tolerably good, although brethren are not as attentive and zealously interested in the cause of Christ as we would wish to see them. May the God of heaven will in each of His children to will and do of His good pleasure, is our prayer for Christ's sake. Amen."

The church now has a membership of 136, and three ordained ministers.

Mrs. H. A. Ingram

Will open her class in music in the early part of September. She wants a few earnest pupils in both voice culture and instrumental music. Her methods of teaching and her courses of study are of the best, and she promises satisfaction to all who become her patrons. Young ladies wishing to become skilled performers or to cultivate their voices should avail themselves of the opportunities she offers. Young ladies desiring to become music teachers would do well to place themselves under her direction and instruction a year and learn the methods that invariably give her eminent success wherever she teaches. The following testimonial is deemed appropriate just here.

To the ladies of Marion: This will introduce to you Mrs. H. A. Ingram, of Enfield, Ill., whom we have known for some time, and we take great pleasure in recommending Mrs. Ingram as music teacher. Any favors shown her will be appreciated by us. Very Respectfully, ESTHER BROS.

GRIEVANCE OF A DEAD MAN

An Uncommon and Hair-Raising Adventure in a Lonely Farm House.

A VERY LIVELY CORPSE

Chopped His Wife and Her Lover in the Head With an Axe and Left Between Two Suns.

The Poison With Which She Had Dosed Him Did Not Have the Desired Effect—Heed a Bloody Descentment With the Guilty Couple Which Gratified Him.

"Forty years or more ago," said a business man from an Ohio town, "I was a sprightly young adventurer of 25 years on my way from the State of New York to that point in the midst of the Buckeyes where I finally stopped and made a pretty fair success of myself. I was poor and was working my way along from place to place, without any particular object in view except the remote one of reaching the Western Reserve, where I had friends, unless something better turned up on the way. I had got well along through western Pennsylvania, and having gathered in a few dollars extra at one small village I concluded I would move on to a larger and better one, fifty miles to the west, through a very sparsely populated and wild section."

"I started on my journey shortly after sun-up one day and made very good progress until 2 o'clock, when a storm arose and I took refuge in a house of logs and weatherboarding, more pretensions than others I had seen on the road, but its situation was lonelier than any I had been by that day, and I could see through the cloudy moonlight that beyond the few acres of clearing it occupied it was practically in the midst of the woods. I knocked, and the door was opened promptly by a comely looking woman, who showed some signs of alarm at my appearance, though she opened the door so quickly that I almost thought she had been looking for me. She did not ask me to come in, but I told her I was lost and muddy and tired and hungry and sleepy, and begged her to accommodate me for the night. She said she was sorry but she couldn't do it. I asked her how far it was to the next house, and when she told me it was three miles I told her she would have to take me in whether she could or not, because I was utterly clobbered out and couldn't walk a rod further. She hesitated a while, and finally said I could stay if I didn't have any place to sleep in a room with a corpse. I wasn't exactly looking for that sort of a roommate, and the proposition startled me so much that I was tired enough to have slept in a morgue, and I told her it would be all right if she would brace me up with a bite of supper."

"At last I opened my eyes wide and lay watching the figure on the table between me and the dim light on the mantel. While so engaged I saw a movement under the sheet, and before I had time to think of ghosts or realize what was occurring the corpse pushed the sheet down in front of him and beckoned for me to come over."

"Instantly the corpse sat up, listening and I could see it was a well-built party, not much emaciated for a dead man. I thought, and on the whole, not had looking. I listened, too, and could hear his wife and a man in the next room talking and finally, after a few minutes, they went into the room from the other side of the main apartment in the center of the house, where we could not even hear their voices. Then the man on the table turned his attention to me, having thrown aside the sheet and sat up. He was attired in his best, but he had a funeral, but was in his stocking feet, and asked me to get his boots out of the cupboard, which I did. He then went on to tell me, hurriedly and scarcely above a whisper, that he had heard me come in and knew I was a stranger and he wanted me to stand by him in case he needed assistance. He said that the woman was his wife and the man with her was a neighbor who wanted to marry her, and that they had conspired together to poison him, the husband, so as to get him safely out of the way. The poison worked all right up to a certain point, but in the twenty-four hours that he had been 'laying out' it had lost its grip somewhat and he was not feeling particularly strong and healthy just then, he said, but he thought he could have a settlement with the guilty couple that would be some gratification to him."

"Having explained this much to me, he asked me to wait until he came back or should call for me, and taking an axe that stood in the corner by the fireplace, he went out of the room. "What happened during the next ten minutes I do not know, but at the end of that time the man came back without the axe, and telling me that everything was all right, asked me to join him in the main room while he got something to eat and especially something to drink. He asked me to drink with him, which I did, and also asked me to hold open his carpet bag while he filled it with such things as he might need on a journey. He suggested at the same time that it might perhaps be just as well if I asked no questions."

"Sixteen months afterward I had reached Ohio then, the newspapers, not so surprising or numerous as they now are, contained a story of the finding of two skeletons in a lonely house in a remote section of western Pennsylvania, and near them an axe with bloodstains on it."

"I have often wondered why that man did not set the fire when we left it, and I can account for his not doing so on no other ground than that he did not want to make me a witness to any criminal act of his, partly for his own sake and partly for mine. He was a gentleman, and very considerate of my feelings, whatever he might have been or seemed to be to others."

A HONOLULU BELLE

Miss Helen Wilder, Heiress to Sugar Mills—Beautiful and Eccentric.

Honolulu, the city of the Pacific Isles, has a policeman. Her name is Helen Wilder. She is a beauty and the heiress of many millions made in Hawaiian sugar. She is twenty-three years old.

Miss Wilder is a regularly appointed special officer of the Hawaiian police force. She wears a soft felt hat on which glitters the silver star that proclaims her a policeman. She also carries a revolver and is not afraid to use it. She has made several arrests unaided.

The honor of being a policeman was not forced upon Miss Wilder. To be exact she solicited it. The Hawaiian heiress loves children and animals, and it was to protect her small and lovely friends that she asked an appointment on the police force.

It was reported recently that the captain of a steamer which had put into port at Honolulu had mistreated his children. Miss Wilder boarded the ship and found that for a slight offense the captain had locked the children in a stateroom for several days, keeping them on a bread and water diet. To the astonishment of the protest captain she promptly marched him down the gangplank and straight to jail.

Recently Miss Wilder has come into the courts through her zeal as a "cop." She detected one Olaf Hollefson, a street car driver, in the act of driving a mule whose shoulder was bleeding from a chafing collar. She ordered him to leave his car and passengers and go with her to the police station, where she had him "booked" for cruelty to animals.

Hollefson claimed that as Miss Wilder had no warrant the arrest was illegal. She refused to be deterred. The courts decided in favor of Miss Wilder. Miss Wilder is a belle. She can dance like a fairy. She is just mistress of the feminine art of coquetry. Two men testify, in gloom of spirit, to the fact that she is an adept at the game of hearts.

She rides a horse with the daring of a vaquero. She handles the reins with the ease and dexterity of a stage driver. She swims and rows with the grace and strength of a Kanaka. But wherever she is or whatever she may be doing she carries a pair of handcuffs to snap on the wrists of the enemies of children and animals. News has recently been received of San Francisco that Miss Wilder has been married.

One of the important things of the United States who, from an unwillingness to work or take part in the various concerns of life, has acquired a reputation among his neighbors for being trifling, should enquire at once to Mexico. Life there seems to want about as serious an aspect as a comic opera, and such a citizen would be looked upon as a worthy addition to the chorus.

One of the important things of Mexico is to own a game cock, and on Sunday mornings if you leave him tied by the leg to a convenient awning post while you attend services in the church, you will excite no comment among your neighbors. In fact, the value of the prize is often the result of the crowing out of the street. Cock-fighting and bull-fighting, however, are not the same thing. The relative places in the affections of the Mexican as baseball and football hold in the American heart, and Sunday afternoon games are reserved for them.

The policeman in a Mexican town is an official of importance and dignity. His uniform may be dirty and ragged, but he wears a cartridge belt and six-shooter in addition to his club, and is usually seen with a cigarette in his mouth. Five or six of these worthies will drag a poor trembling wretch to the police station with a flourish worthy of the capture of a brigand.

The Mexican wears a hat covered with gold and silver braid, that is usually worth more than all the rest of his and his family's wardrobe, and it is this, together with the gay-striped blanket and the swagger of the fellow, that gives him such an air of swagger make-up.

It is always dangerous to judge the people of a town by those most in evidence on the street, but if I were called upon to set a valuation of the people I saw in some of these Mexican towns I should be tempted to make my calculations by the dozen or hundred rather than by the single native. With all their show of bravado, these men nor women are much given to gay colors. Black and white predominate, but the bright sun makes it all gay and festive.

When a Mexican grows old he seems to shrink up until there is little to be seen of him but a big hat and a serap of blanket pulled tight over his meagre shoulders. His beard and hair stand out white and distinct from his dark, shriveled face, which looks like that of a mummy in its frame of white. Life in one of these towns is as absolutely different from what one sees in an American village as though it were a bit of Egypt or India. Yet it may be seen at the end of a three-day's journey from almost any of the Eastern and Northern States, and is well worth the journey.—Harper's Weekly.

STRANGE RAILWAY CRIME

A Robbery Which Could Not Occur in an American Train.

A daring attempt, under novel circumstances, to rob or murder a passenger in a train is reported to have occurred in the Bordeaux-Paris express recently. M. Albert Roux, a Parisian lawyer, was returning to the capital from the south, and in order to be able to sleep on the journey he had taken a seat in a coupe carriage, in which he was the only passenger. As soon as the train had started on its journey, M. Roux made preparations to lie down, and was dozing, when he was awakened by a peculiar odor, which seemed to have suddenly invaded the compartment, and which, according to M. Roux, resembled spirits of wine. As he had a small spirit lamp in his traveling bag, M. Roux thought this might have got broken. As he was getting up to inspect it, M. Roux noticed a man on the footboard of his carriage, endeavoring to open the door, which, fortunately, was also locked from the inside. M. Roux drew his revolver which he had in his pocket and pulled the alarm, the train being brought to a standstill between St. Sulpice and Vauvres. Meanwhile, the man had disappeared from the footboard, and, as he was not to be found in the train after a careful inspection, it was presumed that he jumped down as the train drew up, and made off across country.

The next carriage to that which M. Roux had occupied, however, a discovery was made which leaves no doubt as to the intentions of this mysterious passenger. A small hole had been drilled through the division which separated the compartments. Through this hole a glass tube had been introduced, and some pieces of India rubber tubing which had been left on the seat showed that chloroform had been poured into the carriage. The hole had been calculated that the chloroform would fall close to the sleeping passenger's nostrils. Had that he would have thus become overpowered. Having given the anaesthetic time to act, the thief, it is surmised, got out of his carriage, and in the meantime the carriage occupied by M. Roux to rob him. M. Roux was able to give to the police a careful description of this individual, whom he had previously noticed at Bordeaux station, and who seemed desirous of getting in the same compartment with him. The police have scoured the surrounding country, but up to the present time have been unable to find any trace of the culprit.

Famous Poison Case. The first poison case in which strychnine, a poison of this century, was used was that of Walrigh, whose deeds Dickens has related and who effected the murder of Miss Abbercrombie in 1820. The second strychnine case was that of William Palmer, who murdered young Cook in 1856. This trial is regarded as one of the most famous poisoning cases of the century. At the trial the theory was promulgated that strychnine had been detected in the body of a victim after death by any known test. It afterward turned out that, relying on an alleged statement to that effect, made at Palmer's trial by Dr. Taylor, the eminent authority on poisons, William Dore, who became the defendant in the case, had been misled to poison his wife with strychnine. At the present day, however, it is certainly not true that there is no strychnine test, for it is a well-known fact that the "color test," so-called, a certain succession of colors is produced, the presence of strychnine is said to be determined by a double test. Strychnine in a fatal quantity can be so minutely distributed in the system that the failure of this test to produce the proper color is no sign that the poison is not present.

In the Palmer case, however, the prosecution was obliged to rely for proof that Cook had been poisoned almost entirely on the observed symptoms of the illness, which, when through carelessness or through the imperfection of the appliances used, the body furnished no certain evidence of the presence of strychnine. The story of the case was as follows: John Parsons Cook, on coming into his fortune of £12,000, abandoned his profession of law and took to the turf. Here his intimacy with Palmer began. At this time the latter, a surgeon by profession but now occupying a position of training race horses, was in severe pecuniary straits. His wife's fortune being only for her life, he had incurred every loss of £13,000, at a premium exceeding his yearly income, and, strangely enough, within nine months the fortune was gone. He had, therefore, three months afterward he tried to effect insurance on the life of his brother Walter, a confirmed drunkard, for the enormous sum of £20,000, but the insurance officers were suspicious and rejected his application.

The insurance money from his wife did not keep him long afloat. In 1854 he had discounted bills to the amount of nearly £12,000, to every one of which he had forged the acceptance of his mother, and these bills were all due or maturing in November, 1855, the month of the murder. On November 13, Cook's horse, Poolester, won at Shrewsbury races, and £1,700 fell to Cook, in cash or bills, payable in seven days. On Wednesday, the 21st, Cook lay dead, his pocketbook was empty, and his betting book was not to be found. Beginning with November 14, Cook had shown symptoms of illness, and toward Monday night, the 19th, was seized with convulsions, accompanied by stiffness of muscles and intense agony, recurring at times until his death on Wednesday. His body at death was so bowed that when placed on the back it rested on the head and feet. This was the characteristic and terrible symptom of strychnine poisoning. Though other physicians attended Palmer, intimate as he was with Cook, he was constantly at hand and administered to him, among other things, coffee, brandy and pills. After his taking each of these an attack of vomiting ensued. It was proved that on Monday and Tuesday, the days preceding Cook's death, Palmer had made purchases of strychnine pills; he had given so reason at the time, nor was he able to account for the pills.

The trial lasted twelve days, filling the minds of all England, and the justice of the verdict of "guilty" has never been impugned.

A Word to Doctors

We have the highest regard for the medical profession. Our preparations are not sold for the purpose of antagonizing them, but rather as an aid. We lay it down as an established truth that internal remedies are positively injurious to expectant mothers. The distress and discomforts experienced during the months preceding childbirth can be alleviated only by external treatment—by applying a liniment that softens and relaxes the over-strained muscles. We make and sell such a liniment, combining the ingredients in a manner hitherto unknown, and call it

Mother's Friend

We know that in thousands of cases it has proved more than a blessing to expectant mothers. It overcomes morning sickness. It relieves the sense of tightness. Headaches cease, and danger from Swollen, Hard and Rising Breasts is avoided. Labor itself is shortened and short of most of the pain.

We know that many doctors recommend it, and we know that multitudes of women go to the drug stores and buy it because they are sure their physicians have no objections. We ask a trial—just a fair test. There is no possible chance of injury being the result, because Mother's Friend is scientifically compounded. It is sold in a bottle, and should be used during most of the period of gestation, although great relief is experienced if used only a short time before childbirth. Send for our illustrated book about Mother's Friend.

Southern Manufacturing Co.,

The "White"

RIDDEN by the professional racer, it has proven a winner oftener than any in competition. Ridden by the non-professional, by the "scorcher," for business or pleasure, it has a record second to none. Material used in its construction, pains-taking care in manufacturing details, ease in running, and handsome, symmetrical design are a few of its claims for superiority. Reasonable prices, coupled with high values, are characteristics of the "WHITE." Our long established reputation guarantees the excellence of our product.
