THE CHIEFTAIN IS DEAD.

Kentucky Mourns as She Has Never Mourned Before.

Thousands at his Grave in Frankfort To-day.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 3—"Tell my friends to be brave and fearless, and loyal to the great common people."

With this last ringing message on his lips William Goebel, Governor of Kentucky, sank into a stupor which ended in death at 6:45 o'clock this evening.

The work of the assassin was complete; a leader among men was gone and a Commonwealth teeming with brave hearts was in mourning and in tears.

Thus early in his public career was cut short the life of a statesman, brave and true, and with the will and the ability to have made the greatest Chief Executive Kentucky has ever known.

ALL FRANKFORT IN TEARS.

After hours of anxious waiting, when the silent throng without the chamber caught the first whispered message, "Governor Goebel is dead," there was a sob, another, then another, and another, as the message sped its way until all of Frankfort was in tears. Stunt met, to whose eyes a William Goebel, and few were those about that chamber of death who sought to hide their grief.

Judges of the highest courts, legislators, politicians, guards, who had stood their faithful watch through sleepless days and nights; women, whose gentle hands ministered to the last wants of Democracy's courageous leader; citizens high and low joined in this sad chorus of grief as though their all had gone with Goebel.

A MARTYR'S WORDS.

Yet there rang in the ears of some those words, like unto a martyr's which he in the strength and the vigor of young manhood uttered only last Sabbath day upon being warned against assassination:

"If they kill me, my death will be to the Democracy of Kentucky what the blowing up of the Maine was to Cuba."

A martyr's words they were indeed; but even such a consolation could live only for a moment in the hearts of men so sorely stricken.

Now that he is gone, his name will be recorded in the roll of Kentucky Democracy's leaders, and had he lived longer there was promise of its taking a place among the nation's great, for the depth of William Goebel's capacity had not yet been measured.

LEFT TO HIS FAMILY.

At 6:10 p. m. Dr. Hume left the dying man's bedside and reported to the throngs of anxious watchers in the corridors of the hotel that death was a matter of but a few moments time. The oxygen treatment was used constantly in a desperate effort to keep Mr. Goebel alive until Justice Goebel's arrival, but no effort was made to arouse the unconscious man.

As Dr. Hume departed from the room the afflicted brother and sister turned to Dr. McCormack and requested that they be left entirely alone with their brother, who was fast sinking, and to both physicians apparently in articulo mortis.

NO SIGN OF RECOGNITION.

The physicians silently withdrew, closed the door behind them, and the grief-stricken brother and sister knelt at his bedside, their eyes fastened upon the half-open eyes of the unconscious man. He could give no sign of further recognition, and yet he was not absolutely unconscious. Scarcely breathing, themselves the brother and sister bent over the death bed listening to the short, sharp gasps of death, and praying that the life might be spared until their brother, Justus, of Arizona, could arrive. Their prayers were in vain. Even as they watched the pulsations became slower and slower, gradually but steadily growing weaker, and with a slight quiver of the eyelids, one breath deeper than the rest, a pause, a gasp, and the life that had been battling so valiantly against the assassin's bullet since last Tuesday morning, flickered out.

DEATH HAD CLAIMED HIM

Death had claimed its victim and the brother and sister bowed by sorrow whose pangs were intensified by the knowledge that a few miles away hurrying to them was their brother Justus, who would arrive too late, at dawn upon the deathbed alone with their dead. Not a sound emanated from the room to appraise the anxious watchers in the hotel corridor without that Mr. Goebel has passed away.

The stricken brother and sister looked at their watches as the minutes flew by, fearing the truth, yet wondering at the long silence. Finally at 7:20 the train bearing Justus Goebel pulled into Frankfort.

DEATH WAS PAINLESS.

With tears streaming from his eyes, Mr. Goebel was conducted to the chamber where lay his brother. The rap at the door was answered by Arthur Goebel, who silently drew his brother within and again closed the door. Five minutes later Arthur Goebel again opened the door and motioned to the two physicians.

"He died at 6:45 o'clock, painlessly," was all he said, and closed the door.

PEOPLE MOCKED, THOUGH PREPARED

Soon afterward handbills were printed and circulated, announcing Gov. Goebel's death. With tear strained eyes, this notice was scanned. Since 1 o'clock death had been expected, and while not a surprise, its coming was none the less a shock. Franklin county almost belonged to Goebel.

Her citizens, with whom he had associated during his long service of 12 years in the State Senate, loved him as a man and as a party leader. They showed it in their personal association with him and in their indorsement at the polls in November. So when the morning came and they learned of the fatal change in his condition during the night, the lobby and the hall of the Capitol Hotel were kept crowded with anxious men and women inquiring for the latest news and waiting for the end.

Within an hour after the death of Gov. Goebel, Lieut. Gov. J. C. W. Beckham was sworn in as Governor. He issued a proclamation ordering the militia to disperse, and has also issued a proclamation to the people of Kentucky urging coolness and strict obedience to the law in the present crisis. He issued an order removing Adj. Gen. Collier from office. He has appointed Gen. John B. Castleman Adj. General, and Gen. Castleman has accepted.

At 12 o'clock Thursday the funeral services will be held. The sermon will be conducted by the Rev. Thomas Arnold, Christian minister of Frankfort; the William Stanley, a Christian minister of Nicholasville, and the Rev. Charles Mann, a Methodist minister of Paris. The ministers were close friends to the Governor. They admired his manly traits and his sterling character and loved him for his honesty and integrity.

Messrs. Stanley and Mann will arrive in Frankfort tomorrow. The funeral cortege will move from the Capitol Hotel to the State cemetery, where the body will be interred close to the graves of Govs. Shelby and Blackburn. At the graves short prayer will be said and a speech will be made over the body of the dead Governor by Senator elect Jo C. S. Blackburn.

At 1 o'clock the casket will be lowered into the grave and a mound of freshly turned clay will mark the resting place of William Goebel, one of Kentucky's most distinguished chief executives.

A monument will be erected there, and those who knew the distinguished leader well say the time will come when the people of Kentucky will bow in reverence at its base and look upon the sodded mound as the resting place of Kentucky's martyr Governor, the man whose last words were uttered in defense of the great common people.

When Gov. Goebel realized that the end was near he sent for John Hendricks, and the following scene occurred:

Mr. Goebel asked:
"Am I governor of Kentucky?"

"You are."

"Have you examined the question?"

"I have, and all the other lawyers who have investigated the question concur with me."

"That is all right," said Mr. Goebel.

"Gov. Goebel," said Mr. Hendricks, "was perfectly rational. He did not have any thought for himself only for the democratic party."

And as Mr. Hendricks told of this wonderful scene, tears welled up in his eyes. The dying man was his old time friend, fellow-senator and room mate for four years, confidential counselor, one of his chief, trusted, personal friends.

SENATOR DEBOE TO TAYLOR.

You Will by Forcible Resistance Alienate All Who Formerly Sympathized with Your Case.

Washington, D. C., February 4, 1900.—Hon. W. S. Taylor: The unanimous sentiment here is that you are wrong in preventing the Legislature from meeting, and that you should submit the disputed questions to the civil courts. Federal assistance can not be given you on your requisition so long as the Legislature is in session or can be convened. There is no doubt but what it can be convened if you will permit. The Democrats intend that if any violence occurs, you will be the aggressor. You will by forcible resistance alienate all who formerly sympathized with your case. No assistance. Answer.
W. J. DEBOE.

THE AGREEMENT

Entered Into Between the Democrat and Republican Attorneys.

At a meeting of the attorneys for both sides in Louisville, the following agreement was made:

First—That if the General Assembly in joint session shall adopt a resolution ratifying their recent action adopting the contest reports seating Goebel and Beckham, the contestees, W. S. Taylor and John Marshall, shall submit without further protest.

Second—That all parties shall unite in an effort to bring about such a modification of the election law as will

Third—That the conditions shall remain in statu quo until Monday, the General Assembly meeting and adjourning from day to day until that time.

Fourth—That nothing shall be done to hinder or prevent a joint session of the General Assembly for taking action on the ratification resolution.

Fifth—That the State Contest Board shall meet and adjourn from day to day until Tuesday without taking any action on the contests for minor State officer.

Sixth—That the State troops shall be removed from the State capital at once, though with all the necessary precautions for public safety.

Seventh—That the Republican officials and officers of the State Guard shall have immunity from charges of treason, usurpation, court-martial or any other such offenses.

The agreement was signed by the following: T. L. Edelen, Dr. T. H. Baker, David W. Fairleigh, C. T. Ballard.

Democrats—J. C. S. Blackburn, J. C. W. Beckham, Sam J. Shackelford, Urey Woodson, James B. McCreary, Phil Thompson.

The peace agreement was presented to Mr. Taylor for his signature, but he failed to take any action, saying he wanted a little more time in which to consider it. The prevailing opinion here is that Taylor has already made up his mind to sign the agreement.

The Flattering Fox.

A vain, silly lamb met a gay young fox. He bowed with a "How de do?" She made sheep's eyes at the swell young chap.

"Which is just what a lamb would do."

He asked her to drive in his fine new cart.

Of course she could not say nay.

For the rig was neat, and he looked so smart.

And her own new hat came that day.

As they rode along through the cool green woods,

Such flattering things he said,

Till the poor lamb's head was completely turned.

And she blushed a rosy red.

"You're really most charming," the fox remarked.

"As you are, and yet I'd prefer"—

He paused to consider; the lamb cried out.

"And how would you like me, sir?"

The villainous fox smacked his smiling lips.

As he said, with a wicked wink,

"I'd like you boiled for dinner, my dear."

"Next day—lamb stew, I think!"

The lamb turned pale and tried to flee.

She couldn't escape, of course;

And old Mother Fox had her nicely served.

With gravy and fine mint sauce.

The moral is plain as the nose on your face.

To flattery lend no ear;

A flatterer's always a dangerous chap;

E'en though he won't boll you, my dear!

ROYALTY AT PLAY.

Kings and Queens Enjoy Themselves
Very Much Like Other People.

Somehow or other we never seem to think of royalty as really human in the way of playing practical jokes or behaving like common, ordinary folks. A daring photographer at Copenhagen has snapped his camera on royalty at play and obtained some pictures that are not only amusing, but which show the extremely human side of those destined to sit in high places.

King Christian, of Denmark, as the juniors all probably know, is grandfather to the Czar of Russia and the children of the Prince of Wales. Every year at least there is a joyous family gathering at Copenhagen, to which all look forward with the greatest pleasure. It was at one of these reunions that the photographer did his work while waiting for the various guests to assemble for a group picture.

One of the pictures represents the Czar running one of his Danish cousins down the marble steps of the palace, holding the young Prince by the nape of his neck and the seat of his trousers; another shows the Czar in full flight, hotly pursued by this same Prince. Still another picture represents the Grand Duke Michael of Russia leaning over the shoulder of his aunt, the Princess of Wales, to tickle the ear of his sister, the Grand Duchess Xenia. There were many others of the same sort, about 70 in all, and the photographer said nothing about them until he placed them on exhibition in his window. Royalty heard of it, of course, and two of those most interested, Princess Victoria of Wales and Grand Duke Michael, went down to investigate.

Instead of being angry, they were highly amused, and insisted that the photographer bring the pictures to the palace to show to the rest. Everybody enjoyed them, and before he left the photographer received orders for several sets of the pictures, which have been distributed among appreciative royal relatives. It is a pleasure to learn that modern rulers are not only as human as the rest of the world, but also that they can appreciate a joke, even when they are the victims and the whole world knows it.

MEDAL OF HONOR.

Few People Would Know the Rare
Decoration if They Saw It.

The medal of honor granted by Congress for some conspicuous act of gallantry is so rare that hundreds of officers have never even seen it.

The bow knot worn in the button-hole in lieu of the medal goes unrecognized, except by the very few. The medal is of black bronze, and is often mistaken for the Grand Army insignia, the latter having been patterned after it to a certain degree. It is much larger than the latter, and on the reverse side is engraved the name, rank, date and the battle in which the service was rendered, and the specific act of heroism for which it was given. The medal is only worn on state occasions; but the bow knot is always worn. It is a small affair, with its specific ribbon. It is of silk, white stripes in center, bordered by two blue stripes. It is an inch in length and three eighths of an inch wide. The little emblem shows that the wearer has received from this Government the highest honor that can be conferred upon man. The Secretary of War recently issued an order, after a conference with the Executive Committee of the Medal of Honor Legion, that hereafter, on all official occasions, receptions, banquets, &c., the Congressional medal of honor will be worn resting on the breast and suspended by the broad official ribbon of the order around the neck.

Had to Talk.

A very little fellow has a very lively tongue, and talks so much at meals that on a recent occasion, when there were to be guests at the table, his elder brother bribed him with a quarter to be still. After 10 minutes of silence the little boy whispered anxiously to his brother: "Arthur, Arthur, mayn't I talk a nickel's worth?"

At Wardbury, Norway, the longest day lasts from May 21 to July 23 without interruption.

HANS' ADVENTURE.

What He Saw When He Looked in the Brook.

Once upon a time, in a distant land, there lived a bright, sturdy lad of the name of Hans. His home was with his parents in a rude peasant's cottage that stood at the foot of a great mountain. Hans spent his days tending his father's sheep as they browsed on the mountain side. He was an ambitious boy, and as he sat under the shade of a tree, playing sweetly on a home-made flute, he would dream of the great deeds he would perform when he became a man. One day he saw a wonderful sight. Far away across the valley and half way up a mighty cliff he saw a band of funny little gnomes and elves at work polishing up a great golden crown.

"What a mighty Prince I should be!" thought Hans. "If I might wear that crown I should be the greatest Prince in all the land, and how happy I should be!"

On three successive days the vision of the golden crown appeared to Hans; and then he determined to set off at once in quest of it.

So eager was he that he forgot to bid farewell to his parents, and left the sheep to roam at will over the mountain-tops.

"I must make haste," said Hans to himself, as he started off across the valley, "lest some one else should reach the golden crown before me. I shall not rest until it is mine."

(He looked in the brook and saw an old man.)

Such a long, long valley it was! The big red sun rose and set many, many times and still Hans seemed as far off from the goal as ever.

Green shady trees spread out their hospitable branches toward him, but not once did he pause to enjoy their leafy shade. Now and then a dancing brook ran across his path, and its murmuring voice seemed to call on him to bathe in its cool waters and refresh his weary body, but he would not heed, and went plunging madly on. The perfumed breath of the wild flowers along the way was not sweet to his nostrils, but he ruthlessly trod them down. A frightened robin flew to his bosom for protection from a hungry hawk, but he thrust it roughly away from him, saying:

"Fight your own battles. All my strength and energy I must save for mine."

The way now grew rougher and more arduous with every step. Great brambles and thorny bushes reared their ugly heads before him. Oftentimes he might have avoided them by walking around, but he was afraid by that to lose a little time, and went straight on, tearing his clothes and placing his hands and face till the blood flowed. But so intent was he on reaching the cliff whereon was the golden crown that he felt no pain. And one day—it was years since he began his journey, though he realized it not—he found the crown within his grasp. With a fierce cry he sprang forward and placed the great glittering thing upon his head.

How heavy it was. Its weight seemed more than he could bear. "I suppose I shall get used to it," he said to himself. "And how fine I must look with it on!"

He went to the edge of a placid stream and looked in, that he might see his own reflection.

He saw a gaunt old man in tattered garments, with wrinkled visage and hollow eyes; and in the figure there was no trace of the handsome, sturdy, fair-haired Hans who had contentedly tended his father's sheep.

"Now, how can this be?" groaned Hans. "Though the crown is on my head, yet I look not one bit like Prince, but rather a tired out old man, on whose brow this golden thing is much out of place, and whose weight my feeble body cannot bear."

Then, with a despairing gesture, he flung the golden crown far out into the stream, where it sank from sight. And from the cliff above came the mocking laughter of the gnomes.

Then old Hans bethought himself of his forgotten home, of his kindly parents and the gentle sheep, and a longing fled his soul to see them all once again.

So, weary and heartbroken, he set out on his homeward journey. It was winter now; the flowers were dead, the trees, bare of all foliage, reared their great gaunt limbs like mocking fingers; the streams were frozen, and all nature was cheerless and barren around him.

At last he was at home, but long since his parents had died, and long since the neglected sheep had perished miserably.

Hans made his way to the house; at least that would afford him a welcome. Yet the door stood open, as if it had stood for years, but inside the hearthstone was cold.

Dear reader, Hans is any boy, and the golden crown is simply a boy's ambition. Beware lest in your haste to reach the goal you forget to live along the way. It is good to keep one's life bright always in mind, but remember that there are duties to perform each day.

Having determined on what position you would like to attain in life quietly go to work to acquire the knowledge and virtues which will make you competent to fill that position when it comes to you.

It is not the crown that will make of you a Prince, but the princely virtues that will make you fit to wear a crown.

Help... Nature

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL
WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA

will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

THE ALMOND-EYED CHINESE

They Are Getting to Be a Power in San Francisco.

HAVE A DAILY PAPER.

And They Are Highly Respected in Business and Financial Circles—How the Chinese Printer Dances All Day Around His Cases.

The Chinese of San Francisco have a new daily paper. The noisy apotheosis of the Kearney regime found its fitting setting recently when funds for the reception of the California Volunteers were being sought and Chinese merchants subscribed liberally and were invited to and did take a prominent and honorable position in the great public parade, while Dennis Kearney, unnoticed, watched the Chinese ride by him in carriages, and he so poor in the esteem of mankind that "none was found to do him reverence."

Only 20 years in the swift march of time and the despised Chinaman finds a place in the great arena of American activities as distinct and lasting as that of his erstwhile tormentor, whose chief claim to notice was in his open defiance of all law, and his more than heathenish gospel that "might makes right."

The intervening years since the man Kearney waved a hangman's noose before a savagely delighted army of malcontents and preached the doctrine of Chinese extermination, and the present day, may be called the period of reconstruction of that outraged law, and great has been the transformation. In deference to popular will, lawfully expressed, national legislation has shut off Chinese immigration in a large measure, and time has shown the wisdom of the act. But the hundred thousand Chinese then and now within the State of California have, by the laws of absorption and assimilation, as they apply to commerce and trade, gradually merged their interests with those of leading American houses, and their world-wide reputation for business honesty and sagacity have won for them fast business friendships which all the demagogues on earth could not break or make.

Steamship lines and brokerage and banking are largely in Chinese hands, and the stated Clearing House of San Francisco passes upon such a volume of Chinese commercial paper as to surprise those who do not keep pace with the wonderful progress of this people. Having such great interests in financial circles the Chinese merchant needs a daily adviser and counselor, just as his Caucasian neighbor does, and so the greatest innovation of the nineteenth century follows—a Chinese daily newspaper in San Francisco.

Just as are the differences in other national characteristics between the Chinese and Americans, in none are they greater than in the art of printing. This is owing mainly to the vast difference in the constructive form of the respective languages. The English language has as many roots as it has derivatives, and no attainable classification could bring them into a form where composition would be possible. The Chinese language, on the contrary, having neither the orthographical or etymological departments—each word being fixed and unchangeable—is derived from 214 root words, which expand into 14,000 characters or words, in ordinary uses, and can be expanded far beyond this. Where, then, the ordinary letters and marks of the English language can be placed in a small case, in less than 100 squares or boxes, it requires 14,000 boxes or spaces to hold a font of Chinese type.

The great cases are ranged about the room, resting on the floor, and with his stick, he dances from one section to another, forward and backward, until the spectator, not knowing what the printer was doing, would be apt to believe him afflicted with the St. Vitus dance. Each type is a word complete in itself, and is in a box with other type for other words, but all come from the same root, and any one of them can do duty for several words in the English language.

The Chinese character which means "storm" will also mean "rain," "wind," "thunder," "lightning," "electricity," "telegram," "telephone" and so on for all words that have their roots in "storm." The storm is known to produce electricity in the form of lightning, and all the other words follow. A Chinese printer will dance all around his great case and arrange 4,000 characters a day, or what is equivalent to 4,000 ems of type. His method of distributing type is also unique and possible only to such a language. The great case, it will be noted, is in 10 sections, each section being a repository for certain roots and derivatives. The printer takes a handful of type and first distributes them into ten small boxes, each holding the root word of one of the large squares. He then stands with the small box before the section it represents and places the characters in their proper boxes. To those who know only an English font of type it looks strange to see type in many boxes that have never been ink-ed, while others in the same boxes have been used many times.

This is accounted for by the fact that while they are from the same root they are altogether away from common usage and are only brought into play when the "copy" of some scholarly Chinaman is being set.

The type used is between 12 and 14 points and of middle size. The size of type ranges from 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609, 610, 611, 612, 613, 614, 615, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 668, 669, 670, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711, 712, 713, 714, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 744, 745, 746, 747, 748, 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814, 815, 816, 817, 818, 819, 820, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834, 835, 836, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 843, 844, 845, 846, 847, 848, 849, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920, 921, 922, 923, 924, 925, 926, 927, 928, 929, 930, 931, 932, 933, 934, 935, 936, 937, 938, 939, 940, 941, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 955, 956, 957, 958, 959, 960, 961, 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 967, 968, 969, 970, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, 982, 983, 984, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000

STEYN'S ROMANCE.

Career of the President of the Orange Free States.

President Steyn of the Orange Free State has had just a bit of a romance in his career. When he was nineteen he left South Africa to study law in Europe. On the same ship was a sweet, winsome lassie of twelve, and the boy and girl became boon companions to the end of the voyage.

Six years passed, and Steyn returned to Bloemfontein a full fledged barrister. At a social function one of the first guests he was introduced to was a beautiful young lady of eighteen, in whom he quickly recognized his ship companion of six years before. His offer of marriage was accepted but Steyn's financial position did not warrant him in setting up housekeeping just then. There was nothing for it but to wait and work. Steyn traveled a great deal in circuit, and the letters for his sweetheart he addressed secretly to a mutual friend, upon whom Miss Fraser—for such was the young lady's name—called every day. Bloemfontein in those days was so small that everybody made a point of knowing everybody else's business. Consequently people were quick to notice the friendship that had sprung up between Miss Fraser and Steyn's friend in the barrister's absence, and the general impression was that this gentleman was trying to steal Steyn's sweetheart from him, thus proving himself a traitor to Steyn and unworthy of recognition by any honest, fair dealing resident of Bloemfontein.

When Steyn returned to Bloemfontein people received him with veiled expressions of commiseration. Steyn could not understand it. He hastened to the residence of the gentleman who had been acting as his postman and inquired the meaning of it all. He roared with laughter when he heard of the conclusion his fellow townsmen had jumped to, and how surprised these good but misguided folk were when they saw the rising young barrister and the "base deceiver" walking arm in arm!

Great Man Was a Bad Boy.

Like the majority of great men of letters, Nathaniel Hawthorne was not over fond of school. In the very interesting resume of his life which Mrs. Annie Fields has just contributed to the "Beacon Biography" series, there are several pictures of young Hawthorne's life in Bowdoin College, which show that the first great American novelist was not guilty of airing an uncomfortable superiority of tastes or demeanor.

Once, unwilling to wait for the appointed college vacation, he wrote to his sister Louisa: "It is expedient for me to return to Salem immediately," and proceeds to give his reasons. Simple country college though Bowdoin was at the time Hawthorne attended it, the students now and then permitted themselves amusements such as "gaming," which scandalized the faculty. Young Hawthorne was one of the culprits, and the President of the college wrote to his mother to ask her co-operation in the attempt to induce your son faithfully to observe the laws of this institution.

The President added, apparently for the sake of soothing the mother's feelings: "Perhaps he might not have gamed were it not for the influence of a student we have dismissed from the college." Young Hawthorne, having seen this letter, assures his mother in indignation: "I have a great mind to commence playing again merely to show him that I scorn to be seduced by another into anything wrong."

What Lyddite Is.

This explosive, brought into prominence by its use in shells at Omdurman and Ladysmith, is picric acid made by acting upon carbolic acid with nitric acid. It is a bright yellow substance, much used by dyers. When exploded it produces an effect 10 times greater than that of gunpowder, killing not so much by the force of the pieces of steel shell it hurls in every direction as by the blow of the suddenly compressed air. Lyddite shells are, therefore, more "humane" than ordinary shrapnel, since they do not mangle so much, but wet by air concussion. The shell have nose fuses only, so that they explode on impact. Made of forged steel, they are used with 6 and 9.2 inch breech-loading guns, with howitzers and with 4 and 6 inch quick-firing guns. Their chief utility is in demolishing fortifications, walls, etc. A small town in Kent, where experiments were made with it, gave the name Lyddite to the picric shell.—Baltimore Sun.

Carelessness of persons who send money through the mails is well illustrated by the fact that last year the Government was enriched by $16,000.75, which was found in letters that were undeliverable on account of incorrect addresses. These letters lay in the Dead Letter Office till it was certain that they would not be possible to find their owners, and then the money was sent to the Treasury Department.

A small boy, on hearing some people say that they should not consider themselves properly married if they were not married in church, said, "I should consider myself properly married if I got a good wife."—Sydney Town and Country Journal.

A WONDERFUL EXPLOSIVE

Its Mysteries Confided to Few Persons Only.

OWNED BY UNCLE SAM

It Is Called Thorite, and by Its Use the Heaviest of High-Power Guns Can at Last Be Fired With Safety—A War Terror.

The War Department's adoption of thorite is the military event of the year. Uncle Sam will see to it that no foreign power learns a jot as to its secret manufacture. Its mysteries have been confided to only a handful of high military officers pledged to solemn secrecy.

Thorite has solved vexed problems that have racked the brains of most skillful ordnance experts for five years or more. Uncle Sam during this time has scoured the earth for a man able to furnish him a highly explosive shell capable of accomplishing two things: Issuing from a high power gun without danger of explosion from the shock in the breach of the weapon.

Striking its mark without exploding from the force of impact, but at any desired time after impact.

Dr. Hiram P. Tuttle, a wizard from Tacoma, Wash., journeyed to the national capital last summer, and made the proposition to the Army's Board of Ordnance and Fortifications that he prove his ability to furnish the desired article. Shortly afterward Gen. Miles issued an order enforcing an old rule barring admittance to government tests. A few weeks later the wizard of the West did wondrous things at Sandy Hook. The official adoption of thorite is the result.

That thorite could be fired with perfect safety and without possible danger to gun or gunner was readily demonstrated by numerous tests. It was fired from guns of various sizes by both black and smokeless powder. That intense heat brought in direct contact with it could not affect it in any way was proved by the inventor in a striking test. He heated a poker red hot and thrust it into a 2-pound can of the explosive without any perceptible result.

Other tests demonstrated that not even the pressure of the heaviest siege guns—40,000 pounds to the square inch—could effect it. A 12-inch service shell with thirty-nine pounds of thorite was fired from a huge seacoast rifle. No fuse was fixed. The explosive shell withstood the enormous pressure caused by the explosion of 450 pounds of brown powder at its base and went out to sea without uttering a sound or suffering destruction.

That this new element of warfare would not explode from the shock of impact, but would reap its harvest of death at any moment desired by the gunner, was proved in a more fascinating series of secret tests. Ten-inch shells, filled with it, were left without fuses, and were fired through huge pieces of Harveyized steel armor plate. Regardless of the terrific shock and tremendous friction these shells did not explode.

In another trial an iron shell of 122 pounds weight and seven inches diameter was loaded with only four pounds of the new explosive and placed inside a square enclosure strongly built of steel. Connection was made by wire between the shell and an electric circuit. The purpose of the steel enclosure was to collect the flying pieces of the shell—in other words, to test its "fragmenting power." An electric button was touched, and after the explosion several men were delegated to gather up the scraps of iron within the enclosure. They counted 20,000 visible fragments.

To determine the destructive power, shells which had been fused were fired from a 2 1/2 inch Sims-Dudley gun down the beach at Sandy Hook. Great "craters" left in the sand were sufficient proof that thorite is as powerful as the strongest blasting gelatine.

Thorite shells, it was proven, cannot explode save by aid of a certain time fuse or detonator devised by the inventor. In other words, it can be hammered and battered around during transportation and subjected to various temperatures loaded in either cans or shells. No accident can occur unless the detonator is attached and set. The new explosive, furthermore, needs no particular make of shell, but can be put in any. Another advantage is that its power does not weaken during long storage.

The Ordnance Department has already shipped to Dr. Tuttle sufficient raw material to manufacture several thousand pounds of the explosive within the next two months. The finished product will be placed in shells of 3.2-inch calibre for light artillery guns, to be sent to the Philippines.

The War Department has just purchased a dozen Maxim mountain guns, of the same type as used by the British in their Khartoum, Omdurman and Transvaal campaigns. These will soon arrive in Manila, and shells for them will also be supplied. Although the department has ordered 1,000 rounds of ammunition such as used with them in Europe. These new guns, all throwing thorite shells, will dislodge the rebels from their ambush shelters in swamps and canebrakes.

Thorite will be adopted for our great coast defence howitzers as soon as they are completed. Large shells will be manufactured to fit them. After the army shall have successfully used the invention, the navy will adopt it. By its means each fighting ship can create greater havoc than did the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius in the Spanish war.

The adoption of thorite puts the United States upon an equality with France and England in respect to high explosives. It has been the boast of these two nations that they excel in ability to safely fire highly combustible shells with gunpowder. Lyddite, the English, and melinite, the French, explosive, are practically the same.

"Do you admire Beethoven's music?" asked the young man whose hair is long and curls at the end. "Oh, yes," answered the young woman. "Beethoven was all right for his day. You see his time hadn't begun to want them."—The Christian Era.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

R. C. WALKER, Publisher.

ONE YEAR ONE DOLLAR

The country is bigger than any party.

We want the assassins more than we want the offices.

Goebel is dead, but "Goebelianism" is enshrined in the hearts of his people.

Will the L. & N. attorneys ever have the gall to show up at Frankfort again as lobbyists?

The arrest and conviction of the assassins is the most important thing—offices or no offices.

Gov. Goebel will take his place along side of Andrew Jackson in Democratic history and story.

Mr. Taylor seems to have lost his office, his head and his friends, if Senator Deboe's telegram is authentic.

If the people would behave themselves and let the L. & N. railroad take care of them, there would probably be no political murders.

If Senator Deboe planned Taylor's course, and many people think he did, that telegram from Washington is the unkindest cut of all.

Gov. Goebel left a rich heritage to friends in his last message: "Tell my friends to be brave and fearless, and loyal to the great common people."

The Legislature will offer $50,000 for the assassin; Franklin county $1000; the city of Frankfort $500, and other counties will will fall in line.

Of course the fellow who pulled that trigger and those aiding and abetting him have shown their devotion to "honest elections." They ought to have charge of all our elections.

The appointment of Gen. John B. Castleman to be adjutant general was the wisest thing Gov. Beckham could have done. Castleman is a big broad man, known and appreciated at home and abroad.

The man who objected to "Goebel's methods" of handling the L. & N., we don't remember to have heard him mention the Republicans during the campaign—and isn't shocked at the tragedy, is the very fellow who swallowed the camel and overtaxed his constitution in trying to displace of a goat.

The partisan press of all shades in all sections north and south, east and west have denounced the assassination. The unanimity of the people on this point shows that the country can get together on some things. We may have various notions about politics, disagree on theology, but thank goodness there is a common point where all can meet. The man who can gloat over the assassin's work, is not an American.

The charge "never give up" given to ex-Congressman Hendrick by the dying chieftain was delivered to one of Kentucky's knightliest and bravest men. A lawyer of acknowledged ability with a personality magnetic and charming, with a great warm heart that beats in sympathy with poor old Kentucky, with the courage of a lion, that charge will be faithfully kept. James Andrew Scott, Lewis McQuown, Ollie James, John K. Hendrick and the other attorneys are looked to by the people of Kentucky to uphold the honor and restore the laws of our great state.—Kentucky State Democrat.

HON. OLLIE JAMES.

Gives a Picture of the Situation in Kentucky.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

FRANKFORT, KY., Feb. 2.—The following statement from Hon. Ollie M. James, one of the brightest young Democrats in Kentucky, gives a true picture of the situation:

"Many outrages have been visited upon the Democratic party in this contest. But all along they have followed the lines laid down by law. Mr. Goebel, in making his contest, was adhering to the strictest construction of the law. The right to seek redress by contest is no new thing. It is as old as justice, and holds its birth with the constitution of 1799, and by that constitution the Assembly selected a committee to hear the contest, and its decision was final. But under the constitution of 1850 and the present one a committee was selected by both houses, and their decision was not final, but had to be submitted to the Assembly for ratification or rejection. These plain provisions Mr. Goebel sought to follow but what is the result? All the powers of corporate wealth expended money to inflame the public mind against him. The Republican party and its organized leaders defy the law. They invade the Capitol with an armed mob, with Winchester, swords and pistols, and all munitions of warfare used to terrorize the people of the capital and those who had to sit in judgment upon this contest. They secured the sacred precincts of the Capitol Buildings, which are heard to echo their wild threats, and its very walls bear the impress of their stray and murderous bullets. All this time the Democratic leaders have been counseling peace, law and order.

"The next step, Mr. Goebel is shot and falls, wounded upon the Capitol square of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, pierced by a bullet which came from the window above the Executive office. I presume this shot was fired by some conscienceless wretch who would be classed in the category which they denominate as 'a peaceful citizen' when they first came to the capital. Indignant citizens seek to invade the Capitol Building for the purpose of apprehending this murderer, but armed militiamen, quickly called out, halt them at the very doors. Upon the next day issues his proclamation, claiming that which the constitution never gave him, the right to dissolve the Legislature. He gives as his reason the claim of insurrection, and yet those who follow him and believe in the principles taught by his party have been guilty of the only violence that we know of at the capital. The Legislature seeks to meet at the place where it has assembled for nearly a hundred years, and they are met by this armed force and driven from the Capitol square. They attempt to meet in the City Hall, and are driven from there; they seek the courthouse, and are driven from there. All this Mr. Taylor attempts to do upon the claim of insurrection, but the real truth of it is that he knew the Contest Committee had almost unanimously reported in favor of the contestant, and that if those people were permitted to act within two hours after they assembled Goebel would be declared to be the Governor and Taylor would be declared to be out of office.

"The Legislature did meet, and in legal form passed judgment upon this question, and a majority of the General Assembly declared Goebel to be the Governor; he is sworn in upon his bed of sickness, and then we hear that Taylor calls upon the President for Federal troops. I do not believe there is a fair-minded man in Kentucky that loves the law that will uphold this outrageous travesty upon law, the tramping upon the constitution, which has been made to bleed beneath the iron heel of this usurper. Although the public mind is highly inflamed the Democratic party stands for law, and we counsel every Democrat to smother his wrath and look to the hour when the sun may shine bright on the Old Kentucky Home."

NOTHING GOES TO WASTE

Refuse Matter Turned Into Handsome Products.

THERE ARE MILLIONS IN IT

Rags and Tags of Beggars Into Dainty Billet Doux—A Great Industry in New York and Its Profits—Seen in Basements.

"Nothing in New York goes to waste," said a William street dealer in old metals and old magazines, to a Press reporter.

"Old rubber use to be thrown away. At present it is remelted and vulcanized. The mackintosh which you wear may be made of old rubber shoes. Your overshoes may be made of old rubber coats, so you may be wearing rubber shoes on your back and rubber coats on your feet.

"The rags and tatters of the town are turned into handsome products. A man gets a note on superfine paper of beautiful tint, with a monogram on it. It may have been a beggar's shirt, metamorphosed into a billet-doux. The elegant stationery on which the fastidious bachelor writes his letter may have been an old woman's night-gown. The edition de luxe, with its fine linen paper, is made of the rags of a thousand alleys. It is the cheap paper on which the newspapers are printed that has an irreproachable ancestry. It comes from the white fibre of the forest trees. But the fine grades of paper are the tattered raiment of tramps and wanderers, changed by the magic of chemistry and machinery into a beautiful product."

The basement shop of the dealer is piled high with old commercial ledgers, over which bookkeepers were out their eyes, and with old newspapers which discuss the politics and news sensations of a decade ago. Its walls shine with old copper teapots, old brass saucepans and battered britannia ice pitchers. In one corner is a heap of old copper that glitters like Klondyke gold. Here and there rise mountains of old magazines.

The copper teapots and brass saucepans retain, in their fallen circumstances, an air of cheerfulness. But the situation of the old Century and Harper's magazines that stand on the shop stairs in huge piles at 2 cents a copy, is almost pathetic. Though printed eight or ten years ago, many of them are not second hand, but new, for their leaves are still uncut.

Compare their prices with that of old copper and old pewter, which brings fifteen cents a pound. An old teapot or an antiquated ice pitcher brings thirty times as much, ounce for ounce, as these literary treasures.

"The business of preventing old copper pots and old pewter spoons, old magazines and old newspapers from going to waste," said the dealer, "has grown to great proportions. Twenty years ago only ten or fifteen firms in the city were engaged in it. Now it keeps busy a hundred firms. Then the volume of business in these seeming trifles was a few hundred thousand dollars a year. Now it is about $20,000,000."

"Some of these firms, which occupy dark little basements, have a capital of from $50,000 to $100,000. They handle ten or more tons of old metal and old paper a day. Sometimes twenty tons of old paper go out of a place in twenty-four hours. I have received in one day thirty bales of old commercial ledgers, weighing 1,000 pounds to the bale. That is fifteen tons of old accounts. The entire trade handles thousands of tons of old metals and old paper every year."

"What are old metals worth?"

"New sheet copper brings from 49 to 59 cents a pound ingot copper, 17 cents; old copper, 15 cents. You see ingot copper brings almost as much as ingot. We pay 15 cents a pound for britannia ware also. It is made of tin and lead, with about 1 per cent. copper and 1 per cent. silver. It is durable and will last a hundred years. Britannia is about the same metal as pewter, for which we likewise pay 15 cents a pound. Pewter lasts well, and we often get quaint English pewter pitchers that are fifty years old. Old lead is 4 cents a pound. Old tin lead, from china, 3 1-2 cents; old type, 1 cent; old zinc, 2 1-2 cents; old tin foil, 4 cents; old electrolytes and old stereotypes are from 3 to 4 cents. All these old metals are melted down and used over again.

"Old account books, diaries and commercial ledgers bring a cent a pound, and are made over into writing paper.

"Old newspapers bring $5 a ton, or one-quarter of a cent a pound. They are turned into pulp, made into paper and go through the press to be born again as newspapers. Perhaps the newspaper which originally was Democratic becomes at its second birth Republican.

"When people move, about the first of May, we get many curious articles of metal ware from them, as well as many old books, pamphlets and newspapers. Most of our metals come from factories; most of our magazines from dealers.

"The second-hand book dealers call now and then and explore our stock. They carry away any rare old book or curious old pamphlet which they chance to find. They get them for a song, but as we got them by the pound and sell them for what they will bring."

The King's English at Home. "I have not been able as yet to pass for an Englishman, for my speech betrays me. The other day I inquired of a policeman the nearest hardware store. He looked at me in amazement. I then explained that I wanted to buy a penknife. 'Oh,' said he 'you mean the iron mongers.' Yesterday I asked the ticket puncher at an underground railway station: 'Do I take the train for Mark Lane?' 'No,' the next, said he; 'but if I were you I should let the train take me there instead.' The other day I entered a bicycle store and inquired of the proprietor if he had wheels to rent. I repeated my question several times, but he did not understand me, and finally I asked: 'Have you wheels for hire?' when he forthwith struck a bargain.—London, in Baltimore Herald.

Dupuy expressed from the pulp of the Presbyterian church last Sabbath, the hearty thanks of himself and family for the many tokens of appreciation given them in the way of donations since their arrival in Marion. These donations have come from individuals, the Ladies Society and the church at large, replenishing wardrobe, pantry, household furnishings and the poultry yard. He asked his people that he appreciated the motive which prompted these gifts more than the gifts themselves since love is the greatest thing in the world.

TURNED DOWN

Is Fowler's Application For Saloon License.

Thursday night the city council held a meeting to consider the application of Mr. Fowler, of Sturgis, for saloon license. He had made arrangements to open a saloon on Salem street in the building known as the "Red, Red, Front." When the council met a remonstrance, signed by sixty people, was filed asking that no saloon be opened in that vicinity; the reasons given for objecting were stated as follows:

"We respectfully represent that three of the churches of our town are located directly on said street and another near it, and that it is the only thoroughfare for the great majority of our people passing to and from their respective churches, and as the saloons already opened are in a different part of the town, they could be kept under better police regulations, if all were in the same part of town."

After the remonstrance was read, Dr. Dixer made a motion that the license be not granted and when put to a vote it carried by a vote of 4 to 1.

Dycusburg, Ky., Feb. 6, 1900.
ED. PRESS.—I wish to say through the columns of your paper that we have succeeded in cleaning our town of smallpox. The last case was dismissed about ten days. The town has been thoroughly cleaned and fumigated. Each house where the disease existed has been thoroughly disinfected. Our hotel was given especial attention in the way of disinfection, fumigation, etc., and the public may rest assured that there is no danger of contracting smallpox in Dycusburg.

Baker-Butler.

Yesterday evening in the church at Salem Mr. Edward Baker, of Caldwell county, and Miss Effie Butler, of Salem, were united in marriage, Rev. Berry officiating. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and was packed with friends of the contracting parties, and the solemn vows were made in the hushed stillness of the vast throng.

The bride is the daughter of the late Frank Butler, and she was reared in the pleasant home near Salem. She is of a sweet temperment, amiable disposition, cultivated mind and beautiful.

The groom is a popular young farmer; he has a pleasant home at Baker's Station and has scores of friends.

The friends join with their hosts of friends in the three counties in extending congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker will be at home at Baker's after the 14th.

Other Things Turns.

Other things turn as well as the world. A few words in answer to the letter signed by "One of the Board," on cheap remedy by short legged, Cheap John, Dr. Jim, of Fords Ferry, Ky. If you want to make a pig squeal step on his tail, and to hear a person grunt and grumble, put a shoe on him that pinches. I think the shoe pinches "One of the Board." I do not know who he is, but take it for granted he was ashamed of his own name and signed "One of the Board." Now I want to say to the board that my family are all well, and those that had the would be smallpox gained in flesh all the time, and when I turned them loose they were fat and sick. New this will prove to the board that starvation was not my dead shot specific. However I will have to admit, that I don't enjoy all the necessities and luxuries of life. But that is caused by my shortness. I am short in two ways, viz: Financial and short legged. The latter I can't help and any one has my sympathy who is like me. But I have studied the matter over, and am proud that my legs are short instead of my head, as some are. The board asked me to explain to them my Cheap John treatment. Now isn't it strange that medical ram-rod's would bend their proud backs to reach "short legs" for information free, yet the world turns. Give it the right slant and you can lose it. The slant means to lengthen my financial shortness. But will say right here that I don't resort to starvation to get my dead shot, neither do I call on the board of health for aid. Now in regard to Dr. Moreland, will say that he never made any charges against E. W. Hull. But at the time he (Dr. Moreland,) belonged to the board, and what he did in the case of Earl Hull, he did it from orders given by the Chiefs of the Board. After that he resigned his position as health officer on account of the corruptness and fraud which was being practiced upon the masses of the people. His (Dr. Moreland's) legs are long enough and his head is level and well balanced. Now a few words in defense of Dr. Hull; will say he did not come to Kentucky to practice medicine, but was ordered here by "short legs" to see his own son. I will state further that he is fully competent to treat the would be and genuine smallpox, and after examination can tell the one from the other. He did not say when cold weather come people would drop off like autumn leaves or die like sheep with the rot. You requested me to come to your town and treat the dreaded disease, should it break out, as you know nothing about it. It might be an impossibility for me to show up, so I will tell you how to treat it. First thing to do if it is among the colored race, send for three experts to go with you to see your patients. Second, have the county court to buy you a peat horse to put them in and a wagon to haul them to it. Then catch them if possible, if not, put on some extras and run them in; if this fails try firing the old cabin, then he is without a home. In conclusion, don't forget to put a claim in against the county, because she is able to hear it. This is the most advisable remedy I can give you for your town.

Very respectfully,
Short Legs.
Better known as Jim Rankin.

OPIE READ,

America's Popular Novelist, Gives Us His Opinion of Osteopathy, Which is Plain and to the Point.

"Man constantly finds something new about himself, and it is true that the world moves. From the dawn of time he has been his own study, and even yet is a mine of mystery unto himself. We reverence the past, soft in a mellow light, yet we know that the school-boy of today is wiser than the sage of long ago. Theory becomes science, and science resolves itself into a very commonplace fact, and we wonder that were so slow to accept so manifest a truth. We study ourselves indeed, but sometimes we are loth to credit our own intelligence. It is our reverence for the old. A great orator, when asked how he would go about toward the betterment of the world, replied that he would make good health catching instead of disease. Good health is catching. Good health is natural. Nature's aim is to be free from disease. What mockery is there in the saying that a man of 30 died a natural death! To die before extreme old age is most unnatural. There is something wrong with the running of a machine that wears out too soon. An observant machinist can repair the evil. Man is a machine, and recently there has come into notice a school of machinists to regulate the machine, man—Osteopathy. Most cheerfully do I subscribe to this science. I have felt the benefit of it, and I honestly believe it to be one of the most wonderful discoveries of any age. If my voice, though limited in range, may help the suffering, it is my duty to lift it. My associates know that I am a firm believer in Osteopathy, and they know that I have set down what I believe to be the truth. I have no fear of writing a 'puff,' I have no edge to whet, no graft to get. In my humble way I am as earnest as Joseph Medill was when he advocated, in his great newspaper, the benefits of the Kelley cure. Every man, not wholly vicious, would like to aid the suffering. The fear of advertising a public blessing is an evil.

"In my reading I have come across certain tenets of this great healing school, some of which I transcribe, believing from investigation that they are true.

"Medicine continues to point with pride to the ingenuity and bewildering complexity of its theories; Osteopathy asks the public to look at results.

"Osteopathy is a system of healing by manual operations without the aid of drugs or stimulants.

"Nine-tenths of the diseases which come to the Osteopath are treated first by stimulating the nerves of the excretory organs of the system for the purpose of cleaning up the dirty house within which the human soul dwells.

"The principal of the science can be comprehended only by those who are familiar with anatomy and physiology. Osteopathic practice can not be explained in spirit or by word of mouth.

"The chief cause of disease is due to mechanical; obstruction to natural functions. There is some displacement, enlargement, obstruction or abnormality of bone, muscle, ligament upon a nerve or blood vessel.

"With an accurate knowledge of anatomy, Osteopathy deals with the human body as an intricate machine, which if kept in proper adjustment, nourished and cared for, will run smoothly into a ripe useful old age.

"Osteopaths believe that every living organism has within it, as its special gift from God, the power to manufacture and prepare all the chemicals, material and forces needed to build and repair; together with all the machinery and apparatus required to do this work in the most perfect manner. Osteopathy claims that no longer will suffering humanity be compelled to quaff noxious draughts and flinch under the cruel knife of the surgeon in efforts to seek relief from disease. Osteopathy is the new science of healing without drugs. Among its followers are the most prominent people of the world.

"I am quoting freely, and with but little care as to arrangement, but with a desire to set forth the 'platform' of the school. I have at hand hundreds of testimonials from the most trustworthy sources, but this science needs no testimony except an illustration of its own principles. All that truth needs is a light thrown upon it. But man is judged about by tradition, by adherence to a constant experiment that has come down through the ages, the belief that to swallow drugs put him on road to health. The little mind is slow to accept a great but simple truth.

"You have a great industry in your town," said a stranger to a village philosopher, pointing to a tall chimney from which a constant smoke was pouring. "Yes," replied the philosopher, "a great factory built upon the credulous hope of aches and pains—it is a patent medicine laboratory."

"Recently I heard a farmer say that patent medicines for his family cost him more than his taxes. Taxes upon his land and taxes on his ignorance; and yet he is not much worse off than the man who is constantly swallowing drugs prescribed by regular physicians. Both are victims of a time worn error.

"A school of Osteopathy ought to be established at every health resort in the country. The government ought to see that one is established at Hot Springs. It is worth all the curative waters in the world. It is almost an instant freedom from weariness. It is the champagne of nature. It destroys the appetite for drink not in cases of confirmed dipsomania but in cases of nervous prostration.

"You are a crank on that subject," said a believer in the new science. "Yes," he replied, "and I am doing my friends a good turn."

"So thoroughly convinced am I of the scientific principles involved in this work that I have no hesitancy in saying that I believe no physician is thoroughly competent without a knowledge of this science. I have seen and talked with some who have investigated, and all these acknowledge its genuineness. The time will come, I feel, when they will fully appreciate its merits, and strive to increase proficiency in the healing art by acquiring a knowledge of a principle so necessary to their profession.

"It will never be a fad, for that would be like seeking common sense with a ribbon; it will be the recourse of the wise. The man, sitting up in his office will find that he need no longer suffer from nervousness, the victim of overwork will learn that within a few moments he can be freed from weariness, and the father will cease to exchange eggs for patent medicines.

"Health is the inheritance of man, and should be jealously guarded. Without it the wealth of Midas is but as dross, while with it a man is rich, though he be a beggar. This being granted it goes without saying the public should eagerly investigate any new discovery that may be made in the art of healing, and Osteopathy, if thus carefully investigated, will surely recommend itself to the average person. While its methods are a radical departure from the principles which have heretofore been accepted as the basis of medical practice; if the matter is only looked at without prejudice, and the human body be regarded as but a complex machine, it will be seen at once that Osteopathy is perfectly reasonable and rational."

It seems the part of wisdom for the young men and women to carefully investigate Osteopathy. It will pay to consider this profession as a life work. If you have not given the matter a thought before, and if you have no life work selected it is a good time to make arrangements to enter the Southern School of Osteopathy. Other schools of Osteopathy have determined to raise the tuition after this fall, and it is a part of wisdom for those who expect to study Osteopathy to enter the present class. If you are interested in the matter the management of the institution will be pleased to give you any information desired. Address

JUDGE NUNN.

The Attorneys Adopt Resolutions of Thanks to the Faithful Jurist

Livingston Circuit Court. Special Jan. Term, 1900

By a unanimous vote of the entire bar, the following resolutions commendatory of Judge T. J. Nunn were adopted:

Resolved, That we, the attorneys at law of the Smithland bar, tender to Hon. T. J. Nunn, Judge of the Fourth Judicial District of Kentucky, our thanks for his kindness in sitting at the special term in the Livingston Circuit Court, thus ridding our district of many cases and affording litigants a speedy hearing and determination of their rights. In so doing he not only benefited the bar, but rendered a kindness to the people. We shall hold said act in grateful remembrance and ever esteem the honored Judge as a public servant.

Resolved, That this expression of thanks be spread upon the record book of the Livingston Circuit Court and a copy of the same be sent to the Livingston Banner, Crittenden Press, Princeton Banner and Madisonville Hustler, respectfully, for publication.

Obituary.

Lizzie Dell, little daughter of W. H. and Florence A. Thumau, died at her home Aug. 22, 1899. She was born in Crittenden county, Ky., Aug. 20, 1898.

Mysterious indeed are the ways of an All-wise Providence; strange that he would call one so young and sweet to try the realities of that bluish home beyond life's sunset radiant glow.

While the heart bows in submission to the call of the Master, yet a little daughters love shall be remembered and cherished for years to come.

It is a great consolation to her parents and friends to know that she has gone to rest in that beautiful land beyond life's stormy sea, where sickness, sorrow and death never comes and where all is pure joy, love and happiness.
E. L. G.

FIFTY YEARS OLD

Why let your neighbors know it?

And why give them a chance to guess you are even five or ten years more?

Better give them good reasons for guessing the other way. It is very easy; for nothing tells of age so quickly as gray hair.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

is a youth-renewer. It hides the age under a luxuriant growth of hair the color of youth.

It never fails to restore color to gray hair. It will stop the hair from coming out also.

It feeds the hair bulbs. Thin hair becomes thick hair, and short hair becomes long hair.

It cleanses the scalp; removes all dandruff, and prevents its formation.

We have a book on the Hair which we will gladly send you.

If you do not obtain all the benefit you expect from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

CHICAGO, DOG, BANKER.

There is a dog belonging to Mr. Frank Wright, of 143 Cass street, Chicago, who is a veritable banker among animals. He knows the value of money, hoards it like a miser and answers to the name of Echo.

He is a silver dog and also a sly dog. If he wore stockings it is certain that he would keep his savings securely tied up and hidden in an old one. As it is, he utilizes cracks between the floors and walls, in bad weather, and during the summer solstice plants his hoards here and there in the back yard and jealously guards them with his beady black eye for fear of possible onslaught from those watchful felines on the fence.

Echo is supposed to carry his account in his head, and his buried treasure in no way resembles that of Capt. Kidd's except in its magnitude.

The question may have arisen in the mind of the reader: "How does this canine hero make his money to begin with?"

His method is unique and final, and came to his consciousness about two years ago, when he had just passed the door of pampered puppyhood. He is greatly esteemed by his owner, and his idiosyncrasy is accepted as a necessary part of his make-up.

It is said to relate, but true, that Echo does not earn his wage by the sweat of his brow, but rather takes advantage of the love his master bears him. His system is to refuse meat or drink unless he is paid in advance for his part of the transaction.

For example, he loves coffee, but will not touch it unless he is favored with a nickel. He drops the nickel in himself, and after the cheerful clink at the bottom of his cup he swallows the contents joyfully. For a second cup the nickel must be removed and dropped in as before. The family has endeavored to make the same nickel do continued service, but Echo has outwitted them by his superior staying powers. A nickel has to be forthcoming at every meal, and if Echo will not cause one to materialize somebody else must.

Echo also approves of sweet pastries, but these cost the family a quarter, as the little fellow will have none of ten-cent pieces; these are too small and troublesome to bank properly. After the meal Echo grabs his nickel or silver and steals off to hide it from the sight of mortal eye.

Recently Echo buncoed a certain railroad president out of a trade dollar. Doubting the dog's perspicacity, the magnate gave him a silver cartwheel, which Echo grabbed with a delirium of joy, rushed out and placed it in one of his safety deposits—a certain hole in the wall—before his new friend could say Jack Robinson.

Doubt cost the president one dollar in this case. Briefly, these are Echo's methods of finance. Burglars need not attempt to look in his bow-wow bank, for he watches his own treasure sleeplessly. He is supposed to take his hygienic promenades with great reluctance, fearing that thieves of cats may impoverish him.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her. This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung diseases. Only 50c and $1 Trial bottles free at J. H. Orme's drugstore.

Some men are so exceedingly modest that the shun the naked truth.

J. B. Clark, Peoria, Ill., says, "Surgeons wanted me for piles, but I cured them with Dr. Williams' Witch Salve." It is infallible for piles and skin diseases. Beware of counterfeits.—J. H. O. me.

The man who has no memory, may be cured by lending small sums to his friends.

Miss Annie E. Gunning, Tre, Mich., says "I suffered a long time from dyspepsia; lost flesh and became very weak. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure completely cured me." It digests what you eat and cures all forms of stomach trouble. It never fails to give immediate relief.—James H. Orme.

HORTICULTURE

LAYERING THE GRAPE.

A Method of Propagation Which Many Horticulturists Declare to Be Without a Rival.

Layering is the simplest, surest and easiest method of increasing the grape and is the best way to grow them where but few vines are wanted. There are two kinds of layers, called spring and summer layers, from the season at which they are made.

Summer layers are made in the summer, generally the last of July, from a branch of the same season's growth. They are likely to be weak for several years, and do not make as good plants as the spring layers. In making them, the wood should be slit for an inch or so near the buds that are covered. Bury about one foot of the cane four inches deep in the ground and it will be rooted by late autumn, when it should be separated and treated as a young vine; and it is generally best to get them well started in a garden or nursery before planting in the vineyard permanently.

Spring layers may be made by laying down any cane early in the spring. It will root in one season. By fall it will have made a good growth of roots, when it may be cut from the main cane, and if strong it may be divided into two plants. This form of layer is illustrated in Figs. 1 and 2. By a little different treatment of the spring layer a vine may be grown from each bud on the layered cane. For this purpose some thrifty cane should be selected in autumn, pruned of its laterals and buried. In the spring it should be uncovered and only one shoot permitted to grow from each joint. After the new growth has started about six inches from each bud the whole cane should be layered about four inches deep, handling it carefully so as not to break the new growth.

Fig. 3 shows such a layer after it has rooted. It is a good plan to cover it not more than three inches at first, and to fill up the trench as the shoots grow. If covered four inches deep at once the young growth will sometimes rot, though this seldom happens, and some skillful growers fill the trench full at once. In the autumn roots will be found growing from each joint, and these may be cut apart and treated as recommended for weak vines grown from cuttings. If this method of propagation is to be used to some considerable extent vines should be grown especially for the purpose. It is not a good plan to use fruiting vines for layering to any great extent, though it may be safely done in a small way.—Farm and Fireside.

BIRD DESTRUCTION.

A Growing Evil Against Which the Farmers of the Country Should Protest Emphatically.

Through the middle states and in some parts of the south, a mischievous trade is carried on during the winter and the early spring. It is the slaughter of insect-destroying birds, to be sold as "reedbirds" in the city markets. "Reedbird on toast" is a favorite dish with the epicures; but the epicures seldom get the "reedbirds" they order.

Authorities at Washington declare that hundreds of thousands of robins, bluebirds, cedar-birds, shore larks and other insect-eating birds are killed for this purpose every year. A single dealer in Washington received 5,000 robins in one shipment from North Carolina, and sold them all as reedbirds.

Not only is the traffic reprehensible as a commercial fraud, but it is a direct and very grave injury to farmers, whose fruit trees, shrubs and crops would be seriously injured, and in some cases ruined, if insectivorous birds were exterminated.

Through the work of the men of science in the government departments at Washington, our farmers are learning the value of insect-destroying birds to their fields and gardens. They are, therefore, neglectful of their own interests if they do not protest against this cruel and ruinous traffic, not only in the name of humanity, but because of the imperative needs of agriculture.—Youth's Companion.

Big Income from Forests.

The forests are considered one of the most valuable national possessions in the old countries. In Bavaria the forest area is about one-third of the total area of the kingdom. One-third of this area is owned by the government, which has spent since 1830 about $3,000,000 in acquiring forest land. A regular system of forest culture is employed. The yield per acre is generally large, valued at about $1.92, and the net income of the state amounting to about $4,000,000 per year.

THE "RABBIT WOMAN."

A Familiar and Most Interesting Figure in Broadway, New York's Greatest Street.

A writer in St. Nicholas, Mr. George A. Williams, tells the readers of that popular magazine a good deal about the "Rabbit Woman," whose shop is a part of the sidewalk in Broadway, near Twenty-third street. Frau Zehner, better known in New York city as the "Rabbit Woman," is a native of Saxony. She is of good family, her father having been a physician in Leipzig. She came to this country in 1882, and having met with reverses in fortune, was obliged to earn her living. Renting a place on Twenty-third street, she sold for a number of years, small trinkets and toys for the children. Frau Zehner has a happy disposition, and readily makes friends among the children, always having a bright smile and a pleasant word for her little customers.

But she was not destined always to deal in toys. One of her street neighbors, an aged woman who sold small live rabbits, one morning did not come as usual, to her stand. The farmer that supplied her with bunnies was on hand with a basketful. When he saw the old woman was not there, he looked around to find some one to sell the load for him, not wishing to take them back home again. At last he asked Frau Zehner to sell the rabbits. At first she hesitated, but finally consented to try; and when noon-hour came she found that the bunnies were indeed salable articles, for she had disposed of all the farmer had brought. He went home promising to bring her more the next day, and was on hand early in the morning with another supply, which, like the first, Frau Zehner sold very quickly. From the time of taking up the business she has been known as the "Rabbit Woman." She finally drew such a crowd with her strange but attractive wares that the authorities ordered her to move her stand to a less conspicuous place than Twenty-third street.

For a time she sold her rabbits in front of one of the best-known candy-stores of New York; but upon making a second move, she found a new place between Twentieth and Twenty-first streets on the west side of Broadway, where she has been on every pleasant day for the past few years.

The busiest season of the year for the Rabbit Woman is at Easter-time, when her sales are doubled. The idea of the hare in connection with Easter, says Frau Zehner, first found expression in Germany. The children are up early Easter morning to hunt for the "hare's nest." It may be either inside or outside the house. When the hare is found—it may be either of sugar or papier-mache, but usually it is a real live bunny—it is in the nest surrounded with eggs, which the old people tell the children were left there for them during the night.

The apron she wears while carrying on her trade has rabbits embroidered along the bottom of it, and one on each of the pockets; when cats are her wares, the pattern of her apron also shows a change, and a long row of graceful and decorative kittens take the place of the embroidered rabbits. Frau Zehner does not raise the rabbits, but obtains her supply from the farmers of the surrounding country. She will try to find a bunny of almost any color for you, if you wish it. She is a great favorite with the artists who wish to paint or draw from rabbits about the time of the holidays or Easter.

When the weather is stormy, so that it is impossible for her to be at her usual stand, she receives at her home many distinguished customers who come to buy rabbits for their children. She lives in a cozy little tenement on the east side. Her parlor is very tastefully arranged, and although the furniture is not of the most expensive and the carpet is not of the latest design, her apartment has a very cheerful and homelike look.

A Dollar Easily Earned.

In a Massachusetts town lives an eccentric old pork butcher, remarkable for his shrewdness. Some young collegians one day entered the shop, and, for a joke, asked how much pork was a yard. "One dollar," promptly replied the old fellow. "Then," said one of the smart youths, "I'll take a yard."

"One Minute Cough Cure is the best remedy I ever used for coughs and colds. It is unequalled for whooping cough. Children all like it," writes H. N. Williams, Gentryville, Ind. Never fails. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Cures coughs, colds, hoarseness, croup, pneumonia, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. It's early use prevents consumption.—J. H. Orme.

THE GROCERYMAN

OUR GLORIOUS COUNTRY.

Have you watched its marvelous growth? If not, The Weekly Enquirer wants to study the strides it has made. The first census of the United States was taken in 1790. Since then every succeeding ten years. The result has been as follows:

Year.	Population.	Year.	Population.
1810	7,239,881	1860	31,443,291
1820	9,632,822	1870	38,558,371
1830	12,866,020	1880	50,155,783
1840	17,069,453	1890	62,629,760
1850	23,191,876

Here you have the figures of a basis of calculation. The problem now is: What will be the population of the United States, excluding recent acquisitions. The result is usually announced in July of the census year.

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER is anxious to engage all in a study of their country. To this end it will distribute cash amounting to $25,000, for solutions received of the population of the United States Census, as follows:

To the first nearest correct guess received.	$3,000.00
To the second.....	1,500.00
To the third.....	750.00
To the fourth.....	500.00
To the fifth.....	250.00
To the sixth.....	100.00
To the seventh.....	50.00
To the next 10, each $100, amounting to.	1,000.00
To the next 50, each $50, amounting to.	2,500.00
To the next 100, each $25, amounting to.	2,500.00
To the next 500, each $10, amounting to.	5,000.00
To the next 1,500, each $5, amounting to.	7,500.00

2197 cash presents amounting to $25,000.00

In case of a tie, money equally divided.

Every guess on the above proposition must be accompanied by a year's subscription to the WEEKLY ENQUIRER. You can guess as often as you care to inclose subscription price to the WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

This contest will close a month before the result of the census will be known and officially certified by the Director of the United States Census at Washington, D. C.

Subscription price for the WEEKLY ENQUIRER (including guess) is only $1.00 a year. Eleven copies and eleven guesses for $10.00. For full particulars see WEEKLY ENQUIRER. Send all orders to ENQUIRER CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Your Truly
W. W. Watson

The above is a good picture of Mr. Geo. W. Landram, County Clerk of Livingston county. He is a candidate for prison commissioner. There is not a more loyal Democrat in Southern Kentucky, and he has for years been one of the most active workers in this section. We are glad to note that he has a strong support and considers his chances of election good. If elected he will make a splendid official.

Mr. J. R. Jennings Dead.

Mr. John R. Jennings died yesterday morning at his home two miles west of Marion. He had been suffering several months with a cancer on the face. Mr. Jennings has been a resident of this county many years; he was a good citizen, and an honest christian gentleman. His wife and seven children survive him.

The interment will be at the new cemetery at this place today.

The Meeting

Services are being held at the M. E. church every day now. Dr. Collins, of Louisville, will arrive today.

Gilliam Cameron.

Gilliam Cameron, a young man well known here, died at Paris, Tex., February 3. He was a son of Mr. J. H. Cameron, at one time sheriff of this county, and many of our people remember him as a little boy. He went west with his father many years ago. Many of his friends here will regret to hear of his death.

Book Notice.

In order to gather information concerning early incidents in the settlements in Livingston county, (including the present county of Crittenden) for the purpose of writing a history of Crittenden county, I make this public inquiry for the following books: "Sketches of Western Adventure" by Rev. John A. McClung, D. D. The book was published in the early part of the last century, and is now out of print. An Autobiography by that noted pioneer Methodist preacher Peter Cartwright, also out of print.

Any one knowing where these books may be obtained will confer a favor by communicating the information to the columns of the PRESS, or to me. W. Hugh Watson, Carroville, Ky.
