ELOQUENT APPEAL TO THE DEMOCRACY

Of His County by Livingston's Popular Son, County Court Clerk
George W. Landram.

HIS VIEWS ARE CLEARLY AND FORCIABLY EXPLAINED.

I desire to express to you my gratitude and appreciation for the honor you conferred on me in 1897 when you entrusted to me the banner of Democracy and gave me the nomination for the important office of County Court Clerk; and I know, too, that I can assure the Democracy of the north side of Cumberland river that a grateful Democracy of the south side joins me in this expression of thanks for the honor thus conferred—for the first time since the organization of the county, in 1798, 102 years—upon one of the truest and tried democrats living south of the Cumberland.

Having been born in an humble cabin home, reared upon the hills of an old clay farm, of poor but honest parentage, and educated in the blacksmith shop, and in the old log school house, among a people who are honest and worthy, and whose Democracy and support to the Democratic nominees by its 500 Democratic voters has never in all this time wavered or faltered in its loyalty to the Democratic party; they sent me to the north side in 1897 with the assurance that in me, if honored with the nomination and this office the people would find an honest, capable, efficient and faithful public servant, and democracy a champion, loyal, fearless and true. These assurances by my people that I was their choice was confirmed on the day of the primary election, the 3d of April, 1897, by every precinct on the south side giving me a handsome plurality for the nomination, and every precinct on the north side, except two, joined in the response to the appeal from the people of my home side of the river and also gave me a plurality. I carried the banner thus entrusted to my care to victory in the following November election and was duly inducted into office on the 3d day of January, 1898. That I have conducted the office faithfully, honestly and efficiently I have yet to hear aught to the contrary. That I have been faithful and true to the principles of the true Democracy, as advocated by Bryan, expressed by the Chicago platform and re-affirmed by the Kansas City platform, no man can truthfully deny. And to the "Great Common People," the democracy, the real genuine type of the old sort, I appeal for an endorsement at your hands.

I promised you in 1897 that if elected I would ask for no third term. Two terms for Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Jackson were enough. That was Democratic and right then, it is Democratic and right now. If elected this time I will keep my promise, as I have kept every promise I have ever made the people.

Mr. predecessor, Mr. Lowry, an unfortunate cripple, like myself, was given an endorsement without opposition. I was urged by many in 1894 to make the race then against him, but I positively refused, because he had made a good clerk and he not only merited an endorsement, but according to the party precedent and custom, the party owed him an endorsement, and he got it without opposition. I stayed out of the race in 1894, just as those who are opposing me now should do, and not try to reverse the old time custom of the great Democratic party of endorsing a faithful public officer. However, I have this to say: If any Democrat conscientiously believes that I have not made as good public servant as either of the gentlemen will make who oppose me, and you do not for any cause believe that I merit an endorsement, then it is your duty to vote for that man against me whom you believe will make you a better officer; you owe that duty to yourself, your family, your county and your State.

Notwithstanding the fact that I have made you a faithful and honest public servant, I can make you a better one next time, because I am more familiar with the records, the duties and requirements of the office now than when I first came into this office. The records of your titles to your lands and property are kept in this office; hence a very important office. Important to you and your posterity and unless a clerk has been unfaithful and derelict in his duties you can not afford to educate a man in this office every four years.

The time for the primary election is now very near at hand. Three weeks of circuit court comes in between this and the election, Dec. 29th, and I can not possibly visit you at your homes as I should like so very much to do, and talk this matter over with you, and so I want you to consider this a personal appeal to you to stand by me this time, if you can consistently make up your minds to do so, and remember that I am just as earnest in soliciting your vote and influence now in this appeal, as if I were to visit you every day from now until the 29th; and remember also that whatever your decision in the matter this time, I shall ever be deeply grateful to you for past support. If that decision is against me, I shall cheerfully submit to the judgment of my party, and there will be no skulking by me in the camps of Democracy. I have tasted of the bitter dregs of defeat, but I have never complained, but on the contrary it has always rather stimulated me to renewed action for my party, and I shall be found in the ranks next year, and the next and then the next, fighting as best I can for the success of the Democratic ticket. Defeat nor victory shall cause me to cease my work for the party or lessen my zeal for the cause of the "great common people."

If my persistent course in advocating the principles of Democracy is distasteful to Democrats, then you should vote for some other man, for I warn you now that in the future, as in the past, I will never let an opportunity slip to get in a blow for the principles of Democracy, whether as county campaign chairman or as a private citizen. And if I can by any legitimate means increase the majority of the Smithland precinct of this year of 30 to 100 Democratic I shall gladly do so. It was indeed a pleasure to me that instead of going 68 Republican as in 1896, this precinct this year went 80 Democratic. Somebody has done some missionary work here and it is for the Democracy of Livingston county to judge and to place the responsibility where it belongs. Whatever is chargeable to me for this happy result, and also of 609 majority this and 474 for Bryan in 1896, in the county, against 138 majority for the Democratic nominee for Governor in 1895, I willingly and gladly shoulder the blame.

I submit my case to you, the loyal, the brave, generous, true and tried Democracy of Livingston county, as the jury, knowing full well that you will justice to all parties interested. With great respect, I have the honor to be, yours faithfully for Democracy and success,
G. W. LANDRAM.

Every Democrat in the county deserves praise for the excellent work of the campaign just closed, which resulted in a large increase in our majority. Our county never before had such a splendid organization, and, while every Democrat in the county did his duty, Mr. Geo. W. Landram, the campaign chairman, is entitled to great praise for the energetic work that he did as chairman of the committee that had the campaign in charge. No other chairman has ever given a campaign such careful attention, and the party will be fortunate to secure such men in the future.—Smithland Banner.

Grand old Livingston county! We are proud of her! We are proud that her Democrats can be relied upon to cast their votes in favor of law and order. We are proud of the fact that no matter what calamity has befallen our great country, the Democrats of old Livingston are not responsible for it.

Livingston has always been a Democratic county, but in 1895 and 1896, when many of the then leaders of the party surrendered to the enemy, her majority was out to 138 for Hardin and 474 for Bryan. But, by every true Democrat putting his shoulders to the wheel on last Tuesday, the majority for Bryan was raised to 609, an increase of 471 over the vote of 1895, and 135 over that of 1896.—Smithland Banner.

THE MERRICK MYSTERY

Is Creating Great Excitement at Princeton.

Several days ago Frank Merrick, a young man of Princeton, was arrested on the charge of forging the name of R. V. Kevil & Son to checks for various amounts. The charges were made by his wife, who was seeking a divorce, alleging cruelty. He did not deny the charge when found at home, but pleaded illness. He continued to grow worse and on Monday was pronounced dead. Tuesday he was buried and the next day Mrs. Merrick was married to Jas Moore for whom she had long openly avowed her adoration. It is said that on his deathbed Merrick made some startling charges against his wife. The affair dropped for a day and it was then reported that Merrick's grave had been opened and the body stolen. Investigation proved this report to be correct. This discovery has created a sensation. All kinds of rumors are afloat. Some to the effect that he committed suicide, others that he was poisoned, and others that he shammed death. The whole affair has a most mysterious appearance. Merrick's father is wealthy. Merrick died in mortal agony, and his sickness was surrounded with many suspicious circumstances.

NEWS NOTES.

The State Election Commissioners are now canvassing the election returns at Frankfort.

The inauguration of Gov. Becham will take place Tuesday, December 11th. Great preparations are being made for the important event.

Congress convened at noon on Monday. The President's message was received in both houses. The Republicans have a large majority. The ship subsidy bill, Spooner Philippine bill, H. Pouncefort treaty, army bill are among the important issues to be acted upon.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 1.—The briefs of counsel in the Caleb Ivers case were filed in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals at Frankfort today and it is believed the case will go to the court for decision this week; while the record is voluminous, it is expected a decision will be rendered before the present term expires. Three briefs were filed by the attorneys for Powers. They all among other things that the indictment was defective; that the instructions were erroneous; that evidence of conspiracy was not competent; that the Taylor party was valid, and that the trial judge was guilty of misconduct. The brief of the attorneys for the state deals in a general way with the case, they not having been furnished before hand with briefs opposing counsel.

EXCELLENT

Was the School Entertainment
At the Opera House.

The entertainment given by the pupils of the high school at the opera house Wednesday night, Nov. 28th, was a most delightful and successful affair. A very large audience was present. Almost every seat in the opera hall was occupied before the curtain was lifted for the first play. The program consisted of three short plays, interspersed with vocal and instrumental music. The first play was the humorous comedy sketch entitled, "A French Duel," a adapted from Mark Twain's "Tramp Abroad." It was an excellent portrayal of the manner in which the Frenchmen fight their bloodless duels. John Travis and Hickman Walker were the combatants, playing their parts well. Ernest Carnahan ably personated Mark Twain.

"Gentlemen, the King," was the second play. More tragedy than humor was in the sketch. Arthur Finley as Rudolph, king of Allura, was the leading character and acquitted himself admirably.

The last sketch was the comedy, "The Prairie Princess." Miss Sadie Rankin, as the haughty and elegant Duchess of Diddlesex, and Miss Leslie Woods, as the proud and stylish daughter of this aristocratic duchess, proved themselves most able performers. Miss Carrie Moore and Miss Claire Taylor, as the "Prairie Princesses," with their cowboy cousin, Henry Haynes alias Dick Majendie, were almost perfect in both speech and costume, as "Children of the West," while Lester Terry, as the London dude, continually excited the audience to laughter by his droll by-word, "By Jo."

Mrs. Ingraw, the popular music instructor, assisted by several young people, delighted the audience with sweet songs during the evening.

The entertainment was a success financially. A good sum was realized for the school. Professor Evans is to be congratulated on his success as the manager of an entertainment and has the thanks of the people for such a delightful treat.

MR. ALEXANDER,

Prominent Telephone Man Was Married Last Week.

Mr. J. T. Alexander, the popular telephone man, and Miss Minnie Lee Guess, of Crider, were united in marriage last Thursday. The news of their marriage created no little surprise among the numerous friends of Mr. Alexander, as the matter had been kept very secret. Mr. Alexander left his home at Madisonville Wednesday, ostensibly to attend to some business matters, and no one had the slightest idea of his real intentions. But the construction of telephone lines or any such business affairs were not to claim the attention of this gentleman. Going to Crider he there joined the fair lady whom he had chosen to be his companion and helpmate in the voyage over life's tempestuous sea and in the parlor of the bride's father at 11 o'clock Thursday forenoon, the marriage ceremony was performed. The bride and bridegroom left at once for Madisonville and later for Chicago, to spend a few days.

The bridegroom is one of the best known men in Western Kentucky. He occupies a high position in social and business circles. His genial disposition has drawn to him many friends in Marion.

The bride is a typical Kentucky beauty, highly accomplished, and possessed of the most amiable and lovable qualities. She is a daughter of Mr. Wm Guess, one of Caldwell county's most prominent citizens.

The happy couple will make Madisonville their home. The Press tenders its heartiest congratulations.

Married in a Buggy.

Probably the most novel wedding to occur in this county for some time was that which occurred near Shady Grove last Saturday afternoon, while during a blinding rain storm and while old Bogrens was beating the devil's tattoo among the tree tops, Mr. Mon Travis and Miss Sarah Tudor drove up to the residence of Rev. F. L. Atwood, who in a few well chosen words pronounced them man and wife, while they remained snugly wrapped in their buggy, oblivious to all atmospheric conditions. The groom is a prosperous young farmer; the bride is a very popular young lady.—Princeton Chronicle.

Obituary.

Mrs. Ada Blanche Carr was born March 9, 1879, died at her home near Carrsville Oct. 24, 1900. She professed faith in Christ in July, 1896, and lived a devoted christian life until her death. She was married to Ernest Carr Nov. 24, 1898. She was a loving, true and devoted companion, until God saw fit to call her home. To know her was to love her for her friends were many.

She leaves a dear husband and relatives and friends to mourn her departure. So cheer up, dear husband; we know that she is missed in her home and that her place is vacant. She can not come to you but you can go to her. So sleep on dear one and take thy rest that one day there may become a united family around thy throne in heaven.

She has passed the vale of shadows
With its dark and chilling tide,
In that bright and glorious city
She will ever there abide;
She shall sleep, but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn
Where her loved ones she shall meet
On that resurrection morn.

DANGER FROM OVEREATING.

Insanity Often Caused by Too Liberal Indulgence in Food.

It is well known to the few medical men that many cases of insanity are directly due to overeating and the consequent absorption into the circulation of toxic matters from the intestinal tract, and melancholia, whether in mild or severe form, is generally due to this cause. Violent paroxysms of temper, whether in children or adults, are often properly referable to a bad state of the blood from this auto toxemia, as are indeed the exceedingly exuberant spirits of old or young at times. Just as we observe in alcoholic poisoning, some individuals are made temporarily jolly and good natured; others are made ugly and unreasonable.

In view of this condition of affairs isn't it rather a wise plan for us all to consider rather the needs of the organism for food than the mere question of palate tickling, to aim to eat good instead of bad food and enough of it—that is, not too much—to have the conditions about right when we take our meals; in brief to try and treat our bodies decently even though we act from a purely sensual point of view? In no other way can we secure the highest possible degree of pleasure on the average, while by acting thus sensibly we may enjoy practical immunity from disease.

The more exercise we take under proper conditions, the more we are exposed to cold, and the clearer we keep from excess in clothing the more we may eat; hence, in order to enjoy the fullest measure of table pleasures, we must live actively, wear as little clothing as is consistent with comfort and do considerable "roughing"—sometimes called hardening. With all this we should take our meals at times when the body or brain is not overtaxed, and when we "have leisure to digest," and, of all things, we should never eat unless we are hungry. To eat without an appetite is self abuse of the most stupid sort, since it affords no pleasure and is productive of disease.—Physical Culture.

NOT IN THE PLAY.

A Case Where Two Actors Displayed Presence of Mind.

A short time ago a great historical play was being given in an Italian theater. The king had to read his speech from the throne. He was surrounded by the court, all the representative nobles of the nation, the governors of the provinces and the heads of the army.

Clad in his magnificent robes (lined with rabbit skin) he stalked majestically across the stage, and, with fitting hauteur, slowly ascended the steps leading to the throne. Every one bowed low, and the chancellor handed to his majesty the parchment roll from which to read the royal speech.

All waited attentively to catch the words from the royal lips, but his majesty found, to his chagrin, that the roll was blank. The speech was long and had not been committed to memory.

It was impossible to get through it with the aid of the prompter, for he was too far away to render the needed service. A bright thought passed through the royal brain.

Having glanced over the roll as if to gather the gist of the speech, he again folded it and handed it back to the chancellor with the command:

"You read it."

The chancellor was somewhat put out, but dutifully took the roll and opened it, only to discover the royal pleasantry, whereupon, again rolling the parchment up and taking from his breast the resplendent tin order, he laid them together at the king's feet, with:

"Your majesty, as I cannot read the speech, I tender my resignation," and walked off the stage.

FARM CONVENIENCES.

An Excellent Tool For Cutting Tile. The Same Sort of a Slush Scraper.

I will say that I am the inventor of a tool for cutting tile that is superior in every respect to any tool I have ever seen used, and that is a tile hammer, a drawing of which I send herewith. I have used these hammers for years, and the shape and size here given (six inches long) are about the best proportion for the purpose. They should be made of the best steel and both poll and pick tempered the same as stonecutters' chisels. The pick is beveled like a cold chisel. The poll is round and the shape of the base of a cone and one inch in diameter; the shaft round and cylindrical. The poll should be ground square, or better, a little concave, leaving sharp cutting edges, and should be a little more flaring on the handle side. With this tool I have never found any need of anything else.

Some get tile at the mills with holes cut in them, but I never do, for with a tile hammer it is less trouble to cut the holes wherever you want them. In connecting laterals most persons cut a hole or get tile with holes in them and stick the end of the connecting tile into the hole, but I never do that nor allow it to be done on work under my supervision. The connecting tile (2 in the cut) must be cut to fit against the tile connected to on an angle (see 2 and 3). The hole should be cut the full size of the inside of 2, which will be an egg shape, the small end up stream. I also cut the tile on all curves to fit as close as other joints (see 4).

A soft tile is not the best tile to cut, and I promptly discard a cracked tile. Select well burned tile that will ring when struck with a hammer. Cut holes near the middle of the tile. In cutting the connecting tile, 2, leave a part of the end full, as shown, instead of cutting it to a thin edge. Except in picking a small hole through a tile to start with the use of the hammer is generally used. The edges should be kept sharp. No patent on this hammer, free to all, writes a correspondent to Ohio Farmer, wherein another writer tells of an equally practical tool, a slush scraper, as follows:

Where a farmer has a large ditch running through his farm a slush scraper is indispensable. This one is made from two inch plank, sides five feet long, with one end patterned for the scraper and tapered to make suitable handles, as shown in cut. The scraper box should be four feet wide, two feet from front to rear of box, and one foot in depth. These dimensions will move almost a half yard of mud at each load, and a team will pull it easily.

The top and bottom of scraper should be banded with tire iron, which will make it more rigid and wear better. Any blacksmith can make the blade out of an old drag saw blade or suitable piece of flat steel. This should be bolted and riveted to the box and band irons of box and made quite sharp to cut well. The eyelets shown in illustration near the blade are to fasten a log chain into.

With this scraper one can clean the slush out of a large ditch and work the team on bank. The length of chain can be regulated to suit the depth of ditch. We used a scraper similar to this last autumn on our farm and found it excellent to clean out slush and also to dress off overhanging banks.

Farmers Can Finish a Few Steers.

Though there appears to be no such demand for cattle by big feeders as there was a year ago, National Stockman thinks it likely that the small feeders, and especially those who handle only a few head, will finish more cattle than for several years. Farmers can now pick up a few steers near home—something they could not do a few years ago—at reasonable figures. A great many farmers will feed a few head of cattle raised by themselves or bought in the community rather than haul their grain to market and let their fodder go to waste.

Get Good Prices For Cotton Seed.

"As we have said before, we repeat," says J. B. Hunnicutt of Georgia. "Every bushel of cotton seed is worth 20 cents to the farmer. He should never sell for less. The oil mills can afford to give 24 cents."

"We must not lose sight of this. The two short crops will make oil products higher. Lard, so called, will be high. So we can get good prices for our cotton seed if we only demand it."

FARM MACHINERY.

Machines Lessen Labor Bills, Stop Waste and Add to Income.

The southern farmer has reached the point where he must use more machinery. He cannot compete successfully with other farmers if he does not. Hand labor is too expensive, if he can get it. But he cannot always command enough of it. It is getting scarcer and less satisfactory every year. As the old antebellum labor passes from the farm we find it more and more difficult to get the kind and quantity of workers we wish.

The new laborer wants to work fewer months and shorter hours, and demands higher pay. Then, again, he is not reliable. You cannot count upon his carrying out his contract. He is expensive on account of the direct pay and more expensive when you consider the indirect—the incidentals that you did not agree to give, but which are nevertheless gone from the farm.

The time has come when we must produce more per acre. The competition in prices grows heavier each year. Rapid transit makes it so easy for distant points to send competing articles that we must be prepared to price against any and every competitor. The only way to cheapen production is to produce more per acre and decrease the cost of cultivation.

Good farm machinery will help to both of these. To do good plowing we must have good plows. One hand can do the plowing of three hands if we have the best plows. But at the same time he does so much more, he can do it so much better. A three of four horse plow guided by one man can break more ground than the same number of horses each to a little single plow, and he can do much better plowing.

Then in the use of cultivators and harrows the same holds true.

A good mower or reaper or harrow enables us to cut and cure and handle all hay and grain and even corn crop very much cheaper.

Not only is there a saving in the cost, but often the whole would be lost if we had to wait for the old way of hand cutting and hand binding at horse thrashing.

Machinery work cheaper than men. Human labor costs more than animal labor and animal labor more than steam or electricity. We do not advise too great haste. This sometimes makes waste. But we do urge the use of all improved farm implements that have been tested and proved.

Machinery has stopped the waste of cotton seed and given them permanent value.

Machinery will soon stop the wasteful process of fodder pulling and stalk burning, but we will save the fodder and the stalks. This will enable us to grow very many more cattle, and it will add to our income and enrich our farms. Thus speaks The Southern Cultivator.

A Notion in Pig Troughs.

It is as natural for a pig to put his feet in the slush trough as it is for a nose there, and if he can get his back lengthways of the trough it suits him.

FOOTPROOF PIG TROUGH.

Just as well to stand with both feet and hind feet in the trough. An Ohio Farmer correspondent has figured out the following contrivance for circumventing this little trick: the cut explains the construction:

These troughs should not be made more than 10 or 12 feet long. If made longer, they are inconvenient to handle or move about. The timber used should be durable, 1 1/4 inches thick for on side of the trough and 8 inches wide for the other, 7 inches; the same width and thickness will do for the end pieces. The trough is V shaped. Each end nail an upright piece (A) an let it extend above the trough at least a foot. In the upper end of this upright cut a slot an inch wide and 6 inches deep. Into this fit a six inch fencing plank (B). This will be over the center of the trough, lengthwise, and six inches from the top of the trough. The partitions (P) on each side of the trough should be about nine inches apart.

One trouble will be noted in regard to this trough. It is not so convenient to fill with feed or slop as an open one.

Native Forage Plants For Alkali Soils.

A. Nelson of Wyoming classifies the forage areas of that state in three divisions—mountain, hill and plain. The two former areas, being well drained, are reasonably free from alkali. The latter area is divided into normal plains and alkali plains. The native plants of the alkali plains are found to have a greater or less value for forage. The salt sages are found to be the most suitable for the Wyoming lands. Winter fat (related to the salt sages), Indian millet, slender wheat grass and alkali meadow grass are found on the alkali plains and are of value as forage. Tuber bulrush is found in alkali marshes and is much relished by cattle.

Potatoes in Texas.

Of 33 varieties of potatoes tested in Texas Triumph has proved the best early variety grown during a period of four years. Red Triumph has sold better in the market than White Triumph. By planting second crop potatoes grown in Virginia better fields were secured than with potatoes grown in New York. Tubers averaging 2 1/2 ounces each, planted whole, gave large returns than two or four ounce tubers cut to one-quarter or one-half ounce pieces.

ONE YEAR ONE DOLLAR

We are authorized to announce
GEO. W. LANDRAM
a candidate for county clerk of Livingston county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary to be held December 29.

Wonder if Senator Deboe will follow the example of Senators Carlisle and Lindsey and go to New York, when Ollie James takes his place in the Senate in 1903.

The Populist and Prohibition parties received exactly the same number of votes in this county—21 each. This is an average of "mighty nigh" two to the precinct.

The Administration's plan as to Cuba is said to be a limited Republic, remarks an exchange. The idea probably originated from the condition of affairs in this country. What the bosses don't do themselves they permit the people to do, if done to suit.

"Stone expresses his views," is the caption of an article in which Hon. Wm. J. Stone talks about the re-organization of the Democratic party. The Stone referred to is the Missouri man, and not the Kentucky article of similar name. The latter's views are not sought after these days.

A New York paper states that
New Jersey Democrats are interested in a suggestion that Grover Cleveland be given the complimentary nomination for United States Senator. As the Legislature is safely Republican we have no objection to the presentation of the name mentioned.

The Livingston county highways and hedges are full of candidates. The Democratic primary comes off December 29, and there are as many Democratic candidates in that county as there will be Republican candidates in Crittenden a little later on. Democratic candidates in Crittenden
will probably be as shy as Republican candidates in Livingston but in all probability there will be enough to go round.

In this paper appears the announcement of Mr. Geo. W. Land-ram as a candidate for re-election to the office of county clerk of Livingston county. Besides the formal announcement, Mr. Land-ram has a card to the voters of his county and it affords the Press
no little pleasure to call the attention of its many Livingston county readers to both the announcement and the card. Mr. Landram has made the county an efficient, faithful, painstaking, accommodating officer, meeting all the requirements of the very important office to the satisfaction of the most exacting. He is a Democrat among Democrats and is never more at home than when doing service with all the zeal and enthusiasm of his ardent nature for his party, and in every campaign

during the past few years his work has been of great value to the gallant Democracy of old Livingston.
It is but natural that one who has been true to his party and faithful to the people should seek an endorsement at their hands. As a Democrat who watches with more than passing interest the proud career of the loyal Democrats of the good old county of Livingston, the Press commends the candidacy of Geo. Landram to the careful and prayerful consideration of the good people of that county.

Two Fine Mules Drown.

One day last week Jas. Cruce,
son of Mr. A. L. Cruce of this place, was hauling lumber near Blackford. He had a team of two fine mules, and boarding the ferry
boat at Fishtrap with his team, started over the Tradewater. Just before reaching the shore the mules became frightened and bac-ed off the boat into the water and were drowned before they could be rescued.

Married at the Gill House.

At noon Wednesday Mr. John
C. Kirk and Miss Lula Brasher, a prominent young couple of Livingston county, were united in marriage in the parlor of the Gill House, Rev. Joiner, of the Methodist church, performing the ceremony. After dinner the happy couple returned to their future home in Livingston. This makes the thirteenth marriage ceremony
that has taken place at the Gill House during the present year.

about 14 years of age, died at the residence of his brother-in-law,
Mr. Sneed of this place, last Saturday night. He was the son of Mr. John F. Rogers, of Crittenden county, and was engaged in hauling fire clay here. The river being in such a stage that it could not be ferried, the remains could not be taken home, but were buried at the cemetery in this place.
Young Rogers, who was the brother of Mrs. J. J. Tinsley, of this place, was a quiet, kind young man
well liked by all who knew him.

GLASGOW LEE DEAD.

The Quiet Close of an Humble Though Honorable Life.

Monday, at high noon, Glasgow Lee, colored, one of Marion's old landmarks, answered the call of the Master, "passed over the river," and now rests beneath the shade of the trees.

For more than eighty years this good old negro has met the ups and downs that must be contended with in the course of mortal life.

Glasgow was born a slave. He was owned by Dr. Leigh, who long years ago entered into eternal rest. While in bondage Glasgow married Aunt Harriet, who survives him. When the civil war broke out he entered the army of the north and fought throughout the war. After freedom was given to the negro Glasgow came back to his old home, was re-married to Harriet and settled down.

For almost half a century the good old man has lived in his little home south of town. No colored man had more friends or was better liked than Glasgow Lee. He was a typical old Southern darkey, a relic of the good old days "before the war." Kind, accommodating, friendly, quiet, reminiscent. As we looked on him memories would come up of the southern plantation, of the "old master," of the cotton fields, of the negro songs in the rice fields, of "Marse George" and "Miasus," for Glasgow represented the central figure of those happy days of the old South that have passed away, to return never more; for in him could be seen the true "Uncle Tom," or Uncle Remus, the old plantation slave, who seemingly controlled the "great house" and was respected by all, from the little negro baby to the proud old master. This type of the plantation slave is rapidly passing away.

The Press long claimed Glasgow as one of its force. For over a decade he was "pressman," and week in, week out found him constantly at his post, faithfully discharging his duty, and we feel it our duty to pay him a last tribute.

Tuesday afternoon this old time christian darkey was laid to rest, and we feel sure he has joined his "Master" of long ago in the city of eternal rest.

Long will the citizens of Marion hold in kind remembrance old Glasgow Lee. His cheerful greeting as he met you on the street will greet you no more on this side the grave. When Glasgow met a friend his long, wrinkled hand would lift the old white felt hat he ever wore, from off his gray locks, and making a bow would wish the old Southern accent face you with a "Good mawnin', Mistah. How do ye do."

PROTRACTED SERVICES

At the Methodist Church Came to a Close Tuesday.

The series of services that have been in progress at the Methodist church for some time were closed Tuesday afternoon. The services were well attended throughout the course of the meeting. Rev. Joiner, the pastor, conducted the services and was assisted by Presiding Elder Bigham the first week of the meeting. Both the pastor and Rev. Bigham delivered many able sermons. Rev. Joiner is a speaker of extraordinary oratorical ability. His discourses are delivered in a most eloquent, entertaining and impressive manner. He is a man of great earnestness and never fails to claim the close attention of his congregation. No meeting such as this one just closed can prove otherwise than beneficial to our town.

OLDEST WOMAN

In the County Dead—A Church Member Eighty-Five Years.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson died at the home of her son, Mr. Joseph Wilson, some miles southeast of Marion. She was the oldest woman in the county, and probably the oldest in Western Kentucky. She was born in January, 1807, and would have been 94 had she lived until January. She was familiarly known as "Aunt Betsey," and was highly respected and venerated by all who knew her. She was a member of the church 85 years, and died triumphantly in the faith that had comforted and cheered her through all the years.

A Large Edition.

This week we issue fifteen hundred additional copies of the Press. This makes the edition number about 3200 copies. The extra 1500 copies are sent to citizens of Livingston county, who receive them through the kindness of Mr. Geo. W. Landram.

Catholic Lecture.

The Rev. Edwin Drury, of the Catholic church, delivered three lectures at the opera house this week, on the doctrines and practices of the Roman church. "The Church and the Wants of Society," "The Church and Wants of the Soul," "The Church and the Bible," were his themes. All were cordially invited to ask questions. Many questions were asked the gentleman, all of which he answered. The discourses were interesting and were ably delivered, and contained a great deal of information regarding the Catholic church. Father Drury made an able defence of the doctrines of Catholicism.

A BITE IN THE DARK.

The Young Man Liked Jelly, and He Filled His Mouth.

A young man whose work keeps him
 down town until the early morning hours usually reaches home with a sharp appetite. His mother, an indulent mother, too, puts a little lunch
 out where he can get it, but this frequently fails to satisfy him. His wise parent knows this, and she saves the larder from a wholesale onslaught by locking things up.

Now, if there is one thing in particular that this youth dotes upon it is jelly. But jelly is an article of food that takes time and still in its preparation, and if the lady left her jelly jars at his disposal, well, there would be none to dispose of after a few mornings. So the jelly is locked up the tightest of all.

The other morning the youth let himself into the house just as the gray streaks of dawn were crossing the eastern sky. There was milk and bread awaiting him, but his soul craved for jelly. He determined to hunt for some. Finding a slice of bread and a knife, he set down a bar and searched the fruit shelves. What happiness! He finally made out the outlines of a jelly jar. Was there any jelly in it? He dipped in his knife and felt the soft and quivering mass. What a joke on his motherly careful mother!
 She had actually forgotten to turn the key on this jar.

He drew out a generous quantity and carefully spread it on a bit of bread. He had to do it largely by guess work, because the cellar was almost totally dark. When the spreading was done, he smacked his lips lightly and took a generous bite.

No, it wasn't jelly; it was soft soap—

 A BIG BEAR.

The Old Possum Hunter Tells How It Came to Pass That He Developed a Most Wonderful Interest in Noah
 and the Animals in the Ark.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

"Test befo' the revenue fellers captured the last moonshine still around yere," said the old possum hunter of Tennessee, "we had fo'teen kegs of whisky in the shaft of an old iron mine on the side of the mountain.
 That shaft was 20 feet deep and grown about by bushes. Arter the whisky had staid thar over two years it was planned fur me to take it out and sell it and divide up the money. The old woman knew of the plant, but I wasn't goin to say nuthin 'bout my gettin the kegs out. She was reckonin all along that some one else would do that. One afternoon I driv the mule and cart as nigh the place as I could, and along
 'bout two hours arter nightfall I says
 to the old woman:

"If yo' don't consider to object, I reckon I'll go over and see Dan Skinner this evenin'. Dan is feelin peekish and lonesome, and likely we'll hev a game of checkers to brighten him up."
 "But I do object," she says, "I was reckonin to sing some hymns tonight

"THE B'AR WAS THAR."
 while yo' played the fiddle. I also want to talk to yo' 'bout Noer and his ark."

"I've got a sore thumb and can't fiddle, and, as fur Noer, he will keep till some other time. Nuthin rushin
 'bout Noer."

"With that she turns on me and looks me squar in the face, and arter
 a minit she says:

"Zeb White, don't yo' go to foolin
 with Noer and his ark or sunthin powerful bad will come out of it. Dan Skinner may feel peekish, or he may be dyin, but what we wants to know is how all them critters found their way into the ark. How did it happen that the hens didn't eat up the tater bugs
 while they was walkin together?"

"Dunno."

"Why didn't the foxes eat all the hens?"

"Dunno."

"Why didn't the b'ars eat the pigs?"

"Dunno."

"Of co'se yo' don't, and that's why I want yo' to squat right down yere with me and try and figger it out. I shan't never be satisfied to die till I find out how the elephants and hosses and cattle managed to git into that ark without treadin on the sarprints and bugs."

"I seen that her jaw was sot fur a row," continued Zeb, "but I had sold that whisky and must git it out that night, and so I told her I'd go along over to Skinner's and put in the next two nights with her on Noer. She looked at me ag'in, but didn't say nuthin till I was on the doahstep. Then she p'inted her finger at me and said:

"Go right along, Zeb White, but if the Lawd don't dun git yo' into a heap of trouble over it then I don't know chestnuts from punkins."

"I hurried off without sayin anything back and half an hour later was bringin up the kegs. It was dod rotten biz-ness. I had to slide down a rope, hitch on to a keg and then climb up and pull the keg arter me. Ought to had a nigger to help me, but thar wasn't one around to trust. I'd got up fo' kegs all right and was comin up to pull the fifth one up when sunthin happened. Jest as I was nearin the top of the hole I heard a growl and a 'whoof' and a big b'ar made a stroke at my head with his paw. I was that dum skeered that I jest let go and dropped to the bottom of the shaft and got a jar that made my bones ache fur
 a week.

"What they calls the situashun was
 this: I was down in a hole and a b'ar
 was waitin fur me to come up and do business with him. Yo' kin see that the pesky varmint had all the advantage.
 He could smash my skull with one blow of his paw as my head come within reach. I yelled and bollerred at him, thinkin to skeer him away, but he looked over the edge of the hole at me and growled and sniffed and seemed minded to fall on top of me. It wasn't five minits befo' I wished I was home
 talkin 'bout Noer, but wishin was no good. I kept quiet fur two or three hours and then started to climb up.
 The b'ar was thar. He was thar at midnight and sunrise, and I'm tellin yo' that he was thar at noon and at fo' o'clock in the afternoon. The shaft was as dry as a bone, and I was thirsty
 'nuff to drink swamp water. The way things was fixed that b'ar could keep me down thar till I perished, and when he appeared, as if he was like to do it I felt that I hadn't used my old woman right and wanted to ask her to forgive me. 'Bout fo' o'clock, while I was keepin mighty quiet, I hears a rifle shot above, and directly arterward a human face looks down on me. It was the old woman's. She drawed the rope up beyond my reach

 and then called down:
 "Is anybody down thar visitin Dan Skinner who feels peekish and wants to play checkers?"

"If yo'll lemme up, I'll ax yo'r pardon," says I.

"Mebbe that voice belongs to Zeb White?"

"She do."

"And mebbe his sore thumb has got well so that he kin fiddle?"

"She has."

"Then we'll hev some fiddlin and singin."

"And with that she lowers the fiddle
 by a string, and as soon as I got tuned
 up she began singin and kept it up fur
 an hour. Then she calls down:

"Zeb, what about Noer and his ark?"

"I'm willin to talk," says I.

"How long will yo' talk?"

"All the rest of the fall and winter."

"Peared to me when yo' spoke of it last evenin that I didn't keer much 'bout Noer and his ark, but I'm findin out that I take a heap of interest in 'em.
 I'm willin to sit up all night and try to figger out 'bout the hens and tater
 bugs."

"Then mebbe yo'd better come up,"
 says she, and she draps the rope fur me to climb by. I never felt so glad in my life as when I got out and seen a dead b'ar thar. I wanted to gin the old woman a kiss, but she waves me
 off and says:

"Don't yo' be in sich a hurry, Mr.
 White. Arter yo' hev ate and drank and slept, and arter we've put in 'bout fo' weeks figgerin on Noer, we'll see
 'bout the kissin business. Chuck them kegs back into the hole, load up the b'ar, and we'll go home." M. Quan.

BET ON ALL THREE.

A Brilliant Scheme With Which to Beat the Shell Game.

When Herr Hopf and his little blue pitcher appeared in the corner exchange, there was quite a crowd.
 Among them was a man with three walnut shells and a pea.

"I've been losin at all the fairs,"
 said the shell man, "but just to show
 my generosity I am willing to lose again. I bet any man a dollar that he can't pick out the shell that the pea is under."

Herr Hopf fished a bright silver dollar from his pocket.

"I bet vonce too."

The shell man arranged the shells,
 and the Teuton lifted one. Of course
 it was empty.

"You lose!"

"Vonce again, yah!"

There was a quick movement, and Herr Hopf saw the pea slide under the shell. He lifted that one, but it was empty.

"Is der a limit?"

"No, sir."

"Vell, I bet on each shell."

He placed a dollar on each of the three shells.

"Now, I can't lose."
 "You are right!" And the dealer again arranged the shells. The Teuton picked up two empty shells and found the pea under the third.

"I win."

"You win!" And the shell man took in the $3 and handed the winner $2.

"I blay vonce again."

There was a movement of shells, and again the dealer took in $3 and gave Herr Hopf $2. Then some one whistled, and the shell man vanished
 through the door.

"I vin steady. He vas blay no more,"
 and even missing the dollars could not convince Herr Hopf that he had not been winning.—Chicago News.

Heat Radiation.

The tendency of heat to diffuse itself is effected by radiation, conduction and convection. Nearly all dull and dark substances are good radiators, while bright, polished surfaces radiate badly.
 Some substances conduct heat more freely than others, silver among the metals being the best conductor, and as a unit of measurement is taken at 1,000. Compared with silver as a conductor, gold is 981, copper 845, zinc 641, tin 422, steel 397 and wrought iron 436. Glass, wood, gases, liquids and resinous substances are bad conductors. Water is such a poor conductor that if heat is applied to the top it will boil at the top, while the bottom will remain cold.—Newcastle (England)
 Chronicle.

Watering the Cow.

"We notice," says the Weatherford Chronicle, "in an exchange an item
 about a cow that died from drinking too much water: 'It is hoped this will be a warning to other cows. We have toted water for a cow ourselves, and when, after turning up her nose and sniffing around as though she didn't think much of water anyhow and we might go to hades with it, she suddenly changed her mind and swallowed a bucketful in two gulps and kept on doing so for 10 or 15 times and called for more we just whacked her over the head with the empty bucket and hoped that she might bust and blessed her.'"

NEW SPRAYING DEVICE.

Compressed Air Power Does Excellent Work With Bordeaux Mixture.

A new wrinkle in spraying with bordeaux mixture is the use of compressed air, which a Pennsylvania farmer describes in Rural New Yorker as follows: The first cut shows the manner of charging the air tanks, while the second shows the machine in operation. The rig is perhaps a little expensive, but it does the work fast—just as fast as I wish to—and the hard work is a thing of the past. The entire outfit consists of a two horsepower gasoline engine, an air compressor mounted on a one horse wagon and two two wheeled carts carrying the air and mixture tanks. Each cart is supposed to carry two tanks of 50 to 100 gallons each. The photo shows three tanks. I had intended to use a small tank for air and have the initial pressure 200 pounds, but in practice I found it better to have more air space and lower pressure, so I added another tank. The two tanks are connected together by one-quarter inch gaspipe and shut off valve. Each tank has a steam gauge to show at all times the amount of pressure inside it. One tank has a hose connection with common union coupling to attach it to air compressor. The other tank has a large pipe connected at bottom. This pipe turns up behind the tank and terminates with a large valve—refilling valve. Near the turn of the large pipe is a toe connection having attached two lines of hose, as shown in the picture. Of course more lines can be connected if thought best. The energy is stored before commencing work, so the number of nozzles used has no bearing on the quality of the work done.

CHARGING AIR TANKS BY MACHINERY.

The carts are very simple affairs, homemade: two tubs with three cross-pieces all bolted together, with the tanks strap bolted to crosspieces. The first picture shows how the engine and air pump are mounted on a heavy one horse wagon so as to be easily moved to any point where it is most convenient to water to fill spray tank. Operation is as follows: One cart is backed up to the compressor, as shown in first picture. The hose is connected (about ten seconds' work) and engine started. The operator then takes a large wooden pail or tub with a short piece of pipe in bottom that fits the refilling valve, opens a little relief valve at top of spray tank and pours the mixture in. By the time the operator gets the mixture tank full the engine has got up a pressure of 125 pounds in the air tank and is ready to begin operations.

The machine is now ready for use, is disconnected from the compressor and driven to orchard. When ready to throw spray, the valve in small pipe connecting air to mixture tank is opened a little. In two or three seconds the gauge on mixture tank will show 50 or 60 pounds pressure. This is about the right pressure to throw a dense fog of spray. As long as nozzles are in use the little valve is left open slightly so that the pressure in the spray tank is constant at 50 or 60 pounds. If the nozzles are shut off for a minute or two or longer, it is closed so pressure will not go too high.

Now as to cost. For my purpose, all things considered, a gasoline engine seemed to be best. It cost $105, is two horsepower, weighs about 250 pounds. The barrel shown is half full of water, connected by pipes with water jacket of engine cylinder. The can upon the frame is the gasoline supply. I heat the hot tube with charcoal. That is the stuff I have found that will not blow out on a windy day. The air compressor cost $60. Engine runs 400 revolutions, size of pulley ten inch, belt three inch. With only 125 pounds maximum pressure and the fact that in changing the compressor stops no water jacket is really necessary, although I use a little water in the jacket.

COMPRESSED AIR OUTFIT IN THE FIELD.

The tanks can be had of any manufacturer of soda water or bottlers' supplies. They are known to the trade as "air tanks." They can be had in any size, are tested to 200 pounds or more, are not very heavy and cost last winter $15 each for 50 gallon tanks. Every one knows what nozzles, hose and connections cost. I used grape wagon wheels and axle for the carts. The framework costs possibly $5 for each.

Cottons and Cotton.

In an experiment at the Alabama experiment station, a plot of land planted in peas the year before produced at the rate of over 600 pounds of seed cotton per acre more than another plot planted in cotton the year before.

FALL CANKERWORM.

Its Life History and the Methods in Vogue For Fighting It.

Very destructive insects are the cankerworms. Though easy to conquer if properly treated, the annual loss due to their depredations is very considerable, and it would seem that many persons have yet to learn the methods of fighting this old time pest. There are two species of cankerworms more or less common wherever apples are raised, the fall cankerworm and the spring cankerworm. The fall worm is perhaps the more common. It is a single brooded insect, which lays its eggs either late in the autumn or early in spring. The egg hatches out a small loopworm that grows to the length of nearly an inch. It varies greatly in color, but is usually gray or almost black, striped with yellowish or greenish. Being a measuring worm, it has less than the ordinary number of legs, six true legs near the head and four false legs near the posterior extremity, with an extra rudimentary pair on the fifth abdominal segment. When full grown, it descends to the ground and usually buries itself sometimes several inches beneath the surface. Here it forms a cell by turning round and round and changes to the pupal stage. Late in the fall, from the last of October to the time when the ground becomes frozen, the adults emerge and lay their eggs on the branches of the trees. Many of the moths do not emerge in the fall, but remain in the ground till spring. When adult, the two sexes differ greatly in appearance. The male is a pretty moth, with ash gray front wings marked by three transverse darker lines and hind wings of silvery gray. The female, on the other hand, is not provided with wings, but has to crawl wherever she goes. She is somewhat more robust than the male and ashen gray in color marked with black.

The fact that the female cankerworms are wingless and must creep from the ground to the branches of the trees in order to lay their eggs gives us an excellent means of fighting them. If we can head them off and prevent them from crawling up the trunks of the trees, the eggs cannot be deposited on the twigs, and no harm will result.

FALL CANKERWORM.

A, male; B, female; C, D, E, structural details; F, G, eggs enlarged; H, I, segments of body; J, pupa; K, larva; L, pupa of female.

To accomplish this end various devices have been tried, such as banding the tree with paper and on this spreading printers' ink or caterpillar line or any thing sticky enough to prevent the caterpillars from crawling up. Perhaps the best band is made of cotton batting. A strip of this is wound around a tree trunk and fastened securely by a string at or below the middle. The upper end is now turned down, forming a loose, fluffy mass, in which the insects get entangled and die. This method has one disadvantage. The bands have to be kept on from the last of October until spring is well advanced and must be renewed after rains or when the cotton loses its fluffy nature. As the worms feed upon apple, elm, cherry and some other trees precautions must be taken to prevent them from breeding on these trees and again infesting the fruit trees.

The best method of overcoming these pests, however, is by spraying. They readily yield to a spray of one of the arsenites (see chapter on insecticides), which should be applied early as soon as any worms are seen, even before blooming, but never during the period of bloom. It may be necessary to repeat the spraying, but this method is by far the cheapest and most satisfactory.

Notes and News.

It has been particularly noted at the Rhode Island station that where a greater amount of nitrate of soda has been applied annually to grass land sown with clover, red top and timothy a far greater proportion of the crop consisted of timothy than where less of it was applied or than where it was omitted.

The heads but not the stems of sunflowers are made into silage.

In growing onions in Bermuda the land is enriched with well rotted cow or pig manure. The seed is sown in September and the crop harvested from January to May. A rigid system of inspection covers all shipments to the United States.

This country has come to be without a peer in the manufacture of agricultural implements and machines both as to quality and number.

Under the recent act for the protection of game animals and birds among birds the most general prohibition is that against the shipment of quail. All but 12 of the states prohibit export of these birds. Among the exceptions are seven southern states, Montana and North Dakota, but in Montana the sale and in North Dakota the killing of quail are at present unlawful.

The approaching Argentine wheat harvest, which begins with December, will be watched with great interest, as it figures largely in the world's trade. Present talk is that it will be large. But this crop is an uncertainty till actually harvested.

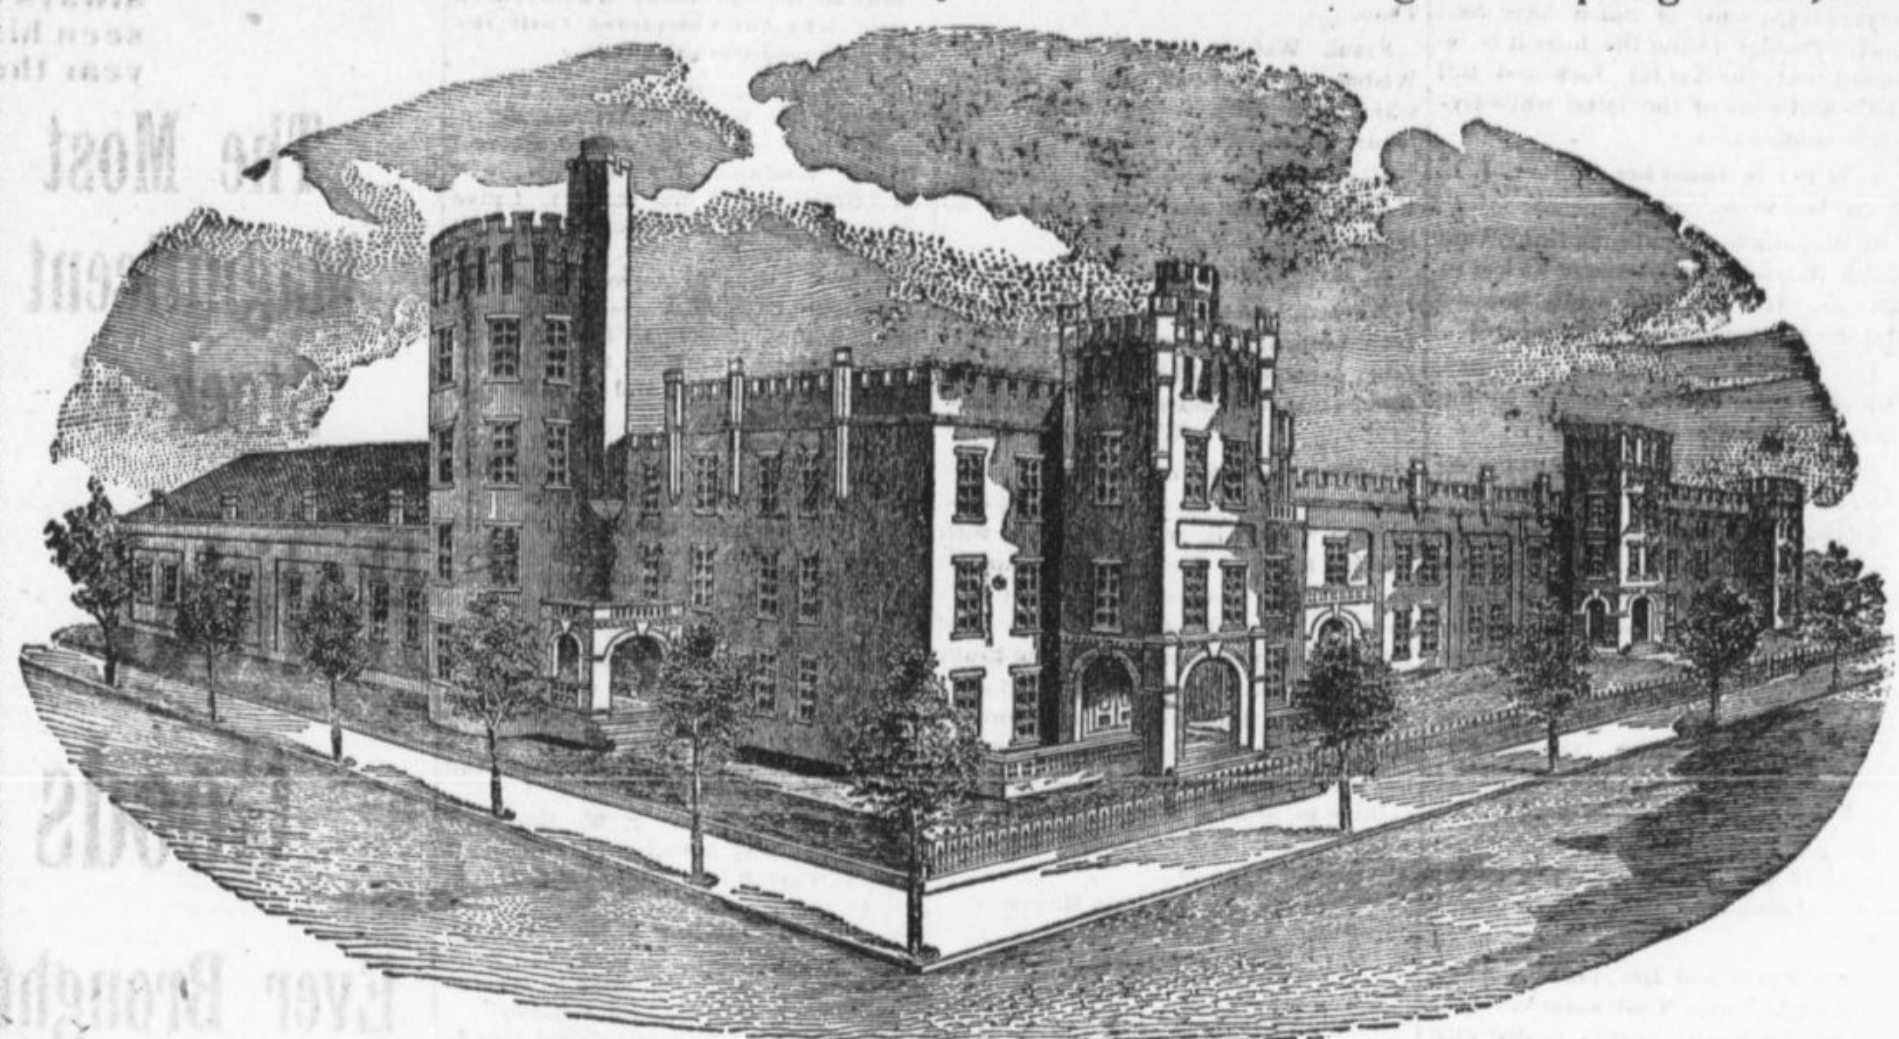

The making of paper from native grasses is a new proposition.

ODD INSURANCE SCHEMES.

Novel Risks Granted by Up to Date English Companies.

It was stated recently as a fact of novel and material interest that it was now possible to insure for the contingency of being the father of twins. And so it is. You can also insure prospective triplets. But that is a small matter compared to the queer risks insurance companies are taking every day. Anything from the vicissitudes of playing a fast bowler on a kicking wicket to the chance of an heir changing his religious tenets, is now a subject for an insurance policy.

"We insure people against the possibility of any calamity, whatever it may be," said Mr. Armstrong of the Ocean Accident Insurance company to a Mail representative.

"Frequently we are asked to insure against a man changing his name. Say somebody leaves a property to John Smith on condition that he takes the name and style of Howard Montgomery Vandeleur. He wants to borrow money on his property. The lender declines to advance the money on the ground that he has no guarantee that Vandeleur won't return to being called Smith. We insure the lender against that contingency, and Vandeleur (see Smith) gets his money."

"Another type of case is an insurance against the discovery of a missing man. A prodigal son leaves home for his country's good, and nobody knows where he is. His father, years later, leaves his property to be divided equally among his children. The trustee of the will finds himself in a difficulty. The prodigal may return from his husks, and then the other heirs will have had more than their share. We insure the trustee against the prodigal's return."

"Not long ago we insured a mortgagee against the mortgagee's marrying outside the faith, because such a marriage would have cost the mortgagee his property."—London Mail.

The Lark's Song.

A writer on "The Wonders of the Spring" says that the volume of sound produced by the skylark is most wonderful.

"The lark ascends until it appears no larger than a midge and can with difficulty be seen by the unaided eye, and yet every note of its song will be clearly audible to persons who are fully half a mile from the nest, over which the bird utters its song."

"Moreover, it never ceases to sing for a moment, a feat which seems wonderful to us human beings, who find that a song of six or seven minutes in length, though interspersed with rests and pauses, is more than trying. Yet this bird will pour out a continuous song of nearly 20 minutes in length and all the time has to support itself in the air by the constant use of its wings."

A Business Proposition.

Now, here is a poet who is practical enough. He hails from Dooley county, and it will be seen from his letter that he means business. He writes:

"I have wrote a poem about 100 yards long, as high as I kin guess. It took me six months as two hours to write it. I ain't no judge of these things, as what I want to know is where I kin hire a good man to read it for me an tell me what it is. To such a man I will pay $1 a day till he gets through, only he mustn't take too long!"—Atlanta Constitution.

The Boy and the Professor.

"I was mimicking Professor Bore yesterday, and he caught me." "What did he say?" "Told me to stop making a fool of myself."—Chicago Chronicle.

A MIDNIGHT BURIAL.

TRUE STORY OF THE FIRST MASONIC FUNERAL IN ARIZONA.

Owing to a Sequence of Peculiar Incidents the Ceremony Was Delayed and Was Not Completed Until the Sun Peeped Over the Hills.

The following true narrative of the first Masonic burial in Arizona, as related to me by my old friend, Colonel W. M. Williams of Cairo, Ills., will doubtless interest your readers. I give it, as nearly as possible, in his own words:

In 1800 I was in Arizona as superintendent of the St. Louis Mining company, located on the San Pedro river, a short distance west of what is now known as Tombstone and 40 miles east of Fort Buchanan.

On one occasion I made a visit to the Santa Rita mines, located in another part of the territory. These were managed by Cincinnati parties and were known as the Heintzelman mines. When I arrived there and introduced myself, as none of us had ever met before, I was greeted with that cordial hospitality known only to those who have lived on the frontier or in mining camps by Mr. H. C. Grosvenor of Cincinnati, the superintendent, with two others who occupied positions at the mines.

One of these, Mr. J. T. Mason, I found seriously indisposed; the other I sent to Fort Buchanan to bring Dr. J. B. D. Irwin, surgeon at the post. I then devoted my time to the sick man, who was growing more feeble each hour. He told me if he died he wanted to be buried with Masonic honors.

I had "tried" him and found him to be a bright third degree Mason. I promised to do all I could to carry out his request. He died before morning, and the messenger sent for the doctor had not returned, and it was uncertain as to when, if ever, he might return.

As in those days there were not over 65 Americans in the territory outside of the troops, the taking of life by the Indians was daily expected. In this emergency it devolved upon me to arrange for the burial of our friend. I sent upon messengers to Tubac and other places where Americans were known to be to come to my aid.

During the day I selected a beautiful spot overshadowed by a large mesquite tree and there had a very deep grave dug, as in that country the coyote is a kind of hyena, that will unearth any corpse if not laid deep in the ground. This work was done by peons, while I stood guard to keep the Indians from surprising us.

By midnight the messengers I had sent out commenced returning with the few who could come with them. I found among those who arrived two or three Masons, who, like myself, were "rusty" in the Masonic burial ritual. We opened the trunk of the deceased, hoping to find something to guide us in fulfilling his last request. The only thing we discovered was an Episcopal ritual. The following persons composed the funeral cortege: Dr. C. B. Hughes, J. Howard Wells, William S. Oury, H. C. Grosvenor, Colonel Titus, S. Warner and myself.

We had determined to bury the body at night, in the darkness, having no light except a candle in one of the old time perforated tin lanterns by which I could read the service.

After lowering the body into the grave I commenced to read the service. I stood close to the head of the grave, and Mr. Howard Wells held the lantern behind me. A rustling sound was heard. It was supposed to come from lurking Indians, and every one looked out for himself. The man holding the lantern dropped it into the grave, and I fell in after it.

There I was with the corpse in a deep grave. I had my pistols and Sharp's carbine with me, and I realized that if the Indians peered into the grave I could fill it with dead bodies. I listened. Not a sound was heard. My companions had, I suppose, secreted themselves and no doubt thought I had done the same.

After the lapse of about four hours day began to dawn, and as I stood upon the corpse (no coffin was in use in Arizona at the time of this occurrence, the dead being simply wrapped in their blankets) and cautiously looked over the brink of the grave to take in the surroundings.

I soon saw my comrades, one by one, emerging from behind rocks, where they had hastily secreted themselves, no one knowing where the others were. I called aloud for help and was soon assisted from the prison in which I had been confined for fully four hours, and as this is the first Masonic funeral that was ever held in Arizona I think it deserves a record.

After comparing notes we discovered that the mesquite tree under which we were holding our solemn service was the roosting place of a colony of crows, our intrusion having disturbed them and thereby causing us to stampede.

As the sun rose above the mountain tops we returned to the grave and completed the reading of the ritual and covered our friend with the cloths of the valley and left him sleeping where he will rest until the resurrection morn.—Evelyn B. Baldwin in New York Masonic Standard.

The World's Fault.

"There is one thing I like about you," said the intimate friend, "and that is your lack of vanity. You don't pretend to be the greatest actor the world has ever seen."

"No," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes thoughtfully, "but I would be if the world would only come to see me."—Washington Star.
