THE LATEST.

State Items of Interest of Recent Occurrence.

Severe hailstorms occurred in different sections of this state Saturday.

Over eight thousand Kentuckians are attending the Confederate reunion at Memphis.

Miranda Rollins, colored, wept at her brother's funeral in Ashland until she burst a blood vessel and fell dead.

Peter Postell, probably the wealthiest negro in the South, and a highly respected citizen, died at Hopkinsville last week.

Ex-Congressman Davidson, of Stanford, has been appointed as Assistant United States Attorney for the new Eastern district of Kentucky.

A real "Romney wedding" occurred at Danville last week when two gypsies, the only single members of a large tribe, were united in marriage.

An attempt was made to dynamite a boarding house at Madisonville occupied by non-union miners. There was a terrible explosion but no one was hurt.

Senator Debow recommended Col Ben Drane for appointment as postmaster at Frankfort. The indications are that S. B. Holmes will be continued in office.

Jacob Stratton and Miss Eliza E. Knider were married by Rev. Dudley Moore at Lawrenceburg. The groom is seventy-three years old and the bride forty-six.

Mrs. Mary Davis has sued the Galt House company of Louisville for $10,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been suffered by her from slipping on the polished floor.

William Campbell, a cousin of Mrs. Carrie Nation, the saloon smasher, a college graduate and a member of a prominent Mercer county family, was given a prison term of five years for forgery in Nelson county.

Everybody entering the town of Madisonville when the deputy sheriffs were on trial was searched. There was considerable excitement over the matter. A number of pistols were found concealed in satchels brought to be used in case of a fight.

Judge O'Rear delivered an opinion affirming with damages a judgment of the Henderson circuit court in the case of the city of Henderson against L. T. Reed. The appellee, a fourteen-year-old boy, fell through a sidewalk grating and sustained injuries. He secured judgment for $250.

Paducah News: Some foreign parties are dickering with the owners of the Paducah Iron furnace on South Third street, for its purchase. The deal is on, but has not assumed an active stage yet. Correspondence is going on and it is possible that the furnace may be in operation in the near future. The prospective boom at Grand Rivers assures the operation of the Paducah furnace, for this city is closely connected with that iron ore region. If the furnaces start at Grand Rivers, and it looks as though they will, Paducah will be an iron manufacturing center of large proportions.

Central City, May 23.—While repairs were being made on the air shaft of the Central Coal and Iron Company, near this city, the rope holding the cage in which a negro miner was going down the shaft broke, and the cage fell on another negro, who was working on the bottom of the shaft. Both were killed.

Carlisle, May 23.—The Nicholas county Fiscal court in fixing the salaries of the various county officers reduced that of county judge from $800 to $600 per year, county attorney from $500 to $400, the school superintendent from $600 to $500, and ordered sealed bids for all printing in future.

Louisville Times: Wm. Hampton, who leaped headforemost from the third tier of jail section No. 5 about 10:30 o'clock this morning died at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The leap was made with suicidal intent. In the fall the man struck the stone floor on the left side of his face. His skull was fractured and he remained unconscious until his death.

Mr. J. C. Williams, a prominent farmer of the Corydon neighborhood, was instantly killed, and his three sons, who were in a farm wagon, were all more or less seriously injured by a northbound I. C. freight train Saturday night; they attempted to cross the track one-half mile north of Corydon and were struck by the engine.

Misses Gussie Rock and Florence Howard, two young women of Madisonville, were driving to Earlington when the horse became frightened at some object in the road and ran away. The buggy struck a rock and threw both the young women to the ground, Miss Rock receiving injuries which will cause her death, while Miss Howard is now at the home of her father in a very dangerous condition.

Hopkinsville New Era: Thomas Gallaher, of Belfast, Ireland, the "tobacco king," is paying his annual visit to this country to look after his large tobacco interests. He will be in Providence, Webster county, this week, and will, it is said, select a site and have built one of the largest tobacco stemmeries in this part of the State. He has planned the enterprise some time ago, but it is said has waited until he could personally attend to the matter.

T. C. Luxton, who was employed by the Lexington school board to take a census of the school children, and whose report was turned down because it fell short of the reports of previous years, openly charges that the school census of Lexington has been padded in order to secure more money from the State than is legal. The school board took a supplementary census and added 1,330 names to Mr. Luxton's report, which means $3,323 more money to the appropriation.

Williamstown, May 23.—Two men, representing themselves as detectives, claiming to be from Macon, Ga., have been here all week looking for a girl named Lil Robertson, who they claim eloped from her home Saturday last with a man named Huke. They claim that Miss Robinson took with her $4,000 of her father's money. They say that Huke was arrested, but that Miss Robinson gave them the slip and came here. Her father, they say, offers a reward of $1,200 for her arrest.

FLUOR SPAR.

Big Increase in Production Since This Section Was Opened.

This section, embracing Crittenden and Livingston counties, Ky., and Hardin county, Ill., produces practically all the fluor spar mined in this country. Up to 1838 little or no mining was done outside of Hardin county. In that year operations, on a small scale, were begun in Kentucky and the output has been increased several fold every year since. The following figures, taken from official mining reports show shipments for the years named, and the market value. It will be observed that in 1895 the market value was $6.00 per ton, while in 1899 the quantity had increased from 4,000 to 24,000 tons, the price increased to $6.35. This shows that the demand keeps a steady pace with the quantity, and there appears to be no danger of glutting the market:

Year.	Tons.	Value.
1895	4,000	$24,000
1896	6,000	48,000
1897	4,739	36,294
1898	12,135	86,985
1899	24,030	152,655

A Gentle Hint.

In our style of climate, with its sudden changes of temperature, rain, wind and sunshine often intermingled in a single day,—it is no wonder that our children, relatives and friends are so frequently taken from us by neglected colds, half the deaths resulting directly from this cause. A bottle of Boschee's German Syrup kept about your home for immediate use will prevent serious sickness, a large doctor's bill, and perhaps death, by the use of three or four doses. For curing Consumption, Hemorrhages, Pneumonia, Severe Coughs, Croup, or any disease of Throat or Lungs, its success is simply wonderful, as your druggist will tell you. Get a sample bottle free from Jas. H. Orme or Robert F. Haynes. Regular size 75 cents. Get Green's Prize Almanac.

I have a cottage house with four rooms and hall, in desirable section of the town for sale. Large lot and good improvements. J. W. Blue, Jr.

107 YEARS OLD.

A Resident of Livingston County that has Seen Three Centuries.

Probably the oldest person in western Kentucky is Delpha Rorer, colored, who lives with her son-in-law, Sack Dobson, four miles south of Salem, in Livingston county. She is 107 years old and extremely hale and hearty for a person many years younger, and bids fair to live for many years to come. She does a good deal of house work and very often carries a bundle on her head and one in her hand and walks some distance. She is a devoted christian, and not long ago walked two miles to church. Her intellect is good and she delights in relating occurrences that happened nearly a century ago.

Osteopathy.

[From Our Special Correspondent.] FRANKLIN, KY., May 27th, 1901.

ED. PRESS: Some of your readers ask: What can be done for me? How long will it take? Can you help me?

We do not flatter our patients. We do not deceive or delude them. We candidly tell them about what we can do. We may not in all cases be positive and definite, for the good reason that we may not know. We are neither omniscient or omnipotent. Besides the treatment itself much depends upon the patient. One may undo in an unguarded hour the good effects of a month's treatment. We tell the patients what they must do for themselves. Any effective treatment is cooperative between the doctor and the patient. In all cases we can tell fairly well what to expect in a given time or care. Do you want us to tell you about your case. Examination free.

Write for literature. Very truly, Southern School Osteopathy. Franklin, Ky.

In Memoriam.

Blanche May, daughter of Jas. H. and Laura E. Stone, died of pneumonia on May 7th, 1901, at 1168 N. 12th street, Paducah, Ky. Funeral at home, with many friends present, by the writer, May 8th, and body interred in the Oak Grove cemetery. For 13 years this young life was the joy of the home. A dispatch from Pekin says that the government of the United States will, under no circumstances, consent to any increase in the Chinese tariff unless commercial advantages are conceded in return.

The challenge committee of the New York Yacht club, at a meeting on the 24th, decided to extend the time for the international yacht race one month, in accordance with the wish of Sir Thomas Lipton.

The statement of the treasury balance in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, issued on the 24th, showed: Available cash balance, $158,949,841; gold, $95,264,796.

A Prussian police ordinance subjects Russian poultry, especially geese, arriving in Berlin to a rigid inspection. This is significant as the first step taken by the Prussian government in the tariff war against Russia.

An editorial in the London Yachtsman, written before the accident to the Shamrocks, says: "The trials of the two Shamrocks have shattered our faith in the new boat. We can not see what prospect of success Lipton has."

H. H. Giffrey, a legislative clerk of the United States senate, is now in London, endeavoring to trace the estate of William Baskett, supposed to have been a London banker, and said to have recently died, leaving $6,000,000, the principal heirs being the Basketts of Polk county, Ore.

In San Francisco, on the 21st, President McKinley reviewed nearly fifty thousand school children, who literally carpeted the streets over which he rode with flowers, and pelted the president's carriage with the surplus. He rewarded their enthusiastic reception with a happy little speech.

The Berliner Tageblatt and National Zeitung publish extracts from a recent interview with Secretary Gage, in a Chicago paper, and dwell with satisfaction upon "Mr. Gage's admission that the United States will have to make concessions to foreign countries if they wish to extend their exports."

Discontent among the Filipinos at the appointment of American judges and alleged discriminations in the civil service in favor of Americans is finding expression, encouraged by some of the native judges, who are aware that the reorganization of the judiciary will result in the loss of their positions.

The supreme camp, Woodmen of the World, in committee of the whole, at Columbus, O., on the 21st, considered the report of the committee on legislation. King Victor Emmanuel of Italy had a narrow escape from being crushed to death in an elevator at the palace in Rome on the 23d. He desired to ascend to the second story, but an inexperienced attendant set the indicator for the third floor. The king was on the point of stepping out when he discovered the mistake and drew back in time to save himself.

Sir Robert Giffen, in an address before the Institute of Bankers, in London, on the 22d, said it was sheer nonsense to assert that Great Britain was living on her capital in her dealings with foreign countries. He declared, also, that the South African war expenditure came out of income and not out of capital, adding that the war had scarcely disturbed business at home.

Under dynastic law, the young grand duke of Saxe-Weimar, Charles Augustus, has compelled Prince Bernhard of Saxe-Weimar and his wife to leave for the United States. Prince Bernhard was married in London, in 1900, to the widowed Countess Lucchesini, the daughter of a Lubbeck hotel keeper, named Brockmuller. The grand duke has granted Prince Bernhard a reasonable allowance.

During the preparations for a trial of speed between the two Shamrocks in the Solent, on the 22d, the new cup challenger was caught in a squall and denuded of all her spars and rigging. King Edward, who was among the guests of Sir Thomas Lipton, the yacht's owner, had a narrow escape from a falling spar. He was one of the first to search the deck with the inquiry, "Is anyone hurt," which, fortunately, there was not, though Sir Thomas himself was hit on the head and momentarily stunned by some of the falling rigging.

Former Governor John Riley Tanner died suddenly, on the 23d, of rheumatism of the heart, at Springfield, Ill., aged 57. In his proclamation announcing the death, Gov. Yates says of the former governor: "His efficient services as a soldier of the republic in his young manhood and as an official in many important places of trust in his maturer years, entitled him to the respect of his fellow-citizens. His untiring efforts and struggles enabled him to rise from comparative obscurity to the highest position within the gift of the commonwealth."

THE PEARL HARBOR STATION.

The Naval Board Adheres to the View that Pearl is the Only Defensive Harbor in Hawaii.

Washington, May 25.—The naval board having charge of the location of a naval station on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, has completed its work. The board adheres to the view that Pearl is the only harbor in the Hawaiian group capable of complete naval defense. It is only five miles from Honolulu. Much of the surrounding land has been occupied for commercial purposes. The board proposes to leave this shore land for commercial purposes, and, if possible, to locate the naval station on the large islands lying in the middle of the harbor. As some of this island land was raised to a high price since it was learned the government might want it, the board is disposed to consider a much larger tract of island land, so that the final selection may be made with less restriction. The improvement of the harbor contemplates a deep water channel across the coral bar at the entrance, and heavy batteries on each side of the entrance.

ONLY GOT ELEVEN DOLLARS.

Robbers Who Expected to Make a Rich Haul Got Very Little For Their Pains.

Chicago, May 25.—As Lewis W. Stone, a wealthy real estate owner, entered the barn at his home, 4316 Michigan avenue, Friday evening, to feed his cow, he was beaten, choked into insensibility and robbed. His recovery from injuries suffered in the attack is uncertain. At the age of 84 he employs no agents, but makes his own collections.

In planning the attack upon the old man, the robbers had expected to overpower him in the barn and find a month's collections, estimated at $1,000, in his pocket. The assault may cost the life of the hale old man, but the cash results to the robbers were only $11. Mr. Stone had made a deposit of his collections in bank the day before.

BACK IN THE BUCKEYE STATE.

Gov. Nash and Party Return to Columbus, O.—The Governor Looks the Worse for Wear.

Columbus, O., May 25.—The special train on which Gov. George K. Nash and party traveled to San Francisco to attend the launching of the battleship Ohio arrived here this morning at 7:50 over the Hocking Valley railroad. The party had been reduced to considerable extent since it left here, but all were in good spirits. Gov. Nash looked old and broken, and was so weak that he had to be supported as he walked to his carriage. The governor himself said he was feeling well and would soon be all right, but his friends express doubt of a speedy recovery.

CONFRONTED BY INDICTMENT.

A Petition for a Writ of Habeas Corpus by Louis Mortimer Monroe Knocked Out.

Washington, May 25.—The man known to the police as Louis Mortimer Monroe, under arrest here for alleged complicity in the robbery of Mrs. Olivia C. Starring, of several thousand dollars' worth of diamonds and jewelry, has been indicted by the grand jury for larceny. Debate on the Question of Creed Revision Continued in the Presbyterian Assembly.

THE FIRST AMENDMENT DISCUSSED.

This Would Substitute the Minority Report for That of the Majority. But It Was Finally Defeated. After a Spirited Debate, By a Vote of 271 to 234.

Philadelphia, May 25.—After having signally defeated the amendment dismissing the subject of creed revision from further consideration, Friday, the Presbyterian general assembly proceeded to discuss the first amendment to the revision committee's report, offered by Rev. Dr. James E. Moffatt, of Cumberland, Md. This amendment substitutes the minority report, which agrees with the majority report in all but recommendation B, suggesting the preparation of a summary of the reformed faith.

Rev. Dr. Wm. McKibben, of Cincinnati, who with E. W. C. Humphrey, of Louisville, submitted the minority report, stated his reasons for disagreeing with the majority on recommendation B.

"In the minority report," he said, "we have a chapter on missions, a chapter on the love of God for men, a chapter on the Holy Spirit; we have relief in relation of oath infants, relief in the matter of eucharist, relief regarding the pope and the misleading statements concerning good works. Is not this the relief which the assembly asked when the battle for dismissal was fought?"

"Can we not get together? We hear many say that we can not agree on anything and others say we can agree on everything. Can we not make concessions?"

Dr. McKibben referred to the committee on revision of 1892, and said the members of that committee were careful to do nothing that would endanger the orthodoxy, unity and liberty of the church.

George B. Stewart, president of Auburn (N. Y.) theological seminary, who is classed as a leader of the liberal party of the church, made a strong plea for the majority report. He said he signed the report though it does not represent his views. He had signed it because it was a compromise and was the best he could get. It did not offer the necessary relief. The sentiment for a new creed, he said, is growing yearly. He pointed to the fact that, in 1889, there was not one voice lifted for a new creed. At the last assembly there was a marked sentiment for such a proposition. President Stewart said he wanted texture revision. He did not want a declaratory statement, but he would take it if he could get nothing better.

Rev. Dr. Marcus A. Brownson, of this city, opposed both minority and majority reports because, he said, the membership and wealth of the church had increased under the old confession as he feared it could not were a change made.

"If this assembly is lugged into the revision movement I will sever my connection with the Twentieth Century fund," said Dr. Brownson. This threat elicited reproachful cries of "Oh," and "No" from the commissioners.

Rev. C. F. Hubbard, of Buffalo, advocated the rejection of the minority report on the ground that it commits the assembly to a definite position on the subject of a summary statement while the majority report merely asks the assembly to continue consideration of the subject.

At this point Vice-Moderator Pitcairn took the chair and the floor was given to Moderator Minton, who spoke briefly against recommendation B of the majority report. He said the issue before the church to-day was more important than the one that has been before the assembly during the two preceding days. He maintained that this assembly had broken all precedents in having elected a moderator who did not know the difference between the old and the new school of theology except what he knew from history. He was a child, he said, of the reunited church. For himself, he thought the movement as outlined in recommendation B is fraught with the utmost danger. The errors in the confession of faith were only incidental and he believed the minority offered the relief. He was afraid of the idea of compromise. There was a time for compromise but he would earnestly try to get what he wanted before he would turn to a proposition to compromise.

Rev. Dr. Herrick Johnson of Chicago, a member of the committee on revision, explained the reasons of the majority for inserting recommendation B. He carefully analyzed the confession of faith and showed the benefits to be derived from a short creed containing the essentials of the Westminster doctrine.

The assembly, finally defeated the minority recommendation by a vote of 271 to 234.

Under Charges of Embezzlement.

Colorado, Springs, Col., May 25.—Moses T. Hale, who has been, for eight years, city treasurer of Colorado Springs, and Charles E. Smith, who was for four years, prior to 1897, the city clerk, are under arrest on charges of embezzlement of $20,000 as principal and accessory.

BULLET FOR GERMAN.

American Sentry Forced to Extreme Measures—Tried to Rush the Gate.

PEKIN, May 26.—The United States legation guard has had its first trouble. Legation street is being repaired near the legation and an American sentry was placed at the point with orders to direct people around by a side street. Everybody obeyed the request with the exception of the Germans, both officers and soldiers, who have caused the American sentries much trouble.

One of the German officers drew his sword and charged an American soldier, who brought his bayonet to "charge," whereupon the officer desisted. Subsequently a German soldier charged past the sentry, who fired, hitting another German soldier near the German legation, a quarter of a mile off. This fortunately was only a light flesh wound. The sentry has been placed under arrest, and Maj. Robertson has instituted an investigation.

The attitude of Dr. Mumm von Schwartzstein, German ambassador, representing the civilians, and Count von Waldersee, representing the military, as well as that of other high officials, has been particularly friendly toward the Americans, which makes all the more pronounced the unfriendly feeling evinced by a majority of the German officers and men. This unfriendliness is attributed to the American attitude in remaining in control with the legation guard of one entrance to the Forbidden City, which the Germans consider a reflection upon their honor.

Today's meeting of the commissioners was devoted to closing up details of business independent of the indemnity question, although the military authorities of the various powers seem to consider a settlement in sight, as general preparations are being made for the evacuation of Pekin in the early future.

RIOT IMMINENT AT FOSHEE.

Gov. Sanford May Call Out the Military Companies of Brewton and Evergreen.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 26.—Governor Sanford was advised last night that a riot was imminent at Foshee, Escambia county, and was requested to order a military company to proceed to that point.

The information and request came from the Alger-Sullivan Lumber Company of Foshee, and the governor's private secretary immediately communicated over the long-distance telephone with Sheriff Raley of Escambia county.

Foshee is on the new extension of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, between Plomaton and Repton. The sheriff was notified that the governor would expect him to uphold the peace and dignity of the State, and that he would call upon the military companies located at Brewton and Evergreen. Telegrams were then sent by the adjutant-general to the commanders of the companies at Brewton and Evergreen ordering them to be in readiness and to respond to a call from Sheriff Raley.

No further information was received at the governor's office.

It was learned that trouble has been brewing at Foshee for some time. The Alger-Sullivan Lumber Company, which is owned by Gen. R. A. Alger, of Michigan, and J. J. Sullivan of Pensacola, employs something over 500 men, and it is said a general strike has been threatened.

GEN. JOE WHEELER.

Democrats at Washington Watching His Movements and Expressing Opinions Thereon.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(Special).—The recent flurry in the Alabama constitutional convention over a resolution admitting Gen. Joseph Wheeler to the floor was not much of a surprise to Washington politicians, who have been watching the course of events in this particular for some time. Still it was not thought that there was such a marked sentiment against the general in his own home State. Some of the old-line Democrats express surprise that Gen. Wheeler should have become so closely attached to the policies of the administration, and should devote so much time to picturesque heroism in the East.

Democrats in Washington would not be surprised if Gen. Wheeler should meet rather a cool reception at the Confederate reunion in Memphis. Heretofore he has been one of the features of the reunions and has received abundant applause and many congratulations. However, Democrats here assert, there has been a change of feeling of late. It is thought that Gen. Wheeler still entertains political ambitions, either to run for congress again against Judge Richardson or try for the senate to succeed Senator Pettus, whose term expires March 3, 1903. It is extremely doubtful whether he could be elected to congress, and a certainty that he could not beat Senator Pettus. The political star of the general is on the wane, according to opinion here.

STATE CAPITOL IN CORN.

Feature of the Alabama Exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition.

BUFFALO, May 26.—Alabama's exhibit in the agricultural building at the Pan-American Exposition has been finished. The display is of an elaborate character and contains many features of especial interest. One is a reproduction of the State capitol in corn. There is also an extensive exhibit of preserved fruits and rye and barley. The display is attracting a great deal of attention.

REBURIAL AT ARLINGTON.

A Resolution of Censure May Be Introduced at the Confederate Reunion.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(Special).—Some stir may be caused at the Confederate reunion at Memphis by a contemplated resolution censuring congress for passing an act providing for a Confederate section in the Arlington, the National cemetery. An appropriation of $2,500 was made for removing the remains of 264 Confederate dead interred at the Soldiers Home cemetery and at Arlington to one central place in Arlington cemetery and New Orleans. It is said that a resolution of censure is to be inspired by Mrs. Behan of New Orleans and Mrs. Randolph of Richmond, both of whom are officers of the Confederate Monumental Association of the South. The work of reburial has already commenced and may be completed by the time the reunion takes place. Dr. Samuel E. Lewis, president of the Charles Broadway Rouse Camp here, goes to Memphis to favor the reinterment plans. The present scheme of reburial is said to be endorsed by Gen. John B. Gordon, Gen. Stephen D. Lee, ex-Secretary Herbert, Gen. White, of West Virginia, Col. Keenan of North Carolina, and Gen. John C. Underwood of Kentucky.

OIL MEN MOBBED.

West Calcasieu Citizens Force the Surveyors to Trek for Beaumont.

VINTON, La., May 26.—It was learned at Vinton this evening that the men who ordered the surveying party to break camp and leave the country have formed themselves into an association known as the Calcasieu Homesteaders' Protective Association. Before going to the place where the surveyors were encamped last night the crowd not only organized themselves thoroughly, but they took oath not to shoot unless they were shot at and further that if any man in the crowd violated his oath and shot anyhow the man next to him would kill him instantly. Mr. Forwood, who represented Col. Lier, is reported to have said that he was under the employ of Gaffney & Galey. He promised on his word to go no further with the work and was given till this morning's train to leave. He was in Lake Charles this morning, but took the afternoon train for Beaumont. The public feeling is so wrought up that it would be dangerous for a surveyor and rodmán to begin any kind of work in West Calcasieu for a few days. There seems to be no desire on the part of those who took part with the crowd to conceal or deny what they did.

OKLAHOMA LYNCHING.

Negro Fatally Wounds a Deputy Sheriff and Is Taken From Jail by a Mob.

WICHITA, Kan., May 26.—A special to the Eagle says that Bill Campbell, a negro, was lynched at Pons Creek, Oklahoma, at 10 o'clock last night by a mob of 400 persons, who broke down the jail, took him to the scene of his crime and hanged him to a telegraph pole. While en route to the place of execution the negro sang, "Nearer My God to Thee," and other hymns. The crime for which Campbell was hanged was the fatal shooting of Deputy Sheriff George Smith. The negro, it appears, was using abusive language to several boys when Bill Fisher, a white man interfered. A row followed, the negro pulling two pistols. Deputy Sheriff Smith tried to arrest him, when the negro took deliberate aim and shot him through the right temple. At midnight Deputy Sheriff Smith was dying.

Cotton Belt's New Purchase.

DALLAS, Tex., May 25.—It was stated here today that the holdings of the Dallas, Fort Worth & Gulf Railway Company of this city, which consists of a terminal track encircling the city and a right of way for a projected line to Fort Worth, had been sold to the St. Louis Southwestern railway. President W. C. Connor of the Dallas, Fort Worth & Gulf was seen tonight and stated that a sale of the majority of the stock in the road had been made and that the road would be extended into a first class terminal with facilities for all roads which might wish to enter the city.

James Found Guilty.

HOT SPRINGS, May 25.—The jury returned a verdict of guilty, late this evening, in the case of G. C. James, charged with highway robbery and assault with intent to kill J. T. Wilson, and fixed his punishment at twenty-one years in the penitentiary. The verdict is sustained by an overwhelming preponderance of testimony. The crime was one of peculiar atrocity. Wilson, on the 23d of last April, was knocked down while on his way home, robbed and gagged and, to cover up the crime was thrown in front of a moving train and held on the track until the cars were almost upon him, escaping with the loss of one leg.

Page's Good Fortune.

AUSTIN, Tex., May 26.—J. N. Page, a citizen of Georgetown, Tex., a short distance north of Austin, invested about $200 in a tract of fifteen acres of land situated on Spindletop Heights in the very heart of the new oil district, less than two years ago. He sold one acre of the tract ten days ago for $65,000. The remaining fourteen acres were sold by Mr. Page yesterday to a syndicate for $600,000. The money was paid him in checks and drafts equivalent to cash. Former Governor James Hogg is largely interested in the syndicate.

THE INTREPID BEE.

There lived a Bee—who, though quite small,
Was not a busy bee at all.
No aim in life—no cares had he;
This bee had naught to do but be.

One day by chance he overheard
A passing stranger's passing word;
Deeply and long he pondered on it—
'Twas of a bee in some one's bonnet!

"A bonnet!" thought the bumptious bee;
"That would be just the place for me!
What residence is so correct
For one exclusive and select?"

Now it fell out that very day
Miss Amorilla came that way,
Wearing (as you no doubt foresee)
A rose-decked bonnet. Then the bee

Exclaimed: "Hurrah! My luck is great.
How all things come to those who wait!
And with a sudden cry: 'Here goes!'—
He plunged into the reddest rose!

His honey he essayed to suck,
But found instead that he was stuck,
And from a sharp of cotton-wool
In vain his legs he tried to pull.

Within his mouth was such a taste—
Antiseptic dye and glue and paste—
While wires and stuffed muslin things
Scratched his poor eyes and tore his wings.

But, though in dire and luckless plight,
He kicked and pushed with all his might,
And somehow managed to get free,
A sadder and a wiser bee.

The Moral, pointed like the bee's own
sting,
Adorns the tale, and should this lesson
bring.

A Husband's Generosity

By Marie Irish.

"MARRINGTON to see you,"
said, announced the office boy.
"Show him in," directed the merchant, "and, Dexter, see that we are not disturbed."

"Good-morning," said Harrington, blandly, as he entered. "You wish to see me, your note said." And the self-possessed, fashionable man of the west regarded the merchant with a slightly interested air.

"Yes, I—am" and going to the window
the merchant drummed absently on the glass. "Yes," he resumed, turning to his caller, "I—the fact is, Harrington, I was—in the conservatory last night—and quite accidentally, you understand, heard your avowal to my wife. Saw you kiss her as you held her in your arms, and—well, the usual love
scene when affairs have reached a climax."

Only an instant did Harrington's self-possession desert him. Then he observed, carelessly: "Ah, rather unfortunate. Too bad for you, too."

The merchant sank into a chair, his face growing more haggard. "For God's sake, Harrington," he groaned,
"drop that cloak of indifference and be a man. I'll own that this affair has quite broken me up, but—I want to do
the right thing."

"Do the right thing," echoed Harrington. "May I ask what you—"

"Some men," interrupted the merchant, "would shoot you—as you deserve, some would endeavor to avert matters; some would do nothing and let things come to a smash. I shall do nothing. I am—"

"Then why the trouble of this interview?" asked Harrington, coolly.

"If you love my wife as you vowed to her last night, you must know, or partly realize, at least, how I love her,
and—" the merchant turned again to the window.

"I might have known I was too old
to keep her love," he continued, bitterly. "Another mistaken case of May and December. She is too young and beautiful for a back number like me.

I might have expected some fascinating scoundrel—yourself, for instance—to win her from me. I might have expected it, but—I trusted her. I knew she saw you often, that you called at the house, but in my love I trusted her and was blind. I had no
hint of danger until—last night."

"Perhaps," suggested Harrington,
calmly, "you will be so kind as to proceed to the object of this meeting."

"Some men—honorable ones—" exclaimed the merchant, hotly, "would
at least have attempted an explanation; but you—you are a cad, and don't think I must give her up to you. Oh,
don't act surprised," as Harrington looked up quickly; "you know me for too honorable a man to allow disgrace to come upon my wife—even if I did not love her. You need not fear
but that I shall do the straight thing."

"You are exceedingly kind." And Harrington smiled. "What are your plans, if I may inquire?"

"If I go away, to some quiet out-of-the-way place where I shall remain un-

heard-of—desert her, you see, and allow her to get a separation, will you promise to wait, and, in time, when there shall be no disgrace attached, marry her? I'll leave her good settlements and give you a clear field—anything to avoid the elopement you suggested last night."

"Your generosity merits a more worthy subject," said Harrington,
flushing. "I am afraid you don't understand that—"

"I'm not doing it for you," interposed the merchant, "but for her. How a man who professes to love a woman
can seek to bring shame and, consequently, unhappiness, upon her surpasses my understanding. I'd like to kill you—but where would be the gain?
The mischief is done, and I am not the man to hold a wife whose heart is given to another. As I said, I shall go away and leave you the field."

There was a minute's silence, Harrington haughtily watching the elder man, who continued earnestly: "If only I knew you would be kind to her, Harrington, and make her happy! Her heart is good and true—I'd stake
everything on her honor—and she isn't
to blame because I am not attractive enough to hold her love. How could she be expected to keep on caring for me, when fascinating, unprincipled
men of leisure, like you, have the inside track? She's not to blame, I say, because she doesn't love me—as she used to do." And the merchant's voice grew soft as his eyes took on a far-away look.

"She was only eighteen when we were married," he resumed; "only eighteen and I was nearly forty, but we were very happy—I am sure she would tell you we were happy. Such a dear little home keeper as she was—not the woman of fashion and society
that she is now, and her husband
meant more to her in those days.
There's nothing like financial success to make a failure of home life. If we had remained poor, affairs might have been different." And a dry sob rose in the merchant's throat.

"It would have been different, too, if the babies had lived," he went on.
"How happy we were over the first one—
such a wonderful little fellow, we thought him! Even now I seem to feel her tears upon my cheek and the touch of her soft face against mine as she crept into my arms for comfort
when he was taken from us. Sometimes, when she can't help it, she will think of the lost little ones and of—their father. When she does, Harrington, I hope you will comfort her."

It was Harrington now who was drumming on the window. As he made no reply the merchant continued reminiscences: "How bravely she nursed me through the fever—twas
her care, the doctors said, that saved
me—and how delighted she was when I sat by the window for the first time.
Perhaps if I had worked less to provide her with luxuries and more to keep her affection she might have cared for me still."

"Have you informed your wife of your decision to abscond and give her freedom?" asked Harrington, without turning. "Does the plan meet her approval?"

"I—the fact is, she doesn't know it or that I have any suspicion of last night's denouement. To tell you the truth I haven't—I'd rather not hear her confess that I have become nothing to her. Even though I know she loves you I'd rather not hear her say so.
I take the 9:30 to-night and shall leave without seeing her again. I trust you will carry out my wishes
in regard to the marriage and comfort
my wife in the hour of her desertion,"
and the merchant laughed harshly.

"Evidently," said Harrington, turning toward him, "you did not hear all of last evening's denouement, as you call it. You must have retired from the scene before the finale."

"Yes," answered the merchant. "I chanced upon you accidentally and, as a man of honor, heard and saw no more than was intended before I could escape. You were planning a trip to—was it Venice? when I withdrew."

"No; planning—it takes two for that," explained Harrington, "and for your sake I am glad to say that last night's unfortunate crisis was entirely one-sided. I love your wife—you, loving her, too, can perhaps understand why—and last night, as you know, I rashly proclaimed my devotion. I took her unawares, surprised her with my avowal, and forced my kisses upon her. I alone was responsible for the scene of which you were a witness."

"And Helen," demanded the merchant, hoarsely. "Isn't she—doesn't
she care?"

"Not for me," answered Harrington.
"I leave to-night for the west and—I may be a scoundrel as you say, but your wife is a true woman and—loves
you. Let me leave you this as proof of her devotion," and handing the merchant a note Harrington hastily left the room.

Notes in hand the merchant walked
to the window and stood gazing down
upon the swiftly moving stream of humanity below—gazing with a flood of gladness in his heart that brightened
the otherwise somber scene. Then opening the note he read as follows:

"My Dear Mr. Harrington: Allow me
more to express my deepest regret for last night's mistake, and to beg your forgiveness if I seemingly encouraged your attentions. Resting secure in my husband's affection and my love for him I am most surprised and pained to learn the nature of your regard for me. With my heart safely in my husband's keeping let me assure you of my best wishes for your future happiness and the hope that you will adhere to your resolution to leave the city. Yours, respectfully,
"HELEN HANFORD."

When the merchant had finished the note he looked around for Harrington. But the man was gone. Touching a bell he summoned a clerk.

"Order a carriage for me at once,"
he said. "Quick, now, I must get home."

A BUDGET FROM BRITAIN.

Some Caustic Comment on Carnegie's Gifts and American Influence in England.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA BACK IN LONDON.

A Question of Royal Etiquette Satisfactorily Settled—Edward, Who was Popular as Prince of Wales,
Is Tactfully Adding to His Popularity as King.

London, May 25.—"We trust in Scottish pride to rise in its wrath against this invasion of the almighty dollar," says the Review of the Week,
commenting on Andrew Carnegie's
munificence to Scotland's universities.

A PEN DIPPED IN CAUSTIC.

"Many of the oldest and best families in Scotland," continues the periodical, "send their sons to Scottish universities, where they pay the fees,
like the sons of the humblest neighbors, neither more nor less. Is it to be believed that this will continue if
the fees are paid for them by Mr.
Carnegie? Imagine the duke of Hamlin, Cameron or Lochiel, or Macdonald of the Isles allowing his heir
to get education at the cost of an American ironmonger. We shall next hear of some Chicago pork packer proposing to buy up Oxford and Cambridge, and dictating terms of admission and the subjects to be taught; or Boss Croker forming a lobby to control the London universities, with the object of inculcating Tammany principles in the mind of the rising generation of cockneys."

A Fling at American Influence.

The St. James Gazette, in an editorial headed "The Anglo-Saxon Millennium," commenting on a pes-simist's proposal that "Yankee Doodle"
be made the national anthem; that the American language be made compulsory in the schools, and that the coronation of J. Pierpont Morgan
be arranged for June or July next,
says: "But there is a bright side to the Americanization of this insignificant country. It ought to make war impossible. How can the patriotic American suffer from Anglophobia
when he loves England so much that he wants to be her owner? How could he sink merchant ships in which his own money is invested? War would ruin his industrial enterprises, stage,
press and locomotive companies, philanthropic schemes, aristocracy, race
riding—in fact, everything except our agriculture, which has ceased to exist."

QUEEN ALEXANDRA'S RETURN.

London Society Enlivened by the Return of Her Majesty.

London, May 25.—Queen Alexandra's
return from the country to London
and the advent of glorious summer
weather have given a marvelous fillip to society. The season, which was droning along uninterestingly,
has burst out into full, exhilarating
swing. Dinners and luncheon parties of all sorts are now enlivening
mansions that for months have been gloomy under the spell of national mourning.

Large and Happy Crowds.

The queen's first appearance in the park, Wednesday, drew large and
happy crowds, whole rows of carriages,
four deep, were ranged along the sides of the drives to let her pass.
With relief the onlookers noticed that Queen Alexandra though dressed in deep black, had discarded the long crepe veil which had become such a frequent sight since Queen Victoria died. Later, society flocked to Marlborough house to write their names
in the queen's visiting book.

In This New Round of Social Gaiety

American are taking a prominent part.

A question of royal etiquette over which society has been greatly exercised has been satisfactorily settled by the king. It was thought that King Edward, when he came to the throne, might not consider it advisable to accept invitations of his subjects, following Queen Victoria's almost unbroken precedent, confining himself to entertaining them. This,
however, proves not to be the case,
for the king has accepted invitations
to the houses of Georgiana, countess of Dudley; the marquess of Londonderry, Lady De Gray, and others.

THE KING'S POPULARITY.

The Tactful Prince Develops into a Most Gracious King.

London, May 25.—The king's escape
at the time of the accident on board Shamrock II, last Wednesday, has,
if anything, added to his popularity.
With what tact his majesty preserves
his happy relation between himself and his subjects can be judged from an instance that occurred this week.
Col. Hon. Charles Elliot, whose friendship with the king dated from the time of the royal visit to America,
when Col. Elliot acted as the mentor
of the then prince of Wales, lay dying at the Sports club. Col. Elliot had not had any intimate relations with the king for many years, but his majesty, hearing of the soldier's condition, immediately drove to the club,
got out and inquired sympathetically
for his former friend, and those visits were continued daily until Col.
Elliot died. Princess Christian also called at the club, for Elliot was formerly a member of her household.
She walked straight to his room, said
a few words and kissed the dying
man's hand.

EUROPEAN CROP OUTLOOK.

Adverse Weather Conditions Will Retard the Beginning of Harvest—General Conditions.

London, May 25.—The Mark Lane
Express, commenting upon the adverse weather conditions, says: "At present there is no probability of the wheat harvest beginning in July even in Sussex and Thanet, while in East Anglia, it is not likely to be gathered before the third week in August. The present cereal year, therefore, will have to find food for 55 weeks."

"Reports from Austria-Hungary
show over an average wheat promise
in the Austrian Tyrol, Hungary, Bohemia and Silesia; a fair average in Croatia and Bosnia, and below the average in Galicia and Transylvania."

"In Algeria the harvest is beginning and a good yield is anticipated."

SPAIN AS A NAVAL POWER.

Admiral Cervera Fears the Disintegration of Spain Into a Number of Small States.

Madrid, May 25.—Speaking before
the naval congress, on the subject
whether or not Spain should be a naval power, Admiral Cervera expressed fears of the disintegration of Spain into a number of small states.
"I do not wish," he said, "that the interests of the navy should predominate at the expense of the other interests of the country, but, observing,
as I do, what is going on at the present day, I am afraid Spain may become like the Italy of the middle ages."

A Negro Poisoner's Sentence.

Wilmington, Del., May 25.—Ernest Dutton (colored), who pleaded guilty to administering poison to Wm. Elliott (colored), his father-in-law, with murderous intent, was sentenced to

hour in the pillory, be imprisoned

An Unfounded Report.

Rome, May 25.—The published report that the pope has the intention to abolish the apostolic delegation in Canada and annex it to the United States delegation is totally unfounded.

IMPROMPTU RECEPTION.

President McKinley Talks to the Epworth Leaguers and Christian Endeavorers.

FITTING FINALE TO HIS FRISCO VISIT.

The President and Mrs. McKinley and the Rest of the Party Leave on the Homeward Journey, Which Will be Made Without Any Formal Breaks or Stops.

San Francisco, May 25.—Friday night President McKinley attended an impromptu reception at the California street M. F. church given by the Epworth League and Christian Endeavor societies. The president made a brief address. He said:

"The President's Address."
"It gives me very great pleasure on this,
the last evening of my stay in your hospitable city, to meet with the young men and the young women of the Epworth League and the Christian Endeavor and the Union of the Baptist church and the Christian young people generally, who have dedicated themselves to the holy cause of Christian teaching. I congratulate you that you are to be the host of the great international Epworth League,
the great international Epworth League,
the noble work in which you are engaged
and the great results which have followed your efforts. He who serves the master best serves man, and he who serves truth serves civilization. There is nothing that lasts so long or wears so well and is of as inestimable advantage
to the possessor as high character and an upright life, and that is what you teach by example and by instruction. And when you are serving man by helping him to be better and nobler, you are serving your country. I do not know whether it is true that every man is the architect of his own fortunes, but surely every man is the architect of his own character, and he is the builder of his own character. It is what he makes it and it is growing all the time easier to be right, with our churches, our Young Men's Christian association, our various church societies, every assistance is given for righteous living and righteous doing.
It is no longer a drawback to the progress of a young man to be a member of a Christian church. It is no embarrassment. It is an encouragement. It is no hindrance.
It is a help. There never was in all this past such a demand as now for incorruptible character strong enough to resist every temptation to do wrong. We need it in every relation of life, in the home, in the store, in the bank and in the great business affairs of the country.
We need it in the discharge of the new duties that have come to the government.
It is needed everywhere, never more than

It is reported that Harry V. McChesney, Superintendent of Public Instruction, will be a candidate for Secretary of State at the next State election.

United States Senator Fairbanks of Indiana, has formally announced that he will be a candidate for President before the Republican National Convention in 1904.

It looks like the old time ideas about the constitution, along with the old time corn huskings, and the old religion, are dropping out of the thoughts and affairs of men.

Paducah, Ky., May 24.—Secretary A. C. Atkins of Paducah Lodge No. 217, B. P. O. E. is $1,400 in his accounts. His report was not made at the regular term in April, and when the books were finally secured this week the shortage was discovered. He admits that he used the money for his own purposes. There will be no prosecution.

All of our visitors to the Paducah carnival and street fair have at last made a belated arrival home, wiser if not wealthier people. If the reports in the Paducah papers are true, they remained in the city plenty long to get the cockle burs out of their mane and the change out of their pockets, though how it was done some of them are not able to tell.

Some of our good friends at Salem seem persistent in their belief that Marion has it in her heart and hand to retard Salem's effort to get a railroad. In this they grievously err and do Marion people a great injustice. We sincerely hope to see our beautiful, vigorous and fair neighbor prosper as did Jacob when he arranged for an interest in his father-in-law's cattle, grow as rapidly as did Jonah's gourd, and be as long upon the earth as was Methuselah. Marion struggled long to get a road, and has not finished paying for the blessing, and she would be less than human if she did not wish her neighbor and friend even richer blessings.

Judge Nunn has demonstrated that he has the nerve of a mountain judge, and the good sense to bring it into action when occasion demands. Bad feelings were shown by the parties involved in a murder trial at Madisonville last week and war in the court room brewed, and the judge announced that all hands would be searched next morning, as they went into the court room, for the well known deadly weapon. We approve of the Judge's action, and suggest for his edification that his announcement in Hopkins has satisfied everybody in Crittenden that he can and will stand pat, and there will be no need of his doing anything of that kind here the fourth Monday in June.

Deeds Recorded.

Sarah Travis to Henry Hatchett, lot in Marion.

Jos. Samuels to J. N. McCormick, Seventy acres of land near Nunn.

C. E. Humphreys to A. D. Moore 5½ acres of land on Hurricane creek.

South Carolina Senators Resign.

A most sensational feature has developed in South Carolina politics. U. S. Senators McLaurin and Tillman tendered their resignations to the governor Saturday, and will go before the people as candidates for re-election. Both were elected by the Democrats but Tillman holds that McLaurin is Republican in belief. The resignations resulted from a challenge made by McLaurin at a joint debate. His term would have expired in 22 months; Tillman's term would not have expired until 1907.

Fine Specimens.

Lumps of fine fluor spar weighing 800 and 1000 pounds were brought to town from the Beard shaft last week, and shipped to the company's headquarters at Cleveland, Ohio. This shaft is being opened by Foster & Lane, and the work is under the management of Mr. Julius Fohs, the young mining engineer of this place. The prospect is very promising and great things are expected of this property. It is situated about ten miles northwest of town, and is in a locality where little or no work has heretofore been done.

Violently Insane.

Ben Tucker is again insane and he is in a very dangerous condition. He was placed under guard Monday night and Tuesday afternoon an examining trial was held with Esquire Conger on the bench. The jury declared Tucker insane and Tuesday evening he was taken to the Hopkinsville asylum. He was very savage at times, and attacked County Attorney Kevil in the court room. He has been of unsound mind for a good while, but only in the last few days has he been considered dangerous.

On the arrival of the train Tuesday evening Tucker refused to enter the car, and it took the combined efforts of four men to put him on the train. The parting between the insane man and his wife was indeed pathetic.

Messrs. Albert Cannan, John T. Pickens and Crossland Miles accompanied him to Hopkinsville, 2w

ZINC ORE SHIPPED.

Three Car Loads of Dry Bone for Chicago.

Last week three car loads of zinc ore were shipped from this place to Chicago. This is the first shipment in commercial quantities of zinc ore from this section, and is an event of no small interest to those interested in mining.

The ore shipped is carbonate of zinc, frequently called drybone. It was taken from Blue & Nunn's property about four miles northwest of Marion, and known as the old Franks homestead. It is found in large quantities in the vein uncovered, and lies near the surface. It has been chemically tested and reduced in miniature furnace, and shows a good per cent of zinc. The shipment last week was sold to parties in Chicago and will be the first to be reduced in the regular way. The result of the processes will be watched with great interest by the reducers, and the miners of this section are anxious to hear the report from the Chicago people.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

The Contract was Not Made Last Week.

The electric light company did not close the contract for the plant on the 22d. Parties representing companies in Chicago, Cincinnati and other points were present and a number of bids were received, but none of them were altogether satisfactory to the company and the matter was postponed for a few days, and in the meantime negotiations are still pending and the contract will doubtless be made in a very short time.

"BOSS" CRIDER.

Adjudged Insane and Sent to the Asylum.

Friday T. J. Crider, better known as "Boss" Crider, a well known farmer of the Rodney neighborhood, was brought to this city for examination, as he seemed to have lost his reason. He was examined before Esquire Conger, Judge Rochester being absent, and adjudged insane. Friday night he was taken to Hopkinsville and placed in the insane asylum. Mr. Crider has been confined in the asylum before. He has many friends in the county who hope that he may recover from this attack of insanity.

A CALL.

All of the members of the Republican committee of Crittenden County, and especially the precinct chairmen, are requested to meet at the court house in Marion on Monday, June 10, 1901, it being county court day. The candidates are also requested to be present, as there is business of vital importance to transact.

COMMERCIAL CLUB.

Regular Monthly Meeting Next Monday Evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the B. M. A. will be held at the court house next Monday evening. Some very important matters will come before the association and every business man in town should be present. The membership of the association should be doubled at this meeting, and hear the discussions, join the association and help in this good work. If there are no laggards, much good can be accomplished by this organization; and surely there is not a citizen of the county, and especially of the town, who is not willing to do what he can to advance the material interests of the community.

The object of the association is to promote the welfare of Marion and Crittenden County, and every person who desires this end is eligible to membership. The various phases of the work to be done has been appropriately placed in the hands of committees and these committees will make their first reports at the meeting Monday night. Come out.

GRAND RIVERS

On a boom...St. Louis Syndicate to Operate Iron Furnaces.

A St. Louis syndicate has purchased the big furnaces at Grand Rivers and the Hillman iron ore lands. The amount paid for the property is $650,000. The furnaces will be put in operation by the syndicate, headed by E. C. Simmons, of the Simmons hardware company. The same company will probably put in a wire and nail plant at Grand Rivers. The little town is booming.

Obituary.

Little Henry Wilborn Cole, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cole, was born November 23, 1900 died May 8 1901. His death was caused by whooping cough and pneumonia. He was a beautiful child and had always been remarkably well. During his sickness everything that the physicians and loving hands could do was done for him. But it was the Father's will to take him; and after a short sickness the patient little sufferer breathed his last. The funeral services were conducted by the writer and he was laid to rest in the neighboring graveyard. The sorrowing father and mother have our sympathy and prayers for God's blessing.

Nervous Prostration.

Mrs. Lettie Fisher says: "I had nervous troubles for years, which at times completely prostrated me and made life not worth living. I tried many physicians and no end of nerve and other remedies without relief. Mr. M. J. Crews, merchant, Malloy, Iowa, persuaded me to try Morley's Sarsaparilla and Iron. The very first bottle went to the right spot, for I felt a complete change, and now, after using six bottles in all, I am perfectly well. For sale at Ormes drug store.

Mr. J. Richardson had a running sore on his leg for twenty years. Tried doctors and medicines without end or any permanent good. Mr. L. B. Nunnally, druggist, of Hartford, Iowa, recommended Morley's Sarsaparilla and Iron to cure the cause of the sore and make it heal from the inside. A few bottles cured his leg and put him in better health than he has been in for 20 years. Sold

SALEM TO KUTTAWA.

The Latest Move for a Railroad by Dycusburg.

The enterprising citizens of Salem are determined not to give up the good fight until they have secured a railroad, and they have now succeeded in interesting Dycusburg and Kuttawa in the movement and the three towns are awake and at work to get a road from Salem to Kuttawa via Dycusburg. Leading citizens of each place have held a conference and organized for the enterprise, and have succeeded in getting the attention of capitalists. The people of Salem regard the situation as very hopeful.

A road on the line suggested would open up a splendid mineral and agricultural section, and if the mineral interests in the Salem section prove to be as extensive and as valuable as they promise it would be a paying road.

HAVE NO VACATIONS.

Justices of the Supreme Court Busy the Year Around.

When Not in Session at Washington They Either Act as Circuit Judges or Else Are Preparing Opinions.

[Special Washington Letter.]
"THE United States supreme court never takes a vacation," said Senator Stewart.

It seemed like a paradox, in view of the fact that we were talking about the official announcement that the high tribunal was about to adjourn, and actually take a vacation. By way of explanation Senator Stewart said:

"I've been acquainted with the supreme court for well-nigh 40 years, and have had many cases before that august body. It is, and always has been, an aggregation of great men, all of them great workers. Matt Carpenter once said to me: 'I never knew a body of lawyers who were such gluttons for work. They seem to revel in it.' What I mean and what Carpenter meant is that the chief justice and all of the associate justices are hard at work every day in the year, no matter whether the court is in session or not."

From that view point the sweeping statement of Senator Stewart is correct. Young lawyers throughout the land may envy these eminent gentlemen who receive $10,000 per annum for life; particularly when they read in the newspapers that the court has adjourned for three or four months at a time. They do not know that the chief justice, and each member of the court, takes with him a number of cases, upon which time and talent must be expended in order that comprehensive reports may be made as to law and fact, so that their conclusions may meet with the approval of the court as a body when it reconvenes for its next session. Their lives are not easy by any means.

The question of the $10,000 a year does not weigh in the matter at all, for any one of them could earn five times the sum in legal practice, which would not take one-twentieth the time he now devotes to his official duty. The honor of the position, the pride they take in filling it conscientiously, and the realization of the service they perform for their country and the profession is doubtless compensative to them, and furnishes sufficient inducement for retaining their positions.

Very few people, in fact very few lawyers, realize to what extent the duties of the members of the supreme court weigh them down with arduous and exacting details.

When the court is in regular session the chief justice and associate justices meet at the capitol every Saturday for consultation. They assemble in a little room set apart for that purpose. Up to this point the lawyers are well informed concerning each case; but here the public may not enter, and interested parties can only surmise. The consultation chamber is the holy of holies, where profane foot dare not tread, curious eye may not rest, and, more than all, where no inquisitive ear can listen. What goes on within these walls is a secret locked in the breasts of the members themselves, and they never tell. It is surmised, however, that in this room and at this time the members of the court express their individual opinions upon each case at issue and reach conclusions on it. The chief justice thereupon designates one of his associates to prepare the opinion of the court to be delivered at some future day.

Each associate justice having now received authorization to present the opinion of the court upon a case, proceeds to draw it up, and this is a matter requiring care and deliberation, with rare choice of phrase in laying down the law. He knows that this opinion will be read by every lawyer in the country; will be criticized and scrutinized with keen eye and discriminating mind; and he must make it proof against assault for his own pride's sake. Moreover, this is to be the law of the land henceforth upon this particular subject, and he would like to have it stand as a monument to his ability. He realizes that the opinion to be presented may be quoted during this century, and in future centuries. It is a great and grave responsibility.

He is required to consider and digest the argument made by the attorneys and to make up his mind on the questions presented for his decision. In his argument the attorney made numerous citations of law, of precedents and precedents, which the associate justice must look up and verify, as he cannot afford to trust anything to the attorney's say so. It may have been a forced interpretation or application that the zealous attorney made of the citation, and this must be examined. He feels also that he must be thoroughly posted on the subject when it comes up for discussion in the privacy of the consultation chamber, for it is a point of pride with him that he must know as much about it as any of his colleagues. He has an office at his residence, with a reference library of standard legal works and law reports. The government furnishes him a secretary, who must be an expert stenographer and who attends him at his house. For a couple of hours or so in the morning the work of examining citations proceeds, the details varying with the nature of the case. In the evening he puts in his best work on the case in hand, and if it is an interesting one will probably keep at it until a late hour. Perhaps he has his secretary read him the cited passages or the provisions of the law, or the record of the lower court upon which the case was argued, while he ponders the matter from an easy chair. This is continued until he has absorbed clear ideas of his own of what ought to be the decision in the case. All of this, mind you, before he begins to prepare to write the ultimate decision.

Before any case is argued before the supreme court the lawyers are required to file briefs, fully setting forth their contentions; and the justices depend more upon these printed briefs than they do upon any oral arguments which may be made in open court. The arguments which are delivered are always prosy, uninteresting to laymen and devoid of oratory. Attorneys confine themselves to citations of law and of fact, because there is no jury to influence, and they know that the stern and solemn justices would quietly resent any attempt to affect their judgments with rhetorical flights or with oratorical exclamations for dramatic effect. For these and many minor reasons no oratory is ever heard in the supreme courtroom. Grover Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison and others of eminence have been heard there by the writer, but all of their arguments have been delivered in a conversational monotone.

Now when the supreme court adjourns for a term the associate justices do not go home, nor take trips to seashore or mountain. On the contrary, they pack their trunks, not only with clothing, but with pending cases, and proceed to go on their circuits and resume their judicial duties in various parts of the republic. In their capacity as circuit judges they conduct courts of appeals for the various circuits, and herein their duties are onerous as well as of great responsibility. There are many cases tried before the courts of appeals which are left for final hearings when the associate justice shall preside. In the event of dissatisfaction with the decisions reached under such conditions appeals may be taken to the supreme court. Here again is the burden of responsibility felt, because the traveling associate justice must give to each case such consideration that his decision will be sustained by the full bench if an appeal shall be taken. Consequently it is exceedingly rare that any decision of an associate justice, presiding over a circuit court of appeals, is ever overruled by the supreme court. This is a fact which younger practitioners might do well to file away in their memories, for it may save them a great deal of time and the waste of much talent in the future when they have cases before the circuit courts of appeals, with associate justices of the supreme court presiding and deciding issues of law and fact.

In these circuit courts there are cases pending in which are involved many millions of property of individuals and of states, and also cases involving human life. It needs no elaboration to demonstrate that these cases require careful study; and then remember that there is a trunk containing a lot of other important cases which must be studied in leisure hours, if there ever are any leisure hours. The cases in the trunk are for the supreme court, and some of the opinions to be reached and written can be the result only of exhaustive research, requiring delving and study with logic and careful reasoning. Some of these forthcoming opinions must necessarily be of great length, for the supreme court must be entrenched in an impregnable citadel of precedents and references.

And so the days and weeks and months go by until the October term begins. Nobody sees any manifestations of the work which has been in progress, and nobody realizes it, even when the decisions are handed down day after day. SMITH D. FRY.

COLORADO'S MONSTER SPIDERS

Scientific Investigation of Insects About Which Some Marvelous Tales Were Told.

Prof. E. T. Laughton has returned to his home in New York after spending the winter in exploring the mountains near Buena Vista and investigating the habits of a species of monster spiders found in the Middle Cottonwood pass.

Little definite is known of these spiders, says the Sun, but around them has been gathered a mass of Indian legend and prospectors' yarns that rival those of Munchausen. Many years ago these spiders lived in a cave easily reached by tourists. It was in a valley two miles northeast from Harvard City, then a thriving mining camp eight miles west of Buena Vista.

In 1830 a man named Shultz cut his way into the spiders' den. He did not return and a week later a searching party found his body partly buried in the spiders' cave under a mass of fallen rock. As it would have required considerable timbering at an expense of several hundred dollars to recover the body, and as the man had no known relatives, it was left undisturbed. Shultz's skeleton is still in the cave, but the spiders have found another home farther back in the mountains.

Some of the tales told about these spiders are given in an old letter which has just been found in Buena Vista. It says:

"A short distance out of Buena Vista there is a cave swarming with spiders of immense size, some of them having legs four inches in length and bodies as large as that of a canary bird. The cave was discovered in 1808 and was often visited by pioneers on their way to California, who obtained their webs for use in the place of thread.

"Early and late the cave resounds with a buzzing sound emitted by the spiders as they weave their webs. The webs were tested in '71 and found to be composed of silk of the finest quality. The skins of the spiders make good gloves, as they are pliable and require no tanning.

"A number were captured and tamed, and manifested great affection for all members of the family. They were far superior to a cat in exterminating rats and mice, following their prey into the holes in the walls and ceilings. One spider, kept as a pet by a Buena Vista lady, used to stay all night at the head of her bed acting as sentinel."

Feline Shrewdness.
A poultry man in the state of Washington became suspicious that his cat was getting more than his share of the chickens, so resolved to watch tabby. Shortly thereafter the cries of a chick in distress were heard. Investigation proved that a young rooster had got caught under a gate some little distance from the house. On the first alarm the cat started for the gate, but, to the surprise of its owner, instead of making meat of the chicken, it carefully scratched the gravel from around the chick and liberated it.—Commercial Poultry.

As Others Hear.
Sue—"You remember we had a few friends who thought they could sing. Well, we have discouraged them at last."

Belle—"How in the world did you manage it?"
"Just bought a phonograph and had them sing in it. Then let them hear their own voices." —Chicago Daily News.

Miss Lucy Annie Heiser, a graduated nurse of nine years' experience, trained and graduated from the Homeopathic Hospital of Minneapolis, Minn., writes as follows:

Albert Lea, Minn., Nov. 8, 1899.
The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.
Gentlemen:—Although my school does not believe in patent medicines, I have found it to be a fact that Peruna is a grand and valuable medicine. I have known it to cure Mrs. Sampson, suffering with an inflamed womb, aggravated by malaria, after the doctors had failed to help her. Another of my former patients suffered with a complication of female diseases; she was so thin, nothing but skin and bones, but Peruna cured her and she is to-day in good health and good flesh. Facts prove that Peruna revives lost strength and restores to the sick that most wonderful blessing of life—health.

If all the tired women and all the nervous women, and all the women that needed a tonic would read and heed the words of these fair ladies who have spoken right to the point, how many invalids would be prevented and how many wretched lives be made happy.

HOPI BASKET DANCE.

Begins with Devotions Around a Curiously Wrought Altar.

Carried Women, Maidens and Young Girls Take an Important Part in the Quaint Ceremonies of the Lalakonti.

[Special New Mexico Letter.]

WINTER is especially the time when the Pueblo Indians of the southwest indulge in their religious ceremonies. They are religious at all times of the year, but especially so in winter. The reason for this is not far to seek. In the spring and summer they are kept busy digging their irrigating ditches, preparing the ground and planting their corn fields, herding their horses, sheep and goats, repairing their houses and doing the thousand and one other things that the pleasant days call them to do.

But in winter, when the cold winds from the north sweep over their exposed mesa heights, and, sometimes, the snow covers with its white pall the surrounding country, when days are short and nights long, then is the time when the Hopi and other aboriginal people feel called upon to devote a great deal of their attention to the propitiation of the powers of good and evil. Every month sees its special festivals and attendant ceremonies. All of these have their secret rites as well as their open air observances. There are societies for men and there are societies for women, and both have elaborate ceremonies in which the other sex has no share.

One of the most elaborate and interesting ceremonies conducted by women is the Lalakonti. For want of a better term, we call this a dance, but in reality it is more a series of posturing than a dance according to our conception of the term.

It must here be remarked that the word dance conveys a very different meaning to the mind of the Indian than it does to that of the white man. To us a dance means an occasion of en march in line from their sacred underground chamber. From their headresses, or the manner of doing up their hair, one can see that there are married women, maidens and young girls. All alike are clothed in ceremonial blankets, much coveted by collectors, made of white cotton, with beautiful red borders. It is apparent that the dancers all feel they must make the best possible appearance on this occasion, for they wear all the earrings of turquoise mosaic, bracelets and finger rings of silver, and necklaces of wampum, turquoise or silver they are the possessors of or can borrow from accommodating friends.

As they approach the dancing place a circle is formed, and then very softly and sweetly a peculiar song is sung—sometimes so gently that the listener can scarcely hear it, and again swelling out into a fair volume. It should have been noted that as the women marched into the dance plaza each carried a beautiful basket, a large flat plaque made of willow, the skeins of which are brilliantly colored in many different hues and then woven into geometric and symbolic designs that are both novel and striking.

Now, as they begin to sing, they raise these baskets, rhythmically but not simultaneously, first to the left breast then to the other, then to the level of the hips, at the same time bowing easily and gracefully in time with the song. It is a pretty sight; the beautiful red bordered white blankets, the glistening of the silver ornaments, the brilliantly colored baskets, the rhythmic, stately movement, all combine to make a charming scene.

While this is going on another scene is transpiring in another portion of the dance plaza. Four young maidens, who are to distribute certain presents at the close of the ceremony, are being prepared by the "lakone taka," or priest, who is the only man allowed to take part in the Lalakonti. Followed by the "lakone mana," or maids, the priest advances into the dance plaza. He wears a bundle of feathers on his head, and carries a basket of "hoddentins," or sacred meal, in his hands. Drawing certain figures on the ground with his meal, the maids line up at a certain distance and throw corncocks, to which prayer feathers ("babos") have been attached, upon these meal figures. The priest picks them up, places them in a row on the figures and then the girls advance toward him. He hands back to them the corncocks they threw, and then the party advance a little nearer to the dancers and go through the same performance again. This they do several times, while the dancers are busy singing and posturing as before described.

As soon, however, as the "lakone mana" enter the circle there is manifested a greatly added interest on the part of the spectators. The young men leave the rooftops and get nearer to the dancers. There is an air of expectancy, which is not at all lessened by a faint made by one of the maids as if she would throw a basket to the spectators. And now begins a merry frolic, quietly conducted on the women's part, but entered into with volition and spirit on the outside. The maids pretend to throw to the right, then dodge over to the left, back and forth, while cries assail them of: "Here!" "To me!" "Throw this way!" Sometimes names are mentioned, and a young man in a half pleading tone begs for the coveted basket, only to retire abashed at the jeers of his fellows when the maid refuses to throw at his request.

But when the first basket is hurled into the air, what a scene of confusion and scramble follows!

The dancers, however, do not pay any attention to the struggles that are going on. For, it must be noted, not one group alone, but sometimes as many as half a dozen or more groups are all striving to gain a basket at one time. Now and again the "lakone mana" or gift maiden, will slyly or shyly hand out a basket or a piece of pottery or some other gift to a favored person, and such special gifts do not seem to provoke envy in the breasts of others. That such special favor should be shown is accepted as a matter of course. The women dance their prescribed length of time and then withdraw, but the groups of struggling young men remain, and it is no unusual sight to see the lads drop down one by one from sheer exhaustion, and finally the victor remains alone, his clothing torn to shreds, his body a shining surface of perspiration, his hair as tousled as a mop, and the coveted basket crumpled and mashed out of all shape and usefulness. But the smile of victory denotes that these things are as nothing compared with the joy of possession, of winning the prize. For, not only does the possessor of the basket gain the object itself, but he is supposed to be the recipient of all the blessings prayed for from Those Above by its devout maker.

WHY MRS. PINKHAM
Is Able to Help Sick Women When Doctors Fail.

How gladly would men fly to woman's aid did they but understand a woman's feelings, trials, sensibilities, and peculiar organic disturbances.

Those things are known only to women, and the aid a man would give is not at his command.

To treat a case properly it is necessary to know all about it, and full information, many times, cannot be given by a woman to her family physician.

Mrs. G. H. CHAPPELL.

She cannot bring herself to tell everything, and the physician is at a constant disadvantage. This is why, for the past twenty-five years, thousands of women have been confiding their troubles to Mrs. Pinkham, and whose advice has brought happiness and health to countless women in the United States.

Mrs. Chappell, of Grant Park, Ill., whose portrait we publish, advises all suffering women to seek Mrs. Pinkham's advice and use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as they cured her of inflammation of the ovaries and womb; she, therefore, speaks from knowledge, and her experience ought to give others confidence. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is absolutely free.

Printing Without Ink.
A company has been formed to control the process of printing without ink, and in a short time it is expected that old methods will be revolutionized. There is one thing, however, that has resisted all innovations; that is, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is a wonderful medicine for dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, insomnia, constipation and nervousness. It also prevents malaria, fever and ague. Try it, and you will not be disappointed.

THE STRUGGLE FOR THE BASKETS.

festivity, jollity and pleasure. To the Indian it is a serious, sacred and religious rite. From time immemorial the gods have required human beings to dance in order that their anger may be appeased, so every Indian engages in the dance as one of the most sacred and serious things he can do.

The Lalakonti dance is the open-air conclusion of nine days of secret observances, all of which have taken place in the underground kiva. This kiva is a chamber hewn out of the solid rock, and each clan or organization has its own individual kiva. At the beginning of the secret rites an altar is erected, shown in an accompanying engraving.

It is before this altar that prayers are recited, hymns sung, sacred smok-

g indulged in, until the kiva is full of smoke, and certain dramatic representations occur which are supposed to be very efficacious in the production of rain.

For nine days these ceremonies continue, then everybody on the outside as well as the participants on the inside begin to make preparations for the final outdoor ceremony.

And there is no doubt about the ability of these Indian women to successfully carry through any ceremony that they may undertake. I have been present at the New Year's day annual festival of the celebrated "Sorosis"—the mother of clubs—and while every movement of the distinguished ladies who conducted the ceremonies on that occasion (the only one in the year when men are admitted to the sacred precincts of Sorosis), they were not the courteous and dignified than were the Hopi women in the whole of the preceding I am about to describe, and by the chief priestesses, the wom-

Mother's Friend

Every woman in the country ought to know about

Those who do know about it wonder how they ever got along without it. It has robbed childbirth of its terrors for many a young wife. It has preserved her girlish figure and saved her much suffering. It is an external liniment and carries with it therefore, absolutely no danger of upsetting the system as drugs taken internally are apt to do. It is to be rubbed into the abdomen to soften and strengthen the muscles which are to bear the strain. This means much less pain. It also prevents morning sickness and all of the other discomforts of pregnancy. A druggist of Macon, Ga., says: "I have sold a large quantity of Mother's Friend and have never known an instance where it has failed to produce the good results claimed for it."

A prominent lady of Lambert, Ark., writes: "With my first six children I was in labor from 24 to 30 hours. After using Mother's Friend, my seventh was born in 4 hours."
