TOLU, THE BELLE OF THE BOTTOMS!

(By G. M. Russell.)

Tolu! And why Tolu? "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet." And this is how Tolu came to get its name: For many years the town was an orphan without a name until one day a fellow came along with a lot of Tolu Bitters; well, the people swallowed the bitters and the town swallowed the name—hence Tolu.

On Thursday last a staff correspondent of the PRESS received an assignment to go to Tolu and report the speeches of Hon. J. F. Gordon, candidate for circuit judge; Hon. J. L. Grayot, candidate for commonwealth's attorney; and Mr. T. Everett Butler, candidate to represent Crittenden and Livingston counties in the next legislature. Well, "Old Eagle" and I finally made the trip, after traveling over roads about as rough as some of the Republican "orators."

This speaking was announced for 1 o'clock, and at that hour some 200 ladies and gentlemen assembled in the hall back of Dr. Clement's office.

JUDGE GORDON'S SPEECH.

Judge Gordon led off with a speech of one hour, during which he defended the course of the Governor in the matter of collecting the military claim of Kentucky by Capt. Calhoun from the Federal Government. He said Bradley had spent $500 of the people's money in a vain effort to collect the claim and had then given it up as an impossibility, when Gov. Beckham took it up and with the assistance of Capt. Calhoun collected the debt and thus saved the State a million and a quarter of dollars. He also defended the action of the State officers in devoting this money to the payment of the State debt, instead of investing it in a new State capitol.

The Judge spoke at some length as to the liability of a franchise to taxation, contending that as a franchise was a thing of tangible value it was equally subject to taxation, to the extent of that value, as other articles. Judge Pratt is opposed to the franchise tax.

The Judge scolded Belknap for his aristocratic exclusiveness, and for the employment of non-union labor alone in his business. Said Belknap never spoke to one of his employes except on business, and that even his lady stenographers were not allowed to speak to Belknap on the street. He also showed up the manner in which Belknap had attempted to beat the railroad companies by shipping fire-arms into Texas invoiced as rough timber, thus saving $400 in freight charges on each car load thus shipped, and when detected in the fraud, making a scapegoat of one of his employes.

The Judge then metaphorically pulled off his coat, rolled up his sleeves and proceeded to skin Judge Pratt. He said Pratt only ran for Governor in order to get some other office, and he got the Attorney Generalship; and is now running for circuit judge in order to fall back on a Madisonville magistracy. This skinning process evoked roars of laughter from the audience. The thing was all done in a humorous manner out each point of humor left its sting behind.

Judge Gordon then paid a deservedly high tribute to the character and professional ability of Hon. John L. Grayot; said that the office of Prosecuting Attorney was the most important of the entire judiciary system in bringing to justice offenders against the law, and that this office should be entrusted to none but a fearless and experienced lawyer, one who knew his duty and had the nerve and ability to perform it. "Such a man," said the Judge, "is John L. Grayot, one of the best and most fearless Prosecuting Attorneys in the State of Kentucky."

The Judge denounced the Evening Post and Herald, of Louisville, as the monumental liars of the century, and spoke of certain parties who have been traducing and hounding him through the district as "little two foot tin horn politicians."

Judge Gordon made many other telling points which the limits of this article preclude us from mentioning. The speech was well received by the audience and surely had its effect.

JOHN GRAYOT'S SPEECH.

Hon. John L. Grayot next took the stand. At the commencement of his speech he was rather hoarse but this gradually wore off and he soon launched into one of his characteristic rattling, roaring torrents of argument and eloquence. A large portion of his address was devoted to the dastardly conspiracy by which Gov. William Goebel was deprived of his life. He showed how the conspiracy had been hatched by the leaders of the Republican party at Frankfort and carried to its fatal issue by the bringing of those hordes of wild and dangerous mountain men to the State capital, and he described in pathetic language the track of the assassin's bullet as it sped on its deadly errand from the window of Caleb Powers' office into the vitals of its distinguished victim, and denounced the inhumanity of W. S. Taylor, who, instead of rushing forward to the assistance of his fallen foe, as every instinct of humanity should have prompted, stood calmly and coldly viewing the bleeding human ruin.

Mr. Grayot also paid his respects to his young competitor, Mr. Walter A. Blackburn; said he had never practiced law, never had a case in court, either as prosecutor or defendant, and that under the terms of the statute he was ineligible to the office, even if elected; that he had not been a practicing lawyer for four years, as the statute requires, nor for one year, nor one month. He said that Walter A. Blackburn, in prosecuting a case with such men as Ollie James or Allie Moore as his opponents, would be but a pigmy to those legal giants.

Mr. Grayot said he had defeated such first-class lawyers as Allie Moore and Charlie Grassham for the office, and he hoped the Lord has no such humiliation in store for him as a defeat at the hands of such small potatoes as Walter A. Blackburn.

Mr. Grayot has made one of the best and most successful Prosecuting Attorneys the district has ever had. He has fully equaled the bright legal record of Henry Powell; he is one of the most popular men in the district, and you can bet your last ten cent piece that

THE CRITTENDEN MINING COMPANY.

A Strong Showing For a New Incorporation—Fluor Spar and Zinc Ores in Plenty—Harry Watkins Natural Gas—Sale of a Lead Property.

THE JOPLIN LEAD AND ZINC MARKETS.

The Crittenden Mining Company was incorporated on the 17th, with a capitalization of $100,000. Its object is to mine and market fluor spar, zinc and lead ores, as well as clays and earths. The property already owned by this company consists of 150 acres of well developed mining land. Some fifteen prospect shafts have already been sunk, more than two-thirds of that number being in fluor spar and zinc ore. The members of the company are as follows: Mrs. Mary Ida Pierson, of Sturgis, Ky.; Frederick Haag and F. S. Haag, proprietors and publishers of the "Daily Gleaner," of Henderson, Ky.; Joseph Clore, of the Henderson Lumber Co.; Isaac Mann, of Mann Brothers, dry goods, etc., of Henderson; Col. Starling, the well known newspaper writer, D. C. Roberts, Marion, Ky. Mr. F. Haag is President, with George Roberts, Secretary-Treasurer. Eight men have been at work for some two months on this property and the number will be increased from now on. Mr. John Harpending is the mining boss.

In prospecting on the Catnarine White property, controlled by the Crittenden Mining company, a body of surface fluor spar more than 12 feet wide has been uncovered at the junction of two veins near the zinc shaft on the same ground. This fluor spar is of the same makeup in color and density as the Memphis Mine product, which is rated the best in the district. John Harpending, who has prospected the district very thoroughly, says that this is the Memphis vein, and judging from the several fissures existing in this ground an ore body of great magnitude will be met with. At the present time it looks as if this property carried the initial or mother lode of that portion of our mining district. A rather odd feature is a heavy vein of Jack, or sulphide of zinc commencing within a couple of feet from the surface near an extensive cave, which has evidently been formed since the ore veins were filled. The zinc strata or pay streak was on top as narrow as that originally found in the Columbia ground, and has widened proportionately much more rapidly at a given depth than the Columbia did. At 15 feet the pay streak of zinc disseminated in calc spar has increased to over two feet. There is every probability that at depth or below water level a vein of zinc will be met with that will surprise us all in the harvest of zinc ore mixed with calc spar, or tiff, as they term it in Joplin.

Harry Watkins informs the PRESS that at the Davis coal property north of Sturgis, where several of our local capitalists are engaged in erecting a tippie, opening on a coal vein and otherwise putting up a 20th century coal producer, a body of natural gas was struck in boring for water that is the real thing. The gas was lighted and a stream 40 feet high was left burning for 24 hours, when it was capped off. It would not surprise any one in Marion if the Blue-Nunn-Sayre-Haynes-Maxwell-Gugenheim crowd that own the coal property should strike anything from fire-clay to platinum. Harry Watkins would make them a splendid advance agent.

Lawrence Cruce tells a story about digging a well in the extremely hilly county of Hopkins that coming from most anybody else would be considered—remarkable. Mr. Cruce says the land there is so blamed steep that when he dug the well down sixteen feet and in a moment of absent-mindedness let go of the side of the hole, he promptly fell out from the bottom of the well.

The highest price paid for zinc at Joplin last week was $38 per ton with the assay basis resting at $33 to $34.

The assay basis mentioned here is for 60 per cent metallic zinc in the sulphide ores. Lead ore remained firm at $56 per ton.

Carbonate of zinc ore is not produced at Joplin and is rarely quoted there. The PRESS last week gave the carbonate prices, and how they were arrived at.

The sales of zinc for the entire Missouri-Kansas district amounted to $126,935 for zinc and $32,955 for lead for the week ending Oct. 24th.

Strenuous efforts were made at a meeting of the Joplin zinc producers on Saturday last to further curtail the output of ore. Enough signers to this movement have been secured to cut off at least 4,000 tons. These mines will shut down on Oct. 25 for one week and the probabilities are that at least 30 per cent of the usual output will be lacking.

The reserve in the Kansas-Missouri district has dwindled to 6,500 tons, a trifle over 50 per cent of the amount at the same period last season, and with this curtailment of output of 4,000 tons the market is very likely to go back to its normal condition.

Mr. Press Maxwell the President of the Kentucky Fluorspar company, has not laid any eggs on the Editor's table for several months. Ever since Mr. Maxwell took hold of that coal deal at Sturgis he has been more or less haughty in his actions towards people who are not stockholders in coal mines, and passes them by with a sort of a supercilious below zero look that means 15 cents a bushel for coal this winter. We used to think well of Mr. Maxwell.

It is reported on very good authority that the Haureys—father and son—of Marion, have purchased the Boynton lead property in Trigg county, mentioned in the PRESS last week.

As a purely lead proposition the nearly 200 acres comprising this property carries a heavier body of galena in a well defined vein than the same class of property does in this district; that is, it is neither mixed with zinc ore or fluorspar, and for that reason is a much easier and more profitable ore to handle, as it is worth $56 per ton. Good mining work there will likely develop a great property.

The Henderson Company, miners of zinc and allied ores, will commence shipping carbonate of zinc this week.

LIVINGSTON NEWS.

(Smithland Banner.)

Hon. T. Everett Butler is in Crittenden county and is meeting with much encouragement in his race for Representative. Judge Thos. Evans returned Saturday from Crittenden and says Mr. Butler is gaining every day and is a sure winner. Let Livingston roll up 650 majority and the stuff is off with Pratt, Blackburn and Conger. We can do it if the Democrats will go out and vote.

In his speech at Salem the Hon John K. Hendrick made the following liberal proposition to the Democrats of old Livingston county: "I have two ten dollar gold pieces that I have had for many long years; pieces that I have kindly treasured up for all this time as kind of 'good luck' money; but I am going to make you this proposition. To the precinct in old Livingston county, that polls the largest per cent of its Democratic vote, on the 3rd day of November, I will make a present of a nice silk banner, bought with these two ten dollar gold pieces."

Judge Thos. Evans, Attorney Chas. H. Wilson, Thos. Wilson and Misses Jennie Bush, Fannie Ramage, Hattie Wilson and David Cowper drove to Paducah and returned Tuesday. They went to purchase decorations for the Beckham-James speaking Friday.

A prominent lawyer of Paducah who has practiced law before many circuit judges in Kentucky, remarked a few days ago: "I regard Gordon of the Fourth Judicial district as one of the ablest and best circuit judges in the State. He is a lawyer of the highest rank, impartial and fearless in his rulings."

The people of the Fourth district will re-elect John Grayot commonwealth's attorney. They know the best interests of the district and State demand it. He is a lawyer and one of the State's ablest and most successful prosecutors. Can as much be said of his opponent? No.

WAS URGED TO COME.

In response to the charge that William Jennings Bryan had been barred from Kentucky by the Democratic State Campaign Committee, Judge S. W. Hager, chairman of the committee, made public the correspondence between himself and Mr. Bryan. The facts of the case are that the Kentucky Democrats did all in their power to induce Mr. Bryan to speak here, and that he was only released from his promise after it was shown that the time he could give to Kentucky was not suitable, and at the urgent request of the Ohio Democrats, who wanted Bryan to remain another day in their state. The failure to arrange for Mr. Bryan's appearance at Louisville and at Covington was a big disappointment to Judge Hager and all the Democrats in charge of the campaign.

The invitation to Mr. Bryan to speak in Kentucky came voluntarily from Judge Hager and his associates on the committee, and it was only after repeated urging that he agreed to come at all. In reply to the letter of invitation Mr. Bryan wrote:

Sept. 16, 1903.—Mr. S. W. Hager, Louisville, Ky. My Dear Sir: Your favor at hand. I am afraid that it will be impossible for me to come to Louisville this fall, and yet I feel so interested in the success of Gov. Beckham and the entire State ticket that I shall come if I find it possible to do so. Will correspond with you when I find that I can speak definitely.

Very truly yours,
W. J. Bryan.

Late on the night of October 13 Judge Hager heard again from Mr. Bryan in the following telegram: Lincoln, Neb. Oct. 13, 1903.—Chairman Democratic State Committee, Louisville, Ky. Can speak at Louisville next Monday at noon, Covington at 6 o'clock. Must leave Cincinnati for the East at 8 o'clock Monday evening. Answer immediately whether satisfactory. You can substitute other places, provided leaving time is not changed.

W. J. Bryan.

As it was impossible to properly prepare for a meeting at noon in Louisville, and as it would also be impossible for Mr. Bryan to reach Covington in time to catch a train at 8 o'clock for the East, Judge Hager sent the following reply to Mr. Bryan: Louisville, Ky. Oct. 13, 1903.—Hon. W. J. Bryan, Lincoln, Neb. Times don't suit for places named. Points suitable wouldn't permit you to leave Cincinnati at time designated. Am writing.

S. W. Hager, Chmn. In response to the last telegram Mr. Bryan wired again as follows: Lincoln, Neb. Oct. 14, 1903.—S. W. Hager, Chairman, Louisville, Ky. Please wire Mayor Johnson, Cleveland, releasing me for next Monday, so that Ohio meeting can be arranged for that day. Will come to Kentucky later if possible, and will send letter this week for publication.

W. J. Bryan.

"The whole affair," said Judge Hager, "is the result of partisan efforts to misconstrue the action of this committee. We were the ones who asked Mr. Bryan to come, and he was the one who asked that the engagement be canceled. How, under the circumstances, anyone would have the temerity to say that we barred him from Kentucky is past my comprehension."

An Animal Story For Little Folks

Practice What You Preach

"My dear," quacked Mrs. Duck to her two promising offspring, "always follow the advice of your elders. One learns more by example than by precept. Just observe your mother. Seek to do as she does, and remember all ways to obey to the full her commands even though the sky should fall."

"Quack, quack!" assented the offspring.

"Now, by observing all that I do you will learn much that will be helpful."

What have we here? Ah, that's interesting! A chopping block, my dears.

"Let me remind you both that a duck should never try to fly high; they are too heavy—but I would like to know what's in that pail!"—saying which she slopped and scrambled up on to the block in a most ungraceful way. The two ducklings stared wonderingly.

And I'll have ten thousand vassals who will guard me while I sleep.

"Then I'll rescue some fair princess from a robber, don't you see?"

And she will thank me sweetly and say she'll marry me;

And when I wed the princess I'll be a king, you know.

And I'll have a million subjects who will bow before me now!"

But while he was a-dreaming of the time that was to be,

The teacher asked him gently the simple rule of three;

Then his castle and his kingdom faded into air at once,

And the crown that fate decreed him was the tall cap of a dunce.

SURPRISE PREFERRED.

Little Ethel did not want to go to Sunday school and her mother said: "Why Ethel, don't you want to hear about heaven and the beautiful golden streets?" "No, I dess not," replied the small philosopher. "I tink I'd razzar wait till I get there an' be surprised."

A CAUTIOUS CHILD.

Dr. George T. Winston, president of the North Carolina A. and M. college, thinks he has the prize when it comes to children's sayings.

While visiting in Ashville he went to see one of his friends and met the 3-year old daughter of the family. Her parents were religious people, and she had learned from them that God was everywhere and that she must always try to please Him. Doctor Winston and she became friends, and the next time he went to her house he carried her a bow and arrow as a gift, and the two went out on the lawn to try the toy. He taught her how to shoot it, and she prepared to send the shaft upward. She pointed the arrow toward the sky and pulled the elastic string back. She had almost let go when a frightened look came over her face. Then she looked up and, raising her voice, said:

"Det out of the way, Dod, I'm goin' to shoot."

Answer to last week's puzzle: "Speak the two letters P. O. and then pronounce the word 'tea-pot.'"

First correct answer opened was from Madeline Jenkins, Marion, who won the prize.

Good answers were received also from Densel Beard, Tolu. Varnie Coffield, Marion. Dorthy Dean, Iron Hill.

The Safer Way.

To call a man a liar
May sometimes bring a spat;
Just say "You are a politician"
And let it go at that.

There is not a shadow of a doubt that bowling is on a boom in this vicinity. The "alley," which is kept in fine condition, and is as "clean as a pin," is crowded daily—nightly, too—and many young and old, who had not engaged in the game for years are back again battling for honors on the wooden strip. Ten pins have always been a favorite amusement, and has had several seasons of popularity. At one time the demand for alleys all over the country was so great that they were built out of all kinds of materials, and under all kinds of conditions, with very little comfort for bowlers.

To show the national popularity of the game we quote from the Indianapolis Sentinel:

"It is now proposed to organize a City Bowling Association on the lines laid by the Bowling Congress. All clubs are eligible to membership. Those that are not taking part in a tournament must have a practice night once in two weeks. A bowler that is a member of a club that forms part of a city association can enter a national tournament. A club that does not bowl in a tournament and is not a member of a city association can not enter the national tournament. It can be seen that this rule was made to prevent picked teams from entering the lists for national honors. The two bowling leagues that are now in existence here will take up the matter and form such a body if the clubs will co-operate with them.

JUDGE GORDON,

John Grayot and Everett Butler
Heartily Received at Dyeusburg.

HOUSES DECORATED—IMMENSE ENTHUSIASM.

Saturday Judge J. Fleming Gordon, Hon. Jno. L. Grayot and Hon. T. Everett Butler received a splendid ovation at the hands of the good people of Dyeusburg. Many business houses and residences were decorated, and the large hall in which the speaking took place was beautifully festooned in honor of the occasion.

When the speaking began the house was crowded and many failed to gain admission. Judge Gordon made an excellent speech and was heartily applauded from beginning to end by his enthusiastic hearers. The addresses of Grayot and Butler were able and effective.

The meeting clearly demonstrated Judge Gordon's standing at Dyeusburg in unmistakable terms. Many ladies were in his large audience and presented him with several handsome bouquets; also the other speakers, who had friends by the score there. It is freely predicted that old Dyeusburg will roll up the biggest vote for the ticket that it has given in years.

DYBUSBURG, Ky., Oct. 24, 1903.

EDITOR PRESS: As it has come to our knowledge that a petition has been circulated stating or insinuating that Judge Gordon was here while drunk on the night of the 15th inst. (he, Gordon and Pratt, having spoken here that night). Now in justice to Judge Gordon we the undersigned were present and heard Gordon and Pratt speak, and most cheerfully state that we do not believe he was intoxicated in any manner whatever.

NEW SALEM.

The driest fall in 20 years; water for man and beast is getting very scarce; what little grass and wheat that was sown is injuring greatly for want of rain.

Corn husking is in full blast. The corn crop is a good one.

Miss Duke Hayden, of Salem, attended church at New Salem Sunday.

Bro Lowrey came up to his regular appointment at New Salem the fourth Saturday and Sunday. He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Cora.

Frank Capron of Johnson county, Ill. was the guest of his father and mother last week.

Some more land trading. T. A. pending has sold to Jim Mahan and Frank Capron his farm known as the Brown place.

Old man Coxey, who moved from here last fall to Missouri, moved back again last week, and will work part of the W. C. Tyler farm next year.

It is never too hot or too cold for Uncle Billy Fuller to catch fish; your correspondent is under many thanks to the old gentleman for a nice fry.

The protracted meeting was called in for this time and will begin the Saturday before the 4th Sunday in Nov.

John Pace has moved on the John T. Kirk farm for the next year.

Mrs. Corda McWhirter, of Paducah is visiting her parents, Jno. Conyers and wife, and other relatives.

Mrs. William Threlkeld of Hurricane, is the guest of relatives in this section this week.

Miss Gill Watson has returned home from a two weeks visit to her brother's at Paducah.

IRON HILL.

A small wheat crop is being sown this fall.

Mrs. Martha Drennan is quite sick.

Geo. D. Kemp is completing a splendid barn.

Overseer John Stewart has the best worked section of road between Marion and Shady Grove.

Mrs. Rose Stewart is visiting her sister near Madisonville.

Lonzo Hanlin and wife have moved to this section from Livingston county.

Mrs. Farris went to Blackford to see her mother, Mrs. Davis who is dangerously ill.

Thos. McConnell is still confined with rheumatism.

Mrs. Annie Lemon, who is in Evansville under treatment, expects to be able to return home next week.

Born to the wife of L. J. Hodges a boy; the mother and child are getting along poorly at this writing.

A tobacco buyer would be a great curiosity hereabouts.

LEVIAS.

John H. Price and family visited at Greens Ferry Saturday and Sunday.

The protracted meeting closed Thursday; there were 13 professions and 9 baptisms and a good revival among christians.

James L. LaRue and family are visiting his brother Dallas in New Burnside, Ill.

The old school house was sold to W. J. Davenport for $21. He contemplates building a fine stock barn with it.

The Hopewell mines are making a fine showing.

John Franklin's family, of Ford's Ferry, visited in this section last week and attended the meeting.

John Summers and family, of Sturgis, visited here last week. He and his wife attended the meeting and professed religion while here.

SUGAR GROVE.

The annual revival meeting began Monday night after the second Sunday in October and continued ten days, resulting in 33 professions and 28 joining the church, and a glorious revival. I have always loved my home church. It is a very sacred place to me, and because of the kindness of the people it is more so now than ever before. The people know just how to treat a fellow to make him love them.

Sugar Grove church has the largest membership of any church in Princeton Presbytery.

W. T. Oakley.

Copher will serve oysters on ice or cooked to order.

THE SPELLING BEE.

Something About the Orthography of Our Citizens.

Last Friday night at the school building in the chapel hall, an old fashioned Spelling Bee was given by Miss Maggie Moore's pupils in the Third and Fourth grades. The exercises which were highly entertaining were opened with a quartette by Misses Haynes, Bigham, Price and Doss, and was indeed, beautiful.

Next followed a recitation by Miss Pauline Bigham, "The New Baby," and it was rendered in an air of composure and full of feeling and proved the little lady has a talent of no ordinary degree in that direction. Next followed the song by Mr. and Mrs. Travis, and before its sweet notes died away the audience encored them and almost demanded a repetition, but were denied the pleasure. Next Miss Daisy Clark was quickly named for a recitation, "Fishing on Sunday," which was one of the best subjects possible, and it gave the bright elocutionist an opportunity to display her talent. Everyone enjoyed this very much.

Then the juveniles were arranged in battle royal, Master Maury Boston leading one side and Master Homer Moore the other.

Little Miss Madeline Jenkins was the prize winner in the initial contest between the scholars. It was a pleasure to witness the alternating lights and shades playing over her unusually expressive countenance as the ups and downs of the two sides gradually focused to her ultimate triumph. She was roundly cheered and she deserved every bit of it.

The old Webster speller, ordinarily known as the "blue back" was treated by the Rev. James Price with an air of indifference that was most comforting to the "Fluorpar" side in Miss Maggie Moore's spelling bee.

The "Lumber" contingent was captained by Judge Pierce, who spells his family name the same as did President Franklin Pierce, who was a native of New Hampshire, and who had many of the characteristics of our esteemed townsman.

The "lumber" crowd was selected and looked after by Judge Pierce with the same careful consideration that he displays in the Sunday school room, and if the other side secured a speller of local reputation strategy and strategy of the deepest dye had to be used.

There were twenty-two devotees of the national game lined up, eleven on each side and probably no more intellectual looking crowd ever appeared in this hall of learning, barring of course the two captains.

Had Judge Pierce not spelled lumber with two "u's" he probably would still be standing erect and unapproachable in this particular line of art.

"Fluorpar" the word that caused the undoing of Mr. Roberts, who was the leader of the other side, was spelled fluorpar, wrongly of course, but old man Russell of the Press, eternally spells it that way, and once in a great while Col. Russell is correct.

"Deceive" was the rock on which editor Haag of the Henderson Gleaner, sat down upon. It is a mighty easy word but it deceived the Gleaner man.

Harry Haynes, upon whom the fluor spar crowd had built great hopes went over to the New Hampshire Yankees and got a Turkish "Cimeter" in the neck and the other side seemed to be glad of it; he spelled it in the Russian way.

The two sides slowly dwindled in numbers, Miss Carrie Moore failing on the word "Guess," she spelled it "Guest." Henry Haynes on the word World spelling it wool and several errors of the same nature were made showing unquestionably that their minds were elsewhere.

The words to be spelled were enunciated in a clean cut, clear voice by Prof. Evans, the head of our splendid educational establishment, and but one person questioned his pronunciation, the judge after missing second word which put him on the retired list thought he might have spelled it if it had been some other word.

The grand finale was a triumph for the fluor spar side. Rev. Price, calm, self possessed with triumphant tone to every syllable spoken was as sure of himself as his side was of him. He knows more about that blue backed speller than old Webster ever did, at least his side is sure he does.

The exercises of the evening were all in all in most excellent taste.

It is difficult to mention Marion school without a feeling of both gratification and satisfaction that so thorough an educational establishment is firmly planted in our city. Its head is doing great things for the coming men and women of our section of Kentucky. May his shadow never grow less.

PETITION FILED.

S. H. Cassidy, Wm. Dycus and F. B. Dycus Declare They are Insolvent.

The biggest bankruptcy petition that has been entered here for a long while was filed at the office of U. S. Clerk J. R. Puryear.

The petitioners are Samuel H. Cassidy, William Dycus and Frank B. Dycus, of Dycusburg, doing business as S. H. Cassidy & Company. They say they owe $45,000 and have assets of $28,000. They have been conducting a tobacco rehandling warehouse, a saw mill and a general merchandise business. They are among the most widely-known rural merchants and financiers in West Kentucky.

The creditors are mostly located at Paducah, Louisville, Marion, Princeton, Eddyville, Smithland and Kuttawa, while some accounts are owed at larger cities in the East and North.—Paducah News-Democrat.

MRS. JAMES B. STEPHENS DEAD.

Mrs. Ann Eliza Stephens, wife of Dr. James B. Stephens, passed away Wednesday morning at her home, aged sixty-five years. Mrs. Stephens was a woman of many noble qualities, and by her christian life had won the love and admiration of a wide circle of friends. She was the mother of Dr. Ernest L. Stephens, of Fort Worth, Texas. The remains were conveyed to the residence of her brother-in-law, Dr. J. Bunyan Stephens, where the funeral will take place. The services will be conducted by Dr. J. D. Barbee and Elder G. T. Mayo.—Nashville Tenn., American.

Mrs. Stephens was an aunt of Mr. S. M. Jenkins, of Marion, being an only sister of his mother.

PRESBYTERIAN ENTERTAINMENT

Tuesday night the ladies of the Presbyterian church gave an entertainment at the residence of Prof. Evans, and served refreshments of all the delicacies of the season. Frapple, ice-cream, sherbet, cake in endless variety, oyster soup, fried, scalloped, stewed or pan roast oysters, oysters, pickles, coffee, and bread like "mother used to make," fruits and candies.

The refreshments were served in rooms arranged and decorated to imitate the zones—Torrif, Temperate and Frigid, and the fair debutantes of each clime acted as waiters. The entire arrangements and decorations were quite attractive and much taste was displayed throughout the house. The affair was quite a success altho it was not generally known and was not especially advertised and the ladies extend their thanks to all who lent them aid.

CARD OF THANKS.

On last Friday evening quite a number of our friends invaded the Methodist parsonage and captured the inmates, but we soon found they were not intent on any evil, but on a mission of kindness and yielded to them without a murmur. An enjoyable evening was spent in social intercourse. When our friends left us we found they left many valuable presents to supply our pantry and wardrobe which we highly appreciated, not only on account of their intrinsic value but as tokens of friendship. We shall ever feel kindly towards the good people of Marion and pray God's richest blessings upon them. May we be able to minister to them in spiritual things who so kindly minister to us in temporal things.

MRS. CHAS. EVANS ENTERTAINS.

One of the most delightful entertainments given in Marion this season was that given by Mrs. Chas. Evans last Friday afternoon in honor of her guest, Mrs. J. A. Sherrill, of Meridian, Tex., the sister of Prof. Evans, who is here on her first visit for a number of years. Those present besides the hostess and guest of honor and Mrs. Evans, her mother, were Mesdames E. J. Hayward, S. J. Martin, S. M. Jenkins, S. T. Dupuy, R. F. Haynes, H. H. Sayre, John Kirk, G. M. Crider, R. C. Walker, B. J. Woods, J. W. Blue, C. S. Nunn, Mary Ellen Croft, Felix Cox, J. J. Clark, Thos. Clifton, Misses Nonie Blue, Lena Woods, Ina Woods, Dell Barnes, Nell Walker.

Refreshments were served and several contests engaged in to pass away the afternoon pleasantly. Mrs. M. E. Croft won the first prize in the pecan contest. Mrs. R. F. Haynes being second contestant for it. Miss Lena Woods won second prize and Miss Ina Woods the booby prize. The occasion was much enjoyed by all present and they will carry with them pleasant memories of another afternoon spent in this hospitable home. Mrs. Evans inherits her mother's gracious manner, and has been reared in an atmosphere which breathes love for your neighbor and kindness toward all. She could not be other than a charming hostess.

Mrs. Sherrill will leave for her far away southern home this week, much to the regret of a large circle of old and new friends.

WHEN ONE IS A GUEST.

The Pleasures of Visiting and the Duties of the Visitor.

It is a pleasant sensation to wake up in the morning and feel that one is a guest. Strange wall papers and strange furniture surround one's bed, and there is a strange view out of the window. All the jostling demons of worry, anxiety and responsibility, whether domestic or professional, who stand ready to crowd upon our consciousness vanish in the unfamiliar environment. We have got away out of the claws of the usual and lie blissfully waiting for a knock at the door which shall have an unfamiliar sound.

Downstairs we find new faces, new pictures, strange books, a fresh standpoint. Life has a new savor. We taste it everywhere—in the atmosphere and in the conversation, even in the bread and the salt. Our first sensation is that everything depends upon somebody else. It is nothing to do with us whatever happens. But presently the old truism of our childhood, that every situation in life has its duties, comes back to our mind, and though with our waking thoughts we cast off those of the home dweller we must immediately prepare to take on those of a guest, at least if we are constitutionally conscientious, which, alas, all guests are not. They may indeed be divided by this conscience test into visiting sheep and visiting goats.

The motto of the conscientious guest is Mrs. Mohl's well known saying, "It is a shame to eat another man's bread and give him nothing in return." Such a one should be a joy to his hosts, but in the holiday world of hosts and guests, as in everyday life, good intentions do not always insure success. The conscientious sometimes fall where the unconscientious succeed.—London Spectator.

THE SENSE OF SMELL.

The Aborigines of Peru Have Developed It Wonderfully.

How infinitely minute must be the particles that emanate from the object which the dog is tracking, says the London Mail. Yet the matter is extremely divisible. The tenth part of a grain of musk will continue for years to fill a room with its odoriferous particles and at the end of that time will not be appreciably diminished in weight by the finest balance. A cubic inch of air rising from the flame of a Bunsen burner has been found to contain no fewer than 489,000,000 dust particles. A drop of blood which might be suspended from the point of a needle contains about a million of red flattened corpuscles. Still, though matter is so marvellously divisible, the olfactory nerves are infinitely more sensitive. Much has yet to be investigated with regard to the differentiation of the points in these nerves so that they may discriminate with such apparently miraculous accuracy. Yet even the results in the scent of dogs show how marvellously fine is their discriminating power. Our sense of smell, unless in the trained chemist, is not even so acute as that of the semiaquatic. The aborigines of Peru can in the darkest night and in the thickest woods distinguish respectively a white man, a negro and one of their own race by the smell. Much we have gained by civilization, but not without some loss to our bodily energies and senses. Man's recuperative power after an injury is in the inverse ratio to his social advancement. Similarly he seems to become less acute and delicate in the sense of smell as he fares better and lives more comfortably. The faithful dog puts him to shame.

Greek Noses.

We learn that the nose of Socrates was not Greek, but such as Greek artists usually assigned to satyrs. Occasionally, as in a beautiful group of a satyr playing dice with a nymph on a bronze mirror, they gave satyrs another kind of nose. The noses of the ladies in the Tanagra terra cotta are of all agreeable orders of nose, not necessarily Greek. The chances are that the Greeks varied as much as we do in their noses, while the tradition of their art preferred the conventional straight nose. In the same way the kind of Romans who had their portraits done on coins and gems were just the sort of energetic, conquering people who have Roman noses everywhere, like William of Orange and the Duke of Wellington.—London Saturday Review.

The Letters Came Back.

A circumstantial fish story is told by the London News. The captain of the steamer Benalder of Leith, on a voyage to China, threw a bundle of old letters overboard in the Mediterranean. Some Spanish fishermen of Aguilas, near Cartagena, later caught a large fish and on opening it found a bundle of letters inside. They took this to the mayor, who managed to decipher in one the name and address of the superintendent of the steamship line in London and thus to restore the letters to their owner.

THE ROAD PROBLEM

SHOULD UNCLE SAM ASSIST IN HIGHWAY BUILDING?

Some Views of Prominent Men For and Against the Improvement of Roads in the Rural Districts by Government Aid.

In view of the large proportions recently assumed by the movement for federal aid in road building a number of prominent men in different sections have been asked to briefly state their views on the question. From these statements it will be seen that it is decided by the prevailing opinion it is time for Uncle Sam to take a hand in the warfare against mud.

President William H. Moore of the National Good Roads Association, speaking from the standpoint of a moderate advocate of national aid, says:

"Unless the people in the different states take hold of the road improvement question vigorously and raise local funds with which to start the work they cannot expect the federal government to come and dump a lot of money into their coffers. But if the people show a disposition to help themselves and to secure proper state legislation I believe the federal government will come to their aid."

Senator Lattimer of South Carolina, who is a good deal of an enthusiast on this question, says:

"I will tell you why we have not had any government aid in building roads during the last seventy-five years. It is because we have sent to congress men who live in cities. They get bills passed in the interest of cities. They have the harbors and rivers improved. What we want now is to have the principle of national aid recognized. We want the government to appropriate a fixed part of the money necessary to improve the roads in rural districts. We have a surplus in the United States treasury, and yet the farmers in the rural districts cannot get good roads. The men who have money in the cities do not object to being taxed for road improvement. It is the hide-bound farmer living out in the country that has been protesting. If the farmers of the country will organize and elect to congress men pledged to carry out their wishes they will get a national appropriation to help them improve their roads."

Governor Cummins of "Iowa Idea" fame also has some ideas on the road question. He is very much in favor of better roads, but is rather inclined to "fight shy" of the national aid proposition, as will be seen in the following statement:

"I believe that good roads are necessary and that they are necessary now, and I shall be very sorry to see this great movement and all the apostles and workers in this cause halt while we ask aid of the national government. The outcome of the proposition is problematical and its propriety doubtful. Whatever national aid may come in the future—and it may come, and I do not oppose proper and reasonable aid—for one, believe that each state ought to take up and carry forward this question for itself without regard to national aid."

Judge J. B. Killebrew of Tennessee is strongly in favor of having Uncle Sam help the people to build roads in the country districts. He says:

"Aside from the warrant which the constitution gives for the construction of roads in the clause for the establishment of post offices and post roads the 'general welfare' clause ought to be sufficient. If there were no other constitutional provision. There is no other one thing that can be done by the government that will add more to the general welfare of the people of this country than to assist in the building of roads. It is one thing that everybody wants. I shall never be able to understand why the congress of the United States should appropriate a million dollars for the construction and improvement of the highways of Porto Rico and devote a large sum to the same purpose in the Philippines and yet hesitate to make liberal appropriations to aid in the building and improvement of public roads for the conveyance of the mails. The United States is regarded by the people of other nations as the most powerful agent in ameliorating the condition of the people of the world. In all that is progressive except good roads it stands first. I do not wish the government to build roads throughout the United States, but to assist the local governments in that work. I should like to see the entire revenue tax on tobacco devoted to aid in the building of good highways in this country. This tax now amounts to over $20,000,000."

Hon. William J. Bryan has been studying the road question, and, while he is somewhat cautious about committing himself, his expressions indicate that he is inclined to favor the movement for federal aid. He says:

"The expenditure of money for the permanent improvement of the common roads can be defended (1) as a matter of justice to the people who live in the country, (2) as a matter of advantage to the people who do not live in the country and (3) on the ground that the welfare of the nation demands that the comforts of country life shall, as far as possible, keep pace with the comforts of city life."

It is a fact easily ascertained that the people in the country, while paying their full share of county, state and federal taxes, receive, as a rule, only the general benefits of government, while the people in the cities have, in addition to the protection afforded by the government, the advantage arising from the expenditure of public moneys in their midst. The farmer not only pays his share of the taxes, but more than his share, yet very little of what he pays gets back to the farmer. People in the city pay not only less than their share, as a rule, but get back practically all of the benefits that come from the expenditure of the people's money.

Just to what extent action should be taken by the federal government, the state government, the county and the precinct or in what proportion the burden should be borne is a question for discussion, but that country roads should be constructed with a view to permanent and continuous use is scarcely open to debate. The people may be depended upon to find not only a remedy, but the right remedy. The people now realize that bad roads are indefensible and are prepared to consider the remedy.

Use of Oil on Roads.

Professor Edmond O'Neil of the State University of California is of the opinion that, as compared with the advantages which are obtained from sprinkling roadbeds with oil, the objection to the use of oil in destroying the rubber tires of bicycles and carriages is comparatively slight. The oil acts as a solvent on the rubber, and while the inconvenience is great, when the great saving in cost over sprinkling with water is considered this phase becomes comparatively unimportant.

WELFARE OF STATE

Depends on Adoption of Constitutional Amendment.

A CYNTHIANA EDITOR'S OPINION

Will in No Way Affect Taxes of People in the Country. Except the More Cities and Towns Build Up and Prosper, the Lower Taxes on the Whole People Will Become.

(Editorial from Cynthiana Democrat, Oct. 3, 1903.)

"And the General Assembly may, by general laws only, authorize cities or towns of any class to provide for taxation for municipal purposes, on personal property, tangible and intangible, based on income, licenses, or franchises, in lieu of an ad valorem tax thereon; provided, cities of the first class shall not be authorized to omit the imposition of an ad valorem tax on such property of any steam railroad, street railway, ferry, bridge, gas, water, heating, telephone, telegraph, electric light, or electric power company."

There is the constitutional amendment upon which the voters are asked to pass judgment at the November election, and upon the adoption of which the welfare, the advancement and the continued prosperity of Kentucky are believed to depend.

The change is easily understood. Instead of raising revenue to pay the expenses of city and town government—the salaries of the mayor, police, firemen, the maintenance of the streets, public improvements, etc.—by assessing personal property as under the present laws, the legislature may authorize cities and towns to adopt a license system. All property, real and personal, in cities and towns will continue to pay state and county taxes as usual. No change whatever will be made in this respect, so that people who live in the country may vote for the amendment under the full assurance that it will in no way affect their taxes; except, the more the cities and towns build up and prosper, the lower the taxes on the whole people will become.

It is certainly asking a small favor that voters cast their ballots for this amendment at the November election. There is little doubt of its passage, if the people do not forget or neglect to vote on the question. There is no politics in it.

AMENDMENT EXPLAINED.

P. N. Clarke Says Great Advantages Are to Be Derived From Its Adoption.

At a meeting of the Louisville Credit Men's Association a few nights ago Mr. Peyton N. Clarke, Secretary of the State Committee, which is managing the campaign for the constitutional amendment, explained the advantages to be derived from the adoption of the amendment. He said:

"For years, under our former constitution, all cities and towns had the privilege of home rule and the right to tax themselves for municipal purposes without interference from anyone. It was argued by some, however, that this was a power no town or city should have, and the wise makers of our new constitution said that it would never do that all property should be taxed alike. So the revenue law was changed."

"But the result has proved the fallacy of the idea, and the effect has been exactly contrary to the design."

"Under our present law the grossest inequalities in assessments prevail and there is not a single advantage to compensate for the innovation. When every person is his own assessor it is not strange that there should be great irregularities. The rich man easily escapes his fair share of taxation, as he covers up his stores of wealth, while the poor man with his all invested in a modest home has to pay more than his share, because all he has is in sight and cannot be hidden from the assessor."

"The proposed amendment will remedy all this to a great extent. It simply authorizes the legislature by general act to permit all cities and towns to raise revenue for local purposes by licenses, franchises, etc., on personal property, instead of the present ad valorem system."

"Its object is obvious. 'Under the new law our merchants, manufacturers and financial institutions will pay licenses and avoid the necessity of fictitious returns to the assessor. All personal property subject to taxation will pay its fair share of taxes, and by equalizing the burden it will sit lightly on all."

"Under the new law we can invite capital and industry with assurances of welcome, and our state will flourish as a green bay tree."

"The amendment is a step forward and will place us in the line of progressive states."

"We have had a dozen years of the ad valorem system of taxes, and they have been lean years to the industrial development of the state. Capital has shunned our shores. Our mineral and timber lands lie waste. Our interest rates are high and our people lack the spirit of enterprise."

"Let us have the amendment and we will find a different state of affairs, and Kentucky, with all her wealth of natural resources—her great rivers and network of railways—will blossom forth as the rose, and wealth will flow into our coffers, while health and happiness will be our inheritance."

seen are close fitting, with a point in front—in fact, the particular pointed toque which Parisian milliners tried to force on us six months ago in straw trimmed with cowslips and violets. It is not a becoming shape even to Parisians, but some very smart models made after this style are in a kind of willow straw plaited with chenille in two or three shades either of wine color, blue or brown. A favorite Paris shade is mushroom, which tones well with autumn browns.

Smart gowns will be worn longer and fuller than ever. Given the right occasion, there is nothing so becoming as a soft frothing skirt, but tailor made costumes still clear the ground all around.

Horror of a Quarrelsome Home.

"Nothing" says Ella Wheeler Wilcox, "can ever compensate a child for the horror of a quarrelsome home." And she is right, as every person reared in such an environment knows to his or her cost. It leaves a scar upon the heart that time cannot efface. Children are keenly sensitive to voice and facial expression at a very early age, and their nervous systems are often injured by the quarrelsome attitude of their parents, who little realize their own wickedness and cruelty.

People who have not observed children under such circumstances, cannot understand how much unhappiness is caused them by domestic scenes and angry outbursts of temper.

Nor is this all, for the shadow thus cast over their childhood, which ought to be full of sunshine and gracious beauty, rarely lifts in after life. Their disposition is embittered, and unless some great influence is brought to counteract their early education, their own domestic life later on repeats the unhappiness of their parents.

It is a great responsibility to bring a human being into the world, but few parents seem to think so. Surely the birth of a child should rouse all that is finest and noblest in both the father and mother, and should nerve both to self-control and to the eradication of selfishness and ugly tempers!

If they cannot make their home the abode of peace and love they are guilty of deliberate cruelty to their unfortunate children—W. L. Allen a Life.

Dieting Invites Disease

To cure Dyspepsia or indigestion it is no longer necessary to live on milk and toast. Starvation produces such weakness that the whole system becomes an easy prey to disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that one craves to eat, and is a never failing cure for indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. Kodol digests what you eat—makes the stomach sweet. Sold by all druggists.

EXTRA SESSION.

President Roosevelt has finally issued that promised call for an extra session of congress, and the date has been fixed at November 9th. The date being a week after the election, when the returns can all be in, the body may be more of a funeral cortege than anything else if the democrats do their duty at the polls.

World Wide Reputation.

White's Cream Vermifuge has achieved a world wide reputation as being the best of all worm destroyers, and for its tonic influence on weak and unthrifty children, as it neutralizes the acidity or sourness of the stomach, improves their digestion; and assimilation of food, strengthens their nervous system, and restores them to the health, vigor, and elasticity of spirits natural to childhood; 25c at Woods & Co's.

HUNTER THE NOMINEE.

Secretary of State Hill decided that W Godfrey Hunter was entitled to the log cabin device of the republican party in the factional quarrel between him and D. C. Edwards of Laurel county. The secretary immediately certified the nomination to the county clerks of the counties of the district. The Edwards' following have threatened to bring injunction suits to restrain the county clerks from placing the name of hunter on the device on the ballot.

Cut Off Her Golden Hair.

At Russellville, Ind., Mrs. Harry Sherwin lost a very beautiful brain of hair. She went to the well to get a pail of water and when she was out of the range of the light shining from the windows of her home some vandal slipped up behind her and cut her hair off as close to her head as the clippers would work. She screamed and the fellow ran across the yard, but stumbled and fell over a tub and luckily for Mrs. Sherwin, he dropped his booty.

There is as yet no clew and the act is a mystery. Mrs. Sherwin possessed a large braid of beautiful golden hair that reached more than thirty inches down her back and was abundant in proportion and the theft must have been attempted for the purpose of securing the hair for sale.

A Perfect Painless Pill

is the one that will cleanse the system set the liver to action, remove the bile clear the complexion, cure headache and leave a good taste in the mouth. The famous little pills for doing such work pleasantly and effectually are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Run a Nail Through His Hand.

While opening a box J. C. Mount, of Three Mile Bay, N. Y., ran a ten penny nail through the fleshy part of his hand. "I thought at once of all the pain and soreness this would cause me," he says "and immediately applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and occasionally afterwards. To my surprise it removed all pain and soreness and the injured parts were soon healed." For sale by Woods & Orme

HIS LIBERTY SHORT.

Friday's Evansville Courier says: Welsh White's dash for liberty from an officer at Marion, Ky., did not keep him out of prison but a few hours. White was wanted in the Kentucky town on the charge of larceny. When a patrolman attempted to arrest him, White made a spring and succeeded in making his escape. He boarded a train and came to this city where he was arrested at the L. & N. depot. White is eighteen years old.

FIRST THROUGH TRAIN.

Hopkinsville, Ky. Oct. 22—The last spike was driven in filling in the gap in the Tennessee Central railroad between this city and Clarksville last night, and the first through train arrived here at nine o'clock with loud whistling. The construction trains are now running over the whole line to Nashville about eighty miles. A great effort was made to get the first through train into Hopkinsville on the 20th, as some reason not known to the public made that date a very important one. If a bonus was to be won the road won the prize.

Some of the track laid was temporary, but the work of adjusting and ballasting is under way and regular trains will be put on in thirty days.

The Salve That Heals without leaving a scar is DeWitt's. The name Witch Hazel is applied to many salves but DeWitt's Witch Salve is the only Witch Hazel Salve made that contains the pure unadulterated witch hazel. If any other Witch Hazel Salve is offered you it is a counterfeit. E. C. DeWitt invented Witch Hazel Salve and DeWitt's Witch Hazel is the best salve in the world for cuts, burns, bruises, scalds, or blisters, itching or protruding piles. Sold by all druggists.

What WALTHER'S PEPTONIZED PORT is and does

It is simply a good, honest, common-sense food tonic—a combination of rich Port Wine and Pure Pepsin,—nothing else. It is not a cure-all, or a medicine for acute or chronic diseases.

It does not take the place of the doctor. It does strengthen weak digestive organs, tones and builds up the impaired, impoverished nerves, muscles and blood, and promotes a perfect condition of vigorous health. It is a valuable remedy for dyspepsia, indigestion, and stomach troubles generally—for weakened vitality and impaired strength. It is a preparation of great worth for nursing mothers, tired women, old folks, invalids and convalescents. It is highly recommended by physicians and prescribed by them—both its constituents being of long demonstrated worth.

his "calling and election" is a dead sure thing.

T. EVERETT BUTLER'S SPEECH.

Mr. Grayot was followed by Mr. T. Everett Butler, candidate for Representative, who, owing to the lateness of the hour, made but a short address; but while it lasted Everett poured in the hot shot at his opponent, and every shot hit the mark. It seems that Mr. Conger has been distributing one kind of his cards to Republicans, with the log cabin on it, and another kind to Democrats, without the log cabin. Mr. Butler showed the Press reporter both kinds of these cards. He got the one with the log cabin on it from a negro, who said he had received it from Frank Conger.

The principal portion of Mr. Butler's address was devoted to the question of the school book trust. He said that if elected he would vote for a law for uniform text books, which would make them much cheaper, but that his opponent had so far refused to say whether he would vote for such a law or not. This is a matter of vital interest to the people of this State, involving as it does the saving of many thousands of dollars and no man should be sent to the legislature who refuses to pledge himself in favor of this measure. On this issue Mr. Butler stands square on the record, while his opponent has taken to the woods.

The speech was well received by the audience and we heard it favorably commented on. Your correspondent considers Everett Butler one of the most promising young men of the day. I predict that he will make his mark in the halls of legislation, for that he will be elected is a foregone conclusion.

This ended the speaking at Tolu, and the three candidates left immediately for Sheridan, where they were billed to speak Thursday night.

Judge Gordon is a forcible and pleasant speaker, presenting his arguments fairly, plainly and convincingly, without any attempt at oratory; he is warm in praise of his friends and courteous in treatment of his opponents, and is the last man to be accused of either falsehood or any act unbecoming a polished gentleman. The falsehoods that have been spread abroad about him would better have been left unsaid. Falsehood in politics generally acts as a boomerang to suite its concocters, and so it will prove in this instance.

Your reporter, while in Tolu, had a very pleasant interview with Judge Gordon and found him to be a courteous and affable gentleman. The Judge is decidedly a "man of the people," friendly to all and discourteous to none. He did not seem to be at all alarmed at any prospect of defeat, and was the very embodiment of genuine good humor. In fine, he left an excellent impression behind him in Tolu, as I can truthfully testify, and this will be made manifest at the November election.

Tolu is a much larger and prettier town than I expected to see, and viewed from the hilltop approaching it presents a picturesque and very beautiful appearance. There are a number of handsome residences and some really pretentious cottages—Mr. Ed. Dowell's and the one adjoining it, for instance. The town has a fine flouring mill, which manufactures the best grades of flour; there are several general merchandise stores and a number of other business houses, two hotels—the Minner House and the Weldon Hotel. Judge Gordon and Mr. Grayot dined at the Weldon, and your correspondent did the same, and was a guest of the house until Friday morning. While there I was treated most royally, both by landlord Weldon and wife, and their handsome and accomplished daughter, Miss Mima. Every attention is paid to the comfort of the guests at this hotel, and I will wager any amount that in a cooking contest Mrs. Weldon will win the prize every time. I thought we had a beverage called milk here in Marion, but the golden nectar they gave me at the Weldon dispelled that illusion. Any traveler wishing the real comforts of a home will surely find them at the Weldon Hotel, with a whole-souled landlord thrown in for good measure.

About half-past 7 o'clock Friday morning Old Eagle and I took the back trail for Marion. The sun shone brightly, the air was sharp and frosty, and as Eagle hit the road with that long, heavy swing of his which whizzed the buggy along like a young tornado we soon rattled off the five miles between Tolu and IRMA.

The pretty little hamlet of Irma is not much to look at just now, with its one general store, and is not thrusting its greatness on the gaze of the world, but it still "has hopes," as an old lady once remarked on a delicate occasion.

Four miles further on the road toward Marion we come to a town whose mining interests may one day make it as renowned in the history of Kentucky as its illustrious namesake was renowned in war.

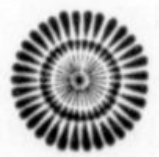

SHERIDAN.

Sheridan! I long to see Sheridan, said Judge Gordon in his Tolu speech; where the roses of Sharon perennially exhale their sweetest perfume and the nightingale trills her softest lullaby; where the south winds sigh gently through the greenwood and the Garden of Eden stands abashed at the royal glories of its rival; the place where Judge Pratt has patriotically entreated to have his bones laid to their final rest, that the lillies of the field may blossom and bloom over his grave and keep green forever the memory of his immortal deeds—or words to that effect.

Your correspondent did not accompany the speakers to Sheridan Thursday evening, having been pressed by landlord Weldon to remain over and share his hospitality, but we were informed that the crowd out to hear the speaking was the largest and most enthusiastic that had assembled in that town in many a day—or night either, for that matter, and that the speakers were cheered to the echo.

Passing through Sheridan Eagle and I reached the Press office promptly on time, reported progress, and await a new assignment.

DYCSBURG.

On Saturday afternoon at the city hall quite a large assemblage, composed of ladies and voters, listened to Democratic addresses delivered by commonwealth's attorney, J. L. Grayot, Judge J. F. Gordon, and T. Everett Butler. The "stars and stripes" were draped in the rear of the stage, and a "Democratic rooster" near the front supported a picture of Beck ham, framed with ferns and flowers. A vase of flowers and some decorations of forest boughs, rich in autumnal tints, attested appreciation of the occasion.

Mr. Grayot made the opening speech in his happiest style. No one will say that John Grayot cannot attempt to make a political speech. Politics is his native heath and a political contest is to him an inspiration. He made the speech of the afternoon as regard graphic description, poignant satire, good humored anecdotes and eloquent and logical appeal. A man who can thus assail an opposing party when vested with authority stands as a menace justly dreaded by criminals.

Judge Gordon dealt largely with finances and made a strong speech for his party.

Mr. Butler in a short closing speech showed an earnest of an unusual ability as a public speaker. The addresses seemed to be well received by the people, and here is wishing that speakers of like ability will come this way again and oft.

A child of John Smith of Dawson, died of measles and was brought to Grove Chapel for burial.

Will Begin in the next issue of THE PRESS November 5th

READERS of fiction have pronounced this story to be one of the best ever put forth by an American writer. It is a story of the early times in the West when the hardy settlers had to contend with the country's native population. The heroine is a remarkably attractive character and her experiences are unusual, often times exciting and always interesting. We have purchased the serial rights and our readers are to have the privilege of perusing this masterpiece in these columns.
