DEEP MINING AT THE OLD JIM.

The Lucile to Have a Loading Track—New Homes Going up All Over Marion—More Carbonate at Lola—Sales and Transfers.

THE JOPLIN LEAD AND ZINC MARKET

A very pleasant, toothsome rice pudding, served at lunch one day last week, reminds us that we no longer have to depend upon either Egypt or South Carolina for that appetite destroyer. Probably three fifths of the people of the world make of rice a part or all of their daily food. We admire rice for three or four hundred meals, but do not think it advisable as a steady diet. We dislike to say this as it may wound the feelings of Press Maxwell, who some months ago, purchased several hundred acres of rice land in Texas. The other day he sold a portion of his holdings at just fifty per cent advance over the purchase price four months ago. Six thousand dollars for three thousand in four months would induce almost any one to regard rice as the coming breakfast food.

A new era was reached last week in the history of the Old Jim mine. Ever since the discovery of this remarkable vein of zinc ore the shipments have been large and constant. Week by week car loads of ore, both sulphide and carbonate of zinc, have been sent to the reduction works at Mineral Point, Wis., and Wenden, Ill. Last week it was decided by the owners, Blue & Nunn, to commence the sinking of a double compartment working shaft. Steam will take the place of gasoline, heavy machinery installed, and levels run at the proper depths. A typical Virginia city mine will be the result, with clean cut zinc ore, instead of gold and silver, but the returns will be in the same kind of greenbacks.

The Lucile Mining company, having its mining plant a short distance south of the railroad station in Marion, has decided to build a side track from the main line of the Illinois Central for car loading purposes. Their mining property is probably 100 feet from the passing track of the I. C., but the railroad authorities having in mind the numerous accidents to runaway cars on side tracks, have decided to use extra precautions to prevent anything of the kind on this road. It will really be of service to the Lucile people, inasmuch as their large output of zinc, lead and fluorspar can then be shipped so much faster and cheaper.

The Columbia mine and separating plant is utilizing the full capacity of the jigs, some 30 tons daily. It does not seem to require very much of an effort to keep the ore bins full from the extremely strong vein at 180 feet depth. It is to be regretted that the original idea of a 50 ton daily capacity plant was not carried out. With another level run this plant will likely be increased to 100 tons and then something will be doing worth talking about. Judging from the car load shipments of zinc and galena concentrates that are being made, Robert Drescher even now doesn't have much time to devote to social functions.

The Kentucky Fluorspar company are now mining and hauling to their three reserve shipping points at Marion, Crayneville and Mexico, some two hundred tons daily. In ordinary type two hundred tons doesn't seem so much, but when one takes into consideration the many drawbacks, the breakdowns of the wagons hauling, the bad roads and the hundred and one obstacles that are daily met and conquered by their mining manager, Mr. Harry Watkins, it seems like a mighty big pile of stuff. The shipments out by this company are so large that the winter reserve grows but slowly.

The Glendale Mining company, under the management of Mr. Walker of Morganfield, have in contemplation the securing of a most valuable developed property to add to their recent acquisition in the Crittenden Springs neighborhood. It goes without saying that a producing, shipping mine tacked on to such a valuable prospective property as is owned by the Glendale company, would not only enhance the value of its shares many times, but would furnish from the shipping profits plenty of means to make such developments on its original purchase.

The Pittsburg Mining and Manufacturing company, operating the Ebbie Hodge lease, are mining considerable fluorspar, and shipping it from the Crayneville station. This property is to some extent a puzzle in the makeup of its fluorspar deposits. Fluorspar seems to be extraordinarily prevalent on various portions of the surface, but at our last reports the regular defined vein of that mineral had not been prospected. Old man Uren's idea of mining could be followed here with advantage. "Never let go of a seam of ore. Follow it, if it leads you to church," or words to that effect.

The development being made on what is termed the zinc shaft near the big cave on one of the Crittenden Mining company's properties is most promising. At the present depth the sulphide of zinc or Jack is strongly disseminated throughout the three or four feet of calc or tuff that compresses the pay streak. This zinc ore is of splendid character, practically a pure resin Jack, and will assay in metallic zinc about 60 per cent. It looks as if this property would become one of the greatest zinc producers of the district as no lead or fluorspar is visible. Zinc alone being the ore.

The influx of new men into the district during the past few days has been somewhat remarkable, both on account of their social, as well as their financial standing. The hotels and livery stables have been worked over time to provide for these strangers, while the banks have opened new accounts to be devoted to mining purposes, almost daily. It is a most happy augury for the future of Western Kentucky.

The Holly mine, operated by the Mineral Point, (Wis.) Zinc company, is owned in fee by the Kentucky Fluor Spar company. It is quite a noted producer of fluor spar, although the main shaft, at 70 feet seemed to show much more zinc blende and calc spar than any thing else. This has continued as depth was made until at present zinc ore seems to have almost entirely taken the place of other minerals. A steam hoist, steam drills and the usual deep mining machinery are in use, and Supt. Persons is beginning to talk somewhat strongly of what the Holly is doing in zinc.

George Sullenger, of Irma, is becoming interested in a mining way in that section, which is in the immediate neighborhood of several most promising properties. His samples of lands and earths from his own lands would if nearer a railroad be shipping propositions. If those Illinois Central "taps," as the genial Harwood terms them, are ever built, that is if they are built before another geological age takes the place of the present one, and five or six million years will likely make the change, these lands and earths can be handled with considerable profit.

The many new buildings being erected in various parts of the city in East Marion, and on the outskirts, indicate a rapidly growing population. J. B. Clark of Sturgis, has ordered lumber and material for a model little home on Oak Avenue in the Reed addition. This breaking the ground for a home for Mr. Clark will probably be followed by several other lot owners. A start once made in a building way in that direction will have a very beneficial effect on all business lines in the city.

A new shaft on what will probably be found to be the permanent fluorspar vein on the widow Corn property will be established by the Givens Brothers of Providence. The tonnage of fluor spar already delivered to the railroad from the Corn mine has been of considerable magnitude. With the proposed heavy machinery to be installed there and the uncovering of carbonate of zinc, this property will be a winner from Winnerville.

The highest price reported paid for zinc at Joplin last week was $38 per ton for a few choice lots with the assay basis ranging from $33 to $35 per ton of 60 per cent. zinc. There was an unusually heavy sale of lead, especially from the Webb Cartersville portion of the district at $56 per ton. A year ago zinc sold at $38.50 and lead at $50 per ton. Total sales for the week: zinc, $115,505; lead, $33,810. Total, $149,315.

A strike in the southern Colorado coal fields was made on Monday. Over 2,000 miners are out. The mines owned by the Colorado Fuel & Iron company were closed Saturday.

The Shenango tin mill, the largest plant of the kind in the world, resumed operations Monday at New-castle, Pa.

Seventy-four acres on the Larue vein, known as the Miller property, near Sheridan, was sold Monday by Persons & Watkins for $4,800, being about $65 per acre. The purchasers were Messrs. A. G. Roberts, of Henderson, A. L. Mosely, cashier Calhoun bank, Calhoun, Ky., A. D. Noe of Morganfield and Wm B. Noe, of California. Preparations are being made for immediate shipments of ore.

Stock in the Greer-Marble company is selling in Paducah at 10 cents on the dollar.

The survey of the new railroad from Gallatin to Rosi Claire, Ill., was completed last week.

A party of Wheatcrofters, headed by Col. Wheatcroft were joined at Marion Monday by Rev. Mr. Conway and Col. Roberts, and an inspection of mining property at Mexico was made.

ALICE OF OLD VINCENNES.

CHAPTER I.

UNDER THE CHERRY TREE.
UP to the days of Indiana's early statehood, probably as late as 1825, there stood, in what is now the beautiful little city of Vincennes on the Wabash, the decaying remnant of an old and curious gnarled cherry tree known as the Roussillon tree, the cerise de Monsieur Roussillon, as the French inhabitants called it, which as long as it lived bore fruit remarkable for richness of flavor and peculiar dark ruby depth of color. The exact spot where this noble old seedling from la belle France flourished, declined and died cannot be certainly pointed out, for in the rapid and happy growth of Vincennes many landmarks once notable, among them the cerise de Monsieur Roussillon, have been destroyed and the spots where they stood, once familiar to every eye in old Vincennes, are now lost in the pleasant confusion of the new town.

The old, twisted, gum-embossed cherry tree survived every other distinguishing feature of what was once the most picturesque and romantic place in Vincennes. Just north of it stood, in the early French days, a low, rambling cabin surrounded by rude verandas overgrown with grapevines. This was the Roussillon place, the most pretentious home in all the Wabash country. Its owner was Gaspard Roussillon, a successful trader with the Indians. He was rich, for the time and the place, influential to a degree, a man of some education, who had brought with him to the wilderness a bundle of books and a taste for reading.

It is not known just when Vincennes was first founded, but most historians make the probable date very early in the eighteenth century, somewhere between 1710 and 1730. In 1810 the Roussillon cherry tree was thought by a distinguished botanical letter writer to be at least fifty years old, which would make the date of its planting about 1760. Certainly, as shown by the time stamped family records upon which this story of ours is based, it was a flourishing and wide topped tree in the early summer of 1778, its branches loaded to drooping with luscious fruit. So low did the dark red clusters hang at one point that a tall young girl standing on the ground easily reached the best ones and made her lips purple with their juice while she ate them.

That was long ago, measured by what has come to pass on the gentle swell of rich country from which Vincennes overlooks the Wabash. The new town flourishes notably and its appearance marks the latest limit of progress. Electric cars in its streets, electric lights in its beautiful homes, the roar of railway trains coming and going in all directions, bicycles whirling hither and thither, the most fashionable styles of equipages from broughams to pony phaetons, make the days of flintlock guns and buckskin trousers seem ages down the past, and yet we are looking back over but a little more than 120 years to see Alice Roussillon standing under a cheery tree and holding high a tempting cluster of fruit, while a short humpbacked youth looks up with longing eyes and vainly reaches for it. The tableau is not merely rustic; it is primitive.

"Jump," the girl is saying in French. "Jump, Jean; jump high!"

"Yes, that was very long ago, in the days when women lightly braved what the strongest men would shrink from now."

Alice Roussillon was tall, lithe, strongly knit, with an almost perfect figure, judging by what the master sculptors carved for the form of Venus, but her face was comely and winning, if not absolutely beautiful; but the time and place were vigorously indicated by her dress, which was of coarse stuff and simply designed. Plainly she was a child of the American wilderness, a daughter of old Vincennes on the Wabash in the time that tried men's souls.

"Jump, Jean!" she cried, her face laughing with a show of cheek dimples, an arching of finely sketched brows and the twinkling of large blue gray eyes.

"Jump high and get them!"

While she waved her sun-browned hair and holding the cherries aloft, the breeze blowing fresh from the southwest tossed her hair so that some loose strands shone like ruffled flames.

The sturdy little humpbacked ditherer with surprising activity, but the treacherous brown hand went higher, so high that the combined altitude of his jump and the reach of his unnaturally long arms was over-coming. Again and again he sprang vainly into the air, comically like a long-legged, squat hooded frog.

"And you brag of your agility and strength, Jean," she laughingly remarked, "but you can't take cherries when they are offered to you. What a clumsy bungler you are!"

"I can climb and get some," he said, with a hideously happy grin, and immediately embraced the bole of the tree, up which he began scrambling almost as fast as a squirrel.

When he had mounted high enough to be extending a hand for a hold on a croch Alice grasped his leg near the foot and pulled him down, despite his clinging and struggling, until his hands clawed in the soft earth at the tree's root, while she held his captive leg almost vertically erect.

It was a show of great strength, but Alice looked quite unconscious of it, laughing merrily, the dimples deepening in her plump cheeks, her forehead, now bared to the elbow, gleaming white and shapely, while its muscles rippled on account of the jerking and kicking of Jean.

All the time she was holding the cherry high in her other hand, shaking them by the twig to which their slender stems attached to them and saying in a sweetly tantalizing tone:

"What makes you climb downward after cherries, Jean? What a foolish fellow you are, indeed, trying to grab cherries out of the ground, as you do potatoes! I'm sure I didn't suppose that you knew so little as that."

Jean, the hunchback, was a muscular little deformity and a wonder of good nature. How long he might have kept up the hopeless struggle with the girl's invincible grip would be hard to guess. His release was caused by the approach of a third person, who wore the robe of a Catholic priest and the countenance of a man who had lived and suffered a long time without much loss of physical strength and endurance.

This was Pere Beret, grizzled, short, compact, his face deeply lined, his mouth decidedly askant on account of some lost teeth, and his eyes set deep under gray, shaggy brows. Looking at him when his features were in repose a first impression might not have been favorable; but seeing him smile or hearing him speak changed everything. His voice was sweetness itself, and his smile won you on the instant. Something like a pervading sorrow always seemed to be close behind his eyes and under his speech; yet he was a genial, sometimes almost jolly, man, very prone to join in the lighter amusements of his people.

"Children, children, my children," he called out as he approached along a little pathway leading up from the direction of the church, "what are you doing now? Bah there, Alice, will you pull Jean's leg off?"

At first they did not hear him, they were so nearly deafened by their own vocal discord.

"Why are you standing on your head with your feet so high in air, Jean?" he added. "It's not a polite attitude in the presence of a young lady. Are you a pig, that you poke your nose in the dirt?"

Alice now turned her bright head and gave Pere Beret a look of frank welcome, which at the same time shot a beam of willful self assertion.

"My daughter, are you trying to help Jean up the tree feet foremost?" the priest added, standing where he had halted just outside of the straggling yard fence.

He had his hands on his hips and was quietly chuckling at the scene before him, as one who, although old, sympathized with the natural and harmless sportiveness of young people and would as lief as not join in a prank or two.

"You see what I'm doing, Father Beret," said Alice. "I am preventing a great damage to you. You will maybe lose a good many cherry pies and dumplings if I let Jean go. He was climbing the tree to pliff the fruit, so I pulled him down, you understand."

"Jump high and get them!"

"En, ta!" exclaimed the good man, shaking his gray head; "we must reason with the child. Let go his leg, daughter, I will vouch for him; eh, Jean?"

Alice released the hunchback, then laughed gaily and tossed the cluster of cherries into his hand, whereupon he began munching them voraciously and talking at the same time.

"I knew I could get them," he boasted, "and see, I have them now." He hopped around, looking like a species of ill formed monkey.

Pere Beret came and leaned on the low fence close to Alice. She was almost as tall as he.

"The sun scorches today," he said, beginning to mop his furrowed face with a red flowered cotton handkerchief,

"and from the look of the sky yonder," pointing southward, "it is going to bring on a storm. How is Mme. Roussillon today?"

"She is complaining as she usually does when she feels extremely well," said Alice. "That's why I had to take her place at the oven and bake pies. I got hot and came out to catch a bit of this breeze. Oh, but you needn't smile and look greedy, Pere Beret, the pies are not for your teeth!"

"My daughter, I am not a glutton, I hope. I had meat not two hours since—some broiled young squirrels with cream, sent me by Rene de Ronville. We never forgets his old father."

"Oh, I never forget you either, mon pere. I thought of you today every time I spread a crust and filled it with cherries, and when I took out a pie, all brown and hot, the red juice bubbling out of it so good smelling and tempting, do you know what I said to myself?"

"How could I know, my child?"

"Well, I thought this: 'Not a single bite of that pie does Father Beret get.'"

"Why so, my daughter?"

"Because you said it was bad of me to read novels, and told Mother Roussillon to hide them from me. I've had any amount of trouble about it."

"Ta, ta! Read the good books that I gave you. They will soon kill the taste for these silly romances."

"I tried," said Alice. "I tried very hard, and it's no use. Your books are dull and stupidly heavy. What do I care about something that a queer lot of saints did hundreds of years ago in times of plague and famine? Saints must have been pious people, and it is pious people who care to read about them, I think. I like reading about brave, heroic men and beautiful women, and war and love."

Pere Beret looked away with a curious expression in his face, his eyes half closed.

"And I'll tell you now, Father Beret," Alice went on after a pause, "no more claret and pies do you get until I can have my own sort of books back again to read as I please." She stamped her moccasin shod foot with decided energy.

The good priest broke into a hearty laugh, and taking off his cap of grass straw, mechanically scratched his bald head.

Although, as Father Beret had said, the sun's heat was violent, causing that gentle soul to pass his bundled handkerchief with a wiping circular motion over his bald and bedewed pate, the wind was momentarily freshening, while up from behind the trees on the horizon beyond the river a cloud was rising blue black, tumbled and grim against the sky.

"Well," said the priest, evidently trying hard to exchange his laugh for a look of regretful resignation, "you will have your own way, my child, and—"

"Then you will have pies galore and no end of claret!" she interrupted, at the same time stepping to the withe tied and peg latched gate of the yard and opening it. "Come in, you dear, good father, before the rain shall begin, and sit with me on the gallery" (the creole word for veranda) "till the storm is over."

There was not a photographer's camera to be had in those days, but what if a tourist with one in hand could have been there to take a snap shot at the priest and the maiden as they walked arm in arm to that squat little veranda! The picture today would be worth its weight in a first water diamond. It would include the cabin, the cherry tree, a glimpse of the raw, wild background and a sharp portrait group of Pere Beret, Alice and Jean the hunchback. Each of us can see them, even with closed eyes. Led by that wonderful guide, imagination, we step back a century and more to look over a scene at once strangely attractive and unspeakably forlorn.

What was it that drew people away from the old countries, from the cities, the villages and the vineyards of beautiful France, for example, to dwell in the wilderness, amid wild beasts and wilder savage Indians, with a rude cabin for a home and the exposures and hardships of pioneer life for their daily experience?

Men like Gaspard Roussillon are of a distinct stamp. Take him as he was. Born in France, on the banks of the Rhone near Arignon, he came as a youth to Canada, whence he drifted the tide of adventure this way and that, until at last he found himself, with a wife, at Post Vincennes, that lonely plect of religion and trade which was to become the center of civilizing energy for the great northwestern territory. M. Roussillon had no children of his own; so his kind heart opened freely to two fatherless and motherless waifs. These were Alice, now called Roussillon, and the hunchback, Jean. The former was twelve years old when he adopted her, a child of Protestant parents, while Jean had been taken, when a mere babe, after his parents had been killed and scalped by Indians. Mme. Roussillon, a professional invalid, whose appetite never failed and whose motherly kindness expressed itself most often through strains of monotonous fassetto scolding, was a woman of little education and no refinement; while her husband clung tenaciously to his love of books, especially to the romances most in vogue when he took leave of France.

M. Roussillon had been, in a way, Alice's teacher, though not greatly inclined to abet Father Beret in his kindly efforts to make a Catholic of the girl, and most treacherously disposed toward the good priest in the matter of his well meant attempts to prevent her from reading and rereading the afore-said romances. But for many weeks past Gaspard Roussillon had been absent from home, looking after his trading schemes with the Indians, and Pere Beret, acting on the suggestion of the proverb about the absent cat and the playing mouse, had formed an alliance offensive and defensive with Mme. Roussillon, in which it was strictly stipulated that all novels and romances were to be forcibly taken and securely hidden away from Alice, which, to the best of Mme. Roussillon's ability, had accordingly been done.

Now, while the wind strengthened and the softly booming summer shower came on apace, the heavy cloud lifting as it advanced and showing under it the dark gray sheet of the rain, Pere Beret and Alice sat under the clapboard roof behind the vines of the veranda and discussed what was generally uppermost in the priest's mind upon such occasions, the good of Alice's immortal soul—a subject not absorbingly interesting to her at any time.

"Ah, my child," he was saying, "you are a sweet, good girl, after all, much better than you make yourself out to be. Your duty will control you. You will do it nobly at last, my child."

True enough, Father Beret, true enough! she responded, laughing. "Your perception is most excellent, which I will prove to you immediately."

She rose while speaking and went into the house.

"I will return in a minute or two," she called back from a region which Pere Beret well knew was that of the pantry. "Don't get impatient and go away!"

Pere Beret laughed softly at the preposterous suggestion that he would even dream of going out in the rain, which was now roaring heavily on the loose board roof, and miss a cut of cherry pie—a cherry pie of Alice's making! And the Roussillon claret, too, was always excellent. "Ah, child," he thought, "your old father is not going away."

She presently returned, bearing on a wooden tray a ruby stained pie and a short, stout bottle flanked by two glasses.

"Of course I'm better than I sometimes appear to be," she said almost humbly, but with mischief still in her voice and eyes, "and I shall get to be very good when I have grown old. The sweetness of my present nature is in this pie."

She set the tray on a three-legged stool which she pushed close to him.

"There, now," she said, "let the rain come. You'll be happy, rain or shine, while the pie and wine last, I'll be bound."

Pere Beret fell to eating right heartily, meantime thanking Jean a liberal piece of the luscious pie.

"It is good, my daughter, very good, indeed," the priest remarked with his mouth full. "Mme. Roussillon has not neglected your culinary education."

Alice filled a glass for him. It was Bordeaux and very fragrant. The bouquet reminded him of his sunny boyhood in France, of his journey up to Paris and of his careless, joy brimming youth in the gay city. How far away, how misty, yet how thrillingly sweet it all was! He sat with half closed eyes awhile, sipping and dreaming.

The rain lasted nearly two hours, but the sun was out again when Pere Beret took leave of his young friend. They had been having another good natured quarrel over the novels, and Mme. Roussillon had come out on the veranda to join in.

"I've hidden every book of them," said madame, a stout and swarthy woman, whose pearl white-teeth were her only mark of beauty. Her voice indicated great stubbornness.

"Good, good; you have done your very duty, madame," said Pere Beret, with immense approval in his charming voice.

"But, father, you said awhile ago that I should have my own way about this," Alice spoke up with spirit, "and

YOUR KIDNEYS ARE THEY WELL?

Unless they are, good health is impossible.

Every drop of blood in the body passes through and is filtered by healthy kidneys every three minutes. Sound kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood, diseased kidneys do not, hence you are sick. FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE makes the kidneys well so they will eliminate the poisons from the blood. It removes the cause of the many diseases resulting from disordered kidneys which have allowed your whole system to become poisoned.

Rheumatism, Bad Blood, Gout, Gravel, Dropsy, Inflammation of the Bladder, Diabetes and Bright's Disease, and many others, are all due to disordered Kidneys. A simple test for Kidney disease is to set aside your urine in a bottle or glass for twenty-four hours. If there is a sediment or a cloudy appearance, it indicates that your kidneys are diseased, and unless something is done they become more and more affected until Bright's Disease or Diabetes develops.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is the only preparation which will positively cure all forms of Kidney and Bladder troubles, and cure you permanently. It is a safe remedy and certain in results.

If You are a sufferer, take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once. It will make you well.

Some Pronounced Incurable

Mr. G. A. Stillson, a merchant of Tampico, Ill., writes: "FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is meeting with wonderful success. It has cured some cases here that physicians pronounced incurable. I myself am able to testify to its merits. My face today is a living picture of health and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE has made it such."

Had Lumbago and Kidney Trouble

Edward Huss, a well known business man of Salisbury, Mo., writes: "I wish to say for the benefit of others, that I was a sufferer from lumbago and kidney trouble, and all the remedies I took gave me no relief. I began to take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE, and after the use of three bottles I am cured."

on the strength of the fact that yours I gave you the pie and wine. You've eaten my pie and swigged the wine, and now—"

Pere Beret put on his straw cap, adjusting it carefully over the shining dome out of which had come so many thoughts of wisdom, kindness and human sympathy. This done, he gently laid a hand on Alice's bright crown of hair and said:

"Bless you, my child. I will pray to the Prince of Peace for you as long as I live, and I will never cease to beg the Holy Virgin to intercede for you and lead you to the holy church."

He turned and went away, but when he was no farther than the gate Alice called out:

"Oh, Father Beret, I forgot to show you something!"

She ran forth to him and added in a low tone:

"You know that Mme. Roussillon has hidden all the novels from me."

She was fumbling to get something out of the loose front of her dress.

"Well, just take a glance at this, will you?" and she showed him a little leather bound volume, much cracked along the hinges of the back.

Pere Beret frowned and went his way shaking his head, but before he reached his little hut near the church he was laughing in spite of himself.

"She's not so bad, not so bad," he thought aloud; "it's only her young, independent spirit taking the bit for a wild run. In her sweet soul she is as good as she is pure."

The financial statement of Crittenden county is one for the officials to be proud of. Notwithstanding the substantial property the county has invested in recently—in way or new jail and new iron bridges—we find that the levy of this year will wipe out practically all the county's debts, a small pittance of twenty odd hundred dollars being absolutely all the county of Crittenden owes. This is a safe and conservative way for it to be and the Press congratulates the financial board of the county for the fine condition we find ourselves in.

Little Folks' Corner.

For Children Under 12.

IN THE DARK.

My nurse pushed the button that puts out the light. Because I was naughty, she said, tonight. But what do I care if I cannot see, With every one looking so cross at me? Now the Man-in-the-Moon is looking down, And even his face seems to wear a frown. I wish my mother would come in soon And push the button that puts out the man!

THE PACKAGE GAME

A good amusement for young folk's party is the "package game." After the children are assembled each one is given a large, neatly wrapped package. Of course, it is addressed to him or her to whom it is handed. The receiver opens it eagerly, only to find that inside is another wrapper addressed to another member of the party. This causes much fun in the exchange and in the surprise. As many wrappings may be inside as the hostess cares to have, but in the last is a little gift appropriate to the real recipient. Each wrapper bears a new name.

WHAT DO OUR BOYS READ?

Does the school boy of today know any thing of Longfellow, Holmes, Whittier, James Russell Lowell and Fitz Greene Halleck, whose poems his father or even his elder brother, can still recite? He is such a superior young person that he hesitates to question him as to what he really knows and what he has put behind him as belonging to a past age. One often wonders whether he has abandoned the habit of reading everything except the current periodicals and popular novels. If the worthies just mentioned and others of their day have been laid on the shelf, so far as educational purposes are concerned, who are their successors? The modern school education is unquestionably a great advancement over that of even twenty years ago, yet it is not possible that in some ways its attitude is a little too inconclusive. Conservatism and clinging to traditions are, in their way, excellent habits for a commercial people, and we should be sorry to see the boy of today grow up entirely ignorant of all those things which make fragrant the memories of our own school days.—Harper's Weekly.

Mary wore a patent bustle, Known as the Shamrock kind, For whether Mary walked or ran The bustle stayed behind.

MEASLES HIS STANDARD.

Harry, the five-year-old son of a candidate for a local office, was told that his father had got the nomination, and, running into the house, he exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, Mr. Smith says papa's got the nomination! Is that worse than the measles?"

Answer to last week's puzzle: "What is the difference between a jeweler and a jailer?" "One watches cells and the other sells watches." First correct answer was received from Mark N. Foley, Lola, Ky., and he gets the prize.

Other good answers were received from Earl Rankin, Mildred Trisler, Edna Schoolcraft, Robert Jenkins, Susie Boston, Dixie Trisler, Madeline Jenkins, Maurie Boston, Eva Daniels, Marion Addie Carter, Levas.

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

MRS. CECILIA STOWE,
Orator, Entre Nous Club.

176 Warren Avenue,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 22, 1902.
For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation.
My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine
Cardui for me to try, and he did.
I began to improve in a few days & my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

Mrs. Stowe's letter shows every woman how a home is saddened by female weakness and how complete Wine of Cardui cures that sickness and brings health and happiness again. Do not go on suffering. Go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

RAMBLING THOUGHTS.

EDITOR PRESS: We have been thinking, as these beautiful autumn days come and go, bringing nearer to that time of christian charity, Christmas, of the Crittenden county of today and of thirty years ago. The writer has been here and has seen all of the changes, and they are many, yes very many. We had occasion last week to spend an hour at the I. C. depot at Marion, and we could hardly believe our eyes. Where only a few years ago stood a cornfield, now this same land is covered with fine residences, with a big railroad depot that puts one in mind of towns that number two to three times the inhabitants, with the hub of hundreds of wagons coming in loaded with all kinds of marketing to be shipped to all parts of the civilized world, while others are loading with merchandise to be shipped to all parts of this and adjoining counties; while the country is not a bit behind the town in her improvements.

Where only a few years ago the old broom sedge field, with its old worn out worm fence, with fence corners covered with briars and bushes greeted the eye, now what do we see? We see that same old field with an up-to-date woven wire fence, briars and bushes all gone, and instead of the broom sedge we see the same old field growing grass and clover and covered with fine graded stock.

Where thirty years ago one might hear one steam whistle now them on all sides, not only from the finest of flour and corn mills, but from the mining plants scattered over this and our sister county of Livingston.

And what about times financially? Where a few years ago our best farmers depended almost entirely on their little crop of tobacco to pay their store and doctor bills, and two to one the farmer had to execute his note to his merchant or his doctor for the balance due, the crop not bringing enough to pay said debts, now look at our farmers. One third if not one half are out of debt and have money on deposit in one of our many banks now doing a flourishing business in our towns.

Not only this, a few years ago our children done well to get to go to school three months in the year. Now take a look at our big graded school at Marion. Two-thirds of our farmers' families are represented at this fine school by one or more from the same farmers' families, where they are fitting their sons and daughters to successfully fight the battle of life. One thing more. Look at our public roads. A few years ago it took a good span of horses to pull an empty wagon; now the same kind of team takes to market one and a half to two tons of goods.

Mr. Editor, in the future I may give a few more facts on the prosperity of our county.

FIRST DISTRICT

Teachers' Association to Meet at Paducah November 27-28.

The First District Educational Association meets in Paducah soon. The program is a good one. The Association is an old and historic one. It once led the state in interest and attendance, but due the apathy of teachers in our county and others there are younger associations surpassing us. Let us arouse ourselves. Teachers of advanced centers were never so active as now. Shall we not assert ourselves?

We can not excuse ourselves upon the ground of meager salaries. If there are not three hundred teachers in the First district that rate themselves above mere money then the people of this district are frightfully cheated. If you let six or seven dollars, which this trip may cost, chain you then you have found your estimate. Let us claim a greater strength and the people will accord it to us.

Of all the men responsible for the success or defeat of such an educational movement as the F. D. E. A. the county superintendent stands foremost. The teachers will not march without a captain. They will follow a live superintendent. The superintendent of the county of Crittenden will do his duty without a doubt.

Come and hear Dr. Jenkins of Kentucky University and mark how strong a young teacher may be. Listen to other men and women. Let us get a measure of ourselves by other than our own rules.

The Association needs you. You need it more do you not? Come, in the name of the child. Come.

A Good Name.
From personal experience I testify that DeWitt's Little Early Risers are unequalled as a liver pill. They are rightly named because they give strength and energy and do their work with ease.—W. T. Easton, Boerne, Texas. Thousands of people are using these tiny little pills in preference to all others, because they are so pleasant and effectual. They cure biliousness, torpid jaundice, sick headache, constipation, etc. They do not purge and weaken, but cleanse and strengthen. Sold by all druggists.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Appoints Thursday, Nov. 26 a Day of Thanksgiving.

Washington, Nov. 3.—President Roosevelt has caused to be issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:
The season is at hand when according to the custom of our people it falls upon the president to appoint a day of praise and thanksgiving to God.

During the last year the Lord has dealt bountifully with us, giving us peace at home and abroad, and the chance for our citizens to work for their welfare unhindered by war, famine or plague. It behooves us not only to rejoice greatly because of what has been given us, but to accept it with a solemn sense of responsibility, realizing that under heaven it rests with us ourselves to show that we are worthy to use aright what has thus been entrusted to our care.

In no other place and at no other time has the experiment of government of the people by the people and for the people been tried on so vast a scale as here in our own country in the opening years of the Twentieth century.

Failure would not only be a dreadful thing for us, but a dreadful thing for all mankind, because it would mean loss of hope for all who believe in the power and the righteousness of liberty.

Therefore, in thanking God for the mercies extended to us in the past, we beseech him that he may not withhold them in the future and that our hearts be roused to war steadfastly for good and against all the forces of evil, public and private.

We pray for strength and light so that in coming years we may with cleanliness, fearlessness and wisdom do our allotted work on the earth in such manner as to show that we are not altogether unworthy of the blessings we have received.

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving Thursday, the 26th of the coming November, and do recommend that throughout the land people cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks unto Almighty God for his manifold mercies.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 31st day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and three, of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-eighth. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
By the president:
JOHN HAY, Sec'y. of State.

Novelty in Railroad Education.

The novel project of running a palatial special train from Chicago to New Orleans and return, a distance of nearly 2,000 miles, for the sole benefit of competitors, was successfully carried out by the officials of the Illinois Central Railroad last week. Nearly 100 general passenger agents and members of their families were the guests of the Illinois Central during the trip, everything, including musical entertainments in the observation car, being provided by the company. Had any one undertaken to purchase the service and entertainment provided, the cost would not have been far from $10,000. The train was, so to speak, an edition de luxe, the Pullman Company certifying that the new cars furnished were the finest ever manufactured by them, and the engineers and train crew were the most expert in the employ of the railroad company.

The novelty of the affair consists largely in the fact that a few years ago railroad companies strove to keep from competitors accurate knowledge of conditions along their lines of railroad. Excluding the complimentary, the main purpose of the Illinois Central expedition was to educate competing lines regarding the unexcelled transportation facilities possessed by that company, and the possibilities which lie in the development of the South. Although progressive men, the general passenger agents who were on the trip were amazed to learn that the Illinois Central now practically has a double track system all the way between Chicago and New Orleans and a rock ballasted roadbed, which is capable of accommodating an enormous volume of traffic. They were also surprised at the phenomenal commercial and industrial awakening which the South is experiencing, and they will spread the news regarding both facts for months to come.

In doing this they will be advertising the South most effectively and promoting travel there from every quarter of the country. Naturally the Illinois Central will get the benefit of this, for, in short, it has recruited a force of 100 live advertising agents from among the ranks of its active competitors. Under railroad methods in vogue prior to the era of "community of interests" such an undertaking would have been hailed as suicidal.—Chicago Record-Herald of Oct. 20, 1903.

ASYLUM PATIENT KILLED.

Joel P. Burton, aged sixty-eight, a patient at the Western Kentucky Asylum for the Insane, was accidentally shot and killed Saturday afternoon by J. W. Long, says the New Era.

"Daddy" Burton, as he was generally called, and Uncle Tom, another inmate of the institution, both trustees, were on the Elliot farm adjoining the asylum grounds hunting hickory nuts. Burton was up in the tree shaking branches and his companion was on the ground picking up nuts as they fell.

Mr. Long, who is seventy-eight years old, and has poor eyesight, was out hunting, and noticing the leaves move supposed there was a squirrel in the tree. He fired his shotgun, and the lead entered "Daddy" Burton's body. The old man cried several times to Uncle Tom: "O, he's filled me full of shot." A moment later his body crashed through the branches and struck the ground. When the body was examined it was found to be dead. It is not known whether the shot or fall killed him.

"Daddy" Burton was a native of Pulaski county and had been an inmate of the asylum for over thirty years. He was a general favorite at the institution.

Mr. Long came to Hopkinsville immediately after the accident and surrendered to the proper authorities, asking that a full investigation be made. The coroner's jury completely exonerated him and he was at once released from custody. Mr. Long is a kindly popular old gentleman and is prostrated by the distressing occurrence.

Corn is King.

The corn crop of the world last year was supposed to be about 2,500,000,000 bushels, of which the United States produced five sixths. The crop of this country loaded in wagons of fifty bushels each would form a compact train 125,000 miles long. It would girdle the earth five wagons abreast. If in single file, the head of the procession would go five times around the globe before it struck the tail end. If they started out at a rate of six wagons a minute, day and night, it would be fourteen years before the last wagon wheeled into line, and if they traveled at a rate of twenty-five miles per day, rain or shine, the head of the procession would arrive just in time to see the rear depart on its journey of 125,000 miles. It would be twenty-eight years from the time first started out until the last one was in and unhitched.—John Taylor of Trenton, N. J.

ORIGIN OF THE THIMBLE.

Thimbles were invented by a Dutchman and were first brought to England in 1695. In those early days it was the custom to wear them on the thumb, since corrupted into thimble. When known by the former name they were made of brass or iron, and it was left to a more luxurious age to get them manufactured of gold, silver, horn, glass and mother of pearl. These latter are to be found in China, exquisitely carved, and ornamented with rim and top of gold. In Italy thimbles are made of silver gilt, studded around the rim with turquoise.

DEEP MINING AT

The work on the T. C. Carte property, which is presumed to be a portion of the Columbia vein, by a Sturgis-Morganfield syndicate under the direction of Mr. Hope well, is reported to be in heavy fluor spar and lead. Mr. Hopewell says he has a six foot ore body carrying quite a percentage of galena.

Nearly a hundred tons of fluor spar has been mined and is ready to go forward from the Crittenden Mining company's "Hartington" property.

The cleaning machinery, in the shape of log washers, etc., with ample power, is being installed of the Miller carbonate property of the Marion Mineral company. Two or three cars of their carbonate of zinc will be shipped the week to make room on their dressing platform.

On the Mann carbonate property at Lela, a very large body of ore has been uncovered back of the Mann residence. This confirms length of ore body of several hundred yards at least, and as the Schwab-Bement carbonate property is on the same range, the Mann property seems to be one of the most extensive in the district.

Married the Entire Family.

John Newberry, of Tullahoma, Tenn., married the whole Barr family, consisting of a mother and her three daughters. However there was no bigamy committed for the marriages occurred one after another, as the members died.

First Mr. Newberry married Sallie Barron, a widow with the girls. Sallie died four years later leaving a son by Newberry.

In a few months Newberry married to Judy Barron, who survived for a time and passed away leaving a daughter. When the mourning period had expired Newberry asked Martha Barron if she would be his, and she fell into his arms. She too died, leaving their heir.

Then Newberry proposed to the last remaining member of the Barr family, Patsy. She was very sudden, but she will and the other day she and Newberry were united. Now she and her husband are trying to fight out the relationship of the Newberry children.

Honey Had Vanished.

A young Philadelphian who we may call Johnson, because it is not his name, was married several days ago, and it occurred to him that he would take his into an up-State town on honeymoon.

He was particularly desirous of visiting this town, as he told his bride, because at the hotel he intended staying "they served such delicious honey at the meal."

"That will be delightful," Mrs. Johnson.

The couple arrived at the hotel in due course, and they were in time for tea. Johnson escorted his bride proudly to a table in the dining room and then, after admiring glance at her, looked quizzically round the board.

There was no honey on the table, and none in the room. Johnson was surprised and called a waiter.

"See here," said he, "where is my honey?"

The waiter seemed at a loss to what to say, but finally leaned forward and in a stage whisper said, "She don't work here more."—Philadelphia Ledger.
