MINING NEWS

Livingston County Spar the Best in the World.

One of the most interesting possibilities of the sheet zinc trade is the use of copper, brass or nickel-plated sheets. Originally a German discovery, which was taken up by French manufacturers of sheet, the advent of such factories in the United States marked the opening of new possibilities for sheet zinc. Thus far the manufacture of plated sheets of zinc is confined in this country to Peru, Ill., in close proximity to the largest zinc rolling mill of the country. Nickel, brass or copper-plated zinc sheets, combining with the zinc a coating of pure nickel, brass or copper, by a special process and with the aid of machinery devised for this especial purpose, transforms the base metal into one of greater tensile strength. The new alloy is of peculiar value, being noted for its lustrous brightness and for the permanency of luster, possessing advantages over sheet brass and copper for a variety of purposes. The nickel is not merely a nickel or brass plated, for example, but is of such a union of zinc and the metal used in plating that it can be bent to the sharpest angles without breaking or injuring the finish. This particular qualification enhances its value to manufacturers of sheet metal goods, since at one process many articles can be made from these sheets. At present the principal avenues of consumption of these plated zinc sheets is in the manufacture of refrigerators, show cases, advertising signs, trays, and in a variety of trimmings and small goods. Being produced from sheet zinc with a small percentage of nickel, brass or copper, it can be sold much more cheaply than can sheets of these metals, and in many instances used with greater profit. The sheets are made in any gauge and in size 20x40 or 40x40, as desired, although it is possible to secure these sheets up to 36x108.—Lead and Zinc News.

A big vein of nickel and cobalt has been discovered in Crittenden county, and miners there are looking for more deposits, says Monday's Herald. One of the Crittenden county enthusiasts Col. C. S. Knight, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was at the Louisville Sunday night and says that in ten years Joplin will be outclassed in lead and zinc by the Kentucky counties. Col. Knight is president of the Marion Zinc company. He is on his way to Marion now, where a 200 ton concentrating plant is to be built by his company.

Col. King says that twice as much fluor spar is demanded as can be supplied. He says:

"In the east spar has been imported from foreign countries, but it is not as good quality as that found in Kentucky. Some spar has been found in Tennessee, but three-fourths of the fluor spar of the United States is mined in this state. In ten years Livingston, Crittenden, Caldwell and Lyon counties will outrank anything that has ever been done in this county in mining of zinc.

"It is up to the miners to go before congress and try to have the spar interests protected. It now comes in from foreign countries at practically no cost, and it should be taken off the free list.

"In the district around Marion are to be found lead, zinc, spar, baryta (used for making paint, the adulteration of sugar and other things), ochre, nickel, cobalt, potter's clay, and the highest grade fire clay in the country. The nickel and cobalt were found a short time ago in Crittenden county at a depth of 105 feet, and there is quite a vein of it.

A patent has recently been issued to William Jamieson and Francis James Odlong, of Australia, on a process for the separation of zinc blende from ores. The ore is concentrated, and in sufficiently moist condition is subjected to the action of chlorine (which may be used in the form of gas or compound) and thereafter subjecting them to a vanning motion, which causes the particles to adhere to each other, forming small masses which become readily separable from the gangue. The use of chlorine for dissolving minerals is not new but is used in this process only for the purpose of attacking the surface of the particles and thereby aid in effecting a ready separation. The chlorine may be obtained by any well-known method or by electrolysis of the zinc chloride formed during the action, the electrolysis being carried on either in the same machine in which the chemical action takes place, the zinc being deposited on the cathode and the chloride formed at the anode being used for the treatment of fresh quantities of the ore.—Lead and Zinc News.

Chemists, steel workers, acid manufacturers, glass manufacturers, car wheel works, iron foundries, pottery and china manufacturers all use the Flour Spar. Flour Spar is the finest flux known for metals and refractory ores, it lessens the loss of metal, it eliminates largely sulphur and phosphorus, it saves time and fuel, improves the quality of the metal, keeps the cupola or furnace clean. Foundry men find it invaluable for use in the cupola. It greatly improves the metal for casting, it renders the iron gray, soft and tough, it enables them to use a low grade of iron. Glass manufacturers are among the largest consumers of Flour Spar, it is used by the most progressive and successful manufacturers. Producers of Hydrofluoric acid will appreciate the quality of our Flour Spar.

WANTS NEW COUNTY.

The Providence Enterprise wants a new county formed with Providence as the county seat. It says: "Here is a hint for the legislature while it is in the new county formation business: Cut off a part of the west side of Hopkins county, and a slice off the east end of Crittenden and Caldwell counties, and form a new county with Providence as the county seat. Give us the new county, gentlemen, and you may name it what you please."

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Despondency, Prompted by Shame Causes Young Woman to Take Her Life.

RODNEY, Ky., Feb. 29.—A sensation has been created here on account of the death of a young woman on the Ohio river a few miles from here. Her death seems to have been caused by despondency, prompted by shame and disgrace. It appears that she deliberately shot herself on the morning of Feb. 24, and died the following night at about ten o'clock. It seems that no one witnessed the tragedy but her sister, Fannie, and a man named Williams.

A physician was summoned as soon as possible, but he found she had inflicted a mortal wound through the abdomen. She was conscious all the while and talked freely with the physician. The weapon used was a .38-calibre Smith & Wesson revolver. She declared that life had become unendurable to her and said that she had shot herself where she did in order to be able to live a few hours before death and testify as to the cause.

She said that her name was Lottie Dillman, and gave her age as 23; that she was born in New Albany, Ind., of highly respected parentage and lived there happily until about three years ago, when an unfortunate love affair effected her ruin, whereupon she deserted home and led a life that caused her father and mother to go to their graves. She has wandered up and down the river in a dirty little boat with some very bad characters until now.

The parties in the boat had infected the place for some time which had the effect of making it a rendezvous for vice of almost every description.

Squire Phillips was notified of the suicide and held an inquest Friday, the verdict being that "she came to death by her own hands." After this, arrangements were made and she was buried near Bell's mines. It is declared that she exhibited marked traits of culture, using language which showed that she had been well educated. Her symmetrical proportions and finely cut features made it apparent she had been of a very handsome appearance.

The point where the boat was stationed was what is known as Bell's old tippie, from which coal was loaded on barges during the Civil War. The man who said that his name was Williams has skipped, evidently fearing arrest. The other woman left Sunday for Owensboro.

FOR GOOD ROADS.

Four States, New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Connecticut, have in the past ten years spent about $10,000,000 as State aid for building wagon roads. About $6,000,000 has been added to this sum by the counties and towns in which the state roads were built, and about 2,500 miles of railroads have been completed in those four States. Pennsylvania last year appropriated $6,500,000 for the building of State roads. Wherever the State roads have been built the selling price of farm lands has been increased from 20 per cent to 30 per cent, and even more in some cases. The 2,500 miles of State roads already built have been of such benefit to the farmer that they have caused a great demand for more good roads. Five States found it good to aid in the building of wagon roads by a State appropriation. Why should not the national government aid in building roads in every State of the Union? Congressman Brownlow, of Tennessee, has answered this question by introducing in Congress a bill appropriating $34,000,000 as national aid for building good wagon roads. This sum is available at the rate of $8,000,000 a year for three years, and is distributed to each State according to its population except that no state shall receive less than $250,000. The States or counties receiving this money must add a like amount. This appropriation will build between 6,000 and 7,000 miles of splendid National road, and will build from 100 to 500 miles of hard road in each State of the Union. It seems to many farmers that the time for the National government to aid them, and they hope the bill will become a law.

JOHN H. HAYNES DIES.

John H. Haynes, for twenty-five years proprietor of a boat store at Cairo, and consequently very well known to river men from Pittsburgh to New Orleans, died on Thursday morning from a stroke of apoplexy, resulting from prolonged ill health. Mr. Haynes was 48 years of age, and was a son of E. P. Haynes, of Smithland, who is still living. In his youth Mr. Haynes was connected for many years with the Fowler's boat store at Paducah, and went from here to Cairo, where he has since resided.

Mr. Haynes was a widower, his wife having died five years ago. He left one daughter, Miss Anna Lake Haynes. He is survived also by two brothers, Kit Haynes, formerly of Cairo, now of Chicago, and Harry Haynes of Austin, Texas, and two sisters, Mrs. David Dunn of Smithland and Mrs. Frank Phillips of Paducah.—News-Democrat.

SHADY GROVE.

Our prayer meetings are among the things of the past.

The young people have been enjoying themselves socially; very good order has been preserved.

Lee Lemon has been visiting his brother at this place.

Dennie Hubbard, who has been sick in Marion, has returned to his home.

Attorney A. C. Moore, of Marion, was here on legal business last week.

Brent Horning has had tendered him a good position in Saint Louis.

Allen Rowland and Roy Towery are in Missouri. If our young men continue to go west, leaving the young girls behind them, the widowers and bachelors will have a chance.

We notice that Clifton's are again to the front with a special sale of embroideries and white goods. These special sales are a new feature in merchandising in Marion, and they certainly fill a long felt want. We have often thought that as Marion was fast becoming one of the best towns in Western Kentucky, that it should begin to offer us some of the advantages as a market that is offered by the large towns, and these special sales, where the people have an opportunity of buying goods at greatly reduced prices are one of the big advantages. This is MODERN MERCHANDISING. The day for 50, 75 and 100 per cent. profit and long time has passed, in all progressive countries, and it must and is fast becoming a yesterday in this country. We understand every special sale the Clifton's have had has been a great success, which not only shows our people appreciate and are ever ready to take advantage of a "good thing," but that the Cliftons have the confidence of the people; they know that if they promise big bargains they always give big bargains. "If you see it in Clifton's ad, it's true."

Miss Verna Todd, of Fredonia, is visiting here.

Mrs. Hubbard of Marion is here with her mother, Mrs. Campbell who is dangerously ill.

Rev Rowland and wife entertained the young people last Wednesday evening.

Miss Verna Todd will teach our spring school.

Eurie, the little son of Dr. Hodges, has pneumonia. We are glad to note that he is convalescent.

Will Joyce is down with the measles.

W. H. Towery has in his new buggies, ready for the spring and summer trade.

The work on the Baptist church has been suspended temporarily. Rev J. S. Henry is the pastor.

Our churches are prospering under the leadership of their efficient pastors.

America's Outlook!

Virgil Y. Moore's oration on which he was awarded the gold medal, delivered on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22nd, 1904, at the Marion Opera House:

In this progressive day when telegraph and telephone and rapid transit are no longer the luxuries of a privileged few, but the necessary heritage of us all, it is permitted the most humble to know of the deeds that are crowning history's pages and making life's great volume. And on this day dedicated by America to sacred meditation, of patriotic duty, it would be unnatural, if, in recounting adventures of the past, we should not try to clear away the mists and behold the future.

A really great nation is the grandest object which this world exhibits. The heavens in their magnificence, the ocean in its sublime immensity, mountains standing firm upon their granite foundations are less imposing than a living nation in possession of all its faculties.

VIRGIL Y. MOORE.

It is of such a nation, and its future, that I speak tonight. We can judge the future only by the past. We see through the half drawn folds of time as through the solemn arch ways of a grand cathedral. We see Columbus with the jewels of a generous Queen as he plants the banner of Spain upon the land of "fruit and flowers," we see the camp fires of "The old continentals."

In their ragged regimentals, Yielding not. We see the rise of the young republic. It has been said that she walks up the steep and rugged pathway that leads to a higher civilization with glory and honor in her right hand and peace and plenty in her left. The storms of desolation and ruin have prevailed against her, but she has never wavered from the path of rectitude and right.

Nature has done much for America. It has placed her on a continent stretching through three zones, each reveling in luxuriant production of its own requisites. It has made harbors for her commerce. It has blessed her with a fertile Mississippi valley and a productive coast plain. It has given to the West her gold, silver and copper; to the North, her wonderful field of wheat; to the South, her fruit and her flowers; to the East, a magnificent water power. Yes, truly, nature has done much for America, but America has done more for herself. Progressive? Yes, she has done more in one century than England has done in six. Public opinion scorns the presumptuous thought that you can restrain this growing country within the narrow sphere of action originally assigned to its nascent energies and keep it eternally bound up in swaddles. As the infant grows it requires a more substantial nourishment. So the lusty appetite of its manhood would ill fare with what might satisfy the soberer demands of its youth. Do not, therefore attempt to stop it on its onward career; for as well might you command the sun not to break through the fleecy clouds that herald its advent on the horizon, or to shroud its self in gloom and darkness as it ascends the meridian.

The childhood shows the man as the morning shows the day. Hannibal, standing before the Punic altar fires, and in the hissing accents of childhood swearing eternal hatred to Rome, was the same Hannibal at twenty four years commanding the army that swept down upon Italy like a mountain torrent and shook the power of the mistress of the world, bid her defiance at her own gates, while affrightened Rome huddled and cowered beneath the protecting shadows of her walls.

Napoleon, building snow forts at school and planning mimic battles with his play fellows, was the victor of Toulon at twenty four and last Emperor, with his foot on the throat of prostrate Europe. Alexander, daring more in his boyhood than his warlike father could teach him, and entering upon all his conquering career at twenty-four was the boy whose vaulting ambition only paused in its dazzling flight when the world lay at his feet. And America, fighting with unexampled bravery and heroism, for her own freedom, was the same America who, one hundred and twenty-five years later gave her best citizens to free down trodden Cuba from the hands of tyrannizing Spain. We may have a glorious outlook in some things, but in none such as our government. America has become the liberty giver of the globe.

Hawaii, a lone island in a sea full of storms, likely to be swallowed at any moment by the monstrous sharks of Europe, stretched forth her hand to the United States, like a babe to its mother, and was kindly received and given such protection as only a world power can give. Porto Rico, deprived of civil rights and political liberty, excluded from all places of trust, honor and profit, burdened with an intolerable taxation to support an army and navy to make the chains and fetters of their bondage more secure; called for assistance; that call was answered by none other than America. Such has been our past, can our future be otherwise?

As a nation, America will ever stand as the mighty power of strength which can not be subverted. Envy, detraction and persecution are missiles hurled against her only to fall harmless at her feet, and to strengthen what they can not overthrow. She stands alone in her circumstances, her forces, her possibilities and her aspirations.

My friends, I do not mistrust the future. Dangers have been in frequent ambush along our path, but we have uncovered and vanished them all. Passion has swept some of our communities but only to give us a new demonstration that the great body of our people are patriotic and law abiding. I have an abiding confidence that the God of our fathers will be the God of our children—that he will be our God; that he will graciously enable us to preserve that glorious fabric which his mercy and his goodness, not the might and strength of our ancestors, enabled them to construct.

"Thou too sail on, O Ship of State, Sail on, O Union strong and great. Humanity with her fears, with all her hopes of future years, Is hanging, breathless, on thy fate." I have seen the light that gleamed from the nead light of some giant engine rushing onward through the darkness, heedless of opposition, fearless of danger, and I thought it was glorious. I have seen the light come over the Eastern hills in beauty driving the hazy darkness like mist before a sea born gale, till leaf and blade of grass glittered in the myriad diamonds of the morning ray, and I thought it was glorious. I have seen the light that leaped at midnight athwart the storm swept sky, shivering over chaotic clouds, mid howling winds, till cloud and darkness and the shadowed earth flashed into mid day splendor, and I knew it was glorious. But the most glorious thing next to the radiance that flows from the Almighty throne is the light of a noble and true citizenship, wrapping its self in benedictions round the destinies of a nation, and exclaiming in one grand chorus, "America, first, America last, America always."

Putnam and His Plow

The oration of Miss Ethel Hard which took second medal at the Opera House February 22nd:

Among the visions which come trooping at the call of memory it would be difficult to choose that picture which portrays fairest and truest, American patriotism.

The hero of the hour! In himself what a figure. America's cloud capped mountains are voiced in his titan frame. As he sits on his charger, no Virginia poplar, more lithe and graceful. His brow the match of Jove's. His eyes the eagles in war, in peace a child's, his mind, his career, his all, what can be more American?

Yet, we behold around about that haloed figure, a field replete with great deeds and splendid men. Far out beyond him stretch the scenes of the Revolution.

There is Ethan Allen and his "Green mountain boys" storming the portals of

MISS ETHEL HARD.

Ticonderoga. Yonder is a council chamber, where a declaration is being written which will destroy thrones, immortalize a Jefferson, and forever be a daystar among liberty loving humanity in all lands.

Trenton with its glorious victory for an almost discouraged country! Valley Forge with its patient fortitude. Brandywine and Lafayette with his brotherly love, Saratoga and Cowpens with their brilliant victories under Greene and Arnold, Yorktown and English redcoats marching to the tune of "Yankee Doodle," all how splendid, how patriotic.

But in searching for a portrayal of that spirit which most typifies America and Americans, then and now, I turn away from all this, and point you to Putnam and his plow.

The edicts of King George had gone forth that America should not only be taxed, but that her rights, the rights and love of freedom which God had given her, should be trampled beneath a tyrannizing, a cruel, and enslaving government.

His minions dared, but dared too much, and when on that April morning injury was added to insult and Lexington common strewn with the bodies of the first martyrs of the Revolution the very air vibrated with the news.

"Ho, horseman!" shouts the farmer from his field, "what news from Boston town?" "Our brothers' life blood has already stained the soil, the struggle has commenced!"

There in farmer's garb stands Israel Putnam, the volunteer soldier, the minute man of the Revolution. Instantly his decision is reached. His country is in peril, go he must, and go now! An instant more and he is upon his horse and away to the cry of his country. There stands his plow in the field, left as a witness of its owner's freedom, and his readiness to fly instantly to her aid, at her first cry of distress.

Not as Israel Putnam alone, do I wish to bring him before you, but as a type of that greatest source of a nation's good, the common people. As courage, enterprise, activity and perseverance were the first characteristics of this man's character, so are they typical of the class from which he arose.

The minute man, the volunteer! Oh, what our country owes to you! Ever ready, always willing, never behind time, with self possession and clearness of conception, your heroism and sacrifice have made the nation. You have loved and followed the flag for what it is, and for what it represents, because it embodies the purpose and the history and the achievements of the country itself.

From the time of our Revolutionary forefathers, who bought the country by their blood and who first planted a free government upon this continent and dedicated it to liberty forever, through the perilous times of civil strife, the courage and valor of our volunteer soldier has given to him a nation's love.

No one can rob him of his laurels, no man can lessen the measure of his fame! We will never cease to sing peans in his honor, and even the wrath of his enemies may be counted in his praise.

And as we doff our hats to Israel Putnam and the volunteer American soldier, let us not forget that the farm has been in chief his home.

He has not lived in ignoble ease, but his has always been a life of toil and effort, of labor and strife, not the man who desires more easy peace, but the man who does not shrink from danger, from hardship, or from bitter toil; "whose heart and life is pure, whose eye is simple and his walk sure."

He stays on the farm and tills his acres when his country's urgent call sends him not elsewhere. Unaffected by life's tempest he toils and works on, the nation's bulwark, the nation's defense, the nation's life—ah, no! the nation itself!

All of our prosperity, all of our greatness, all of our world-power, we owe to him. By his industry and wealth he has caused it, from his love and care it grew, and only by him can it be kept.

Like a strong monarch of the forest, the branches and leaves spread in bold outline against the sky, are but the result, the product of the sturdy trunk beneath.

And if ever its roots become affected with disease, if the body, riven by lightning, or uprooted by storm, should fall to the ground, then the nation, this nation, our nation, shall fall with it to ruin and decay.

A nation may be produced by war, but something greater and stronger than the strongest of armies must hold it together, must constitute its greatness, its good and its power. When the great masses neglect the plow for the rifle or the sword, then the nation falls. So came the ruin of Rome and Greece; so came the decay of Spain! God grant that the people of our own country may never commit the same error. For as long as the people over the whole length and breadth of our land turn to the plow and their native soil for the means of life, as long as we say to ourselves, "this is mine allotted home, I will make of her a home of beauty, and with my individual strength constitute her strength," then will the nation continue to grow and prosper.

"Mankind has but one single object, mankind itself," the prayer then of every nation should be, "God give us men."

"Not high-raised battlements, or labored mound, Thick walls or moated gate; Not cities proud, with spires and towers crowned,

Not bays and broad armed ports, Where, laughing at the storm, rich navies ride;

Not starred and spangled courts, No! Men—high minded men; Men who their duties know, And know their rights, and knowing dare maintain;

Prevent the long aimed blow, And crush the tyrant while they rend the chain;

These constitute a state; And sovereign Law that with collected will,

On crowns and globes elate, Sits empress crowning good, repressing ill."

May our country's strength continue to be in the common people, the people who are ever ready in peace or war to supply their country's needs, who solve her problems with a steady adherence to what is right, a lofty patriotism sinking the individual in consideration for the public good.

With firmness before the enemy, with strength before friends and humility before the Creator who disposes of all things. Proud of the privilege of defending the glory, honor and prestige of our country, presenting under the folds of the national ensign an unbroken phalanx of united hearts—an impregnable bulwark of defense against power that may arise against us.

May our nation be forever identified with the people, not the ease of wealthy aristocrats, not the few who win fame and fame on battlefields and at home seek to sink their citizen subjects lower in the scale of true nationality, but that sturdy, hardy class of people who build their homes into the nation's good and who stand ready at all times for her protection, the volunteer, the minute man, the common men, the men for whom to-night I chose as a symbol, in times that are past, the present time, in times to come, the picture of Israel Putnam and his plow.

SPEECH OF HON. O. M. JAMES

In the House of Representatives, Wednesday,
February 3, 1904.

The House being in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and having under consideration the bill (H. R. 11287) making appropriations for the diplomatic and consular service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905—

Mr. James said:

Mr. Chairman: At the beginning of the Fifty-eighth Congress I introduced for the consideration of this body an amendment to the laws upon extradition, which provision I desire the clerk to read, after which I shall make such remarks as seem to me necessary upon the subject.

The Clerk read as follows:

If the governor or executive of any State or Territory to which such fugitive person has fled shall refuse the demand of the governor or executive authority of the State from which said fugitive fled, as above provided, then the governor or executive of the State from which said fugitive fled may file before any circuit or district judge of the United States of America a certified copy of said indictment or affidavit and a copy of his requisition so made and refused in whose district said fugitive is found, whereupon said judge shall issue a writ commanding the marshal of said district to bring the body of said fugitive before said court, and the only question subject to inquiry of said court or district judge shall be to the identity of the person of said fugitive. If said judge ascertains that said fugitive is the same person that has fled from the State of the demanding executive for whose said requisition was made and refused, he shall issue a commitment requiring said marshal to turn over to the executive of the demanding State or his agent the body of said fugitive. An appeal by either party shall lie in such case, as in all other felony cases, to the Supreme Court of the United States of America.

Mr. James. Mr. Chairman, that there is a necessity for some law in aid of the States in matters of extradition of criminals from one State to another there will be no dispute. The existing conditions in two States, I may say, of this Union today make it necessary that such legislation should be placed upon our statute books. The Constitution of the United States, clause 3, of section 2, of article 4, provides:

A person charged in any State with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice and be found in another State, shall on demand of the executive authority of the State from which he fled be delivered up to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.

Mr. Chairman, this section certainly means something. We are certain that it says something. Drawn in the morning of the Republic, by the fathers of this Government, it stands the severest test. It declares that the fugitives shall be delivered up. It takes from the governor upon whom the demand is made the privilege of discretion. It gives to the State whose laws have been violated the right to demand the fugitive that violated its law and fled from its sovereignty. If this section is meaningless, if a governor has the right to set himself up as the trial court, to pass upon the guilt or innocence of the accused, if he has the right in partnership to say that a sister State of this Union will not afford a fair and impartial trial, then the wisdom of the framers of the Constitution was greatly missed of their real purpose when they failed to so declare in this section of the Constitution.

If a governor of one of the States that constitute this Union has the right to arbitrarily refuse to deliver up a fugitive, then it is possible for one single State of the Union to become the rendezvous of every violator of the law in the Republic. Crime can run riot. Outrages upon the citizen, upon the property, upon the law, can be committed by culprits with impunity, and all that is necessary to manumit the culprit from the vengeance of the law is one governor of a single State.

I know of nothing, Mr. Chairman, that will tend more greatly to peace between the States than for this Congress to pass some law that will make effective this provision of the Constitution. I observe that section 1 of Article IV says:

Full faith and credit shall be given in each State to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other State. And the Congress may, by general laws, prescribe the manner in which such acts, records, and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

This bill I introduced offers a remedy for these outrages. It provides what effect the proof of the judicial proceedings in a State shall have; that in case the governor refuses a requisition properly made, then the governor of the State demanding the fugitive can proceed to obtain custody of the culprit by filing a copy of his requisition, so made and refused, and then it becomes the imperative duty of the judge of the United States district or circuit court to issue a warrant for the arrest of the fugitive, and then the sole question, of which he shall be the judge, is the identity of the fugitive; and if he is found to be the one demanded, he shall then make an order delivering over such prisoner to the authorities of the State from which he fled.

This section 1 of Article IV, which immediately precedes the section in regard to fugitives and their deliverance, evidently was passed for the express purpose of giving Congress the power to pass such laws as would make it impossible for a State to become the hiding place of violators of the law. It is also provided by the Constitution, clause 18 of section 8, Article I, that—

Congress shall have the power to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States or any Department or officer thereof.

Now, by this clause Congress certainly has the power to pass such laws as will enforce the provisions in regard to fugitives from justice. The United States Supreme Court, in the case of Mahon v. Justice (127 U. S., p. 705), the opinion delivered by Justice Field, used this language:

Whether Congress might not provide for the compulsory restoration to the State of parties wrongfully abducted from its territory upon the application of the parties or of the State, and whether such provisions would not greatly tend to the public peace along the borders of the several States, are not matters for present consideration. It is sufficient now that no means for such redress through the courts of the United States have as yet been provided.

Now, Mr. Chairman, if Congress has this power—and it is evidently clear to every reasonable mind that it was the purpose of the court, by inference at least, in this decision to say that it did have—why has it not the power to reach its strong arm into the State and deliver over one that violated the law to the State in which he committed the crime? Would it not "greatly tend to the public peace along the borders of the several States," not only along the borders but through the entire State?

I can see no good reason why Congress would have this power, which would clearly be in aid of the right of one individual who had been wronged to be delivered back to the place of his former abode, and Congress would be denied the power to deliver back to an outraged Commonwealth of 2,000,000 people one had murdered her citizen, violated her law, and fled from her courts. [Applause.]

In the one case it would be a remedy for one person who had been wronged; in the other case it would be a remedy for 2,000,000 people that had been outraged. In the one case it would tend to give peace to a wronged citizen; in the other case it would tend to give peace, law, and order to a whole Commonwealth.

Mr. Chairman, the President of the United States in his message to this Congress on December 7, 1903, saw proper to make some observations in regard to the matter of extradition. But it was a source of great regret to myself, as I know it was to the people I have the honor in part to represent on this floor, and as I believe it was to the great body of the American people, that he saw no necessity for dealing with the question of extradition between the States. But I notice that in his message he uses this language in speaking of the bribe givers and bribe takers in St. Louis:

It should be the policy of the United States to leave no place on earth where a corrupt man, fleeing from this country, can rest in peace.

This is a lofty sentiment. It is one that carries us back to the days of the fathers. In its contemplation we become oblivious to this age of commercialism and imperialism. In fact, sir, its a whiff from the garden of the Revolution. But what I want to ask the distinguished Rough Rider is this: Why in his message did he not say that it should be the policy of the United States Government to make it impossible for a fugitive, fleeing from his country, to rest in peace under the flag of the United States of America, or anywhere throughout the world. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

Proceeding to deal with this question, he says further:

There is no reason why bribery should not be included in all treaties as extraditable. The recent amended treaty with Mexico, whereby this crime was put in the list of extraditable offenses, has established a salutary precedent in this regard. Under this treaty the State Department has asked, and Mexico has granted, the extradition of one of the St. Louis bribe givers.

There can be no crime more serious than bribery. Other offenses violate one law, while corruption strikes at the foundation of all law. Under our form of government all authority is vested in the people and by them delegated to those who represent them in official capacity. There can be no offense heavier than that of him in whom such a sacred trust has been reposed, who sells it for his own gain and enrichment; and no less heavy is the offense of the bribe giver. He is worse than the thief, for the thief robs the individual, while the corrupt official plunders an entire city or State. He is as wicked as the murderer, for the murderer may only take one life against the law, while the corrupt official and the man who corrupts the official alike aim at the assassination of the Commonwealth itself.

Assassination of the Commonwealth! What shall we say of the man who is this day protected and has been for more than three long years by a Republican governor who is the dual offender, adding to the bribe offerer and giving the awful crime of murder? What shall we say of such a one, who was offered immunity and protection by the strenuous Rough Rider himself? [Applause on the Democratic side.]

We see him in this instance as Roosevelt, the governor, trampling upon the laws of extradition, violating the comity of States, and offering to one indicted for the great crime of murder protection from Kentucky courts.

The Albany Argus of May 28, 1900, said:

Taylor's flight is nothing but the logical outcome of his whole previous career. It's the act of the cowardly bully driven to bay. He is the logical candidate in Kentucky. It's a pity that New York is not his chosen refuge, in order that our citizens might have a chance to pass judgment on Governor Roosevelt's offer to shield a fugitive from justice.

The Indianapolis Sentinel of April 24, 1900, said:

And now it is reported that Governor Roosevelt will not surrender Taylor, of Kentucky, on a requisition from Governor Beckham. It would be interesting indeed to have the head civil-service reformer of the country join in protecting a fugitive from justice from the process of the courts. Possibly, however, like Herby, he may think that political assassination is justifiable if the victims are Democrats.

In his message the President says that these bribe givers and bribe takers should be hunted down; that you ought to cross the ocean to bring a man back that violated the law. I say, very well and good, but let us cross the Ohio River and bring the murderer back to Kentucky before you do that. [Applause.] Why, Mr. Chairman, I believe this message was in reality given to Congress in a vein of humor.

I notice he talks so much about the violators of the law in Missouri and wants to cross the rolling sea to bring them back. I read only day before yesterday that Odell, governor of his own State, the master of his political fortunes in New York, gave protection to the millionaire, Mr. Ziegler, charged with bribery and corruption in Missouri, from the Missouri courts, and denied the requisition of Governor Dockery.

I believe, Mr. Chairman, that the message of Mr. Roosevelt, in wanting to reach out for criminals and violators of the law across the sea, is but the bugle call to all the fugitives on the face of the earth to come back home, and if they can stand the Republican administrations of New York and Indiana they can be protected there. [Applause and laughter on the Democratic side.]

No such punishment as being an exile from home can be visited upon a man if he happens to take the life of a Democrat. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

So, when I contemplate the anomalous position of Roosevelt the governor and Roosevelt the President, I am forced to declare that another greater than R. Louis Stevenson would have to rise to properly characterize a greater than Dr. Jekyll or Mr. Hyde.

Durbin, the man to-day, giving protection to this violator of the law, this man that Kentucky through her grand jury has indicted for the crime of murder, has for more than three long years denied the right of the sovereign Commonwealth of Kentucky to bring that man back and let him stand his trial before a tribunal of her law. And I notice that when Durbin comes to town he is wine and dined by this great Don Quixote upon extradition, who absolutely confides to Durbin the right to give to the waiting and anxious world the news that "Hanna can run for the Presidency if he wants to." [Laughter on the Democratic side.]

And when we all read that we again said, "The king can do no wrong," and as Durbin starts back to Indiana from his confidential talk with the President, we hear him say amid the applause of all the fugitives of the land, as he speaks of his own State of Indiana, saying of it:

Here, here is the land, of every land the pride,
Beloved by fugitives, o'er every land beside.

Mr. Chairman, their excuse for not honoring this requisition was that Taylor could not have a fair trial. Let us see whether that proposition can stand the test. What did Taylor say before the indictment was returned, when he heard an indefinite rumor in regard to same? I have his own signed statement here, that he gave to the world, and in it he does not say that he could not obtain a fair trial in that Commonwealth. He does not say that juries are corrupt. He does not say that the courts are polluted. But listen to Taylor himself before he had heard that certain confession had been made, that certain witnesses had been called before the grand jury, that the "cat was out of the bag."

Let us see what he says when he felt secure, little dreaming that the world would ever know that he offered $2,500 and a pardon for a human life; that he said, "Goebel has but twenty-four hours to live," and with the wisdom of a prophet this awful prophecy became a reality; that he said, "You must act first and then I will call out the militia," and the wounded man had not been carried from the place of his fall until the tramp of the militia was heard upon the statehouse grounds; that he had issued pardons to men before conviction; that he was the bone and sinew and moving factor in the procurement of Goebel's death.

Here is what he said then, on April 7, 1900, and gave it to the Associated Press bearing his own signature, and it went throughout the States in American Union:

Once for all I desire to say neither directly or indirectly had I any connection with the assassination of Senator Goebel. I am a citizen of this State, amenable to its laws. I am not a criminal, nor shall I ever become a fugitive from justice. Whenever indicted, if such an outrage should ever be committed—

Does he say, "I will flee to Indiana and seek the protecting arms of a Republican governor in the name of politics?" No; but he says: I shall appear for trial conscious of my innocence and of the ultimate triumph of right and justice.

W. S. TAYLOR.

There was nothing said then that he could not obtain a fair trial, but what happened? Why, sir, in less than two weeks from that time we heard of him in Washington, and in three days of that time we heard of him in New York, in consultation with Governor Roosevelt, and what occurs? Does he come back to Kentucky? Does he stand true to his declaration that he would never be a fugitive from justice? No, indeed. All this courageous statement had faded away as his own guilty conscience commenced to tell him that the crime of the great as well as the small was subject to the truth of that inexorable axiom, "Murder will out."

I say spurred on by this he sought the State of Indiana, and in the name of Republicanism he begged its protection. And notwithstanding four years ago this day one of the brainiest and, as we believe, the bravest and knightliest of all that fought for the common people, died from a wound that the indictment of our court said Taylor procured by offering $2,500 and a pardon to the man who fired the fatal shot. He has been protected, walking as a free man almost in sight of the blue grass under which his victim sleeps.

What does Bradley say—the leader of their party, Taylor's confidential friend, his attorney in the contest, ex-governor of his State? Here is what he said on April 23, 1900, that is published in the Louisville Commercial, the Republican organ of that State:

[From the Louisville Commercial (Republican), April 23, 1900.

I do not believe the report to be true that he is in New York attempting to prevent the honoring of the requisition for his return to this State. Governor Taylor has publicly declared that he was not and would never be a fugitive from justice, and that if indicted he would respect the law and meet his accusers face to face. Therefore there remains but one course open to him, and that is to return as soon as he can and meet the indictment like a man. Any other course would be rank injustice not only to himself but to those of his friends who have been accused of so foul a crime. I do not know whether an indictment has been found against Governor Taylor, but if it has I have no doubt that he will promptly surrender himself into the hands of the law, and believe any intimation to the contrary does him rank injustice.

That was issued by William O. Bradley. I know that it has been said, in order to excuse this outrage that is daily being perpetrated, that he could not obtain a fair trial; but, sir, Kentuckians are too courageous, their history of one hundred years behind them tell in tones too loud that this statement is false. You protected him because you said the courts of Kentucky were corrupt.

Taylor fled to the State of Indiana about May 15, 1900, and it was from Indiana that he made his triumphal tour to the Republican national convention, where the public press told us that he received an ovation second only to that of Roosevelt, and there in the State of Indiana he has since remained.

On January 1, 1901, the Republican party obtained control of the court of appeals, which court is the court of last appeal in all criminal and civil cases in our State. They retained this control of that court till January 1, 1903. Upon that bench were Guffey, Durrelle, O'Rear and Burnham, four Republicans out of the seven judges that constituted that court.

Do you tell me that he could not obtain a fair trial where his own party controlled the court to which he had the right to appeal his case? The chief justice of that court was Guffey, his old law partner, and this court of appeals would have had the right, if this case against Taylor was a prosecution instead of a prosecution, was one of falsity rather than of truth, one without evidence to sustain the verdict of the jury, one procured by corruption, to have reversed the case and remanded it to the lower court with directions to dismiss the indictment, which would have been and remained the law of the case.

And yet, Mr. Chairman, with this condition existing in Kentucky, the Constitution of the United States, providing that "full faith and credit shall be given to the acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other State," was being trampled upon. The provision of the Constitution providing that the governor should surrender a fugitive upon demand of the executive was being grossly violated. With this court Republican, the demand being made for his extradition, Durbin refused to surrender him to the authorities of the State of Kentucky because he said Taylor could not obtain a fair trial.

Notwithstanding, if all he said be true, it was in the power of the Republican court to have directed the dismissal of the indictment and let him go as free as tee lark that sings in the sky. Why, my friends, take this matter home to yourselves. Suppose that the murderer of McKinley had been able to flee after he had committed that awful crime. Suppose he had come to Kentucky and the governor of Kentucky had as little respect for his oath, for the Constitution, and for the laws of his country as Durbin had. Czolgoz would to-day be walking Kentucky's soil, breathing her pure air, and the nation mourning the death of one of the greatest of her Presidents.

Is that proper? Do you want to make that possible in our magnificent country? Suppose when you came to us and told us that you wanted to return him, so that he might have a trial for taking the life of your greatest leader, McKinley, the man who lifted you to the mountain range of popular favor, and suppose we should have said that you shall not have him for trial until the United States Government had brought about a condition which will compel a State to return to us our criminal, who took the life of one we loved, no less than you did your leader. Your indignation would have known no bounds. Retaliation would have met with indignation at your hands. Congress would have been assembled in extraordinary session, and a law immediately placed upon the statute books such as I propose here.

Mr. Chairman, the conduct of Governor Durbin, viewed under every searchlight, measured by every yardstick, weighed in every balance, is such an outrage as to properly characterize it the poverty of the English language must stand admitted. [Applause on Democratic side.]

The greatest right that a State can have is the right to try those who have violated its law and fled from its dominion. It is an enlargement of State rights. It is the very sovereignty of the State itself.

I know, sir, that many epithets have been hurled at the courts of Kentucky, but I stand here to defend them, though they need no defense at my hands. Their decisions have been quoted and approved the world around. The judicature of the civilized earth has been made richer, wiser, and greater by their contributions. Equity and justice have both alike welcomed their decisions as examples of their teaching. Innocence in rags, justice without a friend, weakness without a staff, all in full and rounded measure proclaim in tones that defy partisan rancor, and political malice, of their incorruptibility. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

And, sir, when murderers shall find no longer an Indiana of refuge, when requisitions shall no longer be dishonored, when those who laid the miserable plot and took the life of William Goebel shall have been gathered by that dark messenger that needs no requisition, when those who protected them shall live only in infamy, Kentucky courts—God bless them—will still live, administering the law in its strength and justice in its purity. [Applause.]

Mr. Chairman, I believe that whether this Congress acts or not; whether Kentuckians may assemble this day a year hence around the grave to place flowers upon it in sweet remembrance of the murdered dead, knowing the chief conspirator is yet unmanacled by the law; recounting the wrong perpetrated by the protection of his murderers—I say whether that would occur or not, in my judgement Taylor will have to hunt another place of refuge, because the outraged people of Indiana will rise up in their might and repudiate the Republican policy by electing a Democratic governor in that Commonwealth. [Great and continued applause.]

THE WAR IN THE EAST.

Paris, March 1.—The correspondent of the Associated Press is informed that authoritative advices have been received in Paris to the effect that the Japanese general staff left Japan today for Chemulpo, Korea. This is accepted as meaning that all the troops necessary for the forward movement have landed in Korea, and it is expected that the movement of troops forward will begin the last of this week. With respect to the Russian forces that will contest the way it is said there will be some surprise manifested at the strength the Russians are able to dispose of.

London, March 1.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegram from Yinkow, dated Feb 29, says:

"Fifteen Japanese warships furiously bombarded Port Arthur from 10 until 12 o'clock this morning. The Russian cruisers Nevic, Askold and Bayan, accompanied by four torpedo boats, steamed out to meet the attack but they were forced to retire. The Askold was in a sinking condition, the Novic was badly damaged and one of the torpedo boats was sunk. The Japs then retired in good order."

DIED IN THE SUNNY SOUTH.

Miss Alma Nunn, daughter of S. A. Nunn, of the Blackford country, died in Tampa, Fla., last Saturday, the 27th day of February, where she had gone for her health. She was afflicted with consumption, with which she had suffered for two years, and went to Florida hoping to regain her health. A telegram was received by the family last week that she was sinking, and her brother left for her bedside at once. A second message stated that she died Saturday. She was buried there at her request. Miss Nunn was a most estimable young woman, just passing her 23rd birthday. She was a member of the Rosebud M. E. church. Besides her father and mother, who survive her, she has three sisters living—Mrs Dr. T. A. Frazer, of this city, Mrs. Newton Weldon, of Tolu, Mrs. Elmer Crider, of Sullivan, and three brothers—Arthur, John and Oscar, all of this county. One sister, the wife of Frank Burton, of Mattoon, died a few weeks ago.

faith in Christ and joined the Sulphur Spring Baptist church early in life. She leaves four daughters and three brothers to mourn her departure. She died quietly and her spirit was carried by a convoy of angels to God who gave it. She was an ideal mother, and added to the sums of human joy. No one could come in contact with her without having higher aspirations. Her friends were numbered by her acquaintances. We could not write a higher eulogy than to say that she was a good christian mother. Let us, while our heads are bowed in sadness, remember that we are living in a land where life and death are equal kings. Life is but a vale between which is filled with great sorrows, tears, troubles, and disappointments; we can say to the living, that the dead in Christ do not suffer. We wish we were able to say something to cheer the sorrowing relatives, and to make them see that their loss is a mother's gain. But while their hearts are bowed in sorrow, we trust we have the sweet consolation of Christ.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev Henry Holloman, in the presence of a large congregation of friends and loved ones, after which the remains were laid to rest in Sulphur Springs cemetery, there to await the call of the resurrection.

Mr W. A. Doom has another sick child.

Uncle Sam Brasher says he will have to go to work, now that the boys are gone.

John Perkins has gone to Missouri and his family will go soon.

We have a new mail carrier, R. A. Vinson.

Bro Crew was in town last week, also Bro Fralich from Salem.

Say, Ed., feed old Jim, and quit giving him tin cans.

Well, there is Ab. Hollowell, the clerk, he is the Democrat of Tiline, and a fine clerk. He can say Yes, or No, easy enough. But that egg business is tough, aint it, Ab?

Turkeys, turkeys, and here is Ned Cruce coming up the street with one under his arm and he says How will you swap, Will? and Mr. Doom says, I'll take a dollar to boot, and the turkeys are changed; and such is life in Tiline.

Several of our young men have left us, but somehow Whittling Bill is still here.

STARR.

Tribune is on a boom.

Hogs are in demand.

Calves are selling well.

Stripping tobacco is the order of the day.

Mrs Clara Wilson is in a very critical condition with paralysis.

There is an immense amount of staves on the yard near Tribune.

Most all the tobacco in this section was sold to Dr. Moore of Marion.

Mrs Evie Crider visited her mother of Midway vicinity Monday.

Big Crowd at the Brantley sale. "Bud leaves at once for Kansas.

J. H. Crider is going to Oklahoma.

Judge Towery and J. A. Baker, of Marion, were in this section surveying Wednesday.

Married—Mr. James Wilson and Mrs Lizzie Mays, Rev W. F. Paris officiating. Success to you, "Cousin" Jim.

Linard Hubbard visited here Saturday and then left for Oklahoma, where he will make his future home.

Nothing much to write about this week.

Please Read This.

To those who have been buying goods from us on time, we wish to say, we need the money you owe us badly. As it takes money to settle our bills and as we have been kind enough to accommodate you when you needed it, we now need accommodation, so please come to the front and do the square thing. We do not wish to push any one but we must collect our outstanding accounts, so this means all who owe us without any exception to any one. Come and settle at once, either with cash or by note.

We expect to remain in business with the best and cheapest stock of Groceries ever in Marion. Come to see us and bring your produce.

Little Folks' Corner.

For Children Under 12.

Claremont, Cal., Feb. 19, 1904.

Dear friends of the Children's Corner: I would like to take part in your corner, but am too far away.

There are four Fillopinos, one Chinese and one Japanese in our school. Miss Ashby is my teacher. I received the Liberty Bell (a prize) for highest average and best deportment in the fifth grade, Luther in the first and Carrie came second in the third grade.

I wish some of you were here to see some of the fine views. We can see the mountains and they have been covered with snow two or three times this winter.

I was at Pomona Monday to see some of our Kentucky friends.

We don't have as much frost or fog here as they do at Pomona.

Yours truly,

ISAM MORSE.

Last week's puzzle: A boy is eight years old in February and never had a birthday anniversary. He was born February 29, 1896, and February has not had twenty-nine days since, until this year. The first correct answer opened was from nine year old Miles Pogue, Frances, Ky.

Other correct answers were received from Gladie Stephenson, Willie Fritts, Willie Stephenson, Nannie Rochester, Homer McConnell, Ruth Croft, Walter Clement, James Ray McConnell, Robert, Kattie Wathen, Linnie Towery, Malcolm Dollar, Ruth Collar, Mattie Shaw, Kattie Clement, Joanna Rankin, Ruth Shaw, Mamie Fritts, Bernice Ward, Mildred Rankin, Katie Stephenson and Mabel Davidson, of Marion, Katie Hammond, of Tolu, Epa Foster, of Lola, Virginia Rutler and George Loyd, of Fredonia, Nellie Love, of Sheridan, Ruby Dean and Stella Dean, of Iron Hill, Mary Stinson, of Mt. Vernon, Dedie Brantley, of Gladstone, Leecie Larue and Rodney Stephenson, of Levas, Forest Whitt, of Frances, Eulis Hodges, Shady Grove, Lela Travis, Salem, and Mary Belle Nunn, of Rodney.

Miss Mildred Moore's answer to last week's puzzle was not received till this week. Came in too late. All answers should be in Marion postoffice or Pass office before 8 o'clock Monday.

Puzzle for this week: If a negro carrying a platter of turkey should let it fall, what effect would it have upon the world?

ENTERPRISE, INGENUITY AND ORIGINALITY.

Say something against Lax-Fox is the promise of those who have taken it and you'll be sorry. Every person using Lax-Fox will tell you, an interesting story of how it cured them.

Lax-Fox is the very latest example of medical enterprise, ingenuity and originality. Those who have been sick, and others say, Lax-Fox is the best medicine made. To make it a little better than any other remedy even though it cost more is an investment and not an expense to the S. H. Winslow Medicine Co. No advertisement is equal to having people say Lax-Fox is the best. It's success in any business gives the consumer more than you promise. That is done in Lax-Fox. It cures indigestion, constipation, kidney and liver trouble. Its good effects are felt at once. Take no substitute. The genuine is sold on the money back plan by druggists everywhere.

Get the habit.

John A. Clark is quite sick at his home on the Ford's Ferry road.

Born to the wife of James Thomas of the Pleasant Hill neighborhood, on last Tuesday afternoon, a fine boy.

There will be services at the C. P. church next Sunday, the Lord willing, at the usual hours.

Mrs. J. L. Stewart and little son are slightly indisposed, and have been kept closely at home for several days.

R. M. Wilborn has returned from Shady Grove on account of ill news of Mrs. Wilborn, who is now better.

WANTED:—Pea hay, 5 bales, and clover hay, 5 bales, also new, sweet country lard. Apply at Press office.

Don't your home, which is the happiest spot in the world for you, need a little paint this season? Woods & Orme.

The infant daughter of Geo. Butler, of the Hurricane neighborhood, died last week and was buried at the Love graveyard.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Reed will remove to Kuttawa soon, much to the regret of many friends here. We dislike to lose such people.

Judge J. A. Morse is quite sick at his residence on Main street. He has pneumonia, but his friends, and they are many, hope he will be out soon.

H. K. Woods took his wife to the Walker Sanitarium in Evansville Friday. Mrs. Woods' health is not good and she may remain there some weeks.

"Have you ever seen a magnet?" "No. What is it?" "Something that draws." "Oh, yes, like the Magnet Laundry—draws and holds trade." "Phone 97."

Lester Eddings, an old Marion boy, was in town Saturday. He is an employee of the L. & N. railroad, and is on the run from St. Louis to New Orleans.

C. S. Knight, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., the capitalist, who is doing so much to develop our mining properties in this and Livingston counties, was here the past week.

Duke S. Hill, one of the professors of penmanship in Lockyear's Business College at Evansville, was visiting relatives and friends in this county last week.

Press Fritts has purchased Julian Ainsworth's residence and moved to town. Mr. Ainsworth moved to the Rev. J. W. Bigham residence on Salem street.

Ed. Hughes, George Stoval and E. M. Stoval left Tuesday morning for Wellford, Kansas. They will locate in the neighborhood where Judge R. A. Dowell resides.

Mrs. Sallie Carnahan, the venerable mother of Harry Carnahan and Mrs. Judy Wheeler, is quiet sick at her home in this city. She has pneumonia but is reported better.

Miss Laura Hurley is still in the market looking for new creations in millinery for Love & Denman. She says the stocks never were so beautiful and that she is buying pick and choice.

J. H. Crider and family, of Tribune neighborhood, left Tuesday noon for Oklahoma. They will stop somewhere near Coldwater, where G. E. Lemon located a few years ago.

Get the habit of trading at Clifton's.

W. D. Brantley and family and Dick Jones and family left Tuesday morning for Selden, Kansas, where they will locate. Bud and Dick have many friends here.

W. C. Hoover, a soldier in Co. 107 Coast Artillery, Ft. Probie, Me., has left there and his whereabouts is not known, and his mail is there unclaimed.

A sensational suit was filed here last week by Mrs. J. A. Redd vs. Mrs. Mattie Williams, wife of N. K. Williams. She alleges slander, and asks damages to the extent of $5,000.

Mrs. Effie Jenkins has been afflicted with rheumatism, which has been quite painful, and has also taken cold which settled in her eyes and gave her additional trouble.

If troubled with weak digestion, belching or sour stomach, use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will get quick relief. For sale by Woods & Orme.

P. E. Davis, of the Gladstone country, had the misfortune to lose his stable by fire last week. No insurance on them, and no way to account for the fire unless by a tramp or an incendiary.

Articles of incorporation were filed for record here, by the Givens Mining Co. B. H. Rowe and C. L. Hinkle, of Evansville, and J. S. Givens, of Providence, are the incorporators.

Time of the year when white shirt waists, white bed spreads, lace curtains and all kinds of white decorations need laundering. 'Phone 97. Albert Walker, McConnell's store.

We make a special rate on table cloths and napkins, towels and sheets, and our work is so satisfactory that one trial makes you hunt us up next time. Magnet Laundry, Albert Walker, Agt.

Albert Walker has the agency for the Magnet Laundry, office at McConnell's store. See him about those lace curtains. Goodness, aren't they black, but when he returns, they will be white as snow.

T. Marion Thomason and family, and Oscar Thomason, all of the Tribune neighborhood, left for Lebanon, Kansas Tuesday morning. Mr. Thomason is a brother-in-law of Joedie and Gillie Dollar, of this city, and is a fine citizen.

The importance of records made of all deeds is especially apparent now, when so many mineral leases are being made, and yet people leave this unattended to. There are now 700 deeds in the county clerk's office, unrecorded.

Miss Nellie Walker went to Eddyville Saturday for a visit to her sister, Mrs. Olive, and also Miss Dixie Childers. Miss Childers recently returned from a two months stay at the Battle Creek, Mich., Sanitarium.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Threlkeld are now at Dade City, Fla., and are getting along nicely. The "shake up" they got in the wreck of the Florida limited was not as serious as at first reported, but left them somewhat bruised and sore from their experience.

Woods & Orme's palace drug store, with electric ceiling lights and tile floors, is indeed a bright and cheerful place. 'Twould help any invalid to take a peep in there and see how nice and clean it is and how well equipped they are to compound prescriptions.

The world's best shoes at Clifton's.

John R. Farris, of the Salem Valley, one of Livingston's best citizens, was in Marion visiting his daughter, Mrs. Wort Pierce Tuesday. He also went to Kelsey to see his son Dr. Farris and returned home Wednesday.

The missionary institute of the Princeton District Louisville Conference, will be held in Princeton March 8. The midyear meeting will be held at the same place, beginning on the evening of the 8th.

Edith Burton, daughter of Frank Burton, whose wife died recently in the Mattoon neighborhood has come to make her home in Marion with her aunt, Mrs. Dr. Frayser, she is now attending the Marion Graded school.

The friends and family of Judge J. A. Moore are alarmed somewhat over his serious condition. He is not getting along with his attack of pneumonia as well as they had hoped. His physicians however think he will begin to improve soon.

The 10th of March is positively my last day to make photographs in Marion. Don't wait until the last day as I may be so crowded that I may be unable to wait on you. Come at once and get pictures as fine as you can get in any city. C. C. Cook.

A compromise has been effected and the case of S. H. Cassidy & Co. and F. B. Dycus & Co., of Kuttawa and Dycusburg, has been taken out of bankruptcy and a full settlement has been made with the creditors. Cassidy & Co. and F. B. Dycus & Co. are now at their old stand and will be ready for business in a short time.

Clifton's new spring clothing is now on sale. Tailored clear up to spring 1904. Get the habit of wearing this high-class tailor-made clothing and see how well they'll fit, how nice you'll look and how well you'll feel. Won't cost you as much, either, as you'll pay elsewhere for the other kind. Get the habit.

Dr. John Immer, practitioner of the manipulative, suggestive and operative method of thinking without thoughts, has had the wisdom-producing substance that vegetates on the higher extremity of his cranium abbreviated, but we hope it will not lessen the sparkle of the Immer Brain Leaks in the March issue of the New Era.

Mrs. Leona Koltinsky left Tuesday for the Eastern markets to buy her spring stock of millinery. Mrs. Koltinsky is not a novice in the millinery trade, but has had experience of many years, which will be valuable to her in making her selections. She will search the millinery centers for the newest and best things, and will appreciate it if her friends will see her stock before buying.

Will U. Howerton has accepted a position as division man for the Deering division of the International Harvester Co., in place of R. J. Nunn, who is now secretary, treasurer and general manager of the Marion Milling Co. Will is a hustler and will make them a good man, besides that, he has pretty good backing. You'll have to get up early to find one better than the Deering.

Dr. Immer will give 3 treatments free. Any Disease. See him.

The Democratic committee of the Second congressional district met at Henderson last week, and called a primary election for Tuesday, April 19th, with the provision that should there be but one candidate by March 19th, the committee shall meet in Hopkinsville on Saturday, March 20th, and declare the one candidate so announced as the nominee.

The Marion Electric Light & Ice Co.'s lake seems to be a success. They are now figuring on duplicating it by filling in the new street to be opened between John Wilson's and Speece's residences, and may also add a laundry. There is the greatest need for such a convenience and enterprise here, and now that the water question seems solved, it will naturally follow. Marion and contiguous territory will support a laundry handsomely.

Mrs. Leona G. Koltinsky wishes to thank the ladies for the liberal share of patronage they gave her last year. Her stock will be larger and more complete this year. She will be glad to have her friends and customers call and see her up-to-date millinery goods. Her place of business will be in the new store between Chittenden's grocery and Moore-Paris Co.'s new building.

There is such a demand for cheap stuff that it requires some nerve to introduce a high-grade article like Masury's paints. There is absolutely none better, but Marion is gradually taking better and better goods each season and has shown a wonderful appreciation of our paints by endorsing Masury's. The name is now a byword among high-class builders and contractors and those who know. Woods & Orme.

Next Sunday, the first Sabbath in March, has been appointed as "Bible Day." The movement was instituted by the British and Foreign Bible Society and afterward adopted by the American Bible Society, and all Christian bodies in the United States are expected to co-operate in its observance. The object is to raise a large sum of money for the publication and distribution of Holy Scriptures in the polyglot tongues of the earth.

Miss Nellie Thomas' friends are proud to know she is having her voice cultivated this winter. The splendid advantages of training under Prof. Hall, of Memphis, will equip her as few ever can be. Miss Nellie is now singing in the Vested choir at Calvary church there, which proves the reputation of Memphis for acknowledging real merit in song. Visitors at Memphis, who recently had the pleasure of hearing her say, she sings like a bird.

S. F. Peek, of Dycusburg, was here as a committee with Mary Rushing, wife of Frank Rushing and daughter of Thos Smith, who was taken violently insane last Monday, at her home near Dycusburg. She had been afflicted for six years and was before in the asylum from Livingston county. A year ago her husband brought her home and she seemed to be well, but recently has shown symptoms of insanity again, and last Monday attacked her brother, Beverly Smith a blind man and came near killing him. Her relatives decided she had best return to the asylum and accordingly brought her before Judge Towery Thursday. She was declared insane and sent to the asylum at Hopkinsville on the noon train Thursday, Mr. Peek accompanying her there.

Dorsey Clark was arrested last week on a charge of breach of peace committed on Fred Hawkins, a colored boy, son of Tom Hawkins, of the Starr neighborhood. He was fined $30 and costs. The Hawkins boy, who escaped from his clutches, "fled for his life," and has not been seen or heard of since, so far as we have been able to learn. The offence was committed in Marion on the most public street, in front of the courthouse and in view of several witnesses, all of whom testified that the assault was unprovoked and uncalled for. The Hawkins boy and his father before him, have a good reputation and are quiet, peaceable citizens. It is the consensus of opinion that they would not intentionally provoke or molest anyone, and the boy was evidently misunderstood by Dorsey.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Robt. Enoch to Ida Long.
F. E. Hill to Ida Custard.
S. P. King to Essie Conger.

Dr. Tygert to be Here Sunday.

Rev. J. J. Tygert, of Nashville, will preach in the city Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at the Methodist church. The public is invited. Dr. Tygert is editor of the "Quarterly Review" and was a candidate for Bishop at last conference and came near being successful. He is a man of much ability.

HOG SALE.

On Monday March 14th we will sell at public auction our entire herd of Duroc-Jersey hogs, consisting of bred sows and Gilts herd boar. Young boars ready for service and pigs of both sexes. All our Duroc-Jerseys are choicely bred and splendid individuals. Come and get what you want of this great breed of hogs at your own price. Sale at our barn ½ mile north of town.

Pierce & Son, Marion, Ky.

Dr. French to be Here Sunday.

Complying with the request of Dr. Geo. D. French, agent for the States of Kentucky and Tennessee, there will be a special service held in the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the interest of the American Bible Society. All the members of the Presbyterian church and all friends of Bible cause are earnestly requested to be present. Let everyone see that they come fully prepared to make a liberal contribution to this needy and worthy enterprise. S. J. MARTIN.

A PIT PARTY.

One of the unique entertainments of the season was given Friday evening by Miss Neal Cossitt and the younger society set were well represented. Miss Cossitt was assisted in receiving by Miss Shepherd. Several contests were indulged in which enlivened the occasion very much. Miss Ida Hill was the winner of the beautiful prize. Refreshments were served while sweet music filled the house. As the wee, small hours began to draw nigh, the company departed for their homes after voting Miss Cossitt a pleasant good night.

DAMES OF 1846 INVITED TO UNIQUE REUNION.

Mrs. Zylla Moore Cardin, State Commandant, Receives Letter from President of Mexican War Veterans Association.

In the United States there is still living a small band of men, the illustrious remnant of an army that fought "one of the most brilliant campaigns known in history." Ridpath sums it up as a contest in which the Americans, few in number, and in a far distant, densely peopled country, had gained every victory. These Mexican war veterans, now numbering only 3,900, are at once the pride and the cares of the Dames of 1846. It used to be said by the heathen: "It is good to be an old man only in Sparta." In the filial reverence we pay these men we emulate a Spartan virtue. But there law enforced, here love constrains. We say of them as John Quincy Adams of the surviving patriots of the Revolution, who, he said, were like the Sybiline leaves—the fewer they became the more precious they were. The founder of the Dames of 1846 has thus formulated our sentiment:

Feeling the deepest veneration and patriotism for every notable epoch of American history, we do not place that of the Mexican war amongst the least in its importance and results. The notable men and women of our earlier colonies have had their fortitude and heroism immortalized by the women who trace their ancestry to gallant bands of pioneers in a new world. The sublime thunders of the Declaration of Independence find today an echo in the song of an army of women greater in numbers than the thin legions that their indomitable ancestors opposed to an implacable and remorseless tyranny.

But the most sacred record to the Southern heart is that greatest one when neighbors having found argument vain the serried ranks of Northern and Southern giants faced each other upon the bloodiest fields that mark the conflicts of a world. As the "Daughters of the Confederacy" the women of the South are correcting history, moulding opinions, demanding justice, educating youth, and rearranging monuments to the men who lived and died for a cause that was invincible.

Last, but not least, the grand old Republic of Texas has its company of illustrious women, who perpetuate the memories of the massacre of Alamo, Goliad, and the victory of San Jacinto. How many of our Southern women, members of the Daughters of the Republic and "Daughters of the Confederacy," ever refer to the precarious place in history that the cause around which centers their devotion would have occupied if the veterans of 1846 had not marched upon the encroaching Mexican foe. Suppose a feeble arm, a half hearted resistance had opposed the invader, what would have been the fate of Texas, New Mexico and California? To the war with Mexico we owe our supreme liberation from all present and future fear of our neighbors across the Rio Grande. The grand survivors of that most conclusive trial of strength and endurance are passing rapidly to the sweet fields of perpetual peace. Year after year we see the depleted ranks of the Mexican War Association file into our hospitable cities to receive our plaudits and heartfelt welcome; many, alas! for the last time. The "Dames of 1846" glorify their heroic deeds, crown with honor their remaining days, and perpetuate their fame to posterity in monuments to the dead and devotion to their descendants.

I am in receipt of a very helpful letter of advice in regard to our work in Kentucky from the Hon. James C. Carlton President of the National Association of Mexican War Veterans. He invites us to attend their next reunion. In regard to it he says: "You are not a great distance from St. Louis, where the second day's reunion of 1904, Sept. 16, is to be held in joint reunion with the veterans of Mexico, who fought on the other side. The details of this contemplated unique affair have all been agreed on with the Board of Managers of the World's Fair, and we are now in correspondence with the Mexican authorities to secure their cooperation. The first day's reunion this year, September 15, will be in East St. Louis, where we will assemble and be in business session, and will move to the Exposition grounds on the morning of the 16th to meet our friends the enemy, and greet them."

I hope many of the Dames of 1846 will have the pleasure of attending that reunion which will indeed be "unique" in the annals of this country.

The women of Kentucky are taking great interest in our work. How I wish every eligible woman would realize her wonderful heritage. I beg every wife, daughter, granddaughter, of one of these men to write me for an application for membership blank. It is probable you know all that is required to fill the application. If not a letter to the chief of the Record and Pension Office, War Department, Washington, D. C., will bring you the data his service commenced and terminated, the name of his captain, company and regiment, and any additional information the records of the office show. There is no charge made for this service.

"Lord God of Hosts be with us yet Lest we forget! Lest we forget!"

Mrs. ZYLLA MOORE CARDIN, State Commandant Dames of 1846 View, Ky.

IN MEMORIAM.

On Wednesday morning, about 6 o'clock, February 17, 1904, Mrs. Matilda C. Cannan fell asleep in Jesus.

Mrs. Cannan was the daughter of Mr. Ephraim D. and Matilda Ann Hall, who lived in Washington county, Ill. She was born March 15th, 1839. She was converted and united with the Concord Baptist church in Washington county, Ill., in March, 1861, being baptized by Elder Huggins. In the year 1886 she united with the Seventh Day Adventists.

She was married Aug. 1, 1858, to Mr. E. E. Cannan by the Elder Hutchens, a Baptist minister, and they came to Kentucky in the spring of 1866 and lived in Caldwell county, near Shady Grove; afterwards removing to Repton, and in November, 1885, removing to Marion, where they have ever since resided.

To this happy union were born four children, two daughters and two sons; Miss Mattie Cannan, a most devoted christian and Bible scholar, died five years ago; Miss Sarah, who married Mr. Meacham, died about two years ago at Crofton, Ky.; Mr. A. S. Cannan and Will D. Cannan of Marion.

These two sons and the husband and father remain. Mrs. Cannan was a true christian woman. For forty years she had been a sufferer but she bore her sufferings with christian fortitude. She said to me just a few days before her death, that "no one can ever know what I have suffered." No, 'tis true no human heart can penetrate the depths of human suffering, but Jesus will remember all the pain endured and his great heart of compassion was always in sympathy with the deepest pain of our departed sister.

Though affliction's hand was on her laid Submission marked each hour, Her hopes on Jesus Christ were staid, She trusted in his power. This mother lived to see all her children converted, and she leaves a husband whose greatest delight is to talk of God's Holy Word and who loves and looks for the coming of the Lord Jesus. Blessed hope, some day to be enjoyed.

"The seas shall waste, the skies in smoke decay, Rocks fall to dust and mountains fall away, But fixed his word, his saving power remains."

We may long for the ravages of death to be conquered, for these sad scenes to end, for the silent sorrow of our hearts to be fully eased. We may often feel and ask "When shall spring visit the mouldering urn, O, when shall day dawn on the night of the grave."

In God's own time the grave will give up the bodies of our beloved dead, and they will in body be clothed in glorious immortality. To depart is to be with Christ, and when Christ comes we shall have our full redemption.

"See truth, love and mercy in triumph descending, And nature all glowing in Eden's first bloom, On the cold cheek of death smiles and roses are blooming, And beauty immortal awakes from the tomb."

Let us not weep as those who have no hope, for God's word said to us, "that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so also them which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."

The Psalmist also uses this beautiful figure of the repose of death: "He giveth his beloved sleep." "The calm repose in Jesus, blessed sleep for our weary bodies. Our sister now is free from pain and suffering. "She is not dead, but sleepeth."

"Of all the thoughts of God that are Borne inward into souls afar, Along the Psalmist's music deep Now tell me if that any is, For gift of grace surpassing this, 'He giveth his beloved sleep.'"

O, earth, so full of dreary noises, O, men, with wailing in your voices! O, delyed gold the wailers heap! O, strife! O curse! that o'er it fall, God strikes a silence through you all,

And giveth his beloved sleep. His dew drop mutely on the hill, His cloud alone it saileth still, Though on its slopes men sow and reap; More softly than the dew is shed, Or cloud is floated overhead, He giveth his beloved sleep!"

T. A. CONWAY.

MISS MARGARET SAYRE.

New York, Feb. 24.—Miss Margaret Sayre received a tremendous reception by nearly one hundred Kentuckians and a large audience at the New York theatre here last night, when she appeared in "The Tenderfoot." There were four individual curtain calls during the first act, and she was splendidly received in each act thereafter. Many boxes of flowers were received. The play bids fair to be one of the greatest successes seen here during the season.

Miss Margaret Sayre is a Kentucky girl who seeks success on the New York stage despite the fact that she has not a divorce or scandal to her credit. Furthermore, more society did not pall on her and there was no disappointment in love. Neither did she defy her parents, for she has none. She wasn't stage struck—she wanted the "dough."

Her only assets are a superb singing voice, a striking stage presence, and six or eight good, hard year's work on the stage.

She was in the chorus of Weber & Field for two years and was under study for Edna May in London an entire season. Before those days she sang prima donna roles in light opera through the south and west. For one or two seasons she was with Kirke La Shelle's "Princess Chic" company.

Miss Sayre appears in leading support of Joseph Coyne in "The Tenderfoot" at the New York theatre on Monday. An effort to get out the Kentuckians in town to welcome her is being made by her friends.

Her home is at Princeton, Ky. down in the "Pennyville" district. Former United States Senator, Willis B. Machen was her uncle. She was reared at Princeton and Owensboro in the family of Breckinridge Speed, son of James Speed, Mr. Lincoln's Attorney General.

The young lady's name is really Mrs. Lilly McGoodwin Campbell, a former resident of Marion. She is well known and remembered here as a bright and beautiful young woman, and we are proud of her success.

NEWS OF THE WORLD.

Czar Nicholas can not understand the aggressive sympathy of the people of this country for Japan. Colonel Bryan expressed himself so friendly when he and Nick talked over things at St. Petersburg.

In compliance with a rush order from Japan, a Philadelphia locomotive plant has just completed seven locomotives in one day.

Assurances from France that the Russian fleet had left Jibuti in French Somaliland, has reached Tokio and produced general satisfaction.

Already there is a thrilling tropical song, "Along the Yalu River."

The Russians may be allowing the Japanese a little advantage in the opening of the war so as to inveigle them into the interior and freeze them to death.

What is left of the Russian fleet seems to be bottled up at Port Arthur or frozen in at Vladivostok. Will it be a repetition of Santiago?

The story that a Kentucky maiden swallowed an electric light bulb is one of those Chicago girls' feat standars on the distensive capacity of the Blue Grass girl's rosebud cupid's bow mouth.

The Federal Assembly of San Juan, by a vote of 60 to 15, demanded that Puerto Rico be admitted to statehood or that the island be granted independence.

A New Orleans dispatch says there will be an effort to raise a regiment of "Rough Riders," in the United States for service with Japan against the Russians.

Russia thinks she will have show enough at home with the Japs, and has abandoned the idea of making an exhibit at the St. Louis Worlds Fair.

Dr. W. Godfrey Hunter has gone to Kentucky to look after affairs in the Eleventh district, and if the Republican programme for an early adjournment is carried out, it is doubtful if he is seen in his seat again this session.

In a scuffle with a traveling showman at Richmond Sam Baies prominent youth, was fatally shot through the lungs.

At Owensboro Mrs. W. S. Potter swallowed by accident a quantity of a solution of arsenic, with nearly fatal effects.

Samuel and John Riggs, white, and Horace Amos, colored, who escaped from the Carlisle jail recently, were captured at Mayesville. They are wanted for horse stealing and housebreaking.

Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request. Be sure that this picture is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

The report sent out from Ashland that the Ventura hotel had burned is wholly incorrect. There was only a slight blaze in a drug store.

G. W. Mullen, one of the most prominent business men of Owensboro, is dead in San Diego Cal. He was a member of the wholesale drug firm of Mullen & Hayns and was President of the Owensboro Sewer Pipe company.

The dead body of a girl wrapped in a carpet was found in a chip basket in Covington. The coroner said the child had died of starvation.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjusts this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at Woods & Orme's drug store.

FLATROCK.

We are still having very gloomy weather.

We are beginning to have a just appreciation of the ground hog's forecast.

J. M. Spickard and Prentice McNeely of Farmersville, each took a big load of tobacco to Cardins Thursday.

J. H. Moore rode Wednesday, buying tobacco for A. H. Cardin.

Prof. Louvern, who is attending a music school at Madisonville, writes to us here that he has an excellent teacher, that he knows more about music than any other man he ever met.

We understand that quite a number of the fair sex from Flatrock intend to go to Marion shopping tomorrow. We think Clifton's special sale of embroideries and white goods is the inducement. This store is the Mecca for the bargain hunters of this section; they "kinder" like these special sale features of the store. Well, why shouldn't they, when they can buy goods for just about half what they would pay elsewhere. This store is quoted around here as authority on almost everything—quality, price, styles, etc. They say, "if it comes from Clifton's it's all right."

T. W. Moore is hauling logs here for Press Blackburn to saw when he moves his sawmill here. Tom is preparing to build him a new house.

There was an interesting debate at the school house. The question discussed was, "Resolved, That education is more profitable to man than money." Decision for the negative.

We are glad to hear that the robins have come. Hope that the springtime will soon come, gentle Annie, and the wild flowers blossom on the plain.

Gives Health, Vigor and Tone.

Herbine is a boon for sufferers from anemia. By its use the blood is quickly regenerated and the color becomes normal. The drooping strength is revived. The languor is diminished. Health, vigor and tone predominate. New life and happy activity results. Mrs. Belle H. Shirel, Middlesboro, Ill., writes: "I have been troubled with liver complaint and poor blood, and have found nothing to benefit me like Herbine. I hope never to be without it. I have wished that I had known of it in my husband's lifetime. 50c. Sold by Woods & Orme."

COAL COAL!

The best coal on the market 9c per bushel at the yard or 10c per bushel delivered in town 20 bushels and over; less than 20 bushels 9c at the car and 20c for delivery.

Our competitor, Prof. Sutherland, claimed that he brought the price of coal down, when he started in the coal business last fall. Just about the time he started in coal went off a cent on the bushel in the market, and he claimed he was the cause of it. Now it is off another cent and the Professor says we are trying to freeze him out; says he can't sell his coal at 10c per bushel. WELL WE CAN. Our prices are governed by the market, not by local conditions. We always give our customers the advantage of a decline, and when the price goes up we raise the price accordingly.

We expect in the spring to put in a New Fairbanks Scale of greater capacity, so the haulers can bring as big loads as they wish. Thanking one and all for past patronage and soliciting the same in the future, we are your friends.
