OUR MINERAL EXHIBIT OFF FOR ST. LOUIS.

Car Load of Exhibits Started Tuesday. All Our Mines in Full Blast. Very Brilliant Prospects Ahead.

The washery is in full operation at the Tabb mines.

Mr. Noe has resumed operations at his property on the LaRue vein.

They have decided to drift westwardly in the shaft at the Glendale mine.

The installation of the machine plant at the Miller mine was commenced this week.

Marion Mineral company placed orders last week for a new pump for the Pogue mine.

Blue & Nunn ordered a "Cameron sinking pump" Saturday, which will be used at their "Nine acres."

The "Ky. people" are washing up spar this week at the Holly mine, and will begin hauling from there shortly.

The Columbia people have at last decided to find the hole which floods their mine at every freshet, and will stop it up with concrete.

Mr. Porter brought a steel cutting core drill into the district Monday, and he proposes to thoroughly exploit their property here.

Work was resumed at the Asbridge mine this week, in the way of cleaning up and making preparations to start this mine up soon.

C. J. Burget has just erected a splendid derrick and shaft house at the 9 acres. It is hoped to have the steam hoister going there next week.

The Mountain Lead, Zinc and Fluorspar company have about got all their machinery on the ground, and will soon have it set up and in operation.

The fire clay mines on the farm of C. R. Stevens, will commence the erection of their mining machinery just as soon as the weather permits, when the clay hauling will be resumed.

On Tuesday of this week wagons started hauling fluor spar from the "Big Four" mines near Sheridan. Mr. Noe says he can keep a number of wagons hauling all summer.

On the 9 acres near the Springs the diamond drill has started down on its deep hole to test the depth of the ore bodies. As this has been intended all the time, it was decided to go right on with the tests.

Our Levia's correspondent says: Mining is on a boom here and the miners are happy. A car load of spar from the Eaton mines was delivered last week. Will Howell, of Sturgis, began prospecting on the John H. Price property last week.

Things are progressing nicely at the Old Jim and a full force of men are employed. They are getting out some mighty fine black Jack there now. Indeed there are many car loads dressed and on the yard now waiting to be hauled from there and shipped.

Dr. Watkins wants to purchase a large quantity of roots and herbs such as ginseng, Indian turnip, horse root, bitter apple, and any other kind of root and herbs that he can use as a root and herb doctor, for which he will pay the highest price in cash on delivery to him at Marion.

The Kentucky Fluor Spar company started all their wagons hauling on Monday from the following mines: Memphis, Klondyke, Hodge, Panther Hollow, Rider, Brown, Yandell, Asbridge, Tabor, Tabb, Wheeler and Blue and Marble. They will start hauling from the balance of their mines next Monday.

The Eagle Fluor Spar company are putting in new machinery at their Cullen mines near Salem for the purpose of separating spar from zinc and lead. The company have a very rich mine at this place, and if they are successful with the separation each and every one of the stockholders of that company can wear diamonds.

One of the finest samples of fluor spar exhibited at this office for many days was brought by Esq. T. C. Campbell, of Dycusburg vicinity. He has a fine vein of it on his farm. The parties to whom he leased it have forfeited their privilege, we are informed and Mr. Campbell is now open for new propositions. Investors would do well to see him.

The Ohio Valley Mining company have contracted to have some drilling done at their Carrsville mine, with a view of ascertaining the depth from the surface down to the limestone. They are certainly located on one of the main fault fissure of the district, and when the limestones are encountered will most likely come upon a rich body of zinc ore.

Mr. Harry Watkins is having the Franks mine cleaned out with a view of ascertaining what a good thing he has. This is one of the old mines of the district, sunk for lead, and from the looks of the dump pile the owners never seemed to realize the zinc possibilities. Luck to you Harry. "The Franks" mine is a fine property for it is located on one of the main fault fissures of the district.

The Marion Mineral company will resume work again this week at their Miller mines. They have the machinery already there. Mr. Fred Clement will fit it up at once. He will also put in two 16-foot log washers with a four inch paddle. We understand they have several hundred tons of washed dirt already mined that carries 25 per cent. carbonate of zinc.

Mr. D. C. Roberts has leased the well known and much talked of Eaton property on the Salem road near Levia, and Mr. Geo. Roberts is general manager of the mine. Mr. Roberts expects to get enough spar from this mine to fill a large contract he has with some people in Alabama. This is quite a new thing for coke furnaces to use the fluor spar, but a good thing for the spar people.

A new boiler was placed in position Monday at the Klondyke mine to furnish power for installing a pump and for running a washery there. Operations will be resumed at this and the Memphis mine, near by, very shortly. This group of mines furnish much of the choice lump spar delivered to the mill at Marion. It is proposed to bring the output up to 25 tons a day at once.

The Ky. Fluor Spar company and Blue & Nunn shipped Tuesday a car load of mineral of different kinds to exhibit at the World's Fair. "Diggenham" & Drescher regret very much they haven't any mineral to exhibit at this fair but if there is a World's Fair next year they say they will be fixed for it. We wish the two young men all the success in their new undertaking which their great energy deserves.

We are informed by Mr. F. Julius Fohs, the geologist and mining engineer for the Marion Zinc company, that this company will begin the erection of their large mill for the separation of the lead and spar at their Riley mine next Monday. Five cars of machinery have arrived with another car en route. The company has also purchased machinery for three of their other mines, all of which will shortly be in operation.

The Gracey Mining company has been formed and incorporated under the acts of congress of 1901 at Washington City. The capital stock is placed at $500,000. A liberal portion of the stock, according to the Times Journal, is held by Clarkeville parties.

J. T. Wall is president and J. E. Medley Secretary. Machinery has been ordered and operations will be commenced in the neighborhood of Gracey in the near future. The company controls leases on several tracts of land and has discovered evidence of the existence in paying quantities of the fine quality of lead, zinc and fluor spar. There are eleven stockholders, composed of some of the best citizens of this section, and they believe that they have a good thing in sight.—New Era.

The Louisville Spar, Lead and Zinc company, organized early in January with a capital stock of $25,000, has closed a contract to mine from its fields located near Marion, Ky., 400 tons of fluor spar a month, which has been contracted for by Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania companies to be used in fluxing iron ore, says the Courier-Journal. The ready sale which the product has found will cause the company to increase its capital stock, and begin aggressive operations as soon as possible. The stockholders in Louisville are L. M. Rice, R. C. Watkins, Jno. Rice and E. A. Hall. Prof. J. L. Elson of New Albany, has been engaged in making analysis for the company, and the spar found is said to be 88 per cent pure. He speaks very encouragingly of the outlook.

HARRY WATKINS' DEPARTURE.

Probably no greater void could have been created in our local mining circles than the withdrawal of Harry Watkins. He has been so long and so intimately associated with all of our successful mining ventures that the name of Harry Sagwa Watkins had become a synonym of success. A good friend to all, from the poor struggling prospector to the fortunate mine owner, his rare tact and good judgment has made him universally loved.

The Press voices the sentiment of the entire district in wishing him the utmost good luck in his new and chosen field of labor. It is very like the man to select for his later life work the amelioration of the sufferings of his fellow man. Indeed, for many years this has been his one object and he has patiently awaited an opportunity to put it into practice. He will visit Paris, the birthplace of his life long friend, Dr. Pretty Eagle, the fortunate discoverer of that rare medicinal plant, Sagwa, and receive his degree. Dr. Watkins will locate in the immediate vicinity of the Hodge mine, where the Sagwa plant grows luxuriantly and from this point will send out his "leaves of healing" to a suffering world.

In the exhibit ores forwarded by Blue & Nunn from the "Old Jim" mine were two huge lumps of sulphide of zinc, each weighing over 3000 lbs., the two aggregating 3 tons; also, one immense piece of mixed galena and Jack was loaded from the "9 acres" property, weighing over 1,000 lbs., and in addition to that these lumps represented a neat condition of blasting and great care had to be used in hoisting them to the surface.

There was also loaded from the Old Jim property as representative lot of carbonate ore as can be seen in any district. Much of this carbonate ore shows considerable oxide and hydroxide.

From the 9 acres an attempt was made to make up as representative lot of ore occurring in fissure veins as was possible; ore was taken mine run, so as to show the various gang accompaniment, as well as attempt to show the character and nature of the Genesis or origin of the primary ore deposits, which are believed to be as rich in this district in zinc concentration possibilities as any zinc-lead district in the country. Several tons of these ores were included in the shipment.

The exhibit carload also contained a most representative lot of choice fluor spar, as well as typical grades of fluor spar, some of them weighing more than a ton each and are beautiful to look upon in their pearly lustre.

Besides, the "Kentucky people" included an exhibit of their various spar products, resultant upon milling, washing and grinding.

All in all the Crittenden county exhibits will have no cause to be ashamed at the big show, for it will not be excelled, if indeed it is equaled, by any district. However, it is to be much regretted that there was so little interest taken by the operators at large to send exhibits of their mine products, and those who have gone to the trouble and expense of getting together this splendid display deserve much credit and compliment. Those not exerting themselves to include representative samples of their product have probably missed an opportunity of a lifetime; certainly these exhibits will do much towards advertising and setting forth the possibilities of this district. The mineral exhibit will be under the critical eye of mining men and capitalists from all sections of the world, and that all operators from this district have not contributed their effort towards making the display more complete is indeed lamentable.

PRESIDENT FISH

Coming Down the Illinois Central to Inspect the System.

President Stuyvesant Fish, of the Illinois Central, will come through over the big system next Monday, accompanied by a party on a private train. It is thought to be a combined business and pleasure trip.

Marion should turn out en masse to meet Mr. Fish and call his attention to our depot. Marion should have a new brick depot, and by properly getting our town and country, the mining and other interests before the officials at the head of the great system, they will land a $10,000 depot and appoint Lon Johnson agent for life.

STARR.

Last Tuesday, March 29, about fifty of our people left for the State of Washington. The names of the parties were published in the Press a week or two ago.

H. C. Hill, who has been visiting here for some time, returned with them.

There were 27 whole tickets sold and a number of half tickets. The number of friends present to see them off was estimated at 500 or more; and now we learn that another car load will leave about the 26th, and that a number of families will leave for Kansas the third Tuesday, and so they continue to go.

The parting at Crayneville was one of deep solemnity. It was almost heartrending to see the mother as she took her son and daughter by the hand and gave them the final farewell kiss, and the father, with quivering lips as he would say, "Son, be a good boy," and turn away to suppress his feeling of grief; and sisters parting from sisters, brothers from brothers, and sweethearts as they slowly reach out their hands and take the last farewell grasp, and at the thought we will soon be 4,000 miles apart, tears would unbidden start.

So they are gone and all have the best wishes of their many friends.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

On the Proposition to Build a New Court House.

MAJORITY REPORT.

After an examination of the public buildings of Crittenden county, according to the instruction of Judge Gordon at the term of court just closed, the grand jury made the following reports on the court house question:

"We, the undersigned grand jury, report fully that we have made an examination of the court house and find that the building is in a condition substantial enough for all purposes required by law.

We, therefore, are opposed to condemning it in the grand jury room, but suggest that it be left to a vote of the people of the county." Signed:

Alex. Woody,
Thos. J. Stone,
Chas. Clement,
W. J. Fuller,
J. H. Bettis,
Wm. J. Little,
W. H. Guess.

MINORITY REPORT.

"We, the undersigned grand jury, in and for Crittenden county, would most respectfully report that we have made a careful and most substantial examination of the public buildings of the county and find that the court house is insufficient for the use as a court house in Crittenden county, both for the accommodation of the county officials and for the sessions of the courts; and, by age and deterioration has become unsafe for the keeping of the public records of the county.

We, therefore, recommend that the building on the public square be removed, and that the county of Crittenden be required to have said buildings removed, and to erect in that place a modern court house; said new building to be erected in the center of public square and to be of modern design, safe construction and amply commodious for the accommodation of all the courts; and that provisions be made in said building for the safety of all public records, and that there be expended for the erection of said building a sum not exceeding $40,000.

The jury also suggests that all the material that could be used in the old building, be used in the construction of the new building." Signed:

A. Dean,
Chas. Davis,
J. W. Lewis,
E. E. Harpending,
H. C. Farmer.

GRAND OPENING OF THE NEW SPRING LINES!

The Girl With a Pretty Foot.

As a rule she is proud of it, and well should she be, and the girl with a pretty foot should wear GYPSY HOSIERY because it enhances the beauty of any foot. In Gypsy Hosiery you will find the rarest and nobbiest in Fancy Styles for Spring and Summer wear. Gypsy Hosiery is for Men, Women, Boys and Girls, and it wears longer and looks better than any Hosiery on the market. Try it, on our say so.

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of Love, but on the contrary a young woman's mind begins to revolve around the question of New Dresses, New Hats, New Shoes and all the articles that go to make up the spring outfit. Perhaps this may suggest the reason for the young man's fancy lightly turning to thoughts of love. It is with considerable pleasure that we announce that the New Spring Goods are all in and ready for your inspection. We want you to come and look whether you buy now or not, you will find this "a pleasant place to linger" and we want you to feel perfectly at home here.

Spring Styles in Mens' Furnishings.

Now comes the time for discarding the old ties, shaking the winter Shirts, getting out of heavy underwear, when the man blossoms forth like the rose in a new spring rigging. We have watched the markets for all that is new and best, and the boys will find our Ties and Shirts look real springy; take a little time and look for yourself.

We can Please You.

SPRING STYLES IN SHOES!

What a relief it is to get rid of the heavy old winter shoes; good old friends they were too, but spring means a change, a coming out in new things. For the ladies we are showing the most exquisitely feminine line of shoes that have been in vogue for many years. Men shoes are built of very sensible lines this season. The styles are all here and we want you to come in and try on, we are confident you will buy.

WHAT THE LADIES ARE LOOKING FOR.

We wish we could paint a word picture that would bring before you, that would describe, the beautiful effects in the New Dress Goods for spring and summer wear. We have never shown more beautiful patterns and we predict a royal reception for these new goods from the ladies of Marion. Other things for the home, table linen, table cloths, napkins, etc., for house furnishings, the new Curtains and Carpets, Clever Patterns of Oilcloth. This will be an interesting store for you to visit.

THE WELL DRESSED MEN!

Will be pleased with the New Spring Clothes that we are showing. There is nothing freakish about the styles this year. There is considerable ginger in young men clothes. The time was when a man had to go to a merchant tailor and pay $35 or $50 for such clothing as we offer in our Ready-to-Wear Department from $10 to $15. These suits have extended shoulders, hand-made button-holes, the very best of lining, and there is fit and style in every suit.

SELF CONTROL.

Self-control is the highest type of Americanism. It is and must be the beginning of all reform. It is at the foundation of good citizenship. It is our first great duty to control ourselves.

It is the moral and patriotic obligation of every citizen to be a symmetrically developed, rounded, well controlled being with creative power, ballast, bearing and individuality.

SELF-CREATED MISERY.

Must of our misery we create or imagine for ourselves. "The mind is its own place. And in itself can make a heaven of hell, A hell of heaven."

We think some dislike us and we are wretched. We fear some calamity, and we are terrified. We imagine occasion after occasion of discomfort. And it is all within our own mind. There are facts enough in the world, outside of the mind, but let us deal with them as facts, and not worry over much with worries purely self-created.

Relief for Tobacco Growers.

Washington, March 31.—The bill repealing a tax of 6 cents per pound on leaf tobacco was favorably reported by unanimous vote of the Ways and Means Sub-Committee today, victory being thus assured to the Kentucky and Tennessee Congressmen, who have fought for the relief of our growers of tobacco. The bill as reported was drafted by Commissioner John W. Yerkes, and removes all restrictions from unmanufactured tobacco and embodies the principle of the bills introduced by Representatives Gaines, Trimble, James, Stanley and Rhea. The bill will be reported by the whole committee next Wednesday and will be passed immediately.

Editor Press:—After my compliments, I will tell you the tale of a young lawyer—it matters not who—not noted for his intelligence, who succeeded in having a client acquitted of murder. Meeting a friend a few days afterward, the lawyer was greeted with warm congratulations.

"Yes," said the lawyer, mopping his brow, "I got him off; but it was a narrow escape."

"A narrow escape? How?"

"Oh the tightest squeeze you ever saw. I examined the witnesses myself, you know, and made the argument, the plea being self-defense. The jury were out two whole days. Finally, the judge called them before him and asked what the matter was."

"Only one thing," replied the foreman. "Was the prisoner's counsel retained by him, or appointed by the court?"

"No, gentlemen, the prisoner is a man of means," said the judge, "and engaged his own counsel."

"I could not see what bearing the question had on the evidence," continued the lawyer, "but ten minutes later in filed the jury, and what do you think the verdict was?"

"What?" asked his friend.

"Why, not guilty, on the ground of insanity."

The Comfort of Friends.

There are friends who are to us like a great rock in a weary land. We flee to them in the heat of parching days, and rest in their shadow. A friend in whom we can confide without fear of disappointment; who, we are sure, will never fail us, will never stint his love in serving us, who always has healing tenderness for the hurt of our heart, comfort for our sorrows and cheer for our discouragement—such a friend is not only a rock of shelter for us in time of danger, but is also as rivers of water in a thirsty land, when our hearts cry out for light and love.

CHAPTER XVIII. A DUEL BY MOONLIGHT.

WHEN Hamilton, after running some distance, saw that he was gaining upon Alice and would soon overtake her, it added fresh energy to his limbs. He had quickly realized the foolishness of what he had done in visiting the room of his prisoner at so late an hour in the night. What would his officers and men think? To let Alice escape would be extremely embarrassing, and to be seen chasing her would give good ground for ridicule on the part of his entire command. Therefore his first thought, after passing through the postern and realizing fully what sort of predicament threatened him, was to recapture her and return her to the prison room in the blockhouse without attracting attention. This now promised to be an easier task than he had at first feared, for in the moonlight, which on account of the dispersing clouds was fast growing stronger, he saw her seem to falter and weaken. Certainly her flight was checked and took an eccentric turn, as if some obstruction had barred her way. He rushed on, not seeing that as Alice swerved a man intervened. Indeed, he was within a few strides of laying his hand on her when he saw her make the strange movement. It was as if, springing suddenly aside, she had become two persons instead of one. But instantly the figures coincided again, and in becoming taller faced about and confronted him.

Hamilton stopped short in his tracks. The dark figure was about five paces from him. It was not Alice, and a sword flashed dimly but unmistakably in a ray of the moon. The motion visible was that of an expert swordsman placing himself firmly on his legs, with his weapon at guard.

Alice saw the man in her path just in time to avoid running against him. Lightly as a flying bird when it whisks itself in a short semicircle past a tree or a bough she sprang aside and swung around to the rear of him, where she could continue her course toward the town. But in passing she recognized him. It was Father Beret, and how grim he looked! The discovery was made in the twinkling of an eye, and its effect was instantaneous, not only checking the force of her flight, but stopping her and turning her about to gaze before she had gone five paces farther.

Hamilton's nerve held, startled as he was, when he realized that an armed man stood before him. Changing the rapier, which he held in his right hand, over into his left, he drew a small pistol from the breast of his coat and fired. The report was sharp and loud, but it caused no uneasiness or inquiry in the fort owing to the fact that Indians invariably emptied their guns when coming into the town.

Hamilton's aim, although hasty, was not bad. The bullet from his weapon cut through Father Beret's clothes between his left arm and his body, slightly creasing the flesh on a rib. Beyond him it struck heavily and audibly. Alice fell limp and motionless to the soft, wet ground, where cold puddles of water were splintered over with ice. She lay pitifully crumpled, one arm outstretched in the moonlight. Father Beret heard the bullet hit her and turned in time to see her stagger backward with a hand convulsively pressed over her heart. Her face, slightly upturned as she reeled, gave the moon a pallid target for its strengthening rays. Sweet, beautiful, its rigid features flashed for a second and then half turned from the light and went down.

Father Beret uttered a short, thin cry and moved as if to go to the fallen girl, but just then he saw Hamilton's sword pass over again into his right hand and knew that there was no time for anything but death or flight. The good priest did not shrink what might have made the readiest of soldiers nervous. Hamilton was known to be a great swordsman and proud of the dis-tingering to the men in the fort he had heard them talk of the governor's incomparable skill.

A priest is, in perhaps all cases but the last out of a thousand, a man of peace, not to be forced into a fight, but the exceptional one out of the ten hundred it is well not to stir up if you are looking for an easy victim. Hamilton was in the habit of considering every antagonist immediately conquerable. His domineering spirit could not, when opposed, reckon with any possibility of disaster. As he sprang toward Father Beret there was a mutual recognition and—we speak guardedly—something that sounded exactly like an exchange of furious execrations. As for Father Beret's words, they may have been a mere priestly formula of obprobrium.

The moon was accommodating. With a beautiful white splendor it entered a space of cloudless sky, where it seemed to slip along the dusky blue surface among the stars, far over in the west.

"It's you, is it?" Hamilton exclaimed between teeth that almost crushed one another. "You prowling hypocrite!"

Father Beret said something. It was not complimentary, and it sounded sulphurous, if not profane. Remember, however, that a priest can scarcely hope to be better than Peter, and Peter did actually make the simon pure remark when hard pressed. At all events, Father Beret said something with vigorous emphasis, and met Hamilton half way.

Both men, stimulated to the finger tips by a draft of imperious passion, fairly plunged to the inevitable conflict. Ah, if Alice could have seen her beautiful weapons cross, if she could have heard the fine, far-reaching clink, clink, clink, while sparks leaped forth dazzling even in the moonlight; if she could have noted the admirable—nay, the amazing—play as the men, regarding coolness to some extent, gathered their forces and fell cautiously to the deadly work, it would have been enough to change the cold shimmer of her face to a flash of warm delight. For she would have understood every feint, lunge, parry, and seen at a glance how Father Beret set the pace and led the race at the beginning. She would have understood, for Father Beret had taught her all she knew about the art of fencing.

Hamilton quickly felt, and with a sense of its strangeness, the priest's mastery command of his weapon. The surprise called up all his caution and cleverness. Before he could adjust himself to such an unexpected condition he came near being spitted outright by a pretty pass under his guard. The narrow escape, while it put him on his best mettle, sent a wave of superstition through his brain. He recalled what Barlow had jocularly said about the doings of the devil-priest or priest-devil at Rousillon place on that night when the patrol guard attempted to take Gaspard Rousillon. Was this indeed Father Beret, that gentle old man, now before him, or was it an avenging demon from the shades?

The thought flitted electrically across his mind, while he deftly parried, feinted, lunged, giving his dark antagonist all he could do to meet the play. Priest or devil, he thought—he cared not which—he would reach his vital presently. Yet there lingered with him a haunting half fear or tenuous awe, which may have aided, rather than hindered, his excellent swordsmanship.

Underfoot it was slushy with mud, water and ice, the consistency varying from a somewhat solid crust to puddles that half inundated Hamilton's boots and quite overflowed Father Beret's moccasins—an execrable field for the little matter in hand. They gradually shifted position. Now it was the governor, then the priest, who had advantage as to the light. For some time Father Beret seemed quite the shifter and surer fighter, but (was his age telling on him?) he lost perceptibly in suppleness. Still Hamilton failed to touch him. There was a baffling something in the old man's escape now and again from what ought to have been an inevitable stroke. Was it luck? It seemed to Hamilton more than that—a sort of uncanny evasion. Or was it supreme mastery, the last and subtlest reach of the fencer's craft?

Youth forced age slowly backward in the struggle, which at times took on sports so furious that the slender blades, becoming mere glints of acicular steel, split the moonlight back and forth, up and down, so that their meetings, following one another in a well high continuous stroke, sent a jarring noise through the air. Father Beret lost inch by inch, until the fighting was almost over the body of Alice, and now for the first time Hamilton became aware of that motionless something with the white, luminous face in profile against the ground; but he did not let even that unsettle his fencing gaze, which followed the sunken and dusky eyes of his adversary. A perspiration suddenly flooded his body, however, and began to drip across his face. His arm was tiring. A doubt crept like a chill into his heart. Then the priest appeared to add a cubit to his stature and waver steadily in the soft light. Behind him, low against the sky, a wide winged owl shot noiselessly across just above the prairie.

The soul of a true priest is double; it is the soul of a saint and the soul of a worldly man. What is most beautiful in this duality is the supreme courage with which the saintly spirit attacks the worldly and so often heroically masters it. In the beginning of the fight Father Beret let a passion of the earthly body take him by storm. It was well for Governor Henry Hamilton that the priest was so wrought upon as to unsettle his nerves; otherwise there would have been an evil heart impaled midway of Father Beret's rapier. A little later the saintly spirit began to assert itself, feebly indeed, but surely. Then it was that Father Beret seemed to be losing agility for awhile as he backed away from Hamilton's increasing energy of assault. In his heart the priest was saying: "I will not murder him. I must not do that. He deserves death, but vengeance is not mine. I will disarm him." Step by step he retreated, playing erratically to make an opening for a trick he meant to use.

It was singularly loose play, a sort of wavering, shifty, incomprehensible show of carelessness that caused Hamilton to entertain a doubt, which was really a fear, as to what was going to happen, for, notwithstanding all this neglect of due precaution on the priest's part, to touch him seemed impossible, miraculously so, and every plan of attack dissolved into futility in the most maddening way.

"Priest, devil or ghost!" raged Hamilton, with a froth gathering around his mouth. "I'll kill you, or—"

He made a lunge when his adversary left an opening which appeared absolutely beyond defense. It was a quick, dexterous, vicious thrust. The blade leaped toward Father Beret's heart with a twinkle like lightning.

At that moment, although warily alert and hopeful that his opportunity was at hand, Father Beret came near losing his life, for as he sidestepped and easily parried Hamilton's thrust, which he had invited, thinking to entangle his blade and disarm him, he caught his foot in Alice's skirt and stumbled, nearly falling across her. It would have been easy for Hamilton to run him through had he instantly followed up the advantage, but the moonlight on Alice's face struck his eyes, and by that indirect ray of vision which is often strangely effective he recognized her lying there. It was a disconcerting thing for him, but he rallied instantly and sprang aside, taking a new position just in time to face Father Beret again. A chill crept up his back. The horror which he could not shake off enraged him beyond measure. Gathering fresh energy, he renewed the assault with desperate steadiness, the highest product of absolutely mottled fury.

Father Beret felt the dangerous access of power in his antagonist's arm and knew that a crisis had arrived. He could not be careless now. Here was a swordsman of the best school calling upon him for all the skill and strength and cunning that he could command. Again the saintly element was near being thrown aside by the worldly in the old man's breast. Alice lying there seemed mutely demanding that he avenge her. A riotous something in his blood clamored for a quick and certain act in this drama by moonlight, a tragic close by a stroke of terrible yet perfectly fitting justice. There was but the space of a breath for the conflict in the priest's heart, yet during that little time he reasoned the case and quoted Scripture to himself.

"Domine, percutimus in gladio?" rang through his mind. ("Lord, shall we smite with the sword?")

Hamilton seemed to make answer to this with a dazzling display of skill. The rapiers sang a strange song above the sleeping girl, a lullaby with connotations of death in every keen note.

Hamilton pressed, nay rushed, the fight with a weight and at a pace

Little Folks' Corner.

For Children Under 12.

PUZZLE FOR THIS WEEK.

Why do hens lay eggs?

Children, Be Careful About Fire!

Smith's Grove, Ky., March 31.—Rebecca Gott, the eleven-year-old daughter of J. E. Gott, died at the home of her parents. Her death was the result of burns sustained four weeks ago while trying to save her little two-year-old sister from the flames. The little one was burned to death.

When Papa Was a Boy.

When papa was a little boy you really couldn't find in all the country round about a child so quick to mind. His mother never called but once and he was always there; He never made the baby cry or pulled his sister's hair. He never slid down banisters or made the slightest noise. And never in his life was known to fight with other boys. He finished Latin, French and Greek when he was ten years old, And knew the Spanish alphabet as soon as he was told. He never, never thought of play until his work was done. He labored hard from break of day until the set of sun. He never scraped his muddy shoes upon the parlor floor, And never answered back his ma, and never banged the door, "But, truly, I could never see," said little Robbie Roy, "How he could never do these things and really be a boy."

A Timely Sneeze.

Judge Emory Speer, of Georgia, sneezed in the Auditorium Annex lobby one day recently, and George Thompson Johnston Kerkew, lost and miserable, was thereby restored to his mother, says a Chicago dispatch to the New York Herald.

It was about 10 o'clock when William Dunning, clerk, looked over the counter and saw a boy of perhaps five years.

"Hello, son! What do you want?" he queried.

"I want mother," answered the little fellow, and tears were in his eyes.

"Certainly, my boy. But don't cry and we'll get her right away. Now, tell me her name."

"I don't know," and the little fellow began sobbing.

"Well, then, what's your name?" queried the clerk.

"I don't know; I've forgotten. But I know what it used to be. It was George Thompson."

The clerk looked over the register. "No Thompsons stopping here," he finally said.

"I knew that isn't my mamma's name. You see, my father died, and mother married again. Then my name was Johnston, George Johnston."

The clerk again looked over the books. "No Johnstons here either," he added.

No, that ain't it either. Now mothers married again and I've got another father, but I don't know his name," and there were more sobs.

"How do you know she is here?" finally asked the clerk. Maybe she is somewhere else."

"No, sir, she was married in New York on Friday," answered the boy, between sobs. "She said she would come here and meet me. I came all the way by myself from Denver. Wasn't I brave?"

Judge Speer sat in one of the leather chairs not far away. He was to give an oration here and was talking to one of the members of the Union League Club. He looked up and was seized with a desire to sneeze. It was a long drawn out "k-e-r-c-h-e-w!"

"That's it!" yelled the boy, and he danced up and down.

"That's what?" demanded the clerk. "My name." Didn't you hear that man yell it?"

The clerk looked and there it was—Mr. and Mrs. Kerkew, New York.

The boy was quickly taken to his mother, and in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Kerkew and George Thompson Johnston Kerkew left for Fort Worth, Texas.

"We want a man for our information bureau," said the manager, but he must be one that can answer all sorts of questions and not lose his head."

"That's me," replied the applicant.

Will Come to Marion.

E. P. Stewart, the popular jeweler and optician, will close out his business here and go to Marion, Ky., where he will re-establish himself in the jewelry business. Mr. Stewart thinks the location there is a much better one than Owensville. Marion, Ky., is a city of three thousand and is without an up-to-date jewelry store. Mr. Stewart came to Owensville from Oakland City about two years ago, and during the period here as a citizen and business man has proven himself to be progressive and enterprising in the true sense of the word.
Owensville regrets to have him leave but our loss will be Marion's gain and that city is fortunate in securing a business man of Mr. Stewart's ability. He is a first-class jeweler and an experienced optician.—Owensville Star.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Andy Williams' Team Runs Away
And He is Fatally Crushed.

On the morning of March 30th, about 6 a. m., writes our Salem correspondent, Mr Andy Williams who resides on the farm of Esq C R Stevens, one mile East of Salem, started to take a load of chickens to market. He had a span of young mules to his wagon.
Just as he started the team became frightened and started to run; by some means Mr Williams lost his balance and was thrown out of the wagon, and fell on the double trees. The team ran over a stump some 3 feet high, Mr Williams was caught between the front axle of the wagon and the stump, tearing his left arm and shoulder almost entirely loose from the body, killing him almost instantly.

Mr John Bass was with him at the time of the accident and Mr.
Bass says he reached him a moment after he fell and that the unfortunate man only breathed twice after he got to him.

The deceased was a native of Tennessee, and was an honorable, hard working, honest man. He leaves a widow and 5 or 6 children to mourn his loss. The remains was buried at Tyner's Chapel on March 31st. His bereaved family have the heartfelt sympathy of this entire community.

BUTLER-MOSS.

Wednesday morning at 10 o'- clock, in the parlors of the residence of Rev. J. J. Franks at Salem, Ky., Mr Ernest Allen Butler and Miss Frances Moss, of Pinckneyville, to the altar.

Only the families and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony which joined these young hearts for life. After the congratulations they drove to the home of Mr. Albert Butler, the groom's father, and there a sumptuous repast awaited them. Mr.
Butler was accompanied on his trip after his bonny bride by Mr.
J. S. Waggoner, and he and the bride's sister, Miss Elizabeth Moss were the attendants.

The bride is one of the most attractive girls in the Salem valley.
Her father is S. J. Moss, the well-known steamboat man, who is now on one of the big Tennessee river packets.

Mr. Butler is well known in Marion. He was formerly employed by McConnell & Stone, and is now in the sales department of Simpson & Elder's big store at Salem. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Butler, and a grand son of the late F. M. Glenn and stands high where ever he is known.

The young couple will go to house-keeping at once and have the best wishes of a host of friends.

The Press, in extending congratulations, hopes that they will have as little of the shadow and as much of the sunshine as is usually allotted to the best of his creatures by the Giver of all blessings.

Mrs. C. S. Nunn Entertains

A very enjoyable and unique entertainment was that given by Mrs. C. S.
Nunn, on Wednesday last. A part of the afternoon was spent in a "knitting" contest, and this proved to be a very trying affair to most of the ladies as they had not been trained in the arts of "our mothers" as they should have been.
The prize for this contest was won by Mrs. John Nunn.

Then the ladies were invited to another room and given an opportunity to test the cultivation of their olfactory nerves. Twelve bottles of different essences were set before them, and, judging from the smell of each, they were to say what each bottle contained. Miss Nell Walker won the prize in this contest.

Elegant and delicious refreshments were then served, salads, fresh peas, stuffed olives, wafers, cheese straws, ice cream, cake and coffee.

Those present were Mesdames John L. Gray, Smithland, Ky.; Judge Gordon, Madisonville, Ky.; Charles Grass-ham, Smithland, Ky.; Miss Nelle Marshal, Bowling Green, Ky.; Mesdames W.
J. Deboe, H. A. Haynes, T. V. Joiner,
Charles Evans, T. H. Cochran, J. H.
Orme, J. W. Blue, G. C. Gray, R. L.
Flanary, John Nunn, J. W. Wilson, H.
H. Sayre, Eva Moore, S. M. Jenkins, O.
M. James, G. M. Crider, R. F. Haynes, Evalyn Shelby, Nelle Walker and Della Barnes.

SHADY GROVE.

ery house in town, but no fatal cases yet.

her parents, near Dalton.

this place and gone to Quinn.
We are very sorry to see him leave.

appointment here Sunday.

The people of Shady Grove have organized a Sunday school.

Miss Verna Todd has postponed her school on account of measles.

Mrs. Campbell is improving after an illness of ten weeks.

Very little farming going on in this vicinity on account of heavy rains.

Mr. Guess, our hasting mail man is always on time.

Lee Hodges got his mule's leg broken by hauling logs.

Mrs. Joe Ramsey, of Hopkins, visited her sister here Friday.

Roy Towery will be at home in a few days from Missouri.

Mr. D. H. Hubbard and wife will move to J. h. Beard's residence.

Mr. H. Crowl fell out of a wagon and was seriously hurt.

Pretty Kansas Girls.

St. Louis, April 4.—Mrs. Noble L.
Prentiss, matron of the Kansas building, desires to make an exhibit of "home-grown" Kansas girls at the St. Louis Fair. This may be a valuable tip to Mrs. Smith, the newly selected hostess of the Kentucky building.
"Kansas has gone to a great deal of trouble and expense to make a display of products at the World's Fair, but nothing has been to show off our handsome girls." Mrs. Prentiss said, "I have a suggestion to make to the State Commission which I adopted. I expect to have a small sum appropriated to fit up quarters in the Kansas building for half a dozen girls. I will need help in entertaining the visitors at the building and I want to pick out six Kansas girls each two weeks during the Fair to act as my assistants."

A FOREIGN COLONY.

One of the leading citizens of Marion was recently advocating the colonization of foreigners in Crittenden county, as a means of opening up her vast mineral wealth. The idea is not altogether a new one. It has been tried before in Western Kentucky, and with some success, too. Chinese laborers were brought into Lyon county many years ago by Wm. Kelley, who owned large iron foundries in that region and found Chinese labor more economical than the negroes and low class English he had previously employed. Recent statistics show that the mineral region of Central Kentucky—the coal and iron district—have attracted a larger per cent. of the foreigners coming to America in the last few years.

The importation of foreigners for mining purposes has its drawbacks. However, Scandinavians are employed by the thousands in Michigan, Montana, and other Northern mineral regions; but there would be a risk in testing the Norwegian constitution in Kentucky climate and the majority of desirable emigrants from warmer countries are not attracted by mineral industries,—save in some cases the Italians, and the Italians are certainly to be classed among the undesirable.

One looking out for the real interests of the community would hardly suggest such a project as a colony of emigrants of filthy, slovenly habits. What a progressive community like Crittenden county wants is an energetic, cleanly and peaceable people, who will be advantageous to the development and prosperity of the county. If the mineral interests did not attract this element the farms might prove a sufficient inducement.

Fruit culture, which has so long been neglected in this and adjoining counties might be made a leading industry, and it would prove a profitable one. Only a few years after Wm. Kelly moved with his Chinese laborers from Lyon county a colony of Swiss settled in that part of the country known as "between the rivers, opposite Eddyville, in Lyon county. Here were thrifty, industrious people, attracted by the excellent farming lands, who did much to develop the country. Their first homes they built themselves—not only being their own carpenters, but hewing and dressing their own lumber. Most of the houses were built of clapboards, which were fastened to the main framework by wooden pins, which the men carved with their pocket knives by candle light, after their day's work was done. Around the large cities the Dutch truck farmers are always welcomed. Japan labor is used largely on olive and other fruit farms of southern California, but one does not care for oriental labor when it can be avoided.

Even without the foreigner in our midst the art of fruit culture need not be neglected. Apples and small berries are well suited to Kentucky soil and climate. Both when properly cultivated bring good prices. That grapes can be raised and large profits reaped therefrom has been proven by the Pewee Valley Wine Co., a Louisville firm who raise their own grapes in Jefferson county, and sell thousands of bottles of excellent wine every year. With a little fertilizing on some of the poor farms and none at all on the better lands, strawberries, gooseberries, raspberries, and small fruits can reap large profits for an enterprising farmer. The market is crowded with apples now—but not with good apples. The best varieties never fail to find a ready market and a good price.

Choose an apple best suited to the climate and soil. Care for the tree well. Modern fruit growers plow and fertilize the orchards in autumn and prune and spray the trees in the spring. When the apples are ripe they should be carefully picked and packed for shipment with as little handling as possible. Let no defective apple be sold.

The first year the fruit will bring little more than one cent to each tree but after four years they seldom bring less than ninety cts. or one dollar per tree, and can be made to bring $1.50.

Buying land at $50 an acre and planting 600 trees, (75 trees to the acre) and selling the fruit at $1.50 per tree will give a net return of $900 for each year crop, when the land, trees and labor cost less than $1.50 per tree.

So with or without the aid of foreign laborers our fruit industry need not be neglected, but by inducing a few immigrants seeking agricultural lands into this part of the country a vast improvement in the farms may be brought about.

But let the prominent citizen who has been so heartily advocating a colony of immigrants, stop to consider what class of foreigners he wishes to impose upon the county.

CRACKSMEN AT CLINTON.

Clinton, Ky., March 30.—Burglars entered the post office in this place last night, blew open the safe and secured about $919.05 in stamps and money. They effected an entrance through a back window, buggy tracks showing that they had driven here from a distance.

The post office is in a building in the heart of the business portion of the town, yet so quietly did they work that no one was aroused. The work is that of experts, as the condition of the safe shows. This is the third time the post office has been robbed.

Joel Deboe, one of our county boys, is postmaster at Clinton; he is a son-in-law of E. P. Hill.

A. H. Thurnes, Mgr. Wills Creek Coal Co., Buffalo, O., writes: "I have been afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble for years, passing gravel or stones with excruciating pains. Other medicines only gave relief. After taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE the result was surprising. A few doses started the brick dust, like fine stones, etc., and now I have no pain across my kidneys and I feel like a new man. FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE has done me $1,000 worth of good."

HER EXTRAVAGANCE.

Miss Leonard Had to Get in Her Trunks Every Day on Ship.

Mrs. Cowling, in her testimony in the famous chaperone suit, related the circumstances of Miss Leonard joining the party, and also told of the trip.

The young woman was at that time not quite seventeen years of age. After sailing from New York one of Miss Leonard's first extravagances according to Mrs. Cowling, was a desire to get into her trunks, which were in the forward hold, every day. "She liked to dress," said Mrs. Cowling, "and to get her dinner gowns it cost two or three dollars every time it was necessary to move the trunks out where she could get at them."

Friction appears to have developed in the party at London; Mrs. Cowling testified that Miss Leonard insisted on saying things offensive to the rest of the party. "When a hat worn by any member of the party did not suit her she would make remarks," said witness. "We came to an understanding at London, however. I told her very plainly that her unkind remarks in my presence would have to cease. Miss Leonard became indignant and cabled her father, though I don't know to what effect."

From that time forward her manner toward me was cool. Things grew worse after we left England and traveled through Holland and Belgium. At Berlin she demanded another chaperone. She said the other members of the party did not travel to suit her. "I told her that it was impossible to furnish her with another chaperone, but would let her have a courier when we arrived at Venice."

Mrs. Cowling explained that in Italy Miss Leonard and Miss Newman, another member of the party traveled with a courier. The courier, Mrs. Cowling said, was a man about forty five years of age, whom she knew well and who was highly recommended. "Miss Leonard" said Mrs. Cowling "received $300 from her father, with which she said she wished to buy clothes in Paris. She told me she was going to make her debut in St. Louis the following fall. The young ladies went on to Paris accompanied by the courier, and when I arrived Miss Leonard had spent all the money sent her by her father, besides $150 which she had charged to the hotel. This I was compelled to pay before we could leave the place. In London she paid $52 a for handbag."

Mr. Leonard has put in a counter claim for $300, which he holds is the amount Mrs. Cowling allowed his daughter to expend above her allowance, and which he had to make good. Mr. Leonard's deposition was filed this morning. It only related to what he claimed was his contract arrangement with

Mrs. Cowling for taking his daughter on the trip. Mrs. Cowling denied that there was any specific arrangement that Miss Leonard's trip should not cost more than $1,200, but said that the amount to be spent in any travel "always depended on the personality of the traveler." Half the pleasure of foreign travel, she declared, was the purchase of souvenirs.

A MEDITATION.

BY O. G. W.

Lo! the cold sunshine of the searing moon
With silent thunder darkens midnight's noon
And sable beams of calmly fragrant sound
Disturb the summits of that shoddy profound
Where all my future memories of yore
Forgotten lie, unfading evermore!
How sweetly echoes from the Orient West
(Now that the frenzied calm, the toilsome rest, Of thirsty waves is over and begun.)
The languid fury of the peaceful sun,
Which like some drought-swollen river darts afar
The verdant azure of its crimson star!
On my sad soul, lit up with blissful gloom,
Descend, oh tuneful silence, from thy tomb,
Enfolding me with thine unconscious lore,—
Gentle reader, dost thou particularly desire any more?

To Conquer Worry.

Get into gear; rise above it; don't worry; rise above, conquer the disease, struggle against it, until you win. Defeat but adds to strength if you keep up the fight; the glories of the victory simply repay your effort. "I never really knew what happiness or success was until I got rid of worry," remarked a friend.

No matter what may be the cause of your worryment, to worry over it will do more harm than good. Then shall we let things slide and not try to improve conditions? By no means. But instead of weakly worrying about them, tackle them in earnest. Do a day's work at it, whatever your duty or problem may be. Eat well live simply, do as you would be done by, keep your head level, use your best judgment, drink in the inspiration of nature, seek the cooperation of the spirit, acquire resourceful poise; resourceful strength will come, you will sleep like a babe, worry will disappear, each day you will awake in a new world and to a far more glorious existence.

"A thousand unseen hands Reach down to help you to their peaceful heights. And all the forces of the firmament Shall fortify your strength." —Good Housekeeping.

WHALE GETS EXPLODE

LETTER FROM TEXAS.

DENISON, TEX., March 25th, 1904.—ED. PRESS: After a silence of several months, and seeing but little in your columns from the "Lone Star State," I shall endeavor to write a few lines. But first permit me to inclose a few shekels for your contribution box, that I may be assured of the continuance of your valuable paper, which I've been reading for quite a number of years.

Spring has been with us for several weeks, and every one is hustling to keep up with it. The farmer is busy planting his crops; the business men are working their feet to the utmost to be prepared for the "Easter Opening," and the politician is beginning to take that fever which is characteristic to the opening of the great campaign.

As I sit at my desk writing I can see a small garden just across the street, in which I see a corn, beans and peas and radishes, lettuce, onions and several other vegetables large enough to eat. Flowers are in bloom abundantly; violets, lilacs, hyacinths, tulips, flags, and others too numerous to mention.

This is a beautiful afternoon and reminds me of the hills and valleys of old Crittenden and Livingston counties, where I used to be when the woods began to get their spring clothes on and the dogwood began to bloom. 'Twas then I'd stroll away to the banks of Crooked or Hurricane creeks and angle for the finny tribe. And I must say right here, Mr. Editor, if you will pay me a visit, bringing your fishing rod and your gun, I'll show you the greatest time you ever did see in the line of sport. You come and bring your "devil" along; he can look out for the bait and a can to put it in.

Well, it seems that all of Marion's people—I mean the young people—have fallen into that habit which has become so popular this year. When I pick up the Press or get a letter from there I here, or rather see an account of wedding bells. I wonder if the leap year has anything to do with it?

It is, and has been my intention to spend a few weeks in Kentucky this year, but if this thing keeps up I don't know as there will be much of an inducement to come. I shall be in good practice of saying, "Yes, but this is so sudden!" So don't say it unless you mean it. See?

Well, Mr. Editor, for fear of taking up too much of your time and a corresponding amount of space in your valuable paper, I shall bring my letter to a close.

What has become of the many boys and young men with whom I used to associate, that have come west to grow up with the country? Why not let us hear from you occasionally through the columns of the Press.

Wishing you a prosperous year and a happy fishing trip, I am yours from Old Kentucky.

IN MEMORIAM.

Reba, the three-year-old daughter of J. W. and Emma Weldon, passed quietly away Sunday morning, March 27, 1904.

The little one was a patient sufferer, and lingered on earth only these few brief years to be called to the arms of Jesus. Stricken with pneumonia a few days ago, her tender earthly life soon gave way to the ravages of the disease, and as the Sabbath day was opening one told us little Reba was dying—

"Baby's dying,
Do not stir—
Let her spirit lightly float,
Tho' the sighing
Lips of her—
Still the murmur in the throat;
Let the moan of grief be curbed—
Baby must not be disturbed!"

"Baby's dying,
Do not stir—
Let her fine life lightly swim,
Tho' the sighing
Lips of her—
Out from us and up to Him—
Let her leave us with that smile—
Kiss and miss her after while."

The first person ever resurrected from the dead was a child. One of those raised from the dead by Jesus while on earth was a little girl. It was the children that shouted "Hosanna!" when Jesus cleansed the temple of the money changers. Christ loved and welcomed and blessed the children. In referring to the death of his child, David said, "I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me."

When these little ones are called to God so early, they are free from the world's sorrows, pains and temptations. They are jewels of our hearts, laid up for us above. Heaven is more dear because of children. Little Reba is now with the Lover of children, and forever immortal in the light of that city, where all our loved redeemed ones are. These sweet children are ever going to be with Jesus.

"They are going—ever going—
Jesus called them long ago!
All the wintry time they're passing Softly as the falling snow.
When the violets in the spring-time
Catch the azure of the sky,
They are carried out to slumber
Sweetly where the violets lie.
"Little feet by angels guided,
Never in forbidden way!
They are going—ever going—
Leaving many a lonely spot;
But 'tis Jesus who has called them—Suffer, and forbid them not."
T. A. Conway.

TOLU.

The family of J. J. Thomas all have measles.

The steamboat landing at this place is now 11 feet under water, and the end is not yet, as the water is still rising. ## ENTERPRISE, INGENUITY AND ORIGINALITY.

Say something against Lax Foe in the presence of those who have taken it and you'll be sorry. Every person using Lax Foe will tell you an interesting story of how it cured them.

Lax Foe is the very latest example of medical enterprise, ingenuity and originality. Those who have been sick, and others, say, Lax Foe is the best medicine made. To make it a little better than any other remedy even though it cost more is an investment and not an expense to the S. H. Winstead Medicine Co. No advertisement is equal to having people say, Lax Foe is the best. To suppose to any business give the consumer more than you promise. That is done in Lax Foe. It cures indigestion, constipation, kidney and liver trouble. Its good effects are felt at once. Take no substitute. The genuine is sold on the money back plan by druggists everywhere.

A Trifle Mixed.

Three smart young men and three nice girls—

All lovers true as steel—
Decided in a friendly way
To spend the day awhile.
They started in the early morn,
And nothing seemed amiss,
And when they reached the leafy lanes
They rode in like this!

They wandered by the verdant dale,
Beside the rippling rill;
The sun shone brightly all the while;
They heard the song-birds' trill.
They sped through many a woodland glade,
The world was full of bliss—
And when they rested in the shade
They sat intow like this!

The sun went down and evening came
A lot too soon, they said;
Too long they tarried on the way,
The clouds grew black overhead.
Down dashed the rain! They homeward flew Till one unlucky miss Slipped sideways—Crash! Great Scott!
The lot

Were all mixed up like this!
