MINING NEWS.

At Work All Along the Line.—A Strong New Company.

Mr J. A. Cohenour of Joplin, Mo., is here putting in the milling plant at the Riley mines.

Mr W. G. Archer, of Owensboro Ky., is in the city this week looking after his mining interests.

Mr Henry Bauldauf and son, of Henderson, Ky., are here this week. They are interested in this field.

The Marion Mineral company is making great progress in putting in machinery at the Miller carbonate mine.

Mr J. B. Cambron of Morganfield, is in the city this week looking after the interest of the Glendale mining company.

Our Sheridan correspondent writes: The mines are all starting again; there will be more men needed soon.

Ross Given, of Providence has contracted his spar hauling to R. H. Moore, L. A. LeRae, and T. M. Barnes.

Mr. E. E. Monroe, of Cincinnati, Ohio, expects to begin opening a lead, zinc and fluor spar mine on the Money-maker place near Mexico, on the Tabb vein; this vein is the same one that the Marion Mineral company has been mining about 10 tons of fluor spar per day from. The Kentucky Fluor Spar company have mined large quantities of spar from this vein.

Another big company has been incorporated, with Marion capital and brains behind the enterprise. It is called the Trigg County Zinc, Lead and Fluorspar Co., and was incorporated at Frankfort and capitalized at $100,000. The following are the officers selected: Chas. Haury, Marion, Ky., Pres; Albert Kohn, Nashville, Tenn., Vice Pres; Chas. J. Haury, Marion, Ky., Sec and Treas; Joel A. Farmer, Marion, Ky., Supt of Mines; J. J. Boynton, Princeton, Ky., Supt; Robt. H. Haury, Nashville, Tenn., Director. Main office at Marion, Ky. Mines near Gracey, Ky.

They own between 700 and 800 acres of mineral lands near Gracey, Ky., which they will develop at once. It goes without saying that this company will succeed. The Haury's are behind it and they are built that way. Marion people have learned to regard the Haury's, father and son, as synonyms of success.

The angle of inclination of a working shaft should not be changed if it is possible to avoid it. Hoisting can be more speedily and economically accomplished through a straight shaft than through one sunk at a variable angle. On no account should the alignment be changed, no matter what changes may be made in the angle of dip.

"Dip" in mining parlance, in mining law and geology, means the departure of a vein in its downward course, from the vertical to the horizontal. Thus a vein said to dip 80 degrees stands nearly vertical and not almost flat. The dip of a vein or of strata, is at right angles to its strike. In a vein having a sinuous course both strike and dip will be variable in direction, but the angle of dip may be uniform. It is the privilege of a claim owner to follow this "dip" of the vein beyond the side lines of the claim that is known as the extralateral right.—Lead and Zinc News.

The Press, always on the alert for authoritative mining news, requested the privilege of publishing Prof E. O. Ulrich's report of this district as soon as it is issued, but much to our regret we found our paper too small, and the decision against us for other reasons. We publish herewith his reply to our letter:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, U. S. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY, WASHINGTON, D. C., April 4, 1904.—S. M. JENKINS, Esq., The Crittenden Press, Marion, Ky.—DEAR SIR: Since my report on your mining district comprises some 100,000 words, I fear your paper is not a sufficient medium for its publication.

Besides, the Government Printer believes he has a lien on it, and he is very jealous of his rights, so that I cannot prepare even an abstract for other media of publication. While I would have been pleased to secure advance publication of parts of the report, it is not allowable under present rules. Perhaps it is just as well for the public, since the complete report, when issued, will be distributed gratuitously.

Respectfully yours,
E. O. ULRICH.

So great has been the demand for space in the Mines and Metallurgy building of the St. Louis Exposition that the directors have made an appropriation for an annex, which is to be known as the "Metal Pavillion." It will be located in the Gulch (where many working exhibits of mining and metallurgical interest will be centered) and will be 125 feet long by 100 feet wide, constructed of steel. The architecture is in part a copy from the palace. It has the same overhanging eaves, under a mansard roof, and forming a battlement around the four sides. The roof will be of zinc in imitation of tiles, and painted red. Two sides of the building will be without doors. In their place will be a row of large, open windows, designed so that visitors may view the entire interior without going inside. The entrance will have doors and open windows. A platform walk will surround the building.

In the interior will be installed a number of "live" exhibits showing in operation the different processes of working malleable iron, copper, zinc, lead, and other metals. An earthen floor will be used for the array of furnaces, metals, pots and crucibles.

Most of the exhibits which will be installed in the Gulch are well under way. There will be seen hydraulic mining, operated as in the West, with pumps driven by steam turbines. A car load of mineral from Marion, Ky arrived Monday. The work of installing the mining and metallurgical exhibits has progressed so satisfactorily that it is safe to say that this department will be one of the earliest of all to complete its work.

HICKS FOR APRIL.

From the 15th to 17th it will be very warm, and tornado disturbances are to be apprehended. After behaving decently a day or two, vicious hail and thunderstorms will break out April 21st to 23d. Frosts will follow. The month will close in a sharp storm period. Very general and severe storms are more than probable. This is a time when destructive hail and storms are almost a certainty, in very many sections. Abnormal downpours of rain will also visit central to southern regions. The month will go out with high barometer, cold winds and frosty nights northward.

BANK CAVED IN.

A telegram from Clarksville says: A serious land slip occurred at Seven-Mile Ferry, a few miles above Clarksville, on the Cumberland river. Travel in consequence has been suspended there, until needed repairs can be made. The accident is seriously inconveniencing farmers on the south side, who are just now in the middle of marketing their tobacco.

THE RIVER AT CAIRO.

All of the river landings on the Kentucky side between Cairo and Paducah are under water, and the Fowler is out out of all of the trade. There has not been much suffering from the flood, but at Green's and Terrill's landings the houses are barely out of the water and a foot more would bring it over the floor. The people have not moved out and are not alarmed over the situation. Ogden and Turner's landings are under water.—Cairo Citizen.

HIGH WATER AT CASEYVILLE.

Caseyville, which has suffered from numerous and disastrous overflows, has again been the victim of the flood, but damage has not been so great as in former times for the reason that the flood was checked before reaching the heights of '84 and similar stages. However, the main part of the town was thoroughly submerged, many families had to move to the hills, and business was paralyzed for the time being. The water got into the lower floors of several business houses, and great inconvenience resulted, but it might have been worse and all are thankful to see the river falling.—Sturgis Democrat.

The Paducah Presbytery.

The meeting of the Paducah Presbytery on Thursday, April 7, was well attended and passed off pleasantly and harmoniously. Quite a lot of routine business was attended to, the reports from all the various churches were read and were very encouraging. Some splendid sermons were delivered. Rev. R. E. C. Lawson, of the Second Street church, Henderson, preached the opening sermon.

Rev. L. O. Spencer was elected moderator. Rev. S. J. Martin was admitted to the Paducah Presbytery by letter from the North Mississippi Presbytery.

Hon. W. J. Deboe was a delegate from the church at Marion.

Rev. L. O. Spencer was elected on part of ministry delegate to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States which meets in Mobile, Ala., May 19, 1904.

J. W. Blue was elected on the eldership to attend the Mobile assembly in May. The closing sermon delivered by Rev. Thomas Cummings, of the First church at Henderson.

The Presbytery adjourned Friday night to meet at Uniontown, September 29, 1904.

The District Convention will nominate a candidate for Congress and an Elector, and also elect a member of the State Central Committee.

There will be one delegate for every one hundred and fraction over fifty votes cast for McKinley in 1900.

BLACK—JONES.

Clarence J. Black, our popular groceryman, was married in Kuttawa, Sunday morning at 8 o'clock to Miss Willie Jones, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of W. B. Jones, the merchant of Kuttawa. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's father, in the presence of only the families of the bride and groom, and after a sumptuous banquet at the bride's home they left on the noon train for Evansville, Ind. on a bridal trip. While there they will purchase furniture and household goods for housekeeping. They will return to Marion in a few days, where a warm welcome awaits them.

Mr. Black has been in Marion only a short time, but is beloved and highly respected by our people, who wish him much joy in his married life.

The bride has visited here frequently and is not a stranger in Marion by any means. She will win many more friends here when she is known as she is at her old home. Her father has for many years conducted one of the largest general stores in the county at Kuttawa and Miss Willie was raised there and has always been a prime favorite in the social circles of the little city.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

It gives us pleasure to notify our friends that the construction of our exhibit at the St. Louis Worlds Fair is now well under way, and we expect it will be the most prominent of any distillers. We have secured the most advantageous location, at the main entrance of the Corn Palace, which is about the center of the Agricultural Building. Please be sure and give us a call.

GRAND OPENING OF THE NEW SPRING LINES!

The Girl With a Pretty Foot

As a rule she is proud of it, and well should she be, and the girl with a pretty foot should wear GYPSY HOSIERY because it enhances the beauty of any foot. In Gypsy Hosiery you will find the rarest and noblest in Fancy Styles for Spring and Summer wear. Gypsy Hosiery is for Men, Women, Boys and Girls, and it wears longer and looks better than any Hosiery on the market. Try it, on our say so.

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of Love, but on the contrary a young woman's mind begins to revolve around the question of New Dresses, New Hats, New Shoes and all the articles that go to make up the spring outfit. Perhaps this may suggest the reason for the young man's fancy lightly turning to thoughts of love. It is with considerable pleasure that we announce that the New Spring Goods are all in and ready for your inspection. We want you to come and look whether you buy now or not, you will find this "a pleasant place to linger" and we want you to feel perfectly at home here.

Spring Styles in Mens' Furnishings.

Now comes the time for discarding the old ties, shaking the winter Shirts, getting out of heavy underwear, when the man blossoms forth like the rose in a new spring rigging. We have watched the markets for all that is new and best, and the boys will find our Ties and Shirts look real springy; take a little time and look for yourself.

We can Please You.

SPRING STYLES IN SHOES!

What a relief it is to get rid of the heavy old winter shoes; good old friends they were too, but spring means a change, a coming out in new things. For the ladies we are showing the most exquisitely feminine line of shoes that have been in vogue for many years. Men shoes are built of very sensible lines this season. The styles are all here and we want you to come in and try on, we are confident you will buy.

WHAT THE LADIES ARE LOOKING FOR.

We wish we could paint a word picture that would bring before you, that would describe, the beautiful effects in the New Dress Goods for spring and summer wear. We have never shown more beautiful patterns and we predict a royal reception for these new goods from the ladies of Marion. Other things for the home, table linen, table cloths, napkins, etc., for house furnishings, the new Curtains and Carpets, Clever Patterns of Oilcloth. This will be an interesting store for you to visit.

THE WELL DRESSED MEN!

Will be pleased with the New Spring Clothes that we are showing. There is nothing freakish about the styles this year. There is considerable ginger in young men clothes. The time was when a man had to go to a merchant tailor and pay $35 or $50 for such clothing as we offer in our Ready-to-Wear Department from $10 to $15. These suits have extended shoulders, hand-made button-holes, the very best of lining, and there is fit and style in every suit.

Some People Like First Choice. Do you? Come Early.

OLLIE JAMES

Succeeds in Bringing Tears to The Eyes of the Committee.

Washington, April 5.—A bill has been passed granting a pension of $72 a month to John Linsey, of Bardwell, Ky., by which a precedent is established and a wreath of laurel is placed on the brow of Ollie James, the immense congressman from the First Kentucky district.

Linsey was a volunteer in one of the Kentucky regulars in the Spanish-American war. While in New Orleans he obtained leave to go into the city to purchase presents to send home to his wife and baby for Christmas, but was run over by a street car, and both his legs were cut off. As he was not "in line of duty," as construed by the pension office, he was refused a pension. Mr. James introduced a bill placing him on the pension roll at $72 a month, the usual amount for total disability. It passed the house, but the senate committee voted to report it before the committee, and secured a hearing. Senator Alger was in the chair. The big Kentucky congressman heaved a sigh, loosed the flood-gates of his oratory and did a good turn in the pathos line. After fifteen minutes of First district jury speaking, he inquired: "Now will you refuse this hero his rights?" "Not if I have anything to say in it," said Alger, dashing a tear from his eye. The pension, therefore, was granted.

Sciatic Rheumatism Cured.

"I have been subject to sciatic rheumatism for years," says E. H. Walton, of Wilton Junction, Iowa. "My joints were stiff and gave me much pain and discomfort. My joints would crack when I straightened up. I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm and have been thoroughly cured. Have not had a pain or ache from the old trouble for many months. It is certainly a most wonderful liniment." For sale by H. K. Woods.

An exchange remarks that "a man will run as fast as he can to get across a railroad track in front of a train. Then he will watch it out of sight, and then walk leisurely away. He seems all right and probably is. That is a man."

A woman in a street car will open a satchel and take out a purse, close the satchel and open the purse, take out a dime and close the purse, open the satchel and put in the purse, close the satchel at both ends. Then she will give the dime to the conductor who will give her a nickel. Then she will open the satchel, take out the purse, put in the nickel and close the purse, open the satchel and put in the purse, close the satchel and lock both ends. Then she will feel for her buckle in the back and give that a yank. God bless her.

Cures Coughs and colds.

Mrs. C. Peterson, 625 Lake St., Topeka, Kansas, says: "Of all cough remedies, Ballard's Horehound Syrup is my favorite; it has done and will do all that is claimed for it—to speedily cure all coughs and colds—and it is so sweet and pleasant to the taste." 25c, for $1.00 bottle. For sale by Woods & Orme.

Lizzie Kroger may not live to answer in court the charge of murder made against her, alleging that she burned her infant, born Sunday morning at the home of her employer, Benjamin Haas, Jr., Lexington avenue, Cincinnati, O. The slender, light-haired girl is now at the City Hospital, where her condition is extremely critical.

Ballard's Horehound Syrup

Immediately relieves hoarse, croupy cough, oppressed, rattling, rasping and difficult breathing. Henry C. Stearns, Druggist, Shullsburg, Wis., writes, May 20, 1901: "I have been selling Ballard's Horehound Syrup for two years, and have never had a preparation that has given better satisfaction. Notice that when I sell a bottle they come back for more. I can honestly recommend it." 25c, 50c, $1.00 at Woods & Orme.

A New Educational Idea.

It has been frequently said, and wisely too, that the boy who goes from the city to the country has much more to learn than a boy giving up country life and taking up his abode in the city. Since the great book of Nature holds so much to interest and instruct, through observation, study and experience, and the life work of the farmer boy is so centered in the world of nature—is not our present system of education at fault when our public schools do not prepare the farmer boy for his work as the High Schools and universities prepare city men for their special line of business?

For the city boy there is the common graded school, the high school, and the business college or university, while for the farmer boy there is only the common school. If he is sent to the city to take the high school and university courses, he comes home as unprepared for the life of a farmer as when he went. The entire course of study and mode of instruction in the city school tends to wean the youth away from the farm and draw him cityward. Consequently, our system of education for the farmer boy needs to be revolutionized. Since the city youth has the graded school, the high school and the university, a special education for the farmer should be obtained through the primary school, the agricultural high school and the State College of agriculture. Here we have a unified system of education which will be as useful to the farmer as the city boy's is to him.

Many of our states have the Agricultural College but few have found the missing link—the Agricultural High School.

Ohio first tried the consolidated rural school, when instead of every three or four of the old district schools, there is one large school house with superior teacher to which the children are carried in vans. The State paying for the transportation. By this means, children are in school longer and fewer are absent or tardy, as the vans come at regular hours and prevent exposure in bad weather. Better school hours, superior teachers as well as special and practical agricultural lessons make this system advantageous.

Alabama has established the agricultural high school in each congressional district.

One high school to every ten counties would be successful where a smaller high school in each county would fail.

Where the counties combine to support one school, the expense to each county would be much less and a better equipped building and better educated teachers could be obtained. In either case, dormitories or board in private families would have to be provided for each pupil, but in an agricultural school the term is only six winter months of school work, leaving the six months of spring and summer for actual practice of farming at home.

The Minnesota School of Agriculture which has been a model for many recent ones, affords a three year's course of study devoted to high school studies, to sciences relative to farming and to the art of farming. They are equipped with excellent buildings, 250 acres of land, live stock, farm implements and laboratories.

In Winnebago county, Ill., the County Superintendent of schools organized in 1902 a "Boy's Experiment Club." Boys from nine to twenty years of age are members. A few lectures by some leading agricultural teachers were given in some of the district school houses and circulars, magazines, and various literature pertaining to agriculture are mailed to each member. In June 1902-1903, excursions for the boys and their parents, were arranged which carried them at a small cost to the Agricultural College and Experiment Station at Urbana. Here they were shown the laboratories and then the growing crops. They were told how to treat the soil, how to care for the crops. They saw a model dairy and were taught many things about feeding and carrying for live stock.

Seeds are sent to each boy in the club to raise an experiment crop. Prizes being given for the best crops, their energy and zeal is untiring and their crops of corn and sugar beets last year were excellent. They were asked to see if a crop of beets could be profitable. An exact account was kept of the rent of land, cost of labor, tools, etc., and it was concluded that the crops could be grown with profit. This afforded practice in Arithmetic as well as observation and manual labor.

Many such experiments are being tried throughout the country and it will probably not be long before our State will take up the idea of an improved educational system for the farm boys and girls. With such a system of public instruction, our backwoodsman in his miserable log cabin and poorly managed farm, barely producing enough to pay the taxes, would be supplanted by intelligent farmers with well managed farms, growing profitable crops. The expense to the State would be balanced by the increased value of our farm lands, the wealth brought in by good crops and a higher civilization.

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

The charred body of Sam Jones who was special elisor for Breathitt county, and who summoned the first jury in the Jett White murder case, was found near Jackson under a creek cliff. The body was in a pile of embers still burning, and gashed on the side of his head led to the suspicion of foul play. It is known that he was in company with Thomas Combs and Bill Combs last night and that they were all drinking. The Combs boys say that they lay down to sleep under the cliff after building a fire and that they left Jones during the night. Bill Combs has an ugly cut, which resembles a knife wound on his thigh.

which could not last, but Father Beret withstood him so firmly that he made no farther headway. He even lost some ground a moment later.

"You Jesuit hypocrite!" he snarled. "You lowest of a vile brotherhood of liars!"

Then he rushed again, making a magnificent show of strength, quickness and accuracy. The sparks hissed and crackled from the rasping and ringing blades.

Father Beret was in truth a Jesuit and as such a scoundrel, but he was not a liar or a hypocrite. Being human, he resented an insult. The saintly spirit in him was strong, yet not strong enough to breast the indignation which now dashed against it. For a moment it went down.

"Liar and scoundrel yourself!" he retorted, hoarsely forcing the words out of his throat. "Spawns of a beastly breed!"

Hamilton saw and felt a change pass over the spirit of the old priest's movements. Instantly the sword leaping against his own seemed endowed with subtle cunning and malignant treachery. Before this it had been difficult enough to meet the fine play and hold fairly even. Now he was startled and confused, but he rose to the emergency with admirable will power and cleverness.

"Murderer of a poor orphan girl," Father Beret added with a hot concentrated accent, "death is too good for you."

Hamilton felt nearer his grave than ever before in all his wild experience, for somehow doom, shadowy and formless, like the atmosphere of an awful dream, enmeshed those words, but he was no weakling to quit at the height of desperate conflict. He was strong, expert and game to the middle of his heart.

"I'll add a traitor Jesuit to my list of dead," he panted forth, rising again to the extremest tension of his power.

As he did this Father Beret settled himself as you have seen a mighty horse do in the home stretch of a race. Both men knew that the moment had arrived for the final act in their impromptu play. It was short, a duel condensed and crowded into fifteen seconds of time, and it was rapid beyond the power of words to describe. A bystander, had there been one, could not have seen what was finally done or how it was done. Father Beret's sword seemed to be revolving—it was a halo in front of Hamilton for a mere point of time. The old priest seemed to crouch and then make a quick motion as if about to leap backward. A wrench and a snap, as of something violently jerked from a fastening, were followed by a spectacular flight of Hamilton's rapier over Father Beret's head to stick in the ground ten feet behind him. The duel was over, and the whole terrible struggle had occupied less than three minutes.

With his wrist strained and his fingers almost broken, Hamilton stumbled forward and would have impaled himself had not Father Beret turned the point of his weapon aside as he lowered it.

"Surrender or die!" That was a strange order for a priest to make, but there could be no mistaking its authority or the power behind it. Hamilton regained his footing and looked dazed, wheezing and puffing like a porpoise, but he clearly understood what was demanded of him.

"If you call out, I'll run you through," Father Beret added, seeing him move his lips as if to shout for help.

The level rapier now re-enforced the words. Hamilton let the breath go noiselessly from his mouth and waved his hand in token of enforced submission.

"Well, what do you want me to do?" he demanded, after a short pause. "You seem to have me at your mercy. What are your terms?"

Father Beret hesitated. It was a question difficult to answer. "Give me your word as a British officer that you will never again try to harm any person not an open, armed enemy in this town."

Hamilton's gorge rose perversely. He erected himself with lofty reserve and folded his arms. The dignity of a lieutenant governor leaped into him and took control. Father Beret correctly interpreted what he saw.

"My people have borne much," he said, "and the killing of that poor child there will be awfully avenged if I but say the word. Besides, I can turn every Indian in this wilderness against you in a single day. You are indeed at my mercy, and I will be merciful if you will satisfy my demand."

"I am willing to give you my word," he presently said. "And let me tell you, he went on rapidly, "I did not shoot at her. She was behind you."

"Your word as a British officer?" Hamilton again insisted and insisted, but only for the briefest space, then said:

"Yes, my word as a British officer."

Father Beret waved his hand with impatience.

"Go, then, back to your place in the fort, and disturb no more the soul of this poor little girl who haunts you forever. Go."

Hamilton stood a little while gazing at the face of Alice with the horrible wistfulness of remorse. What would he not have given to rub his eyes and find it all a dream?

He turned away, a cloud scudded across the moon, here and yonder in the dim town cocks crowed with a lonesome, desultory effect.

Father Beret plucked up the rapier that he had wrested from Hamilton's hand. It suggested something.

"Hold!" he called out. "Give me the scabbard of this sword."

Hamilton, who was striding vigorously in the direction of the fort, turned about as the priest hastened to him.

"Give me the scabbard of this rapier. I want it. Take it off."

The command was not gentle voiced. A hoarse half whisper winged every word with an imperious threat.

Hamilton obeyed. His hands were not firm. His fingers fumbled nervously, but he hurried, and Father Beret soon had the rapier sheathed and secured at his belt beside its mate.

A good and true priest is a burden bearer. His motto is, Alter alterius onera portate (Bear ye one another's burdens). His soul is enriched with the castoff sorrows of those whom he relieves. Father Beret scarcely felt the weight of Alice's body when he lifted it from the ground, so heavy was the pressure of his grief. All that her death meant, not only to him, but to every person who knew her, came into his heart as the place of refuge consecrated for the indwelling of pain. He lifted her and bore her as far toward Roussillon place as he could, but his strength fell short just in front of the little Bourcier cottage, and, half dead, he staggered across the veranda to the door, where he sank exhausted.

After a breathing spell he knocked. The household, fast asleep, did not hear, but he persisted until the door was opened to him and his burden.

Captain Farnsworth unlocked his bloodshot eyes at about 8 o'clock in the morning, quite confused as to his place and surroundings. He looked about drowsily with a sheepish half knowledge of having been very drunk.

A purring in his head and a dull ache reminded him of an abused stomach. He yawned and stretched himself, then sat up, running a hand through his tousled hair. Father Beret was on his knees before the cross, still as a statue, his clasped hands extended upward.

Farnsworth's face lighted with recognition, and he smiled rather bitterly. He recalled everything and felt ashamed, humiliated, self debased. He had outraged even a priest's hospitality with his brutish appetite, and he hated himself for it.

"I'm a shabby, worthless dog," he muttered, with petulant accent. "Why don't you kick me out, father?"

The priest turned a collapsed and bloodless gray face upon him, smiled in a third, perfunctory way, crossed himself absently and said:

"You have rested well, my son. Hard as the bed is, you have done it a compliment in the way of sleeping. You young soldiers understand how to get the most out of things."

"You are too generous, father, and I can't appreciate it. I know what I deserve, and you know it too. Tell me what a brute and fool I am. It will do me good. Punch me a solid jolt in the ribs, like the one you gave me not long ago."

"Qui sine peccato est, primas lapidem mittat," said the priest. ("Let him who is without sin cast the first stone.")

Just then some one knocked on the door. Father Beret opened it to one of Hamilton's aids.

"Your pardon, father, but, hearing Captain Farnsworth's voice, I made bold to knock."

"What is it, Bobby?" Farnsworth called out.

"Nothing, only the governor has been having you looked for in every nook and corner of the fort and town. You'd better report at once or he'll be having us drag the river for your body."

"All right, lieutenant. Go back and keep mum; that's a dear boy, and I'll shuffle into Colonel Hamilton's august presence before many minutes."

The aid laughed and went his way whistling a merry tune.

"Now I am sure to get what I deserve, with usury at 40 per cent in advance."

"Surrender or die!" Vance said Farnsworth dryly, shrugging his shoulders with undissembled dread of Hamilton's wrath. But the anticipation was not realized. The governor received Farnsworth stiffly enough, yet in a way that suggested a suppressed desire to avoid explanations on the captain's part and a reprimand on his own. Alice's white face had impressed itself indelibly on his memory, so that it met his inner vision

GRADUAL DECLINE

This is the fate of sufferers from Kidney trouble, as the disease is so insidious that often people have serious Kidney trouble without knowing the real cause of their illness, as diseased kidneys allow the impurities to stay in the system and attack the other organs. at every turn. He was afraid to converse with Farnsworth lest she should come up for discussion; consequently their interview was curt and formal.

It was soon discovered that Alice had escaped from the stockade, and some show of search was made for her by Hamilton's order, but Farnsworth looked to it that the order was not carried out. He thought he saw at once that his chief knew where she was.

Hamilton's uneasiness, which was that of a strong, misguided nature trying to justify itself amid a confusion of unmanageable doubts and misgivings, now vented itself in a resumption of the repairs he had been making at certain points in the fort. These he completed just in time for the coming of Clark.

"Talking about big crowds," said Tom Clifton, the enterprising merchant, to a news gatherer of THE CRITTENDEN PRESS, "we know what they are in our end of town. Why, a few days ago a man who had been in the rush at our loom end sale for some time, left our store, walked down the street to a block away and then violated one of the city ordinances and was promptly arrested by the city marshal. When arrested the man said: 'I am innocent. Everything was so still down here I thought I was in the country.'"

John A. Moore has just added to his poultry equipment a new brooder of 100-chick capacity and containing all the up-to-date improvements, including automatic regulating attachments which he has well stocked with fine Leghorn chickens, just taken from his incubator. The little chicks seem perfectly at home, have plenty of health-giving sunshine and are entirely exempt from disease, the deprivations of hawks and the cold winds and rains, thus showing the advantage of the new over the old method of compelling the young brood to follow the old hen. He has three incubators and in a few days will have 500 eggs in a state of incubation.

The evening discourse was on "The Burning Bush." Text, Ex. 3:23.

Subject of Saturday evening's discourse was "The Life That Brings Suffering."

No man can do with ease the biddings of Christ. But the order is, do them. "Well done," spells sacrifice. It is a mark of excellence to get that commendation, but the price paid for it is understood to imply a cross, a tomb, a resurrection.—Rev. William Ross, Presbyterian, Northfield, Mass.

Both the forenoon and evening services at the Methodist church South, had their usual good attendance Sunday.

The pastor, Rev. T. V. Joiner, preached at 11 o'clock on "Opportunity," text, Gal. 6:10.

At 7:30 the subject was "Christ Healing the Leper," text, Matt. 8:1-4.

Sunday School in the morning and Epworth League in the afternoon, led by Miss Lovie Taylor.

It is well for us to know that the enticements of this present age which have overpowered so many, have been powerless over a few.—Rev. W. R. Broad, Episcopalian, Lancaster, Pa.

Rev. S. D. Martin preached a fine sermon at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning. His subject being "Giving," and his text taken from Matthew 10th chapter and 8th verse: "Freely ye have received; freely give." His text for the evening service was from Daniel 3rd chapter, 16th, 17th and 18th verses: "Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego answered and said to the king, O, Nebuchadnezzar, we are not careful to answer thee in this matter. If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fire furnace, and he will deliver us out of thine hand, O, King. But if not, be it known unto thee, O, King, that we will not serve thy gods nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up."

It is a belief in the Bible, the fruit of deep meditation, which has served me the guide of my moral and literary life. I have found it a capital safely invested and richly productive of interest.—Goethe.

Grand Ball at Opera House.

In honor of Miss Mary Belle Maxwell's return from Colorado and as a farewell to Miss Nell Marshall, Mrs. J. W. Wilson's charming visitor, who left Saturday, the young men of the city gave one of the most delightful dances of the season last Tuesday night at the opera house. A splendid band was engaged from Smithland and the gay young people tripped the light fantastic until the "wee small hours."

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Sayre, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carnahan, Geo. Roberts and Miss Shelby, Sam Gugenheim and Miss Marshall, Dr. Morris and Miss Kitty Gray, Rob Cook and Miss Mary Belle Maxwell, W. D. Baine and Miss Dora Beavers, of Fredonia, D. B. Kevill and Miss Edna Cole, W. H. Clark and Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Ira Pierce and Miss Ida Hill, Ollie Tucker and Miss Ruby James, Henry Haynes and Miss Agnes Watkins, John L. WHY THE SORGHIES POSTPONED THEIR PICNIC

Copyright, 1901, by Caroline Wetherell

"We must have a celebration," said the Sorghies to the Bear. "And repay those friends who've asked us their festivities to share." So they borrowed from the baker man and every one they knew till they had enough of sugar and could start to bake and brew. Tommy Binks the invitations to distribute was required. Though to stir their pies and puddings he had coaxed till he was tired. When the notes were all delivered pies and cakes were put away. And the pantry door was bolted that the pastry there might stay.

But the windows were forgotten, and through these the boy could reach first the cakes and then the tartlets, filled with apple jam and peach. Tommy tasted and he tasted till of tarts he'd tried a score. And no pastry for the picnic should be found on shelf or floor. When the next day bright and early hosts and guests prepared to start. The Bear went to the pantry, lunch to carry to the cart. All the pantry shelves were empty, and the picnic was postponed. While the boy who ate the pastry for his gluttony atoned.

PUZZLE FOR THIS WEEK.

If a girl is the apple of a young man's eye he thinks she's what?

Exhibitions.

When Susie spoke her little piece
On exhibition day,
In the old schoolhouse bleak and brown
That looks down Warsaw way;
In pinafore and dangling braids
She seemed a vision sweet,
For me to worship where I sat
And shuffled in my seat.
When Susie spoke her little piece
All red and pale grew she,
With bashful air and shifting glance
That saw no soul but me.
Although no word I understood,
So low her lipsing were,
I glowered in the thought that I
Whole audience was to her.
When Susie spoke her little piece—
But that was years ago.
We're married now, and still am I
Her audience I throw.
Now when she speaks her little piece
Her voice rings clear and loud;
I'd rather be a boy again
And share it with a crowd.

Wanted I Like Papa's.

Josephine was having her hair cut at a real barber's. It was hot, and her father sat fanning his bald head near the window, and wishing for once that his Josephine had been a boy, so that it would not take so long. Finally the barber lifted the little girl down from her chair and pronounced his work done. "But I want to see it again," said Josephine.
The barber lifted her up and let her look in the glass. She wagged her head vigorously from side to side, and forward and backward. "Oh-h-h!" she wailed.
"Why, what's the matter?" asked the barber, while the father jumped up nervously from his corner.
"Oh-h-h!" she repeated, lustily. I wanted a little round smooth place on top of my head like papa's!" and she burst into tears.—Youth's Companion.

Letter From Pomona, California.

Pomona, Cal., Mar. 27, 1904.—Dear Editor:—As I have promised to write another letter for the benefit of the readers of the Press, in regard to more about this country, I will do the best I can to give as true facts as I see it, although we do not all see it in the same light.

As I have now been here nearly seven months and most of that time have been making a study of this part of the State of what is raised, and now that I think, to take everything into consideration, a person can do as well here as in any portion of California.

The climate is certainly delightful. Some say you cannot live on climate, but it certainly goes a long way in making a living and you enjoy your life better just to think of what you Kentucky people have gone through this past winter—blizzards, snow storms, and then warm, and then in less than six hours you are freezing. I have gone through all of that and I don't want any more of that kind of climate. We have not had a fire all day this winter in our room and while you were having your coldest weather, we could sit out on the veranda and not feel uncomfortable. The climate of California and Kentucky is just as much difference as daylight and darkness. Then think! There are so many people back there who are able to spend their winters here, that will sit around a fire and grumble about the weather when they could take the I. C. railroad and land in New Orleans inside of twenty-four hours, then take the Southern Pacific and in a little over two days it will put them in the city of Pomona where the sun shines 340 days out of 365. Blizzards are left behind. There is only one change to be made, at Princeton, Ky. Well, some say it costs too much to live out here. I will own it does. But what if the living expenses are a little more. You are in a warmer climate and your cost of fuel is not so great and you get better pay for the work you do. So, after you are here awhile, you can lessen your expense in raising a garden.

We have green vegetables all the year as well as fruits. More oranges raised here than any other fruits, although apricots and prunes are raised. This valley alone, it is claimed, will produce twenty thousand cars of oranges this season and the crop is now over half gathered. The orange growers are in the same predicament that tobacco growers are in Kentucky. Not paying expenses on account of it being so cold in the East and they could not ship. Now they are rushing them on the market. Some that shipped the fruit early in the season, did not make the freight. One man that had a 20 acre grove, picked 500 of his choicest fruit, sending them to the market. His returns brought him $845. He said he was thankful he did not have to dig down in his pocket for the freight. I have been trying my hand the past week in picking oranges. We get 21-2c a box. My first day's picking was 48 boxes. H. V. Stone picked 42 boxes in one day. I think, if we stay with the work, we will be experts. A day's work is 80 boxes. It is not very easy work by any means. Stone says if the leaves were off he could pick faster. The dew is so heavy we do not get in a day's work. We have to wait until the dew is dried off. The man that has the contract has 50 acres to pick. I think we will have a job for all summer. A person that has never seen an orange grove does not know how pretty it is. All the oranges grown here are Washington novels and have no seed in them. I have been told that Florida can't grow them.

Pomona is one of the prettiest towns in Southern California. has a population of 7000, no saloons, 18 churches, broad streets with fine shades and the finest roads I ever saw. Bicycles, buggies and automobiles are the modes of travel. Automobiles are used a great deal more. Some call them Devil Wagons. They cost from $650. to $3000., run by gas and electricity. Also have motor bicycles. Our walks are made of cement. We have miles of walk here. The cost of making walks is 9c a cubic foot. The contractor furnishes every thing.

Our foundations for houses are mostly made of mud—boulders, granite rock from the mountains. Some of the rock is speckled, making a beautiful foundation laid in common mortar.

We have free schools and fine buildings. Our High School building will be completed this month and cost $55000. We are ahead of Kentucky in our schools. One thing I don't like is the negro in the school, but there are but few of that race here. More Mexicans than negroes in the school. Some of the schools don't have the colored brother.

I see you are claiming that old Crittenden is going to be Democratic. A few more Democrats from old Kentucky and we will make California Democratic.

Well, Mr. Editor, why don't some of the other friends who have gone to other points, write? Are they ashamed of their adopted country? Let us hear from you. I suppose R. C. W. is snowed under is the reason we have not heard from him.

Well, we are not out of sight of snow as our mountain tops are covered. When it rains down in the valley it snows on the mountains as the air is much colder up there.

There may be some things I have omitted, and if any of my friends want to ask questions in regard to anything out here, enclose stamp and I will take pleasure in answering. The half has never been told in regard to all we see here and it takes time to learn about anything.

If this does not find its way to the waste basket you may hear from me again.

FROM PRINTERS INK.

In the preparation of an advertisement common sense is a more valuable equipment than a brilliant intellect.

Interesting matter on the advertising pages will attract attention.

One dishonest ad in a paper injures every honest ad the paper contains.

The possibilities are practically unlimited for merchants who advertise judiciously and continuously.

While there's business there ought to be advertising.

Persistence in advertising is all right, as long as the advertiser persists in doing the right kind of advertising.

The purpose of all advertising should be to induce investigation.

Honesty is the policy that insures permanent prosperity in business.

Increase your appropriation for advertising in proportion to the growth of your business and your business will continue to grow.

Usually it's the case that the more good advertising you do the more you can afford to do.

So much of one's business methods, and so much only should be told as will conduce to the making of customers.

It costs a lot of money to get the reputation of being the leading house in your line and in your town, but it will bring business enough to warrant the effort and the outlay.

Some men's business methods are as mysterious as some chafing dish mixtures.—Whit's Sayings.

Trade trends on the heels of judicious advertising.

The pessimist is a man who has lost faith in humanity because he has no faith in himself.—Jed Searboro.

Over all wealth, above all station, above the noble, the robed and crowned, rises the sincere man. Happy is the man who neither paints nor patches, veils nor veneers! Blessed is he who wears no mask.—Ingersoll.

Mr. Nicholson is quite well known in Marion, where he frequently visits as the guest of H. H. Sayre.

The time has come when the live, local merchant must bid for his home trade just like the Mail Order Houses do, by advertising and keeping everlastingly at it—else the orders that belong at home will go through the mails to Chicago, New York, or even to neighboring towns. On the other hand the local merchant, if he has an eye to business, can sell goods away from home by circulating his name, business and bargains.

He is vice president of the musicians' union, and one of the hardest working Democrats in the city. The Governor's approval of the appointment will meet with general satisfaction in Louisville and over the state generally where Mr. Scally is well known.

NEW COURT HOUSE.

Appropos of the suggestion with reference to the erection of a new court house for Henderson, it might be mentioned the fact that similar conditions existed at Madisonville about twelve years ago. The court house was about as bad as the one at Henderson but the Fiscal Court dallied with the matter for years, because of the imaginary fear that it would not be popular with the taxpayers to build a new one. But finally that body screwed up its courage to the sticking point and had a handsome and commodious building erected. Instead of being unpopular the people approved the action of the court and were delighted to have it built, and have a pride in it. Last year the effort was made to install a steam heating plant at a cost of about $2,500. Some of the justices wriggled because they feared the taxpayers in the country would not like the expenditure. But the plant was installed just the same, and the people from the country were delighted. The court house and county offices were kept perfectly comfortable all during the winter and the people from the country coming to the city had a place to go and be comfortable—a place which they felt was their own. Not one criticism has been heard of the installation of the heating plant, but every one who visits the court house expresses satisfaction at the arrangement for the comfort of the people.

It would be the same way here. The people would endorse the erection of a new court house because it is necessary for the convenience of the public, and for the proper transaction of the business of the courts and the county offices. They would take pride in it, and none more so than the people from the country. There might be some attempts made by candidates for office to make capital out of the action of the court, but unless there should be some flagrant mismanagement in the matter it would amount to nothing except the defeat of the kicker. The Fiscal Court will be justified in going ahead and making some sort of shift to provide for the erection of the building and they will be backed up by the great majority of the people.

Nothing Equal to Chamberlain's

Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for Bowel Complaints in Children.

"We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in our family for years," says Mrs. J. B. Cooke, of Netherlands, Texas. "We have given it to all of our children. We have used other medicines for the same purpose but never found anything to equal Chamberlain's. If you will use it as directed it will always cure." For sale by H. K. Woods.

The case against the Rev. G. W. Briggs, formerly of Paducah, but now of Louisville, for maliciously cutting T. J. Garr, the proprietor of a private boarding house, as a result of Garr's slapping the preacher's son, was dismissed in the circuit court for want of proof. Garr left the city some time after the affair and has never been back since.

STRUCK ANOTHER MATCH.

A widower down east felt keenly the loss of his wife. She was a good woman and he mourned her taking off constantly. He had a handsome monument erected at the head of her grave and thereon placed this beautiful inscription: "The light of my life is gone out." In the course of a year he met and married a woman who very much resembled his first wife. In order that she might not feel too keenly the position in which she was placed he added to the inscription on the monument, "But I have struck another match."

"I have used Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets with most satisfactory results," says Mrs. F. L. Phelps, Houston, Texas. For indigestion, biliousness and constipation, these tablets are most excellent. Sold by H. K. Woods.

Accidental Death.

The Hickman Courier says: Suffering from the agonies attendant upon an acute case of tonsillitis, Miss Kate Stows, aged 18, rubbed her throat liberally with laudanum, and the application not giving the relief desired, the lady took an ordinary dose of morphine with the result that her life was forfeited. She had been afflicted with tonsillitis for some weeks and last Wednesday afternoon her sufferings became so intense that she sought relief in applying laudanum externally to the affected part. She waited patiently for some alleviation of the pain, but it came not, and in sheer despair took an ordinary dose of morphine. The laudanum evidently penetrated her throat and the action of both combined resulted in death two hours later.
