GOLD FOUND IN THIS DISTRICT.

More New Machinery Coming In.—All the Mines Preparing For Business.

THIS TO BE A BANNER YEAR.

The Tabb is cleaning up and preparing to resume work in the near future.

The Asbridge is since washing gravel spar, and getting ready to resume mining operations.

The Wheatcroft uses a whim and is getting out a small quantity of about 50 per cent gravel dirt.

There is not much doing at the Yandell. They are cleaning up and getting ready for the summer run.

The Lucile mine has almost been unwatered and after an idleness of a month is expected to be able to resume mining operations this week.

A special to the Courier-Journal from Sturgis dated April 19, states that L. P. Gilchrist, of Sullivan, has received certificate of assay from Sonora, Cal., showing that he has discovered on his farm near Sturgis iron pyrites, carrying to the ton gold to the value of $1.36.

H. A. Haynes returned Sunday from Birmingham, Ala., and other southern manufacturing cities, whither he went in the interest of the Ky. Fluor Spar company.

The Klondike mine has almost been unwatered, and underground conditions being favorable on observation to immediate resumption of mining operations, work of taking out spar from this mine will commence on a large scale at once, so Mr Reed states.

Both the Kentucky Fluor Spar and Marion Mineral companies have large quantities of spar on their yards at Mexico. This village is the natural shipping point for a large scope of the district and bids fair to become a dangerous rival to some of her near-by competitors.

Our Levias correspondent says: M. F. McGraw, of Ohio, was here last week looking over our mineral field. He seemed well pleased and we hope he will succeed in making some investments. Those having mineral lands should be reasonable in their terms, and thus give investors a chance to develop our section.

The Hopkinsville company have begun work on the E. B. Franklin place. They have encouraging prospects and are paying a handsome bonus to Mr. Franklin.

The Hopewell Mining Co., are putting in machinery at their mines on the Carter place. They have a very fine showing there.

Our Carrsville correspondent writes: Interest in mining has by no means died out in this vicinity. The Schofield-Spees mines have put in an engine and will do some deep work. The shaft is already sixty feet deep; modern mining facilities are on the ground and from all indications they mean business. The pumping has been going on night and day.

W. S. Lowery, who leaves the Crittenden-Livingston field to embark in mining in Christian county, is one of the leading mineral men of this section, and has done much to develop the local field. We wish him all the success he deserves, in his new field and feel sure he will attain it as he is a conscientious and hard worker, and this always counts in any enterprise or undertaking in this life.

T. P. Gilchrist, Sullivan, Ky., has sent to our office a sample of the gold quartz which he has had assayed by two chemists in California and both agreed as to assay. The crude ore as taken out of the ground assayed $3.60 per ton, and a selected quantity assayed $53.00 per ton. Mr Gilchrist lives about one mile from the limits of Crittenden county and about the same distance from Sullivan, Ky., which is his postoffice.

He has also found the old Bell coal vein on his farm and has arranged with capitalists to have it worked. Mr Gilchrist is a good man and we hope all these good things coming his way may develop into paying properties.

Our New Salem correspondent writes: The mining interests promises to be on a larger scale this summer than ever before. The erection of the big mill of the Eagle company on their Cullen property will be one of the largest plants anywhere in Southwestern Kentucky. From the amount of building material passing down the road it surely will be one of the largest houses ever erected for mining purposes anywhere.

A rich vein of lead and spar, has been struck on Tom Spees' land near Carrsville. The Schofield & Spees Mining company of Dayton, Ohio, have been prospecting in the Carrsville country, and especially on the land of Tom Spees for quite a while, and have at last succeeded in striking a rich find. The Carrsville country is rich in minerals, and only needs development to make it one of the best mining sections of Western Kentucky.—Banner.

The Marion Mineral company received at this depot Tuesday a new pump, which Mr. Crider immediately had hauled out to be installed at the "Pogue mine" near Frances. Those interested will remember that the Prenon pump in service at this mine did not give satisfaction; but we think this new pump will give them pre-eminent satisfaction. It is of the "Bulldozer Pumping Jack" lift pattern.

Last Saturday a PRESS reporter visited the Pogue mine and while there went down the shaft as far as the 100-foot level. He found spar all about him down there and the men at work on a 30-foot breast of it. This is the Tabb vein; it seems practically without limit. The Pogue mine is equipped with all the latest improved machinery, including blower for purifying the air. They are now averaging over 30 tons daily output of 98 per cent pure gravel spar, and have fully 2,000 tons on the dump. The company has just installed a new 6-inch pump and will put on a night shift and resume sinking at once. Everything about this mine runs smooth as clockwork. George Russell has charge of the machinery and Aroh Oliver is mine boss; both are safe men. The Marion Mineral company have a fine property in the Pogue.

"CONTRIBUTION TO ECONOMIC GEOLOGY, 1904."

"Bulletin 225" has just been issued by the U. S. Geological Survey. This volume will prove of special interest to mine operators of this district, inasmuch as it contains an elaborate exposition of the fluor spar deposits of southern Illinois, and also a paper on the lead and zinc deposits of Illinois, both by H. F. Bains.

What is applicable in Illinois is more or less correlative of the conditions in Kentucky. As the mineral deposits may be conceded to lie in the same horizon, and to have been laid down at about the same geologic period. Copies can be had through our Representative in Congress.

There has been found within five miles of Stanford, Ky., what has been pronounced by marble dealers in four cities as fine black marble as ever came out of the earth. Several pieces of it has been "dressed" and shows up beautifully. A stock company with $50,000 capital is being organized and everything necessary to have the product on the market within the next ninety days is being done. This marble was discovered through the class in geology of the Stanford Graded school. It is near the entrance to an immense cavern and runs through two hills adjoining. Those who have been on the ground say that there are many million dollars worth of the marble encased in the earth thereabout. The same two men who, from the graded school geological specimen located this rich marble mine, have everything ready to show where a rich lead mine near is located, and only are held in check from doing so by the fact that one man on a farm adjoining it refused to either for love or money lease his land. The road is wide open, however, for the marble fields now, and there is every indication that Lincoln will be considered within the next twelve months one of the most progressive and prosperous counties in Kentucky.

At Mt. Carmel, Fleming county, Miss Mary Cain, aged eighteen, was standing near an open fire, when her clothing became ignited, horribly burning her. She is thought to be dying.

WAR IN THE FAR EAST.

Another of Russia's Best Battleships Goes to the Bottom.

The Russian fleet at Port Arthur has sustained another tremendous loss, the battleship Petropavlovsk having been wrecked and almost its entire crew drowned, including Vice Admiral Mica-roff. The vessel, according to official reports, was steaming out of the harbor to meet the Japanese fleet in combat when it struck a mine and turned turtle. The loss of life is believed to be about 800. Only four of the officers and possibly twenty of the crew are reported saved. The Grand Duke Cyril was seriously injured. Official reports say that the Japanese fleet disappeared after the disaster, but reports from other sources say an engagement was in progress later in the day. The news of the disaster has created great sorrow in St. Petersburg. A requiem mass has been announced to take place in the Admiralty church.

LETTER FROM FLORIDA.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 15th, 1904—DEAR MR. EDITOR: The weekly visits of the Crittenden Press are indeed a benediction to this scribe and family; its pages are like the faces of familiar friends, and the items from Sheridan, Tolu, Rodney, Mattoon, Shady Grove, Fords Ferry, Salem, etc. are read with a relish we did not have when to our old Kentucky home the Press made its weekly visits. Perhaps distance lends enchantment to the mind as well as to the view, and the memories associated with every nook and corner of dear old Crittenden are awakened by these letters from correspondents. The numerous references to substantial improvements being made in Marion, enlargement of mining industries and other enterprises being inaugurated throughout the county, gives assurance of continued prosperity, and from our far away home in this lovely land of flow-ers we congratulate our dear Kentucky friends and pray that the blessings of a good God may increase for every one of them.

The announcement of such an exodus from Crittenden to the west and elsewhere may cause an outsider to wonder why "is this thus?" when industries are multiplying and capital is being invested, and prosperity with giant strides is nearing the grasp of all; and the Press is full of accounts of your best citizens leaving for the far west and elsewhere. Well perhaps the querist may not know that men lose opportunities and miss prosperity sometimes for lack of means to improve them; like our old Tradewater friend, Mansfield Simpson, Esq. who said "I've lost ten thousand dollars this year by not having hogs to eat the mast."

The "good roads" question, I am happy to know, is attracting increased attention in Crittenden, and the recent appointment, by your most excellent and public spirited christian mayor, Jno. W. Blue, of citizens of such ability and interest for the best future of your county, gives abundant encouragement to the hopes that my native county will ere long make sure of her continued prosperity by building turnpikes for the comfortable and convenient travel of her citizens, and the cheap and easy transportation of her products of farms and mines to market. I speak from personal knowledge, after years of travel on Crittenden county roads. How often, how often in the days gone by, have I got into my buggy and then I've heaved a sigh for the road that lay before me full of Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

8 Cents

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

We will send you a little free.

rocks and ruts and mud, caused the horrors to creep o'er me, and the travel was "no good." The rocks would jolt the buggy. The mud would clog the wheels. The ruts would make me shudder. While behind my horses heels.

I've held the reins and waited Upon some rugged hill. For "Dan" to get his wind again And take another "pull."

With material so convenient and labor so cheap, Crittenden county ought to have every public road so piked that her thoroughfares would be her pride, and at least on four of the highways leading to the four points of the compass and touching the several sections tributary to the city; let the good work go on.

The necessity of a new court house for Crittenden county is apparent, and the report of the majority of grand jurors recently made, so recommending, will find a hearty response in the judgment of every public spirited citizen. The necessity for the new public buildings grows out of the constant insecurity of the public records, and not only so but the character of her people is too respectable longer to misrepresent it by the unsightly public buildings the visitors' eyes first behold on entering the fair capital of the county.

The accounts of the recent passing of so many of the county's old citizens brings to the heart a hush and softly stealing o'er the soul the echo breaks from the beyond, and we answer to them, yes, we are coming, after awhile.

Cordially,
J. W. BIGHAM.

ALICE OF OLD VINCENNES

By MAURICE THOMPSON

Copyright, 1900, by the
BOWEN-MERRILL COMPANY

"Voici, messieurs!"

There was a spirit in the air which caught from Alice a thrill of romantic energy. The men in the ranks and the officers in front of them felt a wave of irresistible sympathy sweep through their hearts. Her picturesque beauty, her fine temper, the fitness of the incident to the occasion, had an instantaneous power which moved all men alike.

"Raise her flag! Run up the young lady's flag!" some one shouted. And then every voice seemed to echo the words. Clark was a young man of noble type, in whose veins throbbed the warm, chivalrous blood of the cavaliers. A waft of the suddenly prevailing influence bore him also quite off his feet. He turned to Beverley and said: "Do it! It will have a great effect. It is a good idea. Get the young lady's flag and her permission to run it up."

Before he finished speaking indeed at the first glance he saw that Beverley, like Hamilton, was white as a dead man, and at the same time it came to his memory that his young friend had confided to him during the awful march through the prairie wilderness a love story about this very Alice Roussillon. In the worry and stress of the subsequent struggle he had forgotten the tender basis upon which Beverley had rested his excuse for leaving Vincennes. Now it all reappeared in justification of what was going on. It touched the romantic core of his southern nature.

"I say, Lieutenant Beverley," he repeated, "let the young lady's permission to use her flag upon this glorious occasion, or shall I do it for you?"

There were no maces in those brave days, and the strain of life with its terrible realities braced all men and women to meet sudden explosions of surprise, whether of good or bad effect, with admirable equanimity. But Beverley's trial, it must be admitted, was extraordinary. Still he braced himself quickly and his whole expression changed when Clark moved to go to Alice. For he realized now that it was indeed Alice in flesh and blood, standing there, the center of admiration, filling the air with her fine magnetism and crowning a great triumph with her beauty. He gave her a glad, flashing smile, as if he had just discovered her, and walked straight to her, his hands extended. She was not looking toward him, but she saw him and turned to face him. Hers was the advantage for she had known for some hours of his presence in Vincennes and had prepared herself to meet him courageously and with maidenly reserve.

There is no safety, however, where love lurks. Neither Beverley nor Alice was as much agitated as Hamilton, yet they both forgot, what he remembered, that a hundred grim frontier soldiers were looking on. Hamilton had his personal and official dignity to sustain, and he fairly did it under what a pressure of humiliating and surprising circumstances we can fully comprehend. Not so with the two young people, standing as it were in a suddenly bestowed and incomparable happiness on the verge of a new life, each to the other an unexpected, unlooked for resurrection from the dead. To them there was no universe save the illimitable expanse of their love. In that moment of meeting all that they had suffered on account of love was transfigured and poured forth, a glowing libation for love's sake, a flood before which all barriers broke.

Father Beret was looking on with a strange fire in his eyes, and what he feared would happen did happen. Alice let the flag fall at Hamilton's feet.

He saw before him the girl he had shot, when Beverley came near her smiling that great, glad smile, and with a joyous cry leaped into his outstretched arms.

Jean snatched up the fallen banner and ran to Colonel Clark with it. Two minutes later it was made fast, and the halyard began to squeak through the rude pulley at the top of the pole. Up, up climbed the gay little emblem of glory, while the cannon crashed from the embrasures of the blockhouse hard by, and outside the roar of voices redoubled. Thirteen guns boomed the salute, though it should have been fourteen, the additional one for the great northwestern territory that day annexed to the domain of the young American republic. The flag went up at old Vincennes never to come down again, and when it reached its place at the top of the staff Beverley and Alice stood side by side looking at it, while the sun broke through the clouds and flashed on its shining folds, and love unabashed glorified the two strong, young faces.

CHAPTER XXI.

SOME TRANSACTIONS IN SCALPS.

HISTORY would be a very orderly affair could the dry as dust historians have their way, and doubtless it would be thrillingly romantic at every turn if the novelists were able to control its current. Fortunately neither one nor the other has much influence, and the result in the long run is that most novels are shockingly tame, while the large body of history is loaded down with picturesque incidents which if used in fiction would be thought absurdly romantic and improbable.

Were our simple story of old Vincennes a mere fiction we should hesitate to bring in the explosion of a magazine at the fort with a view to sudden confusion and by that means distracting attention from our heroine while she betakes herself out of a situation which, although delightful enough for a blessed minute, has quickly become an embarrassment quite unendurable. But we simply adhere to the established facts in history. Owing to some carelessness there was indeed an explosion of twenty-six 6 pound cartridges, which made a mighty roar and struck the newly installed garrison into a heap, so to say, scattering things terribly and wounding six men, among them Captains Bowman and Worthington.

After the thunderous crash came a momentary silence, which embraced both the people within the fort and the wild crowd outside. Then the rush and noise were indescribable. Even Clark gave way to excitement, losing command of himself and of course of his men. There was a stampede toward the main gate by one wing of the troops in the hollow square. They literally ran over Beverley and Alice, flinging them apart and jostling them hither and yonder without mercy. Of course the turmoil quickly subsided. Clark and Beverley got hold of themselves and sang out their peremptory orders with excellent effect. It was like oil on raging water. The men obeyed in a straggling way, getting back into ranks as best they could.

"Ventrebien!" squeaked Uncle Jazon. "Ef I didn't think the ole world had busted into a million pieces!"

He was jumping up and down not three feet from Beverley's toes, waving his cap excitedly.

"But wasn't I skeert! Ya, ya, ya! Vive la banniere d'Alice Roussillon! Vive Zhoran Vasinton!"

Hearing Alice's name caused Beverley to look around. Where was she? In the distance he saw Father Beret hurrying to the spot where some of the men burned and wounded by the explosion were being stripped and cared for. Hamilton still stood like a statue. He appeared to be the only cool person in the fort.

"Where is Alice—Miss Roussillon? Where did Miss Roussillon go?" Beverley exclaimed, staring around like a lost man. "Where is she?"

"D'know," said Uncle Jazon, resuming his habitual expression of droll dignity. "She shot apast me jes' as thet thing busted loose, an' she went like er hummin' bird, skitch-jes' thet way—an' I didn't see 'er no more, 'cause I was skeert mighty high inter seven fites; speet that 'sposion blowed her clean away? Ventrebien! Never was so plump outen breath an' dead crazy weak o' bein' afeard!"

"Lieutenant Beverley," roared Clark in his most commanding tone, "go to the gate and settle things there! That mob outside is trying to break in!"

The order was instantly obeyed, but Beverley had relapsed. Once more his soul groped in darkness while the whole of his life seemed unreal, a wavering, misty, hollow dream. And yet his military duty was all real enough. He knew just what to do when he reached the gate.

"Back there at once!" he commanded, not loudly, but with intense force, "back there!" This to the inward surging wedge of excited outsiders. Then to the guard: "Shoot the first man who crosses the line!"

"Zif! me void! Moi! Gaspard Roussillon. Laissez-moi passer, messieurs." A great body hurled itself frantically past Beverley and the guard, going out through the gateway against the wall of the crowd, bearing everything before it and shouting:

"Back, fools! You'll all be killed. The powder is on fire! Zif! Run!"

Wild as a March hare, he bristled with terror and foamed at the mouth. He stampeded the entire mass. There was a wild howl, a rush in the other direction followed, and soon enough the esplanade and all the space back to the barricades and beyond were quite deserted.

Alice was not aware that a serious accident had happened. Naturally she thought the great, rattling, crashing noise of the explosion a mere part of the spectacular show. When the rush followed, separating her and Beverley, it was a great relief to her in some way, for a sudden recognition of the boldness of her action in the little scene just ended came over her and bewildered her. An impulse sent her running away from the spot where, it seemed to her, she had invited public derision. The terrible noises all around her were, she now fancied, but the jeering and hooting of rude men who had seen her unaidedly forwardness.

With a burning face she flew to the postern and slipped out, once more taking the course which had become so fa-

YOUR KIDNEYS ARE THEY WELL?

Unless they are, good health is impossible.

Every drop of blood in the body passes through and is filtered by healthy kidneys every three minutes. Sound kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood, diseased kidneys do not, hence you are sick. FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE makes the kidneys well so they will eliminate the poisons from the blood. It removes the cause of the many diseases resulting from disordered kidneys which have allowed your whole system to become poisoned.

Rheumatism, Bad Blood, Gout, Gravel, Dropsy, Inflammation of the Bladder, Diabetes and Bright's Disease, and many others, are all due to disordered kidneys. A simple test for kidney disease is to set aside your urine in a bottle or glass for twenty-four hours. If there is a sediment or a cloudy appearance, it indicates that your kidneys are diseased, and unless something is done they become more and more affected until Bright's Disease or Diabetes develops.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is the only preparation which will positively cure all forms of Kidney and Bladder troubles, and cure you permanently. It is a safe remedy and certain in results.

If You are a sufferer, take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once. It will make you well.

Some Pronounced Incurable

Mr. G. A. Stillson, a merchant of Tampico, Ill., writes: "FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is meeting with wonderful success. It has cured some cases here that physicians pronounced incurable. I myself am able to testify to its merits. My face today is a living picture of health and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE has made it such."

Had Lumbago and Kidney Trouble

Edward Huss, a well known business man of Salisbury, Mo., writes: "I wish to say for the benefit of others, that I was a sufferer from lumbago and kidney trouble, and all the remedies I took gave me no relief. I began to take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE, and after the use of three bottles I am cured."

miliar to her feet. She did not slacken her speed until she reached the Bourcier cabin, where she had made her home since the night when Hamilton's pistol ball struck her. The little domicile was quite empty of its household, but Alice entered and flung herself into a chair, where she sat quivering and breathless when Adrienne, also much excited, came in, preceded by a stream of pistols that sparkled continuously.

"The fort is blown up!" she cried, gestulating in every direction at once, her petite figure comically dilated with the importance of her statement. "A hundred men are killed, and the powder is on fire!"

She pounced into Alice's arms, still talking as fast as her tongue could vibrate, changing from subject to subject without rhyme or reason, her prattle making its way by skips and shies until what was really uppermost in her sweet little heart disclosed itself.

"And, O Alice, Rene has not come yet!"

She plunged her dusky face between Alice's cheek and shoulder. Alice hugged her sympathetically and said:

"But Rene will come, I know he will, dear."

"Oh, but do you know it? Is it true? Who told you? When will he come? Where is he? Tell me about him!"

Her head popped up from her friend's neck and she smiled brilliantly through the tears that were still sparkling on her long black lashes.

"I didn't mean that I had heard from him, and I don't know where he is. But—but they always come back."

"You say that because your man—because Lieutenant Beverley has returned. It is always so. You have everything to make you happy, while I—"

Again her eyes spilled their shower, and she hid her face in her hands, which Alice tried in vain to remove.

"Don't cry, Adrienne. You didn't see me crying!"

"No, of course not; you didn't have a thing to cry about. Lieutenant Beverley told you just where he was going and just what!"

"But think, Adrienne, only think of the awful story they told—that he was killed, that Governor Hamilton had paid Long Hair for killing him and bringing back his scalp! Oh, dear, just think! And I thought it was true."

"Well, I'd be willing to think and believe anything in the world if Rene would come back," said Adrienne, her face, now uncovered, showing pitiful lines of suffering. "Oh, Alice, Alice, and he never, never will come!"

Alice exhausted every device to cheer, encourage and comfort her. Adrienne had been so good to her when she lay recovering from the shock of Hamilton's pistol bullet, although it came near killing her, made no serious wound—only a bruise, in fact. It was one of those fortunate accidents or providentially ordered interferences which once in awhile save a life. The stone disk worn by Alice chanced to lie exactly in the missile's way, and, while it was not broken, the ball, already somewhat checked by passing through several folds of Father Beret's garments, flattened itself upon it with a shock which somehow struck Alice senseless.

Here, again, history in the form of an ancient family document a letter written in 1821 by Alice herself gives us the curious brace of incidents—viz, the breaking of the miniature of Beverley's breast by a British musket ball and the stopping of Hamilton's bullet over Alice's heart by the Indian charm stone.

"Which shows the goodness of God," the letter goes on, "and also seems to sustain the Indian legend concerning the stone that whoever might wear it could not be killed. Unquestionable (so Mr. Hamilton's shot, which was aimed at poor, dear old Father Beret, would have pierced my heart but for that charm stone. As for my jacket, it did not, as some have reported, save Fitzhugh's life when the musket ball was stopped. The ball was so spent that the blow was only hard enough to spoil temporary (sic) the face of the miniature, which was afterward restored fairly well by an artist in Paris. When it did actually save Fitzhugh's life was out on the Illinois plain. The savage Long Hair, peace to his memory, worked the miracle of restoring to me"—Here a fold in the paper has destroyed a line of the writing.

The letter is a sacred family paper, and there is not justification for going farther into its faded and, in some parts, almost obliterated writing. But so much may pass into these pages as a pleasant authentication of what otherwise might be altogether too sweet a double nut for the critic's teeth to crack.

While Adrienne and Alice were still discussing the probability of Rene de Ronville's return M. Roussillon came to the door. He was in search of madame, his wife, whom he had not yet seen.

THE LATE SNOW STORM.

The severe blizzard and snow storm which swept over this section last week was a decided surprise to even the "oldest inhabitant", breaking all former records for April. A large portion of the fruit crop is blasted, if not killed outright.

The radius of the storm was quite extensive, and reports from the following Kentucky points in regard to it have been received:

Bowling Green, Madisonville, Hopkinsville, Owensboro, Searsville, Hartford, Henderson, Fordsville, Sturgis, Morganfield, Munfordsville, Rockport, Burnside, Cadiz, Middlesboro, Russellville, Williamsburg, Somerset, and Evansville and Tell City, Ind.

The storm seems to have missed the bluegrass region and the southern portion of the State.

MARION WOOLEN MILLS WILL BEGIN BUSINESS MAY 1.

They have in their employ a wool comber of 45 years experience and will guarantee first class work on first class material, and will replace same on return of roles to our mill where fault is due to our neglect or carelessness. A $25.00 Bed Room Suite will be given away. Every customer of Marion Woolen Mills will get a free draw at this suite for every 10 pounds of wool to be carded and those who buy their roles from us to the amount of 2 pounds of first class wool at 40 cts. per pound or 4 pounds second class at 20 cts. per pound. There will be a committee of three disinterested men who shall seal a number between 1 and 1,000 and hold that number until December 1, 1904, when the contest shall close. Even the committee will not know what the lucky number is. Two will choose 12 numbers, place them in a cigar box, shake them well, place them on a table, blindfold the third man who is holding an envelope. They lead him to the box, then the other two will take their seats in the rear of the room. The man who wears the hood-wink will raise the lid, draw one of the 12 tickets, placing it in the envelope and sealing it. He will then close the lid to the box, remove the hood-wink, take the box and remaining tickets and place them in the fire, burn them up. One thousand tickets will be placed in envelopes same as lucky number and placed in shoe case. Customers will draw one envelope from the case, place his name on envelope and drop in ballot box, keys to which are held by the committee, which will be opened on closing day of contest by the committee. The one holding same number as held by committee gets the suite free. Not a living soul will know what the lucky number is until close of contest and opened by the committee, who will take and carefully examined customers' numbers. All who ship or send their wool shall get a draw.

DEATH.

(A Paraphrase).

BY O. G. W.

When time shall be,
When Death without my gate
shall call for me,
And say unto the Warden, "Now I reap,"
I ask not that he stay
His sword and grant me yet another day,
But only that he come when daylight dies
In length'ning shadows down the western skies,
And quiet sit
Without my gate, waiting and watching it,
'Till 'neath its portal passes calm browed sleep.
Then pray I this:
From those I love I have my good night kiss,
Then he may come and softly close the door,
So we three friends—Sleep, Death and I,
May quiet lie
And part no more.

Mr. C. E. Doss is having a new fence put around the old cemetery and having the grounds cleaned off and otherwise improved in appearance. The work is a very commendable one, as since the laying off of the new cemetery the old burying ground, where repose the ashes of so many of Marion's honored dead, has been neglected.

Ed McFee has returned from California, where he has been sojourning all winter at Pomona, Los Angeles and Riverside. He is much improved. On his return trip he stopped off to visit the Walkers at Grand Junction and the Franks at Denver. He reports all the ex-Marionites as improving in health and well satisfied with their new homes.
That is, as well satisfied as they could be after having lived here. Marion always occupies first place in the hearts of those who have cast their lot here, even for a short while.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McChesney, will have a family reunion at their home in this city today, when all of their children and grand-children are expected to be present. The company will consist of State Secretary H. V. McChesney, wife and child, of Frankfort; Mr. H. D.
McChesney, wife and child, of Salem;
Mr. W. E. Cox, wife and child, of Kelsey, and Mr. H. D. Woolridge, wife and child, of Salem. The true Kentucky hospitality of Mr. McChesney is well known and it is needless to add that an all-round good time will be had by those present. An interesting programme will be carried out, the fattest calf will no doubt be slain and everything good to eat will be spread before their guests.

Last Saturday afternoon Mrs. Mary Perry, wife of Ed Perry, and her baby, and her sister, Miss Effie Deboe, daughter of Phil Deboe, of the Iron Hill neighborhood, had a narrow escape from drowning in Tradewater River at the Fish Trap Ferry. They had started to Blackford shopping and when they reached the Ferry no one was there to set them over and they inquired and were informed that they could ford the river which they proceeded to undertake. They had hardly left the shore when the horse went out of sight and the water quickly rose almost to their necks as they sat on the seat. Some boys in a boat were near and came to their rescue, taking them ashore in a boat while the horse swam ashore with the buggy. They drove to Blackford before being able to procure any dry clothing, but except for colds and fright, are none the worse for their terrible experience which they will not soon forget. Mrs. Perry and Miss Deboe are sisters of Mrs. Geo. Thomas, of this city, and relatives of Ex-U. S. Senator De-boe.

The School Gathering.

The Marion Graded School Alumni gathered about 150 of the graduates of the school Friday night. Almost every class, in fact there were but two classes without representation. Opening with a march, it was a continued swing of cheer and hearty pleasure. School songs by everybody made the welkin ring.
Great bowls of punch were on every hand. One of the features of the evening was an opportunity given the alumni of seeing the punch bowl given to Hon.
Ollie James by his colleagues in Congress. As they drank out of it every one remembered Congressman James, their favorite. The hit of the evening was the appearance of Prof. M. H. Lock-year, of Lockyear's Business college, of Evansville, Ind. Every one laughed at his round of fun until it was dangerous.
All in all, it was the best alumni in the school's history.

To the Public.

It has come to our knowledge that a certain hardware house in Marion to whom we have never sold any goods, have by buying from another dealer in a different town secured several of the Geo. Delker Buggies with which they are attempting to mislead the public by advertising them as "cheap goods sold without warranty."

The genuine Delker vehicles have been on the market for over forty years and we are quite sure that wise carriage buyers will readily see how ridiculous this advertisement is. Still we think it well to bring the true facts to the attention of the attention of the public and to state that the reliable firm of Cochran & Pickens are our only agents at Marion and the only firm there to whom we sell our goods.

We will state further that genuine Geo.
Delker Co. vehicles are the highest grade vehicles made in Kentucky and are always fully warranted.

Respectfully,
THE GEORGE DELKER CO.
By CARL P. SCHLAMP, Pres.

We are also Sole Agents for the Oliver and Vulcan Chilled Plows, and any firm advertising these plows in this town is misleading the public, else they have smuggled them through other dealers.

Dr. Shively was called Saturday to visit the home of Clarence Terry to see sick. When the Doctor arrived the mother had administered antidotes and the baby was better and was soon out of danger.

Miss Lizzie James Entertains.

One of the most enjoyable receptions given in many days was that given at the residence of Hon. L. H. James last

ter. Those present were: Misses Lizzie

Dupuy, Johnson, Sayre, Chas. Moore,
Dr. Moore, D. E. Woods, Marshall Jenkins, Chas. Evans and Era Moore. In the flower, bird and animal contests ant to all who were so fortunate as to be Miss James' guests.

A Dandy for Burns.

Dr. Bergin, Pana, Ills., writes: 'I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment, always recommended to my friends, as I am confident there is no better made. It is a dandy for burns.' These who live on farms are especially liable to many accidental cuts, burns, bruises, which heal rapidly when Ballard's Snow Liniment is applied. It should always be kept in the house for cases of emergency." 25c. See $1.00 bottle. For sale by Woods & Orme.

LEASE THE NEW CENTURY.

Col Charles Reed, proprietor of the Palmer, and I. D. Wilcox, who was formerly associated with him in the hotel business, have leased the new century hotel at Dawson Springs and will take charge at once, says the Paducah News. They have been negotiating with the owners of the hotel for several days and the deed was finally consummated this morning.

By the terms of the contract, Reed and Wilcox assume the management at once, with the privilege of retaining it for a term of five years.

Mr. Wilcox will move to Dawson Springs at once and assume personal charge of the hotel. Several days will be required in which to get things in condition and the New Century will open about May 15.

The new management proposes to make the New Century equal to anything in the State. It is a new building, built on modern lines, which was opened last year with a heavy patronage. The limited capital of the owners, however, soon forced them into an assignment, and the building was bid in recently at auction by Hayden & Tinkeld, of Salem, two of the creditors, who in turn leased it to the local parties.

While the hotel will be operated all the year, it will do its best business in the summer.

The 8th verse of Psalm 117 is the middle verse of the bible.

First correct answer was received from Miss Lillie Gass, Marion. Correct answer also received from Robie Belt, Marion. Other good answers from Virginia Blue, Della Guess and Fannie Blue, their answers being verse 8, Psalm 97. Verse 8, Psalm 13, was given by Jo. Anna Rankin, Addie Maynard, Freeman Crider, Mamie Love, Otto Moran, Mildred Rankin, Katie Stephenson, Anna Haynes, Velda Travis, Katie Crider and Bertha Rankin.

Couldn't Let a Sparrow Suffer.

Here is the story of a simple, everyday hero:

Stretching from a tall sycamore tree to another tree in one of Philadelphia's crowded squares was a tangled kite string.

Flying across it a sparrow had one of its wings caught, and the poor bird fluttered in the airless and screaming.

William Dayton, a sailor who had just come to port in a coast vessel, was one of the sympathizing crowd who watched the bird.

Then up the sycamore he went, easily and gracefully, although he knew it was at the risk of his life. As he reached the top, seventy-five feet above the pavement, the branches bent beneath his weight. Crawling cautiously on a limb, he caught the string, and the sparrow was released.

The spectators cheered Dayton's act, and a collection of money was raised for him. He was rewarded also by the Pennsylvania Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The injured bird was cared for in the nearby police station until it was able to fly again.

His Synonym.

A Chinese boy who works in a Philadelphia laundry and who is studying English, had occasion the other day to write a letter to the young woman who is his Sunday school teacher. Not wishing to begin his letter in the stereotyped way with "Dear Miss"—for he considered her worthy of something special—he took this English dictionary to look up an equivalent for the word "dear."

His teacher was much surprised and highly edified when she opened the letter. This is the way it began:

"Expensive-Miss."—YOUTH.

Frog-Catchers in Paris.

French people, you know, are very fond of frogs, and as they eat only the hind legs a great many are needed to supply the demand. Consequently frog catching is quite an industry.

In some places frogs are caught by means of nets, but in Paris the men have a method of their own. They start out in the evening just about dusk, and each one carries a lantern and a long stick with a piece of red cloth on the end.

When he reaches a pool the frog catcher shows his light, and the frog, attracted by it, hops toward it.

Next the man lightly drops his cloth upon the water, and the frog, thinking something good is coming, snaps at it and so catches itself in the cloth. It cannot get away, and the frog catcher captures it without any trouble.

Boy Wanted.

Wanted—a boy that is manly. A boy that is kind and polite. A boy you can always depend on. To do what he knows to be right.

A boy that is truthful and honest. And faithful and willing to work. But we have no time to place that we care to disengage.

With a boy that is ready to shrink. A boy that is ready to shrink.

Wanted—a boy you can tie to. A boy that is trustworthy and true. A boy that is good to old people. And kind to the little ones, too.

A boy that is nice to the home folks. And pleasant to sister and brother. A boy who will try when things go awry. To be helpful to father and mother.

These are the boys who are wanted. In the workshop, the home and the store. The world needs such boys in its business. For there are places galore.

These are the boys we depend on. Our hope for the future, and then grave problems of state and the world's work await.

Such boys when they grow to be men. —Normal Instructor.

WINTRY WEATHER.

So far as the oldest inhabitant can remember there has never been a winter in these parts that was so cold, so long and so unrelenting as the one through which we have just passed. The cold set in early, it staid cold all the time, and it held on as though it was determined never to let loose. We are however hopeful that it is now about over.

A Thought For The Week.

Some men are always fearing that if they spend a dollar to improve their business, it might prove to be a repetition of the experience of the dog who dropped his bone for its reflection. A very old fable. Some men are not.

Some men are traveling over and over again, year after year, back and forth, along the same old rut until it is so deep that they finally sink out of sight, unnoticed by the busy multitude of money-getters—until when later they are sometimes dug up in the interest of science and exhibited once more as fossils. Some men are not, and thanks to human ambition for that, or we would soon return to the manners and customs of our blissful ancestors' the cave-dwellers.

As the small boy says, "Get in the swim, fellows, de water's fine!" In other words, advertise.

MAKING A SUCCESS.

W. C. O'Brien, of Paducah, was in town a day or two last week. He is an old Hopkins county boy and was for many years one of the teachers in our schools. He was a good teacher and taught just as he should. For several years he has turned his attention to other matters.

As a business man he is making a success. He has an interest and is a director in oil wells in Ohio. He was on his way from Lima when here. His investments in these wells have been paying him a good profit. "Billy" O'Brien has a world of friends in Hopkins county, who are always glad to hear of his successes.—Glenn's Graphic.

A MOTHER'S GRIEF.

All the garnered grief of years,
All the joy that banished tears,
All the smiles and all the laughter
And the peace that followed after,
I would give if 'mid the pain
I could clasp my child again

Then I heard from every tongue
When my heart with grief was wrong
Life has pleasures, heights to reach Life has lessons love can teach,
Look not on the past, but strive Shattered hopes to still revive.

But hearts like these can never know
The deep, dark depths of mother woe, Longing for the words to give
In a loving, fond caress, Longing for the word to give Strength and purpose yet to live.

In the stream that I have crossed,
Earthly pleasures all are lost,
But my spirit seeks to say
Of shining light which heralds day,
Thus I wait and strive to see
The brightness of eternity.

A Cheap Coat.

A seedy-looking individual stood outside a pawnshop. Presently he entered and said, "How much will you give me for this overcoat?"

"Seventy-five cents," was the pawnbroker's reply.

"You ought to make it a dollar and a half. This coat ain't worth less than ten dollars at the very least," urged the man.

"My friend, I wouldn't give you two dollars for two overcoats like that."

"Would you take a dollar and a quarter for it if it was yours?"

"My friend, I would take a dollar for that overcoat and tink I had done vell."

"All right, here's your dollar. It was hanging up in front your shop, and I brought it in to see how much it was worth," replied the customer.

Here, stop! dot vas a schvindler!" roared the defeated pawnbroker.

MODERN SIBERIA.

"In Darkest Siberia"—a term so often applied to Russia's Asiatic territory, bringing to mind the horrible fate of the exiles and the lonely and desolate life they lead in this land of ice and snow—should now be abandoned. Siberia of today is a country of civilization and enlightenment, where homes, towns and cities exist, as in other countries; where people are cheerful, contented and enterprising instead of suffering from the terrible doom of exile in a foreign waste land.

In truth the exiles form but a very small part of the population of Siberia. For nearly two hundred years it has been a place of refuge for religious sects which were not permitted in Russia by the orthodox church. Entire settlements were formed, where cities have grown up, by these religious dissenters. Sometimes whole villages, becoming dissatisfied with their Russian homes, would emigrate to Siberia, having sent a courier ahead to select a place suitable for permanent settlement. In almost every case the Russians have mingled peacefully with the native inhabitants, and have done much toward civilizing them.

Until the advent of the Trans-Siberian railway the settlements were connected by government roads and mail routes, which even a hundred and fifty years ago surpassed any in England or America. The overland mail was frequent and regular. Postal rates were only half of those charged in England and France, and the mail carrier traveled more than twice as fast. This excellent system of mail carriage did more than anything else toward civilizing the people, keeping them in touch with the world until they were given the railroad and telegraph.

Most Siberian towns of ten thousand inhabitants or more can boast of good public libraries, museums, opera houses, colleges, and in a few cases excellent universities. The people all contribute to keep up the museums, where some of the finest collections of specimens in the world are preserved, such as would be coveted by any European city. In the public libraries besides a large collection of books are found the leading newspapers and magazines of Europe and America. Some of the opera houses are as handsome as any in New York or London. In towns where good troupes do not often visit, home talent clubs are formed which delight their audiences with their excellent performance of Shakespeare's plays and standard opera.

The society woman of Siberia knows how to entertain as handsomely and graciously as a New Yorker.

During the few weeks of summer, when the weather is warm enough, any bright afternoon you will find the public square filled with ladies of fashion out for a promenade, in the latest Parisian gowns, with dainty chiffon parasols and hats direct from Paris.

The moral standard of the people is high. This is probably due to the fact that the women have followed their husbands into exile or where villages were removed to Siberia the man's entire family went with him, thus preserving the family tie and holding sacred the marriage bonds.

Got a Wife For $3.

"Say," said a young man, as he entered the county clerk's office here Monday morning, where County Clerk Ed Weldon and his efficient deputy, Dick Bebout, were engaged in the discharge of their official duties, "how much do you charge now for a license to get married?"

"Only two dollars," replied the county clerk obligingly, as he made a pass for a blank license.

"How's that?" asked the young man. "Didn't it used to be only $1.50?"

"Yes, that is true, but," explained Mr. Weldon, "with the advancement of time and opportunity, the price of marriage license has naturally advanced also."

"And besides," further explained the deputy clerk, "people want to marry worse now than they did a few years back—fully 25 per cent worse—and this, of course, would account for that additional 50 cents that has been tacked on to the price of marriage license."

"Well," said the young man, on-half way convinced as to the justice of the 50 cents advance, "how much will Judge Towery charge me for performing the ceremony?"

"The Judge is out," said the clerk, "but a preacher will do as well."

But a preacher would charge me more," objected the young man.

"A preacher makes no charges for performing a marriage ceremony," replied the clerk. "You can pay him whatever you like."

"You see," again explained the deputy clerk, "while a county judge believes only in justice, a minister of the gospel is inclined to mercy, and—"

But the young man would stay to hear no more. He left the office and the clerk telephoned for a minister. He returned in a few minutes bringing the young lady whom he wished to marry with him.

"Now parson," he said, as the Rev. U. G. Hughes entered the office, "before you begin this ceremony, I want to know what you will charge me."

"Oh, I make no charges at all," replied the minister; "you can pay me whatever you like."

"Well, I'll give you one dollar—not another cent!" was the response, and he hit his trousers' pocket significantly.

The offer was accepted, the license was issued, the ceremony performed and the young man left the clerk's office possessing a wife, but minus his three dollars.

For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

WINE OF CARDUI

CRADLE WITH A HISTORY.

[Lyon County Times.]

In 1848 T. J. Cobb and Almada Glenn were married at the residence of Col Samuel Glenn, near Glenn's Chapel, then Caldwell county, Ky. Mr Cobb then owned the farm where Mr George Catlett now resides. Uncle Tommy Catlett met Mr. Cobb shortly after the marriage, and after congratulations told him if his first child was a boy he would make him a present of a nice cradle. Our fellow county man, H. C. Cobb, now residing at Kuttawa, on the 31st day of March, 1849, made his appearance on the scene of action to claim the cradle. He received the same and handed it down to eleven brothers and sisters and all the grandchildren that have been in the family, and the cradle is still in the family, good for another fifty years. The age of this piece of furniture is unknown, as in it had rocked uncle Harvey Catlett, of Eddyville, who is past 80 years of age, also a sister, still older.

IN MEMORIAM.

Died, at his home near Fredonia, Ky., Saturday, Oct. 24, 1903, R. W. McChesney.

Bro. McChesney had been a sufferer for a number of years. First he had been afflicted with indigestion and rheumatism for some years, and later on he suffered partial paralysis of his lower limbs, and last of all that dread affliction known as Bright's disease set in, and under the great strain of so many evils the vitals of his physical system were forced to yield, and allow the death angel to enter and dismantle the last lingering vital energies. Bro McChesney had long been a recognized member of the great Baptist family, and was at the time of his death a member of Caldwell Springs Baptist church, near Fredonia, Ky.

Bro McChesney was a man of a very genial nature and disposition and therefore enjoyed the high esteem and friendship of those who knew him best. He was 61 years and six months old.

Bro McChesney leaves a wife and eight children, who deeply realize their loss of him as husband and father, and while they have to mourn his death as their loss they do not have to mourn as those who have no hope for their loved ones after death, as in his last days on earth, and on down to the end of consciousness he assured his dear ones that his future was joyously bright, and his calm resignation to the Lord in death becomes to us all a lasting and consoling evidence that all is well with him now.

On Sabbath, Oct. 25th, with other precious ones who had preceded him in death, his mortal remains were laid to rest in the Shady Grove cemetery, to wait the joyous summons on the resurrection morn.

We want to Say Just a Few Words to you about CLOTHING AND SHOES!

OUR stock of Clothing this season is the largest and best that we have ever shown. We have more good Clothes; a larger and prettier assortment than ever before. We have all of the New Goods, Fancy Worsteds, Fancy Chivots, Home Spuns, Scotch effects, etc. And they are made and guaranteed by the largest clothing makers in the world.—A. B. Kirschbaum & Co. No other line of Clothing in the country has such a sale in the large cities. There is not a city in the United States in which there is not some first-class store handling this line, and this fact alone is proof sufficient that they are correct in style, fit and price. We claim for them that they are the best tailored, fit better, have more style about them, hold their shape longer and look more like fine made-to-measure clothing than any other line sold in Marion. And furthermore, we will sell them to you for less money than you can buy the other kind.

Come and see these goods. Give us a chance to prove these claims.

COMPARE! COMPARE! WE INVITE COMPARISON!

FOR seven years we've handled the same line of Shoes. Each year for seven years our shoe trade has increased. We are thoroughly acquainted with every shoe we sell. They are good, we know it, and our customers who have bought them for seven years know it too. We have so much faith in them that we are not afraid to put our guarantee behind every shoe we sell. Our line of Men's $3.00 and $3.50 Shoes in Patent, Vici and Box Calf are just as good as that amount of cash will buy. If you want something better than you can buy elsewhere we have them, and are they just as good as money will buy.

We can show you the largest and prettiest line of Ladies Fine Shoes and Oxfords in Marion. Every pair of them we have made especially to our order, and every pair we guarantee. We will give you more style, more comfort, more service for the price than you can find in any other line. We always have bargains in shoes. Just now we are selling a good $1.25 Oxford 98c, and a high grade Custom-Made Oxfords that's worth anywhere from $1.75 to $2.00 for $1.50.
