WHAT IS DOING AT THE BIG CULLEN MINES.

Saturday a Big Day in Marion—The Columbia and the Memphis Men Make Big Draws.

A staff reporter of the Press and his better half made an early flitting to the Benlah land of the miners on Sunday last and visited the celebrated Cullen and Nancy Hanks mines, near Salem. From seeing the huge machinery which has recently passed through Marion headed for the Cullen mine we were prepared to be astonished, but the reality exceeded our most vivid imagination.

Arrived at the Cullen we saw stacked up in every direction piles upon piles of heavy lumber, and learn that five or six wagons are adding to these piles daily, while before us loomed up the skeleton of a building solid in its structure, grand in its proportions. Here are its dimensions:

Length 120 feet; breadth 90 feet; height of separating section 125 feet; height of milling section 60 feet. And just imagine this vast building being rapidly filled with the heaviest and most costly machinery known to the mining art, and then you have but a faint conception of what the Cullen people are doing. Why, we were told by one who should know that the company intend spending $50,000 this season on betterments alone.

We were shown through that portion of the plant open to spectators by the boss in charge, our old friend A. G. Butler, who explained to us a great deal about the machinery already placed and to be placed at the works.

These will consist of two vertical boilers, each of 200 horse power, which have not yet been placed in position; a combination engine, now in position, with two 7 foot fly wheels; a revolving dryer, 20 feet in length; 2 powerful crushers; 4 large rollers; 9 big separators; a large air compressor and a big building filled with other machinery yet to be placed.

The house containing the entrance to the main shaft was locked, and we failed to see either it or any of the ore which has been taken from it, as all the ore was under lock and key also. From an auxiliary shaft just outside the building we saw specimens of crystallized spar on a blue limestone formation.

Mr. Butler informed me that there is no doubt as to the extent and value of the vein, which is a mixture of lead, zinc and fluor spar.

Major Hearne is on the ground every day, superintending construction and working like a beaver himself; and when one remembers the vast sums of money, the Major has and is pouring into this pet enterprise of his, we can but admire the pluck and faith that is in him, and wish him God speed. The Press tips its hat to you and the Cullen, Major.

We also visited the Nancy Hanks, situated near the Cullen mine, but found the door locked and no one at home. Doubtless Aunt Nancy had gone to church.

We saw on the dump, however, some 50 or 60 tons of lump ore, a mixture of lead and zinc, and a small quantity of crystallized fluor spar. In another pile there was probably 2 or 3 tons of zinc gravel ore, which had been shot out of the washer and appeared to be in almost a pure state. We were told the Nancy has gotten out more ore in the past two weeks than at any period in its history.

Mr. Lewis, of the Nancy Hanks arrived a few days ago and wants to hire men to assist in prospecting, so we were told.

Verily Salem and vicinity is surrounded by vast riches, which time will surely bring to the surface.

Mr. R. W. Hines, of the firm of R. W. Hines & Co., merchants of Fordsville, was in the city yesterday on one of his ordinary business trips, but he brought with him a hand bag well filled with heavy substances. This was the unusual feature of his journey. The heavy substances were specimens of clays and mineral bearing rocks which were found on land near Fordsville. Mr. Hines took the samples to Banker B. H. Pindexter, who is known as an authority on the subject and to have paying interests in several rich mines in the western part of the State. Several of the specimens were pronounced to be valuable, if found in sufficient quantities, and further explorations will soon be made. A part of the State geological corps will be in that locality next week and Mr. Hines and others will lend all aid possible in trying to determine whether or not there are rich deposits of mineral in that region.—Owensboro Messenger.

The Hustler is informed that preparations are being made to bore for oil and gas at Seebree on a big scale. A company has been formed of which J. A. Powell is President, S. F. Powell Secretary and H. A. Couch Treasurer, and $1,500.00 has been subscribed and paid in in cash, with which to do the preliminary work. It is said the tests show great prospects. H. A. Doudna, of Madisonville, is moving his machines there and will bore a great depth to test the matter. The well will be located on the L. and N. railroad, near the city.

Our Hampton correspondent writes:

Crittenden county can boast of her fine lead, zinc and spar, and we rejoice with them, but it is beginning to look as if our little town, Hampton, will be right in the midst of a zinc and gold mining district. On the land of J. D. Threlkeld near this place there is a shaft that is yielding gold prospects, and there is a company trying to buy his lead and zinc prospects at $100 per acre. Also, on the land of J. C. Hardin and C. H. Lay are good prospects of very fine veins of lead and zinc.

A geological survey has been ordered of Kentucky with the view of locating mineral deposits, in the various sections of the State. C. J. Norman, chief of the department, has appointed Sam Denny to take charge of the work in Hopkins county. He will start in a few days with a crew of fifty men and will make the survey of Hopkins county complete in every detail. The survey will be of great value to Hopkins county.

Our New Salem correspondent says:

No abatement in hauling lumber for the big plant at the Cullen mines.

The owners of the Cullen mill, now under construction, say that the whistle for their mill will lay the Nancy Hanks in the shade. Well, she will have to be a honey, you bet.

Luther Haydon, Secretary of the Southwestern Land and Mining company of Hopkinsville, Ky. has just sold the Clifton Coal company coal and timber lands in Mannington, Ky., containing 1060 acres, to Hon Wm Lynch of Dawson Springs, including two coal mines, 36 coke ovens, the company's store building, a number of tenement houses, the town site of Mannington, and the entire machinery of the Clifton Coal company. The consideration has not been made public, but the Clifton Coal company paid $40 per acre for the land twenty years ago and the supposition is it cost Mr. Lynch a good round sum of money.—Hopkinsville New Era

Capt S. A. Fowler has at his office at First and Broadway a heavy chunk of lead ore, which also shows a trace of silver.

Capt Fowler found the ore on his farm, which is located on the south bank of Clark's river, this county. Many old residents of that section claim that there used to be, years ago, a silver mine on Clark's river, which was worked by Indians.

The farm where the ore was discovered is known as the old Saunders' place. It is five miles from Paducah and fronts on the Benton road.—News Democrat.

The fine vein of spar struck on the Widow Franks' farm by Mess. Gray and Persons, shows signs of a fine lead vein now. The gentlemen are feeling quite elated over their prospects.

Ten horses pulled and tugged through the streets of Marion one day last week with the great 200 horse power engine for the Eagle Fluorspar company. Its actual weight was 16,000 pounds.

Among the mining capitalists in this city this week were: S. V. Levi, Oakland City; C. H. Whitehouse, Louisville; Clarence Hinkle, Evansville.

R. W. Wilson has acquired the entire stock of the "Wilson Mining Co.," which concern owned some valuable territory near the Crittenden Springs.

The immense 200 h. p. boilers for the Cullen mine weigh 13 tons (26,000 pounds) each; making a total of 52,000 pounds.

They are now sinking at the Stevens fire clay mine in the Salem district and expect to begin shipping in a short time.

The vein at the Cullen is 23 ft. 4 inches in width. The main shaft is now down 157 feet.

The smokestack of the Cullen mine is 120 feet high.

CROWELL—HAMILTON.

June 8th was a lovely, ideal day—just the day for an ideal wedding—such a one as was enjoyed by a circle of friends and relatives at the residence of W. C. Hamilton. W. D. Crowell, the groom, is one of the best known and one of the most popular young men that Crittenden county has ever produced. The bride is the youngest and beautiful daughter of W. C. Hamilton.

Promptly at 4:30 the bride, dressed in Pean-de-Cyngne silk, trimmed with chille lace, made in Louis XIV style, appeared leaning on the arm of the groom, and stepping to the sweet strains of music. The parlor was filled with friends and relatives. The ceremony was duly performed by Rev. James F. Price, which launched them on the sea of marital life. They were warmly and sincerely congratulated by those present. In a short time they left for Weston, where they took a boat for Evansville, their future home. As they were taking their seats in the surry for Weston an unexpected shower of rice overwhelmed them, betokening their future success and happiness.

Among the attending friends none added more to the occasion than Mrs. McAuley, of Blackford, who, with her sunny and genial nature and ready wit could give a happy turn at every point and could dissipate so happily every feeling of sadness and transform it into merriment and pleasure. May life's pathway for this couple be lined with the flowers of success and joyfulness.

Do You Want the Prize Watch?

Here it is, Gold Filled with Chain, and Guaranteed Twenty Years.

To any person sending us 100 subscribers, 10 of which must be new ones, we will give one of the beautiful watches and chain to match.

The party who gets up the greatest number over 100 before July 4th, will also receive a handsome gold watch, so if you win the first prize, why not try also for the second prize and give it to your sweet heart. There is only one restriction, and that is out of every one hundred, ten must be new subscribers.

We must double our subscription list before the end of the year: 5000 is our mark. Will you help us reach it?

Each subscriber paying a year's subscription will have 10 guesses on the number of instructed votes received by "winners" in each of the National conventions. You can put in Five guesses on the Democratic and Five on the Republican. The Democratic National Convention meets in St. Louis July 4th. No matter who the winner is, the question is how many instructed or uninstructed votes will he get in that convention.

The Republican National Convention meets in Chicago, June 30th. No matter who the winner is, the question is how many votes will he get in that convention.

CRITTENDEN PRESS:—

I guess the winner will get..... votes in the Republican National Convention.

HIDDEN GOLD,

Found by a Farmers' Little Child In Graves County.

J. A. Jackson, living one mile and a half from Hiser, this county, says the News-Democrat, while plowing in his garden the other day, saw his little child in the fur row just ahead of his horse, and told it to get out of the way. At the time the child left the furrow it had something in its hand and asked its father what it was. He turned around and was surprised at the child having in its hands several pieces of gold and silver. He devoted the balance of the afternoon to plowing, digging and scraping about the garden. He was not disappointed, for he was soon rewarded by finding quite a lot of both gold and silver. Some of it was dated 1842, but none of later date than 1860.

The garden is where the dwelling house of Mrs. Leachman, who used to be a slaveholder in ante bellum days, stood, and who lived there during the war, but who has been dead for over 30 years.

The old house has been torn down and near where it stood a new house was built many years ago, and it is supposed that this money was buried there during war times, where it has remained until the present.

Mr. Jackson was highly delighted with his find for he is very certain that the real owner of the money has long since crossed the dark river. The amount found was no small sum, in fact it amounts to many dollars.

A Frightened Horse.

LETTER FROM KANSAS.

GLEN EDEN, KAN., June 2, 1904.

—ED. PRESS: It has been 18 years last spring since we emigrated to Kansas. Thought maybe the readers of the Press would like to hear from us, and how things are moving on in Kansas.

When I came here this was a poor man's country. Towns were small and poorly built, farmers had poor shacks to live in and some of them had sod houses and dugouts only. Most farms were heavily mortgaged and most of the country was raw prairie. We had few of the necessities and none of the luxuries of life, from an eastern viewpoint. But we did have an intelligent, progressive people, and as good land, I think, as God ever made, and a healthy climate; and the battle with adverse circumstances begun by a persistent and determined people.

We had many years of drouth, and hot winds and of course crop failures, and the debts remained, and it seemed that the debts was about all that did stay with us; although they grew in proportion by reason of 1 and 2 per cent a month interest on principal.

Well, it looked gloomy and appearances were not deceiving, not a bit of it; and then the Populist party was born, and lived and had a being, but now it seems to be dead, or at least in a comatose state; peace to its ashes. But I will say right here that the principles enunciated by the Pops were and forever will be the basic principles of all good government, or government of the people, for the people and by the people.

But we will discuss the Kansas farmer again. Some of them returned east and some went west to grow up again but most of them remained, and worked, and toiled, and waited, and there are few men who stood up for Kansas in her darkest hours but have their reward, and it has not come around within the last ten years.

Now listen, you eastern fellows, who used to think it the proper thing to jeer Kansas and Kansans, and I will state solid facts only. Today the people are probably as free from debt as any people in this broad land. We have substantial and pretty cities and towns; farms are well improved generally, many farmers having good bank accounts. Towns are all improving, good roads and steel bridges across most all of the rivers and creeks, and last but not least, the best public school system in the country, the largest State Normal school in the world at Emporia, a splendid University at Lawrence and all the state benevolent institutions that any other state has, and there are ten thousand miles of railroad in the State, and oil, and gas, and salt in unlimited quantities, and one county produces one-fourth of all the zinc in the world. I think it is Cherokee county in the southeastern part of the state; and all creation knows of Kansas wheat, Kansas corn, and Kansas meat; but all the world don't know about Kansas alfalfa, something on the order of red clover. After a land is once set, or has a stand of it, it is perpetual and rarely ever has to be sown again. It yields abundantly, is usually cut three times each season, makes splendid pasture for cattle and hogs, and the best hay for cattle that has ever been found, so far as I know. But the best of all is, alfalfa is perfectly adapted to a dry climate, and is proving to be the very salvation of all the western country, for it never gets so dry but one or two good crops are raised.

Crops were fine here last year, and the prospects are good for the present year, only we are having too much rain. It rains every few days, and very heavy rains. Some one has said it never rained too much in Kansas, but we who live here know better. It will injure wheat if it keeps on.

Now, Mr. Editor, you and your readers may think I am booming Kansas and wanting people to come here and settle. Not one little bit of it; the booming days are over; land right here is worth from $25 to $50 per acre, and much of it could not be bought at the latter price. Many eastern men are coming here and paying as much as $7,000 for a quarter section of land.

Some one is sending to me your paper. It is quite interesting, but do you know there are but few people mentioned in its columns that I remember or ever heard of; but I shall ever remember that Kentucky is my native state, and may God ever bless dear old Kentucky, and her kindhearted and chivalrous people.

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR Cures Colds; Prevents Pneumonia

Kentucky Boy, Texas Preacher.

When I was nine years old my father, James Riley Wallace, moved from his place two or three miles south of Marion to Erath county, Texas. That was in the fall of '75. Texas was then a frontier, especially the part where we settled. No railroad west of Dallas. We hauled our first cotton to Ft. Worth, 50 miles. Our first lumber came from Dallas on wagons. The country was alive with wild cattle, deer, turkeys and associate game. Many were the wonders of those days. My grandfather, A. J. Wallace, moved out in '76 and died last year on the same place he then settled.

My sister, Victor a Wells, lives adjoining grandfather's place now. My father died January 15, '94; my stepmother, as good a woman as ever lived, it seemed to me, died in '89.

I married and joined the North Texas Conference in '91. I have served seven churches and have had charge of churches in seventeen different counties of Northwest Texas. My mother is buried in the old brick church cemetery. I hope to visit Marion soon.

Very truly,

Ed. R. Wallace.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

McDonald has been school superintendent for the past two years. He was paid $1,000 a year each by the district and high school boards. The latter has fallen short of funds for the past year, and the trustees have paid by hypothecating the salary vouchers with the Valley bank. To day it was discovered that McDonald last February hypothecated a duplicate set of vouchers, covering seven months to that time, with William Fickas, a local money lender, as security for $500. The signatures on the duplicates of Trustees Robinson, Kaye and Minor are declared forgeries. McDonald is from Henderson, Ky., is about thirty-five years of age, and is of excellent address. He has made a notably efficient superintendent, and has been re-elected for the succeeding term, though the high school has not yet taken action. He has been in bad shape financially and was watched on leaving Phoenix by a bicycle dealer to whom he owed a small sum.

The Holy Land Today,

The "Around the World" photographs, running from month to month in The Delineator are suggestive and full of atmosphere. In the July number the pair of wanderers have reached the Holy Land, and the views reproduced of the Via Dolorosa, along which Christ bore His cross to Mt. Calvary, and of the Garden of Gethsemane in its peaceful beauty, will hold the attention of the reader for long with their realistic interest. The Church of the Nativity at Bethlehem is shown as a shapeless mass of rough stone masonry and the bare and subalpine square in front of it is filled with natives whose careless attitudes and quiet secular occupations fill the beholder with a strange sense of incongruity. A number of Egyptian philographs are also given, one showing the tourist bride and groom seated on the steps of the great pyramid, looking out over the flat, far stretching Valley of the Nile; another of Everyday Life by the Suez Canal, with the great Occidental steamers pushing up between the turbaned Orientals in their little craft; and a remarkable view of the "Water Tanks of Aden."

A Question.

Here is a question I want to ask: How will they measure in money the cost of my murdered child? Is honor valued in bank notes? Can you pay for a broken heart? Can you reckon the worth of a darling child by the standard of silver and gold? Can you buy with gold and silver a heart that is good and true. Tell me, how many dollars will pay for the life-blood shed from the veins of the true and innocent who were murdered and are dead.

Grand Land Sale!

All of the R. E. Bigham land west of the Railroad, adjoining the city of Marion, will be sold beginning at once. The land has been surveyed and platted and cut up into lots of good size, 200 feet deep, and they will be sold on easy terms, cash or time.

W. D. BROWNING, Agt., at Marion Hardware Co.

What the Leading Man Needed to Mollify Him

"I MUST have a change of scene," he said.

Truly he was in sad plight. He had grown pale and wan, his eyes were listless, and he had no heart for anything.

"I am weary," he went on, "of seeing the same thing day after day and night after night. There is the same tree in the same place, the same house, the same balcony, the same fence, the same old mill. The same girl swings on the same gate and welcomes me with the same words. I have the same emotions, and the same gruff father rushes from the same door to drive me away. The monotony of it is maddening. I must have a change of scene."

They argued with him, but to no purpose.

"One cannot have things as he would wish in this world," they said. "It should be some consolation to you that the girl is true."

"But it's the same loyalty, the same devotion," he persisted. "She never changes. I tell you, I've got to break the monotony of this life somehow. I've got to have a change of some sort, and a change of scene is the easiest arranged, it seems to me."

They saw that he was in earnest. "Stick it out one more month," they said, "and we will put on a new play that will give you a complete change of scene and possibly a new sweetheart."

Thus the leading man of the successful melodrama was mollified.—Chicago Post.

No Snoring.

Postmaster General Payne the other day told a story of something that he once saw in a Milwaukee courtroom. Through the kindness and tact of the judge the court crier was saved from a fine.

"One day attended," said Mr. Payne, "a session of the court at which this judge presided. The court crier was a very old man; he had served with fidelity for many years, but age was beginning now to tell on him. He fell asleep while I was in the courtroom, and in a little while he was snoring."

"The snorer, of course, disturbed the proceedings of the court, but the judge showed great tact in interrupting, without embarrassing the crier."

"Crier Jones," he said in a loud voice, "after some one is snoring!"

"The crier awakened with a start and jumped to his feet."

"Silence!" he exclaimed. "There must be no snoring in the courtroom," and he glared fiercely at about him."—Philadelphia Press.

Echoes of the State Convention,

The big Congressman from the First district was accorded the first real demonstration of the convention. He was on his feet as the last words died on the lips of Chairman Young, and the delegates applauded long and vigorously. In opening Mr. James declared that the purpose of the convention was not to recall bitterness and strife of the past few years in the party, but to dwell together in harmony and to select and send to St. Louis a delegation of representative Kentuckians to help reclaim the country. "I am glad to see the Democracy of the Fifth district here uncontested by a man who lately dealt with the Republicans. I have no quarrel with your chairman. I come with word from the country Democrats that they are here to stand with you against this man Whallen. I come from those country Democrats to present the name of a young Democrat, tried and proven—one who came from the graveside of the late Isaac Wilson, of Nelson county, and, traveling in night, arrived in Frankfort to answer 'Here,' and vote for his party's nominee, 'Joe' Blackburn. He came again and again to represent his party and his State in its counsels at Frankfort, and came with your martyred leader and held his place at the head of the Democratic hosts when Republican bayonets flashed all about him. He has since led your party to another victory and still another."

The Tramp's Dead Shot,

BY O. G. W.

"Have you sawed that wood?" asked a lady of a tramp who enquired for breakfast. "Have I sawed that wood!" exclaimed the tramp in contempt. "I have seen that wood, and I don't intend to work for a lady who doesn't understand the rules of grammar better than you do."

Amazed at such impudence the lady paled, and quietly seating herself in her rustic arm chair gazed intently at this extraordinary creature, and silently and slowly moved back a few paces.

Observing close by an empty coal scuttle the tramp stooped, and picking it up examined it closely, and finding it had no use, he carefully placed it on the ground, firmly and bottom side up and then with the confidence of a "Crab Orchard horse jockey," he mounted his improvised rostrum.

Facing the lady and assuming the attitude of an expert orator, he addressed her as follows:

"Fair haired lady, with those beautiful peach blossom cheeks and superb look of courage and hope, I crave your undivided attention and with all due deference to your position in society, your youth and sex, I shall endeavor to enlighten you and touch the heart that lies so safely behind that look. Lady, listen:

I once was ultra clever at amazing calculations,

I mastered comic sections and the theory of equations;

And differential calculus and obstruse permutations,

With awful probabilities of convergence variations.

Parabolic formula I eyed with admiration,

And hailed a crux elliptical with boisterous ovation.

For algebra I looked with undisguised anticipation,

And learned with ardor complicated differentiation.

But yet I ne'er could understand Demosthenes' orations.

And I raved at Latin grammar with offensive appellations.

Thucydides' oratory seemed all prevarication,

And Ciceronian defence conceited obtrusions.

I looked upon elegiac verse as use less occupation,

And Greek iambs as a work of supererogation;

For I always thought the language of a dead and buried nation

Was wholly unproductive of the least remuneration.

And now, dear lady, I have unbusomed myself and uncovered to you a picture of the past. Tell me, lady, dost thou like the picture?"

No answer came. With that far-away stare, as one lost in deep meditation, she, still and immovable, sat in her rustic chair.

Union of Churches.

The Presbyterian presbyteries at Buffalo, Dallas and Mobile voted last week to unite and appointed committees to draw up articles of federation, etc. This will make the Presbyterian body a power and one of the leading church bodies.

The Methodist General Conference appointed a committee to meet the Congregationalists and United Brethren and form an amalgamation with them, thus adding a third more members to the already large protestant church.

This union of churches will have a marked effect upon the religious world and will do much toward elevating and popularizing the church. We see in it but the stepping stone for the further amalgamation of churches and in perhaps one or possibly two decades the Methodists and presbyterians could federate and thus form a body of Protestants outnumbering the Catholics.

It may also lead to the amalgamation of the close communion churches and eventually lead to but two general Protestant church heads. The churches are but following in the footsteps of the commercial world and uniting in common interests—a species of trust. It will mean better ministrations, less begging, less backbiting and quarreling, more liberality and tolerance and the true conception of Christianity as Christ taught it.—Ex.

CENTRAL KENTUCKY,

Mr. Editor: Your valuable paper comes to me every Monday. I hail it with delight, enjoy its evidences of prosperity and listen with interest to its stories of the "ups and downs" of life, "notes of joy" and "tales of woe."

I glance at the paper to see who has been to town, who has chanced to take a visit, or who is in feeble health, dead or married. The local items tell me that there is peace and harmony abounding.

I read with interest the letters from Kentuckians who have lost their moorings and drifted off to different parts of the country, from Florida to Washington. How your people are scattered!

When I see Marion school reports, with her well-earned victories and high achievements, I say, hurrah for Marion.

I peep down into "Old Jim," hear the battling at "Cullen's," note the victories of "Nancy Hawks," the success of "Columbia," and the rest of them. Every little school boy knows when he sees spar, lead, zinc and such mineral. Almost every old mule has had a pull at a load of Crittenden's earthly treasures. Every land-owner hopes that there is a fortune hidden beneath his sassafras sprouts and red gullies.

But while Crittenden county is bringing forth her rich minerals, this section of the state is growing fat on her rich oil fields. This oil section embraces Wayne, Russell, Clinton and Cumberland counties. Wayne seems to be the center point. Oil is found in more abundance in the rocky upland than in the rich soil. It is noticed also that it is in breadths of several miles, yet on a line of several hundred miles. Wayne county has about four hundred wells. Some are dry, even after going down 2,000 feet. Sometimes when a gusher is struck it will cause a dry well to flow a little, showing a connection, below. Oil digging is very expensive. Massive machinery is used in drilling. Gas is almost always found with the oil, which is quite an advantage in many ways, one being that it forces the oil out of the ground for a while, then it is utilized as force and for lights.

Land is fast increasing in value. One farm advanced from $350 to $20,000. Men drill day and night. Wages are good, hands are scarce and farmers can hardly get them at all. Much hauling is done, mules are high, some selling for $210 each.

The oil is being piped over the mountains, as it is cheaper than any other transportation. But I must not make my letter too long. Success to THE PRESS and its readers.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

As the time draws near for actual work to begin on the Panama Canal, the difficulties of climate, disease, etc., begin to melt away, if the expectations of those in authority are not dreams. Col. Gorgos, chief sanitary officer of the Panama Canal, has formulated tentative plans which will make everything safe and lovely. All villages in the zone will be put under military camp regime, and the inhabitants will be obliged to obey rules rigidly or take a dose of court martial. Lime to sweeten things is to be used in abundance; camps are to be drained; mosquito nets will be provided for the workmen to sleep under; stagnant pools are to be drained, and the whole zone is to be sprinkled with coal oil to utterly destroy malarial and yellow fever bearing insects. Better than all the rest a hospital train will make daily trips across the isthmus to pick up those who have fallen in the ranks, and the cases will be segregated as much as possible.

The Democratic National Committee have established headquarters at the Riggs House in this city, and are carefully editing the document which are to be sent to the people. Among the literature to be distributed Congressman Kitcher's speech on the President, and Berke Cockran's speeches.

A WINTER PROPOSAL

(Original.)
Clara and I were walking over the snow.

"They have a curious custom in Lapland," I said to Clara.
"What is it?" she asked.

"In Lapland the crime, after murder, that is punished with the greatest severity is marrying a girl against her parents' wishes."

I glanced sideways at Clara to see how she took this statement. I had been to her father to ask his permission to pay my addresses to his daughter. He commended my honorable action in speaking to him first, but informed me that he had other plans for her.

"That must be splendid," she said.

"Splendid! Why so?"

"Think of the exciting episodes between lovers with an axe hanging over the man's head!"

"Then you do not approve of the interference of parents in such matters?"

"I didn't say that. But how are marriages arranged in that country?"

"When a man wants a girl—without 'speaking' to her—he goes to her parents and asks for her hand."

"And suppose they refuse?"

"Then there is no hope for him."

"Unless he has great courage and would rather die than lose her."

"Certainly."

"But supposing the parents are willing?"

"In that case they inform the girl that she is sought in marriage. Possibly she may never have seen the suitor or may not even know his name. On an appointed day the girl, her parents, friends and the suitor meet at a feast, and the man and maiden especially interested are placed opposite each other at table, so that they can look each other over and converse."

"I wonder what they talk about?" remarked Clara musingly.

"After the banquet all go to an open space where what they call 'the race for a wife' takes place. The usual distance is about a quarter of a mile, and the girl is given a start of a third of the course. If she wishes she can easily reach the goal before her suitor. In that case it is plain she doesn't want him. If she does want him she will make so poor a race that he can catch her."

We walked on meditatively. I didn't know what Clara was thinking of, nor did she know what I was thinking of. Nevertheless I felt that our thoughts were not far apart.

"Supposing," I said, "supposing that you were a girl?"

"That's not hypothetical; it's an axiom."

"—who had a lover."

"Well?" she said softly.

"—and that lover should propose to you the Laplanders' race for a wife. Would you consent?"

"To marry him?"

"No, no—you know what I mean—to the race!"

"Oh, yes! If he wanted to ask me to be his wife in that fashion I would have no objection to giving my reply in the same way."

Snow brings a singular stillness, and as we ceased speaking all about us was as silent as we. I paused and turned to look down upon the frozen landscape, while Clara trudged on.

"What a straight piece of road!" she called, pointing before her, her voice sounding loud above the stillness. I went to where she was standing and looked at the bit of road she referred to. It was straight as an arrow, and at its farther end was a bridge.

"Just the place for a foot race," I said.

To this there was no response.

"Would you like to try which of us can reach that bridge first?" I asked.

"I don't mind," she said under her breath.

"Well, since you are a girl, I must give you a start. Go as far as you like, while I stay here. When you are ready, wave your hand."

Without a word she started on, but slowly, oh, so slowly. It seemed to me she would never get to the starting point. She walked half the distance, then, after as much delay as she could find an excuse for, waved her hand and started to run.

There was a great change in her motions the moment the race began. Indeed she ran so fast that I thought it would be impossible for me to catch her, though I am a fleet runner. Was she intending to reach the bridge before me? No. Soon her speed began to slacken. I increased mine. Then she started forward again. I lagged. Once more she lessened her pace, and I, taking heart, ran on like the wind. She was within a hundred yards of the bridge, I two hundred, when she made another start. She came within ten feet of the goal and stopped short. When I came up with her, she turned and threw up her arms in token of surrender. I clasped her, and she let them fall upon my shoulders.

We did not break the winter stillness by a word. Nor was there a sound of bird or beast or human being. Whether seconds or minutes passed I do not know. I only remember that we were recalled to our surroundings by a far distant jingle of sleigh bells ringing soft and clear. Then we turned and walked on.

When I went again to Clara's father to ask for her hand, I had learned that instead of being her master, to dispose of her as he chose, he was her slave and obeyed her slightest wish.

The matter of marriage he would never have arranged a match for her with a "prince of the blood," for he would have considered far beneath her. My second request was mere matter of form.

F. A. MITCHEL.

HIS BRAVE DEED

The mining town of Capleton was alive with excitement. Mr. Hilton, the owner of half the mines and more than half the village, was to give a ball in honor of his son Carl's twenty-first birthday and also to celebrate the return of his only daughter from the English school to which she had been sent when but ten years old.

Carl Hilton was an only son, and because of his parent's indulgence had become selfish and tyrannical. His father idolized him and was blind to his faults. As Mr. Hilton had been out of health for more than a year, Carl had attended to most of the business, and he had so tyrannized over the miners that they one and all hated him, but they loved and respected his father and for his sake bore in silence the abuse of the son.

It fell to the lot of Fred Chase, one of the foremen in the mine, to escort the beautiful Nina to dinner, and so deeply did they become engaged in conversation that it was some minutes before Fred noticed that Carl sat directly opposite and was watching them closely.

"I intend to visit the mines tomorrow," said the girl in tones loud enough to be heard by her brother. "I want to descend the new shaft."

"I shall be very happy to conduct you through the mines, but you must not descend the new shaft, for it is not safe. I have warned your brother that the roof of the mine is in danger of falling, but he only laughs at me, and I fear some terrible accident will be the result of his neglect."

"You are a fool, Fred Chase! The shaft is safe enough. I shall take Nina there myself tomorrow," said Carl angrily.

The following morning Carl started for the new shaft alone. Nina refused to accompany him and begged him to delay his visit until the roof was made secure.

Carl reached the shaft just as half a dozen miners came from it, and in answer to his inquiries was told that Fred Chase and another man had remained behind to finish filling the last car with ore.

In a few minutes he was lowered to the bottom of the shaft. In the distance he could see the lights of the two miners. By the light of his own lantern he saw that some of the beams were bent. All seemed weighted to their utmost capacity, and he shuddered as, in passing one large post, a slight cracking sound was heard.

"I am going on a short distance to look at the ore. You may wait for me at the foot of the shaft, and we will all be drawn up at once," said Carl.

He strode on, while Fred and his companion returned to the entrance. They had barely reached it when they heard a loud report behind, a cry of fear mingled with the noise of falling rocks, then all was still.

Only an instant did they stand motionless. Then Fred grasped the rope and gave the signal to be hoisted to the top.

Soon the entrance to the shaft was a scene of wild excitement. The father offered large rewards to any who would attempt the rescue of his son, but not a man would volunteer.

"I will give half of my fortune—and it is a large one—to the men who will help me reach my boy!"

Fred came forward with a look of resolve on his face.

"Mr. Hilton, not for your entire fortune would I enter that mine to save your son, but for humanity's sake I will do my best to rescue him."

A cheer from the miners greeted these words. With a wave of his hand, Fred commanded silence and, running his eye over the crowd, said slowly:

"I must have three men to help me. Who will go?"

Charles Gray, Fred's chosen companion, stepped to his side. Two more men quickly followed, and they were lowered into the shaft. The first act of the workers was to place extra beams, which were lowered down the shaft for the purpose, as near as they could to the fallen roof, to bear any strain that might be resting on those already there. At the end of three hours of cautious digging they came to the car which Fred and his companion had stayed behind to fill, and they stopped for a few moments' rest.

In half an hour they had reached an opening caused by two large rocks which had fallen together in such a manner as to leave a space between them. In that space lay Carl, with one arm doubled under him and one foot pinioned by a stone. The poor fellow was terribly bruised and cut, but conscious.

"God bless you, Fred, and your brave companions," said Mr. Hilton huskily as he grasped the young man by the hand. "From my heart I thank you."

The crowd soon dispersed, and Carl was conveyed to his home. After many weeks of suffering he recovered, but the crushed foot was useless—he was a cripple for life.

As soon as he was able to do so Carl sent for Fred.

"Forgive me, Fred," he said frankly. "I was wrong, but my punishment has been great."

About a year afterward Mr. Hilton bestowed his daughter's hand upon the young man who had saved his son's life, and on his wedding day Fred became one of the owners of the mine.—London Spare Moments.

Encouraged.

He kissed her hand.

She smiled.

"Am I to infer that you have no settled income?" she asked.

"Why should you infer that?"

"Because you seem to have a sort of hand to mouth way of doing things."

Then he kissed her again.—Buffalo Express.

TO OIL THE ROADS.

Experiments with crude oil on the public roads of McCracken county are to be made this summer, says the Paducah News-Democrat.

County Judge R. T. Lightfoot has been in correspondence with Northern parties on the subject and believes the use of oil will both improve the roads and add to their durability and keep down dust as well. He has directed road supervisor Bert Johnson, to sprinkle sections of one dirt road and one gravel road next month. If the test proves satisfactory the fiscal court will be asked to oil all the roads.

Judge Lightfoot says the county roads are in better condition than ever before, and better than in any other county in West Kentucky. Farmers say that there has never been a time within the past twelve months that they could not come into the city from any part of the county—something almost unprecedented.

Moreover, the cost of maintaining them is less than one half the former expense.

During the last year eighteen miles were added to the gravel roads, making a total of 78 miles of graveled highway and 310 miles including dirt roads.

Father's Awful Deed.

Roselle, N. J., June 9.—After killing three of his children and wounding a fourth, Jos M. Pouch at one time an undertaker, shot himself through the head today and died in a few minutes.

Yesterday he shot two of them and embalmed their bodies.

Pouch then shot and killed his little daughter and wounded his sole remaining son. He then shot himself and died as the police entered. Pouch was believed to have been insane.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets Better Than a Doctor's Prescription

Mr. J. W. Turner, of Truhart, Va., says that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets have done him more good than anything he could get from the doctor. If any physician in this country was able to compound a medicine that would produce such gratifying results in cases of stomach trouble, biliousness or constipation, his whole time would be used in preparing this one medicine. For sale by Woods and Orme, Druggists.

Accept No Substitute.

There is nothing just as good for Malaria, Chills and Fever as Dr. Mendenhall's Chill and Fever Cure. Take it as a general tonic and at all time in place of quinine. If it fails to give satisfaction mail the front of the carton to J. C. Mendenhall, Evansville, Ind., and get your money back.

MY CONDITION.

BY O. G. W.

Nothing to breathe but air;
Nothing to eat but food;
Nothing to wear but clothes,
To keep me from going nude;
Nothing to do but things,
Quick as a flash they're gone;
Nowhere to fall but off;
Nowhere to sit but on;
Nothing to quench but a thirst;
Nowhere to sleep but in bed;
Nothing to have but I've got;
Nothing to bury but dead;
Nothing to weep but tears;
Ah me! alas and alack!
Nowhere to go but out;
Nowhere to come but back!
Nothing to comb but my hair;
Nothing to fear but my wife;
Only to suffer and bear;
What is the value of life?

A Costly Mistake.

Blunders are sometimes very expensive. Occasionally life itself is the price of a mistake, but you'll never be wrong if you take Dr. King's New Life Pills for Dyspepsia, Dizziness, Headache, Liver or Bowel troubles. They are gentle yet thorough. 25c at Woods and Orme's Drug Store.

TO SUBSCRIBERS

Of Campbell's Journal, the Great St. Louis Exposition Monthly Magazine.

We have received complaints and reports from some subscribers who did not receive the above journal regularly. We therefore wrote the Postmaster General to investigate. Here is the correspondence:

Marion, Ky., May 28, 1904.

POSTMASTER GENERAL, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:—

Is the journal which was at one time published in St. Louis, known as Campbell's Illustrated Exposition Journal, Chemical Building, defunct? I advertised them and sent them some subscriptions, but some of my customers don't get the paper regularly. Your advice will oblige.

S. M. JENKINS.

Post Office, St. Louis, May 30, 1904.

CARRIER No. 96:—

Is the publishing concern referred to still located in the Chemical Building? If so, ascertain if they received the subscriptions referred to.

FRANK WYMAN, Postmaster.

Post Office, St. Louis, June 1, 1904.

Respectfully returned to Mr. Wm. Sacks, Supt., with information that the Campbell's Illustrated Journal is still located in the Chemical Building. Upon inquiry I was informed that the subscriptions referred to have been received and copies of the journal mailed to the subscribers regularly.

LOUIS MARCKS, Carrier 63.

Post Office, St. Louis, June 4, 1904.

MR. S. M. JENKINS, Pub.

The Crittenden Press, Marion, Ky.

I am advised that your letters, with subscriptions, have been received by Campbell's Illustrated Exposition Journal, and copies of the Journal mailed to subscribers.

FRANK WYMAN, Postmaster.

In view of the above statements, I desire and request that each subscriber who does not receive Campbell's Illustrated Exposition Journal regularly in future until expiration of the year 1904, report such fact to me for further investigation, if necessary, by the postal authorities.

S. M. JENKINS.

The Weekly Courier-Journal free during the campaign and until Christmas to every one who subscribes for the Press before July 15.

MONTHLY RECORD

Of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company.

Policy No. 273,399, on the life of Wm. T. Holeman, of Ford's Ferry, Ky., was issued at age of 31, for $1,000, on the 20 payment life plan, annual premium $30.95.

Mr. Holeman paid two premiums only and instead of taking a paid up policy for $100.00, payable at death, he allowed his policy to be automatically extended for 3 years and 144 days without further payment of premiums.

Mr. Holeman died March 22, 1904, nearly three years after lapse of policy, which was promptly paid by the company, also $12.00 additional insurance purchased by the 1900 dividend, making a total cash settlement of $1,012.00, at an average yearly cost of $11.51 per thousand.

All competitors are invited to show a corresponding record of settlement in their company's history.
