ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS

AND A CITY LOT FOR $75.

Its a Good Deal Like Getting Money from Home.
The Offer Made to Fifty People by the Reed Mining Company.

Only Fifty Investors Are Invited to Participate in the Biggest Thing in
This Big Mining District.

Last season the Reed Mining Company commenced sinking a shaft as designated on the accompanying sketch. This location was chosen simply from the surface indications which fortunately have been proven almost absolutely correct as shown by Surveyor Kevil's transit line.

Arrangements are now being made for continuous work at this shaft, a Colorado hoist will be placed in position and sinking continued to 100 feet in depth when levels will be driven both ways on the vein of ore.

The superior quality of the fluor spar obtained on this vein has been recognized by the Illinois Steel Company, of Chicago, its superintendent insisting upon this particular product so long as it could be obtained.

In all mineral veins there are chimneys of ore which in the aggregate amount generally to thousands of tons. There is every indication that at the point chosen for this work a great body of fluor spar, zinc and lead ore will be found and the shipments of so great a quantity will give its stockholders and lot owners an annual sum of money that perhaps no other investment will equal.

Fifty handsome building lots, 50 x 100 feet in size, with 40 foot streets in front and 15 foot alleys in the rear of each lot will be sold by the company for $75 each, including 1000 shares of the Reed Mining Company's stock, the par value of which is $1000. Many of these lots are in the limits of the city of Marion, and have all the facilities and improvements that this prosperous and growing city of Marion is constantly adding.

A fee simple title is given to each purchaser of a lot in the shape of a warrant deed; the 1000 shares of the Reed Mining Company's stock being issued separately and either the city lot or the mining shares can be disposed of, if desired, separately at the great advance in value which the uncovering of an enormous body of ore will at once cause.

An investment of so small an amount, $75, which can be paid in installments if desired secure a very handsome city lot which will be worth double that money as the city increases its population which it is now doing by leaps and bounds, besides this the 1000 shares of stock as successful mining work progresses cannot but jump to a point where the entire investment will return an extremely large profit.

There is no question as to the value of the property, the city lot secures the purchase money beyond any possibility while the mining shares may reach their par value of $1000 and they certainly will if our estimate of the value of this great vein of ore passing for nearly half a mile through the company's land is correct.

The company would be pleased to give any additional explanation desired to any one. As but 50 lots will be sold at this price immediate application should be made to the Reed Mining Co., Marion, Ky.

NOTE: The original drawing made by Surveyor Kevil on which the scale in inches is given was 60 per cent. larger than the engravers has made this cut. The scale here should read one inch—528 feet.

ON THE DIAMOND

Two Interesting Games Between Our Boys and Princeton.

The old way to compare was Positive, much—Comparative, more—Superlative, most. It is changed now, and goes, Positive, much—Comparative, "Moore"—Superlative, "Harvey Moore"—at least that's the way it looked on Friday afternoon, July 22, near the depot at Princeton. The Marion boys would walk to the plate, swing on one of Stevens' curves and see it start across the diamond like a Japanese torpedo boat after a Russian battleship—and then see a nimble, lithe fellow make a dive after the sphere and see it stick in his hands, or to his hands, or on his hands, like a "Weary Willie" to the "blind baggage"—and then, after being tossed out at first, the batter would mournfully file to the bench.

"There was just nothing to it, those fellows had horse shoes around their necks," one of the Marion players was heard to say after the game, and it looked like it, but going after the ball wins the game, and when you do that you are sure to have some luck.

But there were about nine other fellows besides Moore in the game that caused Princeton to win. Six played on the Princeton side and the others wore Marion uniforms. An error at second base, when the side should have been retired with no scores in the second inning, let in six scores before the side was finally put out. An error at third and a base on balls let in two in the first that should not have scored. But let it go at that, Marion could not have won with the fielding game Princeton put up if they had made no errors at all. And so, sad to relate, that game goes in the wrong column. Score: 11 for Princeton and Marion got 2.

Driskill pitched another good game, good enough to have won, and McNeely carried off the batting honors for Marion. The score:

SUMMARIES.

Stolen bases: Cooksey, B. Pettit, Akin 2, D. Pettit, Stevens 2, Lamb, Driskill 2, Yates 4.
Sacrifice hits: Hill, Nesbit.
Double plays: Moore to Greer.
Struck out: By Driskill 5, by Stevens 5.

Base on balls: Off Driskill 2, off Stevens 1.
Left on bases: Marion 3, Princeton 1.
Umpire: Jno. L. Grayot.
Time: 1 hour and 30 minutes.

The third game of the season between our boys and Princeton was played here on Wednesday evening and the locals went into the game with a determination to win, going after the visitors like a duck after a June bug and "fixing" them in such a way as to convince the pencil pusher of the Princeton Chronicle that there were other monkeys at the time he wrote his little spasm but they had their tails concealed. The game was the best ever played on the home grounds, and had many interesting features, but for lack of time we are unable to give the details. The score was 7 to 2.

At Carrsville, on Monday, there was a game between the teams of that place and Salem, which resulted in a score of 14 to 2 in favor of the former. Umpire, H. D. Rutter. Attendance, 200.

MARION GROWING.

New Weldon-Blackburn Addition to be Opened—Other Improvements.

Messrs. C. E. Weldon and W. A. Blackburn have just purchased about 15 acres of ground from P. S. Maxwell. This plot of ground lies just west of the lot on which the Maxwell residence stands, facing on West Depot street. It is the intention of Messrs. Weldon and Blackburn to divide this tract up into about 35 building lots of various sizes and sell them to persons who wish to buy building lots. The addition will be intersected by wide streets and will probably be known as the Weldon-Blackburn addition to Marion. As will be remembered the corporate limits of Marion were extended by the city council, and as the map of the town will show the lots in the Weldon-Blackburn addition will be almost in the center of the town. Besides being so well situated the ground lays well and for some time it has been the desire of our citizens that this plot of ground be opened up for this same purpose.

Judge J. F. Gordon, of Madisonville, recently purchased the Dr. Crawford property west of court house square for $3800. A survey of this property has been made and it has been divided into ten or twelve good lots. Judge Gordon has taken steps to open up Carlisle or Bank street which will run through the Crawford ground a little north of the center. This will extend Carlisle street to Coon Road and will be a much needed improvement to the town. The first corner lot of the Gordon addition facing on Maple street has been sold to the trustees of the Baptist church for $1100. This lot is 55x80 feet and will be doubtless a suitable site for the new $7000 brick edifice the Baptist people contemplate building in the near future. Doubtless Maple street on which this lot faces, will soon be extended to Depot street.

In the Cochran & Pickens addition to the town formerly known as the "Haynes Orchard," two new dwellings are now being constructed. Both are under the direction of A. J. Pickens, one of which, a five room two story brick and basement dwelling, will be occupied by him. The other, a nice frame structure, will be occupied by his sister, Mrs. Eliza Deboe.

The work on Hayward's magnificent residence is progressing nicely. We are informed that the contractors are giving complete satisfaction in so much as they seldom have an opportunity to erect a fine structure of this sort, it being their aim to make it an ideal piece of work.

Jas. Hughes will soon have his new dwelling on Walker street completed.

R. E. Wilson is building a frame dwelling on Rochester street.

LEAD AND ZINC HIGHER

Order From Japanese Government For 1,000 Tons Affects Price.

Joplin, Mo., July 28.—Notwithstanding the mines of the Joplin district have generally all been restarted and the output increased, the sales were only 340 tons of zinc ore more than the previous week. The highest prices reported paid was $40 per ton and the assay basis was $25 to $37 per ton of 60 per cent. zinc. Lead remains firm at $58 per ton, $1 higher than last year.

George Braum, who buys zinc ore for the La Harpe smelter company, states that his company has made a contract to furnish the Japanese government with 1,000 tons of spelter. This is one of the largest orders ever contracted for by any manufacturer of spelter to be delivered immediately and will present a month's production of the smelter. This heavy order will not only give an immense amount of work to the smelters, but it will have a tendency to increase the price of zinc ore.

Death's Work.

Last Saturday morning at 2 o'clock death came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Adams near Crayneville and took from them their daughter, Miss Ida. Some time ago Miss Adams had a severe attack of typhoid fever, but the early part of last week was able to be up. She took a relapse and her constitution already weakened by sickness was unable to withstand the relapse.

Miss Ida Adams professed religion when quite young and joined the church at Piney. She afterward changed her membership to Chapel Hill where she lead a consistent Christian life. Her influence for good was felt by her friends and neighbors. She was 30 years old. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Thompson for many years her pastor at Chapel Hill. Her father, mother, sisters and brothers mourn her loss.

A POSTAL COURTSHIP

Marriage on Saturday.—Courtship Conducted by Mail.

Mr. H. M. Catlin and Miss Jessie Jennings were united in the holy bonds of matrimony Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. J. S. Henry, of this city, at the residence of S. N. Henry, on Wilson avenue.

Mr. Catlin lives in Norris City, Ill., he is forty years of age, a highly respected citizen and possesses those manly qualities necessary to make a good husband.

Miss Jennings is a daughter of the late John Jennings, and resided two miles west of town. She is accomplished, reserved and discreet, and will certainly make their home happy and life worth living.

This marriage is the culmination of a pretty romance. Last March Mr. Catlin began an unknown correspondence with Miss Jennings and since that time there has been a frequent exchange of letters between them. Mr. Catlin arrived in the city last Friday at noon and went at once to the home of Miss Jennings to meet his soon-to-be bride for the first time, and it only took them a few hours to convince each other of their worth and that they should join hearts and hands for life's journey. THE RECORD, with the many friends of the bride, join in wishing them the prosperity and happiness which is so richly due them.

THE STATE SURVEY

A Very Complete Geological Investigation Being Made.

Professor Norwood, director of the Kentucky Geological Survey, is energetically prosecuting the work mapped out early in the season, and hopes to show valuable results before the close of the year. His staff corps is now complete, and is engaged in various parts of the state in exploring and collecting valuable material for his annual report. One of his assistants, J. B. McGinnis, of long experience in the survey, is pushing his work in petroleum belts, having collected some 400 oil wells, and is now engaged in examining others. E. Wright, another assistant, is examining the lead and zinc indications in Western Kentucky with special reference to the commercial side of the question. He is now at work in Christian county.

Particular attention is being paid to the clay deposits of Kentucky, which are valuable both in quality and extent of distribution. The annual value of our manufactures in clay products approximates $2,000,000, and the state stands twelfth in the list of such industry.

The coal fields of Kentucky are undergoing thorough study and exploration, as a continuation of the work of the former survey. Attention is being given to the study of the Western coal fields with reference to troublesome faults which have retarded the mineral development in that valuable area. M. Fischer is at work on that which crosses the Ohio at Shawneetown, Ill., and extends into Hart county, known to the survey as the Rough creek uplift in Ohio, McLean and Webster counties. To this field Director Norwood is giving his personal attention, having begun work at Caseyville, Union county, and being now engaged in running profiles eastward, and hopes to reach as far as Hartford, Ohio county, this season, having the assistance of a number of competent workers in the thorough study of the fields, from which he expects to derive valuable results in its future development.

In addition to the foregoing field work, arrangements have been made for mapping this season, the Frankfort quadrangle and two others, chiefly in McLean, Webster, Henderson and Union counties, the work to be done in co-operation with the U. S. Geological Survey.

THE WEEK'S REVIEW IN THE MINERAL FIELD

Fluor Spar Being Raised at Memphis Mine That Resembles Blocks of Ice.—Good Progress Being Made by Eagle Fluor Spar Company.

AT 140 FEET DEPTH in the air shaft of the Memphis mine, the high grade fluor spar for which that mine has always been famous has been uncovered, and the vein seems to be very large and well defined. The fluor spar is so very pure and clear that it bears a very strong resemblance to blocks of ice. This quality will be used by the Kentucky company exclusively for their ground product.

GOOD PROGRESS is being made on the enormous separating and mining plant of the Eagle Fluor Spar Company at Salem. The erection of so modern a mill in this district, as well as one so costly, marks a new era in the progress and development of our zinc and lead veins. Probably the month of September will pass before the buildings are completed and the heavy machinery installed.

THE HAND JIGS on the nine acres are proving much more than of passing interest to our mining men who have a combination of ores in their lodes. The jigs prove to be very simple and very easily operated. Mr. Grange, of Mineral Point, who has charge of this work for Blue & Nunn, is producing a fine quality of concentrates. There doesn't seem to be a large amount of lead with the zinc at this shaft. Just now a separation of carbonate of zinc and lead ore is being made and these easily operated jigs are doing their work in fine shape.

A COMPANY WAS FORMED last week in Louisville with $40,000 capital to operate mining property near Cave-in-Rock, Ill. Their purpose is stated to be to separate and smelt the lead ore which is found with the fluor spar, selling the latter mineral in open market.

THE GRAY-PERSON fluor spar shaft has reached a depth of some 70 feet and a considerable percentage of lead is being found with the fluor spar. This vein was discovered in sinking a pit for a cistern and seems to be a good substantial one.

THE STEVENS FIRE CLAY property of the Western Tube Company has not been drawn upon for a pound of its superior clay this season. In 1903 it was worked very strongly. At times an almost unbroken line of clay loaded teams from Marion to the mines were met with. While the iron trade has been dull, it is hardly possible that the Tube company will forego the use of this splendid fire clay, although, of course, its cost per ton is almost double that of the ordinary material.

THE TWO OR THREE SCORE, or more, of stockholders in Wabash, Indiana, oil companies, who within the last eighteen months were induced to buy stock in concerns organized with large capital, part of which was assigned to Wabash, where subsidiary corporations were formed, are in the dumps. Not one of the inviting schemes presented to Wabash men have prospered, but on the contrary, not only has the original investment been sunk, but considerable sums of money have been borrowed on the corporation notes, with the stockholders as individual indorsers. The companies have practically no assets save the scattered holes in the ground, for the territory has proved anything but productive, and the lenders of money on the notes, of course, look to the indorsers for settlement. For many months the stockholders have been hanging on by their eyeballs in the hope that a strike which would solve the problem of the indebtedness would be made, but the strikes have not materialized and the interest has continued to mount until the stockholders now want to end all and stop the drain.

THE BAUMANS, of Chicago, who purchased the large hill deposit of fluor spar near Cave-in-Rock, intended to construct a teamway from the mine to the river and to mine this deposit this season, have so far done nothing towards either. Possibly they will dispose of the property, although they were very confident of being able to make a splendid dividend paying property out of it.

THE WAGNER BARITE property at Salem shows an exceedingly fine product, much of it being of the first quality and only requiring to be ground, floated and barreled to command $12 to $16 per ton. A few hundred dollars for the proper machinery would make a splendid income from this material at this point. The barites being in practically a solid ledge, instead of in a blanket form surrounded by clay, as it is generally discovered, and it is exceedingly free from iron. Probably a few gentlemen will form a small company for the purpose of mining and grinding the barites. It could not help but pay them handsomely.

THE DENVER MINT will be formally opened by Director of United States Mints George E. Roberts on September 1st. The coinage plant of the mint will not be installed until the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, 1905. By that time all the machinery for coining gold and silver, which is at present on exhibition at the St. Louis Fair, will have been installed. The mint has been in the course of erection since 1898, and its cost will reach $2,000,000. Over 300 employees will be required in the coinage of gold and silver, and most of these will be transferred from other mints. When the Denver mint is in working order the New Orleans mint will be closed, and many experienced workers of that plant will be transferred to Denver. The Denver mint will be the next largest in the country to the Philadelphia mint.

A REPORT that Joseph Leiter, of the big wheat deal, is having trouble with his coal miners across the river at Zeigler, Ill., is contradicted. Mr. Leiter's attorney says: "Mr. Leiter has constructed one of the most modern collieries in the country—in fact, it is doubtful if its equal exists to-day. The industry which he will develop is only in its infancy. Besides the mining of coal, he holds the Hemingway patents for the coking of coal, a process which, it is claimed, will produce a first quality of coke from the Illinois refuse coal nearly equal to that of Connellsville. Necessarily much of the wage scale, the capacity of the plant, the accessory industries, are experimental, and, as a matter of fact, Mr. Leiter does not actually know what is the proper scale, nor does anyone else until the plant has been operated and conditions, not theories, been worked out, which will take much time. The best of skilled labor is desired. Mr. Leiter believes and will put into practice the theory that a well-paid, intelligent employee is preferable to a nonunion man. With that thought in view he has constructed 140 dwellings, which are better than at any other shaft in the state, and will pay labor prices that will draw the very best men to Zeigler."

THE UTAH COPPER COMPANY, composed of Colorado Springs capitalists, headed by Charles M. McNeill, president, has made the final payment of $500,000 on mining properties recently purchased near Salt Lake City. The area involved is 300 acres, for which $1,500,000 have been paid. The company has control of the gulch below Bingham as a dumping ground for the tailings from its plant, extending four miles. The copper plant, when its units are all built, will be the largest in the world, and will cost $4,500,000. The present product is 10,000,000 pounds per annum. This will be increased to 20,000,000.

EXPERIMENTS TO ASCERTAIN the effect of radium burns have been conducted by a Paris scientist, showing results differing from those produced by any other source of heat. If the rays of one-sixteenth hundredth part of an ounce of radium bromide are applied no pain is felt, nor is there any mark left at the time of application, but twenty-four hours later a red mark appears, lasting a fortnight and leaving a scar similar to that of a burn. Ulceration does not occur unless the radium has been applied for at least an hour, and unless these burns or wounds are attended to immediately they become painful and last an indefinite period. Some caused three months ago by one hour's application still show no signs of healing. Moles can be destroyed by applying radium for ten minutes.

THREE ENOUGH

Of One Family in the Fulton Postoffice
Thinks General Wynne.

Washington, D. C., July 23.—"Two much Beadles" is what Acting Postmaster-General Wynne wrote across a recommendation that came to his desk. It was his peculiar way of stamping his disapproval upon nepotism in the postal service. T. F. Beadles is Postmaster of Fulton. "This office has just been raised in classification and allowed an additional clerk, and it was Mr. Beadles' recommendation for filling the office that drew forth Mr. Wynne's unfavorable comment. As submitted, the Postmaster's list of appointments was as follows:

R. B. Beadles, aged 32, to be Assistant Postmaster, at $700; J. W. Beadles, aged 25, to be clerk at $400; W. E. Beadles, aged 21, to be clerk, at $400. "This is the limit," said the Acting Postmaster-General when the list was presented to him for approval. "I don't mind three of the family in the same office, but when it comes to four I cannot stand for it." And the "Two much Beadles" meant that the Postmaster would have to look for another $400 clerk.

GENERAL NEWS.

Joseph W. Folk was nominated for Governor July 21, by the Democratic State Convention at Jefferson City.

The chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee seems to be going a-begging. Gormon won't, Sheehan won't, and Taggart don't, but who knows the reason of the "don't."

W. J. Bryan has slated himself for the U. S. Senate from Nebraska to succeed Senator Deitrich. He has control of the Democratic organization of his state and if in November a Democratic legislature is elected, Bryan is pretty sure of a seat in the Senate.

The meat strike has now come to an end. The total number of men idle in all the cities was 74000. All strikers were to resume work Friday and hereafter all differences are to be submitted to arbitration.

Uncle Joe Cannon, of Illinois, on Things in General.

Speaker Cannon, who is chairman of the committee which will meet on Wednesday to formally notify Roosevelt of his nomination, stopped off here today on his way to Oyster Bay and had a long talk with Chairman Cortelyou of the Republican national committee on "matters in general," as the speaker put it. Mr. Cannon afterward said he did not see any reason for any great alarm because of the strength of the Democratic standard bearers or any factional differences in the Republican ranks. "The Republican factional fights," he said, will all be settled and out of the way before the campaign is much older. ## CLIFF DWELLERS

Were Skilled Surgeons and Often Trephined Skulls.

In the year 1902 I spent several months in New Mexico, investigating the ruins of the Cliff Dwellers, and while at Las Vegas received much courtesy from Prof. E. L. Hewitt, principal of the state normal school, whose fine collection of Cliff Dweller relics was kindly placed at my disposal, for psychometric study.

In the collection of 30 skulls varying in size, there was one of an old man of average proportions that gave most remarkable evidence of an advanced civilization of the Cliff Dwellers seen in the skull that had been beautifully trephined. With pride in modern progress in arts and science we are apt to consider trephining one of the special triumphs of surgical skill now distinguished for rapid advancement. I was surprised with the apparent perfection of nature's critical healing process after the crude treatment of such a serious injury as fracture of the skull, which calls for one of the most delicate surgical operations known to the medical profession.

Surely, the successful work proved the marvelous skill of the ancient surgeon.

The aperture showing removal of the broken skull was in size slightly in excess of the silver coin, an American quarter or twenty-five cent piece. Several fractures extended from the orifice fully one and one half inches in length. The opening was apparently filled with a dark brown substance like cement or gum, in place of the modern silver or gold plate. Nature had perfectly healed the bony fractures around the orifice and extending from it. I examined the skull carefully in a large, well-lighted room on a day of sunshine, and it was a work of skill that ought to strongly refute the supposition that the Cliff Dwellers were an Indian race.

Prof. Hewitt secured his fine collection largely, I believe, from an exceedingly interesting pueblo ruin, numbering 1,400 rooms and situated about 35 miles from Santa Fe, the capital city of New Mexico. Prof. Hewitt was accustomed to spend weeks with his archaeological class of students during vacation exploring the marvels of that pueblo. Some of the specimens of pottery taken from the tombs at that pueblo are very fine and gave the wonderful psychometric knowledge of peculiar customs of the Cliff people. For example, one large bowl taken from an isolated tomb, apparently the resting place of a distinguished person, which must have measured 15 inches in diameter; the decorations were unique and on psychometric examination I found them to be geometric in design. In significance they betrayed knowledge of astronomy, and I also discovered the nature of their custom of burying pottery with the dead. It appeared that people who occupied official positions, or those who wished to perpetuate personal or family distinction, procured pieces of pottery decorated in symbols that typified their special characteristics and these were kept expressly for burial.

To them this custom filled the distinctive niche given to modern memorial tablets.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

We say much obliged to our brothers of the quill for their kindly mention of our first issue.

The first issue of Marion's new paper, the Record, published by James E. Chittenden, appeared last week. It is Republican in politics.

—Kentuckian.

The Crittenden Record is a new paper at Marion, edited by J. E. Chittenden. It has a fine outfit and presents a beautiful typographical appearance, but it is Republican in politics and that spoils the whole thing.—Daily Register.

"D—n him, he's dirty yet," said Mr. Ollie James of Judge Parker at St. Louis. And the next day a Republican paper was started in Marion, Ky.—Daily Register.

The Crittenden Record is the latest country weekly that has come to our exchange table. We have before us No. 1 of Vol. 1, issued last week. It is Republican in politics, well edited, is a clean, well made up and interesting sheet. James E. Chittenden is the editor. His salutatory is a very sensible one and is without the usual blow and bluster of those who think they are going to revolutionize the country.

—Glenn's Graphic.

The first copy of the Crittenden Record is on our desk. The new corner is a neat 8 page, 6 column, newsy paper.—Clinton Democrat.

The first number of the Crittenden Record reached us last week. The new paper is neatly gotten up and shows that the editor is up to his business. In politics it will be Republican.—Dixon Journal.

Volume 1, number 1, of the Crittenden Record, a new paper just started at Marion, has been added to our exchange list. It is an attractive publication and it is well edited. It is Republican in politics. Mr. James E. Chittenden is the editor.—Providence Enterprise.

The first issue of the Crittenden Record published at Marion has reached this office. It is a well edited paper and presents a neat typographical appearance.—Uniontown Telegram.

A copy of the first issue of the Record, a new paper published at Marion, Ky., by James E. Chittenden, reached our exchange table last Saturday. The Record is a bright, newsy, clean, up to date, eight page paper full of good reading matter. It is Republican in politics, but devoted mostly to news rather than politics. Mr. Chittenden, the editor, is an old Livingston county boy, having been born and reared in this county and was for several years one of our leading school teachers. While we differ from him in politics, yet he is our personal friend and we wish him well. And we commend the Record to the members of his party, and to Democrats as well who enjoy reading a good, newsy county paper.—Livingston Banner.

Crittenden county's new paper, the Record, is on our table. It is a well gotten up six column eight page paper and bids fair to be an interesting and successful paper. Its editor is James E. Chittenden.

TOBACCO RAISED.

in the First Congressional District.
75,000 Acres.

The number of acres of tobacco that were raised in the first congressional district will be rather surprising to many people who have never given the matter much thought. There are 13 counties in the district and the number of acres planted in tobacco in the year of 1903 are about as follows:—Ballard 350, Caldwell 6500, Calloway 9000, Carlisle 3000, Graves 25000, Hickman 4000, Crittenden 3000, Fulton 1500, Livingston 1500, Lyon 3500, Marshall 6000, McCracken 2000, Trigg 6500, making a grand total of acres of tobacco raised in 13 counties reach the number of 75,000.

This is a large number of acres of land to be cultivated in this one luxury.

The district has several times in the past 20 years raised over 100,000 acres but as the prices go down the crop decreases. Unless prices advance only a few years will pass before there will be less than 50,000 acres raised in the district.—Mayfield Messenger.

If you don't own a watch or would like a better one than you have, the variety and beauty of the time keepers in our display and their attractive prices ought to induce you to come and see them.

The One True Way of Possessing All Good Things

By DR. JOSEPH K. MASON,
Pastor of St. Paul's Universalist Church, Chicago.

HERE are two ways by which we can possess things. The first is simply to own them without really possessing them. The rich woman owns her diamonds, but the student who as he looks upon a diamond sees there not only a gem of rare beauty, but an illustration of the wonderful law of crystallization and the revelation of a wisdom greater than man's, really possesses the diamond. So it is with all things in life. The outward world is ours too often only in the first sense. Houses and lands we may own, yet be unable to appreciate art within or nature without, for the real ownership is something more than the deed of an estate.

Many a miserable man flees from land to land to drive away the "blues," while the happy farmer at home, who cares for his houses and lands, really owns them. From early dawn to the glorious sunset he rejoices in nature and sees in it not only outward beauty, but a presence that glorifies the world and inspires him with trust. Strong of body and tranquil of mind, he is the true owner of houses and lands and not the other who is "blind in a land of beauty and deaf in a land of music."

So it is without fellow men and all the social relations of life. "Who will show us any good?" cries the cynic, but he looks through the green glass of his own jealousy, selfishness, sensuality and exclusiveness. Happy is the man who can look upon his fellow man from the divine point of view. So Christ saw His brethren and lo! a human soul, however darkened it might be to-day, gained infinite worth, so that He was ready to die for it.

When men were at their meanest He saw the possible good in them and declared: "I will draw all men unto Me." In other words, "all these poor, prejudiced, sinful, persecuting men shall yet become my brothers. They are Mine, for they are the children of My Father and they shall yet realize their inheritance." The world was His in this high sense, but the selfish man could not understand that. The only way he could own his own brother was to enslave him. Even our sorrows may be transformed if we look upon them aright. God is good. Believe that truly and we shall understand that things seemingly evil work out for us a far exceeding and eternal weight of glory. All things are ours, if we only think so, to become blessings.

Attractions for the Farm

By PROF. ANDREW WILSON, Ph. D., M. A.
Author of "Reason in Life and Science,"
"Chapters on Evolution," Etc.

spirit of luxury, the desire for panem et circenses, and the rage for amusement are prominently branded as causes which render us as a race disinclined to regard the quiverful as the blessed thing it was of old.

The opinion was expressed the other day in powerful enough tones that we have largely lost our hold on family life, and, with this condition represented in our midst, the distaste for even discussing social questions has increased. If, said a writer, people give their entertainments at restaurants instead of at home, and if much of life's leisure is spent in frivolities which make the home a desolate and deserted place, we cannot feel surprised that the family circle of old has come to represent an almost extinct idea. This, one fears, is a charge only too readily proved true, but it is to be hoped it is one which in all quarters a plea of guilty is not to be tacitly returned.

If the life and ways of our big centers of population are regarded, no doubt our critics will find full justification for their comments. Applied to the whole race, however, such criticism is of too scathing a character. There is much more intimate connection nowadays than of yore between town and country. The railway has brought them into very close contact, and the attraction of a town life, besides, has depleted rural districts of their manhood, which, it must be confessed, was left to struggle on in the country under conditions of life often sordid, underpaid and unhealthy. "Back to the land" is an excellent cry, but the "land" must be made attractive enough, and the life and work thereon recompensed suitably, before our units will return, and before we can hope to keep our youthful farmers in their birthplace. It seems to me that with some redistribution of luxury, comfort, and adequate remuneration for work done, we might solve at least one phase of the population question.

The Greatest Book

By JUSTICE DAVID J. BREWER, of the United States Supreme Court.

from the pulpit it might be the better for us all.

No nation is better than its sacred book and no nation rises above its ideals. None of us comes up to the measure of his ideals. The Bible is our nation's sacred book. I do not mean by this that as a nation we have a state religion, but that this nation is based upon the teachings of the Bible. All through our national life there is a constant recognition of this book.

Among the nations of the earth we are numbered as a Christian nation, yet we do not as a nation live up to the level of this Bible. It is true that where this book is freest in comparing nation with nation, the nation which treats it as a closed book and restricts its use among the people is not so good or so strong as the nation which lets it be free among the people.

One of the best methods of attaining this end among the people is by circulating copies of the Bible freely among the people. The Bible is easy to understand, so that he who runs may read. Where the passages are difficult we can follow the example of that preacher who advised his hearers to face the mystery boldly and then pass on.

The one who brings the Bible home to the people of the nation is a patriot. He is doing more for this country than all the victors of the battlefields.

To those of us who have looked on sorrow and felt its pangs the Bible comes home with words of cheer. This very fact of giving comfort to so many people is among the evidences of the Bible's truth, because a lie can never be a comfort and a consolation.

This life, with its injustice, demands another life for rectifying that injustice. You may read in the sacred book a satisfactory answer to the life to come, for the glory of this book comes from the revelations of a future life.

The Crittenden Record.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

JAS. E. CRITTENDEN, Publisher.

SUBSCRIPTION, PER YEAR, ONE DOLLAR.

Entered as second-class matter July 15, 1895, at the post-office at Marion, Ky., under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

FRIDAY, JULY 29, 1904.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT
THEODORE ROOSEVELT
Of New York.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT
CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS
Of Indiana.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FOR SHERIFF

DUVALL—We are authorized to announce Alonzo J. Duvall a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Crittenden county, subject to the action of the Republican party. Election 1905.

If it be true as is claimed by the Parker managers, that the Democratic party has returned to "Sanity," what assurance have we that it will continue sane?—Sun Sentinel.

The Western Laborer that has heretofore supported Bryan comes out for Roosevelt:

"We cannot remain in a party which we have seen pledged to turn the Government over to a man who dare not state where he stands on a public policy until after David Hill and other managers for Wall street, the banks, trusts and corporations had duped the party and stolen the nomination for him. We cannot and will not follow the standard of such a leader, not even for Bryan's sake."

THE NOMINATION.

"As in the days when the free-lance chiefs of Scotland's famous chivalry assembled their clans with the sign of the fiery cross to repel some common foe who threatened their independence, so the Democratic hosts met in consultation last week in St. Louis to plan the campaign that is to deal a death blow to Republican encroachment and usurpation of the sacred rights and liberties of a freeborn American people."

The above is just the beginning of an editorial that appeared in the Danville News last week. As it proceeds it gets worse. We tried to read it but failed. There is something wrong with the editor. No sane man would take on that way. I think he wanted to say that Judge Alton B. Parker had been nominated by the Democratic party for President, but I am not certain about it.—Sun Sentinel.

A FAIR EXAMPLE.

From the view point of fair-mindedness we can hold on to our political beliefs still, and then come to the standard bearers of the great parties. In the heat of political up-heaval we forget often that men and not demagogues, are the ranks at both parties. Judge Parker at Esopus, save with his political advisers, is maintaining a dignified silence. For this he is being both assailed and commended by the press of the country. But here is time enough to speak, time enough to tune his lyre to the principles of his party. True, Esopus is now the Mecca of Democracy's adherents, but Oyster Bay is no less conspicuous in the Republican mind. Parker, the silent, is an antithesis to Roosevelt, the strenuous. The very natures of the two men admit of the widest difference. Parker is silent from nature and Roosevelt is impetuous from nature, but the dignified silence of both gentlemen is a portentous rebuke to brawling battle wagers who infest the ranks of both parties. Not that there does not have to be drawn lines and much confusion, but wait till the martialled hosts get on the field of conflict. But few great battles have been fought without their having been first fought out in the quiet of preparation and planning by the leaders. Omnipotent signs now point to this fact. No bluster at Oyster Bay, none at Esopus. Quiet is the Indiana Senator and equally quiet is the West Virginia Senator, nor is there the least doubt that both candidates desire the office to which they aspire. Fame, deluding fame, whispers delightfully to them and paints visions of other days when history shall hold companionship with them as it does with Washington, with Jackson, with Lincoln. Is not this worth striving for? But the uncertainty of who is to get the prize adds zest and excitement to the contest. But there is such a thing as firing the gun before we see the target, then the advantage is with the other fellow. Mr. Cleveland's advice is good for both sides, "Steady, Democrats, steady," but more applicable to his party from a Cleveland view point.

With all the acrimony, hatred and heaped-up jealousy that a political contest engenders, Parker and Davis, Roosevelt and Fairbanks are clean, courageous gentlemen. Neither one is a demagogue nor would either uphold or foster demagogery for a moment. We have our choice of the two because he represents the principles for which we stand. Each side can claim the same. But whichever is the choice in November, we know a man of untainted principle will be President, for the patriotic American people will have no other kind.

WHEN HILL WEPT.

After Weeks of Anxiety His Cherished Plans Were Successful.

According to the dispatches from Chicago, David B. Hill wept when the nomination of Judge Parker was announced. After the strain of months of hard work and weeks of anxiety, the ambition of his political career had been realized and his closest friend was named for the presidency. Senator Hill is not the first man who has displayed such extreme emotion in a national political convention. No less a person than a former President of the United States broke down and gave to his feelings. That person was John Tyler, who, as a delegate from Virginia, attended the Harrisburg convention where Henry Clay was the leading candidate for the nomination. Clay was the idol of Tyler's heart, and he worked night and day to help nominate the mill boy of the slashes. When the crucial moment came and Clay was defeated Tyler was totally unable to control himself, and going to one of the rear seats, sat down and wept like a child.

ALONZO J. DUVALL

Announces Candidacy for Sheriff of Crittenden County.

Elsewhere in this issue we present to our readers the announcement of Alonzo J. Duvall, of this city, who is a candidate for Sheriff of Crittenden county subject to the action of the Republican party.

Mr. Duvall was born within 2 miles of Dycusburg 54 years ago and at the age of one year his parents moved to a place 6 miles north east of Marion and near Weston, this county.

Long before the railroad was built through Marion he hauled goods from Weston to Marion and in 1881 he moved to Marion and has lived here and engaged in the transfer business ever since.

He is the head of the Duvall Transfer Co., of this place and is a man of sterling worth, strict integrity and very conservative. A financial success in his own business we take it the sheriff's office would be in competent hands if he should be elected at the polls.

He has been a Republican all his life and has never held an office. The Record speaks for him careful consideration by the committee or by the people at the primary, whichever method is chosen to select the candidates. If the people select him as their standard bearer, the Record will be for him all down the line.

Evangelist, Miss Bertie Crow.

Evangelists J. J. Smith, of Clinton, Ky., and Miss Bertie Crow, of Missouri, stopped over here Monday en route to the annual camp meeting at Hampton which begins Thursday. They decided to remain over here until Thursday and they began services at the Christian church, but that proving inadequate for the large congregations, services were held at the opera house Tuesday and Wednesday nights where Miss Crow preached to large and attentive audiences. Tuesday night she spoke on the theme, "What shall I do with Jesus?" She was tired and worn out when she arrived in the city, as a result of work elsewhere but her delivery was splendid and she was understood by every one in the large audiences. Her sermon on Tuesday evening was especially powerful and appealing.

With the Churches.

Rev. T. A. Conway preached at the Baptist church Sunday morning his theme being the "Law of Christ."

Rev. T. V. Joiner, of the Methodist church, preached, union services being held in the evening. His theme was the "Mind of Christ."

Rev. T. V. Joiner preached at the Methodist church Sunday morning. His text was 1st King, 17:15 and 16.

Rev. S. J. Martin preached at the Presbyterian church Sunday. His text, Deut. 1:6-7.

THE SALEM DISTRICT

Mining and Milling on a Most Extensive Scale in Our Sister City.

D. Garth Hearne, of Eagle Fluor Spar Co., is in Peoria, Ill., this week.

The big mill at the Evening Star mine, is almost completed. This is the highest building in the State outside of Louisville. When completed it will be the most complete and largest plant in the United States, devoted exclusively to mining. It is nine stories in height and 90x120 ft. Equipped with the latest machinery and has two 200 horse power boilers.

The Nancy Hanks mine, owned by the Albany Mining and Investment, is mining as fine lead ore as ever came out of old mother earth. This mine is equipped with all the latest mining machinery and has a capacity of 1000 feet.

C. R. Steves, general manager of the Western Clay and Mining Co., is now ready to make contracts for the transportation of his clay to the railroad. He wants 50 or 100 teams at once. This mine produced and shipped more mineral last year than any mine in the world, more than 8000 tons having been mined and shipped and this year it is the intention of this Company to mine and ship 16000 tons or double the amount that was mined last year.

The big mill at the Riley mine will be in operation next Friday. This mill is one of the very latest plants to be erected in the Salem district and is at one of the best lead properties in the United States.

The Klondike mine of the Pittsburg Mining and Manufacturing company is running on full time, and is producing lead and spar of the very finest quality.

A very fine vein of fluor spar has been uncovered on the Babo place by the West Kentucky Mining Co.

Messrs. Noe and Mosely of the Big 4 Mining Co., spent a day or two in the city last week. These gentlemen were surprised at the great development which has been made in the Salem district in the past month.

A Fine Cow Killed.

Last Saturday evening Mrs. J. F. Loyd, of this city, left home to be gone some days. She left her milk cow in charge of J. B. Hughes. The cow not coming up at the usual time, Mr. Hughes went in search of her. Going over the pasture and not finding the cow he started home up the railroad. Having gone but a short distance he found the cow dead, having, it is supposed, been struck by the 7 o'clock south bound train. The cow is valued at about $40.

HOW IT FEELS.

The Two Presidential Candidates Received Convention's Decision.

How does it feel to be nominated as a candidate for the office of chief magistrate of the greatest republic in the world? What is the sensation that overtakes a man when he realizes that he is to be presented to his fellow-citizens as an available candidate for the position which is the birthright of every American boy? It will probably be difficult to ascertain the innermost feelings of the man at this psychological moment; but it is possible to note the things that he says and does on such an occasion. It has been said that the American people are emotional, but this allegation is not proven by the manner in which the great men of the country act at the most critical period of their public lives. When the news of his unanimous nomination reached President Roosevelt, he was sitting on the south veranda of the White House with the members of his family, and no one in the group seemed more unconcerned than the person who was most vitally interested. The President arose from his chair to receive the affectionate congratulations of those about him, and then went to the executive offices in the White House, where he immediately began the transaction of routine, executive business with his secretary. After that he received a number of visitors for whom engagements had been previously made, and then received and acknowledged a score of telegrams, of congratulations, the whole business being transacted in the most systematic and unhysterical manner possible.

So it was with Justice Parker when the news of his nomination was received. As readers of the newspapers will readily recall, the judge was taking his regular early morning swim in the Hudson river when a representative of the press informed him that he had been nominated. He calmly thanked the visitor for his information, and clambering out of the water, donned his everyday clothes in the most matter-of-fact manner. After that he spent an hour in reading the newspapers and opening his morning mail. Then he started on his regular morning horseback ride. It must be a matter of congratulation to the American people to feel that two such self-contained men have been nominated for the highest office in the gift of the people. It is an object lesson which goes to prove that while we are a sentimental people, we can not be classed as a hysterical people.

J. W. LAMB, S. C. C.
This July 12, 1904.

Every day we see about us men who feign the broadest patriotism. We have chanced to know many men who on Independence Day would have you believe that the blood of our Revolutionary forefathers was the life giving principle to them and that their souls bound with love of country. Our knowledge of some men has permitted us to make some sort of distinction between them and therefore we placed in a class men who thought they were patriotic citizens of our great land, or were given to feigning patriotism. We have studied this type of American citizen and found them in most every instance to be men with one aim in life, which is personal gain—selfishness. We have often thought if these men are true Americans how came they by such traits? Nay, we challenge the patriotism, the Christianity of any American citizen who does not possess the first principles of liberality. A liberal spirit begets a broad mind; a broad mind is the chief requisite of a great and good man, a man who in the truest sense is the glory of God's creation.

Phone 46

Marion, Kentucky

THE enormous rate of consumption of timber for railroad ties, and to a less extent for telegraph poles and other timbers used in railroad work, is giving serious concern to all railroad men at the present day. Vast quantities of wood are taken from our forest lands every year without any regard for the future. For the last 10 or 15 years the government foresters, the journals devoted to railroad interests, and more recently the lumber trade journals have been calling attention to the increasing amount of timber used for ties, and have been urging that, in view of the rising prices and diminishing supply already evident, some steps should be taken to provide for future needs.

Various suggestions have been made as to how the question of a future supply of ties might be solved. Some have suggested (and this suggestion is made with increasing frequency) that ties should be made out of materials other than wood. Granite ties were among the earliest substitutes offered; they were used for some time in Dublin, Ireland, and on the old Boston and Lowell railroad in Massachusetts. For some 50 years various forms of metal ties have been suggested, and a large number of steel ties have been tried in various countries. In recent years concrete ties have been made, and some of these are now being tested. These ties are either composed wholly of concrete or are provided with wooden blocks embedded in concrete to serve as a rail bearing. There is also a steel concrete tie, constructed of concrete with strengthening steel rods embedded in it, which likewise sometimes has wooden rail bearings.

In spite of the general urging to economy, and in spite of the general acceptance of the fact that timber has become scarcer and more expensive from year to year, very little progress seems to have been made toward solving, even partially, the question as to what is to be done toward securing ties in the future. Ties are still bought and sold as they were years ago. It is, however, becoming harder every year for the purchasing agent to call for 500,000 first-class ties of white oak, with the certainty of getting them. The unwelcome fact that ties are scarcer has already presented itself, and it will continue to do so with rapidly increasing force. It is believed that the next few years will see a very radical change in the attitude of railroad men toward the tie problem, and, therefore, toward forest problems. The rapid introduction of treated timbers is the first step in this change. Many have protested against the use of treated woods, and some are still doing so, but all will eventually come to use them. The advisability of using treated woods is no longer an open question; their use is a matter of necessity to-day, and must be regarded as such in meeting present problems.

The use of chemically treated woods is an innovation on most railroads, and it has come to many so suddenly that they are not prepared to grasp the exact nature of the change they are making. The writer firmly believes that unless the problems discussed below are considered, many if not all users of chemically treated ties will be disappointed. Ties made of red oak and the soft pines will not last, using that term in its broadest sense, unless they are cared for in other ways besides chemical treatment. Few will then ask, "Why did they not last?" The mere fact that the treated ties had to be removed from service will be sufficient for many to blame the timber and the treatment. But the chemical treatment of timber is no longer an experiment. One can treat timber so as to prevent it from decaying, and there ought to be no hesitation in adopting the use of treated timbers on most railroads to-day.

A Lack of Grace

By LADY VIOLET GREEVILLE.

The fashion for being natural has spread to the theater in a peculiarly unfortunate manner. Deportment is as much neglected by actresses as it is by the ordinary world, and so we have women stooping and slouching about the stage, poking their heads forward in a manner that would have called down upon them the wrath of the mother of old times.

Nowadays we call this "having a willowy figure," and it is praised by critics accordingly. But grace does not mean stooping, and the woman who holds her head up and looks life boldly in the face, makes far more of whatever scanty good looks she may possess, than does the beauty with the round shoulders and the artistic so-called poke.

It is a common thing to see girls sitting with their arms on the table at dinner, and a caricaturist who observed social life as did John Leech might make the funniest sketch of four fair creatures in this attitude, all leaning forward until their four heads almost touched. The stooping attitude is not really graceful or pretty, and is exceedingly bad for the health, as any schoolmaster or mistress can testify.

CHAINED BOOKS OF TO-DAY.

Though Rarely Met With They Are Still to Be Found in Some Places.

According to book catalogues and bibliophiles, chained books are rare relics of an early period throughout the old world, but according to human experience with old book shops, and with old book-lovers, the chained book of another kind is still to be encountered, says the Indianapolis Journal.

"When you really want an old book," said a browser in second-hand book shops, "try to buy it, if you can, from the clerk in the old book shop and not from the proprietor. In an old book shop that I know was an old edition of Pepys' Diary, which I had long admired and desired. It was in a good old dusty corner and seemed likely to stay there. One day, reading that a new edition of Pepys' Diary was to come out, I made cheerful haste to buy the edition, fearing the new edition might attract some buyer to these old volumes in the darkest corner of the darkest old book shop.

"Well, sir, when that old scamp of a bookman learned that I had come to buy the Pepys' didn't he go and open the books and nose into them and hang over them and finally tell me that he wanted to look at old Pepys' himself for a few days—and would send me word when I could have him. Yes, sir, he did that. I've been in twice since and the clerk tells me that Pepys hasn't come back yet; he is out at the old bookman's house. There's a chained book for you. I'll never see that old Pepys' Diary again, and I ought to have bought it from the clerk.

"Yesterday I met a nice old Dutchman whom I know, and he had a grievance to tell which involved also a chained book.

"'Wot you tink,' he said, 'I know some goot ol' Dutchman an' he have some nice lots o' goot books, an' he say I shall take some nice goot book home mit me an' read him, 'cause I don't get me so much education as doze odder ol' Dutchmen. Vell, I takes dat nice goot book home mit me, an' I sits i mine fire at night, mit a lamp—at dat nice goot book; an' here come de boy of dat odder old Dutchman's an' he say I shall send hon right quick by him dat nice goot book; his fadder say he can't h: dat nice goot book from his hon out all night already. He 'frail-fire in my house. So, I sends by de boy de nice goot book of odder Dutchman's; an' I don't me some more education alre out of dat goot book—no, dat great, heh?'"

Betty—So Maud is enga, Well, I'm sorry for the man, doesn't know the first thing at keeping house.

Bessie—Oh, yes, she does. "I'd like to know what." "The first thing is to get to keep house for."—Harper.

HANDLING LIQUID MANURE.

To the Farmer Who Knows How It Means a Material Saving Every Single Season.

Solving the problem of successfully economizing liquid manure meant a material saving to me. After sustaining this loss for many years, I constructed a vat and stable drainage to handle it without waste. The vat was built on a hillside below the barn, large enough to hold, if necessary, six months' accumulation. To this vat from the stable was laid the large enough to avoid clogging. The vat was constructed of concrete lined with cement. In the bottom of this vat was inserted a two-inch pipe to draw off contents by gravity, extending two inches above bottom of vat to prevent sediment from escaping. It was also covered with several thicknesses of wire screen.

To handle this liquid manure, I bought a larger brewer's tank with a capacity of between 400 and 500 gallons. To facilitate even distribution I had a plumber make sprinkling arrangement such as is shown in the cut. A two-inch pipe was used, connected with tee and a 45 degree elbow, with a two-inch gate valve to regulate supply of liquid from tank to distributing pipe as shown at D. The distributing pipe was made two feet wider than wagon track on either side. Holes were bored in the pipe every inch, large enough to allow the free escape of the liquid. I used a low-down wagon as shown by wheels, W, having an ordinary axle, A, surmounted by a bolster of the logging pattern. To secure tank in place, blocks, E, were firmly fastened to bed.

As soon as I began to use the liquid manure as a top-dressing, I realized what I had lost in its waste. In a comparative manurial trial where I used the solid manure plowed under on one piece and the liquid manure as a top-dressing on another, I secured a net gain of 20 per cent. by the use of the liquid over the solid manure. Since installing this arrangement I use top-dressing for fall-sown grains during the winter, if the ground is not covered with snow, and give a liberal application to my meadows and grass lands in the spring. Whenever I have a supply I top-dress my oat land either before or after seeding. As far as fertility is concerned I believe that liquid manure is more valuable to the farmer in proportion than the solid manure.

Where sufficient slope is not available to operate by gravity, a cistern may be built and a large-size pitcher pump used to elevate liquid into tank. The first cost of installing such a plant will be paid for in the first season's increase of crops, where 15 to 20 animals are kept. —Robert F. Worden, in Farm and Home.

Blue Grass for the Hogs.

The more we see of blue grass and the more we have to do with it, the more we believe that John J. Ingalls meant what he said when he wrote what he did about blue grass. The latest "capture" blue grass has made in this section of the state is in the way of hog pastures. On our upland it has come out in a way that plainly shows it to be head and shoulders above alfalfa for that quality of soil, and when it comes to a question of lasting with a herd of hogs running on it, alfalfa simply isn't in it compared with the blue grass. And as far as we have been able to observe, the hogs like the grass every bit as well and do every bit as well on it as they do on alfalfa. There is no doubt about alfalfa having its place on the farm, but every year, little by little, it is soaking into our cavity where a set of brains ought to be that blue grass is crowding it hard for first place as a hog pasture crop of more permanent nature than is cane or rape. —Missouri Valley Farmer.

Texas Cattle Going to Cuba.

Report comes from a reliable source that there will be a movement of cattle from Texas to Cuba this summer that will far outrank the movement of last summer, said the Fort Worth Record, recently. It is understood that the movement will begin on a large scale within a few weeks, and that already men are rounding up 18,000 head for exportation through the port of Galveston. This number will make a good start, but it is learned that many more will be shipped to Cuba via Galveston before next winter.

Hens Need Lots of Grit.

With a big flock of fowls it is no small matter to keep up the supply of grit. Where natural grit cannot be easily obtained commercial grit should be purchased. We are satisfied that on some of our farms in the prairie states the securing of grit by the fowls is so difficult that they are unable to obtain the quantity required. This is especially true on a soil that is soft and velvety and free from gravel. In such cases grit will have to be brought.

BEST WAY TO SKIN A HOG.

Experts Can Take Off a Hide in Ten or Fifteen Minutes and Never Scratch It.

The butcher cuts off the snout, ears, tail and feet, and then proceeds as usual with a sheep or calf, slitting the skin on the breast and abdomen, and down each leg. The skin must be cut from the flesh; it will not peel or strip in places as a sheep's will. The entire animal is skinned, head and all. The operation is performed before the animal is hung up, the skin as it is cut loose being spread out on the ground or floor to keep the flesh from coming in contact with anything that would soil it. An inexperienced man would at first probably spoil several hides by cutting them, but an expert will take off a hide in 10 or 15 minutes and never scratch it with his knife. As to the market for the skins, I have so far been unable to learn where they are disposed of. It seems to be a sort of trade secret among the butchers. While there are dozens of men in this vicinity engaged in skinning hogs, I find that the hides are all marketed by two or three men, who buy of the others, and these speculators do not seem to care to impart any information concerning the matter. I am told that the skins are used in the manufacture of saddles, shopping bags and pocketbooks. I also learn that the market has been injured of late, by the number of cut skins that have been sent in, which shows that a good many inexperienced men have been taking up the work last winter. Everything used to go at the top price, large and small, and cut ones, but now small ones must go at half price, and cut ones are thrown out entirely. —E. O. Gillett, in Rural New Yorker.

USEFUL FARM STRUCTURE.

Its Designer Considers It the Best Kind of House for Brood Sows Ever Put in Use.

The illustration will give an idea of the best houses for the brood sow. The small door at the rear is for ventilation and to watch the sow at farrowing time without bothering her. This door is hinged at the top and can be kept open or shut according to the weather. The door at the front can be fastened to the side, when open, by means of a hook. The reason that the 4x4 sills are beveled is so that the house can be moved from one place to another.

The house should face the south and there should be a lot 50 feet long and 20 wide running south of the house. The feeding floor and slop trough should be at the farther end of the pen, so the sow will have to take some exercise to get her food.

This house should be kept well bedded with rye straw or cut fodder and should be removed whenever it becomes damp. Oats straw is objectionable, as it irritates the skin of the hog and is not a good absorber of moisture. A good carpenter can make one of these houses in a day. The lumber will cost five to eight dollars, depending upon the location. —Orange Judd Farmer.

Light in the Horse Stable.

The most modern stables are arranged with the idea of giving the horse an abundance of light. In many of these the heads of the horses are toward the outer walls and there is a window in the side of the stable opposite each stall. Light is a factor that makes for good health, and there is little danger of having too much of it. In the summer time these windows are covered with screens and the flies kept out while the summer breezes come in. There are numerous old stables now dark that might be made light by some inexpensive alterations. These should be made as early in the season as possible.

Steer That Weighs Two Tons.

An Omaha man is said to own a steer that tips the scales at 4,000 pounds. The animal's measurements are a revelation to cattlemen. They are: Hams across under loins, 21½ inches; hams on sides, 1 foot 10 inches; length of hams, 2 feet 4 inches; point of short ribs, 6 inches; height, 6 feet 2 inches; from ground to hip, 5 feet 7 inches; tip of tail to nose, 12 feet 10 inches; body length 8 feet; measurement around body at shoulder blade, 9 feet 2 inches; around loin, 10 feet 2 inches; hip to point of hip, 42 inches; hip to hump bone, 21 inches; upper part of hind legs, 33 inches; front legs, upper part, 30 inches.

Frontera, Mexico, is to have a million-dollar plant for building steel, iron and wooden vessels for river and ocean navigation. A complete outfit of machinery and tools has been ordered from the United States.

O. B. Crittenden, manager of the big Corbin estate in Arkansas, says in the Manufacturers' Record that more than one-half of that property is now worked by Italian labor and that the Italians are superior to the negroes in growing cotton.

A French wine merchant in London complains that "Italy, with its Chianti, Spain, with its Rioja; Germany, with its Rhine wines, and, above all, Australia and California, with their imitation Bordeaux and Burgundy, have materially injured the market of France."

Hungarians, Germans, Slovaks and Jews all emigrate from Hungary because the wages are higher in the United States than in Europe; on the other hand, a larger proportion than formerly return by direct instigation of relatives, who are constantly stimulated by the Hungarian press, in order to spend the higher American wages on cheaper European manufactures in their old age. While in the larger cities of Hungary food and rent are becoming nearly as dear as in the United States, they are not so in the country places, to which most emigrants return.

In Bohemia every wage worker, of whatever sex or age, must have a "work book," which contains his personal description and history, and his employer's endorsements. Permission to travel in search of work must be endorsed by the local authorities. In changing locations a certificate from original place of residence must be secured and filed at the new location. This work book, therefore, becomes a passport, exhaustive in its way; it must be produced and recorded at each new location, and permission to leave the country must be specifically stated.

The irrigation development of the Snake river valley, Idaho, has received a setback by the proposed construction of a power plant, which will interfere with the irrigation development. Citizens of Montana residing in the valley of Milk river are gravely concerned over the proposed extensive diversion of the waters of that stream in Canada, and are importuning the government to intervene in order that their prior rights to the water may be protected.

Most Americans have an idea that rubber is a product like wheat or corn, to be obtained from a given tree. The idea is quite erroneous. It has been estimated that 1,000 different species contain rubber, though commercial quantities have been obtained from only 40 or 50.

The amount of money annually received in Greece from Greek emigrants to the United States is assuming proportions that have attracted the attention of the Greek government, bankers and public. Greek officials estimate that over $1,500,000.93 thus reached Greece during 1903.

A young New York broker whose father has dropped two fortunes in Wall street, about a year ago fell heir to $30,000 from the estate of an aunt. Missionary work in Korea appears to be far less disturbed by the war than feared. It has not seemed necessary for the missionaries to leave, and they may be able to remain unmolested at the capital, even if outposts must be temporarily abandoned.

Thibet has a regular postal system, of a kind. The stamp on letters is merely a native character impressed in red sealing wax. When one wants to post a letter in Thibet he takes it to the nearest post office and pays the amount due for postage. Then the letter has the above mentioned seal placed upon it and the postal authorities take charge of it.

CUPID AWAKE

And in Our Midst Making Young Hearts Happy.

On Tuesday at the Gill House at 11 o'clock J. W. Ethridge and Miss Lula Rowland, both of Enon, Caldwell county, were united in marriage by Rev. T. V. Joiner, of this city. The wedding was a quiet unheralded affair and only a few of the most intimate friends of the contracting parties were present. The attendants were Press Babb and Miss Carrie Drenning, of Enon.

The bride was dressed in white and looked very pretty. She is the daughter of B. F. and Delia Rowland, and 19 years of age.

Mr. Ethridge is a young man of sterling worth, 25 years of age, an energetic and hustling farmer and blacksmith.

The happy couple will settle and make their home at Enon. The Record joins their numerous friends in wishing them long and happy lives.

TEACHERS' ANNUAL INSTITUTE HELD.

The teachers of the county met in annual Institute at the graded school building Monday, July 25. The attendance was large and that enthusiasm which is characteristic of Crittenden county teachers, was in no wise in the background.

Instructor J. C. Willis, of Lexington, was unable to be at the morning session but the time was well taken up in the organization and a very terse address by Supt. Jno. B. Paris in which he stated that in order to make their certificates valid the teachers must attend the Institute the five days. This "stand pat" for the law on the part of the Superintendent was seconded by every progressive teacher.

J. R. Glass, of Dycusburg, was elected President.

W. Hugh Watson, of Carrsville, was elected Secretary.

Proper committees were appointed and work was begun in earnest.

Prof. Willis is an instructor of well known ability, having instructed teachers' institutes throughout Kentucky and in some other states. At present, he is editor of The Kentucky School Journal and is the teacher of Psychology and Pedagogy in the Kentucky State University.
