LITHOGRAPHIC STONE FOUND

Near Salem, and is an Extra Fine Product for the Lithographers Uses — Foreign
Fluor Spar and its Vendors
— The Joplin Zinc Market.

THE WEEK'S MINING NEWS.

The lithographic stone recently discovered in the district between Salem and the Cumberland river bids fair to be of greater value than many of its critics thought possible. There are many points about lithographing that are not generally understood. The difference between it and printing from either movable types or plates is very great. The types or plates show a cameo or raised surface from which after inking the impressions are made. The lithographic process necessitates a stone upon which drawings are made with an ink compounded especially for the purpose and termed lithographic ink. There are various shades and colors employed of the ink as well as black and white. In actual work on a lithographic press the ink rollers pass over the entire stone, the ink however attaches itself only to the tracings made upon the stone by the artist. This is the distinctive work of lithographic stone. After each impression the stone is washed or rather has water passed over it which prevents the ink from attaching itself to any part of it except where the tracings or drawing exists. Of course, a first class stone must polish as smoothly as a piece of plate silver. It must be free from too great porosity to prevent the ink from penetrating to any decided depth. The stone can be used again and again until repeated polishings have worn it to a thinness which makes it undesirable for further use. The most beautiful paintings are reproduced by means of this art in all of their delicate shades and lights. Without this very peculiar lime stone, these artistic efforts would be futile.

The Salem stone has had a very thorough trial in the Courier Journal Lithographic Department and the artists in that concern pronounced it a first class article. The vein in which this Salem stone is procured is of a decided lime formation and the stone is found between two entirely different strata of this formation.

Lithographic stone in market is valued largely according to its size, everything else being equal.

The importance of fluor spar has rapidly increased during the past year as compared with any previous period. It is stated that Mr. Blackwell, of Blackwell Sons, Liverpool, Eng., the importing firm, is determined on a finish fight so far as the Kentucky-Illinois fluor spar district is concerned. However, there are generally two sides to nearly all questions. Mr. Blackwell's fluor spar or rather his imports under that name could not by the strongest imagination be called anything of a high grade product. There are of course, purchasing agents of steel companies who would buy anything containing calcium fluoride, provided it was offered at a low price, considering that they were saving their concern's money and patting themselves on the back for being shrewd buyers. In buying an English so called fluor spar which carries a possible 50 per cent of the active principle of fluor spar, eight to twelve per cent of barytes which it nearly always contains, several per cent of silica and the residue of a variety of material that the fluor spar itself must be utilized in getting rid of or rather fluxing, an open hearth steel plant is adding to its burdens by using it.

A comparison was made a few weeks ago in the Pittsburg district between this English importation and a good grade of our fluor spar. Several trials were given with the almost uniform saving of an hour's time to each melting. So decided was this in the saving of time and money that orders were at once given to discontinue the use of foreign spar.

Mr. Blackwell, the gentleman who is talking a great deal of what he will do in this country, is a man of many statements in regard to his various productions. No fluor spar miner or shipper need entertain the slightest fear that this gentleman will put him out of business so long as he produces the class of goods that he can produce with a little care and attention. Indeed, the demand at the present time for high grade fluor spar is almost impossible to supply, and as the steel makers compare the two articles, the purchasing agents will have to stipulate a higher percentage which orders our side whiskered friends across the water will find it impossible to fill.

The Joplin zinc market was firmer at the end of the week. The highest price reported paid for zinc ore during the past week was $44 per ton for the output of the Bumblebee, southeast of Joplin. The King William mine of the Consolidated Jack mines came next, with a price of $43 per ton. The shipment of 4,980 tons is an increase of 1,070 tons over the preceding week, and adds less than 300 tons to the stock over that of a week ago. The week opened with the basis price at $40, and some bins of ore sold at that rate all week, but others sold at $39 and some at $38 per ton of 60 per cent. zinc. Heavier purchasing toward the last of the week gave the market a much stronger outlook and helped prices, though a few very small lots were bid in at only a $35 basis yesterday. Everything points to a steady market this week, with but few changes in prices as paid the past week. The market is, however, of such an uncertain quantity that it is hard to hazard a guess. There are evidences that several mills will be closed down within the following week or two for cleaning and repairs. This will result in reducing the output considerably, and though the stock has reached about the 4,000-ton limit, a little anxiety on the part of some of the buyers who are buying exceptionally light would put an entire new phase on the whole situation. Lead sold all week at $53.50 per ton, the price that has ruled steady for two months.

There doesn't seem to be any doubt of the building of a railroad through Hardin county, Illinois, the coming year. This county is the only one in the state of Illinois without a railroad. At the present time a surveying force of 21 men with all the paraphernalia of the service is located near Hartsville in the fluor spar section of Hardin county. It is understood that the Wabash railroad is back of the movement. A great body of mineral land will thus be brought into close touch with the markets. Many Kentucky people and incorporations will largely benefit by this route, as they have large holdings of land in Hardin county.

The ideal autumn days now upon us should hasten the completion of the very large public improvements arranged for by Mr. C. S. Knight, president of the Marion Zinc Company, between the Riley mine and the Ohio river on the one side and the Illinois Central railroad on the other. It will be a very great advantage to Salem—these various and costly public turnpikes, telephone and telegraphic lines to be built by this heavily capitalized corporation, the Marion Zinc Company, of which Mr. C. S. Knight is president and Mr. F. Julius Fohs, chief engineer. When completed a banquet should be given these gentlemen.

The Crittenden Mining Company, through sheer lack of interest on the part of several of its officials, has been asleep during the splendid mining weather that we are passing through. We are informed that from the first of November very aggressive work will be instituted on the Flannery tract, which the company owns, and report says that one of the most successful business women of Western Kentucky will direct its operations personally. Several ladies have, during the past few years, made worlds of money mining zinc in the Joplin district and we shall gladly welcome this Kentucky lady into our district.

The Ada Florence mine, owned by Louisville and Marion parties, is down 72 feet. Levels were started at 40 or 50 feet and run on the vein, so Mr. Persons, the mine manager, says, fully 200 feet. The output of gravel fluor spar, the gentleman reports, will amount to 1,000 tons now on the surface ready for washing. It is really difficult, however, to estimate the tonnage of fluor spar when in irregular dumps, and possibly there may be a few more tons than Mr. Persons estimates.

Elizabethtown, Illinois, ought to be a sovereign location for nervous people. Its quietness and utter lack of the hustle and bustle of modern towns should put a paralytic patient to sleep easily. In this respect it is really ahead of Smithland, Kentucky.

J. R. Finley has returned to Marion from his prospecting trip into Southern Illinois. He has in contemplation several pieces of fluor spar property and very likely will decide the coming week on where the location will be made for his mining enterprise.

The so-called Ohio river could be made much more of a freight carrier if the United States would rock its channel and make it a turnpike.

LARGE STOCK FARM

J. Handy Moore Making Investments in Crittenden County.

J. Handy Moore, of Charleston, Mo., president of a local bank there and a stock holder in several banks in Missouri who recently purchased 1000 acres of land in this county between Fords Ferry and Crittenden Springs, is fitting the land up for a fine stock farm. Three car loads or about 600 head of sheep and a car load of cattle have been shipped here from St. Louis and turned in on the farm to graze. Mr. Moore is one of those fellows who invests his money in enterprising propositions. Our city needs and offers inducements to capital to put in an ice plant and water works. We trust that Mr. Moore will continue the investigations, we are informed he has been making on this subject, and we will warrant that the inducements will justify immediate action in the matter.

INDICTED

Were Officials of Hopkinsville Asylum.—Charges and Counter Charges.

A MOST SICKENING MESS

Through the efforts of Dr. Walter A. Lackey, former first assistant physician of the Western Kentucky Asylum for the Insane, at Hopkinsville, and who resigned recently because all the other officials of the institution for some cause desired his removal, indictments were returned last week at Hopkinsville against Supt. Milton Board and all the commissioners of the asylum except W. T. Tandy, the new member.

On motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Denny P. Smith the indictments against Supt. Board and Commissioners C. H. Bush and David Smith, in connection with the presentation by the asylum board of two heifers to Senator Gus Richardson, were dismissed, the reason being set forth in the indictment on the back of the bill. From this it appears that Judge Bush and Mr. Smith were not present at the meeting of the board of commissioners on March 1, 1904, when, on the recommendation of Supt. Board, the heifers were ordered sent prepaid to Senator Richardson.

In section 219, Kentucky statutes 1903, defining the powers of the commissioners of asylums, is found this language: "They shall have the general management and control of all land, buildings, funds, books, papers and other effects and property of their respective institution."

In section 243 Kentucky Statutes is found this language: "The medical superintendent shall have the general management, supervision and control of the patients, subject to the regulations of the board of commissioners, and shall devote his entire time thereto."

For the reasons stated prosecution was dismissed as to Dr. Milton Board, Judge C. H. Bush and David Smith.

Judge Bush, with reference to the other indictment against him, states that it has always been the custom for attorneys on the board to be employed in legal business for the asylum and denies that his acceptance of a fee as one of the attorneys in the Willingham case, a $25,000 damage suit, which the asylum won, was ground for indictment.

Dr. Lackey is, himself, indicted for assault and battery. Dr. Lackey mailed to the Governor recently a statement containing charges against Supt. Board and a number of the commissioners. He charged the head of the institution with padding requisitions and drawing pay for patients who were paroled, and in one instance of keeping the name of a dead patient on the lists for several months. He accused commissioners and officers of the board of selling supplies to or having contracts with the institution, in violation of the statutes.

Dr. Lackey then carried the matter before the grand jury, and, after an investigation in which numerous witnesses were examined, including Supt. Board and commissioners, the indictments were found. The superintendent and all of the commissioners, except W. T. Tandy, who was not a member of the board, are indicted for giving two heifers to Senator Gus W.

Richardson, of Meade county. Senator Richardson was a member of the joint legislative committee which recommended the $75,000 appropriation for building the new wings at the asylum. The other indictments were as follows:

Commissioner C. H. Bush, for accepting a fee in defending the suit of G. Y. Willingham, administrator, against the asylum.

Commissioner John B. Chilton, for holding a position as farm superintendent on salary.

Commissioner M. W. Johnson, for selling beef cattle.

Commissioner F. M. Quarles, for selling hay, straw, etc.

Treasurer L. H. Davis, for putting in stone foundations of two wings from which he derived profit.

Secretary J. C. Buckner, for furnishing coal under contract.

Walter A. Lackey, for committing assault and battery on the person of Spegal Bourland, a lunatic and patient at the institution, while said Lackey was acting as superintendent of the asylum.

Bail was fixed in each case at $500, except Dr. Lackey's, which is $100.

Supt. Board states that the board, with his approval, did give the cows to Senator Richardson as testimony of its appreciation of his good services in connection with the asylum appropriation, for which he labored zealously.

Before Lackey resigned his position at the asylum, Supt. Board had filed a petition with Governor Beckham asking that he be removed because of poor professional qualifications, neglect of official duty, cruelty to patients, being a talebearer, converting patients' money to his own use, being a confessed grafter and of untruthfulness.

Dr. Lackey says that charges against him were given out while the charges he filed with the administration against Supt. Board were withheld. He says that he charged and can prove that the board padded his requisitions for the regular allowances, drawing from $1,200 to $1,500 each time more than he should. He says that Supt. Board would draw pay for patients who were on furloughs, being kept by certain relatives, the asylum bearing no expense in the matter whatever, and also states that he can give the name of a patient for whom board had included the per capita allowance for a long time after the patient's death.

SPEAKING SATURDAY

By Hon. J. C. Speight, Republican Nominee for Congress.

Hon. J. C. Speight, the Republican nominee for Congress in this district, will deliver a rousing speech here tomorrow, Saturday, October 22nd, on the political issues. Mr. Speight is the opponent of Ollie M. James, of this city. These gentlemen have been holding debates all over the district, but it is not announced that they will debate here, however, by reason of the points that have been made in their debates, it is expected that Speight's speech will cover the entire ground of the opposition. Mr. Speight possesses a good command of the southern dialect and always pleases and entertains his hearers. In his race for the state office of Attorney General last fall he spoke here and made a good impression. A good crowd is expected to hear him Saturday. The committee invites everybody and especially the ladies to come out.

Ex-Congressman Irwin, of Louisville, is doing some good campaigning in Livingston county. Saturday night he spoke at Carrsville, Thursday afternoon at Salem and Thursday night at Hampton. Today and tonight he will speak at Smithland and Grand Rivers respectively, after which he will return to Louisville.

Hon. E. T. Franks, of Owensboro, an old Crittenden county boy who has won state and national prominence, will speak here November 5th.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT

To Bridge Workman—Body Crushed
Into Pulp at Gilbertsville.

Dick White, formerly of this city and son of Thos. White, also formerly of this place, residing now at Uniontown, met with a horrible death Saturday while working on the Tennessee river bridge of the Illinois Central railroad at Gilbertsville. He was caught underneath the heavy shovel like affair used in dropping concrete and other material down into the big caisson used by the workmen.

The caisson is a cylindrical affair of iron that is dropped down into the river where one of the stone piers are to be placed for the new bridge. The water is then pumped out of the caisson and men go down into same and lay the concrete and stone for the pier that supports the structure. There is a caisson out in the river for every pier. Beside the caisson is a large on which is a hoisting derrick. The concrete is mixed on the barge, picked up by the large shovel that closes like the mouth of an oyster shell, and which is hoisted to top of the caisson and then lowered down inside where the men knock out the pin which opens the shovel and lets out the concrete that the men then spread as the base for the stone pillar.

Yesterday, White and three others were inside working. The derrick was letting the shovel like affair down inside loaded with a ton of concrete. It came down too quick though, and caught White underneath same and crushed his life out. The three onlookers were powerless to help him as the affair was too heavy to move off his body, hence they had to wait for the engineer of the hoisting derrick out side to pull the shovel up. The body had been mashed to pulp so that it adhered to the bottom of the shovel and had to be jerked off as it was being raised, by the other workmen. The sight was a horrible one. Word was gotten to the outside of the caisson of the accident and the body was then placed on the hoisting apparatus and brought to the top from whence it was lowered onto the barge along side, and carried to the bank.

White was about thirty-four years of age and resided in Grand Rivers, where he leaves a wife and two children. The mangled remains were fearful to look upon. The shovel caught him from the shoulders down to middle of the thighs and compressed the flesh and bones into a jelly.

Friday morning at Paducah Rev. G. W. Perryman, of the First Baptist church, married Mrs. Jennie Ross, of Sturgis, Ky., and W. W. Pogue, of Frances, Ky., in the parlors of the St. Nicholas hotel on South Third Street. After the ceremony was performed the couple left for a bridal trip to the World's Fair.

The bride is a very attractive and prepossessing widow, while the groom is the son of W. W. Pogue, Sr., and a brother of Marion F. Pogue who represented this district in the State legislature formerly.

ORDER NO. 78

Which Judge Parker Will Not Have a Chance to Revoke.

Nothing in the Democratic quiver of wherewithals against President Roosevelt has failed so utterly as that arraigning his pension order, No. 78, making the proof of certain ages by old soldiers evidential facts of certain degrees of disability.

If the order had been cunningly devised to betray the great constitutional lawyers of the Democracy into making more than the usual kinds of continental asses of themselves, it could not have succeeded more completely and ludicrously. When the great "Parker Constitution club," of New York, started in to arraign Theodore Roosevelt for going through the constitution as if it were a paper hoop in a circus ring, it attacked his issuance of order No. 78 in these words:

"We find that President Roosevelt deliberately disregarded article 1, section 9, of the constitution, providing 'No money shall be drawn from the treasury, but in consequence of appropriations made by law.'"

Now, what are the facts?

Order No. 78 assumed that an old soldier who is 62 years of age is probably able to earn only one-half of the support the statute provides in case of total disability, at which stage he arrives when he is 70, and says he shall be entitled to the munificent sum of $6 per month as a pension; and it finds that at 65 he is two-thirds disabled and entitled to $8.

There can be no serious objection to the principle of the order, which is based on the experience of mankind as to the gradual decay of human powers. By reason of strength many men are as able to "earn a support" at 70 as at 30, but the vast majority at 60 have passed the line where they are fully capable of doing so in "the performance of manual labor," and the evil days approach when "the grasshopper shall be a burden and desire shall fail."

Order No. 78 merely recognizes the course of nature but it draws no money out of the treasury without authority of law. It was issued March 5, 1904, to be effective April 13, 1904. Congress being in session, it was reported to that body with the request that $1,500,000 be appropriated to carry it into effect. The sum was embodied in the pending deficiency bill. After free discussion the money was voted, and in due order under the act of Congress, the pensions began to issue and not till then. Every cent paid under order No. 78 was drawn from the treasury in consequence of "an appropriation made by law."

Exit the Parker Constitution club, of New York, with its constitutional ears at half-mast.

Now, mark the sequel: On September 19 last, $1,410,000 was covered back into the treasury as the unexpended balance of the appropriation of $1,500,000, after paying $90,000 on 18,627 claims adjudicated in April, May and June to the end of the fiscal year. Of the certificates issued only 2,850 were for original pensions to veterans who had reached the age of 62 or upward, and 14,768 were increases allowed to claimants who were receiving pensions for disability less than the amount to which they were entitled under the pension for age.

Thus, it will be perceived, the dread of a heavy pension raid on the treasury by reason of order No. 78 has gone glimmering along with the constitutional hysterics of the Parker Constitution club, of New York.

On the same subject the Louisville Herald editorially says:

Remarkable is the aptitude shown by Judge Parker for putting his foot into it on every question dividing the two great parties. He promises that he will, if elected, revoke President Roosevelt's Pension order No. 78, fixing 62 years as the age at which partial disability shall entitle the applicant to $6 a month without any further evidence. But Judge Parker, a seeker of votes, does not turn down the soldier without a sop thrown to catch the veterans' votes. He promises to follow up revocation with an effort for the enactment of a law for an "age pension without reference to disability." As to this promise, uncalculated, unjustifiable and unworthy of acceptance, the New York Globe says:

"Here is a distinct issue for his party, as startling as it is new. It is neither in the platform nor in the speech of acceptance. It is an open, unreserved pledge in favor of a service pension law, something that every newspaper that is supporting Parker has denounced as an unlimited and indefensible raid on the Treasury, and as a shameless bid for the soldier vote. It is noticeable that all the morning newspapers of this city that are supporting Parker dodge this new issue in commenting on his letter. The Times does not mention it, but stops with the statement that Parker will revoke Order No. 78. The World completely misrepresents the issue by saying that Parker favors the passage of an act under the provisions of which 'a pension may be accepted with dignity.' The Herald makes no illusion to any part of the pension utterance. But the issue cannot be dodged or ignored, for it is the one 'clarion note' in the letter, and the one really vital issue which the candidate has raised."

Judge Parker's empty and unacceptable promise the old soldier takes at its true worth. The Judge would, as President, revoke President Roosevelt's order. The Democratic party in Congress would in turn prevent the enactment of the legislation he promises.

The Democratic record on pensions is discreditable. Fourteen pension bills in all have been passed. These form the American Republic's Pension Code. This code is a splendid construction of Republican statesmanship and national gratitude. For the fourteen bills forming the Pension Code there voted 1,068 Republicans. Against these bills not a single Republican vote was ever cast. For the bills there voted 417 Democrats; against, 648 Democrats.

By the revocation of President Roosevelt's order from 25,000 to 50,000 veterans would, according to the moderate estimate of Speaker Cannon, have their pensions wrenched from the hands of men palsied by age and poverty.

Says a Philadelphia veteran:

"I was one of about 20,000 who were cut down or cut out altogether by Hoke Smith, Cleveland's Secretary. Hoke Smith was the son of a Confederate. I am receiving $8 a month. I will get $10 a month under Roosevelt's order at sixty-eight and $12 at seventy years without any other evidence of disability than my age. Judge Parker promises to knock me out of this. There are scores of thousands in the same position as myself. They will rally to Roosevelt. Roosevelt was a soldier himself. He knows how it was. Judge Parker does not."

The American people want not only just but generous treatment for veteran soldiers and sailors. These are the men to whom the nation owes existence.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY

Republicans Alone Deserve Credit for Inaugurating the Service.

When Democrats assert that their party is the "father" of rural free delivery, they willfully misstate the facts. It is charity to call their assertion a plain falsehood, for it is a deliberate lie, uttered with the intention to deceive many persons. Rural free delivery had its origin under the Harrison administration, and Postmaster General Wanamaker was its "father." He proposed and established the first experimental route. When the Democrats came into power, under President Cleveland, they did everything possible to kill rural free delivery; in fact, they absolutely refused to expend any of the $10,000 Congressional appropriation for its nourishment, and both Postmasters General Bissell and Wilson, in their annual reports, did their utmost to discredit it. President Cleveland also threw cold water on it in a hostile message to congress. When McKinley became president, rural free delivery was pushed to the front as a Republican policy. This policy has been continued under President Roosevelt, until now there are about 27,500 routes in operation. No farmer need be deceived by Democracy's false claims, for the record shows that to Republicans alone belongs the credit of inaugurating and fostering a mail service that is of incalculable benefit to rural communities.

Kentucky farmers have fared well during the past three years in the labors of the Postoffice Department. Three years ago there were less than a dozen rural free delivery routes in the state, but now has 413 rural free delivery routes, well distributed throughout the state. This is an average of about 133 established during the past three years. Probably two hundred more have been recommended, which will doubtless be established during the next three months, or by January 1, 1905. Heretofore Jefferson has been the only county enjoying full county service, but later on in the fall Mason, Fayette and Fleming counties will doubtless secure it. Many counties, however, have almost full county service, viz: Union, with fifteen routes; Davies, with nineteen; Shelby, with fourteen; Harrison, with sixteen, and so on. The rural service is beginning to grow to large proportions. In view of the present extensions of the service, Kentucky bids fair to be well taken care of during the next administration of President Roosevelt.

LETTERS WEIGHED

Parker Not Sincere.—Only Blaming Opposition.—Would Substitution Pay.

Collier's Weekly, an independent literary journal on a democratic basis, weighs impartially the letters of acceptance issued respectively by Roosevelt and Parker. The issue for September 24th, commenting on Roosevelt's letter, says:

"All these leading issues are, to a greater or less degree, lighted up by the President's letter of acceptance, a document which, whoever may have been responsible for its various qualities, was so strong, confident and clear, on the whole, that even the Democratic papers admitted its favorable influence on the Republican cause. The President had a great advantage over Judge Parker and the Democratic leaders generally, for he could say, on most of the questions, what he actually believed, whereas probably the Judge, and certainly his chief advisers, are compelled to shape issues with a view rather to blaming the Administration than to revealing their inmost preferences. We doubt whether, in their private souls, these leaders believe they would have acted differently from the Administration on the Philippines, the trusts, the coal strike, the navy, Panama, or even the tariff. With so many leading Democrats as imperialistic as Mr. Hay, Mr. Taft, or Mr. Root, at least as cautious about the trusts as Mr. Roosevelt, and afraid of the tariff issue, it is no wonder that Judge Parker, his assistants, and their newspapers are unable to put into their arguments that accent of sincerity which alone could change the campaign from its present state of taking things for granted. Either Mr. Roosevelt's opinions on the tariff have changed or he is content, not feeling proficient in economic reasoning, to accept the general party view. We make the guess that he doesn't imagine he knows much about what the consequences of tariff revision or free trade would be, and thinks it not unbecomingly, therefore, as well as politic, to be conservative on that issue. A very eloquent, keen, well-balanced and radical Democrat could make him trouble on the stand pat policy as applied to all branches of the money issue, including the tariff and the trusts, but there is no such champion in the fight. The majority of traditional and conservative Democrats are indistinguishable from the Republicans, in their real beliefs on current history, and that is what makes their efforts so perfunctory."

And in the issue for October 8th has the following to say of Parker's letter:

"Our knowledge of Judge Parker increases slightly as the weeks pass on. His letter of acceptance was better than his speech. It was an excellent letter, in a negative sense. That is to say, it expressed lucidly and with some decision the points relied upon by the Democrats, without giving new life to any one of them. It should be remembered that the burden of proof is on the opposition, and their task is to make some complaint or promise very real. We ourselves happen to be more Democratic than Republican in our fundamental principles, more in sympathy with Jefferson than with Hamilton, with Tilden than with Blaine, with John Sharp Williams than with Thomas B. Reed. But as these underlying party principles do not seem to fit anything on which the parties are really convinced to-day, we must advise our readers to ignore them and merely try to decide whether the Judge's speeches, letters, record and associations make it worth while to substitute him for an administration of which both faults and merits are well known. The question which the Judge makes in the country will be improved by his letter of acceptance, but it is hardly improved. About trusts he has no message to satisfy the people who feel the evil to be immediate and great. He has a good point on the pension order, and perhaps a fairly popular position when he promises to work for pensions for all living 'heroes' of the Civil War—'heroes' presumably including all survivors. On reciprocity he touches a weak spot, and the tariff issue might be a strong one were the Gorman-Wilson history further away. On extravagance the people have not yet been willing to think very much, and on the Philippine question we surmise they have not changed the opinion they expressed in 1900."

BARNETT ESTATE

Court of Appeals Affirms the Decision of the Lower Court.

The court of appeals has affirmed the lower court's decision in the suit of Barnett's administrator vs. Adams, and Adams' administrator vs. Barnett. It will be remembered that the case involves prominent Livingston and Crittenden county people, and is quite an intricate affair.

Mr. Thomas Barnett, a wealthy Livingston county man, married a Miss Hibbs years ago, and they had one child, Miss Lacy Barnett. Mr. and Mrs. Barnett bought much Livingston county land, and one piece included the farm of Col. Sam Piles, who recently died. Mrs. Barnett put $1,000 into the purchase with the understanding that the deed was to be made to her. She died in 1886, before the deed was made out, hence her husband had the deed made to himself. He died in Paducah at the New Richmond hotel in 1900 and left an only heir, Miss Lacy Barnett, aged eighteen years, to his $35,000 estate.

August 19, 1902, Miss Barnett was drowned on the City of Goldconda wreck. After her parents died Mr. and Mrs. David Adams took her to raise. Mrs. Adams was drowned on the wreck also. After Miss Barnett's death the brothers and sisters of her mother claimed an interest in the Piles farm she and her husband bought. To this end they filed suit, but Judge Gordon held that the Barnett heirs were entitled to everything. The matter was appealed and now word comes that the appellate bench affirmed the lower court's decision.

The appellate bench also affirmed the lower court's judgment in the suit where David Adams sued the Barnett estate for money claimed due in keeping up and rearing Miss Lacy Barnett. The lower court granted him $900 and now the higher tribunal affirms this.

ROY SALMON

Contemplated Making Race for Commonwealth's Attorney.

Roy Salmon, the prominent attorney and Democratic politician who committed suicide in his office at Madisonville Wednesday of last week, contemplated making the race in this district for Commonwealth's Attorney. Prior to John L. Grayott's nomination for reelection, Salmon called twice to see friends in this city and discussed the matter with them relative to making a fight against Grayott.

Populist Argument.

In his address to the voters of Crittenden county delivered here October 10th, among other things things, Hon. J. W. Graham, of Paducah, said that every Populist was such from education and that while the party was in the minority it was founded on true principles of Democracy and composed of two million as honest men as ever lived. He said they were patriots—every one of them, and that they could not follow the conservatives of the present Democratic party because the conservatives were all at heart nothing more than Republicans and if in power would conduct national affairs as they are being conducted. He said the charge that the Republicans were furnishing campaign money to his people was false and emanated from dirty newspaper sheets of the country. The only apparent reason, said he, that it could be claimed that our fight is for the Republican party, is that every time we would hit a Republican a Democrat gets in the way, because the conservatives are twisting around and advocating Republican doctrines. He said Republican principles were right that party should have the credit for maintaining them and for the Democratic party to ask for the support of the people acknowledging that they can do nothing more nor better for the country, should not be tolerated. "Populists," said he, "we are in a hopeless minority, but beware of baneful influence."

Broke Into His House.

S. Le Quinn, of Cavendish, Vt., was robbed of his customary health by invasion of Chron's Constipation. When Dr. King's New Life Pills broke into his house, his trouble was arrested and now he's entirely cured. They're guaranteed to cure, 25c at HAYNES' drug store.

Pop-gun oratory is not going to be so much in vogue this year as it has been many times in the past. The little two by four politicians of all parties will have a mighty hard time getting crowds to hear them effervesce.—Glenn's Graphic.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FOR SHERIFF

DUVALL—We are authorized to announce Alonzo J. Duvall a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Crittenden county, subject to the action of the Republican party. Election 1905.

So much has been said about the famous order number 78 relative to pensions that the remarks of Judge Taft in a speech a few nights ago on this subject will be of interest to the readers of the RECORD. Judge Taft says:

"The single specification as to pension order No. 78 of the unconstitutional administration of an unconstitutional and tyrannical and imperial President is dwelt upon at some length by Judge Parker in his letter of acceptance, and with more positiveness in respect to that than in respect to any other issue which he touches.

Now, it is said that this order took directly out of the treasury $12,000,000. This is the characteristic exaggeration of a party having no real arguments upon which to proceed in the campaign. The amount of claims presented under this order does not involve the government in an additional expense of more than $90,000 in the first three months after its promulgation, a sum, the smallness of which only serves to confirm and vindicate the justice of the order, because it shows that the presumption which was declared was a just presumption of fact only increased the pension list by the number of those who were entitled to a pension under the act, but had probably been prevented from applying for the one by the burden of making actual proof of physical impairment.

And now Mr. Parker says that he would revoke the order if he has the power, and then would approve a service pension. What service would he approve? Would he approve a service pension less than that granted to the Mexican veteran? Presumably not. It is not to be supposed that he regards participation in the Mexican war as entitling its survivors to any greater benefit to the public treasury than those who fought in the civil war. Such a service pension would involve the government in an expenditure of probably $30,000,000. It is difficult to calculate, but it might increase it to $50,000,000."

It is certainly remarkable that exaggeration runs riot to the extent that it does. The difference between $90,000 and $12,000,000 is so great that we feel at a loss whether to believe anything the Democrats say.

The National Association of Local Fire Underwriters is now in session at St. Louis. This is an important meeting as the local agent for fire insurance companies is the chief factor of the whole system. He represents both assured and company and should be honest, well informed and discreet. Through the wisdom and efforts of the local agent the company succeeds or fails, and the protection of the confiding assured is often entirely within his hands. At this meeting many matters of public importance are being discussed.

He who "fights and runs away, Will live to fight another day" but; He who fights and wins the day Advances faster on his way.

Tuesday, the family of the former Methodist pastor of this city, Rev. T. V. Joiner, left for Russellville, where they will reside during the ensuing year. Rev. Joiner, who had been attending to the work of his new charge at Russellville, preceded his family, leaving here Friday.

We regret that such good people should have to leave our city.

Cupid Busy.

Wednesday night at the Baptist church at Hampton, Miss. Nora Woodmansee and Ernest Nelson, of that place, were united in marriage in the presence of a host of admiring friends, Rev. C. E. Perryman performing the ceremony.

The bride is the attractive and accomplished daughter of Mrs. Jude Woodmansee, who is a member of one of Livingston county's most distinguished families and the groom who belongs to a most prominent family, is the son of J. H. Nelson.

We congratulate this couple—and our best wishes go with them.

The Revival.

The revival at the C. P. church is increasing in interest every night. The services are being conducted by Rev. Jas. F. Price, assisted by Rev. W. T. Oakley who has just closed a revival at Sugar Grove. The attendance is good and up to this writing there has been 12 conversions.

The song services are conducted by Evangelist Wm. Charles.

Rev. Price wishes to thank the various denominations through our columns for their hearty co-operation and is also very thankful for the assistance rendered in the song service.

During the meeting sermons have also been preached by Rev. L. O. Spencer, Rev. J. R. McAfee and Rev. B. F. Jacobs.

Uncle Johnnie James Dead.

The deceased was one of our oldest and best citizens and has many friends who will regret to learn of his death.

Equality of Man the Inspiring Thought of the Ages

By MICHAEL J. JORDAN,
Former President of the Irish Charitable Society.

IT HAS been said that the only reality is an idea. Whether this is true or not, it is safe to say that no reality has more strongly impressed itself upon the minds of reformers in all ages, and, I think, been fraught with more benefit to the human species than this idea of equality, when properly understood.

Doubtless there are many good Americans who believe that this principle, as set out in the declaration of independence, was the first proclamation of the equality of man, that it had never been previously asserted, and that the signers of the declaration were its first political sponsors. It may be noted in passing how few accurately quote the words of the declaration—"all men are created equal," and also that the words of the constitution of Massachusetts, embodying a similar idea, are not the same—"All men are born free and equal."

To understand the meaning of the words it will be necessary to glance at their origin. Herodotus tells us the government of the many has the most beautiful name of all—in Greek, "economy," or equality. Seneca evidently had before him the idea of similarity of rights when he said: "The chief part of equity is equality." But it was from the old Stoic philosophers that the Roman lawyers took the idea and declared: "Omnes homines natura aequales sunt"—all men by nature are equal. This was strictly a principle to be followed in the administration of law. The law should make no distinction between men of any race or clime. The idea was well known in later days in Europe and probably influenced Louis X. of France in the preamble to his decree emancipating the serfs, as may be judged by these strong words: "Whereas, according to natural law, everybody ought to be free." Rousseau, and the French philosophers known as the encyclopedists, for the purpose of rectifying the social and legal status of the great masses of the French people, asserted the equal rights of all men. This is the meaning of equality as contained in the great baptismal vow of the American nation—the declaration of independence.

It does not, of course, mean that all men are created equal in the sense that their taste, color, height and weight are equal. It does not mean that the material wealth of one man should not be greater than that of another. It simply means, as its history clearly implies—for there is no doubt that the idea came to America from the French philosopher to whom I referred—that all men are equal before the law. In the former sense Balzac well says: "Equality may be a beautiful theory; no one yet has seen it an accomplished fact." In the latter sense it is, according to Sir Henry Maine, a principle "which has most thoroughly leavened modern opinion, and which promises to modify most deeply the constitution of societies and the policies of states." In this sense it has made America

A land where girl with friend or foe,
A man may speak the thing he will.

Michael J. Jordan

Incompetent Teachers

By PROF. CAMILLO VON KLENZE,
Of Germany.

The teachers are really charming fellows and it would be a pity to turn them out, but they are essentially bad.

The Americans are trying unsuccessfully to ape German methods. The German boy is trained in the gymnasium and properly fitted to take up university work, while the average American boy is poorly prepared to do university work when he is admitted to the university. Few American boys know what they want to study or why they want to study it when they go to college.

Not so in Germany. There the boy fits himself to take up a certain university work. When the American boy goes to college and the American method of university teaching is applied it fails to work.

The trouble is that the Americans have their college and university methods mixed and few of the teachers know which method to apply or how to apply it.

Comparatively few men of the first intellectual class are going through college. Our students don't know exactly what they are going to college for. They don't know what modern education means. We turn out hundreds of "Ph. D.'s" who take their "Ph. D.'s" simply to get a job. They ask for the doctor's dissertation as they would for a glass of water. Then they plod through it and when it is finished they leave this field for life, if employment in some other field presents itself. Some have done a little work in a little field and are absolutely good for nothing else. They feel a claim to greatness because they have plodded over their doctor's thesis and have been given the hood.

American university teachers do not keep in touch with the trend of things. They bottle themselves up in their specialty and stay there.

Children Should Be Heard

By MRS. M. N. VAN VLIET,
Chicago.

of discipline and development of child nature the adage might well be revised to read: "Children should be heard as well as seen."

Children have their rights in the home as well as father and mother. One of these rights is to be heard. To be constantly suppressing the impulse of the child to give expression to its thoughts retards mental development, prevents the cultivation of the faculty of thinking clearly and speaking concisely and fluently, and destroys that poise and self-reliance and independence of thought which are so essential in the grown man or woman. We cannot expect that the adult is going to possess these desirable qualifications, if for the first 15 years of its life it has known nothing but repression and suppression, and its opinions have been scorned as of no weight or value.

It is just as impolite and shows just as bad breeding to cut off your child in conversation as to cut off your visitor. And you cannot expect that your child will have respect for your conversation and opinions, if you do not show like consideration for its conversation and opinions, when honestly expressed. Let the children be heard!

Why the Public School Teachers Should Organize

By MISS MARGARET A. HALEY,
President of the National Federation of Teachers.

THE public school, as a branch of the public service, is not receiving from the public the moral and financial support it must receive to accomplish its purpose. The teachers throughout the United States are awakening to the realization of this fact through their own sufferings, caused by the following conditions: Greatly increased cost of living, together with the constant demand for higher standards of scholarship and professional attainments and culture which must be met with practically stationary and wholly inadequate salaries; insecurity of tenure of office and no provision for old age; and lastly, lack of recognition of a teacher as an educator, due to the increased tendency towards "factoryizing" education, making the teacher an automaton—a mere factory hand whose duty it is to carry out mechanically and unquestionably the ideas and orders of those clothed with the authority of position who may or may not know the needs of the teacher or how to minister to them. The individuality of the teacher and her power of initiative are thus destroyed and the result is courses of study, regulations and equipment which the teachers not only have had no voice in selecting, but which often have no relation to the children's needs, and which prove a hindrance instead of a help in teaching.

It is necessary that the public understand the effect which teaching under these conditions is having upon the education of the children. This information can be brought to the attention of the public only through the teachers, and the teachers can work effectively only through organization. There are those who think of the welfare of the children and their needs as separate from those of the teachers. They think of any organization for the bettering of the teachers' conditions as something selfish and wholly apart from the interests of the children and the people, if not positively opposed to the latter. While the immediate object of organization may be the bettering of the teachers' conditions, both teachers and public must realize that the ultimate end is the betterment of the service. Any organization of teachers whose object and methods are not in harmony with the best interests of the children and the schools must eventually work its own destruction.

Through intelligent and organized effort to better the conditions of teaching will come better understanding of the relation of the public school to the community. The relation is still too often comprehended by the teachers and public in but one of its respects, the viz., as a means of acquiring facility in the R's. Important as this work is it is merely accidental to the great object of the public school and a means to an end, not an end in itself. A grave responsibility rests on the public school teachers and one which no fear of opposition or misunderstanding excuses them from meeting. It is to organize for the purpose of securing conditions that will make it possible for the public school, as a democratic institution, to perform its proper function in the social organism, which is the preservation and development of the democratic ideal.

Not only must the teachers themselves organize, but to work most effectively for and through the public school they must learn to cooperate with existing organizations in every field whose object is the public good. At no time in our nation's history have the need and opportunity for such cooperation effort been so great. Organization is the recognized method of all intelligent effort to-day.

Don't Tell It All

By AMELIA BINGHAM.

I do not think it wise to tell the whole truth about one's self. The little illusions which hang around us excite a certain curiosity which makes a woman more interesting, and which would be lost were the whole truth known about her. She would not be half as fascinating, half as attractive, were she to tell the whole truth about herself.

Conventionalities force us to tell "white lies." Form and social customs forbid us to speak the truth at all times. For my part, I would always be bluntly honest, always strike out from the shoulder, but I cannot.

How many times the society woman, as well as the actress, acts a lie! How often one is wearied almost beyond endurance, and yet one must hide that weariness and smile and be gay, because one's duty as hostess demands it of us! How often we must simulate a laugh when we would weep, or weep when we could laugh!

The whole world is a stage. Women must act a part, must conceal their real feelings or give offense. One cannot always consider one's self; one must consider the feelings of others, and oftentimes to spare another we must lie.

Aye, and we have more power over our fellow men when we conceal something. When we give just a touch of mystery, just a suspicion that we are keeping something back, we create a curiosity to know more of us, to probe deep enough to solve the riddle of what we are hiding, and we become of greater importance in consequence.

If we told the truth about ourselves, if we were all perfect, then what would be the need of churches and ministerial preachments and exhortations to be good? Besides, I do not think men crave to know the whole truth about a woman. The spice of mystery which something withheld adds to a woman is very seductive to a man, and he puzzles his brain to probe to the bottom of what he feels certain is hidden from him, and while thus mystified he is interested.

Were the woman to tell the whole truth of how absolutely without mystery or past or hidden faults and virtues she is he would turn from her contemptuously and declare: "Le jeu ne vaut pas la chandelle!"

Work of the Physician for the Benefit of the Race

By DR. HENRY O. MARCY.

WE pride ourselves upon the general advancement of the race viewed from both an ethical and moral standpoint. If this is true, why should we require a marked increase in the number of men who serve as the exponents of our laws, as well as the religious teachers who stand for the correctness of our morals?

The definition of a lawyer has been facetiously given as the man who is an expert in non-doing and one who has mastered the science of delay. If this be true, attorneys at law may well make room for each other.

It is also a pertinent inquiry on the part of those who have the well-being of the public close at heart; wherefore the economy of so many rival theological workshops under diversity of name?

It is a fact that the ratio of medical men is also increasing from year to year until now in the United States alone the graduate doctors of medicine number about 125,000. The public is slowly appreciating its relation to the physician from the standpoint of a better scientific knowledge. The average citizen would do well to consider his physician as an engineer—one thoroughly familiar with the human machine and able to differentiate the deviations from normal conditions. In a general way, the surgeon is supposed to be the mechanic devoted to the repair of the organism, while the physician pilots it through its many dangers of surrounding, and teaches the better way of conservatively running the machine.

Within the last two decades we have rewritten surgery, and its triumphs rival the tales of Aladdin. We are now rewriting medicine, and its modern triumphs are none the less astounding. It is a century since Jenner conquered the dire plague of smallpox, which before his time swept pitilessly unrestrained, destroying a large percentage of every generation. The researches of Koch revealed the hidden cause of consumption.

The greatest victory of the Spanish-American war was won by the stamping out of yellow fever from the island of Cuba. Surgeon Reed was at once its hero and its victim. At the recent meeting of the American medical association in Atlantic City, in the short space of 30 minutes, the members present contributed over $7,500 toward a memorial for the dead hero. The last epidemic of yellow fever in the United States is said to have cost the country within a few months over $60,000,000, besides its hcatombs of victims and life-long sorrows.

The professions to-day are the custodians of a knowledge sufficient, if properly applied, to increase the longevity of the race by a third, lessen by one-half its suffering and double its productive capacity. It is a trite saying that "one-half of the world does the work for the other half." Every profession has its members in considerable percent, who add little to its service. This is true in medicine. There will and ought to be varying degrees of success dependent in great measure upon the personal equation. In my entire experience, however, I have rarely, if ever, met a physician who has failed to win a useful station in life, where it was not possible to attribute the same in large measure to defective equipment or lack of mental or moral rectitude.

Dr. H. O. Marcy

The Virtue of Quiet

By PROF. FREDERICK ALLISON TUPPER

So much emphasis has been laid on the "strenuous life" that the average citizen is sometimes likely to forget the claims of the quiet life.

In the opinion of many, strenuousness is the last quality of which Americans stand in need. Modern life, with its soulless competition, its incessant grind for the many, and its apparent ennui for the dishonorably rich, offers problems which appear to defy solution.

In marked contrast with the noise of the city streets, a composite fanfare of electric cars, automobiles, carts, hurdy-gurdies, brass bands, talking machines, fakirs and fire engines, is the quiet seaport miles and miles away fortunately untouched by the bedlamitish pandemonium of a modern city.

The lives of our ancestors were strong, because they were simple. Modern life is complex, and its complexity is its weakness. It is no uncommon thing to hear of early breaking down and untimely death, and what is a common cause of such unhappy results? Whatever the diagnosis may be, the fact remains that the monotonous, incessant grinding of lives filled with anxiety and undue toil, unrelieved by rational amusements, congenial company, or change of scene, leads by a straight road to real nervous prostration and untimely death.

My mind reverts with pleasure to a distant town where business was transacted in the good old-fashioned way. Stores were closed early and often. Proprietors regularly closed their stores when they went home to dinner, and on their return found customers contentedly waiting on the steps. Yet the average of prosperity in that town was singularly high, and happiness seemed to be a natural product of the region. Happy place where no sacred lives are crushed out by the rattling electric car, or the lawless speed of heartless but flamboyant automobilists!

Frederick Allison Tupper

The Used Talent

By REV. WALTER H. NUGENT,
Of the Episcopal Church.

There are a great many people who are always longing for the talents of eminent people that they may serve God on a large scale. They want to be a Luther or a Paul and have the same chance for service. But all the time they are neglecting to use the talent or talents that they do possess. What a lot of wasted talents!

All great work is done by serving God with what we have in hand. What is that in thine hand, Moses? A rod. With this thou shalt save Israel. And Moses did so. What is that in thine hand, disciple? Only some loaves and fishes. Give them to God and the multitude is fed. What is that in thine hand, Dorcas? A needle. Use it for God, and those clothes are covering the naked still.

What is that in thine hand, Samson? Only the jaw bone of an ass. Use it for God and 1,000 Philistines are slain.

Illustrations are without number. This is God's way of working. God never asks us to serve Him with what we have not, but with what we have. Are you a millionaire, a gentleman of leisure, a manufacturer, a poor working man, have you a college education, or have you never had the privilege of an education? Have you only one talent in your hand? Do not bury it. Use it for God. Do the best with what you have. What wonders may not God work with man's best.

THE SUNDAY BIBLE SCHOOL

Lesson in the International Series for October 23, 1904—"Elisha and Naaman."

(Prepared by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.)

(Copyright, 1904, by J. M. Edson.)

LESSON TEXT.

(II. Kings 5:1-14; Memory verses, 10-14.)

1. Now Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, was a great man with his master, and honorable, because by him the Lord had given deliverance unto Syria; he was also a mighty man in valor, but he was a leper.

2. And the Syrians had gone out by companies, and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid; and she waited on Naaman's wife.

3. And she said unto her mistress: Would God my lord were with the prophet that is in Samaria! for he would recover him of his leprosy.

4. And one went in and told his lord, saying: Thus and thus said the maid that is of the land of Israel.

5. And the king of Syria said: Go to, go, and I will send a letter unto the king of Israel. And he departed and took with him ten talents of silver, and six thousand pieces of gold, and ten changes of raiment.

6. And he brought the letter to the king of Israel, saying: Now, when this letter is come unto thee, behold I have therewith sent Naaman my servant to thee, that thou mayest recover him of his leprosy.

7. And it came to pass, when the king of Israel had read the letter, that he rent his clothes, and said: Am I God, to kill and to make alive, that this man doth send unto me to recover a man of his leprosy? Wherefore consider, I pray you, and see how he seeketh a quarrel against me.

8. And it was so, when Elisha the man of God had heard that the king of Israel had rent his clothes, that he sent to the king, saying: Wherefore hast thou rent thy clothes? Let him come now to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel.

9. So Naaman came with his horses and with his chariot, and stood at the door of the house of Elisha.

10. And Elisha sent a messenger unto him, saying: Go and wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean.

11. But Naaman was wroth, and went away, and said: Behold, I thought, he would surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the Lord his God, and strike his hand over the place, and recover the leper.

12. And not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? May I not wash in them, and be clean? So he turned and went away in a rage.

13. And his servants came near, and spake unto him, and said: My father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? How much rather then, when he saith unto thee: Wash, and be clean?

14. Then went he down, and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God; and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean.

SCRIPTURAL SECTION.—All of Chapter 5.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved."—Jer. 17:14.

TIME.—In about the eighth year of Jehoram, king of Israel.

PLACE.—Damascus, Samaria, and Jordan, about 25 miles from Samaria.

Story of Salvation Illustrated.

A Hopeless Case (V. 1).—A great general—A king's favorite—A distinguished man—An honorable man—A man of valor—BUT A LEPER.

All the power, all the distinction, all the honor, all the success which the world may give to man cannot cover up that little word of three letters—BUT.

Naaman had everything the world could give—but he was a leper. There is a BUT that stands between every soul and peace of mind and true happiness. No matter what this world may say of a soul, God has to add, But he is a sinner. The case is hopeless.

The Glad Tidings (Vs. 2-4).—There was another, BUT a bright one, which had to be reckoned with in Naaman's life. Naaman was a leper, BUT there was a Hebrew maid in his household that knew God and God's power to save. Man is a sinner, Rom. 3:23; 1 John 1:8; BUT Jesus has come ready to cleanse and mighty to save. 1 John 1:9; Heb. 7:25.

A Humble Messenger—"Captive out of Israel . . . a little maid"—God is pleased to use very humble means sometimes. She was only a little Hebrew slave, but she had a message. It was (1) A simple message. She knew the true God. She knew of His servant Elisha, and these two thoughts were the theme of her message. (2) A positive message. "He would recover him of his leprosy." There were no ifs, ands or buts about it. The simple, positive Gospel message is the most powerful.

The Quest for Help (Vs. 5-9).—Naaman went with (1) Credentials from the King, (2) Great treasure. But Naaman had to learn that God's favor could not be bought. There is nothing the soul can do to merit God's saving grace. Isa. 64:6.

Conditions of Deliverance (V. 10).—So simple. Seven dips in Jordan and then healing. The way of salvation is so simple, so easy, so sure. Repentance for sin, Faith in Christ as Saviour. That Naaman had arranged in his own mind just how he was to be healed is evident from verse 11. How common is this mistake.

The Peril of Pride (Vs. 11-12).—"Naaman was wroth and went away." Ah, how many souls quarrel with God because pride bars their way to salvation. "God is no respecter of persons." We must all come as needy, helpless sinners, or not at all.

The Deliverance (Vs. 13-14).—Thank God there were wise servants in Naaman's retinue to advise him. Thank God Naaman had sense enough to listen and courage enough to heed. Naaman obeyed the prophet's orders and was cleansed. And when man is ready to obey God, deliverance always comes.

Religious Thought.

Intolerance is a virtue when it opposes vice.

The passion of Christ is the power of Christianity.

Christ Jesus went out of His way to save the world and the world must go out of its way to save others.

He who is afraid of doing too much for his neighbor will never worry over his neighbor doing too much for him.

When religion turns shylock and demands its pound of flesh there will always be some gentle Portia to defeat its arse.—United Presbyterian.
