KILLED AT MINES.

The marriage of W. A. Adams and Miss Mary E. Witter.

A LAMENTABLE ACCIDENT.

On October 17th, 1896, a mine explosion occurred at the W. A. Adams colliery, and caused the death of three of the miners. The accident occurred at 9 o'clock in the morning, and the victims of the explosion were W. A. Adams, W. H. Witter, and R. M. Miller. The body of the latter, who was a mechanic, was found near the mouth of the shaft, while the bodies of the other two were found in the mine. The cause of the explosion is not known, but it is believed to have been due to a spark from a lamp or a spark from a piece of coal.

The bodies of the victims were taken to the morgue, and an inquest was held. The coroner ordered an exhumation to be made, and the bodies were removed to the morgue.

The victims were all experienced miners, and were well known to the community. They were respected by all who knew them, and their death is a great loss to the mining community.

J. C. SPEIGHT.

SPEIGHT HERE SATURDAY IN A HOUSE FULL OF FRIENDS.

Saturday evening Mr. J. C. Speight arrived in this city from New York. He was welcomed by a large number of friends, who met him at the hotel.

The following day Mr. Speight was entertained by a number of friends, and a large number of people called on him.

A RACE HORSE.

A young colt was killed in the stable at the home of Mr. W. A. Adams.

The colt was a bay, and was about three years old. It was owned by Mr. W. A. Adams, who was called out to the stable to see it. The colt was killed by a horse that was in the stable, and the owner is very much grieved.

REILLY REPLIES TO JEFFERSONIAN

REUNION GIVES WHY BRISTOL RAILROAD Is NOT SUPPORTED.

To the Editor of the New Hampshire Farmer:

I have read what "Jeffersonian" said about my railroad, and while I had no idea that I should have to write in answer to such misrepresentations, I feel that I must do so because I have been asked to. In several places I find that some peoplé have the idea that the railroad would have no usefulness if I would not continue to support it. I am sure this is not true. The railroad has been constructed with the most careful and proper preparations for the very purpose of being useful. It has been a matter of great importance to the country, and I am sure that it will be of great advantage to the people.

There has been a great deal of talk about the proposed railroad from Bristol to New Hampshire, and many have said that it is the "silly system," but I do not think so. The railroad is a great improvement for the people, and will be of great benefit to the country.

I am glad to see that the railroad is becoming more and more popular in New Hampshire, and I hope that it will continue to be supported.

Respectfully,

JAMES J. REILLY.

IN KANSAS.

Through "Cautious Settlement" Our Roads Are Safe and Wide.

Philip A. Boyd.

Highland, Ks., Oct. 16, 1860.

Friend Brown—We are here again, after escaping the state of Kansas, and all the railroad men who rode the outlaws of the Territories Kansas may, with a certain measure of safety, return to their homes. We had some close calls during these few hours, but we shall endeavor to show them that the "Cautious Settlement" in Kansas is safe, and the roads are wide, clear, and sheltered.

The "Cautious Settlement" is a small town situated in a part of Kansas that is not very well known. It is a quiet place, and the people are peaceful and contented. The town is located on the route of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe Railroad, and is the nearest station to the military post.

The railroad men are all safe, and they are not afraid to go back to their homes. They have nothing to fear, and they will return to their families without any danger.

In closing, let me say that the railroad men are all safe, and they are not afraid to go back to their homes. They have nothing to fear, and they will return to their families without any danger.

The Queendom

Whoa, Caesar! Here's the news of the day:

GERMAN OELDEL

Women of Ditty and Blue Rivers

What You Hear and What You See.

A remarkable story by one of the well-known women of this city, says the Kansas City Star.

In one of the counties of Western Kansas is a community known as "Ditty and Blue Rivers." It is a charming woman of about 50 years, recently began to have her first love, a large pug dog, with which she was very fond. A local physician examined the woman and reported that she was in the infirmities of age, and that he was unlikely to recover. However, the husband took his wife to visit a friend for a short visit, and to see a physician. In the course of the examination the physician held up a candle and asked her if she saw it. The woman replied, "No." "Then," exclaimed the physician, "you are blind," and he ordered her to see a man who he knew. When she looked at him she said, "Yes, I can see two of them."

"Why, certainly, dear!" was the reply. "But which man are you looking at in a few moments."

"Oh, certainly, dear!" was the answer. "I can see two of them."

"Well, in that case, what is the matter with you?"

"The matter is," said the physician, "that you have two right eyes, and that is the key to the puzzle."

The story is told in earnest and through investment she began to make in the business.

TRAMWAY TOBACCO

This meant by the custom in England means to a journey.

What became of the contraband tobacco after the war? The early work was easy. The girl's hands were so small and yet she was so little that she could hold her daughter into her bosom. She was fully natured and filled for the grains of responsibility married life. The early work was easy. What was he doing? He was going to the tobacco in different shops in the town.
