

The Crittenden Record.

VOLUME 1.

MARION, CRITTENDEN COUNTY, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1904.

NUMBER 24.

CHRONICLES

Of the Commercial Club Prepared by Chairman of Press Committee.

Tuesday evening last the first regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the club was held in the office of Dr. Frazer. After transacting the regular business, including the necessary arrangements for the first annual banquet to be given under the auspices of the club on New Year's Eve, the meeting adjourned, and the officers and directors, together with several of the club members went as a body before the City Council. Two propositions were submitted to the Mayor and Council, by Messrs. C. S. Nunn and Dr. Frazer, who were delegated as spokesmen for the club.

Mr. Nunn requested an appropriation by the council of a sufficient sum for the purpose of employing a competent engineer to draft plans and specification for a waterworks system. Mr. Nunn submitted to the members of the Council a comprehensive plan for raising the necessary funds for establishing waterworks for Marion, and also expressed the intentions of the club to assist in making a sale of the franchise for at least enough to reimburse the city's treasury for the amount expended in employing an engineer. The appropriation was readily granted by the Council, upon the terms of the club's request, and Councilmen T. J. Yandell and R. F. Haynes were named by the Mayor as a committee to confer and act with the club's committee composed of Messrs. C. S. Nunn, J. M. Freeman and Jas. E. Chittenden, in securing the desired services. The plan of the club to raise the necessary funds will be made public in a later issue of the Record.

Dr. Frazer asked the Mayor and his councilmen to act with the club in securing some means of safeguarding the railroad crossings at the important points within the city limits. The club's sentiments were ably presented by Dr. Frazer and the Mayor named Levi Cook, Louis Clifton and Wm. H. Copher, members of the Council, to act in conjunction with the club's committee in securing a meeting with railway officials. President Cochran, of the Commercial Club, named C. S. Nunn, Dr. T. A. Frazer and C. H. Whitehouse as his committee.

The club's directory has several other important matters in hand, all of which will be reported and fully discussed at the regular meeting of the club, which will be held in the post office building hall on Tuesday evening of next week at 7 o'clock. It is also hoped by that time to have the constitution and by-laws ready for delivery to the members of the club. The membership cards are being distributed to those who have paid their fee and dues.

It is impossible in these articles to keep pace with the rapid forward movement and progress of the club and the full membership should be in attendance at our next meeting.

C. H. WHITEHOUSE,
Chairman Press Com.

Commercial Club Banquet.

The first annual banquet of the C. C. C. C. will be held at Marion December 31st, 1904.

The members of the club are working earnestly to make this banquet a memorable occasion, not only for the club, but in a larger sense for the city of Marion itself and the community at large.

Invitations will be extended to prominent people throughout the county and state.

Addresses will be made and papers read by men identified with the business and social development of our city and county, with the view of calling attention to the wonderful progress already made, and the still more wonderful possibilities awaiting only the two great forces, capital and labor, to become realities.

The banquet will undoubtedly mark an epoch in the history of this district, and the Commercial Club should have the co-operation of all patriotic and progressive citizens.

Notice.

The Commercial Club's first regular meeting will be on Tuesday, December 27, 7 o'clock p. m., at the post office building hall. A full attendance of the members is requested, as important business will come up for discussion and action of the club members.

T. H. COCHRAN, Pres.

Some Business Changes.

J. M. McChesney, the Salem street groceryman, will occupy the Hearin stand on Main street after January 1st.

Having been unable to secure another stand, Messrs. Hearin & Son will remove their groceries to a ware room in the rear of their present stand, where they will remain until they can secure a better stand.

Cochran & Pickens have rented the store now occupied by J. M. McChesney, which is only separated from their present store by a partition wall. A large arch door will be cut in this wall, throwing the two stores into one, which will all be filled with a stock in keeping with their trade.

Pickens & Cavender will not occupy their new stand by the Masonic building until after Christmas.

Ed Metz is back at his old stand, having purchased the Booth interest of the Booth & Wooldridge barber shop. Messrs. Wooldridge and Metz have employed Eugene Sedberry, of Smithland, and will continue to run three chairs.

AWFUL PENALTIES

For Telling Secrets of Mormons—Oath Taken.

Washington, Dec. 21.—Among five new witnesses examined by the senate committee on privileges and elections in the investigation of protests against Senator Reed Smoot retaining his seat in the senate. The first witness described the obligations taken by persons who pass through the endowment house and declared that every one agrees to submit to mutilation of the person if he or she reveals what takes place during the ceremony.

J. H. Wallis, Sr., one of the witnesses, described the penalties prescribed for revealing what occurs in the endowment house as follows:

"That the throat be cut from ear to ear and the tongue be torn off.

"That the breast be cut asunder and the heart and vitals be torn from the body.

"That if demanded we will give all we possess to the support of the church.

"The next obligation was one of chastity, in which the obligator agreed not to cohabit with any person not given him or her by the priests.

"Another obligation was one that we would never cease to importune high heaven to avenge the blood of the prophets upon the nations of the earth. I don't just remember which," said the witness.

"This was followed by a quotation from the scriptures, I think, Revelations, vi., 9, 'The souls of those slain cried aloud on the altars for vengeance.'"

ALBERT H. TRAVIS

Asks for Re-election to the Office of Jailor of This County.

A time-tried and fire-tested candidate in the person of Albert H. Travis elsewhere in these columns announces that he is a candidate for re-election to the office of jailor. His claims are, of course, subject to the action of the Republican party, and THE RECORD speaks for him careful consideration.

Mr. Travis is a married man and is 38 years of age. He is a native of Crittenden county and a life-long Republican. His father, J. Harvey Travis, is a very old resident, being nearly 90 years of age, and, like nearly all of the Travis family, has been a Republican all of his life.

Mr. Travis has made the county a splendid official, and should he be re-elected he would try to surpass, if possible, his present record as a fearless and faithful custodian of the county jail.

JOE CHANDLER

Announces as a Candidate For the Office of Assessor.

THE CRITTENDEN RECORD takes pleasure in announcing to its many readers the candidacy of Mr. Joseph Logan Chandler for the endorsement of the Republican party for the office of assessor of this good county of Crittenden. You will find in another place in these columns his formal announcement and at the hands of Republicans generally we speak for him kind consideration.

Mr. Chandler is from Piney precinct, in fact, a native of that precinct, and has always been a Republican. He never held an office, but has been deputy assessor under the present incumbent.

Joe Chandler is well liked everywhere, being a first class, tip top man in every respect, and should the Republican party in its wisdom see fit to give him the nomination he will be found at his post of duty and will win out in the final race. He is a married man and is forty-one years of age.

E. J. Hayward's New Residence.

The new residence for Mr. Hayward is a type of colonial built in buff brick, white mortar and stone trimmings. The roof is of black slate. The cornices and corners are finished in stone effects and are sufficiently large to break the lines of the roof in a pleasing manner. The porches are all of stone with stone steps and buttresses with artificial stone steps. The columns to porches are also of solid stone.

The entrances to residence are protected by porches giving access at front and sides through vestibules entered direct into front and side halls. The rear entrance is through a vestibule into kitchen. The entrance to cellar is from the outside and also from the side hall.

The entire basement is excavated with artificial stone floors, divided into store rooms, fuel room, boiler room and laundry. The basement floors are drained to cross pools giving perfect drainage to house and also connect to servant's toilet room in basement.

The main hall or reception room is 14x35 feet, located in the center of the building and forms a large sitting room as well as giving access to stairs, side hall, parlors, library, dining room and breakfast room.

The library is on the left of hall as you enter and occupies the front part of the house being 15x19 feet in the clear with connecting sliding doors into hall and reception hall.

The parlor is 15x15 on the opposite side of the reception hall, finished off in white with gold trimmings, also connected with reception hall by sliding doors.

The dining room is at the rear of reception hall on the left and is 17x19 feet circular at one side, forming a bay window, connections through sliding doors into side hall. The combination of rooms allow an opportunity of throwing the parlor, reception hall, side hall, library and dining room into one large room for reception purposes.

The kitchen arrangements are perfected by having access to the main part of the house through a side hall having connection with dining room through a large butler's pantry.

There are two stairs, one at rear of reception hall starting 25 feet from front door and extending up to a large platform landing in the open corridor on second floor. The rear stairs start in a side hall and extend to attic, passing up in an enclosed hall.

The second floor has five large bed rooms, bath room, linen closet and den and all can be reached directly from the large corridor. The attic is one large room plastered and floored, making a large playroom with light and ventilation from four sides.

The building is finished in quartered oak, natural finish and is heated by a system of hot water.

Mr. Hayward has taken extreme pains with his sewerage and water system including a fire pressure system in case of necessity. As a whole the building is considered by Harris & Shopbell, the architects, of Evansville, Indiana, as the best of all their latest residences.

Resolutions of Respect.

Following is a copy of resolutions passed by the quarterly conference at the Shady Grove circuit of the Methodist church:

Whereas God in his mysterious providence has removed from us our brother, R. W. Wood, who was a member of this quarterly conference, therefore

RESOLVED, that we bow in submission to His will, not questioning His wisdom and justice.

RESOLVED, that we tender our sympathy and condolence to the bereaved family and pray God's blessings on them in this hour of need.

RESOLVED, that a copy of these resolutions be given the family and a copy spread on the minutes of this quarterly conference.

Christmas gift!

We wish you a happy New Year.

The Sheriff of Trigg county has resigned to look after his farming interests.

The Kentuckian reports that all Christian county small pox cases are cured.

What would be nicer for a Christmas gift to some absent friend than a year's subscription to the Record?

The Earlinton Bee issued a Christmas number last week containing a beautiful colored supplement, and the many ads it contained to speak an enterprising community.

The official report of the Directors of Concessions and Admissions of the World's Fair shows that the total number of recorded admissions was 19,694,855. Of these, 12,804,616 were paid and 6,890,239 were free.

There is more talk of a special session of the Assembly to authorize the selection of a new site for the new State Capitol. The session ought to be called, but of course there are political maneuvers to be considered.

One of the best Republican weeklies in Kentucky is THE CRITTENDEN RECORD, published at Marion by Mr. James E. Chittenden. THE RECORD, neat in dress and newsy in make-up, is bright and forcible, without the slightest tinge of partisan narrowness editorially.—Louisville Herald.

An investigation has disclosed the fact that the package of securities belonging to Mrs. Chadwick has a face value of $5,000,000 and an actual value of not one cent. The friends of the Kentucky museum should secure it for purposes of a joint exhibit with the original of the Hon. Urey Woodson's ante-election forecast.—Louisville Times.

Representative Ollie M. James says he proposes to urge the passage of his bill to compel the Governor of a state to surrender a fugitive from justice on the requisition of the Governor of any other state. The bill is now with the Judiciary Committee and the Kentucky member will try to secure a favorable report. The bill was introduced to cover the case of W. S. Taylor. Its chance for passage is remote.

The information has been given out that Congressman Stanley will introduce a bill requiring that exporters of leaf tobacco, stem it here before shipping. Now, let us consider this proposition.

First, that the labor of stemming tobacco might be saved to England Lord Chamberlain succeeded in having that government exact a budget imposing an additional duty of six cents per pound on strips. This produced the desired result practically eliminating the exportation of strips. This being the reason that buyers did not stem tobacco last season and also the reason it is not being handled in stemmeries this season.

Second, if the exporters are forced to stem tobacco before shipping the payment of this additional duty is inevitable and the enactment of such a measure would have a tendency to reduce the purchase price of tobacco, Mr. Stanley would in this way try to combat the Chamberlain idea in England. He would exact a law to save one cent per lb. on tobacco to American labor and lose five cents net to England and would offset what the tobacco growers would hope to gain by the removal of revenue tax on leaf.

The thing for Mr. Stanley, James and all other Congressmen and Senators from the tobacco districts to do is to roll up their sleeves and fight for the passage of the measure that reached the Senate during the previous session. This measure affords the only immediate relief. The removal of revenue tax on leaf tobacco will broaden the market and create a competition that will enable growers to obtain better prices.

NO PAPER NEXT WEEK.

There will be no issue of THE RECORD next week on account of the holidays. The office force wish to spend the holidays at their various homes and likewise the editor will spend the week with his parents in Livingston county where luscious pumpkin pies are awaiting him.

Teachers' Training Class

BY REV. JAS. F. PRICE

If you will only read your "Daily Readings" carefully, meditate upon them, endeavor to fix the topic in your mind and associate the matter of the "Daily Readings" with the topics, in six month's time you could have the principal facts and events in the life of Christ firmly planted in your mind. A daily review of the topics you have read will help you very much to keep them in mind. It is to learn only one new topic a day. Certainly we ought to do that.

DAILY READINGS.

Wed., Dec. 21—Presentation in the temple; Luke 2:22-38.

Thu., Dec. 22—Return to Bethlehem (unrecorded). Visit of the wise men; Matt. 2:1-12.

Mon. Dec. 26—Childhood life at Nazareth; Luke 2:40.

Tues., Dec. 27—First visit to Jerusalem; Luke 2:41-56.

TOPICS FOR STUDY

1. The ceremony of presentation in the temple and what it signified.

2. Glimpses of the "remnant" of Israel. See Isa. 1:9; 11:11; Joel 2:32; Hag. 1:12.

3. Look up Luke 2:32. See how many times the expression has been used and by whom?

4. The magi or wise men.

5. The star in the east.

6. Significance of their visit.

7. The fulfillment of prophecies in this week's readings, and the two-fold nature of some of these prophecies.

8. Change of government in Palestine.

10. The training of Jewish children.

11. Poetic elements in this week's readings.

District Sunday School Convention.

The Fifth District Sunday School Convention was held at Weston on the 14th of December, which closed the conventional work for the year 1904.

The convention was called to order by the county president and after a song was sung, prayer was led by Bro. W. T. Oakley. A number of the speakers on the program were not present but with the use of Bro. G. P. Wilson and others the programme was carried out.

To say the convention was a good one would fail to give justice to the occasion. We shall not forget the hospitality and spirituality of the people of Weston. The attendance was good notwithstanding the afternoon was cold. And how we enjoyed the good dinner!

The music conducted by Miss Lula Hughes was good.

We want to say that we made no mistake in the election of Bro. J. W. Gahagan, the district president and Miss Lula Hughes as secretary.

Bro. L. B. Cane, superintendent, Miss Kittie Hill, assistant, and Mrs. Annie Heath, secretary, will make a Sunday school team that will stand the winter though it is stormy.

We went to Weston owing a balance of three dollars and five cents on the apportionment. At the suggestion of Uncle George Wilson the debt was paid and would have been paid had it been a much larger amount.

Then we adjourned with a general shout such as has never been known in a Sunday school convention. Yours for the cause,

R. M. FRANKS.

The people of Crittenden county have by their action rendered judgment that the American Field Fence is the best fence on the market. Our reason for making this statement is that they have bought more than twice as much of this fence as they have of all other fences combined. Mere assertions and empty guarantees mean but little to the average up-to-date Crittenden county farmer. He takes the goods and bases his judgment upon their merits alone. We are now selling our sixth carload for this year. Remember we keep a large supply on hand constantly.

Williams-Wilborn.

Wednesday at the home of the bride at Ford's Ferry, Miss Lila Wilborn and Frank Williams were united in marriage. The bride is the attractive and accomplished daughter of W. B. Wilborn. She is a graduate of the Marion Graded School and is well known here and elsewhere and has hundreds of friends. The groom is a hustling young farmer of the Hebron vicinity and is the son of Thos. E. Williams.

In connection with this wedding, two very unusual coincidents occurred. Rev. J. S. Henry, of this city, officiated at the wedding of the son whose father he had pronounced married 23 years ago, and J. L. Rankin, of this city, who helped this groom get his license, likewise helped the young man's father 23 years ago.

The Choral Club.

An effort has been made on the part of the music loving people of Marion to secure the services of Prof. Harry E. Von Tubel, of Henderson, to come to this place and take charge of a "Choral Club." Every person that can sing, or that will try to sing, is asked to join this club and get the benefit of a fine training in music. The club will meet only one night every other week for the present. The Cumberland Presbyterian church has been offered to this club, and same will be accepted. Those working for the interest of the club desire to say to those who have promised to join that they want to have a meeting some time during next week to organize and get matters all adjusted before the first coming of Prof. Von Tubel. A further notice will be given them as to when and where they are desired to meet. This is something that should be of much interest to the church choir, especially, as it gives training that all need. The expense of two nights per month will not exceed $ 00 for each person. If a large number will join, this sum can be greatly reduced. Those desiring further information about this can obtain same by calling on Mrs. T. H. Cochran and Miss Nellie Walker. They will be glad to enter your name on the list.

Bits of By-Play.

Last week Dick Miles, who resides on the Phoenix Barnett place near Hardisty, killed a hog that weighed 635 pounds. He states that he offers a challenge to his fellow countryman to produce a porker that will surpass this one in size. And Lucian Miles—we all know—is residing at this place. He has been eating stewed ribs and backbone pie ever since this hog was killed, and our informant says that "Uncle Lucian" is a sight to behold, that the grease is dropping off his chin like water from an icicle on a warm day.

Col. Bud Dale, of the New Richmond hotel, has a small pencil sketch of an alleged robbery perpetrated on Judge J. P. Pierce, of Marion, Ky., by Col. Dale, Mr. Young Taylor and Mr. J. C. Cooper in the New Richmond hotel. Col. Dale had the picture framed in a fine frame and has it hanging in his hotel. Judge Pierce during a rush at the hotel got Mr. Taylor's hat by mistake and a bogus charge of petty larceny was lodged against him. He left the city before the bogus warrant could be gotten up and on his return a few days ago several policemen, secured for the occasion, rushed into the writing room and arrested him. The hotel manager and his companions then held a kangaroo court and fined Judge Pierce a jug of sorghum molasses which he sent to Paducah yesterday with the picture of the highway robbery. The picture shows Col. Dale and his two companions forcibly taking the molasses away from the judge.—Paducah Sun.

The cartoon referred to was made by Jas. Travis, of this city, a friend of the Judge's.

Guss-Wheeler.

Wednesday Miss Myrtle Wheeler and Luther Guss were united in marriage by Elder J. L. Paris at his home near the city.

The bride is the accomplished daughter of Henry Wheeler who resides on East Depot Street and the groom is the son of Isaac Guss, one of the county's best citizens.

To this happy couple we extend our congratulations.

THE Christmas tree goes so far back into the night of time that it is quite impossible to tell where or by whom it was first introduced. Almost every country has its legend claiming for its own the tree which bears such generous fruit. In Scandinavia it is said to have sprung from the "service tree," which germinated from soil soaked by the blood of two unfortunate lovers, a claim substantiated by the statement that at Christmastide inextinguishable lights gleamed from its green branches. In a French romance of the thirteenth century a great tree is described whose branches are covered with burning candles and on whose top is the vision of a child with a halo round its head, the tree and candles representing mankind and the child the infant Saviour.

A beautiful German story credits St. Winfred with giving the Christmas tree to the world. The story is illustrative of the gospel supplanting paganism. Before a group of converts St. Winfred felled a great oak which had been an object of the worship of the Druids. A fine young fir tree immediately appeared in its place, on seeing which St. Winfred said: "This little tree, a young child of the forest, shall be your holy tree tonight. It is the wood of peace, for your houses are built of fir. It is the sign of an endless life, for its leaves are ever green. See how it points upward to heaven. Let it be called the tree of the Christ Child. Gather about it, not in the wild-wood, but in your homes. There it will shelter no deeds of blood, but loving gifts."

Many Germans hold that Martin Luther first conceived the Christmas tree. One of the most popular of German engravings represents him sitting in the bosom of his family, with a lighted Christmas tree on the table before him. Luther was traveling alone one Christmas eve. The snow covered country and the trees gleaming at every point with the reflected light of the winter moon made upon the great reformer the deepest impression. Going home, he went into the garden and, cutting a little fir tree, brought it into the nursery, put some candles on its branches and lighted them to reproduce the effect of the beautiful moonlit trees in the forest.

Antiquarians connect the Christmas tree with the great tree Yggdrasil of Norse mythology or with the pine trees of the Roman saturnalia, the pagan forerunner of our Christmas. Others look to the ancient Egyptians as originators of the idea. These men were wont to decorate their houses at the time of the winter solstice with branches of the date palm, emblems of immortality and of the starlit firmament. In medieval times there was a tradition that hellfire invested an illuminated tree. Candles were used by the Jews in their Feast of Lights, which was celebrated at this season. The Greeks also call Christmas the Feast of Lights.

The Romans in their saturnalia decorated trees with images of Roman gods as well as with candles and burned Yule logs in honor of these gods. The early Christians, however, frowned upon all such pagan adjuncts to the Christmas celebration. With them the Feast of the Nativity was the extreme of solemnity, and they were as much opposed to Christmas trees and lights, music and laughter, as were the Puritans.

The first authentic account of the Christmas tree is not recorded until the sixteenth century. It appears in a German manuscript, and, as the Germans responded least to Latin influences of all the nations which fell heir to the Roman empire's lands, to them rather than to the Romans must be ascribed the honor of introducing it. It was the marriage of Queen Victoria to a German prince which brought the modern Christmas tree to England, and a German immigrant started the custom in America. The first Christmas tree in France was lighted in the Tuilleries in 1840 by the Duchess Helena.

To view the great heaps of Christmas trees which line the market streets of our big cities just before the holidays one would fancy that scarcely a tree could be left standing of the murmuring hemlocks which constituted Longfellow's forest primeval. Every hard timber state in the Union is called upon by Santa Claus for its tribute of redolent balsam that he may have plenty of places on which to hang his presents.

There is only one true Christmas tree—the balsam fir. The hemlock proper has branches too drooping and flexible to hold a great weight of Christmas gifts, and the spruce, while otherwise suitable, lacks the spicy odor of the balsam. This is fortunate, for the tree most prized for Christmas purposes is utterly despised by the lumbermen. Before the Christmas tree industry began the fir lands of Maine were actually exempted from taxation as worthless. Now they are worth from $10 to $15 an acre.

The Christmas tree cutters begin work early, usually about the middle of October. While some of the men are cutting others follow them and drag the trees to the nearest open space, where they are bunched and tied so that they will not come apart in shipping. At the nearest depot they are loaded on cars, 2,500 trees to the car.

The men receive $1.50 a day and board. It takes seven men working five weeks to get out three carloads. The Christmas tree output depends a good deal on the weather. With an open fall, when the trees are easy to get at, the crop will be much larger than when the snow falls early and heavily. If the snow melts and then freezes on the branches it makes them brittle, and they break in transit.

A TARTAR TRICKSTER.

The Way He Tried to Sell a Valise to a Foreigner.

At the annual fair in Nijni Novgorod I stepped with a German-Russian friend into a saddlery, where he wished to purchase a valise. He picked out one for which the Tartar merchant named a price that was evidently much in excess of its real value. My friend was making the usual feint under such circumstances of hawking the store when he noticed that the dealer, with a rapid movement, stuck a paper in the outside pocket of his valise. Not being a greenhorn in Russia, he knew immediately what the Tartar was up to.

"But, barin," said the latter, calling him back, "come. Look at the leather and the lining, silk all through. Please examine it carefully." He handed the valise again to my friend and turned back to his stock, apparently looking for other satchels to show. With a sly wink my friend extracted a ten ruble note from the outer pocket of the valise and hid it in his hand. Then he said: "Don't trouble yourself any longer. This valise seems to be what you say it is, and I will take it."

The Tartar grinned broadly as he turned around, satisfied that his little trick had succeeded. Then while my friend pretended to count out the purchase price he took hold once more of the valise in order accidentally to discover the bank note in it. I shall never forget his eyes, which bulged out of their sockets, or the petrified smile on his face when he found his money gone. He was so bewildered that he stammered like a drunken man.

"The fellow really ought to get a lesson," my friend said to me in German, while he kept the trickster in suspense for several minutes before handing him back the bank note. Together with the valise, which the dealer now offered for less than half of what he had demanded before.—Sigmund Kraus in Booklovers' Magazine.

Size of the British Empire.

The British empire occupies about one-fifth of the surface of the habitable globe and consists of the United Kingdom, with its attendant islands, and about forty-three dependencies under separate and independent governments varying in size from Canada, which is thirty times the size of the United Kingdom, to Gibraltar, the area of which is two square miles. Thus the area of the British empire is ninety-eight times that of the United Kingdom, while the area of the self-governing colonies alone is nearly sixty times as large as that of the mother country.—London Globe.

Books.

Of the things that make for happiness the love of books comes first. * * * A book, unlike any other friend, will wait not only upon the hour, but upon the mood. It asks nothing and gives much when one comes in the right way. * * * Is your world a small one, made unendurable by a thousand petty cares? Are the heart and soul of you cast down by bitter disappointment? Would you leave it all, if only for an hour, and come back with a new point of view? Then open the covers of a book.—From the "Master's Violin."

Didn't Know It All.

"Oh," sneered the self-important lawyer who was cross-examining, "you think you know it all, don't you?" "Not quite," replied the witness. "For instance, I don't know how you manage to secure an occasional client."—Chicago News.

The Drawback.

Old Gentleman—Since your uncle left you that legacy, Mrs. Casey, you must find your path in life much smoother. Mrs. Casey—Shure Oi dunno, sor. Oi faind the more ye hove to ate the more dishes there is to wash.—Brooklyn Life.

Judge—Had you any provocation for assaulting this man? Prisoner—Oh, hod, yer honor. He wudn't fight!—Puck.

Blunders are sometimes very expensive. Occasionally life itself is the price of a mistake, but you'll never be wrong if you take Dr. King's New Life Pills for Dyspepsia, Dizziness, Headache, Liver or Bowel trouble. They are gentle, yet thorough. 25c, at Haynes' drug store.

A Doll's Christmas

A Quaint Tale of Life in the Nursery When Little Boys and Girls
Are All Sound
Asleep

.....By LAWTON JOHNSON

Copyright, 1904, by C. N. Lurie

ONE Christmas eve a wax doll sat on a chair in a pretty room in which a number of children were in bed. A fire was burning on the hearth. Stockings were hanging to the mantel to be filled with toys for the children who were sleeping soundly, doubtless dreaming of what they were to receive in the morning. The face of one of them, a delicate, fair haired boy, was turned toward the doll, and she did not tire looking at it, for the face, though pale and thin, was very delicately molded.

On the mantel were two figures in porcelain. One was a boy in an old fashioned coat and knee breeches, with a sash around his waist and a cocked hat and feather. His right hand was thrust into his coat in front, and he looked like a figure of Napoleon. The other was a girl, with a short dress and a sailor hat. Her head was poised one side, and she looked very well satisfied with herself. Indeed, she was very pretty.

"How do you do?" said the girl in age to the doll. "Don't you think this a pleasant room?"

"Indeed it is, but I've not seen many. I was only born." She paused to think again when she was born, but couldn't remember, so she said instead, "Isn't it a beautiful world?"

"Do you think so?" said the boy. "My sister and I have had a hard time getting into it. We were baked in a furnace, and it was so hot!"

"Well, don't tell me about it," interrupted the doll. "I'd rather hear about pleasant places."

The figures told her a great many things, but the girl was very vain of her beauty, and the boy was taken up with what he knew about the world, of which the doll knew nothing at all, so she didn't listen long, but fell asleep while they were talking.

Suddenly she awoke with a start. What was that noise in the chimney? She had scarcely time to think about it when out on the hearth popped a little figure in fur. He unstrapped a pack he carried and filled all the stockings with toys. Then he jumped back into the chimney and was gone in a twinkling. This set the doll to wondering more than ever.

Everything was again silent except the clock, which ticked very loud. There were the children asleep in bed, the little pale faced boy with his head resting on his arm, the doll in the mantel with her head on one side thinking how pretty she was and the boy thinking how much he knew about the world. The doll soon went to sleep again.

In the morning she was awakened by a shouting. The children were running about in their night clothes, trying their toys from their stockings and chattering like monkeys. The fair haired boy sat up in bed and looked on, for he was too delicate to get up like the other children. The doll noticed that he had great blue eyes, which seemed ever so large as he looked wonderingly at all that was going on. Then there came a knocking on the wall, and the children knew that it was a signal for them to get back to bed and not take cold, and back they scrambled, laughing and tumbling over one another, and covered themselves up.

Presently the father and mother came in and distributed the toys. The doll was for one of the girls, but the boy insisted on having it himself. Then when all were loaded with presents they carried them down to the breakfast room.

What a day it was! The children were racing about, playing with their toys, and people were coming in continually to see the presents, and the sun shone brightly on the snow outside, and the fire shone brightly within on the brass andirons and fender, and after dinner stories were told the children till they were all astonished by the number of wonderful things that happen. The boy with the light hair and blue eyes lay in his mother's arms, hugging the doll with her breast pressed against his, so that she could hear his heart beat, and she wondered why there was no such beating in her own heart. This was the happiest moment she had ever known. She was only a day old, but something told her that nothing in the world could ever make her happier.

When the children went upstairs the boy insisted on keeping the doll by him till he got into bed, when his mother persuaded him to part with it till morning. She placed it on a chair before the fire where he could see it till he should go to sleep and the first thing on awakening in the morning.

When the children were all asleep the doll looked up from the chair at the images on the mantel. She was too happy to go to sleep.

"What a lovely day I have had," she said.

"Just wait," replied the boy image, "till you have been knocked about the world awhile and you'll see." He looked as wise as an owl.

"I think it very nice," said the girl image, "so long as you are young and pretty, but I don't like the idea of getting old and cracked, perhaps having my arms or legs broken off."

The wind was rising without, and suddenly the fire blazed with a cheerful warmth. It was very pleasant for a while, but presently it seemed to be too hot. The doll thought she began to feel a softening in her feet. She didn't know what it meant, but it frightened her. It extended to her legs; then she felt it in her arms and at last in her face and neck. A log of wood fell down on the coals, and the fire blazed higher, hotter than ever. The doll felt herself melting away.

"You're going," said the boy figure on the mantel. "It's just as well; the world isn't all like this household."

"It's just as well," echoed the girl image. "Your beauty will not have to fade."

"I don't want to go," cried the doll mournfully. "I want to stay with my blue eyed boy. The world may be full of sadness, but there must be pleasure as well, for it is here."

There was something so plaintive in her voice that even the images refrained from any further remarks. The fire blazed hotter, and the wax, which had as yet only softened, began to melt. Something splattered on the floor. It was a drop of melted wax.

Oh, that her little boy would get up and move her back from the fire! But he slept on peacefully, and as she had no voice for real children she couldn't call to him.

So the doll felt that she was melting away. Drop by drop she fell on the floor. The room, with its rich hangings, the children sleeping, the firelight flickering, the shadows and, above all, the memory of her brief existence—for, after all, a doll can only exist—seemed to be gradually fading away. She sighed to think that she couldn't have been born with a soul, to be loved and go on loving forever; that she could not grow up like a real child to see the unfolding of all the wonderful things in the world, passing from one existence to another instead of going out altogether. Then she thought that she might never have been born at all, never have had the one glimpse of the happy household, the one Christmas, the blue eyed boy and her single day of love. So she said, "I can't understand it. I will try not to murmur, but trust that it is all for the best."

And then—then she awoke! The horror of melting had only been a dream. She had fallen asleep before the hot fire, but some kind hand had drawn the chair back, and in a few moments she was again clasped in the fond arms of her blue eyed boy.

CHRISTMAS IN MEXICO.

How the Day Is Celebrated in the Land of Dios.

In Mexico Christmas eve is observed, as in Spain, with the Noche Buena. The streets and plazas are thronged with people. Of all the shop windows so gay and brilliant in their holiday attire none is so bright as the confectioner's. Nowhere is the confectioner's art carried to a greater perfection. At midnight of the Noche Buena all Mexico forsakes its pleasures and repairs to the Misa del Gallo, or mass of the cock, a high mass of the most imposing character, which, in every one of the magnificent temples reared by the Catholic church in the City of Mexico, is celebrated exactly at midnight on Christmas eve or morning to commemorate the Saviour's birth. All the churches have an augmented choir and a large orchestra specially engaged for the occasion. The mass is celebrated with every concomitant that can heighten its effect and grandeur.

CONVERSATION "DON'TS."

Don't indulge in personalities. They invariably return worse than they started out.

Don't mention family feuds. It embarrasses the listeners, and you are sure to regret it.

Don't talk of the cost of things. It gives the rich a chance for boastfulness and may be embarrassing to the poor.

Don't tell your personal interests, occupations, hopes or aspirations. Nobody wants to hear them, and you give your dignity a mortal stab.

Don't discuss children. If you have any the chances are you are boring those who have not. If you have none, you are sure to be mortally wounding those who have.

Don't discuss dress. The lady whose evening gown you are scoring may have come direct from Paris, wearing the newest thing, and the whole subject is a hopeless one anyway.—Harper's Weekly.

The Korean Language.

Korean is a difficult language to learn. Trifling errors are likely to lead a foreigner into great embarrassment. It was only the smallest mistake that led an impassioned preacher to warn his congregation that unless they repented they would be relegated to "a cellar," the Korean words for cellar and the nether world being almost identical. In like manner the story of Lazarus, who fell sick, was told to a Sunday school class with an unauthorized ending. The native form of expression is "entering a sickness," and by a trifling confusion the teacher was made to declare that Lazarus entered a bottle.

The Prince of Peace

Sunday School Lesson for Dec. 25, 1904
Prepared by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1904, by J. M. Edson.)

LESSON TEXT.—Isaiah 9:1-7; Memory verses, 6, 7. Read also Luke's account of the birth of the Christ in Luke 2:1-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace."—Isaiah 9:6.

TIME.—This prophecy was probably uttered some time in the reign of Ahaz, father of Hezekiah, 725-726 B. C.

PLACE.—Jerusalem, the home of the prophet.

Introductory Note.

These verses from the prophecy of Isaiah which form the basis of our Christmas lesson are the concluding portion of the prophecy of Chapter 9, the "Nevertheless" of the opening verse indicating a contrast between the judgments and calamities enumerated in chapter 8 and the promise of the Light, and the Prince of Peace, given in the first seven verses of chapter 9.

The ambiguity of much of the text is removed by the Revised Version, especially in the third and fifth verses. The third verse reads: "Thou hast multiplied the nation; thou hast increased their joy," etc. The fifth verse: "For all the armours of the armed men in the tumult, and the garments of rolled in blood, shall be for burning, for fuel of fire." To appreciate the condition of sin and desolation of the nation, implied in the term "darkness," as a result of the corrupt reign of Ahaz, during which period this prophecy was uttered, we must turn back to Isaiah 7 and 2 Kings 16-18, and the parallel passage in 2 Chronicles. But great darkness has the promise of Greater Light.

The Lesson Outline.

THEME.—Christ and His Kingdom.

I.—The Land of the Shadow of Death.—vs. 1, 2.

Place of (1) Vexation; (2) Affliction; (3) Darkness; (4) Death.

II.—The Vision of the Coming One.—vs. 3, 4.

(1) His Essential Characteristic—Light. "A Great Light." "The Light shined."—vs. 1, 2.

(2) His Mission—Deliverance. "Thou hast broken the yoke"—the burden—staff rod.—vs. 3, 4.

(3) His Methods—Peaceable. "This shall be the way of peace." "The government shall be upon His shoulder."—vs. 5, 6.

(4) His Names—(a) Wonderful; (b) Counsellor; (c) The Mighty God; (d) The Everlasting Father; (e) The Prince of Peace.—vs. 6, 7.

III.—The Character of His Kingdom.—vs. 7, 8.

(1) Peaceful and Prosperous. "Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end."

(2) Righteous. "To establish it with judgment and with justice."

(3) Everlasting. "From henceforth even forever."

IV.—The Certainty of Fulfillment.—"The zeal of the Lord of Hosts will perform this."—vs. 9, 10.

Comparing Scripture with Scripture.

I.—The Land of the Shadow of Death.—The place of (1) Vexation; (2) Affliction; (3) Darkness; (4) Death.

vs. 1, 2. Sin like a cloud enshrouded the land. Where sin reigns there is always to be found vexation of spirit; sore affliction; darkness and death, moral and spiritual.

II.—The Vision of the Coming One. (1) His Essential Characteristic Light "A Great Light." "The Light shined," vs. 1, 2. Matthew quotes this passage and declares its fulfillment in Jesus' going to Capernaum to dwell. Matt. 4:13-15. Cf. John 1:4, 5, 9; 8:12.

(2) His Mission—Deliverance. "Thou hast broken the yoke"—the burden—staff—rod.—vs. 3, 4. The yoke which Satan places upon the soul is more galling and oppressive than that of any earthly power. He came to break the power of evil. Rom. 7:21, 25; 1 Cor. 15:57.

(3) His Methods—Peaceable. The Revised Version of verse 5 simplifies the thought. The accoutrements of war and the garments of the warriors are to become fuel for the fire, and burned up. War is to cease. Universal peace is to prevail under the reign of King Emmanuel. Isaiah in chapter 11 gives in fuller detail all that is implied in this verse. This part of the prophecy has yet to be fulfilled.

(4) His Authority—Supreme. "The government shall be upon His shoulder." This also awaits fulfillment.

(5) His Names—(a) Wonderful—Judges 13:18, margin; 1 Tim. 3:16. (b) Counsellor—Rom. 11:33, 34; Col. 2:3. (c) The Mighty God—Ps. 24:8; Titus, 2:13. (d) The Everlasting Father—"A child" yet "The Everlasting Father"—see Jesus' own claims in John 10:30 and 14:9. (e) The Prince of Peace—A title in harmony with the declaration of verse 5. Already He is "our peace." Luke 2:14; Eph. 2:14.

III.—The Character of His Kingdom. (1) Peaceful and Prosperous. His reign will bring prosperity and peace such as was never before known.

(2) Righteous—When Christ shall reign then shall perfect righteousness prevail. Isa. 42:21; Ps. 45:6, 7.

(3) Everlasting—"From henceforth even forever." Dan. 2:44.

IV.—The Certainty of Fulfillment. "The zeal of the Lord of Hosts will perform this." This is the guarantee of the realization of all the wonderful provisions of this striking prophecy. Seven centuries before the Christ was born, Isaiah had the vision of Him.

He came, and how marvelously was Scripture fulfilled in Him. There are prophecies still to be fulfilled, and not one jot or one tittle shall pass from the law until all be fulfilled. Matt. 5:18; Is. 40:8; 51:6.

"His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." "What's in a name?" has been asked in irony. Ah! Everything when there is character behind the name. The titles which the Holy Spirit gave to Jesus 700 years before His advent are expressive of His character. Interpret: Jesus through His titles and then let Jesus become the exponent and definition of these titles. The Gospels spell in marvelous fullness and accuracy the names, Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace.

Mrs. G. A. Terry and children.

I have a full line of squirrel whiskies and brandies from $2.00 to $2.50 per gallon.
