MINING

Operations are Hindered

By Zero Weather—Many Companies are Making

Preparations for Increased Activity. Kentucky Fluor Spar Co. to Thrill Output.

At the Kentucky Fluor Spar Company's plant milling operations have ceased for the present. The extreme cold weather Sunday night damaged their large engine to the extent of about $200. When the plant shut down Saturday night the water was not properly drained from the engine, and Sunday night it froze, bursting the cylinder.

In the shipments for the last week was included one car of zinc from the Columbia mines. The shipments of fluor spar were as follows:

6 cars ground	211,226 lbs
62 barrels ground	32,431
6 cars gravel	374,045
1 car lump	100,000
Total	817,705 lbs

Our Levis correspondent says that the blizzard did not freeze out the Levis and Hopewell mines. He states that operations continue unabated at these mines, and the evident desire on the part of the proprietors is to have something to market when warmer weather comes.

Wm. Miller, of the Louisville-Marion and Commodore mining companies arrived Monday from Louisville and spent several days here this week in consultation with other officers and directors of the companies. It is understood that active preparations are being made to resume operations on the companies' properties at an early date. Mr. Miller made a trip to the mines, notwithstanding the severity of the weather. With the preparations now in hand, and considering the output of the mines heretofore, these companies will doubtless be among the first to market ore when the hauling season begins.

Mr. R. E. Cooper, of Hopkinsville, President of the Marion Mineral Co., operating here and across the river in Illinois, was here Saturday conferring with Secretary Crider about matters of general interest to the company, and especially relative to the company's recent loss by fire at the Pogue mines. No time will be lost in repairing the damage done there. Mr. Cooper is the type of man that will ever meet a warm welcome in this district. When he becomes interested with an enterprise he carries it to completion and success. Until the last few years he devoted most of his time to the tobacco business. He was one of the originators and is President of the Home Telephone Co. of Hopkinsville, which is successfully operating the automatic call system that dispenses with the central operator for local purposes, and his friends here may be pleased to know that he is identified with the Nashville Home Telephone Co., which was just recently organized at Nashville.

Under the direction of their mining engineer, Mr. A. H. Reed, the Kentucky Fluor Spar Co. have been sinking new and better shafts, removing old whims, machinery, etc., installing new machinery and pushing prospect work. On their shipping yards here and at Mexico station they have a sufficient surplus of fluor spar to fill all their winter orders. The work they are now doing at the mines is of the most practical sort. An output of ore is not needed just now, and if removed from the levels could not be hauled at this season of the year. Their plans of operation are therefore very wise and enable them to utilize time by doing what they can and should do now and what otherwise might have to be done at another time when transportation was possible and an output of ore was needed. By means of this method Mr. Reed tells us he will be enabled to mine three times the usual amount of ore at less than one-half the cost heretofore. At the Yandell and Tabor mines the Kentucky people have their shafts so well housed that the cold and inclement weather does not hinder operations. At these places they are pushing right ahead, as usual.

Joplin, Mo., Feb. 12.—The highest price reported paid for zinc ore in the Joplin district during the week was $55.50 per ton, and the assay basis, beginning the week at $53, settled down toward $52 at the end of the week. Lead is reported in Joplin at $57 and in Webb City at $58 per ton. Despite a week of weather that has restricted the output 40 per cent. from a normal week, the sales have been no greater than the output and prices have been pushed down in the face of climatic conditions that would seem to warrant exactly the opposite course. With over a foot of snow on the ground, the temperature alternating above and below, freezing enough to thaw a little and convert this into ice, leading as well as mining has drawbacks that hinder the progress of the industry.

Upon the arrival of warm weather the roads will be found practically bottomless and the output will increase more rapidly than it can be loaded, provided purchasing agents come into the market for the increased supply.

The lead shipment for the week is one of the smallest ever reported, the cold weather affecting this class of mines more generally than the zinc mines. The buyers claim they are paying about 85 per ton more for the ore than the smelters can afford to pay, and some of them say they are buying at that loss only enough to keep up the supply and the fires going.

The production of ore throughout the entire district has been exceedingly light during the past three weeks on account of the snowstorms and zero weather. A few mines have been run with success, but many of them have met with disaster in attempting to keep the mills going. Many of the miners received frozen hands and faces in trying to work. Thousands of dollars' worth of damage has been done by the freezing and bursting of pipes and the breaking of machinery in all parts of the district. The exceedingly high price of zinc caused the miners to make every effort to keep the mines and mills going in order to reap the profits of a big turn-in. The district has not experienced so long a period of miserable weather for its mining industry since its existence. As a result of the continued cold weather and unusual amount of snow for this section of the country, many of the miners have had but small opportunity for getting anything like a full winter's work.

There is much prospecting to be done in all parts of the district as soon as spring opens, and sooner if the weather permits. All are longing for spring to open. The high prices which have been paid for zinc ore in the Joplin district for the past month have caused the shipment of foreign zinc into the United States.

CONTEST

For Two Grand Prizes

A Diamond Ring and a Gold Watch to be Awarded

The Two Most Popular Young Ladies of Crittenden and Livingston Counties.

A popularity contest is being arranged for and full particulars will be announced in next week's issue of the Record, and handsome and valuable prizes will be awarded the two most successful contestants.

Any young lady will be eligible as a contestant, who is nominated by her friends and is supported by their votes.

The two prizes will be of equal value and the winning candidate who receives the highest number of votes shall have first choice. The second contestant, or the young lady receiving the second highest number of votes cast, will not be absolutely disappointed, as is usual in a close contest, but will receive a handsome and valuable prize.

Four votes will be allowed with each dollar paid in advance on subscriptions to the Record, which may be one yearly subscription, two semi-annual subscriptions at 50c each, or four quarterly subscriptions at 25c each, but the total when turned in must equal one yearly subscription at $1.00.

The votes will be deposited in a ballot box which will be under lock and seal until the contest shall have terminated when a committee will be selected to count the ballots.

A tally will be kept by the editor of the Record of the votes cast and the standing of each contestant will be published in each issue of the Record.

The selection of the committee will be left to the most successful contestant, that is, four committees will be chosen by the four contestants receiving the highest number of votes, and a fifth will be chosen by majority vote of the other four committees.

Full particulars concerning the prizes to be awarded, or further rules governing the contest will be published next week. In the meantime, young men, select your young lady if you have not already done so, and be prepared to offer a nomination and pledge your support. Place her under obligations to you for later there will be a gentleman's contest and you may be "running."

Subscriptions received during the coming week will be entitled to vote in this contest and due bills will be furnished.

Remember, the contest is open to all, and the standing of contestants will be announced in each issue.

INSTANTLY KILLED

Was George Wring at Nancy Hanks Mine Sunday Morning.

George Wring, 35 years of age, was instantly killed at Nancy Hanks mine Sunday morning by falling 160 feet into the shaft.

He went to the mine as was his usual custom on Sundays about 7 o'clock in the morning to pump the water out of the shaft and it being Sunday there was no one else around the mine. Between nine and ten o'clock, Tom King went to the mine to see Wring and found no one there and the engine house full of steam. Thinking that there was something the matter King went to the home of the engineer who lives near the mine and reported that Wring was not at the mine. They went to the mine and were lowered into the shaft and found at the bottom Wring's body with his head crushed and every bone broken.

A coroner's inquest was held and the verdict was that Wring came to his death by accidentally falling in the shaft. He had on his person $1.40 and there was no evidence of foul play. The opening to the shaft is in the engine room and not exposed to the weather and it is supposed that Wring was leaning over the shaft to open a steam valve and as he did this the steam came up into his face causing him to lose his balance and fall into the shaft.

George Wring was a hard working, honest, industrious man and was a brother of Tom and Will Wring, of this city.

His remains were placed to rest at Tyner Chapel. He leaves a wife and one child.

JAMES A. MOORE

Enters the Race for County Attorney of Crittenden County.

In this issue our readers will find an announcement for the nomination for county attorney by the Hon. James A. Moore. This, of course, subject to the action of the Republican party at its primary election which is to be held Saturday, April 1st, 1905.

Judge Moore is certainly no stranger to our readers. He has been prominent in political as well as legal circles for quite a number of years. He has been a representative in our State legislature. A judge on the county court bench in this county for twelve years and an attorney before our local bar for eight years.

In all the various capacities filled by him he has been fearless in the cause of truth and right. He has always been to the line let the chips fall where they may.

To enumerate the activities of his busy life and the service he has rendered his party and the number of battles for that party in which he has been engaged would require too much space for a limited notice like this.

In his speech of announcement delivered in a happy vein of humor before the convention Monday he said he believed he would not give a list of his services for fear his party might think he had done enough.

However, he does say in no mistakable terms that he desires the nomination for county attorney, and if given that honor, will fight to win. He declares also that if he does not get the nomination he will be found working for the man who does get it.

Judge Moore would bring to the office his years of ripe experience which would be a valuable asset.

If he is successful in reaching the nomination the Record will be found on his side clear down the stretch to the finish.

Commercial Club at Morganfield.

The Morganfield Sun announces that on Sunday, Feb. 7, about thirty-five of her most representative citizens met, in response to a call of the Mayor, and organized a commercial club. They also met again Friday evening, Feb. 10, to take action concerning by-laws and articles of incorporation.

The vigor which has been exhibited by our Morganfield friends will certainly insure the fullest measure of success for the club.

REPUBLICAN

Primary Election Called

To be Held on Saturday, April 1st 1905.

J. Frank Conger Resigning as Chairman of the County Committee is Succeeded by H. A. Haynes.

The county committee of the Republican party met at the court house Monday in executive session. J. Frank Conger, who had been the county chairman from the ancient times when the county tickets were elected, whole or in part, by the Democratic party to the present time when there is a Republican plurality of 400, resigned because of the fact that he is in the race for the nomination for sheriff. A member of the committee, Mr. H. A. Haynes, was chosen by the committee to fill the unexpired time of the present term.

Mr. Haynes accepted the place with a few pointed and appropriate remarks, and on motion he was elected to act as temporary chairman of the mass meeting of Republican voters that had congregated as an advisory body for the committee in selecting the manner, time and place for naming a county ticket to be voted for at the regular November election.

The following resolutions, offered by A. C. Moore, were adopted:

FIRST: Resolved, that we, the Republicans here assembled, heartily indorse and approve this call, as made by the chairman of the Republican party in and for Crittenden county for the purpose of fixing the time and mode of nominating Republican candidates for the various offices to be filled at the November election, 1905, to be held in and for the aforesaid county and State.

SECOND: Resolved, that we also heartily indorse, without reservation, the administration of President Theodore Roosevelt, together with that of his predecessor, the lamented Wm. McKinley, and we congratulate the American people upon the conditions of prosperity and happiness resulting from the wisdom and patriotism which they have brought to the country from a faithful and efficient discharge of their and each of their duties.

THIRD: Resolved, that we reaffirm our adherence to the principles and policies proclaimed by the last National Republican convention.

FOURTH: Resolved, that it is the best interest of the Republican party in this county for the Republican committee, as the governing authority of said party, to call a primary election to be held in and for said county under and by virtue of the law in such case made and provided.

FIFTH: Resolved, that J. F. Conger, who this day tendered his resignation as chairman of the Crittenden County Republican Committee, be given the thanks of this meeting for the fair and impartial manner in which he has conducted the business of the party as chairman of said committee, and for his faithful and untiring work for the upbuilding of the party in this county.

The views expressed by the mass meeting were concurred in by the executive committee, and they ordered that a primary be called for the purpose of choosing a county ticket by the popular vote. The first Saturday and the first day of April was set as the day on which the election should be held.

Chairman Haynes appointed W. B. Yandell and Dr. T. A. Frazier to act with himself in formulating the plans of holding the primary in conformity with the statutes, and to decide upon what would be a necessary assessment to be paid by the candidates to defray the expense of holding said primary.

All candidates who had formerly announced declared themselves at the convention, and a few additional ones announced: James A. Moore for county attorney, Newt Thomas for jailer, and Jas. Sullenger for surveyor.

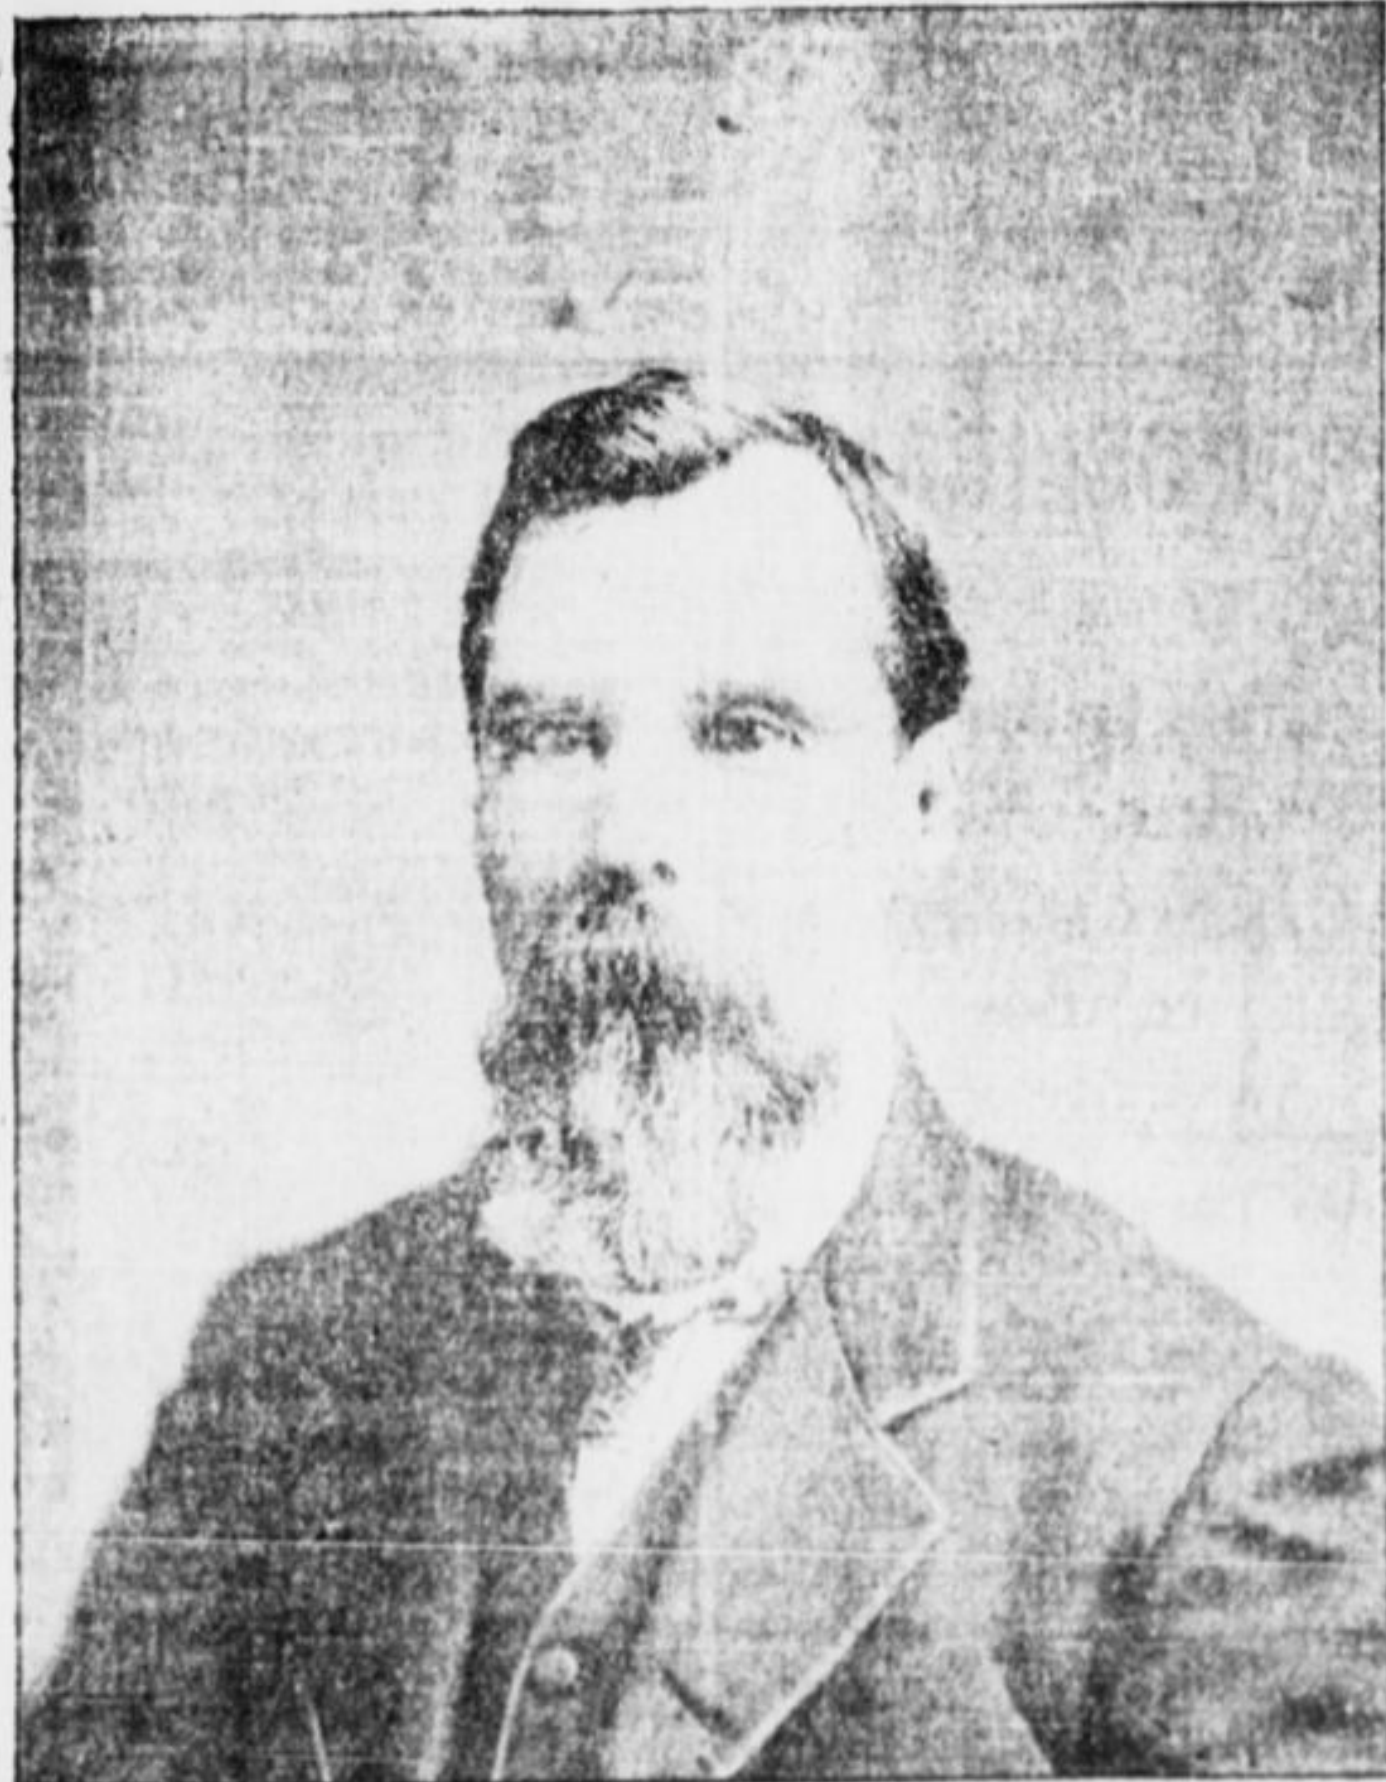

Last Monday mercury was hovering round about zero, but the announcement had gone out that Republican voters were expected to be in Marion at that time to attend to important business and they were here. Some rode, some walked and some came in sleighs, and to the surprise of the townspeople, when the county Republican committee was called to order at the court house at one o'clock p. m., the house was almost too full for standing room. The candidates were there with their friends, and a quorum of the committee was present. Had the weather been favorable it was expected that the country people would come to town by the hundreds, but Monday morning all felt somewhat disappointed and some believed that Providence was against them, but later, when the crowd grew too large for the court room, it was then realized that Providence was only trying the faith of the righteous. They responded to the command of duty implied by the principles they support and unless in the near future the martyrs are found in the Democratic party, for whom the Press advertised a few weeks ago, a man with horns entangled in thorns will have to appear for slaughter.

The Old Subscriber.

We sometimes wonder if newspaper men generally appreciate the old subscriber at his trade value. We mean the stand-by who takes the paper year after year through evil as well as good report, and pays his subscription regularly just the same as he would any other honest debt. As a general thing the old subscriber is patient and slow to wrath. He will overlook many little slights from the editor—slights which the man who borrows his reading would not stand for a minute. If one of his calves gets its leg broken and the fact isn't mentioned in the next issue he doesn't seem to feel the slight in the least, or if a half dozen of his hens die with the cholera morbus and the editor doesn't set out a two dollar ad to make room to herald the news to a waiting world, he just worries right along as though he hadn't been mistreated at all. He is always jolly—never fails to ask "how's tricks" when he comes into the office, and drops a word of praise for the paper upon taking his departure. God bless the old subscriber. We love him, and if we sometimes slight him in order to give space to some sap head who isn't worthy to buckle his shoes, it is because he is so broad minded and charitable that he will never mind it.—Iowa Recorder.

The Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition

By OLIN D. WHEELER

1805-1905; a century of Western exploration, progression, evolution, expansion, culminating in an exposition on the far Northwestern Coast commemorative of what that century has brought forth to the Northwest.

Late in 1805 the noted expedition of Lewis and Clark reached its goal, the North Pacific Ocean, at the mouth of the Columbia River, and, after weeks of rude buffetings with wind and wave, worn, wearied, wretched, and ragged, established a winter camp near the present site of Astoria, Oregon, and prepared to pass the winter of 1805-1806 in such comfort as might be possible.

Now, in the winter of 1904-1905, the people of the Northwest are hastening to completion at Portland, Oregon, a point touched by Lewis and Clark, a great exposition honoring the brave explorers and emblematic of the changes and advancement brought about by these one hundred years.

In reciting the reasons for this exposition, it is necessary as well as profitable to recount at some length the history of the Lewis and Clark exploration and of the country itself from the time of its virtual discovery.

The closing years of the 18th century saw much rivalry and activity among the Americans, British, Spaniards, and Russians in Northwestern explorations and discovery and in the Pacific trade. For well on to three hundred years the Spaniards had been engaged in Pacific Coast exploration, and the English had been imitating and agonizing them for about 200 years. Prominent among the Spanish explorers were Magellan, Balboa, Ulloa, and Hequeta, while the English were represented by the well-known Sir Francis Drake, Captain Cook, Meares, and Vancouver. The Russians, who came to the Northwest by way of Siberia, have a worthy representative in Bering. The rivalry between Spain and Great Britain reached an acute stage in 1789-90 at Nootka Sound, and culminated in the Nootka treaty. The explorers of these various nations gave names to a great many points—capes, mountains, bays, islands, etc.—in the Northwest, which remain in use to-day.

After the close of the War of the Revolution, the United States took part in Northwestern exploration and trade and with immediate results—results that became of greatest importance eventually. In 1788 some Boston merchants sent out two vessels—the Columbia, Captain Kendrick, and the Washington, Captain Gray—to engage in the fur trade. In 1789, exchanging ships, Gray took the Columbia to China and thence to the United States, returning to the Coast in 1791. Kendrick, with the Washington, remaining on the Northwest Coast during Gray's absence. Upon Gray's return to Nootka Sound, Kendrick proceeded to the Sandwich Islands and opened a trade with the natives in sandal-wood. There he was killed by the islanders in 1793.

Gray, on his return voyage up the Coast in 1791, had, at a certain point, noticed what he thought to be a large river, or rather the mouth of one. In 1792, voyaging southward, he confirmed his previous impression by crossing the rather dangerous bar and sailing far enough up the river to determine the matter. To the mighty river he gave the name Columbia, after his vessel and as such the stream will be known through all time. It will be noted that this discovery was just 300 years after Columbus had discovered America, and in naming the river Columbia, Gray was really honoring the great discoverer himself. The Spaniard Hequeta has seen, as a matter of fact, the mouth of the Columbia in 1775, and he called the presumptive stream the Saint Roque; Meares had seen it in 1788 when he anchored there and named Cape Disappointment, and Vancouver, in 1792, also saw it and refers to it. But none of these three really investigated the matter or believed that any such stream existed. Indeed, Meares and Vancouver denied the possibility of it.

Gray's discovery and naming of the Columbia—the Oregon of Carver and of Bryant—subsequently became a fact of the greatest consequence in the determination of the Northwestern boundary line between the United States and Great Britain. Important as this fact became, however, it was vastly enhanced by the exploration of Lewis and Clark which followed it so closely—with an interval of but thirteen years—and both were emphasized by the settlement of Astoria in 1812, while the whole matter was clinched by the treaty of 1819 between Spain and the United States, by which Spain transferred to the latter country all of her title, real or imaginary.

The keystone of this arch of discovery and occupation was the Lewis and Clark exploration. It ranks to-day as the greatest exploration ever made by any country. It was a most dramatic and wonderful achievement, and the more it is pondered and studied the greater it becomes. That such a complete, harmonious, successful exploration and one so lacking in fatalities was possible 100 years ago, only twenty odd years after the surrender of Yorktown, is a matter of amazement, and it challenges our greatest respect and admiration for the noble corps of explorers who accomplished such magnificent results. It is fitting indeed that such a national achievement should be commemorated upon its centennial by a national exposition at the beautiful city of Portland in that region where the explorers wintered in 1805-6.

In "The Trail of Lewis and Clark, 1804-1904," a two-volume edition by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York, the writer has recounted at length the story of this exploration and the changes wrought by a century of national expansion in the country traversed by these heroes, based upon his own travels over that trail. The story must be given here briefly.

During the late fall and early spring of 1803-4 these going up and down the Father of Waters in the primitive batteaux and perogues of the day would have seen, on the eastern bank and opposite the mouth of the tawny colored Missouri, a large military encampment. Here, at the mouth of a small stream, the Du Bois, or Wood River, the members of the Lewis and Clark expedition spent the winter making ready for the great work of the future.

During that winter momentous events were culminating. Louisiana, a vast region on the western bank of the Mississippi, with ill-defined boundaries and seemingly almost boundless, was finally transferred from Spain to France and from France to the United States, and the first, and an unexpected territorial expansion of the coming giant among nations was completed. In the final act of this international drama at St. Louis, Lewis and probably Clark and others of the expedition took part. The Lewis and Clark exploration, while following closely the Louisiana Purchase, was planned entirely independent of it and before we owned the territory embraced therein.

Meriwether Lewis and William Clark—NOT Clarke—were Virginians, young, strong, and healthful, brave and resourceful, intelligent, and warm and devoted friends. Each, in qualities that counted for much in such an enterprise, was the complement of the other. Lewis and Clark had both been army officers, but were civilians in 1808, Lewis being the private secretary of President Jefferson, the father of the exploration, before taking charge of the expedition. Both men were commissioned anew as army officers, however, and all of the men of the expedition were enlisted as soldiers for the purpose of thorough organization and discipline. Many of the men were carefully drafted from among the soldiers at the various army posts along the Ohio River and in the West, and others were selected by the leaders from among the hardy frontiersmen of their acquaintance, for special and valuable abilities as watermen, scouts, hunters, guides, etc.

DROPPED DEAD!

You pick up a paper nearly every day and read that some man or woman in apparently perfect health has died suddenly at a banquet, on the street, at the theater, of "heart failure." 80 per cent of such cases follow heavy eating. The digestive organs are not in condition, the food ferments in the stomach, forming gases which distend the walls of the stomach—which presses against the heart—crowds—suffocates—Heart failure—results. Take a spoonful of after eating. It relieves that "full feeling," stops fermentation, aids digestion and prevents biliousness and constipation.

L. G. HANSEN, Wagoner, Ind. Ter., under date of Mar. 21, 1905, writes: "For over a year I was troubled with indigestion. Doctors and medicines were unable to help me. Finally I received an advertisement of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which I tried at once, and found it relieved my indigestion, and that Syrup Pepsin would cure indigestion and take all the stomach. I tried it and was cured and wish to take this notice of letting others know of the merit of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin."

Playing for Prizes is Not Gambling.

Springfield, Ill., February 11.—Chief Justice Ricks, of the state supreme court, is quoted as saying that playing for prizes at a card game is not gambling in the eyes of present laws. Taylorville has been exercised by recent crusades against gambling.

"That is not gambling," when speaking of prize card parties, "for the statutes plainly specify that where players in a game have no chance to lose anything the element of gambling does not enter therein, and as the members of the club mentioned do not contribute to the purchase of the prize for which they are playing, they are not guilty of gambling."

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

It will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

PAID $300

In 1864 for Draft Release.—Receipt
Now Worth $1,020.

Mr. J. E. Hancock, of near Onton, will be a beneficiary of the late decision of the United States Court of Claims with reference to the Kentucky draft of 1864, says the Green River News.

Mr. Hancock has all his papers relative to this case in perfect state of preservation, although they were executed forty years ago. The documents consist of a notice to report for duty, a receipt for $800, paid rather than serve in the army, and a discharge from custody. He reported at Paducah.

Mr. Hancock informs the News that he has consulted Judge Dorsey, of Henderson, as to the probability of getting his money, with interest, returned to him by the government, and he is of the opinion that such will be the case.

Doubtless many of these receipts are hid away among old papers in Crittenden and Livingston counties. We would advise the people to look them up, as indications are now that they may be very valuable.

The amount paid by each one to get released from service, under the draft of 1864, was $300. Three hundred dollars at six per cent, simple interest would amount to $1,020 in forty years, and a thousand and twenty dollars in not picked up every day by many people. Look up your old papers.

Declined to Impeach Johnson.

Washington, February 10.—The granting of a pension of $30 per month by the house to-day to Edmund G. Roff directs attention to the condition of a man who was one of the central figures in the impeachment trial of Andrew Johnson, President of the United States. He has been reduced to penury and want, and for a number of years has been eking out a precarious existence as a printer, setting type on country papers in New Mexico. His home has been at Albuquerque for some years. Delegate Roff, of New Mexico, introduced the bill for his relief and it passed the House this afternoon.

Roff was United States senator from Kansas at the time of the impeachment proceedings in the Johnson case were in progress, and was depended upon to vote for the impeachment. When the time came for the vote, however, he declined to vote for impeachment, and thereby lost caste with the people of Kansas. He was at the time editor of a paper at Lawrence, where he returned after leaving the Senate. The circulation of his paper fell off to such an extent that he was unable to keep it going, and he removed to Albuquerque.

Dr. Green's Great Puzzle.

Dr. G. G. Green, of Woodbury, New Jersey, will mail for a 2c stamp (simply for postage), one of his great novelties, a wooden box with glass top, containing six colored balls. It necessitates remarkable quickness of the eye and hand to master it, but it is possible with practice. Send for one and mention THE RECORD. 31-31

Sudden Death at Providence.

Mr. S. J. Smith, a highly respected citizen of Providence, was called away by death suddenly and unexpectedly at his home Thursday night about 10 o'clock says the Providence Enterprise.

The deceased was born in this county about 63 years ago, but for the past 20 years or more had been a citizen of Providence. He leaves a wife and one daughter, Mrs. Kinneil Carroll.

"DO IT TO-DAY!"

"And to think that ten months ago I looked like this!—I owe it to German Syrup."

"The time-worn injunction, 'Never put off 'til to-morrow what you can do to-day,' is now generally presented in this form: 'Do it to-day!' That is the terse advice we want to give you about that hacking cough or demoralizing cold with which you have been struggling for several days, perhaps weeks. Take some reliable remedy for it to-day—and let that remedy be Dr. Roschke's German Syrup, which has been in use for over thirty-five years. A few doses of it will undoubtedly relieve your cough or cold, and its continued use for a few days will cure you completely. No matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble. New trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists."

Editorial Comment

The most interesting thing about life is, there are so many things without interest that men take so much interest in, and there are so many things of interest that they take so little interest in.

Interest does not always mean money gain but brain gain as well, and the man who has the latter in a practical way can obtain the former, thereby doubling his profit.

However much one may know, there is always some one who knows more; however little one may know there is always some one who knows less. So the incentive works both ways, but the least littleness is in him who does not provide and gauge tomorrow's necessities by today's needs.

Eliminate the lazy line and you have solved the problem of a majority of failures.

Connect the life-wire with the dynamo of energy and be a live-wire.

All failures are not failures, but rather successes since they show us our weaknesses and enable us to bridge them.

A supply of India rubber is necessary to success in life since "bound backs" must follow "knock downs," and both are in the successful life.

Mistakes to the weak-hearted are Waterloo; to the strong-hearted they are Ribbons, but to both classes they are crises, and overwhelming disaster or triumphal success always follows crises.

Fear is the pernicious child of mistake. How mistakes stake our lives and the fear of their being repeated causes them to bristle more glaringly. One thing, know that mistakes are not master but menial. All men, successful and otherwise, have made mistakes and the determination in this part, whether these mistakes were to be master or servant, has determined the life course.

"Ours is not a government which recognizes classes. It is based on the recognition of the individual. We are not for the poor man as such, nor for the sick man as such. We are for every man, rich or poor, provided he acts justly and fairly by his fellows, and if he so acts, the government must do all it can to see that, inasmuch as he does no wrong, so he shall suffer no wrong."—President Roosevelt.

The man who hides his light under a bushel does not believe in advertising. He is still voting for Andrew Jackson and following in the business rut of his most remote ancestors. He will be buried in a $17.50 coffin and his epitaph written in mud.

The greatest discovery in the world is self-discovery. A great many people go through the world and never discover themselves.

never come to the consciousness that they are an element, a factor in the world. They feel no personal responsibility. The load does not touch their shoulders. We are apt to criticize self assertion, and yet a boy or a young man who thinks he is the whole thing is worse a thousand times more than the man who thinks he is nothing. The one will probably discover his mistake, and he will get lots of assistance to that end; but the other will never discover his mistake, and few will care whether he does or not.

Grave Trouble Foreseen.

It needs but little foresight to tell that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead, unless you take the proper medicine for your disease, as Mrs. John A. Young, of Clay, N. Y., did. She says: "I had neuralgia of the liver and stomach. My heart was weakened and I could not eat. I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters I found just what I needed, for they quickly relieved and cured me." Best medicine for weak women. Sold under guarantee by R. F. HAYNES', druggist, at 50c a bottle.

WINTER STORMS

Look for Them About the 19th to the 22nd.

The third storm period of the month extends from the 12th to the 16th. Look for rains, turning to snow and sleet, followed by a cold wave. About the 19th to the 22nd look for active winter storms—lightning and thunder southward. Change to much colder will follow closely, with blizzardous conditions North and West. The last storm period of the month includes the last three days of February and runs into March. Look for much rain to the South and snow to the North during this period, winding up with very cold weather for the season. By the close of February, conflicts between boreal and equinoctial forces naturally produce weather "irritations," constantly inducing spits and squalls of rain and snow. Such tendencies will be decidedly increased during the last four days of the month. The barometer will fall, and wide storm areas of rain and snow will make transit over the country during the 26th, 27th and 28th. While these storms are still in progress in central and Eastern sections, high barometer and clearing, cold weather will be pressed on the rear out of the West and North. Changes in temperature and downpours of rain are sure to precipitate danger in many localities.

It is a primary.

Tuesday the Princeton Leader came out in semi-weekly form.

The news comes to us that Elder J. N. Hall, publisher of the American Baptist Flag at Fulton, has been elected president of the "Baptist Publishing Co.," a corporation at Little Rock, Ark., which is to have $100,000 capital stock. This report will be of local interest, Rev. Hall being well known here.

Push your fights along on broad, smooth lines and we bespeak for you the respect and confidence of the people in general.

President Roosevelt has undertaken to give the island of Santo Domingo an honest government, economically administered. Kentucky next!

The Livingston County Farmers Club will hold a meeting at Smithland next Wednesday. This body is proving to be of great benefit to the farmers of that county.

It is a race for the fittest. Let every candidate present his own qualifications and claims rather than dig up mistakes made somewhere in the past by his opponent.

Personally the editor of the Record did not prefer a primary, but we believed the sentiment of the people was for it, and of course we are for the people and party harmony at all times.

Believe in something, the very best you can find, and then live up to what you believe. We take off our hat to any man who has an opinion of his own, even if it doesn't happen to be the same kind of an opinion we were brought up with.

The ultimate success of the Republican party next November in Crittenden county depends to a large extent upon the choice made by the voters in the Republican primary, April 1st. Not a majority of all votes cast declares the nominee, but the man receiving more votes than any one of his opponents becomes the nominee.

Notice.

We have now sent THE RECORD to Republican subscribers in completion of one year's subscription, and those who agreed to pay at the expiration of one year, are respectfully reminded that this contract has been completed by THE RECORD. Please call and pay.

We want to announce that all paying before March 10, will be entitled to four votes in the Popularity Contest, beginning with the next issue of THE RECORD. We offer this inducement that we may get these old accounts adjusted promptly. Renewals will also secure voting privileges in accordance with regular terms of contestants.

THE CRITTENDEN RECORD.

A Card to Voters.

TO THE VOTERS OF CRITTENDEN COUNTY:

I take this method of asking the nomination for re-election to the office of County Attorney at the primary to be held Saturday, April 1st, 1905. The duties of the office will prevent me making a thorough canvass of the county. I would like to serve the good people of Crittenden county one more term and to anyone who may see fit to support me for the nomination, I assure you the support will be very much appreciated and if I am nominated and elected for another term, I will endeavor to serve the people fairly and impartially.

CARL HENDERSON.

Deboe-Barbee.

Regarding the Deboe-Barbee nuptials which THE RECORD announced two weeks ago the Clinton Gazette says:

"Clinton Society has been in the quiver for several weeks over the approaching wedding, of Mr. James A. Deboe and Miss Helen Stuart Barbee which took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. D. Johnson, in East Clinton. A large number of invitations were issued and so many accepted that the Johnson home was taxed to entertain the expectant throng which gathered there before the appointed hour for the glad event."

Card of Thanks.

The ladies of the Christian church wish to thank all who partook of the dinner prepared by them on Monday, February 13, for the liberal patronage received in behalf of their efforts.

SMITHLAND

Doctor Shoots a Pilot

Dr. F. G. LaRue Badly Injures Blount Hodge at Smithland.

Dr. LaRue and Wife Had Separated Saturday.—Public Sentiment is With LaRue.

A somewhat sensational tragedy occurred at Smithland Monday afternoon about four o'clock, when Blount Hodge, aged 26, a river pilot, was shot three times and badly but not fatally injured by Dr. F. G. LaRue, 38 years old, president of the Livingston county board of health. Hodge's alleged attentions to Mrs. LaRue seem to have precipitated the shooting, which has created considerable excitement in Livingston county, and is of intense interest here on account of the popular young physician being related to some of the best families in this county.

According to reports, young Hodge, who is a son of former County Attorney J. C. Hodge, has been in Smithland for the past eight months or more on account of the steamboats nearly all having been laid up during that time. Dr. LaRue's wife was formerly a Miss Coffield and is said to be one of the most beautiful and popular young matrons in Livingston county. She and Dr. LaRue were married about five years ago, and all went well, it is alleged, until young Hodge appeared on the scene and began showering his attentions on the doctor's handsome young wife.

When it was thought his actions were sufficient to cause talk, it is stated, he was warned, but did not heed the warning. Saturday last Dr. LaRue and his wife filed articles of separation, and she left for her parents' home at Hampton.

Monday Dr. LaRue met Hodge at the entrance to the Old Central Hotel on Front street. The passageway to the hotel divides a fruit store and a drug store, and it was at this passageway that the two men met, when LaRue informed Hodge that he was going to kill him. Hodge is alleged to have replied that he guessed he (LaRue) was only joking, whereupon LaRue drew a 44 caliber pistol and began shooting. He fired four shots, three taking effect. He left Hodge apparently dead and surrendered to Sheriff Pat Bush. He claims justification under the unwritten law.

Doctors were summoned to attend the wounded man, who was found to have a wound in the forehead, the bullet apparently coming out in the back of the head, a wound under the right ear that does not seem to have penetrated the ear, and a wound on the hip, the bullet shattering the bone.

It is reported that Hodge is resting easy, but is seriously injured, though his wounds are not necessarily fatal.

Dr. LaRue has given bond and sentiment seems to be with him. Hodge is pilot on the City of Savannah, which had to lay up some time ago.

THIRTEEN TO HANG

Kentucky Has Been Aroused to Necessity of Enforcing Law.

There are thirteen men under the death sentence in Kentucky, says the Owensboro Messenger. This is a startling announcement to say the least. Probably at no time in the history of the State have there been thirteen men at one time awaiting death on the gallows. It is, perhaps, a record equaled by no other state. There are four others who have been given the extreme penalty who have been given new trials by the court of appeals, among the number being Caleb Powers, three times convicted of complicity in the murder of Governor William Goebel by Democratic juries.

In the Jefferson county jail at Louisville there are five men under the death sentence. William Van Dusen, convicted of the murder of his mistress, Fanny Porter, will hang on February 24. The other prisoners in the Jefferson county jail under a sentence of death are George Warner, Jacob Bischoff, James Thomas and Edward Brown. The last two named are negroes.

In the Fayette county jail at Lexington are John Taylor, Ed Taylor and James Garfield Smith, negroes, recently given the death penalty for the murder of William Moore, a white man, in a saloon on November 20.

Confined in cells at the Covington jail in Kenton county are two of the most noted prisoners under the death sentences—Curt Jett and Tom White, convicted of murder at Jackson. They were tried in Winchester, Ky., last summer. They are now asking for a new trial before the appellate court.

In the Owensboro jail a negro and a white man are under death sentences. They are Roy Green, col., who is to hang on February 17 for the murder of James Comes at the fair grounds in July, and Robert Mathley, convicted of the murder of Emma Watkins. His case is now before the appellate court on a motion for a new trial.

In Hopkinsville, four negroes were recently given the death penalty for the murder of an unknown white man at Pembroke. Three of the negroes were granted new trials and one was refused a new hearing. George Holland is sentenced to hang on July 6.

Besides the above thirteen men who are sentenced to hang there are a number of murder trials before the different courts. It is expected that before summer several more will be given the extreme penalty.

Death of G. W. Johnson.

Mr. G. W. Johnson, a well-known farmer of Crittenden county, died last Friday after an illness of eight days due to pneumonia. Mr. Johnson was in the sixty-second year of his age and was an inoffensive, kind hearted and respected citizen. He was a member of the Baptist church and leaves a wife and three grown sons besides several brothers. Burial took place at the Johnson grave-yard Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

The deceased was the owner of "Silver Ridge" farm, so called from the belief of Mr. Johnson that it abounded in rich deposits of silver and other minerals. The property was never developed but he always contended that it was a bonanza and he has refused fabulous offers for his farm.—Providence enterprise.

Ingersoll's Tender Spot.

This celebrated passage was written ten years ago by Colonel Ingersoll in response to an invitation to a Clover Club dinner.

"I regret that it is impossible for me to be in 'clover' with you tomorrow. A wonderful thing is clover. It means honey and cream; that is to say, the happy bees in perfumed fields. This clover makes me dream of happy hours of childhood's rosy cheeks—of dimpled babes—of wholesome, happy wives—of honest men—of springs and brooks and violets, and all there is of stainless joy in peaceful human life. A wonderful word is clover. Drop the 'c' and you have the happiest of mankind. Take away the 'c' and 'r' and you have the only thing that makes a heaven of this dull and barren earth. Cut off the 'r' alone and there remains a warm, deceitful bud that sweetens breath and keeps the peace in countless homes whose masters frequent clubs."

Lost—a good winter lap-robe, black on one side and red clouded on the other, was lost from one of our rigs either in Marion or somewhere between here and Crayneville. The finder will please return to our stable and be rewarded.

INDORSES THE CRITTENDEN RECORD

At the Meeting of the Republican County Committee Monday the Following Resolutions Were Unanimously Adopted.

It having been made apparent to the most casual observer of the trend of political events in this our good county of Crittenden, that the Republican party as a party in this county stands today on safer ground and enjoys a better prestige than ever before, that our organization is in better shape than at any time before in our history.

WHEREAS: The Republican representatives here in convention assembled, believing that in a great measure this state of affairs is due to the strong and able newspaper now being published in our city of Marion in the interests of our party as well as the interests of the town and county, and

WHEREAS: We believe that the phenomenal record of our party at the last election was due in a great measure to the publication in question, and

WHEREAS: We further believe this publication stands for truth and right in all things and at all times, between all parties, creeds or colors, dealing justly with Democrat and Populist as well as Republicans. Now be it

RESOLVED: That we the Republican party representatives in convention assembled in Marion, Ky., on February 13th, 1905, do hereby recommend to all men of whatever party, race or color, their earnest consideration and support for the Crittenden Record, of Marion, Ky., published by Mr. Jas. E. Chittenden. And be it further RESOLVED: That a copy of these resolutions be tendered Mr. Chittenden, with a request for their publication in the next issue of his paper.

Don't be Afraid of Fruit.

We frequently are told that "fruit disagrees with me" and yet the fruit diet is capable of doing great good. The rational use of good fruit improves the digestion, increases the alkalinity of the blood and destroys the germs of fermentation which are such a prolific source of indigestion, has a favorable effect upon the change of food to tissue and the reduction and carrying off of dead tissue, and increases the secretions of the liver and kidneys. Torpid secretions are responsible for so many ailments that a fruit diet, with its tendency to stir glandular activity often works wonders in a short time. The trouble with many is that fruit is taken at the end of a hearty meal when the stomach is already filled to overflowing with a hodge-podge of meats, pastry, bread, pickles, vegetables and sweets. Try one meal a day of fruit and note the result.

If troubled with constipation, try fruit once a day and drink freely of distilled water.

Money Making.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The report of the commissioner of patents for the calendar year of 1904 shows receipts $1,657,327; expenditures $1,467,000 and a balance in the treasury to the credit of the patent office January 1 last, of $5,863,876 which includes receipts of past years. There were 52,143 applications for patents, an increase of nearly 2,000 over 1903, and 20,428 patents expired. There were 30,824 patents and designs issued, 110 patents re-issued, 2,158 trade marks, 1,114 labels and 297 prints registered.

Are Your Lungs Strong?

The best means of developing the lungs is given by Cyrus L. Toppliff in the Scientific American. He says no elaborate breathing exercises or gymnastic movements are necessary to develop the lungs, in fact, one simple breathing exercise would be sufficient—the double-breath. This exercise is taken as follows: Stand erect, with the hands at the side, in line with the legs; take one long, full breath, hold it for a second, then take another quick, short breath on top of the other breath, and hold all for a second longer, then gradually exhale the air through the nose. All inhalations and exhalations should be through the nose, and not the mouth.

"Singin Skule" Monday Night.

The "Singin Skule Begimment" which the ladies of the M. E. church are going to present at the opera house next Monday night is going to be one of the most pretentious local talent entertainments probably ever presented in Marion. In Evansville it played to an audience of more than 1500 people and in Henderson, Madisonville, Hopkinsville, Paducah and other neighboring cities, it has been equally successful. A large cast of local people has been selected and secured to take part and the rehearsals are being conducted afternoon and night by the directors, Messrs. Bertram and Willard, of New York, who will also play the two leading parts. The performance of these gentlemen is said to be a rich comedy treat and when they get mixed up with so many of the funny and clever people of our own community, there is sure going to be some fun. Reserved seats will be on sale at Gilbert & Hicklin's Saturday morning.

A Medley of Errors.

We take this to be our valentine! A marked copy of the Fourth Estate containing the following notice, was received last Tuesday: "E. W. Hoch, the new governor of Kentucky, is a newspaper publisher, being the owner of the Marion Record in that state."

We hope we won't be accused of being Hoch, the bigamist, to complete the list of errors contained in this gubernatorial sketch.

We will also look for a disclaimer from Governor Beckham that he is not Hoch, but he can hardly protest against being known as a "newspaper publisher" or character sketch artist.

Stewart-Hall.

E. P. Stewart, the popular Carlisle street jeweler, and Miss Blanche Hall, of Owensville, Ind., were married Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hall.

The groom is a former resident of Owensville, but has been a resident of this city since last July. To those who have seen him at his place of business near the postoffice he needs no commendation.

The bride is one of the most popular young ladies of Owensville and has hundreds of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will reside in this city.

Dick Knott Fined $500.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 14.—Richard W. Knott, editor of the Evening Post, was fined $500 in the criminal court to-day for alleged libel, the complainant being one Pat Sharkey who keeps a saloon which a reporter on the Post designated as a resort for thieves and grafters. Knott admitted the publication and endeavored to prove the article as true. The verdict is a surprise inasmuch as Col. Hanger, ex-chief of detectives, said in his testimony that thieves and crooks and "sure thing" men did infest the place. It was generally thought that Knott would be acquitted. He will appeal the case.

At the residence of Mrs. H. H. Sayre on Main street, Mrs. J. H. Tonkin entertained the euchre club Tuesday night.

A Yellow Dog To Bark Against You

Do you realize that the science of advertising and job printing has expanded and developed to a point where it demands the best thought of some of the best men in business, literature and art?

Do you realize that advertisements cannot be satisfactorily presented to the public unless dressed in the newest and best of modern types, and that no amount of time spent in juggling old type faces can change this fact?

Do you realize that the public is too smart to be fooled, and only the best will command its attention?

The best work goes out only from the best equipped printing offices. We offer you the privilege and it is your opportunity to secure it at that sort of an office.

Every time you send out stationery printed with out-of-date or worn type you send out a yellow dog to bark against you—as long as he barks you will lose business—when he bites you will close your doors.

Leading advertisers and business men can obtain results and take no chances by advertising in The Crittenden Record and patronizing its Job Department.

TWO KINDS OF WEATHER.

The rain is softly coming down And all the world's a fizzle. There is no joy in lane or town When everything's a drizzle. The earth is just a clot of mud, Gray hides the loveliest blue, dear; This drizzle gets into the blood And makes me long for you, dear.

Do you recall the day we went Together upward climbing, Your hand in mine, my eyes intent On yours; my pulses rhythmic To every footstep, dear, you took. You, dear, and me together, 'Neath dripping clouds, all gray of look? And that was glorious weather!

Your eyes gave back my eyes' look. My looks were all carefree. We reeked not of what was we took. The raindrops in your tresses Shone softly like imprisoned pearls, Each held by a gold tether— Our clasping hands! Your laugh! Your curls!

But now the rain is dripping down, And all the world's a fizzle. There is no joy, I'm all alone, And everything's a drizzle! The world is just a clot of mud, Gray hides the loveliest blue, dear! This drizzle gets into the blood And makes me long for you, dear!

A COLLEGE EPISODE

By MABEL ERVIN

(Copyright, 1905, by Dally Story Pub. Co.)

THE little white room at Monnette Hall, the ladies' "sem," tripped Nell Martin. Her dark face was flushed with pleasure, and her arms were filled with gay flowers that she tossed on the white covered bed. All but one bunch of rich, red roses. These she gently caressed and pressed to her happy face, kissing the soft petals and burying her bright face in their fragrance. She had fled from her classmates for this moment alone with her happiness.

"Dear little flowers! You are worth all the work of the year," she said, as she glanced in the mirror at the red bloom against her soft cheeks. Then she read again the note that had come with the flowers.

"Let me see you this evening after tea—when it is all over."

"JOHN."

"All over? It has only begun," said the girl, smiling at herself in the glass.

The steady eyes of a fresh, boyish face caught her glance, looking at her from a photograph on her dressing table. The girl picked up the photograph.

"Dear old Fred. I know I've not used you right, and my conscience hurts me, but I couldn't help it. And you'll forgive me—after tonight—when I tell you. You won't want to marry me when I tell you I love some one else. But I couldn't help it, Fred. No, I couldn't."

There was a slight tap at the door, and a merry crowd of "coeds" burst into the room, laughing and talking at once, kissing and hugging the girl, and offering their homage to the valedictorian of their class, while the girl's mind kept time to the song of love in her heart.

"DEAR OLD FRED"

"Oh, you've done so well!" cried a dainty blonde, and you've even avenged Vivian, too."

"Poor John!" said another pretty girl. "I do really feel sorry for him—to be jilted after the way he's rushed you all year. Will you see him again before you go home?"

"I don't go till morning, and I'll see him to-night," said Nell.

"Don't forget I'm to be one of your bridesmaids, dear," said the dainty blonde, throwing her arms about her chum's neck and whispering: "When are you and Fred going to be married?"

Nell's face flushed as red as her roses.

"I don't know, girly," she said.

That evening the sloping lawn of Old Monnette was bright with lanterns, and the June moon cast a radiance over trees, and shrubs, and grass. The splashing of a fountain and the evening song of the crickets broke the summer stillness.

Nell Martin sat on a low garden stool, leaning against the trunk of a big oak tree. She still wore her soft white graduation gown, and a bright red rose was pinned on her bosom.

A man sat at her feet on the grass and looked admiringly at her dark beauty, revealed by a stream of moonlight through the trees. He was young, broad-shouldered, handsome, with none of the soft tenderness of the photograph on her dressing table. "Have you enjoyed the year, Nell?" he asked, gently.

"Yes, and now I'm going home," "To Fred?" asked the man.

"The girl smiled, but did not answer."

"Well, after all these pleasant months, are you going home to marry Fred?"

The girl put out her hand to brush a stray lock of hair from his brow, but he caught the hand and pressed it to his lips.

"Would you be disloyal to yourself, Nell?"

"No," whispered the girl. The man toyed with the ring that gleamed on her finger.

"May I take it off, Nell?"

"Yes," said she. The man slipped Fred's ring to the tip of the girl's slender finger; but he did not take it off.

"I must tell you a story of the first of the college year before I take that ring off, Nell," he said.

Still holding her hand he began: "The story begins the first day of the fall term. I'd come over from the 'room' to see some of the old girls. They were not in, so I stretched out in the shade of some bushes to wait for them. But I fell asleep, and a crowd of girls on the other side finally woke me up. I don't remember exactly who all of them were, but among them were you and the girls I had come to see."

A shudder ran through the girl's frame, and the man gently stroked her hand.

"They were loudly denouncing me," went on the man, and calling me names I did not fancy. 'Man flirt,' 'wretch,' 'that smart chap,' 'struck on myself,' and so forth, and saying I had flirted all year with Vivian Rea, and then let her go home without a word. Some one ought to 'avenge' Vivian, and 'show me.' They said if there was a girl in college who could flirt worse than I could 'twas you. You were engaged to Fred Greer, so your heart was safe; you were beautiful—and you are beautiful, Nell—you could not remember how many proposals you had during your two years at U. of C.—and then I heard a laugh, and a girl said: 'All right, girls, I'll do it. I'll make him propose to me, if it takes all year and I miss my 'exams.' And when he does I'll tell him of poor Vivian's broken heart. A girl who can be engaged to a man like Fred Greer ought to bring a flirt like John Sherwood to her feet."

"Looking through the bushes, Nell, I saw you, and I must admit I rather fancied the prospect."

The girl tried to draw away her hand, but the man held it fast.

"I fell an easy victim, didn't I?" he continued. "You did not have to lead me on. I seemed to simply glide into the net. I did break Vivian's heart, Nell, for I made her love me. But she refused me because I have not as much money as has that old chap she's marrying to-night."

The man stopped speaking, and they sat in silence for a time. Only the sounds of summer and the splashing of the fountain broke the stillness.

"You say you have had a pleasant year, Nell; and so have I. Now shall I take the ring off?" he asked, at length.

Then came a burst of merriment from a group of college revellers coming up the path.

The girl's face showed pale in the moonlight, and her dark eyes gazed vacantly ahead. She did not hear the class yell proclaiming her honors of the morning. Not trusting herself to speak, she snatched her hand from the man's now relaxed grasp and, arising, ran swiftly up the moonlit path and into the shadowed doorway of Old Monnette Hall.

COLLEGE FOR WORKINGMEN

Mature Laborers Study Classics at Unique British Institution—Geology Teacher a Carpenter.

London.—That exceedingly interesting institution, the English Workingman's college, has just celebrated its jubilee.

Situated in Great Ormond street, in a quaint old house, it has now outgrown its old quarters and a new building is being erected for it at St. Pancras. All of its students are workmen of mature age, the Nestor among them being a man of 71, who is studying Italian. A compositor of 57 is also studying that language, after having mastered Greek in six years.

When he was asked why he wanted to study the language of Homer he answered: "Well, you see, I sometimes have to set Greek words in type, and I do not like doing things I do not understand."

One student, who, while learning Latin, had to go to the war in South Africa, translated Virgil while on blockhouse duty, and when he returned he went back to the college and became a teacher of Latin. The teacher of geology is a cabinetmaker, who began by studying at the college. A working jeweler, who was once a pupil, recently left $30,000 to the college.

One of the most promising students is a butcher, who is studying law.

Many prominent men have acted as teachers, among them Ruskin, who taught drawing; Lord Milner, who lectured on political economy; and Mr. Lytton, the present colonial secretary, who taught law.

In Memoriam.

A sweet little baby has gone from this world to a better land called Heaven. The Death Angel visited the home of Charlie and Malinda Dalton, taking their only little girl, Hilda Agnes Dalton. She was born April 18, 1903, and died January 26, 1905. She was laid to rest in the Dunn's Spring grave yard. Little Hilda was sweet and good from the time she was born until death.

She had a smile for everybody that spoke to her, and always liked everyone. The last sweet smile that they saw come over her little face, was the night before she died. She saw her little doll and smiled and took it in her little arms—it was laid to rest with her.

She leaves father and mother and two little brothers to mourn her death. Weep not, father and mother, your little darling is with Jesus and the angels. She can not come to you but you can go to her. In the sweet by and by you may expect to meet her on that beautiful shore.

Obituary.

George Washington Blackburn was born in Caldwell county, Ky., December 3, 1852, and died February 3, 1905, at his home in Marion, Ky. He was twice married, first to Bettie Herald in 1873 and to this union was born one child who died in infancy. He was married last to Rosa Bell Crowell in 1875 and to this union were born seven children, three of whom are dead. He professed faith in Christ at the age of about 19 and joined the Baptist church at Bollason where he remained loyal to his church and true to his pastor till God saw fit to call him away.

We can not always understand why we are to lose our best friends and neighbors, why God robs his church of its most useful members, why he calls a true husband and a kind father away when within our sphere it seems that they are so much needed, when he leaves us none better, none truer, none braver, yet we bow in humble submission to his will for "all things work together for good to them that love God." We believe that within this man was an inheritance of courage, of manliness, of imperishable love of liberty, of undying adherence to principle. Bro. Blackburn's infancy and youth, you might say, have none of these distinctions, none of these pitiful features appealing to the tender heart and open hand of Charity, although he was a poor boy born and reared on a farm. The small and the great timbers has he cut from off the uncleared ground, yet no man ever grew up in the agricultural regions of Western Kentucky, where house raisings or even corn shuckings were a matter of common interest and helpfulness with any other feeling than that of neighboring and respecting neighbor's rights and we can safely say that a better neighbor no man ever lived by.

His opportunities for securing an education was extremely limited as most of his school days passed with the Civil War, yet he took as his text-book the Bible and read its pages until he became very familiar with its literature.

He was buried at Dollason, February 4th, Rev. W. H. Moore conducting the funeral. There he sleeps to await the resurrection. Heaven's richest blessings rest upon the bereaved ones.

MAKE ODD NUPTIAL PACT.

Widow Who Remarries Is to Cherish Memory of First Spouse and Will Be Buried by His Side

St. Louis, Mo.—Although Mrs. Henrietta Melrose a comely widow, of St. Louis county, loves Martin Krueger well enough to marry him she does it with the express understanding that she cherishes the memory of William Melrose, her first husband.

When she dies Mrs. Melrose is to be buried beside the body of her first husband. If Krueger survives her, it is distinctly understood that he is to claim no right of interment in the lot where she will be buried by the side of her first husband.

The consideration of this agreement is the marriage of the couple and the renunciation of all dower and curtesy rights that otherwise would rise from their union. The document has been filed in the office of the recorder of deeds in Clayton.

Krueger also lives in St. Louis county. Like his fiancée he is making his second venture in the matrimonial state. Both have several children by their first marriage. Fearing complications they went to the office of a St. Louis lawyer as soon as they became engaged and had him draw up the antenuptial contract.

Krueger owns 51 acres of land in St. Louis county, while Mrs. Melrose owns a 25-foot lot on University street. Besides, both own personal and mixed property, while Mrs. Melrose also owns the lot in St. Peter's cemetery, in St. Louis county, where Melrose is buried, and where she is to be buried and where Krueger is not to be buried.

All marital rights arising from dower and curtesy are mutually renounced. The incomes of the estates, however, are to be shared jointly and divided equally in the event that their union is severed by any other cause than death.

'PHONES FOR THE DEAF.

Experiment Tried in Church for Those Unable to Hear Proves Very Popular.

Bridgeport, Conn.—That deaf members of his congregation might hear his sermons, Rev. Royce Wilkin Raymond, pastor of the Stratford Methodist church, introduced telephones into the pews of several parishioners. A big transmitter, shaped like a megaphone, was placed in front of the platform, and from that wires were laid to various pews in which were fixed receivers.

The proposal to install the telephones was received with hesitation by some members of the church, the question as to whether or not such an innovation would be compatible with the dignity of the service being raised. At the trial those who were enabled to hear the pastor's words clearly for the first time in many years were enthusiastic over the plan, and the telephones will probably be permanent features of the church.

An Awkward Innovation.

Going to have a bank that will keep open all night. That's awkward, remarks the New York Telegram. Don't suppose the cashier will be any more unbending than in the daytime, or the collateral look bigger under the electric light; and then it knocks out that old yarn about "as soon as the bank opens in the morning."

An Innocent Sport.

Threats are being made that parties in future French duels will be punished. Why should there be an objection to innocent sport?

TO GO LIKE CYCLONE.

PARISIAN CLAIMS 500 KNOTS AN HOUR FOR NEW BOAT.

Craft Patented by Him Shaped Like a Sugar Loaf and Propelled by Suction—Maxim Not Sanguine Over Vessel.

Paris.—Five hundred knots an hour is the speed which M. Andre Gamblin, a Paris inventor, claims will be attained by a boat which he has patented, but not yet built.

M. Gamblin appropriately calls his invention the "Typhoonoid," and states that the time is not far distant when people will be able to breakfast in London and dine in New York.

By means of a water-sucking cone placed in front of the ship, a vacuum is created and the vessel is drawn forward by pneumatic suction.

It flies, as it were, through a vacuum, as letters do through the postal pneumatic tubes. The vessel will be shaped something like a swollen sugar loaf, and will be partially or totally under water when traveling. The inventor bases his hopes on the achievements of a working model.

"The principle is workable, and the ship would go," declared Sir Hiram Maxim to a press representative, "but it would cost more than five miles an hour I should be surprised."

"Merely to double the speed of a ship means that the vessel will strike twice as many tons of water in a minute, and will strike each ton twice as hard."

Consequently, four times the energy is required to drive the ship over a given distance at the double speed, and as the engines have only half as much time to generate four times as much power, they would have to be eight times as powerful.

"Once upon a time," continued Sir Hiram, grimly, "I made a little gun which I claimed would be about twice as effective as other guns. It was later, a man who had never made a gun in his life, constructed a very large one, using no machinery except a typewriter. This man, not being troubled by any mathematical laws, said his gun was 50,000 times as effective as my gun. It was not. That is my moral."

FRIENDS IN SPIKE OF WAR.

Gen. Terauchi, Japanese Minister of War, and Kuropatkin Exchange Swords on Eve of Combat.

Tokio.—An interesting story of the great struggle at arms between Japan and Russia lies in a long established personal friendship between Gen. Terauchi, minister of war of Japan and Gen. Kuropatkin, and an exchange of swords as presents between the two on the eve of the war.

Kuropatkin and Terauchi met in Paris 10 years ago. Terauchi, then a major, was military attaché to the Japanese legation in the French capital and Kuropatkin, a major general at that time, went to France to observe the military maneuvers. The two soldiers met first officially, and there soon sprang up between them a feeling of warm friendship and regard. They parted in Paris and did not meet until Kuropatkin came to Japan last year. The lapse of years had brought increased rank and cabinet portfolios for both, and their reunion was an interesting one.

Events were then moving rapidly toward war, but the rupture had not come, and the two ministers met as friends and freely enjoyed the reunion. When Kuropatkin was about to leave Japan for home Terauchi presented him with a Japanese sword—an old blade of the finest workmanship, and with an interesting history.

When he reached St. Petersburg Kuropatkin gave an order for the manufacture of a Russian sword for his friend Terauchi. It was finished and dispatched in December, and reached the Japanese capital a week before Tokyo guns opened fire on Port Arthur.

A peculiar thing about the Russian sword is that it reached Tokio with the blade keenly sharpened, a custom followed by officers as a rule only in time of war.

WRITES A BOOK ON FLIES.

Western Instructor in Entomology Produces Work Recognized as Standard on the Subject.

Moscow, Idaho.—John Merton Aldrich, the professor of zoology and curator of the museum of the University of Idaho, is the author of a 600-page book devoted to a classification and scientific description of the flies of North America. This entomological work is to be published under the direction of America's famous Smithsonian institution, and will be a recognized standard work on this subject. Prof. Aldrich has received and corrected proofs for about 200 pages of the book and returned them to Washington, D. C., where the book is being printed.

Coming from the Smithsonian institution, this work will be accepted as standard practically the world over on this subject. Few people realize the immense amount of labor and thought required in the preparation of a scientific work containing 600 pages of carefully composed matter and the drawing of descriptions of the great many kinds of insects treated of in a work of this character.

In less than one year Prof. Aldrich's book will be in the hands of the entomologists of the world, and the University of Idaho will again be given credit for having enrolled among its faculty one who is to be recognized as an authority.
