TELEPHONE ORDINANCE

PASSED BY CITY COUNCIL TUESDAY.

CUMBERLAND COMPANY

Will Purchase Franchise for Marion Exchange.--Work Will Be Rushed.

At the City Council meeting Tuesday evening an ordinance (published elsewhere in this issue) was passed on behalf of the Cumberland Telephone Company, whose representatives drafted the ordinance in accordance with the ideas and stipulations of the members of the council who finally favored its passage.

The Cumberland's representatives have obtained several meetings of the council recently, and one special meeting three weeks ago, held for the purpose of giving a full hearing to their appeal for a franchise ordinance, drawn in such manner that it would be acceptable to them as purchasers.

The Council has worked faithfully on the subject, and have secured many valuable concessions before favorable action was taken.

Papers were exhibited to the members of the Council showing that 27 contracts have been secured for telephones in the homes and places of business at Tolu. An exchange will be completed there as soon as 40 contracts have been signed.

The company has also secured 39 contracts for telephones at Dycusburg, or within one of the required number for an exchange at that place.

All points within Crittenden county, connected through the Marion Exchange, will be on the free list, and also Salem at which point the company has 66 subscribers and an exchange will be installed there, and will probably be ready for operation as soon as the Marion Exchange.

The company will begin work on the Marion Exchange immediately after the sale of franchise is ratified by the City Council, which action will no doubt be taken at its next regular meeting.

The exchange will be ready for service in ninety days after purchase of franchise.

The following resolutions were offered and passed unanimously:

Whereas, The City of Evansville, through its Fire Department, upon hearing of the disastrous fire in our city, on March 28, 1905, sent a fire engine and crew on a special train to aid us in our extremity, without charge for her services, and;

Whereas, The Illinois Central Railroad Company has made no charges for its services in furnishing a special train for said purpose, and;

Whereas, We, as the City Council, desire to express our appreciation and gratitude for their services,

It is therefore resolved, that we, the city council of Marion, Ky., do hereby express our heartfelt thanks and gratitude to the city of Evansville and especially the members of the fire department, who came to our relief, namely: Chief Grant, Capt. Tom Coughlin, Capt. Attinger, and Messrs. John Dippel, Wm Sartore, Fred Williams, Frank Miller, M. T. Johnson, W. J. Hite, W. Schenck and W. H. Shoemaker. And we also include in this resolution Supt. Downing, of Evansville, and other officials of the Illinois Central railroad company for arranging for transportation of Chief Grant and his assistants and fire engine so promptly and without charge.

It is further resolved, That a special record of our record book be set aside for the recording of these resolutions thereon, and that copies be sent to Chief Grant and Supt. H. J. Downing.

J. F. Yandell, R. F. Haynes, Levi Cook, Louis Clifton, W. H. Copher, J. A. Blue, mayor.

J. A. Bourland, clerk.

ONE WEEK LATER.

(M. E. L.)

The Press is out.

The Record's fire number is still selling at 5c per copy. Everyone wants a copy to keep as a souvenir, or to send to their friends. Our illustrated edition of last week is also in good demand. We have a supply of extra copies in anticipation of the wants of all who are interested in Marion.

Our fire write-up was copied verbatim--typographical errors and all--in the Press last week. Best to be had, price or no price. Even "Peck's Bad Boy" was not omitted. This reminds us,--

The local correspondent of the Courier-Journal, says the Press and Marion Bank are considering plans for a cream pressed brick building, extending from Main street to the postoffice, on Carlisle street. It was also announced sometime ago that the Electric Light Co. and either the Illinois Central or Standard Oil Co. would build a park. We hope both of these dreams may become realities, but it sounds to us just a little like the old partnership of "Myself and God." Who is the Courier-Journal's local correspondent, anyway?

It is "rumored" that the Record has purchased a lot on Carlisle street, just east of the postoffice site, and will build a modest, unpretentious, one story building, man power and editorial staff janitor service. This building proposition probably depends on mustering together sufficient funds for the purpose.

The debris is being rapidly removed and business is assuming a normal condition. That our little city is equal to the occasion has never been in doubt, and that one and all will see the day when they can see and feel that they have been more benefitted than otherwise by the great fire is being accepted by many far seeing citizens as a possibility. With the New Marion will come new enterprise, new opportunities, new ideas and new conditions in general. The sting of loss will be effaced by time, and the thrill of greater success will be implanted in its stead.

The merchants have many odd articles, unmade shoes, one-legged pants, tailless coats, etc., they will sell cheap to the persons holding the missing remnants. Most of these remnants were "missed" the night of the fire, but no questions will be asked of inquirers for prices on these odds and ends.

"S. H. Ramage, the tinner, is doing business in his stable at home."--Crittenden Press, under title, "Where to Find Them."

Far in the past journalism established the unwritten rule that the daily routine events of a man's life was exempt from publication among the personal happenings of the day. Of course a man has the right to transact his own business in his own stable without newspapers throwing the gaze of the public in upon him. Now Mr. J. M. Freeman, of the firm, Williams & Freeman, who are at present using the barn of W. B. Yandell for a feed store, says that it is much more unusual, and even worse, to have to sell hay, corn and oats out of another man's stable.

Crittenden Springs.

Crittenden Springs, the well-known summer resort located about five miles from this city will be opened to the pleasure of health seekers and the public in general about the first of June. The hotel will be under the management and direction of Jno. W. Wilson, of this city, who cannot be surpassed as a genial, sympathetic host, and who is one of our most public spirited citizens. A few years ago when the Crittenden Springs hotel enjoyed an unusual patronage and entertained hundreds of guests it was under the direction of Mr. Wilson.

PRINCETON, Ky., April 13.--Fire last night caused $15,000 damages in the business district.

CENTENNIAL MEETING

OF OLD SALEM BAPTIST CHURCH.

SOME PECULIAR MODES

In Slavery Time.--An Interesting Program Announced.

On the fifth Sunday in April the old Salem Baptist church in Livingston county will be one hundred years old and centennial services will be conducted to commemorate the event. The old records of the organization are intact and will be exhibited at the centennial services. These records are at present in the hands of Rev. J. S. Henry, of this city, who is preparing an essay on the past membership of the church from a historical standpoint.

To the present generation the old records of this church reveal customs that are strikingly odd and entirely unknown in church organizations of to-day. In that day the colored people, all of whom were slaves, confessed Christ and were united with the churches to which their masters belonged, and in spiritual matters they were considered the equal of their masters. One or more instances are on record in the history of this church where a white person had injured a colored person unwittingly for which that person was either expelled from the church, or required to make public acknowledgements of the wrongs in the church.

The program that will be rendered on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of the centennial gathering follows: Program of Ministers' and Members' meeting to be held with old Salem church, Livingston county, on Friday and Saturday before the 5th Sunday in April:

1. Introductory Sermon--E. B. Blackburn, E. M. Eaton.
2. Some Suggestive Methods of Bible Study--T. A. Conway.
3. What Should we Contribute to Missions--M. E. Miller.
4. Sermon for Criticism--E. C. Newbern, W. G. Hughes.
5. How to increase the spirituality of church members--J. S. Henry.
6. The Importance of Giving Serious Attention to Church Discipline--R. A. LaRae.
7. Some Advantages of the Sunday School--John Lockhart.
8. Sermon on Missions--C. E. Perryman.

U. G. HUGHES, Com'tee.

M. E. MILLER, Com'tee.

Centennial Service 5th Sunday.

8:30. Divine Service by John Lockhart.

Reading, History of Church by J. S. Henry.

Address on History of Church by G. M. McGrew, P. H. Carr, Henry Hodge and others.

History of Pastors, led by Henry Cochran, Dell Robinson and others.

Future Outlook of Church, M. E. Miller, T. A. Conway.

Hina-Babb Co.

C. B. Hina, a former salesman of the Marion Hardware Co. and C. R. Babb, of Salets, have purchased the salvage of the Marion Hardware Co. left from the recent fire and will enter the hardware business under the firm name of Hina-Babb Co. They will close out all the goods of the former company that were damaged in the fire at bargain prices and will buy new goods from time to time.

As soon as the burned district is rebuilt this firm will occupy either the old stand or another building in the center of the city's busiest district.

At present their headquarters are in the barn near the Marion Graded School building. These men are upright and energetic and we bespeak for them a successful business career.

SENATOR FRANCIS MARION COCKRELL'S SUCCESSOR.

Major William Warner, who succeeds Francis Marion Cockrell as United States senator from Missouri, is sixty-five years of age and is an ex-commander in chief of the G. A. R. He served twelve terms in congress prior to 1889.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

"No, Sir! You cannot palm off any substitute on me. I've been using August Flower since I was a boy, and I'll have no other."

Forty million bottles of August Flower sold in the United States alone since its introduction! And the demand for it is still growing. Isn't that a fine showing of success? Don't it prove that August Flower has had unflinching success in the cure of indigestion and dyspepsia—the worst enemies of health and happiness? Does it not afford the best evidence that August Flower is a sure specific for all stomach and intestinal disorders?—that it is the best of all liver regulators? August Flower has a matchless record of over 35 years in curing the ailing millions of these distressing complaints. Two sizes, 25c and 75c. All druggists.

UNDER ONE BANNER.

The People's Party will live in history as long as men have interest in political history, even if it never wins another political victory, and it will live for this reason: When the progress of invention and science was producing new economic conditions everywhere, when the old ways and the old statesmanship were failing to meet the wants of mankind, when men saw before them only anarchy or absolutism, when degeneration, moral and physical, was impending and no man pointed to a day of escape, Populism pointed out a way, and the only way. Little by little the principles of Populism were adopted. First one city and then another, one State and then another, some in the East and Some in the West, adopted some of the principles of Populism. They did it because there was no other way of salvation. The cities adopted municipal ownership of city utilities, and the States put into practice initiative and referendum. Day by day the work goes on. The advocacy of government ownership of railroads spread with astonishing rapidity.

The land question will press as hard for solution in a few years as public ownership of city utilities does now, and the money question will some of these days spring into prominence and press upon the public welfare with such overwhelming power that it will have to be settled. In that day the Populist monetary principles will have to be adopted.

Let the gold mines fall off in production to any great amount for a year or two and the money question will be on us again. In the next few years the whole civilized world will have to adopt Populist principles. There is no other way.

While the Populists have certainly given to the world a theory of government and the only theory that is adapted to modern conditions, they have not evolved any politician capable of marching the voters under its banner, but such a man may appear at any time. Without any doubt, ninety-nine men out of every one hundred in the United States are Populists. In fact, all men are except those who accumulate wealth by pirating upon the inhabitants of the nation.

Ask any man if he does not want a money that every dollar is as good as every other dollar and he will say yes. Ask him if he does not believe that land is the heritage of the people and that it should not be monopolized for the benefit of the few, and he will say yes. Ask him if he don't think that the alien ownership of land should be prohibited and he will say yes. Ask him if he does not believe in the public ownership of everything where competition is impossible, and he will say yes.

When and where the master leader will appear who will gather under one banner this overwhelming majority of the people and get them to vote one ticket we do not know. It is altogether probable that he will appear in every great crisis of men in modern times. At the critical moment the leader did appear, and we believe within the next three years such a man will loom up and be recognized by all who love good government. He may be some man hitherto prominent, or some one who has been a silent student of the affairs of men.

But whether such a man appears or not within the Populist ranks one thing is certain. The world is going to adopt Populist principles, and the men who gave Populism to the world will be the heroes of the future, just as men are still heroes who help to establish individual liberty in the world and overthrow the doctrine of the divine rights of kings. Yours respectfully,

AN OLD GUARD

Druggists Who Sell Dr. Miles' Nerve Agree, if it Fails, to Refund Cost.

Of course we reimburse the druggist.

You know him and trust him. Dr. Miles' Nerve is medicine for your nerves.

It cures disease of the internal organs by giving tone to the nerves which make these organs work.

It is a novel theory—not of anatomy, but of treatment; first discovered by Dr. Miles, and since made use of by many wide-awake physicians, who appreciate its value in treating the sick.

If you are sick we offer you a way to be made well—Dr. Miles' Nerve.

This medicine is a scientific cure for nerve disorders, such as Neuralgia, Headache, Loss of Memory, Sleeplessness, Spasms, Backache, St. Vitus Dance, Epilepsy or Fits, Nervous Prostration, etc.

By toning up the nerves, Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve will also cure those diseases of the internal organs due to a disordered nervous system.

CLIMATE AND CROPS

ULLETIN ISSUED BY

arm Work Well Up And
General Good Condition
Is Shown.

The first weekly climate and crop bulletin of this year was issued Tuesday from the state weather bureau. It shows that the past week was well suited to farm work, which is in advance to what it was at this time last year. The cool weather tended to retard the growth of some crops, however. There was some rain during the week, and snow flurries were generally reported April 6. Late frosts were reported, but none of them did serious damage.

In regard to various crops the bulletin has this to say:

Wheat is looking well, is generally in good condition, and has a good stand. Hessian fly is reported as working some damage in the extreme western portion of the state. Tobacco beds are doing finely and there are plenty of good plants. Breaking land for corn is progressing, and some corn has been planted. Late have been pretty well sown and a large acreage was put in. Grasses, clovers and pastures are in splendid condition. Fruit trees are in full bloom and are unusually heavy with bloom. The prospect for a large fruit crop is promising, there being little or no damage by the frost, though peaches suffered in some localities. Peaches were also somewhat winter-killed."

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Husea James, wife of John L. James, died at her home in East Marion, Monday, April 3rd, 1895, after several month's illness of consumption. She bore her afflictions and sufferings with the utmost patience, with scarcely a murmur because of her pains.

Before her death she talked a great deal of how sweet the relief would be from her pain and afflictions and long confinement to the sick bed.

The services were held at the Cumberland Presbyterian church, of which she was a member, on Tuesday evening.

Her facial features bore the appearance of final happiness.

ZINC HOLDS STEADY, BUT LEAD ADVADCED

Good Buying In Joplin District Forerunner to Higher Market.

Joplin, Mo., April 9.—The highest paid for zinc ore in the Joplin district during the past week was $45 per ton, the same as the preceding week. The assay basis was strong—ranging from $39 to $43 per ton of 99 per cent zinc. There seems to be no present indication that zinc ore will recede lower than now. Heavy buying the past week not only took up what little unsold ore was in the bins, but placed some contracts a head for unmined ore, such a departure not infrequently sets as a stimulous to zinc prices, and seldom fails to prove a desirable check to declining prices. Very little ore was purchased during the week ending April 1 on a $43 basis, but the past week some 500 to 800 tons brought a settlement on this basis. Although the sales were unusually heavy during the week the shipment was decreased 450 tons of zinc and 371 tons of lead, the loss being $31,695 less than the previous week.

Lead brought $58 per ton all week in Joplin, but a few bins of this ore was advanced 50 cents per ton in a prosperity camp. A year ago the highest price for zinc ore was $30 and lead $60 per ton.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

(BY GOOSEQUIL.)

The way things point now there are going to be other things "ditched" during Teddy's administration besides the Panama canal.

When Theodore Roosevelt completes his bust of the trusts what will the Democrats put their trust in? But the headquarters of the G. O. P. is a veritable hot house of veritable ingenuity. What they lack in filling up their platform in real issues they will fill up with dreams; namely, all.

The knottiest problem for social-political solution is the would-not fellow.

Corn land year after year and less corn will land in the farmers' cribs.

From reports there is to be no more hay in the Roosevelt cabinet. In the person of John Hay, the secretary of state, the president loses his most trusted adviser and the world one of its greatest diplomats.

Kick out of the current even if the lash of eccentricity is applied.

Russia still seems to be able to rush ahead of the Japs with ever and anon an occasional rest—between volleys.

The latest reports have it that peace in the Far East is in sight. It may be a "piece", though, of Russia's splendid army—before the war.

Commissioner Garfield is not the sort of pill that Kansas Standard oilers like to swallow.

Mrs. Wm. Collier, 135 N. Robey St., Chicago, Ill., under date of Nov. 3, 1901, writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion and nervousness and weakness in the back for seven years. I have been to four doctors and have taken many kinds of medicine, but could not get cured. I saw your advertisement in the paper and I sent for a trial bottle. Even the trial bottle did me good, so I sent for a $1.00 bottle of my druggist, but he had only a 50c bottle, so I sent for a 50c bottle. ## STOPS STEMMING

FOR ENGLISH MARKETS IN KENTUCKY.

Announced There Will Be
No Alteration in the Schedule.

A cable message was received in Louisville from London yesterday announcing that there would be no alteration in the tobacco duty, says the Courier-Journal. This message followed the reading of the budget.

This announcement is of particular interest to Kentucky, since thousands of pounds of tobacco have been shipped to England last year. When the advance of three cents was made on strips about a year ago a rebate was allowed on tobacco already in England. Other concessions were hoped for so that stripping could be continued in this country, but the announcement yesterday that there would be no change in the schedule means that stemming for the English market is a thing of the past in Kentucky.

Equalization Board.

The state board of equalization meets today at Frankfort for the purpose of taking preliminary action as to the counties of the First appellate district. Ten days' notice will be given counties, which must be raised or dates fixed for rehearing should their officials desire it.

This district is composed of McCracken, Ballard, Carlisle, Calloway, Caldwell, Christian, Crittenden, Graves, Hickman, Henderson, Hopkins, Livingston, Lyon, Marshall, Union and Webster.

Louisville Races.

The dates for the running of the important stake events at Churchill Downs at Louisville this spring have nearly all been decided upon. The Kentucky Derby will be run on the opening day, Wednesday, May 10.

The Clark handicap will be decided on Saturday, May 13, and on Saturday, May 20, the Nursery Stakes will be run. On that afternoon the cup race for gentlemen riders will also be on the program. The Kentucky Oaks will be decided on Saturday, May 27.

Important Conventions.

The 40th annual convention of the Kentucky Sunday School Association will be held at Somerset, June 7, 8, 9. An exceedingly strong and interesting program is being prepared. Dr. Char. Roads, of Philadelphia, Rev. E. W. Halpenny, of Indianapolis, and Mr. W. C. Shafer, of Fairmont, West Virginia, are to be the visiting speakers. Each is the general secretary of his state, and they will come to us with well-matured plans. Every school in the state is entitled to representation, and a large attendance is expected.

The 11th International Sunday School Convention meets at Toronto, Canada, June 25-27. About 75 persons have signified their intention of going. This convention will mark an epoch in the Sunday School history of America. For programs or other information regarding either of these conventions, address the State General Secretary, E. A. Fox, 19 Louisville Trust Bldg., Louisville, Ky.

Acreage Agreement.

(Special to New Era.)

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., April 12.—The Tobacco Growers' Association met here in regular semi-monthly session. District reports of Montgomery county were present, showing that 1,482 farmers had signed the acreage reduction agreement. Only 61 farmers in the county have refused to sign.

CARE FOR YOUR GLOVES.

A Little Thoughtfulness Will Keep Them Fresh a Long While.

"Do you realize that a little thoughtfulness will keep your gloves fresh just twice as long?"

If you find a stain on your new glove clean it just as soon as you can. Do not let it dry in and become a permanent disfigurement. Dip a toothbrush in gasoline and rub the glove until clean, drying afterward on a bath towel or piece of flannel.

A white glove should never be worn more than once without cleaning. If it is cleaned promptly after each wearing it can be used indefinitely, as the spots do not become set.

Gloves can be saved in many little ways and their term of usefulness prolonged. The handle of a chatelaine bag will wear a glove white, so it should be carried on the wrist, and the tidy girl uses her handkerchief to save her gloves, particularly when boarding a car, carrying an umbrella or drinking a glass of soda water or chocolate at a drug store.

In large cities dyers will clean gloves in twenty-four hours for 10 cents a pair, so there is no excuse for soiled gloves.

The tidy girl always washes her own silk and lace gloves in summer and takes particular pride in her washable white kids. These gloves are both practical and economical and may be worn for a considerable length of time with careful handling in their laundering. They should be washed on the hands in tepid water and afterward rinsed in several clear tepid waters while still on the hand. Do not pass the soap through the hands, but always use the sadded water. A drop or two of ammonia in the second and last rinsing waters will prevent the gloves from becoming yellow. These washable gloves should be allowed to dry on the hands. If removed while only partly dry they will stretch out of shape.—Boston Traveler.

AN ARTISTIC TRIUMPH.

Rose Bower Curtain of Cretonne For a Boudoir Doorway.

For the lucky bride who has a den or boudoir in her new home this curtain was designed to create the effect of an entrance to a rose bower. The two centerpieces of the curtain were made of flowered cretonne, as may be easily seen. Then a border was made of white cretonne stenciled with green water color to form a latticework like that often seen in a garden. From some odd pieces of the cretonne the flower design was carefully cut out and applied on the border like a running rose vine creeping through a lattice. One's imagination can easily picture the charming effect of such a curtain, with its deep colored roses against the green and white lattice, possibly hung in a doorway of white woodwork.—Ladies' Home Journal.

How to Distinguish Tender Beef.

Meat, to be wholesome, must come from a healthy animal; to be nutritious, from a well nourished one. Much used muscles absorb much food material, making rich, juicy meat. This is, however, tougher than that of parts less used, because the connective tissue and fiber increase as well as the contents of the muscle tubes. The lean of good beef is firm, elastic and, when first cut, purplish red, the surface becoming bright red and moist after exposure to the air. The tenderer cuts are fine grained and well mottled with fat. A thick layer of firm, light straw colored fat extends over the rib and loin cuts. The kidney suet is white and crumbly. Flabby, dark or coarse beef with yellow fat is poor. If it has little fat, it is from an old or underfed creature.

Athletic Women.

Mrs. Gilman, an American authoress, told a select gathering of ladies at the Women's Institute, at Victoria, that woman was not nearly as beautiful as man. She encouraged them to try to become as beautiful as man. She poured scorn on some of the deficiencies of woman. "When a woman runs," she said, "it is an agitated waddle. Climb she cannot, and people take hold of her elbows and help her up and down things. I call it an insulting practice unless a woman has a wooden leg. There is no reason why woman should balk at a fence as she does. You can vault it easily in a skirt, and it is the easiest and most ladylike way of getting over."—London Mail.

For Early Risers.

Where a woman has to get up early to catch a train or make an early start, and there is neither time to get nor inclination to eat a hearty breakfast, try a Boston schoolteacher's expedient of partaking of a cup of coffee into which a raw egg has been dropped. The coffee is stimulating and the egg nourishing, the combination saving much cooking and the washing up of dishes afterward. Workers who have to leave early will find this a simple solution of how to provide the most nourishing food with the least work and time. Chocolate is sometimes substituted for the coffee.

Had you ever thought about what an all around good ticket stands at the head of this column?

The Crittenden Record suffered severely from the terrible fire which recently visited Marion, but made its appearance a little ahead of time last week, somewhat smaller but brimful of news and incidents of the fire.—Evansville Courier.

We would feel ungrateful if we did not express our thanks to the management of the Hopkinsville New Era for the arrangements they have made to publish the Record for us until we get in our new quarters. We also wish to thank the editor of the Princeton Chronicle for offering us the use of his office.

The Crittenden Record, whose plant was destroyed in the big fire at Marion last week, made an extra effort and by having their paper printed in a neighboring city, they did not miss an issue, for which they deserve credit.—Lyon County Times

The Madisonville Progress is the name of a Republican newspaper just launched at Madisonville, edited and published by J. T. McDonald, formerly of the Princeton Chronicle and later the Hopkinsville Messenger. The paper comes out in the form of a seven column folio, is well edited and shows a splendid patronage on the part of local advertisers.

The Cadiz Informer is a creditable weekly published at Cadiz, Ky., by Rev. W. H. McRidley, president of the Cadiz colored Normal and Theological college. It should be read and patronized by colored people every where. Its editorials are strong and enlightening. Our local colored people could well afford to patronize the Informer, and if a sufficient number will interest them selves we feel sure that the paper will gladly publish local items furnished by the colored people here.

We appreciate the many compliments we have received on account of our efforts to furnish our patrons with the Record every week regardless of our misfortune in the fire. We have not missed a single number and by the substantial assistance that we will receive at the hands of our faithful subscribers from time to time—the patriotic and liberal minded sons of "old Crittenden" wherever they go, the days may come and go and the Record will abide with us still.

It will be only a few weeks until new and better buildings will spring up on the burned district of our little city. The Record's new plant will be ready to install when its new building is ready for occupancy. Then the Record will surpass its past standard of excellence. Its present reduced size is a forerunner of something better, and our readers will doubtless appreciate the obstacles under which it is now published.

"Thomas Jefferson wrote: 'Were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate a moment to favor the latter.' A government without the press would be a government without publicity, and a government without publicity would soon become a government of corruption. Though its power is often abused by the unscrupulous, with an intelligent people, able to discriminate between the true and the false, the press, in spreading the truth, exercises a most potential influence for higher and better citizenship."—Gov. Folk.

The determination to succeed and the enterprising spirit possessed by the merchants and business men of this city, all of whom shared losses either directly or indirectly in the recent fire, is evidenced by the manner in which they continue to place their business before the public. When you glance at our advertising columns you will appreciate the true worth of this statement.

The City Council deserves credit for the position it has taken with reference to frame or iron-clad buildings. They have ruled that neither of these shall be constructed for even temporary purposes. This action will meet with the approval of the entire citizenship of the city.

JOHN F. GAYNOR AND HIS FIGHT FOR LIBERTY.

John F. Gaynor and Benjamin D. Greene, whose case has been put back to its original status, were indicted for fraud in connection with the work done in the Savannah river. Greene and Gaynor fled to Canada, and after a sensational series of legal fights were released by order of Judge Cronin. Then the representatives of the United States government appealed to the privy council of Great Britain, which decided that the case must be reopened from the beginning.

COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:

"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment."

"The sums spent for advertising are properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment."

"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made."

"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns."—Advertising Experience.

Advertisers get good returns on the amount invested in our columns. We reach the people.

THE JUICY GRAPE.

Its History Is Well Nigh as Old as That of Man.

The history of the grape is almost as old as that of man. Growing in its highest perfection in Syria and Persia, its luscious fruit recommended it to the especial care of the patriarchal fathers of the soil, and vineyards were extensively planted long before orchards or collections of other fruit trees were at all common.

The grape came originally from Persia. From the latter country as civilization advanced westward this fruit accompanied it—first to Egypt, then to Greece, Sicily, Italy, Spain, France and then to Great Britain, to which latter country the Romans carried it 200 years after Christ.

To America the seeds and plants of the European varieties were brought by emigrants and colonists the first fifty years after its settlement.

There are a vast number of varieties of grapes, but there are really only about a dozen varieties good for the table. California produces the Tokay, Muscat, Black Prince, Malaga, etc., while the eastern states produce such varieties as the Concord, Catawba, Niagara, Delaware, Black Hamburg and Isabella.—New England Grocer.

In After Years.

"Women are certainly changeable creatures," said the weary looking man.

"What's the explanation?" asked the friend of the family.

"During our honeymoon," answered the weary party, "my wife declared she could not live a day without me."

"Well?" queried the family friend.

"Only last week," continued the other, "she tried to get me to insure my life for $10,000 in her favor."—Chicago News.

A Time Limit.

"I'm afraid you smoke too much for your own good," said the physician.

"Well," admitted the patient, "I do smoke almost continuously from morning till night."

"Why do you do that?" asked the M. D.

"Because it's the only time I have to smoke," replied the victim. "I have to sleep at night."

CITY ORDINANCE.

The City Council of the City of Marion, Kentucky, do ordain as follows:

Section 1: That there is hereby created and established a franchise or privilege to erect, maintain and operate a telephone exchange, embracing central office apparatus, fixtures, cables, and wires along, through, over and under the streets, sidewalks, alleys and public places of said city of Marion, Kentucky.

Section 2: That said franchise or privilege shall continue for a period of twenty (20) years from and after the time the same shall take effect.

Section 3: The purchaser of said franchise or privilege may assign or transfer the same.

Section 4: Said poles, fixtures, cables and wires shall be erected and maintained in a substantial and workmanlike manner, and that said work and equipment shall be modern and up-to-date in all respects, and shall be so located as not to interfere with the legitimate entrance to any adjacent private property, nor to obstruct the free use of the said streets, sidewalks, alleys and public places for the purpose of public travel.

Section 5: The purchaser of said franchise or privilege, his successors or assigns, shall promptly replace all paving and macadamizing that may be disturbed by the said purchaser in setting said poles and shall also, at the purchaser's own expense, remove all dirt and debris that may arise in making excavations for that purpose. All work of setting poles shall be done under the supervision of the street committee, and it shall be the duty of the said committee to see that the provisions of this ordinance are faithfully complied with.

Section 6: The City of Marion, Kentucky, shall have the right to maintain and operate the fire and police wires upon the poles of said purchaser (within the corporate limits of said city) free of charge, provided said wires shall be located on said poles in such a way as not to interfere with the wires of the purchaser.

Section 7: Said purchaser, his successors or assigns, shall indemnify said city from any and all damages that may arise from the presence of said poles, fixtures, cables and wires upon, along, over and under said streets, sidewalks, alleys and public places, or from its failure to comply with the provisions of this ordinance.

Section 8: Nothing in this ordinance shall be construed so as to give the purchaser, his successors or assigns, any exclusive right to the privilege granted in Section 1; hereof.

Section 9: The purchaser shall furnish two telephones to the city of Marion, for its use, free of charge; said telephones to be located at such places within the corporate limits of Marion, as the city council may direct, and there shall be no distinction with respect to service rendered from said telephones and the service rendered from other subscribers' telephones embraced in the purchaser's Marion, Kentucky Exchange.

Section 10: The purchaser shall construct and operate telephone exchanges at Salem, Livingston county, Drensbury, and Tolu, in Crittenden county, Kentucky, if satisfactory franchise can be procured in said places, and not less than forty (40) bona fide subscribers can be secured by the said purchaser in each of the said places.

Section 11: There shall be a free interchange of service between all bona fide subscribers to the telephone exchanges operated by the purchaser in Crittenden county, Kentucky, and the purchaser's Salem, Kentucky, Exchange.

Section 12: The city council shall give written notice to the purchaser, or his assigns, of violations of the provisions of this ordinance, and if the purchaser, or his assigns, has not within a reasonable time, after receipt of said written notice, complied with the provisions of said ordinance so violated, the city council may declare said franchise forfeited and so notify the purchaser, or his assigns, of said forfeiture, and the purchaser or his assigns shall suspend business in said city, and for failure to suspend business in said city after receiving notice as aforesaid, the purchaser, or his assigns, shall be subject to a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than fifteen dollars; and each day of twenty-four hours said business is conducted or carried on shall constitute a separate offense.

Section 13: The rates charged subscribers of the purchaser living within 1 1/2 miles air line distance of the purchaser's central office in Marion, Kentucky, shall at no time exceed the following: Until there are 400 stations in the Marion, Kentucky, Exchange of the purchaser.

BUSINESS HOUSES AND OFFICES.

Direct, metallic circuit, long distance equipment, per month... 2.75

After two thousand stations are in operation in the purchaser's said Marion, Kentucky, exchange, said purchaser may at his option, charge fifty cents per month additional for each one thousand stations added to said exchange, for each class of service furnished, and said purchaser may introduce and establish rates for measured service at any time he may elect to do so, it being distinctly understood and agreed that the rates charged the purchaser's said Marion subscribers shall at no time exceed the rates charged by said purchaser under like conditions, for similar service in other towns, and cities of like size and population, in the State of Kentucky, and the purchaser's Marion, Kentucky, subscribers shall, under like conditions, at all times enjoy and have the same privileges with respect to service and rates as all other subscribers of the purchaser in the State of Kentucky.

Section 14: The purchaser agrees to enter into fair and equitable contracts with responsible farmers in Crittenden county, Kentucky, desiring to construct, operate and maintain lines and connect the same with the system of the purchaser, provided such lines as may be constructed are not in competition, and do not conflict with the business or interests of the purchaser; and the purchaser further agrees that transmitters and receivers of the standard forms used by said purchaser will be furnished to farmers constructing lines as aforesaid, for the sum of $1.00 per annum each; payment of said rate to entitle the payer to the same service privileges as are given by the purchaser to subscribers to the purchaser's exchange, at which the line of the said payer centers.

Section 15: Within five days after the approval and publication of this ordinance, it shall be the duty of the City Council through the Clerk of said City, to advertise by posting written or printed notices in at least three public places in said City, for a period of at least ten (10) days, that bids will be received at public outcry for the before mentioned franchise, or privilege, and said City Clerk shall select and state in the advertisement the time and place, (said place to be within said city, and the time to be not later than one o'clock) when bids shall be received, and said Clerk shall, according to advertisement, receive such bids and report same to the City Council at the next regular meeting, and said City Council shall award such franchise to the highest and best bidder.

but said City Council shall reserve the right to reject any and all bids. The bidder to whom said franchise shall be awarded shall pay the amount of such bid, in cash or certified check to the Treasurer of said City of Marion, Kentucky, within ten (10) days after said franchise is awarded.

Section 16: This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

Passed and approved April 11, 1905.
J. W. BLUE, Jr., Mayor,
J. C. BOURLAND, City Clerk.

FARM LAND RAISED

TWENTY PER CENT. INCREASE IN CHRISTIAN

The state board of equalization Tuesday took preliminary action as to the counties of the First appellate district. It accepted the assessment as made and equalized in the counties of Calloway, Hopkins, Livingston, Marshall and McCracken, and raised the assessment made in the other counties of the district as follows: Ballard, 25 per cent on farm land; Caldwell, 15 per cent on farm land, and 4 per cent on town lots; Carlisle, 10 per cent on farm land; Christian, 20 per cent on farm land; Crittenden, 25 per cent on farm land; Fulton 20 per cent on farm land, and 5 per cent on town lots; Graves, 20 per cent on farm land, and 20 per cent on town lots; Henderson, 5 per cent on farm land; Hickman, 25 per cent on farm land, and 10 per cent on town lots; Lyon, 15 per cent on farm land, and 5 per cent on town lots; Trigg, 10 per cent on farm land; Union, 14 per cent on farm land, and 5 per cent on town lots; Webster, 15 per cent on farm land, and 10 per cent on town lots.

Under the law notice of ten days is given the county judges of the several counties of the district and they are authorized to send delegations to appear before the board and ask reductions. These hearings will be begun on April 25 next and continue from day to day.

A CARD OF THANKS.

I am grateful to indeed my many friends who have so liberally patronized me since the fire. Words cannot express the gratitude I owe. But will show my gratefulness by being the same affable hostess I have been for so many years, and will gladly welcome you at my house just across the street from the jail when you are in Marion. An old adage but true, a friend in need is a friend indeed. I feel I can count my friends by the score. Come to see me when in town. Respt.,
Mrs. Sarah Gill.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It is the great medical triumph of the twentieth century. It has been discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing back, kidney, bladder, uric acid and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless poor to purchase relief and has proven so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The bottle of Swamp-Root for fifty cents and all good druggists.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

NAMES OF THE STATES

MOST OF THEM ARE DERIVED FROM INDIAN DESIGNATIONS.

How the More or Less Quaint Sobriquets of the Commonwealths Were Acquired—Nicknames Applied to Citizens of Various States.

George Washington delivered an address before the common council of New York city in 1784, in which he said:

"I pray that heaven may bestow its choicest blessings on your city; that the devastation of war in which you found it may soon be without a trace; that a well regulated and beneficial commerce may enrich your citizens and that your state—at present the seat of empire—may set such examples of wisdom as shall have a tendency to strengthen the Union."

And from that day to this New York has been known as the Empire State.

Back in the early days, before America as a nation began to make history, somebody wrote a romance and called it "Las Sergas de Esplandian." And somebody else published it in 1510. In this tale a beautiful pagan queen called Calafia, living in a kingdom called California, furnished an army of Amazonians to Esplandian, emperor of the Greeks, to aid in defending Constantinople against eastern infidels. This land of the pagan queen was filled with gold.

Cortez, the explorer of later date, had read and been impressed by this tale. When he set out upon his expedition of adventure his mind was thrilled at the thought of new riches he was to acquire, and thus he called the land which he discovered on the Pacific coast California. From that day to this it has been known as the Golden State, and its people have been nicknamed "gold hunters."

It is an interesting matter for investigation this of how the states of the Union came to be called what they are called today, the manner in which they acquired their various nicknames and why their respective citizens are characterized by the more or less odious epithets that cling to them. In other words, why are North Carolinians called "Tar Heels," citizens of Colorado called "Rovers," Indians "Hoosiers" or Missourians "Pukes?"

It is recalling facts in history to answer. In the first place, most of the states which this Union took their names originally from the stream or mountain that formed a conspicuous feature of the territory, and these had been previously named by the Indians.

The state of Colorado was named for the river. The word means "red." As a general thing, Colorado streams are clear, limpid and reflect the blue of the heavens and nature's green. But when mountain storms arise there is rolled through these disturbed waters quantities of red sand, hence the name.

Colorado was admitted into the Union the year of the Centennial, and hence its nickname the Centennial State. Its people are called "Rovers," an epithet that was called into being by the Pike's peak gold fever.

To Missouri, named for the river the Indians called "Big Muddy," and her people is attached the reprehensible nickname of "Puke." This dates back to 1827, the time when the Galena lead mines were drawing people from all over the country. So many of these came from Missouri that other Missourians who had gone on before remarked that the state had taken a sudden "puke."

Several years previous to this time there had been a big exodus from these same mines that had given rise to the nickname of the citizens of Illinois, or "Tribes of Men," as the Indian original of the name signifies. A large party while boarding the steamer at the Galena wharf was asked, "Where ye going?" "To him," was the reply. "Well," was the rejoinder of the old miner, "ye put me in mind of snickers. They do go up the river in the spring, spawn and all return down again in the fall." Thus Illinoisians became "Snickers." The state is known as the Prairie State on account of its sweeping land.

Just why Indianians are called "Hoosiers" is a matter that has not been entirely settled. In earlier days the word "husher" was a common western term for a bully, and this is offered by some authorities as an explanation of the term Hoosier. Others say that it is the result of a contraction of the question, "Who's yer?"

Iowans, "Drowsy Ones," are "Hawkeyes," because an Indian chief of that name once spread terror among travelers abroad in his land. Kansas have been "Jayhawkers" since the days of the civil war, when the guerrilla bands inaugurated a lawless method of warfare. On the other, as if to atone for this unpleasant epithet, the state has been dubbed the "Garden of the West" on account of its great productiveness.

Denizens of the land where the blue grass grows, Kentucky, are called "Corn Crackers," because a rail with this peculiar name is the game bird of that region. Sometimes they are called "Red Horses," but nobody seems to know why.

When La Salle entered the gulf of Mexico, in 1682, he founded the fort of St. Louis and named it for Louis XIV. of France, and the surrounding territory he called Louisiana. The inhabitants of this country originally were French and Spanish settlers, and their descendants even today are called "creoles."

To Henrietta Maria, wife of Charles I. of England and daughter of Henry IV. of France, both Maine and Maryland are indebted for their names. The latter is Mary's land. The former was derived from Mayne, the name of the paternal estate of the French princess. People of this, the lumber state, are "Foxes," both on account of the abundance of this animal and because the lives of many were passed in the woods. Marylanders are "Crawthumpers," a name applied to lobsters by fishermen.

Massachusetts is the Indian word for "Blue Hills." It is the Bay State because it was once the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and the people are "Beaus" on account of the favorite dish which every one knows is theirs.

Michigan is the Lake State, and the people are "Wolverines." Minnesota the North Star on account of the insignia of its seal. Its people are "Gophers," the allusion being to the honeycombed condition of the state due to the numerous small bodies of water.

Mississippi is the Bayou State, and its citizens are "Tadpoles." Nebraskaans are called "Bungsters" because a bird so named and believed to be of evil omen by the rural population frequents that part of the country. People living in Nevada are "Sage Hens," in New Hampshire, "Granite Boys," in Vermont, "Green Mountain Boys," in South Carolina, "Weasels," in Virginia, "Beetles," in Wisconsin, "Badgers."

New Jerseyites are "Cham Catchers," because this is the principal occupation of the poorer classes. Ohioans are called "Buckeyes" because of the abundance of a tree of this name, the nut of which bears a strong resemblance to a buck's eye. North Carolinians are called "Tar Heels." This sobriquet goes back to war times, when the people came out of the pines to fight. About the same time Tennesseans were dubbed "Butternuts" on account of the color of the clothes they wore. "Gun Flints," as applied to citizens of Rhode Island, goes back to the Dorset rebellion of 1842, when the arms of this old description were pulled out from the garrets, where they had lain unused for years.

Texas is the Lone Star State because that was the emblem of her flag before she was admitted into the Union and is still upon the state seal. "Beefheads" the people are called since their chief occupation is cattle raising. Alabamians are "Lizards," people of Florida "Fly Up the Creeks," in Georgia they are "Buzards," in Connecticut "Nutmegs" and in Delaware "Muskates."

The people of Arkansas are "Tooth-picks," which is a playful allusion to the bowie knife that does such good service in that part of the country. An old American ballad says:

Straightway heaped the gallant Flingsby Into armor of steel,
With a strong Arkansas toothpick Screwed in every joint of steel.

Oregon is the "Webfoot" country because the excessive rains in winter render its climate such as only a web footed animal can appreciate. The people are called "Hard Cases," the explanation to be found in the habits of the early settlers.

The stones of the Rock creek bridge at Washington, D. C. are named after the avenues of the city. The name "Pennsylvania" appears on the keystone of the bridge's arch. This fact is cited by some as the explanation of why the state named after the most peaceful of all early American settlers is called the Keystone State, but a better explanation is found in the circumstances attending the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Six colonies had cast their vote in the affirmative, six as opposed to the measure, John Morton, representing Pennsylvania, cast the vote that broke the tie, and by so doing he gained for his state the honor of being the "keystone" in the arch of liberty.—Denver Republican.

LESSON III, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, APRIL 16.

Text of the Lesson, John xii. 1-11.
Memory Verses, 2, 8—Golden Text,
Mark xiv. 8—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1905, by American Press Association.]

It is probable that all the events of Luke ix. 51, to xix. 27, intervene between the raising of Lazarus and the supper and the anointing of this lesson is the home at Bethany. Luke omits the record of this supper and anointing and passes right on to the triumphal entry of the next lesson, which is recorded by all four of the evangelists, while only Matthew, Mark and John record the anointing. What a great contrast between the sorrow in this home in the last lesson and this happy gathering with Lazarus alive and well and Jesus Himself in the midst. How the sadness of that occasion is all forgotten in joys of the present one.

Some one has suggested that in Martha, Mary and Lazarus on this occasion we have, if we take them together, a sample of a well rounded Christian life, for we see in Martha service without anxiety, in Mary true worship, giving to her Lord heart devotion and a costly offering, and in Lazarus the power of the resurrection life. How suggestive the fine words, "At the table with Him." They carry us back to II Sam ix. 7, 10, 11, 13, where we see Mephibosheth, all unconscious, eating continually at the king's table, and onward to Luke xxii. 30, "For ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom." and Rev. xix. 9, "Blessed are they which are called to the marriage supper of the Lamb."

The record in Matthew and Mark of the home in Bethany is called the home of Simon the leper, but we are told whether this Simon was the father of these three or the husband of Martha or what relation he was to them, nor are we told if he was one of the lepers whom Jesus healed nor if he was at this time alive. Some day we shall know the sequel to this, and read another Bible story if we need to.

Putting together the records in Matthew, Mark and John, we learn that Mary poured this very precious and very costly ointment on the head of Jesus, and also anointed His feet and wiped them with her hair. The great value of the ointment reminds us of David's words, "Neither will I offer burnt offerings unto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothing." (II Sam. xiii. 24). What a contrast to the saying of many in connection with the work of the Lord in our day! Why, you can give that or do that and never miss it or not feel it. Well, our blessed Lord felt what He did for us, and to Him it was very costly. How much of His Spirit have we?

Judas, the thief (verse 6), who wanted the price of this ointment in the bag for his own use, is called Simon's son, and we have seen that this was Simon's house, and although Simon was a common name, and there are many such in the New Testament story, we cannot but wonder if this Judas was the black sheep of this family and does that account for his freedom in finding fault with Mary. A more pertinent question, however, would be, Am I a disciple, and if so, am I one in deed and not in name only? There are many who are called disciples to whom the words might be addressed: "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me in this and offerings" (Mal. iii. 8).

Let us get think that the nameless woman of Luke vii. 37, 38, who also anointed our Lord's feet and wiped them with her hair, was Mary of Bethany. Neither let us call her Mary Magdalene, as many have done, but let our Lord so kindly conceal her name let us leave it so, for so He would have it. Oh, for more of such love!

"Let her alone" (verse 7) is a good word for many fault finders to lay to heart, and specially for those who are inclined to criticize woman's ministry. Be of good courage, ye sisters who work in good works which He commends, and fear not the criticism even of the hypocrites. Let His approval be sufficient. Your service may be of world wide significance, as was Mary's (Matt. xvi. 19; Mark xiv. 9), even though those who know you best and seem to respect you superior to you may think and speak against you. Let I Thes. iv. 1, 2, be a comfort to you.

"Against the day of my burying hath she kept this." Is she come aforehand to anoint my body to the burying? (John i. 26 and Mark xiv. 8) would indicate that she was intelligently seizing her opportunity to do just this that the Saviour said. Because she sat at His feet and heard His word I believe that she knew more than others about His death and resurrection. The other women, who perhaps loved Him as much as Mary did, but did not receive the words as she did, bought spices for the body at the first opportunity, but their opportunity never came.

How comforting also to Mary the sorrowful word, "She hath done what she could" (Mark xiv. 8). If this shall be a sign of us, what more can we ask? Let us not waste time wishing that we had done this or that, but simply and bravely do as our hand shall find, as the ability which God giveth (I Sam. xiii. 22; margin; I Pet. iv. 10, 11). We have record of any words of Lazarus after he rose from the dead, but the power of his risen life in the resurrection of him many of the Jews went away and believed on Jesus, and the chief priests consulted to put him to death (verses 10, 11). See and believe in this connection Luke xvi. 16, and believe fully and firmly all we are not thankful, sincerely and

Talmage Sermon

By Rev.
Frank De Witt Talmage, D. D.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 9.—To the faithful, and especially to the backslider who has gone back to the world and its pleasures, this sermon makes a powerful appeal for a renewal of spiritual ties and a rekindling of spiritual activities. The text is Psalm ii. 12, "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation."

Oh, how quickly the wheel of fortune may whirl around! What we are today is no earnest of what we may be tomorrow. Rich and affluent, prosperous and happy now, that does not prove that we shall be rich and happy and prosperous, with a multitude of friends hanging around us, next week or next month or next year. The night follows the day as well as the day the night. The people living in the South American republic of Chile reckon history by this or that or the other earthquake, which has made the heaving earth rock down homes and destroy whole cities and towns and villages. Some of us may reckon the passing away of our lives by the epitaphs which are chiseled upon the tombstones of our buried hopes.

"Year of 1872," we say. "Oh, that was the year of America's awful black Friday, when my fortune like a snowflake melted away in an hour. Year of 1881. That was the year I lost my brother or wife or mother. Year of 1905. That was the year I was injured in a railroad accident. On account of that broken hip I lost my position at the store and had to give up my life insurance policy and become a poor, helpless invalid, a burden on my friends. Ah, I am not as I used to be. Once I had enough for myself and for others. Now I have less than nothing. I am dependent upon those around me."

Better days! Oh, yes, scores of you have seen better days in your body, your property and your families! But, alas, many of us, like the writer of the words of my text, have seen better days in our spiritual condition. I do not know whether this author held, as do the Methodists of our day, that a good man might lose his hold on salvation, but one thing is sure—he knew that he had fallen from grace. He had once tasted the joys of divine sonship. He had once waded ankle deep, knee deep, waist deep, chin deep, into the great depths of God's love and had drunk of those living waters. But now he has climbed out of those depths and stands shivering upon the jagged rocks of evil. In the cold, biting winds of sin. Thus we find him crying out in the words of entreaty: "O God, bring back to me the happiness and the exhilaration and peace of my past gospel life! Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation!"

Have not some of us need to offer the prayer of the psalmist? I know that there are many who are in the position of this psalmist. I know, furthermore, that if you will only return you may taste again the gospel joys, and they will be sweeter to you than they ever were before. An eminent minister of the cross a short time ago told me that the greatest blessing of a revival of religion was not found in introducing strangers to Jesus, but in bringing back to his service those who had once been found at the foot of the cross. "And," said he, "when these wanderers return they make the very best workers in our Christian churches." May God help me to prevail on some of you backsliders again to taste the gospel joys!

Prayer That Is Explicit.
But I never did like praying for "everything in general and for the universe in particular." In order to be more explicit we would divide the psalmist's prayer under three or four distinct headings. In the first place, I would have you make the prayer: "Return unto me, O Lord, the joy which I experienced when I first began to realize the heights and the depths and the lengths and the breadths of thy sacrifices for me. Restore unto me the joy which came to my soul when years ago I first approached the communion table and said, 'Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief.'" Then the tidal wave of happiness rolled over us in surges. Then we said to ourselves: "Saved by grace! Saved by grace! O God, I thank thee that I have been saved by grace!"

Was it a marvelous fact that at that time we should have been happy and have thanked God that we were saved by grace? Surely we would not treat God less gratefully than we would have treated any human being who had rescued us from a threatening danger. When at the battle of Brienne General Gourgaud flung himself before his chief and killed the Cossack who was about to bury his lance in the heart of his emperor Napoleon's gratitude knew no bounds. Thus we feel grateful to our human rescuers. We look with loving eyes toward the skilled surgeon who drove the knife within a hair's breadth of the fatal artery and say: "He saved me! He saved me!" We throw our arms with a grateful, convulsive clasp about the neck of the strong swimmer who breasted the waves and swam out to bring us to shore when we were sinking in the surf. We sound forth the praises of the man who leaped forward at the risk of his life and clutches the bridle of our runaway horse and hangs on until the maddened brute stops his wild career even though his own body is bruised by the plunging hoofs. Shall we not be thankful, sincerely and transcendently thankful, to God for saving us from the results of our evil deeds and sins? But, strange to say, after the divine rescue has been accomplished our gratitude may cool. It may after awhile change into indifference or even into positive repulsion.

Once our souls were aflame with gratitude for what God had done for us. No sooner were we converted than, like the psalmist, we cried out, "Evening and morning and at noon will I pray and cry aloud, and he shall hear my voice." But after awhile our joyful enthusiasm began to cool. We grew indifferent. We turned our backs upon God. We now find reading the Bible a bore and praying a drudgery and talking to Christ and waiting for Christ to talk to us a task instead of an endless pleasure. Oh, my friends, do you want to feel again the exhilaration which came over you on the day of your conversion? Then make the prayer of my text. Make it day in and day out. Make it and continue to make it as you rehearse all God has done for you by the sacrifice of Jesus Christ. Oh, that today we could have the thrill which surged through us when we first felt that God had purged us with hyssop until we were clean, that he had washed us until we were whiter than snow!

Not the Only Joy.
But gratitude to God for what Christ has done for us is not the only joy of salvation that is buried and needs to be renewed. One of these joys that need to be resurrected is the one we used to find in Christian service. No sooner were we converted than immediately we went forth to try to save some one else. Then when we brought a brother or sister to the cross there came over us another joy which we had not hitherto conceived, the joy of saving men and women for Christ. There is no joy on earth greater than that. Not even the joy of being saved ourselves can be compared to the joy of knowing that by the grace of God we have been able to save some one else from perishing.

The man of the world who has never experienced this joy cannot understand it. The exhilaration of it is couched for him in mystical and unknown tongues. For years and years I could not understand what Paul meant in his letter to the Romans. I felt he did not mean what he said. I believed he was only using an exaggerated oratorical figure of speech when he said, "For I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren, my kinsmen, according to the flesh." The more I studied that passage the more I felt and do feel today that Paul literally made this prayer: "O Christ, if there is no way to save my brothers, my sisters, my friends, my people, but by blotting my name out of the book of life, then destroy me for their sakes!" In other words, Paul said, "Destroy me if by my spiritual death others might spiritually live forever in thee." And yet is not this joyful willingness to be sacrificed to save others experienced by the new convert always?

Was young Hamilton's death an undesirable one? No sooner were the honor and life of his father, Alexander Hamilton, threatened in his political warfare against Aaron Burr than his eldest son, the pride of his heart, leaped forward and said, "If necessary I will die that my father shall live." Three long years before the fatal duel at Weehawken, when the first secretary of the United States treasury laid down his life, his eldest boy died for his father's sake. Do you not believe that when young Hamilton was dying there came an unspeakable joy to him because he was dying in his father's stead? When Nathan Hale was led forth to the gallows to be strangled as a spy, did he go there like a craven murderer? Oh, no. He went with his head up. His step was firm. A happy smile was upon his lips. He said, "The only regret that I have in dying is that I have but one life to lay upon the altar of my country." Yes, Nathan Hale died happy. In dying he felt that he was making it possible for his country to live. So Paul was happy when he said, "O Christ, if it is necessary for me to spiritually die that others may spiritually live, then blot my name out of the book of life." Thus the joy of saving an immortal soul which comes to the Christian, is even greater than that joy which comes to penitent men and women when they first give their hearts to Jesus Christ.

The Joy of Saving Others.
Oh, apostates; oh, ye negligent and slothful church members, standing idly about in the market places when God's vineyards are filled with the ripest clusters just ready for the plucking, you have known in the past the joy of salvation in the saving of souls! Why, I can see even now the reflection of a past joy upon your faces as in the time when you used to labor in the Sunday schools and bring little children to Christ. I can see you now smiling as you used to do when you brought your friends to the revival meetings and labored with them to accept Christ. I can see you now going up to your minister and earnestly and rapturously saying: "Pastor, keep on praying. We will get them. They are bound to give their hearts to Christ. We will get them yet." But now the world and the flesh have crept in. You do not work for souls as you used to do. You do not have the old joy of saving souls. Oh, my friends, will you not pray that this joy may come to you again: "Lord, God, give me the old thrill of being saved by thy sacrifice. But do more than this, Lord. Give me the joy of saving some one else for thee. If it be necessary in order that others may spiritually live, that I must spiritually die, then, as Paul wished, let me die for their honor and glory."

But in this psalmist's prayer we would find another joy. It is this: "O God, restore unto me the joy of Christian fellowship with Christians!

O God, make me again love church services and the prayer meetings and the missionary gatherings and the convocation of the young people of the Christian Endeavorers and Epworth leagues and the Brotherhood of Andrew and Phillip! O God, may I desire to associate with thy disciples more than to go with any other class of people on earth!" You think this is a strange prayer to make? I do not. When I make it, I know that one of the surest signs of the true Christian life is to be found in the desire of a Christian to be where other Christians are. Yet, if I mistake not, some of you never go to the midweek prayer meetings or to Sunday schools or to our cottage prayer meetings. You look upon these meetings as a bore, a drudgery, a tiresome hour, wasted for duty's sake. When you go to these meetings you do so under protest.

Wrong Kind of Likes.
"Yes," you answer, "I do look upon these religious gatherings as a bore. But I am not responsible for my likes and dislikes any more than I am to be blamed because my favorite color is blue, my favorite flower a carnation, my favorite musician Beethoven, my favorite novelist Thackeray, my favorite artist Rubens and my favorite poet Longfellow or Tennyson. I like what I like and dislike what I dislike, and I cannot help it. Now, if I dislike to associate with the class of people who make up our distinctively religious gatherings, such as are found in the missionary society, I am not to blame. I am no more to blame than I am because I dislike codfish or mackerel and like apples and grape fruit."

Ah, yes, my brother, you are to blame. You are individually responsible for your likes and dislikes. If you do not care to associate with Christian people in Christian gatherings, then it is high time that you learned to enjoy their society, and the quicker the better. Because I do not love them now that is no excuse why I should not learn to love these people. Supposing I was a despicable, supposing I had for years been living on lobsters and veal and ham and pork and cabbage and highly seasoned salads and rich pastries, supposing on account of my dyspepsia I was sent to a sanitarium, what would be the first order of my physician? "Put that man on the simplest diet." Because I tell my physician I do not like plain toast and milk and cold bread and good, wholesome beefsteaks and potatoes would that make any difference? No. My physician would reply: "Then the sooner you learn to like them the better. You have a diseased appetite. You must develop a healthy appetite for good, wholesome, simple foods."

Supposing I go to a great musical genius like Theodore Thomas, lately translated to the harmonies of heaven, and say: "Mr. Thomas, I want your orchestra to play music that I can sing and understand. Please do not play for me so many of those musical rigmorales which I cannot grasp." Mr. Thomas would reply: "Young man, if you do not know what good music is, then the sooner you learn it the better. You have a diseased appetite for music. I will develop for you a healthier musical appetite." Thus the great mission of Chicago's late musical genius was not so much to render good music as to educate the taste of the people up to the high musical standards when they could appreciate and demand good music. God bless the life's work, well fulfilled, of Theodore Thomas, who taught mankind how to appreciate good music!

Now, my Christian friend, by the same law you may have a diseased spiritual appetite for spiritual association. If you cannot find enjoyment in communion with Christian people, then the sooner you learn how to enjoy their society the better. You are exactly in the position of the frivolous girl or the dissipated boy growing up in a Christian home. Such children are never happy unless they are off at some party or visiting some neighbor or attending some theater. But after awhile they will find that the sweet, gentle fellowships of a Christian home offer the best kind of enjoyment. The quiet reading of a book by the glowing hearth in the sitting room is one. The loving caress of a mother's or a wife's hand is another. The playful prattle of a little child, the quiet prayer, the sweet memories of long years that are past, are others. The hopes of the years to come, being talked over, offer the highest joys this side of heaven. O man, do not think that associating with men of the world offers to you the acme of pleasure. If you cannot find any enjoyment in the fellowship of Christian people, then the sooner by the grace of God you kill your diseased spiritual appetite the better for your own enjoyment and the better for your life.

Learned to Love Music.
That you can govern your love for the good and your dislike for the bad or the indifferent was illustrated to me by the experience of a lady member of my church who is a very fine musician. Her brother was a happy go lucky young man who seemed to have no ear for good music. Every popular air, every music hall jingle, every negro melody that had a jolly ring to it, he knew by heart. All the noted college songs he could sing until the very rafters echoed. But the deeper, sweeter, holier calls of the great musical masters fell unheeded upon his dull ears. This brother, who was a fine athlete, had his leg broken and had to lie in bed for about six weeks. During those six weeks his sister had to continually practice for a difficult performance which she was about to give before a famous musical society of the city. At first the brother protested. He wanted to hear her play some of the popular airs. But as the language of the musical masters kept pouring their thoughts into his mind and heart through the vestibule of his ear there was born in his soul a love for the truly great music. The old songs which he once loved he now despised. The truly beautiful music he once despised now he loves. My friends, if you do not love the society of Christian people there is something wrong in your life. You have a diseased spiritual appetite. The sooner you go with the truly consecrated people the sooner you will learn to love their society. Do not make the prayer of my text, "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation," unless by constant association with Christian people you do all in your power to develop that spiritual joy.

But in order to fully grasp the beauty of the psalmist's prayer you must remember that it is given with the absolute knowledge that in his own strength he was nothing, but that in God's strength he could be everything. David at this time was standing under the shadows of his past sins. God had blessed him again and again, yet just after these many manifestations of the divine love he had fallen back into sin because he had depended upon his own strength. Thus David says, "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation and uphold me by thy free spirit." That means in plain English, "O God, bring me back to thy loving grace, cleanse me from sin and then by thy power do not let me again wallow in the quagmires and the bogs and the filth of evil." After David had played the fool in King Achish's court and had murdered Uriah to steal for himself Uriah's wife, ought he not to have made this prayer with fear and trembling? After you and I have sinned again and again when God had restored upon us the joy of his salvation, ought not we to make this prayer in the same spirit as David made it?

Trust in the Father.
It is only by doubting and continuing to distrust our own strength that we are led to rely entirely upon God's protecting power. I would have us feel our dependence on God when we make this prayer exactly as the little adopted daughter of a dear friend of mine feels toward her father. He is a noble man, made noble through suffering. He started out in humble financial circumstances, but he went on and on in life until at last he won a position of wealth and influence. But after the wealth came, then came the sorrow. God came to his two little girls and said: "Come, daughters; come! I want you to play in the green field of heaven." And in a night the earthly nursery was emptied for the celestial playgrounds. Broken hearted were my friend and his dear wife. The cry of their agonizing hearts was, "O God, give us a little girl!" And God gave them a little daughter, not of their own flesh and blood, however, but a little girl who came out of a hovel of poverty and filth and sin.

Some months ago this little girl was in a founding institute in one of our large eastern cities. By this institution she was sent west and put into a low Mexican's home of ignorance and filth. There my friend found her and said: "She shall not remain here. She shall come and be my daughter and live in my home." He took her west. Then he and his wife washed the little girl and put clean clothes upon her and put her into a clean, white bed. They surrounded her with all that wealth and love could give. Yet, though that little girl is now only about two and one-half years old, she lives in continual terror of being taken back to her past surroundings. Every night before she goes to bed she calls her foster father to her side or crawls up into his lap and puts her little arms about his neck and says, "Papa, you won't let them come and take baby away, will you?" Sometimes she awakes at night and calls and asks the same question, "You won't let them take baby away, will you?" And the great, strong man, with tears in his eyes, says: "No, baby, no, daughter! I will not let them come and take you away from me and mamma! Go to sleep now; papa will keep you safely by his side." So David, as a heartbroken sinner, just reaches up and puts his arms up in plea to God and says: "O Father, keep me. Don't let me go back to sin as I have done in the past. Keep me, Lord. Keep me in the power of thy love." Have you not, O man, sinned after God has restored to you again and again the joy of salvation? Can you not say to him now: "Keep me, Lord. Keep me, Father. Keep me."

Thus, my friends, because you have again and again come to Christ and tasted of the joy of salvation and then fallen away do not let your broken resolutions keep you away from the Saviour today. First get a clean sheet. Say, "O God, forgive." Then make a prayer, an earnest prayer, which will be a continuous prayer for every morning, noon and night. Let this be your prayer: "O God, keep me, keep me! O Lord, keep me every step I go!" And God will keep you, brother. He will keep you under the shadow of his wings. He will keep you as David was kept. Will you make the prayer of my text now? Will you continue to make the earnest prayer, "Uphold me with thy free spirit," until at last he delivers you forever from all sinful temptations at the great white throne of heaven?

Irrigation.
A large portion of the earth's surface is deficient in rainfall, having less than twenty inches a year. It has been estimated that there is sufficient water to irrigate only about one-fifth of the arid region of the United States, or from 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 acres. Of this irrigable area about 10,000,000 acres have been reclaimed. In Europe irrigation prevails chiefly in the south, where it was introduced by the Romans. It is most extensively and systematically practiced in Lombardy, Spain and the south of France.

BEAUTY AND TEMPER.

If You Would Keep the First You Must Lose the Second.

The greatest enemy to beauty is temper. The woman with a bad temper is by no means the worst woman in the world. She often has a very kind heart and a very strict conscience. Her temper itself sometimes lets so many of her evil thoughts out through her tongue that her nature is, after all, quite sweet and kind. But nevertheless the fever of temper that burns within her does its work on her constitution. It shows itself, too, in the deep wrinkles just above her nose, the long lines at the side of her mouth and in the drooping mouth itself.

The woman who is always nursing her wrongs wrongs herself more than anybody else could have wronged her. The evil, bitter thoughts within her shut out the bright ones that might come and make her bad company. But, worse still, they have a direct physical effect upon her system. Nothing can so ruin one's digestion as flying into a tantrum at the dinner table. The food taken in will not assimilate, and the appetite is lost. The heart is affected and the circulation is retarded. The nerves are so wrought up by a constant series of tantrums that the woman with a temper is invariably a thin, anemic little thing.

The best way to cure bad temper is first to convince yourself that you are not really being wronged. Once you have got in tune with the world and feel quite certain that the universe is better ordered than you could order it you will cease expecting to reform the rest of your fellow men and thus be saved lots of disappointment.

If you can cure your temper in no other way, simply run and glance in the looking glass while you are in the midst of it. That should cure you.—New York Press.

A POTATO SALAD.

The Way a Perfect One Was Quickly Tossed Together.

A potato salad, to be a success, should be, as it were, the inspiration of the moment, showing no signs of premeditation. To marinate the potatoes in stock or French dressing and serve with a carefully prepared mayonnaise robs it of its character and individuality. If a salad possesses such attributes. The best salad the writer ever tasted was tossed together by a clever woman. A long trip a wheel brought home two hungry women.

Among other eatables yielded up by the refrigerator were two hard boiled eggs and some cold boiled potatoes, cooked in their jackets, as they should be for a properly constructed salad. They were peeled and thinly sliced. Into a cooking cup were put a little mild vinegar and a morsel of chopped onion. After a few moments' simmering the latter was strained out and a generous lump of butter added to the vinegar to melt. The egg whites were chopped and mixed through the potatoes and the yolks were crumbled into a bowl. When the butter had melted it was added to the yolks and stirred until a yellow cream resulted, which was poured over the potatoes, previously dusted with pepper and salt. A few deft tosses with a salad fork, a sprinkling of chopped chives, and the result was—perfection.—Table Talk.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Stewing is the economical method of cooking meat.

A cup of cream added to a pot of beans the last hour while baking greatly improves them.

Bones and bacon rind should never be thrown away, but added to the stock pot when making soup.

Always put the sugar used in a pie in the center of the fruit, not at the top, as the latter method makes the paste sodden.

It is said that carrots boiled very tender, mashed, put through a sieve and treated exactly like pumpkin make a better pumpkin pie than pumpkin itself.

Muffins and gems made without eggs, but with more milk and butter, the batter beaten with a wooden spoon till it is very light, are said to be indistinguishable from those made with eggs.

Potomac Poisoning.

The term "potomac poison" is in everybody's mouth, but few know what it really is. It develops, says What to Eat, through the action of acid on tin. That is why every can of meat or vegetables or fruits should be turned into an earthen bowl or crock immediately upon opening the tin can, and that is why mayonnaise should never be put into tin receptacles. Only recently several women were made seriously ill by eating salad at a reception. Investigation showed that the mayonnaise, in which was considerable lemon juice, had been allowed to stand all day in a tin pail. According to the physicians, enough poison was generated to kill forty men, and had the women eaten the mayonnaise from the bottom of the pail it would have been fatal to them.

Housewife, Spare Yourself.

The average housekeeper in modern circumstances spends most of her time in the kitchen doing work that might be much lightened if only she would bring herself to think so. But the average mother of a family simply will not spare herself. She ruffles and tucks the children's clothing so that she may have more ironing to do and cooks many more different dishes for the table than is at all necessary for wholesomeness, thus making herself much more work in this direction. Better spare yourself, house mother, even though your family live simpler. Some day they will miss you when it will be too late if you give yourself no care.

DYAK HEAD HUNTERS

LEGEND OF THE ORIGIN OF THEIR FEARFUL PRACTICES.

The Bloodthirsty Savages of Borneo Are Reformed Now, but in Former Days No Man Counted Until He Had Beheaded an Enemy.

The home of the Dyak head hunters is in the forests of the interior of Borneo, and in order to observe that interesting mortal on his native heath you must leave behind railroads and steamers, put yourself and your belongings into a native "longboat" and travel for days up one of the great rivers which rise in the mountains of central Borneo and find their way into the China sea.

The origin of head hunting among the Dyaks is told in a legend which has been handed down from father to son from some far-off time, to which even a Mulhall or an Edward Atkinson would hesitate to affix an exact date.

It appears that a certain chief of the Sibop tribe of Dyaks, Tokong by name, was off with some of his men on an expedition to punish a band of robbers who had attacked a Sibop village. They traveled by river until they reached a point near the camp of the robbers, and then, after fastening their boats to the bank, they waited in the shade of some trees to cook a good round meal before they made the projected attack. Just as they were about to start Tokong heard a gruff bass voice issuing from behind a boulder, and on going to the spot he saw a large frog surrounded by its young ones. He greeted the frog, who thereupon addressed him at length on the subject of Dyak fighting methods. "What fools you are," he said, "to content yourself when you kill an enemy by taking his scalp to adorn your shields and warbands. Now, if you would only take the whole head you would find that every kind of good fortune would attend you."

After some discussion with his followers Tokong decided to give the frog's plan a trial, and so when they attacked the robbers the next day they took good care to carry off the heads of them. What was their astonishment on reaching the river again to find their boats already launched. As soon as they were seated in the boats they began to move of their own accord—the very current of the river changed and turned uphill. On their arrival at the village they found that the rice, which had only been planted a few days before, was already ripe, that those who had been laid behind had been now recovered, that the lame could walk and the blind see.

Before head hunting was suppressed freshly taken heads were required in connection with a great number of civil and religious ceremonies. If a chief died it was necessary to decorate his grave with a head, for if this were not done the spirit of the departed on paying its last visit to its earthly home before retiring finally to balun matai ("the fields of the dead") would see that proper respect had not been paid to his corpse, and he would curse all his surviving relatives so that they would become blind, deaf or lame.

In some tribes it was the custom to secure a number of heads whenever a chief died under the belief that the murdered men and women would go to the next world with the dead chief as his personal attendants. But there was scarcely any important occasion which did not call for heads. A chief's child could not be given a name until a head had been secured; a Dyak youth could find no favor in the eyes of his sweetheart until he had taken a head or two; nothing insured so much good luck, either in war expeditions or in rice planting, as the addition of a few heads to the collection, with which the veranda of every Dyak house was decorated.

The head hunter as seen today in Borneo is a reformed character; but, although that element in his life which exercised a morbid fascination for all lovers of the horrible and grotesque no longer exists, there remains much that is quaint and interesting in the daily

RUSSIAN SEMI-PERMANENT INTRENCHMENTS.

The illustration shows how the Russians intrench at various points along the line of retreat, there to make a stand and attempt to beat back the impetuous advance of their pursuers. The Russians are said to be more rapid even than the Japanese in the work of intrenching.

Life of the Dyak.

In common with a great number of people in all ages and in all parts of the world, the Dyaks have an elaborate system of taboo, which they call permatong or lail. One of the most interesting of these taboos is that known as permatong padi, which is a taboo that extends to all the members of a Dyak village during certain seasons of the rice planting.

An occasional case of head hunting occurs in the interior of the country, but as a national custom it has died out under the influence of a just but firm government, which has declared head hunting to be against the law.—Chicago Chronicle.

The Olive Oil Cure.

Sufferers from nerve disorders should certainly try the olive oil cure, which is most highly recommended to those who have learned abroad to appreciate the addition of oil to salads. The very best and purest olive oil must be obtained, and one teaspoonful three times a day is the dose if the victim of neuralgia, sciatica or disordered nerves is in a hurry to be cured. Otherwise it is recommended that the oil taste should be cultivated by the addition of a very little to the salad taken once or twice a day, to which a dash of vinegar may be added, so that the disagreeable taste of the oil may be almost completely disguised. The patient should gradually lessen the vinegar and increase the oil until it is so well liked that it can be taken raw. It is claimed for olive oil, just as it is for apples, that it keeps the liver in good working order, thus preventing rheumatism, rendering the complexion healthy and clear and also making the hair grow glossy and abundant.—London Mail.

A Tonic for Old People

Adds Years to Life, Puts Life into Years.—Dr. Chase's Blood and Nerve Food, the Great Blood and Flesh Maker, Brain and Nerve Tonic

Keeps you from growing old by keeping up your vital forces. When the human machinery begins to wear out, people grow old and go into decline and decay, the blood becomes thin and watery, the circulation poor, and the nerve forces shattered and weak, showing that certain essential elements of life are being exhausted from the blood and nerves. The exhaustion usually begins with cold and numb hands and feet. The stomach, bowels and bladder lose their power, often becoming partially, if not wholly, paralyzed. You grow weak and feeble and your vital forces so low that you begin to see that your health is being undermined. Dr. Chase's Blood and Nerve Food increases the action of the heart and the circulation of the blood, and builds up the system by replacing the same substances to the blood and nerves that have been worn out. Price 50 cents. Weigh yourself before taking it. Book free.

LIFE IN THE MOUNTAINS.

Some of the Delights of Camping Out in the Rockies.

About dusk you straggle in with trout or game. The camp keeper lays aside his mending or his repairing or his notebook and stirs up the cooking fire. The smell of broiling and frying and boiling arises in the air. By the dancing flame of the campfire you eat your third dinner for the day—in the mountains all meals are dinners, and formidable ones at that. The curtain of blackness is drawn down close. Through it shine stars, soon mountains cold and mistlike in the moon. You tell stories; you smoke pipes. After a time the pleasant chill creeps down from the eternal snows. Some one throws another handful of pine cones on the fire. Sleepily you prepare for bed. The pine cones flare up, throwing their light in your eyes. You turn over and wrap the soft woolen blanket close about your chin. You wink drowsily, and at once you are asleep. Late in the night you awaken to find your nose as cold as a dog's. You open one eye. A few coals mark where the fire has been. The mist mountains have drawn nearer; they seem to bend over you in silent contemplation. The moon is sailing high in the heavens. With a sigh you draw the canvas tarpaulin over your head. Instantly it is morning.—From "The Mountains," by S. E. White.

GAMBLING IS VULGAR.

It is an irrational and ignorant struggle for money.

All gambling is vulgar. Call it what you will, assign for it whatever motive you please, it is an irrational, an ignoble struggle for money.

Money got for nothing on the turning of a card or the revolution of a wheel bringseth good to no man, not even to him who wins it. And to him that loseth? Sometimes perdition, often, very often, that sinking sensation, that tired feeling, even where the value lost is immaterial, which follows futility of effort and says as plain as whisper in the ear, "The world's against you."

Gambling, like everything else, is relative. The sin lies in the overplay, with its collateral vices, chief among them improvidence. The reigning sovereign, who has only his money to lose, and plenty of that, is not to be classed with the banker or the banker's confidential clerk or secretary, who has everything at stake, character included, though each plays for the same end—that is, the diversion and excitement. Asked what was the greatest pleasure in life, Fox said, "Winning at cards," and the next, "Losing at cards." There was a gambler for the love of it, and yet Fox played never for high stakes after he was forty, if he played at all.—Louisville Courier-Journal.
