FARMERS' CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED

Will be freely beneficial to the County in general.

A LETTER FROM ROBERT SHELDON

Constitution Makes Provision to Send Some One Here to Effect

On an Organization.

A few weeks ago the attention of the local people was called to the fact that the Board of Agriculture, in conjunction with the local bank, had raised the sum of five thousand dollars for the purpose of starting a Monopoly Experiment in this county. The experiment would be of the same nature as that on the farm of Mr. J. W. Allen, and would consist of a certain number of acres planted with corn and other crops, which will be purchased with the money invested in the fund. It is hoped that the experiment will be successful and that the results will be of great benefit to the local farmers.

A FLATTERING OFFER IS MADE PROVE. EVANS

Taken to Take Charge of College in Western Kentucky Town.

A gentleman whose name and address are not known, but who is said to have some connection with the local school, has been offered the position of principal of the above-mentioned institution. The offer is to be made to the next meeting of the Board of Education, and will be considered at that time. It is understood that the gentleman is a graduate of the University of Kentucky, and has had some training in the field of education.

THE GOAL THAT RUNS THE TRAINS

On the Evansville District of Illinois Central Railroad.

Mr. J. R. Evans, engineer, made the following statement to the authorities of the Illinois Central Railroad, at the station here, concerning the present condition of the line:

"The trains run very well, and the service is excellent. The track is in good condition, and the equipment is well cared for. The crew is efficient, and the work is done promptly. The rolling stock is in good order, and the cars are well maintained. The station is clean and well kept. The public is satisfied with the service, and we are doing our best to keep it in that condition."

CHAPTER 7.

The sun was up, the birds were singing, and the world was awake. Eben Holden rose from his bed, feeling refreshed and ready for the day. He stretched his arms, took a deep breath of the morning air, and stepped into the sunshine. His heart was light, and his mind was clear.

His wife, Sarah, was already up and bustling around the kitchen, preparing breakfast for him. She had a smile on her face, and her eyes were bright with energy. Eben loved the way she looked at him, as if she could read his thoughts and understand his needs.

"Good morning, love," he said, giving her a kiss on the cheek.

"Good morning," she replied, "how was your sleep?"

"Perfect," he answered, "like a baby. And you?"

"I slept well," she said, "but I'm ready for some coffee and food."

They sat down at the table, enjoying a hearty breakfast of eggs, bacon, and toast. Eben was grateful for Sarah's care and support, and he knew he couldn't have done it without her.

The couple spent some time catching up on the news of the day, and then Eben got to work, busy with his business affairs. Sarah helped him with some errands, and they talked about their plans for the future.

Eben's mind was filled with thoughts of the property he had just purchased. He was excited about the potential it held, and he knew he could make a lot of money if he played his cards right.

He sat down at his desk, pulled out his ledger, and began to calculate the numbers. He knew he had to be careful, but he also knew he could make a fortune with this deal.

Sarah walked into the room, reading his expression.

"What's up?" she asked.

"I just started working on my spreadsheet," he replied. "I'm calculating the numbers, trying to figure out how much I can make on this deal."

"That sounds promising," she said, "but don't forget about the risk. You could lose a lot of money."

"I know," he said, "but I think I have a good plan. I've done my research, and I think I can make this work."

Sarah nodded, and Eben continued to work on his calculations. He knew he had to be careful, but he also knew he had the potential to make a lot of money.

They finished their work, and then Eben and Sarah sat down to enjoy a quiet dinner together. They talked about their love, and how grateful they were to have each other.

Eben held Sarah's hand when they went to bed, and they both fell asleep feeling content and at peace. The world was a good place, and they were happy together.
