HELPS TO STUDY.

Two great teachers, both Pharisees, and living but a little before Jesus, took opposite ground on the question of divorce, Shammai holding that a man ought to divorce his wife only if she were guilty of adultery, Hillel teaching that he might do it for anything in her that displeased him, even burning his dinner. On account of this difference of teaching the Pharisees thought they could entangle him. Jesus admitted that the law permitted divorce, but declares that this permission was a concession to the hardness of men's hearts, of which concession they ought not to avail themselves. Not all that the law permits is for that reason right to do. V. 6, "From the beginning of the creation, male and female made he them." Jesus appeals to the fundamental fact of human nature, itself evidently of divine appointment, that human beings are of two sexes, having distinct and reciprocal functions and responsibilities. In this fundamental fact, with all that it involved respecting relations of husband and wife, parents and children, Jesus finds a divine sanction of marriage, and from it he draws the conclusion—which, like the fact itself, he states in Old Testament language—that the marriage bond should never be broken except for adultery, and thus sides with the stricter view of Shammai on the subject. (Mt. 5:31-32.) Christ enunciates the fact that the principle of love (not mere fondness, fascination or admiration, but pure unselfish love) must rule in all relations in life, but more especially between husband and wife. Added to the fundamental fact of the human nature to which Jesus here appeals, this principle makes married inviolable with the exception noted above.

The discourse in regard to children show the characteristics that should distinguish members of the kingdom. The qualities of innocence, purity, simplicity, receptivity, obedience, implicit trustfulness, inherent qualities of early childhood, are necessary conditions for adults to obtain the blessings of the kingdom.

"What shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" The question itself is deeply significant. The Old Testament frequently speaks of "inheriting the land" (Ps. 37:9, 11), and the expression also occurs in Mt. 5:5, though probably in a figurative sense. The scribe had gained a conception of eternal life, (Dan. 12:2), and wants to become an heir that he may inherit it. The young man came to Jesus as a mere teacher, not recognizing his divinity. In the question, "Why callest thou me good?" his intention was to turn the young man's thoughts to God as the fountain of all goodness. Not that Jesus would deny his own goodness for he is God, and God is good, but till the young man could see Jesus, not simply as a teacher of morality, but as Christ the Saviour, until he could see God revealed in Christ, his thought must be turned to God as the source of eternal life. Jesus first measures him by the commandments, the standard of goodness best known to the young Jew. In his own estimation the young man fully comes up to this standard. We are often better in our own estimation than we are in God's. No doubt he had been a good moral young man, but no one without Christ can live a perfect life. "By the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified in his sight." Jesus saw his weakness; it was loving his riches more than loving God. We may be good moral people, but, without Christ, it may be said of us all, "One thing thou lackest," "but one thing is needful." The one thing may be different in various persons, but that one thing may keep us from inheriting eternal life. V. 24 suggests why riches constitute such a hindrance, because rich men are prone to trust in their riches and lose sight of their need of God. "A hundred-fold." Godliness is a hundred-fold more profitable than selfishness, even this life. Peter felt that he and his fellow-apostles had made great sacrifices. (v. 28) Jesus assures him that no one shall lose his reward, but that others who seem to him to have given up less may receive more.

The teaching of the parable in Mt. 20:1-16 is that God will be righteous and faithful to his promises in his awards; but he himself is judge of what each man ought to receive. To man's judgment the awards will often seem out of proportion to desert; but God himself is the righteous judge. The parable finds constant illustration in life, and its lesson is one most needful to be learned.

Jesus seems always to have contemplated his death with dread, yet with unflinching resolution. V. 33, "shall deliver him unto the Gentiles" a new element not contained in previous predictions. (Mk. 8:31; 9:31; Lk. 17:25), yet a necessary consequence of the political status of Judea, if only he was not to be slain by a mob, since the Jewish court did not possess the power of life and death.

TOPICS FOR STUDY.

- 1 Jesus' attitude toward the O. T. Law
- 2 Closing events of the Person ministry.
- 3 Jesus' ideal of life for himself and his followers.
- 4 Bible teachings on divorce.
- 5 The true child-like spirit.
- 6 The fears Christ had of death and its teachings.
- 7 Jesus' teachings concerning and attitude toward family life.

DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BIBLE.

Christians claim that the Bible is the Book of God. They do not claim that it was miraculously produced, as is asserted by the Mormons of their Bible. They believe that holy men were inspired of God to write it.

SEARCH QUESTIONS.

- 1 What question did the Pharisees put to Jesus concerning divorce?
- 2 What was Jesus' answer, as given in Mark?
- 3 What is the form of the question and answer as given in Matthew?
- 4 To what fundamental fact of human nature does Jesus appeal as the basis of his answer?
- 5 What fundamental moral principle underlies it?
- 6 Is Jesus' answer a necessary consequence of the fact and this principle?
- 7 What is the relation of Jesus' teaching to the statue of the Old Testament? 8 Tell the story of Jesus and the children. 9 What is the meaning of his words in Mk. 10:14? 10 In Mk. 10:15? 11. What is the relation of Jesus' teaching to the deeper principles of the Old Testament? 12 What was the character of the rich young ruler? 13 Why did Jesus command him to sell all that he had and give to the poor? 14 Is this command universally applicable? 15 If not, why not? 16 What did Jesus mean by the words, "come follow me"? 17 Is this command universally applicable? If so, why? 18 State the teaching of Jesus about wealth in Mk. 10:23-27. 19 In view of this teaching what do you say of the ambition to be rich? 20 Explain the words of Jesus in Mk. 10:29, 30. 21 What is the teaching of the parable in Mt. 20:1-16, and what is its relation to the preceding paragraph? 22 What new element is there in Jesus' teaching concerning his death in Mk. 10:33? 23 How is the new element related to the political status of Judea?

Signally Honored.

Several months ago Mr. Guy R. Gibbs left this county and went to Truman, Ark., where he has been teaching since arriving there. Last week, at a Democratic county convention, he was chosen Secretary of the convention, and was chosen by the county committee as its secretary.

Mr. Gibbs deserves all that the southern state can confer upon him; and they can certainly count on him as the very "true blue" of democracy. He was for several years one of the county's most successful teachers, and is otherwise very popular in the county. He is a born leader and always remain true to his friends. The people of his new home will make no mistake in trusting him.—Livingston Banner.

THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1906

Marion people have had a rare treat at the high school auditorium for the past two weeks, in the splendid discourses by Elder Martin and the musical selections rendered by his son and daughter, who accompany him in his evangelical tour. Mr. Martin is a man of fine presence and magnetic manner, and has the quality of drawing and holding large audiences, who give him the most attentive consideration. His son, Mr. Elbert Martin, is an accomplished violinist and the sweet strains of music he has rendered at each service have given much pleasure to all true lovers of art. Miss Edna Martin has proven a most valuable assistant to her father, with her rich contralto voice. Each of her selections has been looked forward to with keenest anticipation. The meeting will continue throughout the week and an interesting service may be expected each evening.

Judge M. C. Givens died at his home in Henderson on Monday last of bright's disease, after a painful illness of several weeks' duration. The Judge was well and favorably known to the citizens of Marion and Crittenden county, having succeeded Judge Ben. P. Cissell in 1886, as Judge for this Judicial circuit, which at that time was different in form from the present one. Judge Givens was a pains-taking, conscientious and erudite judge, and was seldom, if ever, overruled by the Appellate court on any point of law in any important case. Judge Givens in private life was an agreeable and social gentleman and was a splendid, christian judge. He has many warm friends in this city and county who will sincerely regret to learn of his death. He was 75 years old.

The world narrowly missed the accomplishment of another horror last week, when an attempt was made to murder the young king and queen of Spain on their wedding day. It would be hard to conceive a punishment too severe for the wretch who threw that bomb.

Senator Arthur Pue Gorman died suddenly at his home in Washington City on Monday morning. The Senator had been in poor health for some months, but the immediate cause of death was heart failure. For half a century almost Senator Gorman has been a central figure in the political history of the country, and during all of that time has ranked high in the councils of the Democratic party. As a party manager and organizer he was simply unexcelled and his death will prove a great loss, not only to his party associates, but the country generally.

Chicago, among other freaks, has recently been furnishing the country with "pure leaf lard" boiled from the bodies of a man and his son, who at various times fell into a huge cauldron of boiling fat and were totally destroyed in a few minutes. The lard from this vat was put on the market and sold, and even the vat was not cleaned. Who knows but what some of that identical "pure leaf lard" may be on tap in Marion today.

A man has only to have trouble or sickness to learn that no place on the globe has as big-hearted, kind, noble and generous people as this little city and county. They have the genuine fellow feeling, love of christianity and brotherly love; they are not so much on dress parade nor do many of them wear silk hats or silk stockings, but their hearts have the milk of human kindness predominating.

It generally happens that the day before the Fourth our business men think of numerous little jobs of printing they want done, and every printing office has more than it can handle. The merchants who know of any little work they are going to need for the Fourth should bring it at once, as there will be no job work done at this office on the Fourth.

Sheriff J. F. Flanary, on the 8th page of this issue, calls the attention of the tax payers to the new law regarding the time for payment and the penalties for non-payment. Every tax-payer should read this new law carefully.

The passage by Congress of the free alcohol bill was not only a triumph over Standard Oil, but it will prove a grand triumph to the entire country.

"Books, like friends, should be few and well chosen."

"The want of knowledge is like a leak; a constant source of loss."

We are not given to boasting, but we are proud of the farmer boys of this vicinity. They are with rare exceptions a healthy, intelligent and happy class of young men. We feel like taking our hat clear off when we meet them on our streets and no class is more welcome to our office. Too many boys leave the farm, where they would have made substantial and good citizens, and go to the cities where only one in a thousand succeed in life's battle. There are farmers who fairly drive their boys away. There is no excuse for this. The farmer boy is entitled to his vacations, to several relaxations, good books, magazines and his home paper. To the observing one it is plain to be seen that the old farm is the best place in the world for the average young man and never fails to bring a happier and more useful life than the city. Young men, you who till the soil and earn your bread by the sweat of your brow, we are proud of you; our latch string is always out to you, and you will always have a friend in this paper. Come and see us and give us the news from your neighborhood.

Give the young a word of encouragement when you can. You would not leave those plants in your window boxes without water, nor refuse to open the shutters that the sunlight may fall upon them, but you would leave some human flower to suffer from want of appreciation or the sunlight of encouragement. There are a few hardy souls that can struggle along on stony soil; shrubs that can wait for the dews and sunbeams vines that climb without kindly training; but only a few. Utter the kind word when you can see that it is deserved.

"In science read the newest works; in literature the oldest."

Letter About Texas.

EDITOR PRESS: As many of my friends have asked me to give my idea of that portion of Texas where we spent the winter, in regard to health, and as a desirable place to locate, I take this method rather than personal letters.

When we left here in Feb. our destination was Stephenville, where Mrs. Watson's grandfather had already secured me employment. But my health having broken down the winter previous I was seeking health rather than employment.

However, work is an excellent way to spend time that would otherwise prove tedious; besides, it is a splendid way to replenish a depleted pocket book.

We took an excursion train and of course came in contact with the excursion crowd. The crowd, too, was a general admixture of homeseekers, pleasureists and prospectors, wherein was freely imbibed that which is exhilarating but at the same time debasing.

The rush and car hunting, car losing was at Memphis. To see the weary travelers ever making up trains one is led to believe that sometimes a good per centum of our population is traveling. But Americans are not a permanent people.

About seventy-five hours after leaving Marion we arrived at Stephenville, Texas, having traversed West Kentucky, West Tennessee, Central Arkansas, Indian Territory and Northern and Central Texas.

Stephenville is now the terminal of the elevation from the north and the one from the Gulf of Mexico and has an elevation of 1320 feet above sea level. The Bosque river is on the north of the city, while beautiful level stretches of land extend southward. The soil is sandy and has some of the famous "black mud". Further to the south cotton is the staple crop, and among the city's improvements are two cotton yards, two cotton gins and a cotton compress now under construction.

Take it all in all Stephenville and the surrounding country are healthy. The people are progressive and neighborly. Education is on an upward tendency.

He is still fond of the army as shown by his re-enlistment and has a every prospect for a useful army career at home and abroad.

Notice to Sunday Schools

As the State S. S. Convention meets in June, I hope that the Sunday schools of the county will unite on some one who they will send as a delegate. As we failed to be represented last year, it seems to me that Crittenden county ought to afford one this year. Please consider this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Through the 'Phone.

Maud Muller on a summer's day
Called, "Number, please," to earn her pay.

Before her numbers printed small.
Fell down when any one would call.
The Judge took down his office
'phone

And made to Maud his wishes known.
Said he, "I'll ask you just once
more

For four eleven forty-four."

Said Maud, as mild as summer seas,
"What number did you ask for,
please?"

Said he, "I told you twice before,
It's four eleven forty-four."

Said Maud, and you could hear her smile.

"Just hold the 'phone a little while"
A weary interval ensued—
The wires hummed an interlude.

And broken bits of talk came o'er
The 'phone and made the waiter
sore.

The wishbone-shaped receiver hook,
He seized upon and wildly shook.

Till Maud's voice he heard once
more,

"What number are you waiting for?"

The Judge responded with a roar,
"Four eleven forty-four."

Serenely Maud made answer then,
"That line is busy; call again."

The Judge had business late that day
And so he merely walked away.

But as he walked he shook his head,
And this is what he sadly said:

"Of all the words of tongue or pen,
The worst are: 'Busy; call again.'

plished girl and a sister of Editor O.
C. Lasher of the Smithland Banner.

mitted to the Smithland bar, and is associated with the firm of Bush and Wilson. They came here for a quiet wedding, that will be attended by

How to Break Up a Cold

It may be a surprise to many to learn that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days'
time. The first symptoms of a cold
are a dry, loud cough, a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thin, white coating on the tongue.
When Chamberlain cough remedy is taken every hour on the first appearance of these symptoms, it counter-acts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition within a day or two. For sale

Some Stories Told
In Cobbler's Shop

Hans Hears Them From the Undertaker, Butcher, Plumber and the Coal Man.

[Copyright, 1905, by Homer Sprague.]
"SPEAKING about human ingratitude," says der undertaker
one day when I vvas putting some lifts on his heels, "but I met mit a case when I first goes into peeness dot makes me feel sad yet."

"I haf a friend dot I belief vvas der squarest man on earth. He vvas so honest dot if he borrows a match of me he walks a mile to pay it back, and so truthful dot if he calls me a liar I have to believe him. I know he must die some day, and I promised him 20 per cent off der funeral. Vvhen he vvas coming to my place one day vven
he keels over and goes dead of heart disease. Der ambulance man says it vvas being so good dot kills him. I run my hardest to tell his wife, and I take full charge, and after two days'
hard work and feeling bad all der time
what you suppose happens?"

"Maybe you lose der job," I said.
"No, I don't, but I wish I did. Dot man vvas only in a trance. He comes to life and not only kicks der coffin all to pieces, but finds fault because I wasn't going to have eight white horses draw der hearse! I make him a bill and throw off 20 per cent, but he says he won't pay and sues me for loss of two days' time while lying dead! Dot learns me a lesson, Hans. It vvas so mit me now dot I add on 20 per cent
mit everybody, and if a feller won't stay dead I have a damage suit against him for one thousand dollar."

The Story of the Butcher.

"Just a word, Hans," says der butcher as he gets his shoes half soled one time. "Der vvas a time when I gif everybody der werry choicest cuts and cut out all der bone. But vvas any-

"BUTCHER, YOU VVAS A SCOUNDREL AND A ROBBER!"

body grateful to me? Not a soul. I don't be elected to office or presented mit a watch, and der papers don't print
a picture of my wife and say how beautiful she vvas. On der contrary,
a man comes to me after six months
and says:

"Butcher, you vvas a scoundrel and
a robber!"

"How vvas it? I says.

"You cut all der rind off my pork,
and I don't have nothing to grease my boots mit!"

"Dot settles it mit me," says der butcher. "Since dot time der public have had bones and rind and meat all mixed together, and now if I go out to a public meeting I am invited to stand oop and tell how Columbus discovered America."

The Story of the Plumber.

"No man vvas so nooch abused in any peeness ash in mine," says der plumber ash he sits down to smoke a pipe mit me and charge der time to some customer. "If I am called to mend a small leak in a water pipe and charge for two hours' time and one pound of solder, I vvas called a robber. Der peoples don't stop to think it out. I must first go and look at dot house. I must talk mit der cook.
I must go down cellar and look all around. I must go back to der shop and come again. I must figure it out why der hot water pipe busted instead of der cold. If I lose a bar of solder
on der way from der shop, who pays for it? Don't I lose it because I vvas in sooch a hurry? If a bill of $2 vvas sent in what does dot customer do?"

"He kicks," I says.

"You bet he does, and all der newspapers speak about der plumber mit his steam yacht and summer home. It vvas all nonsense, Hans, ash you verry well know. I don't say dot some plumbers don't get rich, but how vvas
it? It vvas by having outside partnerships mit a drug store or a cooper shop
or if your grandmother dies and leaves
you $50,000. Here vvas a case dot happens only three days ago: A boy comes running and says a fine house vvas being ruined by a busted water pipe and to come quick. I drop everything and shump into my auto and speeds avay. It vvas a bad break. I stand right dere mit a rag tied around der leak for three hours before I can get help, and at last I have to call in two of my men. I shall send in a bill for perhaps 40 cents, and do you know what will happen?"

"You vvil be called some robbers."

"Sure, Mike, and the man vvil probably go all over the neighborhood declaring dat I ought to be expelled from my church. I tell you, Hans, it's discouraging for any man to try to do the right thing, but more especially a plumber. If the world keeps on using me as it has, the worm will turn some day—that is, some man will send for me to dig up the street in front of his house and thaw out his water pipe,

and I'll send in a bill for a dollar and a half and sue him clear to der supreme court if he don't pay!"

The Story of the Coal Man.

"I think it is generally believed,"
says der coal man who comes in for a cement patch on his shoe, "dot der coal man vvas grasping and avaricious and dot he makes a ton of coal out of eighteen hoovered pounds. I have had men tell me to my face after I had delivered six tons of coal to 'em dot dey don't belief it vvas over five tons. One time a mans brings back half a ton of slate and stones which he says he finds in my anthracite and advises me to go into der building trade. Maybe you yourself don't belief I vvas an honest man."

"It vvas hard to belief so," I says.
"Thanks for your frankness. I vvil do ash mooch for you some day. You don't belief I vvas honest, but let me tell you a leetle incident. When I starts out in peeness I mak oop my mind to be ash honest ash neffer vvas. In a leetle time a mans comes along und vvasnts two tons of coal. I fill dot order, but vven night, comes on my clerk breaks his leg. Der pain arouses his conscience, and he tells me dot der two tons vvas short by 300 pounds. It vvas raining and blowing, but I hitches oop
my horse and buggy, and at 11 o'clock
I goes to dot customer mit the 300 pounds in a bag. Vvasn't dot honest, Hans?"

"Vvhen she looks honest."

"Of course she does, but what sort of credit do I get? Der mans says he has had der coal weighed, and she vvas four hoovered pounds over instead of three hoovered pounds short and dot I must pay him 50 cents extra because he shoveled it into der cellar and lames
his back! Say, do you hear of a case like dot?"

"I don't belief so."

"No, you neffer did. It set me to thinking. It makes me belief dot it don't pay to be honest and dot if I don't give full weight it vvas shust ash well. If humanity encourages a man to be honest he vvas ash right; if she discourages him he vvil be a sharpener."

Just Like a Girl.

"Yes, a gentleman vvil always destroy a lady's love letters when there has been a quarrel between them."

"Of course, Jeannette, and so vvil a lady destroy those received from a gentleman. I hope you tore up dat batch
you received from Jack."

"Indeed I did. I tore them up in the finest pieces imaginable."

"And were you verry angry, dear?"

"Angry? Why, it took me two whole days to paste them together again!"—

A DASHING AUTOMOBILE STORY

A Motor-Car Divorce

By LOUISE CLOSSER HALE

A BREEZY and deliciously humorous motor-car romance—the fact that the hero and heroine are man and wife makes it
no less a romance.

Mrs. Ward, a believer in the theory of the ten-year marriage contracts advanced by George Meredith, goes with her indulgent husband on an automobile tour through France and Italy for the purpose of securing a divorce on the grounds of "incompatibility of temper," which, in reality, do not exist. It takes another woman, several accidents and the automobile to bring Mrs. Ward to her proper senses.

The Pain
Family

You know them; they are numerous and make their presence felt everywhere. The names of the family are Headache, Toothache, Earache, Backache, Stomach ache, Neuralgia, etc. They are sentinels that warn you of any derangement of your system. When the brain nerves become exhausted or irritated, Headache makes you miserable; if the stomach nerves are weak, indigestion results, and you double up with pain, and if the more prominent nerves are affected, Neuralgia simply makes life unendurable. The way to stop pain is to soothe and strengthen the nerves. Dr.
Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do this.
The whole Pain family yield to their influence. Harmless if taken as directed.

"I find Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills an excellent remedy for overcoming headache, neuralgia and distressing pain of all sorts. I have used them for the past seven years in this capacity with the best of results."

Please Your Hair

Don't have a falling out with your hair. It might leave you! Then what? Better please it by giving it a good hair-food—Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair stops coming out, becomes soft and smooth, and all the deep, rich color of youth comes back to gray hair.

"I was troubled greatly with dandruff until I used Ayer's Hair Vigor. It completely cured the dandruff and also stopped my hair from falling out. It serves me very nicely also in arranging my hair in any style I wish."—Miss Maggie Cook, Denville, N. Y.

How Steel Stood It.

F. W. Leadbetter, president of the Portland chamber of commerce, who arrived at Portland, Ore., from San Francisco recently said:

"Practically all the big steel buildings withstood the earthquake. I think this demonstrates that well constructed steel buildings are proof against earthquakes. The old frame structures and the cheap apartment houses collapsed and the loss of life must have been fearful. It will never be known how many lives were lost, as many of the buildings which collapsed took fire immediately and hundreds of bodies must have been cremated so that no trace of them could be found.

"The guests at the Palace Hotel had no difficulty in escaping. Not even a pane of glass in that great hotel was broken by the shock, as far as I could learn. The great glass dome over the court was not hurt in the least. Captain Ralston, who built the Palace Hotel, boasted that the hotel was both earthquake and fire proof. No building in the city burned more slowly than did the Palace Hotel.

A Texas Wonder.

There is a Hill at Bowie, Texas, that's twice as big as last year. This wonder is W. L. Hill, who from a weight of 90 pounds has grown to over 180. He says: "I suffered with a terrible cough, and doctors gave me up to die of consumption. I was reduced to 90 pounds, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption Coughs and Colds. Now, after taking 12 bottles, I have more than doubled in weight and am completely cured." Only sure Cough and Cold cure. Guaranteed by Woods & Orme, Druggists. 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free.

Went A-Fishing.

The International Order of Fishing Braves went on their annual fishing excursion Monday, and up to the last report from them they had hauled out of the Chipps lake ninety-five fish of various species. They report also that they have received many other "bites," of which were about equally divided between the fishermen and mosquitoes. Those in the crowd were: J. C. Parsons, John L. Grayot, H. V. McChesney, Rod Reed, Virgil Presnell, John S. Throop, Dr. F. G. LaRue, T. C. Holt and Frank Bradstreet, who were joined at Bayou by C. E. Brassy, Jr.—Livingston Banner.

Short Stories About People

CORNELIUS N. BLISS.

CORNELIUS N. BLISS, who as treasurer of the Republican national committee received campaign contributions from the New York Life Insurance company, is the latest financier to get into a controversy with the former legislative agent of that company, Andrew Hamilton. The disagreement pertains to the question whether Mr. Hamilton did or did not turn over the sum of $75,000 to Mr. Bliss on behalf of the New York Life to be used for the election of the Republican national ticket in 1896. Mr. Bliss has been prominent in Republican politics for years and was treasurer of the national committee of that party in four presidential campaigns. It has been said that his case illustrates the saying that the office should seek the man rather than the man the office, for, though offices have been urged upon him on numerous occasions, he has only once served in a post of a public character. That was when he was for a short time secretary of the interior in the cabinet of President McKinley. Mr. Bliss was born in Fair River, Mass., in 1833. He has been a merchant in New York for twenty-five years.

James Keir Hardie, leader of the powerful Labor party in the British house of commons, is a remarkable character. He worked in Scotch coal mines from the time he was seven years old until he reached the age of twenty-four. He learned to write short-hand as a young man, not by attending a business college or working with pen and paper after hours, but by scratching on the walls of the coal mine the mysterious looking characters of shorthand. He did not become a shorthand reporter, but his present position as leader of the Labor party is more influential than he dreamed of possessing in his early manhood. Hardie continues to wear in parliament his coter's cap and sack coat, the costume which so shocked the sticklers for the traditional usages of the house when he first entered it. One day about that time he was proceeding to the parliament library to consult a book when he found his way gently but firmly barred by a policeman, who said:

"Are you working here, mate?" "Yes," replied Mr. Hardie, who was attired in his usual democratic style cloth cap and all.

"On the roof?" "No; on the floor."

The roof of the house was being repaired, and as the policeman was not quite sure about the floor repairs he allowed Hardie to pass.

Owing to his simple way of dressing Mr. Hardie was once placed in an awkward position while traveling in Belgium. He was arrested on suspicion of being connected with an anarchist who had just been seized on the charge of attempting the life of King Leopold. Hardie had difficulty in convincing the police that he was a member of the British parliament.

Representative Oscar W. Gillespie of Texas, whose resolution asking for information concerning the community of interests of the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and other railroads was recently passed, came to congress the first time on the toss of a coin. He is from the Twelfth district and first served in the Fifty-fifth congress. There were three candidates for the nomination. Several thousand ballots were taken. Finally it was decided to break the deadlock by the toss of a coin. The third man was eliminated on the first toss, and Gillespie won the second toss and the nomination.

Mme. Lillian Nordica, who narrowly escaped serious injury by the premature falling of a heavy curtain at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, recently, is a prima donna who possesses much presence of mind. On this occasion she was so near the curtain that it struck a bouquet from her hand and bruised her fingers, but she retained her composure and helped to avert a panic in the audience. It was only a few weeks before this that the great soprano had won admiration for her coolness when a fire broke out on the Metropolitan stage while she was singing. Mrs. Nordica is "Gottendammerung." She stamped on the flames as she kept on singing and when her skirts caught fire she subdued the threatening elements without as much as a tremor in her voice.

Mme. Nordica once sang at a concert in a town in Texas. Among the crowd in the concert room was a cowboy who during the evening sat spellbound as he listened to Nordica's notes. When her last song was finished and she was wrapping up to return to her lodging it was discovered that her overcoat had been forgotten. The cowboy immediately offered to go for them and brought them one at a time. Mme.

Nordica thanked him graciously and expressed regret that he should have had so much trouble. "Not at all, madam," said the admiring youth; "I only wish you were a centipede." The singer asserts that this was the prettiest compliment ever paid to her.

Clarence S. Darrow of Chicago has been counsel in many famous labor cases, and now he is to be one of the lawyers who will conduct the defense of the men indicted on the charge of murdering ex-Governor Steunenberg of Idaho. The accused men are officials of the Western Federation of Miners.

Mr. Darrow was the legal adviser of Eugene V. Debs in the great railway strike of about ten years ago, and he was counsel for the miners in the anthracite coal strike commission in 1902. Mayor Dunne of Chicago appointed him special counsel for the city in the solution of the traction problem. He is noted as a brilliant lawyer and an eloquent speaker and is also widely known as a writer. One of his books, "Reeds Not Evil," champions the ideas of Tolstol. Another, "Farmington," is a novel which describes country life and rural characters in days gone by, when there were but few links between the life of the city and that of the country. Mr. Darrow is forty-nine years old and a native of Ohio. He started out in his profession as a railroad attorney, but his sympathies soon carried him in an opposite direction. One of the feats of his career was his summing up of the miners' case before the strike commission, when he spoke for two days without notes and without manifesting fatigue.

Representative Ollie James of Kentucky was explaining how any Republican senator who voted against the railway rate regulation bill was like a Kentucky negro and his wife.

"Shut up, woman. I's a mighty good nigger to slam yo' la yo' face, the husband said."

"Do it, do it, yo' black gun nigger do it," answered the wife, "but if yo' does I suttin' can hyar yo' a-sayin' 'Good mornin', judge, yo' honor,' if de mawnin'."

"That's the way with those Republican senators. They would like to beat up the rate bill, but if they do they know they will be saying the next morning, 'Good morning, Mr. President, I plead not guilty.'"

Senator James P. Tallaferro of Florida, who recently had an altercation with William Nelson Cromwell, the lawyer, at a hearing on Panama canal affairs before the senate committee of inter-oceanic canals, was a successful business man before he entered politics. In Florida he is known as "om business senator."

His work in congress has largely been along lines connected with commercial or industrial matters. He was born in Orange, Va., in 1847, and educated at the school of William Dinwiddie at Greenwood, which he left in 1864 to enlist in the Confederate service. He followed the fortunes of the Confederacy until the close of the war, and shortly afterward removed to Florida and engaged in the lumber business. He lived in lumber camps and went through all the hardships incident to life away from the centers of civilization. One of his achievements at Washington was an enactment which put on the pension list about 1,700 veterans of the Seminole war.

Andrew Hamilton, famous as the legislative agent of the New York Life Insurance company, created a sensation when in his recent speech in Albany before the Armstrong committee he referred to some one prominent in the New York Life as "the Pecksniff of three administrations, who think he is the Tallyrand of the present one, the confidant of the Beers scandals and the author of the Beers pension."

When asked by an interviewer if he meant to refer to William B. Hornblower, he replied that it was a good guess. Mr. Hornblower is counsel for the New York Life Insurance company and has occupied that post under three presidents—Beers, McCall and Orr. He has been counsel for the New York Central Railroad company and also for other large corporations. His name was much in the public prints thirteen years ago, at the time he was nominated to the bench of the United States supreme court by President Cleveland. Mr. Hornblower had opposed the presidential aspirations of David B. Hill in the so-called "snap convention" of 1892 and was a leader in the gathering of Democrats which followed and which was known as the "anti-snap convention." About a year later, when Mr. Cleveland, who in the meantime had been inaugurated for the second time sent the name of Mr. Hornblower to the senate as a member of the supreme court, Senators Hill and Murphy opposed his confirmation, and his name was finally withdrawn. Mr. Hornblower is fifty-five years of age and is a graduate of Princeton university.

DYCSBURG.

Between three and four o'clock on Thursday morning our peaceful village was awakened by the cry of "fire!" After making a hasty toilet and running in the direction of the fire they found it to be the large two-story building owned by Mrs. J. H. Clifton, wrapped in flames. The fire is supposed to have started in the room in which Brasher & Campbell carried a line of groceries. They also had dry goods and the post office kept by G. Y. Steele was in the same building. The hungry flames were not satisfied with devouring this so they next consumed the grocery owned by E. M. Dalton and E. J. Brown. They were then fanned northward by a gentle south breeze, burning a tobacco factory, S. H. Cassidy's residence and a cooper shop, Bud Wadlington's residence, Obe Simmons' residence, a stable belonging to J. A. Decker, also one vacant house and the coal house belonging to the residence named. The coal burned for several days thus adding to the horror of the scene. Several other buildings caught but were saved by the brave efforts of the men and boys, many of whom risked their lives to stop the fire. This was decidedly the most disastrous fire that has ever visited Dycsburg, and had not brave efforts been put forth to hinder its progress, Dycsburg would surely have been "A THING OF THE PAST."

WARNING!

To the Tax Payers of Crittenden County.

The tax books for 1906 are now ready and I will take pleasure in issuing you a tax receipt. At the last session of the legislature great changes were made in the law governing the collection of taxes, and I refer you to the following sections of the new revenue bill passed by the last legislature:

ART. VIII. SEC. 20.—All State, county and district taxes, except as otherwise specially provided, shall be due and payable on or after the first day of March after the assessment, and all taxpayers whose taxes are not paid on the first day of November after the same are due shall be deemed a delinquent, and such taxes shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum from the first day of November after they are due until paid; and any person or persons failing to pay their taxes by the first day of November in the year following the assessment for such taxes, shall pay a penalty of six per centum additional on taxes due and unpaid. The sheriff or collector whose duty it is to receive or collect the taxes, shall collect the interest and penalty and account for the same in the same way in which they are required to collect and account for the taxes."

Sections 21 and 22 say, in part:

"Within fifteen days after November first tax warrants will be issued by the County Clerk directing the sheriff to sell property and collect all delinquent taxes. A six per cent. penalty goes on all unpaid taxes after November first and in addition to this the same bears interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, also the cost of advertising, clerk's fees, etc. The sheriff is subject to a penalty of from $100 to $500 for each failure to collect taxes as required by this law."

I hope that you will help me to comply with the law, as it will be more pleasant for all concerned and profitable to you.
