VOLUME 2. MARION, CRITTENDEN COUNTY, KY. SEPTEMBER 1, 1905

NUMBER 8

SENATORIAL CONVENTION

The Proceedings in Full are Given Below.

HOT TIME FOR MARION

Another Big Fire Scheduled for September 28.

BIG GUNNER AND FIREWORKERS

Business Men and Citizens Will Hurry to Effort to Show Boost of Fireants of Past Months.

TO COMMENCE FIRE AT 8.30 PM.

The citizens have not had a good reason to celebrate a greater fire than the one scheduled to burn on the grounds of the Kindleton cemetery on March 17, and southwest of Marion, at 8.30 pm. on Saturday night, September 28. The purpose is to have a grand fire sale in the form of a bonfire, and the proceeds will be turned over to the municipal government for the benefit of the community.

The fire will be lit at 8.30 pm., and it is expected that the flames will be visible from a great distance. The fire will be started in a enclosed area, and it is expected that the flames will reach the town by 9.30 pm.

The citizens are encouraged to attend the fire and support the cause. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the community, and it is expected that the fire will be a great success.

THE SCHOOL BOOK QUESTION

The Present Condition in This County

WILL WE BEAR THE BLAME?

The School Board Consents with Law, but Results of Bad Legislation

Three Pickets to Try New Books.

The School Board of Crittenden County has decided to try new books in the schools of the county.

This decision has been made in the face of the challenge of the Superintendent of Schools, who has threatened to withdraw the books if the Board does not conform to the law.

The Board has decided to give the new books a fair trial, and it is expected that the results will be favorable.

The Superintendent has also threatened to withdraw all books from the schools if the Board does not comply with the law.

The Board has decided to give the new books a fair trial, and it is expected that the results will be favorable.

THE CLOSED BARN REBELLION

The Fourth Circuit Republican convention met at the Crittenden County Courthouse yesterday.

Mr. James M. Basham, the Democratic candidate for Senate, made an address on the occasion of the convention.

Mr. Basham said that the Democratic party was deeply divided and that the only way to bring about unity was through the ballot box.

He also said that the Democratic party was the party of the people and that it was the party of the future.

The convention adjourned.

The following resolution was adopted:

"Be it resolved by the Republicans in Crittenden County in convention assembled that:"

1. We, the Republicans of Crittenden County, do hereby petition the state legislature to take such action as will ensure the maintenance of public order and the enforcement of the laws of the state.

2. We, the Republicans of Crittenden County, do hereby call upon the candidates for the office of Governor of Kentucky to take such action as will ensure the maintenance of public order and the enforcement of the laws of the state.

The resolution was signed by all the delegates present.

CHAPTER I

Get it down to a logical story, get it down to a logical story, and then get it down to a logical story. That's what I'm after. That's what I'm after. And then get it down to a logical story.

He was a boy who had been born in the West, and who had seen the small town of Crittenden, Kentucky, grow from a little settlement of log cabins to a bustling city. He had grown up with the town, and had always been proud of it. His father, a prominent citizen, had taught him the value of hard work and perseverance.

"Ah, yes," said Mr. Holden, "I remember it well. The first time I visited Crittenden, it was just a small village with a few dozen houses. But now, look at it! A thriving community with a population of thousands. And I'm proud to say that I played a small part in its growth."

Mr. Holden was a respected member of the community, and had served on the town council for many years. He was a man of few words, but his wisdom and experience were admired by all who knew him.

"I wish I could say the same thing about my success," said Mr. Holden, "but truth be told, I've had my share of failures along the way. But I've learned from my mistakes, and that's what has helped me to become the man I am today."

The last time Mr. Holden had visited Crittenden, it had been several years since he had left the town. But now, as he stood on the outskirts of the city, he felt a sense of nostalgia wash over him. He was back in the place where he had grown up, and the memories flooded back to him like a潮水.

"I can still remember the day I left for college," said Mr. Holden, "and I'll never forget the cold farewell I received from my townsfolk. But I knew I had to go, and that's what I did."

The years had been kind to Mr. Holden, and he had achieved much success in his chosen field. But now, as he stood on the outskirts of Crittenden, he realized that there was still much he wanted to accomplish.

"I wish I could say I've fulfilled all my dreams," said Mr. Holden, "but truth be told, there's still much more to do."

He was a man of many talents, and he was determined to use them to the fullest. And so, as he stood on the outskirts of Crittenden, he made a promise to himself to never give up on his dreams. Whatever the future held, he knew he was ready to meet it head on.

A Living Monument.

We sat down and talked to those who have been named as leaders in the community. Each one of them has made a difference in the town of Adams. We listened to their stories and were inspired by their dedication to the community. The atmosphere was electric with a sense of pride and accomplishment. We could feel the impact of each person's efforts on the town.

The meeting ended with a round of applause and a feeling of unity. We left the room feeling more connected to the community and ready to take on the challenges ahead.

Whistling in Heaven.

As we were leaving, we couldn't help but notice the beautiful sky above. We sat on the porch for a while, watching the clouds drift by and listening to the sounds of nature. It was a peaceful moment, a reminder that even in the midst of the hustle and bustle, there is still a beauty to be found.

We ended up having a great conversation with a group of people who were also interested in the community. It was a rollercoaster ride of emotions and ideas, but it was a powerful experience and one that we will never forget.

Guess & Husky GENERAL BLACKSMITHS

We were excited to visit the Guess & Husky General Blacksmiths. The shop was bustling with activity, and the sound of hammers and anvils filled the air. We watched as the blacksmiths worked on various items, from knives to horseshoes. It was fascinating to see the skill and craftsmanship that went into each piece.

The blacksmiths were kind enough to give us a tour of the shop and explain some of the processes they use. It was a great learning experience and one that we will never forget.

Educational Column

By Wood Watson, Editor.

FELLOWSHIP IN EDUCATION: This column is published for the information of educational subjects. As a matter of fact, the importance of education in Currituck county is being increased with the passing of each year. Every teacher is treated with the respect and honor due her or him for the time and effort she or he has put into the training of the young people of our community.

The students are following the examples of their teachers and the educational facilities are improving with each passing year. The schools are no longer just places where children go to learn to read, write, and count, but places where they can develop their full potential.

LITERATURE BY F. E. GATS.

Editor of Educational Department:

With the close of the school term in Currituck county, many of the students and teachers are looking forward to the summer months.

The new school year will bring new opportunities for learning and growth. Let us all be prepared to make the most of these opportunities.

The educational system of Currituck county is undergoing a change. The old methods of teaching are being replaced with new and innovative techniques. The students are benefiting from these changes, as they are more engaged and motivated.

I am confident that our education system will continue to improve, and that our students will continue to excel. Let us all work together to ensure that every child has the opportunity to reach their full potential.

In a family for Bay Fever the Trying Other Treatments.

Before the discovery of Bay Fever, there were other treatments that were used to try and alleviate the symptoms. Some of these treatments included the use of herbs and botanicals, as well as the use of hot water compresses.

J. E. Botkin, a well-known herbalist, wrote in his book, "Bay Fever: The�d of Herbs and Botanicals," that certain herbs and botanicals have been used for centuries to treat the symptoms of Bay Fever.

Botanicals such as echinacea, garlic, and nettle have been used to boost the immune system and help to fight off infections. Hot water compresses were also used to help relieve congestion and reduce fever.

These treatments were not as effective as modern treatments, but they did provide some relief to those suffering from Bay Fever. Let us all work together to continue to find effective and safe treatments for Bay Fever.

FAIR SIGN FIGHTERS

The story of two fair workers that started a fight in an Arizona town.

When you think of a fair, you think of rides, games, and food, but sometimes it can get a little too much. This week, two workers at the Maricopa County Fair in Phoenix, Arizona, got into a heated argument that escalated into a physical fight.

The two workers, John Smith and Sarah Johnson, were employed by the fair to run a cotton candy stand. According to witnesses, the argument started over a disagreement about the quality of the cotton candy they were selling. Smith claimed that the candy was not up to standard, while Johnson argued that it was just fine.

The argument quickly turned into a physical altercation, with both workers grabbing each other and pushing each other. Witnesses said that the fight lasted for several minutes and that it was only broken up by fair officials who arrived on the scene.

Both workers have been removed from the fair and are facing disciplinary action from their employer. The fair has apologized to the workers and is investigating the incident to determine if any improvements need to be made to prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future.

The Maricopa County Fair is one of the largest fairs in the state and attracts thousands of visitors each year. It is known for its variety of rides, games, and food, and is a major event for the local community.

The fair is scheduled to run until October 30th, and is expected to attract over 1 million visitors this year. The fair organizers are working to improve safety and security measures to ensure that all visitors can enjoy the fair without any incidents.

Final Thoughts

The incident at the Maricopa County Fair is a reminder of the importance of communication and conflict resolution. It is essential to be able to express our feelings and concerns in a respectful and constructive manner, and to listen to others with an open mind.

The fair organizers have shown a commitment to ensuring the safety and security of all visitors, and are taking steps to prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future. It is essential that we all work together to create a safe and enjoyable environment for everyone.
