TUESDAY WAS REGISTRATION

Day For the Men at the Polls
in the City

LADIES ALSO REGISTERED

A Mighty Throng Inscribed Their Names at Elaborate Opening of Haynes & Taylor

IN NEW QUARTERS ON BANK STREET

While the Marion voters went registering at the various precincts of the city Tuesday, it was also registration day for the ladies at Haynes & Taylor's beautiful new drug store. This popular firm is ever equal to an emergency and registration day was no exception to the rule for they were "there with the goods" and a ready scheme for the oppressed believers in woman's rights.

Pretty Misses Ellis Gray and Mildred Haynes presided over the registration table where every lady and misses in the city were requested to come and inscribe their names, after which they would be given a nice box of Freeman's face powder or a bottle of delicate perfume, especially reserved for them.

At the close of the day by actual count the books showed a total of over five hundred ladies registered. No voter, lady or gentleman, can boast of ever having been treated more hospitably at the polls, for were the polls ever so elaborately or beautifully furnished.

Tuesday was the formal opening day for Messrs. Haynes & Taylor and from early morning until late at night a steady stream of visitors flowed in and out inspecting their lovely quarters and partaking of their hospitality.

Souvenirs of powder and perfume were given every lady who visited the store and drinks and cream were served free of charge.

Curtis Asher presided over the soda fountain with the accommodation and politeness which marked him as being a master hand in dealing with the ladies.

This store is one of the largest, most commodious and one of the finest locations for a drug store, in town. The store runs 60 feet back and has a total of 2080 square feet of floor space. The immense plate glass window in front measures 150 inches in width which provides for the largest front show case window space of any store in town or any store of its size in Kentucky. This show case contains an elaborate display of Freeman face powder arranged with a taste and design which gives it an especially pretty appearance.

As you enter the large door which opens at the corner of the store you come upon the large floor show case directly in the middle of the room. This case is reserved for toilet articles alone. The other show cases are on each side of the store and extend the full length of the latter. On the left is the cigar case back of which is the perfume, powder and toilet cream case and still further back a case containing sundries of every description. Just across on the right side is the perfume case, stationery case and notion case. The wall fixtures are reserved for the drugs. On the left are the patent medicines back of which and to the rear of the prescription counter are the fluid extracts. On the right is the tincture department and back of the prescription case a large roomy cabinet for school books.

The glass doors to the wall fixtures and show cases are all bearing sliding doors, the latest improvement in this line. All the fixtures are of highly polished oak beautifully finished.

In the prescription case is a beautiful plate glass mirror the full length of the case and on either side are diamond shaped ornaments of French bevel glass. The opening in the prescription department on either side are hung with the handsomest of heavy portieres.

The entire floor from front to back is covered with linoleum of a stylish pattern.

And most important of all and that which overlaps everything else in beauty and grandeur, is the gorgeous new soda fountain.

It is a $2000 Innovation Soda Fountain bought of the American Soda Fountain Co., of Boston, Mass., and is an apparatus combining beauty, sanitation and convenience. The syrup is drawn from the counter out of porcelain jars instead of the old time metal containers of the wall apparatus. Back of the counter appears the super-structure of French bevel plate mirrors supported by onyx pillars and oriental lights with leaded glass.

The wood top is a beautiful white enameled effect laid in gold which makes a pleasant contrast and stimulates the brain as well as tickles the palate.

In addition to the little stools around the fountain there are placed at the rear two little tables arranged to seat four people and are for those who prefer them to staying at the fountain. The tables and chairs are made to match each other and are of oak finish with oxidized brass trimmings. And over all this beauty and loveliness, large electric arc-burns throw a radiance which is irresistible to the passer by.

They carry an extra large stock of drugs and sundries and are thoroughly up-to-date in every particular.

And among other things should be mentioned the exquisite perfume case that will be found just to the left of the fountain and the modern tobacco case along the side of the cigar cases.

In all, the Haynes & Taylor opening was an excellent affair and will be remembered with pleasure by all who attended.

OH, LORD! HOW LONG WILL THE PRESS BE BLIND

To Partisan Courts In This District?
Notes From Princeton Chronicle

Hon. R. L. Moore, of Marion, Republican candidate for state senator, was visiting his friends here Friday and Saturday. He makes a fine impression, and his qualifications develop after a few moments' conversation with him. He is very popular in Crittenden and Webster counties and will poll more than his party vote. We will have more to say about him later on.

Brother Jenkins, perhaps a Republican may occasionally sit on a Crittenden county jury, but he can't and don't in Caldwell county, if the court knows itself, and she think she do. Our court is partisan to the core, and you know it, and so does every citizen of this judicial district.

As a quiet tip to the Crittenden Press, we might truthfully say had Mr. Guess had the endorsement of the leading Republicans of the district, as had Mr. Meyers, instead of the active management of Tolu's Democratic doctor, the name of Tolu's new postmaster very likely would have been Guess.

Hon. Press Maxwell, of Marion, the Democratic candidate for state senator, was here Monday looking at his friends.

WILL DIVIDE THE TENNESSEE CENTRAL

Illinois Central and Southern Acquire the Two Branches of the Road

Nashville, Tenn. 26.—According to what is considered good authority, the Illinois Central and the Southern Railway are to take over the Tennessee Central Railroad, dividing the line at Nashville, and giving these two roads an entry to the city.

It is understood the Tennessee Central is acquired under a 99-year lease.

Under the provisions of the deal it is said that the I. C. gets that portion of the road between Nashville and Hopkinsville, Ky., 85 miles, and the Southern is to operate the eastern division of the main line from Harrison Junction, 165 miles, as well as 47 miles of branch lines.

To Clean Off Grave Yard.

All persons interested in the Love grave yard are requested to meet there on October 12 for the purpose of clearing off the ground and completing the house that is now being built at that place.

E. B. MOORE,
S. J. HUMPHREY.

12-2t The Brownies—

HON. M. B. CLARK,

Of Livingston County, our candidate for Representative. He is opposed to the partisan jury methods in vogue in Crittenden and Livingston counties. You will find his name under the Log Cabin. Vote for him.

WIFE KILLED IN RUNAWAY SUNDAY

And Husband Rendered Unconscious
For Some Time.

Sunday afternoon Mrs. W. Champion, of Lela, was killed in a runaway accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Champion had been visiting at the home of their daughter a few miles from their home. They were returning, driving a horse Mr. Champion had bought a few days before, the horse became frightened and ran away throwing Mrs. Champion from the buggy killing her almost instantly and Mr. Champion was rendered unconscious and remained so until Monday morning.

The body of Mrs. Champion did not seem to be bruised and it is supposed her sudden death was due to heart failure on account of the excitement.

Mr. and Mrs. Champion were both members of leading families of Livingston county, and this shocking accident will be learned of with universal regret.

Piney Fork Meeting.

On Monday night after the third Sunday in September, Rev. John King, the present pastor of the church, and Rev. W. T. Oakley, of Marion, began a series of meetings at Piney Fork, and continuing about ten days.

Bro. Oakley did the preaching for the first week and his sermons were delivered with power and were carried to the minds and hearts of hearers with great spiritual force. Bro. King did the preaching during the last three days of the services with the same earnest expounding of the Word, "Christ and Him crucified."

Christians of ever name and order united their prayers and efforts and the result was about twenty conversions, a number of them being heads of families, and the church and community much revived, but, to the Lord be all the glory.

Typographical Survey.

W. H. Sallee, of the United States geological survey, has been in this county several days and Wednesday S. C. Smith arrived. They are engaged in making a typographical map of this section. After this map is made the valuable mineral resources will be examined by government experts.—Morganfield Sun.

Farmers Meet at Crayneville.

The farmers' club will have a big barbecue at Crayneville Saturday, Oct. 14. A large crowd is expected. Addresses will be made by Cols. Ewing and Wood, of Tennessee, and Capt. W. J. Stone, of Kuttawa, noted lecturer on the dark patch.

Have your stationery, bill cards printed at THE RECORD OFFICE.

THE DARK TOBACCO GROWERS' ASSOCIATION

Held Anniversary of Its Existence at Guthrie—Attendance 18000.

The meeting of the Kentucky farmers, held at Guthrie, Sept. 23, to celebrate the first anniversary of the Dark Tobacco Growers' Protective Association, was a success beyond all expectations. Fully 18,000 people from Kentucky and Tennessee spent the day in the little town. On the trains, in wagons, on horseback and on foot the crowds swarmed in from earliest dawn and it was long after midnight before the last of the great concourse of people took their departure.

A very interesting feature of the day was the parade which marched from the town out to the fair grounds. It consisted of men, women and children, both white and black.

There were a dozen bands from Franklin, Pembroke, Clarksville and other neighboring towns.

Dinner was served about twelve o'clock by a committee of 350 citizens. With the provisions that had been prepared by the association and brought by the people, there was sufficient.

Many speeches followed, some of the leading speakers being Joseph L. Washington, of Tennessee; A. O. Stanley, Henderson; John Enslay Gaines, Joel B. Fort and C. P. Warfield, the last named three being also from Tennessee.

Many important points were discussed and at the close of the celebration, Felix G. Ewing, chairman of the executive committee, expressed himself as fully satisfied with the work of the association during the past year of its existence.

Interesting Program.

Miss Rubie Lamb, a very popular young lady of Caldwell county, rendered the following interesting program at the Baptist church Friday evening, September 29, the proceeds to be used in assisting Miss Lamb to complete her education:

An Appeal

TO THE VOTERS OF WEBSTER COUNTY:
As chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee I appeal to the voters of Crittenden county to vote the straight Republican ticket at the coming November election for county officers, for state senator and representative. Our candidates are all personally known to me and are clean men of good, moral character and fully competent to fill the offices to which they aspire. It is necessary, more than ever before, for the Republicans of this county to register their protest at the polls against partisan juries and the unfair and unlawful practices of the Democratic party in this county.

JOHN T. PICKENS,
Ch'm Rep Camp. Com.

Notice!

At the Monday night session of the citizens of Marion, it was decided to publish in the papers beginning with next week the list of contributors and to credit this to those who have paid their subscription to the Opening Day Fund.

It was also decided that sufficient interest had been displayed to insure success in the movement. Therefore, to begin collecting subscriptions Dr. T. A. Frazer was elected treasurer and J. H. Orme, assistant treasurer.

Considerable interest is being manifested by the business men of the city and the meetings are being well attended. There will be another meeting at the court house this (Friday) evening.

SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIANS MET HERE LAST WEEK

The semi-annual convention of the Paducah Presbytery of the Southern Presbyterian church met in this city, Sept. 26, 27 and 28th. composed of Delegates from all the churches in the circuit which includes all the counties of the first Congressional District and Henderson and Union counties.

It was one of the best attended and most interesting conventions ever held and the ministers, delegates and visitors departing to their various fields of work were indeed helped and encouraged by the interest manifested by all.

The opening sermon was preached by Rev. C. W. Whorton, of Morganfield.

Among the other able ministers who attended and took part in the convention were: Revs. R. E. C. Lawson and Cummins, of Henderson; H. B. Zernow, of Uniontown; L. O. Spencer, of Elizabethtown Ky. Rev. William Heggins, of Elizabethtown, Ky., delivered a most interesting lecture on the Sunday school in general. He has devoted much of his time and study to this branch of church work and very ably discussed it in his lecture.

Rev. J. R. Reeves, of Louisville, lectured on foreign missions their needs etc. Rev. Reeves handled this subject as only a man well read and studied in it can. His lecture was thoroughly enjoyed by every one who heard it.

Hon. W. J. Deboe, of this city, was chosen moderator and Rev. C. W. Whorton, of Morganfield, Secretary. The next convention will be held at Sturgis, April 3, 1906.

The Princeton Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian church is now in session and a full report of it will appear in our columns next week.

Farmer-Elder.

Miss Myrtle Farmer and Rufus H. Elder were joined in matrimony Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. A. Farmer, on Walker street, the Rev. J. R. McAfee officiating. Only a few friends and relatives were present and the bride's brother and his wife were the only attendants at the ceremony.

The groom is a competent contractor and carpenter of this city. He is a son of T. S. C. Elder, a well known citizen of this county.

The bride is the popular and attractive daughter of H. C. Farmer. She has won many friends by her womanly traits of character who wish her a long and happy married life.

Mr. and Mrs. Elder will be at home to their friend about two miles North-east of the city.

Every county, having representation at the convention, will be expected to have one or more of their delegates answer the following questions: what is known as the roll call of the county:

What inducements are offered by your county, or city, to capital seeking investments?

What industries, manufacturing or other, do you most need?

The convention will be called to order at two o'clock on the afternoon of Tuesday October 10, at the Galt House where all the business sessions and entertainments will be held.

All the rail roads have granted special rate of one fare plus 25 cents to all point in Kentucky which makes it convenient for delegates from every city and town in Kentucky to attend.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

FOR every man he knew and loved Mr. Greeley had a kindness that filled him to the finger tips. When I returned he snote me on the breast, an unfailing mark of his favor, and doubled my salary.

"If he ever smites you on the breast," McCling had once said to me, "turn the other side, for, man, your fortune is made."

And there was some truth in the warning.

He was writing when I came in. A woman sat beside him talking. An immense lamp lay on the marble top of the steam radiator. A basket of eggs sat on the floor near Mr. Greeley's desk. All sorts of merchandise were sent to the Tribune those days for notice and sold at auction to members of the staff by Mr. Dana.

"Yes, yes, madam. Go on, I hear you," said the great editor as his pen flew across the white page.

She asked him then for a loan of money. He continued writing, but present his left hand dove into his trousers pocket, coming up full of bills.

"Take what you want," said he, holding it toward her, "and please go, for I am very busy." Whereupon she helped herself liberally and went away.

Seeing me, Mr. Greeley came and shook my hand warmly and praised me for a good soldier.

"Going downtown?" he said in a moment, drawing on his big white overcoat. "Walk along with me, won't you?"

We crossed the park, he leading me with long strides. As he walked he told how he had been suffering from brain fever. Passing St. Paul's churchyard he brushed the iron pickets with his hand as if to try the feel of them.

My turned to stare at him curiously. He asked me soon if I would care to do a certain thing for the Tribune, stopping to look in at a show window as I answered him. I waited while he did his errand at a Broadway shop, then we came back to the office.

The publisher was in Mr. Greeley's room. "Where's my lam, Dave?" said the editor as he looked at the slab of marble where the lam had lain.

"Don't know for sure," said the publisher. "It's probably up at the house of the editor by this time."

"What did you go an' give it to him for?" drawled Mr. Greeley in a tone of irreparable injury. "I wanted that ham for myself."

"I didn't give it to him," said the publisher. "He came and helped himself. Said he supposed it was sent in for notice."

"The infernal thief!" Mr. Greeley piped with a violent gesture. "I'll swear if I didn't keep my shirt buttoned tight they'd have that too."

The ham was a serious obstacle in the way of my business, and it went over until evening. But that and like incidents made me to know the man as I have never seen him pictured—a boy grown old and gray, pushing the power of manhood with the ardors of youth.

I resumed work on the Tribune that week. My first assignment was a mass meeting in a big temporary structure, then called a wigwam, over in Brooklyn. My political life began that day and all by an odd chance. The wigwam was crowded to the doors. The audience had been waiting half an hour for the speaker. The chairman had been doing his best to kill time, but had run out of ammunition. He had sat down to wait. An awkward silence had begun. The crowd was stamping and whistling and clapping with impatience. As I walked down the center aisle to the reporters' table they seemed to mistake me for the speaker. Instantly a great uproar began. It grew louder every step I took. I began to wonder and then to fear the truth. As I neared the stage the chairman came forward, beckoning to me. I went to the flight of steps leading up to that higher level of distinguished citizens and halted, not knowing just what to do. He came and leaned over and whispered down at me. I remember he was red in the face and damp with perspiration.

"What is your name?" he inquired.

"Brower," said I in a whisper.

A look of relief came into his face, and I am sure a look of anxiety came into mine. He had taken the center of the stage before I could stop him.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said he, "I am glad to inform you that General Brower has at last arrived."

I remembered then there was a General Brower in the army, who was also a power in politics.

In the storm of applause that followed this announcement I beckoned him to the edge of the platform again. I was nearer a condition of mental panic than I have ever known since that day.

"I am not General Brower," I whispered.

"What?" said he in amazement.

"I am not General Brower," I said.

"Great heavens!" he whispered, covering his mouth with his hand and looking very thoughtful. "You'll have to make a speech anyway. There's no escape."

I could see no way out of it and after a moment's hesitation ascended the platform, took off my overcoat and made a speech. Fortunately the issue was one with which I had been long familiar. I told them how I had been trapped. The story put the audience in good humor, and they helped me along with very generous applause. And so began my career in politics, which has brought me more honor than I deserve, although I know it has not been wholly without value to my country. It enabled me to repay in part the kindness of my former chief at a time when he was sadly in need of friends. I remember meeting him in Washington a day of that exciting campaign of 1872. I was then in congress.

"I thank you for what you have done, Brower," said he, "but I tell you I am licked. I shall not carry a single state. I am going to be slaughtered."

He had read his fate and better than he knew. In politics he was a great prophet.

CHAPTER XXIX.

THE north country lay buried in the snow that Christmas time. Here and there the steam snow had thrown its furrows on either side of the railroad high above the window line. The fences were muffled in long ridges of snow. Their stakes showing like pins in a cushion on white velvet. Some of the small trees on the edge of the big timber stood overdrifted to their boughs. I have never seen such a glory of the morning as when the sun came up that day we were nearing home and lit the splendor of the hills there in the land I love. The frosty nap of the snow glowed far and near with pulsing glints of pale sapphire.

We came into Hillsborough at noon the day before Christmas. Father and Uncle Eb met us at the depot, and mother stood waving her handkerchief at the door as we drove up. And when we were done with our greetings and were standing, damp eyed, to warm ourselves at the fire Uncle Eb brought his palms together with a loud whack and said:

"Look here, Lizbeth Brower! I want t' hev ye tell me if ye ever see a like-lier pair o' colts!"

She laughed as she looked at us. In a moment she ran her hand down the side of Hope's gown. Then she lifted a fowl of the cloth and felt of it thoughtfully.

"How much was that a yard?" she asked, a dreamy look in her eyes. "W'y, w'y?" she continued as Hope told her the sum. "Terrible steep, but it does fit splendid! Oughter wear well too! Wish ye'd put that on if ye go t' church nex' Sunday."

"Oh, mother," said Hope, laughing. "I'll wear my blue silk!"

"Come, boys an' girls," said Elizabeth suddenly, "dinner's all ready in the other room."

"Beats the world!" said Uncle Eb as we sat down at the table. "Ye do look gran' t' me—see-markable gran', both uv ye. Tek a premium at any fair—ye would sartain."

"Has he won yer affections?" said David, laughing, as he looked over at Hope.

"He has," said she solemnly.

"Affections are a singlar kind o' prop'ity," said Uncle Eb. "Hain't good for nuthin' 'til ye've g'n em away. Then, like as not, they git very valy-ble."

"Good deal that way with money," too, said Elizabeth Brower.

"I recollect when Hope was a leetle bit uv a girl," said Uncle Eb. "She used t' say 'et when she got married she was goin' t' hev us all come t' live with her an' hev her husband rub my back fer me when it was lame."

"I haven't forgotten it," said Hope, "and if you will all come you will make us happier."

"Good many mouths t' feed," Uncle Eb remarked.

"I could take in sewing and help some," said Elizabeth Brower as she slipped her tea.

There was a little quiver in David's under lip as he looked over at her.

"You ain't able t' do hard work any more, mother," said he.

"She won't never hev to nuther," said Uncle Eb. "Don't never pay t' go lookin' fer trouble; it's tew easy t' find. There ain't no sech thing 's trouble 'n this world 'less ye look fer it. Happiness won't hev nuthin' t' dew with a man that likes trouble. Minut a man stops lookin' fer trouble happiness 'll look fer him. Things come purty nigh 's ye like 'em here 'n this world, but er cold or only middlin'. Ye can either laugh or cry or fight or fish or go t' meetin'. If ye don't like erry one ye can fin' fault. I'm on the lookout fer happiness. Suits me best some way an' don't hurt my feelin's a bit."

"Ev'ry day's a kind uv a circus day with you, Holden," said David Brower, "alluvus hev'n a good time. Ye can hev more fun with yerself 'n any man I ever see."

"If I hev as much hereafter as I've hed here I ain't a goin' t' fin' no fault," said Uncle Eb. "'S a reel splendid world. God's fixed it up so ev'rybody can hev a good time if they'll only hev it. Once I heard uv a poor man 'at hed a bushel o' corn give tew him. He looked up kind o' sad an' ast if they wouldn't please shell it. Then they tuk it away. God's gin us happiness in the ear, but he ain't a goin' t' shell it fer us. You an' 'Lizabeth oughter be very happy. Look at them tew children!"

There came a rap at the door then. David put on his cap and went out with Uncle Eb.

"It's somebody fer more money," Elizabeth whispered, her eyes filling.

"I know 'tis, or he would have asked him in. We're goin' t' lose our home."

Her lips quivered. She covered her eyes a moment.

"Worries night an' day over money matters. Don't say much, but I can see it's alluvus on his mind. Woke up in the middle o' the night awhile ago. Found him sittin' by the stove. 'Mother,' he said, 'we can't never go back to farmin'. I've plowed furrows enough t' go 'round the world. Couldn't never go through it ag'in.' 'Well,' said I, 'if you think best we could start over an' see how we git along. I'm willin' t' try it.' 'No, we're too old,' he says. 'That's what'll we do there with Bill an' Hope if we go t' live with 'em! Don't suppose they'll hev any hosses t' take care uv or any wood t' chop. What we'll hev t' do is more'n I can make out. We can't do nuthin'; we've never hearn how."

"We've thought that all over," I said.

"We may have a place in the country with a big garden."

"Well," said she, "I'm very well if I am over sixty. I can cook an' wash an' mend an' iron just as well as I ever could."

Uncle Eb came to the door then.

"Bill," he said, "I want you an' Hope t' come out here an' look at this young colt o' mine. He's playful 's a kitten."

We put on our wraps and went to the stable. Uncle Eb was there alone.

"If ye brought any Christmas presents," he whispered, "slip 'em into my hans. I'm goin' t' run the circks t'morrow, an' if we don't hev fun aplenty I'll miss my guess."

"I'll lay them out in my room," said Hope.

"Be sure an' put the names on 'em," Uncle Eb whispered as Hope went away.

"What hev ye done with the 'b'ilers?" I inquired.

"Sold 'em," said he, laughing. "Bark-er never kep' his promise. Heard they'd gone over t' the burg an' was tryin' t' sell more territory. I says t' Dave, 'You let me manage 'em an' I'll put 'em out o' business here 'n this part o' the country.' So I writ out an advertisement for the paper. Read about this way:

"'Fer sale. Twelve hundred patent suction wash 'b'ilers. Any one at can't stan' prosperity an' is learnin' t' swear 'll find 'em a great help. If he don't, he's a bigger fool 'n I am. Nuthin' in 'em but tin—that's wuth sumthin'. Warranted t' hold water.'"

"Waal, ye know how that editor talks? 'Twain't a day 'fore the head man o' the 'b'iler business come an' bought 'em. An' the advertisement was never put in. Guess he wan't hankerin' t' hev his business sp'ilt."

Uncle Eb was not at the supper table that evening.

"Where's Holden?" said Elizabeth Brower.

"Dunno," said David. "Goin' after Santa Claus, he tol' me."

"Never see the bout o' that man!" was the remark of Elizabeth as she poured the tea. "Jes' like a boy ev'ry Christmas time. Been so excited for a week couldn't hardly contain himself."

"Ketch'd him out 'n the barn t'other day laffin' like a fool," said David. "Thought he was crazy."

We sat by the fire after the supper dishes were put away, talking of all the Christmas days we could remember. Hope and I thought our last in Faraway best of all, and no wonder, for we had got then the first promise of the great gift that now made us happy. Elizabeth, sitting in her easy chair, told of Christmas in the olden time, when her father had gone to the war with the British.

David sat near me, his face in the firelight, the broad brow wrinkled into furrows and framed in locks of iron gray. He was looking thoughtfully at the fire. Uncle Eb came soon, stamping and shaking the snow out of his great fur coat.

"Cold night," he said, warming his hands.

Then he carried his coat and cap away, returning shortly with a little box in his hand.

"Jes' thought I'd buy this fer fun," said he, holding it down to the firelight. "Dummed if I ever see the like uv it. Whoo!" he shouted as the cover flew open, releasing a jumping jack.

"Quicker'n a grasshopper! D'ye ever see sech a sassy little critter?"

Then he handed it to Elizabeth.

"Wish ye merry Christmas, Dave Brower!" said he.

"Ain't as merry as I might be," said David.

"Know what's the matter with ye," said Uncle Eb. "Searchin' after trou-

"I give ye back yer son Schemmish," ble, that's what ye're doin'; findin' lots uv it right there 'n the fire. Trouble's goin' t' git mighty scarce 'round here this very selfsame night. Ain't goin' t' be nobody lookin' fer it, that's why. Fer years ye've been takin' care o' somebody et'll take care o' you long 's ye live, sartain sure. Folks they said ye was fools when ye took 'em in. Man said I was a fool once. Alluvus hed a purty fair idee o' myself sense then. When some folks call ye a fool 's ruth-er good sign ye ain't. Ye've waited a long time fer yer pay. Ain't much longer t' wait now."

OUR FASHION LETTER.

New Sleeves Are to Have Very Little Fullness.

THE AUTO HATPIN A NOVELTY

Large Hats Will Reign Supreme—The Triumph of the Lingerie Petticoat. Natural Flowers to Be Worn as Ornaments—Modes For Young Folks.

Sleeves hesitate to declare themselves, but the sleeve line, so far as fullness is concerned, is pushed well up above the elbow, and some of the plainer suits show no fullness at all except where it is eased into the armhole.

A new hand bag looks as if it were made of silver tissue. It is gray in an ordinary light, but in the sun changes and sparkles.

A curious tailor made stock has a narrow vestlike tab tucked in clusters and a tiny pearl buckle directly in front through which two smaller tabs are passed.

A striking novelty which as yet is sacred to the most exclusive modistes is the headwork collar. This quaint accessory is eminently successful if rightly applied, but is apt to look like a head cushion of long ago if used without due consideration.

The auto hatpin is one of the fall novelties. This pin is surmounted by a tiny driver carved in gold or silver, with eyes of precious stones and further enhanced by goggles of microscopic proportions.

Small hats, so unbecoming to the average woman, have had their day, and large chapeaux will reign supreme.

Very stunning is this frock of red cloth and most suggestive of the autumn woods with its design on skirt and waist of a fern leaf carried out in narrow black band. Supplementing this trimming are bands and applications of fancy braid.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

The triumph of the lingerie petticoat is complete. It has been some years in asserting its supremacy again, but now that it is here it is most royally welcomed. The prettiest examples are of filmy hand embroidered lawn, with a froutrou of lace at the feet. Others carry valenciennes frills to the knees, and some more utilitarian but at the same time extremely pretty skirts are simply trimmed with hem-stitched casabrie ruffles. It is a law unwritten, but observed, that the lady shall not work her wicked way with starch, the merest bit of stiffening being sufficient to lend these dainty petticoats substance.

A pretty white mull dress for home wear during the winter is made unusual by the alternate bands of white and yellow lace of exactly the same pattern that trim it.

The fashion of wearing natural flowers as an ornament is coming in vogue. While all sorts of flowers are worn, there is a special fancy for uncommon blooms and foliage. The rose or even the orchid is passed over in favor of some little out of the way posy of country growth. Handfuls of wild vines with bright blossoms are pinned to the corsage and allowed to wander down the front of a gown.

For evening dress when the bodice is cut low and sleeveless a cache coiset is a necessity. The dainty little cover pictured is of this description and is composed almost entirely of lace. Bands of insertion form a pretty finish at the top, drawn up with baby ribbon. Straps of lace make the shoulder pieces, and a ruffle of lace drawn up with heading holds the fullness at the waist line.

SMART SCHOOL HATS.

Many smart models for school hats are in the shops. They are generally big and flat in effect, and many are of stitched felt. There are not so many radical changes in children's millinery as in that of their elders. For the most part, the hats are plain, but picturesque. The large broad brimmed styles are still favorites, some in drooping effect and others slightly uplifted. Crowns are low and of medium height.

Ribbons are very much used on children's hats. The simplest ones are trimmed with a wide sash ribbon knotted in a big bow in front. These are always in the best taste and style as well.

A good model for a child's winter hat is of fine French felt in any pretty shade. The brim of this hat falls in graceful lines and the small crown of felt is replaced with a large tam crown of silk. The edges are deeply stitched. Wide bands of silk exactly matching the felt have their edges deeply stitched and the ends knotted to form a huge bow in front.

For misses' dressy hats velvet will be in evidence. Of course they are out of the question for school wear, but many of them are simple in treatment and very picturesque.

Ostrich feathers will be used on children's best hats. A pretty model is of brown velvet rolled away from the face slightly on one side of the front and bent over the hair at the back. The crown and upper brim are caught with a large bow of the velvet.

The dainty little girl's hat illustrated is of French gray felt faced halfway under the brim with velvet and the flat crown almost entirely covered with a thatching of wire loops.

STREET GOWNS.

The most economical of autumn gowns is a costume of light cloth or veiling made up in elaborate shirt waist style. It will when worn with a smart separate jacket serve one well into November as a street costume and then do duty for indoor wear.

Black gowns of the coat and skirt order are to be very much worn, with collar and cuffs of becoming color, but not white, either in cloth or lace, which is now de mode. Braiding as a trimming is to be very smart.

Brown will not be as popular this season as it was last, although it is such a favorite color that more or less of it will be worn. Green in several shades, particularly a peacock green, will be a favorite tone in millinery.

Cashmere, henriettes and drap d'ete, Cashmere with velvet, are the materials most in vogue for afternoon frocks. Plaids in two tones or two shades of the same color are very fashionable. The plaid is quite indistinct—in fact, the shades merging so easily together as to be almost a plain effect at a distance.

Checks and stripes, although brought out in attractive patterns, will not be as smart as plain colors and plaids.

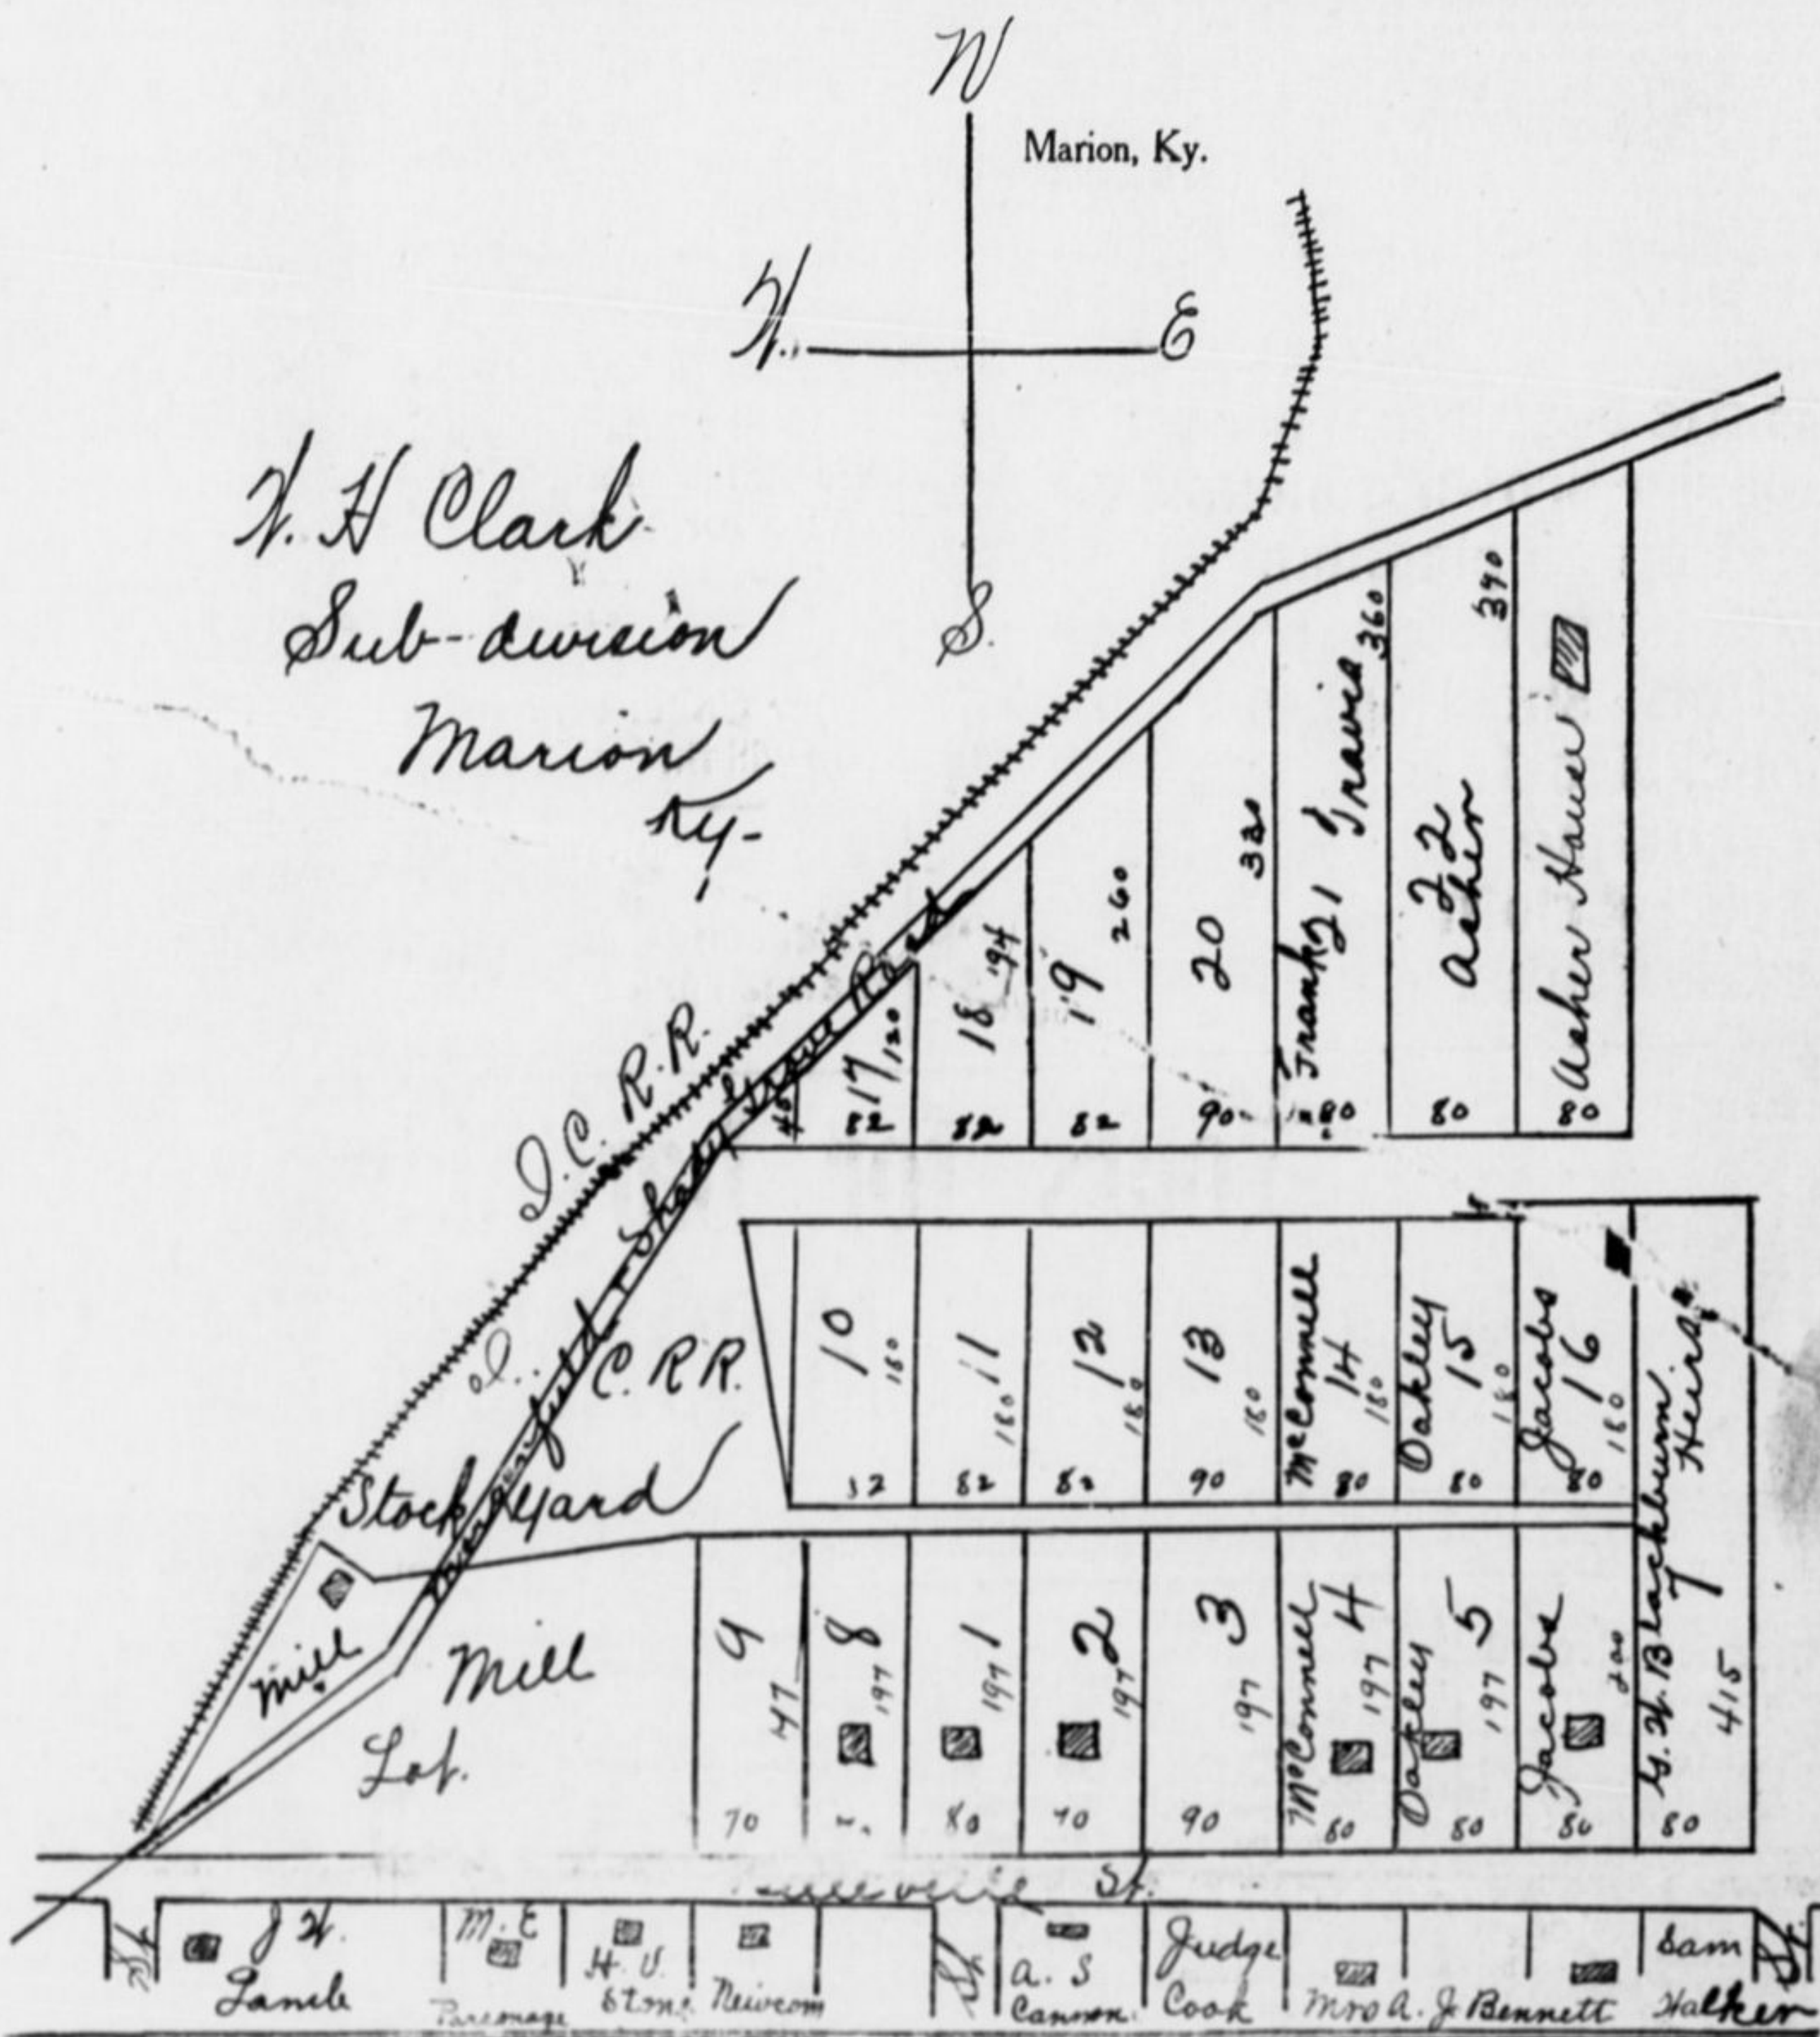

The gown pictured is of green and gray plaid. The skirt has a band of plain green cloth at the bottom and is plaid all round. The jaunty little coat is of green cloth, with waistcoat of plaid. The collar and cuffs are of green velvet. Silver and jade buttons fasten the waistcoat. JUDITH CHOLLET.

The last issue of THE RECORD was for blasts from out the bugle horn the Press for many days hence.

Look at the picture of our next representative on the first page of this issue. The Democrats will have to keep T. H. Cochran at home to look after their jury interests.

We wonder how the Press is going to explain why a part of its so-called county court house Republican machine did not ask for bids on printing the financial statement this year.

The chiefest among the modern rules of journalism is to print the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. — Press. And it said that Norman Hoover was a Republican. It also said there were Republicans on the jury that indicted Towery. "Consistency, thou art a jewel! What do you think? It is that the Democrats are electing among the colored voters, pretend like they want them to be on juries. This report evidently has been error as it is likely are only transacting business with some of their colored relatives.

How did the Press know that County Judge Towery was going to advise the fiscal court to reduce the tax rate?

T. H. Cochran made such an agreeable, affable Democratic jury commissioner, that (see Q) Ollie James decided he would be worth a great deal to them in other places, so they decided to run him for the legislature and Tom will tell you himself that he did it for their sake.

Our readers still remember the letter of R. M. Franks as was published in THE RECORD of last week. He showed the shameful manner in which he was treated by the Democrats. Mr. Franks was a prohibition candidate for sheriff and had been informed by the Democrats that they would not put out a candidate for the office of sheriff and intimidated him that they would endorse him for the office. He says they kept him under this impression until it was too late for him to go about over the country to get the necessary amount of names signed to a petition in order to get him on the ballot. And after it was too late they threw him down as he says, in a "disgraceful and disgusting" manner, and nominated another man for the office. "Eight years ago," says Mr. Franks, "I made a race in the interest of the Democratic party at a sacrifice of a $1000 or $1200 job and this is not the first time they have snubbed me." They already realize where they made a mistake in their treatment of Mr. Franks and to offset this they are promoting the interests of the prohibition candidate for jailer as far as possible by giving publicity to his letters, etc., gratis, eulogizing his race editorially and blowing off about a few parties whom Mr. Hill did not ask to commit themselves to him but did ask to sign a statement to the effect that he was a voter and a citizen of Crittenden county, but who later went to Mr. Hill and asked him to erase their names in view of the fact that it might be considered they were pledged to him when really they were for Travis.

When Carl Henderson, candidate for county attorney, was asked what he had to say about the article in this week's issue of The Crittenden Press as to his statement in regard to the indictment of election officers? Mr. Henderson said: "I am not from Missouri but you will have to show me, as I never read such literature" and when shown a copy of the article, he said, "If you will pardon me for the language, it is false from start to finish and was known to be false when published and unless it had been false I believe The Crittenden Press would not have published the article, less it should lose its reputation.

"The statement I made in regard to the men that were indicted was that they were indicted by Democrats for political purposes, on false evidence and the Commonwealth objected to every Republican on the petit jury trying the case." The Press, in order to make the falsehood more complete, says Judge Moore defended the Republicans and Ollie James the Democrats. I defended every Republican myself. To make the falsehood more complete, the men were not all turned loose by the commonwealth's attorney. Some of the cases were tried out before a jury and acquitted. The Democrats were turned loose by the commonwealth. I did not know that the grand jury was Democratic, but that the commonwealth made an effort to try these Republicans by a Democratic petit jury."

A Card.

Having received the nomination for office of Judge of the Crittenden County Court, I take pleasure in announcing myself a candidate for same, and just here I want to thank my many friends for their kind remembrance of me in days gone by. My life, as well as my official record, is as an open book before you.

When questions effecting the interest of the people, such as taxation for the purpose of building a new court house and working roads by taxation, I am opposed to, until a majority of the citizens demand it. My humble judgment is that a few have not the right to impose unnecessary taxation upon the majority of people without their consent. If elected I shall take this stand upon these questions when presented to me. These are my views on the matters, briefly outlined. I ask you to consider them, and if you believe I am right, honest and competent, vote for me and if elected, I shall endeavor to convince you of my highest appreciation for your kindness by a faithful discharge of the duties of County Judge.

TO THE VOTERS OF CRITTENDEN COUNTY:

After being solicited and urged by friends from all parts of the county, and by the unanimous vote of the committee of my party I have consented to become a candidate for the office of county court clerk, but I am sorry to say that it will be impossible for me to make anything like a thorough canvass. However, I will do the best I can in this respect. It would afford me great pleasure to visit you personally in your homes, but this is beyond my power. You can rest assured that I feel grateful to you for past favors and will appreciate your sympathy and help in this contest.

Nothing known to me would give me more pleasure than to serve you as your next county clerk. It is true, I am, like many of you, growing old, but yet I feel I know that I can discharge the duties of the office personally.

If elected, you will always find me at my post ready to serve you.

Faithfully yours, D. WOODS.

Good-by.

BY RUSTIC.

When you are old, and I am passed away — Passed, and your face — your golden face is gray — I think, what'er the end, this dream of mine, Comforting you, a friendly star will shine Down the dim slope where you still stumble and stray.

So may it be, that so seeming dead yesterday, No sad-eyed ghost, but generous and gay, May serve you memories like almighty wine, When you are old!

Dear heart, it shall be so. Under the sway Of death, the part's enormous disarray Lies hushed and dark. Yet, there comes no sign; Live on, well-pleased, immortal and divine Love shall still tend you, as God's angel may When you are old!

I thought I should like to say good-by before I disappear for a long, long time — to say good-by in the old, sweet, English sense of "God be with you!" — for that, they say, is the origin of the term, and to say it with all my heart, you may be sure, when the memories come to me as they always shall, on a beautiful Sabbath morn. To My Friends.

As it will be impossible for me to see all of you in person before the election in November, I take this method of again expressing to you my sincere gratitude for your support in my race for county clerk four years ago, and I assure you that I shall always be thankful to you for the interest you have manifested in me.
I have at all times endeavored to do my duty as your county clerk, and to treat all men alike, and to prove myself worthy of the honor, and if I have at any time failed, it was unintentional.
I received the nomination for re-election from my party without opposition, and it is my sincere desire to see my party successful. I am glad that I can go out before the people as a candidate of a party that is in favor of fair elections and a fair count, and one that is in favor of nonpartisan jurors.
My opponent would have you believe he has been solicited by men of all political parties to make the race again. That is simply his old way of placing himself before the people, and, if you will look at his card in the Crittenden Press in 1894, 1897 and 1901, you will see he claimed the same.
I would like to serve my friends and my party as your next county clerk, and I promise, if elected, to do my duty and I assure you that no living man will appreciate your vote more than I will.
Sincerely thanking you,
C. E. WELDON

LESSON 14, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, OCT. 8.

Text of the Lesson, Dan. vi, 10-23. Memory Verses, 21-23—Golden Text, Ps. xlii, 7—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1905, by American Press Association.] Throughout the whole Bible story, which covers the whole history of the earth, it is ever manifest that there is a deadly conflict between the seed of the serpent and the seed of the woman, some special manifestations of the same being seen in Cain and Abel, Joseph's brethren and Joseph, Pharaoh and Israel, Absalom and David, in our lesson of today, notably in the Jews and Jesus, and finally in the events which will take place as recorded in Rev. xii, 17; xvii, 14; xx, 10.

Daniel continuing, although the kingdom changed hands, is suggestive of Him whom Daniel served, who continues the same amid all changes. Daniel's pre-eminence over all the presidents and princes (verse 3) recalls Col. 1, 18, "That in all things He might have the pre-eminence." See also Eph. 1, 21-23, as to His being "far above all" powers and names in heaven and earth. There being no error or fault in Daniel (verse 4) makes us think of Pilate's threefold testimony concerning Christ, "I find no fault in Him" (John xviii, 38; xix, 4, 6). It is ever true that "the wicked plotteth against the just, and it is the nature of the devil to accuse the good" (Ps. xixvii, 12; Job 1, 9; 11, 4), but the triumph of the wicked is short, and the triumph of the righteous is sure and eternal.

Daniel was strengthened for this great trial by the visions granted him in the reign of Belshazzar (chapters vii and viii), as Abraham was strengthened to resist the temptation from the king of Sodom by the appearance of and blessing from Melchizedek. We all need the light of prophecy and the realities of the future glory to enable us to overcome in the daily conflict. Daniel's purpose of heart as a young man not to defile himself is to be in any way compromised with the world is as bright as ever in his advanced years, and although he knew that the writing had been signed by the king which meant his death if he proved faithful to his God he continued openly to pray and give thanks as aforetime because he believed in his God (verses 10, 23).

Daniel's life was a life of prayer all through and an illustration of the truth, "The righteous shall hold on his way, and he that hath clean hands shall be stronger and stronger" (Job xvii, 9). Fortified by the word of God and sustained by the blessed hope of the kingdom, the world's favors or opposition were equally vain to move him. See Acts xx, 24. But "the wicked watcheth the righteous and seeketh to slay him" (Ps. cxviii, 32); and Paul said that the Spirit testified that bonds and afflictions awaited him everywhere.

The ungodly prospered, the law that altereth not had Daniel in its grasp, and even the love of Darius could not deliver, though he did seek to encourage Daniel the best he knew. It was a grand testimony to Daniel, "Thy God whom thou servest continually," and he was talking better than he knew when he said, "He will deliver thee" (verse 16). He had greater assurance when he wrote his epistle to all nations concerning the God of Daniel, "He delivereth and rescueth, and He worketh signs and wonders in heaven and on earth" (verses 25-27). On deliverances see II Cor. 1, 10; II Tim. iv, 17, 18.

Daniel in the den, with a stone upon the mouth of it sealed with the king's signet, was disposed of as effectually as the power of man could dispose of him. So Joseph sold to the Ishmaelites, Daniel's friends in the furnace, the Lord Jesus in Joseph's tomb, but people always imagine vain things, at which He that sitteth in the heavens laughs and holds them in derision (Ps. 1, 6; xxxiii, 10, 11). Man talks of laws and purposes which cannot be changed, but God alone has the right to talk thus. See Eph. 1, 11; 11, 11.

The night of sleepless fasting (verse 19) indicated the king's love for Daniel, but love could not deliver unless it provided one on whom the law could take effect, and we do not read that Darius was willing to take Daniel's place. Contrast John III, 16; Gal. II, 20; III, 13; I Pet. II, 24; Rom. x, 4; Isa. III, 5, 6. Not only did Jesus die in our stead for our sins, but God raised Him from the dead and gave Him glory, and on that resurrection morning many bodies of the saints arose also and appeared to many and doubtless accompanied Him to glory Matt. xxvii, 52, 53. This morning of victory in the life of Daniel, which proved such a morning of woes to his enemies (verse 24), should set us looking up the morning stories and texts of scripture such as Ex. xiv, 24; Mark vi, 4-18; Ps. xxi, 5; xlii, 5, margin; xlix, 4; I Sam. xxiii, 3, 4.

There is a class of people for whom there is no morning (Isa. viii, 20, Rev. ix, 1). The title "servant of the living God" should remind us of I Sam. xvii, 56; I Kings xvii, 1; xviii, 15; II Kings v, 16; I Thess. I, 9; I Peter. I, 18, the living God is also the Lord of hosts, hosts of angels and redeemed people and worlds, and since one angel is the power here set forth (verse 22) also in Isa. xxxvii, 36; Acts xli, 10, and these angels delight to obey His word and minister to His saints (Eph. iii, 21, 22; Heb. I, 14), what happy, victorious lives the saints should lead.

Daniel suffered the extreme penalty of the law and came forth from the den of death, beyond death and judgment, without any manner of loss or stain. So shall it be with all who lay to heart and abide with Him, and with Him, risen with Him.

A Touching Story

A touching story from death of the baby girl of Geo. A. Eyer, Cumberland, Mo. He writes: "At the age of 11 months our little girl was in declining health with serious throat trouble and two physicians gave her up. We were almost in despair when we resolved to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. The first bottle gave relief; after taking four bottles she was cured and is now in perfect health." Never fails to relieve and cure a cough or cold. At Haynes & Taylor's drug store; 50c and $1.00 granted. Trial bottle free.

Tom White's Murderer Under Bond.

Morganfield, Ky., Sept. 22.—Last week Judge Clements received a letter from some one in Webster county saying that William Babb wanted for the murder of Tom White, was in that county, that he was going about armed and terrorizing the neighborhood. A warrant was sent to the officers of Webster and the latter part of last week Babb was arrested. Since that time he has been under guard.

His examining trial was set for yesterday and when it was called County Attorney Berry asked for a continuance on the ground that the witnesses for the commonwealth were beyond the jurisdiction of this court and that he had been unable to locate them. Judge Clements refused to continue the case and the commonwealth
