NUMBER 29.

A NEW ENTERPRISE.

Wilson's Laundry is Now Ready For Business.

Marion has cause to be proud of starting on new years day with a new and modern laundry, equipped as well as any city laundry, with all the necessary machinery for doing first-class work; and under the present conditions in Marion it is a most auspicious time for opening a laundry. Every housekeeper will hail its advent with delight. Mr. R. W. Wilson, the builder, has presented it to his son J. W. Wilson, who is sole proprietor and manager. At present he has Mr. Colgan, of Chicago, an expert laundryman, who will remain until the new hands are initiated in the uses of the new machinery. Families here and all persons in other towns near by should patronize this much needed enterprise, and may be assured of fair treatment and first-class work.

A Bit of Respect for Parents.

We are going to offer you, dear parents and teachers, a eulogy we children think so justly due you.

It is our delight at this present occasion to present to you a slight token of our esteem. To say that we all love you, is to repeat what you must already know. Out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh but words do not always express our purpose. We want to express our heartfelt gratitude for all you have done for us.

We ask you to accept this as the greatest gift in our power; could we lavish more potently this gift we would do so with pleasure. This is a gift from loyal scholars, who recognize and appreciate your constant and untiring efforts to minister to our needs in every way and at all times.

We believe that we are discharging our duty by giving you a mite of indebtedness we owe you.

There are so many of our friends here that it leads us to believe boys and girls can do something after all, if nothing more than be obedient boys and girls, and love with all our hearts.

Our wish is that we may always be kept loving and true, and that when we shall come to the great River of Life that we shall pass over and receive a cordial welcome at the Savior's right hand, and receive a crown that just and obedient boys and girls are due.

We have tried to give you an idea of our appreciation of the many kind things you have done for us, although we know we can only pay a small portion due you. We will ever try to live for you and repay you for your goodness to us.

Good parents, accept this from your children, and may the kind heart of God bless you and keep you through the wish of your obedient children.

MARY DEBOE.

Narrow Escape.

Stembridge, of the Iron River, had a narrow and miraculous escape from drowning in creek last week. He was returning from Marion where he had some Christmas purchases, and on the creek without noticing that the water had risen considerably since he passed over in the morning. The current was too deep for fording Stembridge, with his wagon and team, was swept away, but by clinging to the limb of a tree he escaped his wagon and team were further down the creek lodged in drift, but they were soon extricated and saved with great difficulty.

On Dec. 29th the ladies of the Noirma club gave their annual banquet at the New Marion Hotel. Only the husbands were invited and each one came, representing a tree of which Clem Nunn's bump of "black jack" and Nellie Walker's "single tree" were the hardest to name. The hotel office was given over to the club for the evening and was made beautiful with rugs, palms and fancy paper balloons. On bursting these balloons each gentleman found the name of the lady whom he was to escort to the table. The dining room was gay with plants and flags, and Mr. Pollard, the caterer, served a delicious menu in superb style. The celery stood in a candy frame and the ices were served in candy baskets. Between each course there was something to amuse the guests. At one time the lights were darkened, and a mysterious tray, covered with a napkin was passed to each couple and they were to feel the contents of the tray without looking. The shrinks of the ladies and groans of the men gave assurance that they were sold. On removing the napkin the following articles were disclosed: A rubber dog, a china cow, three geese, a tin soldier, a hard boiled egg with the shell off, a fox tail, a bunch of cotton, and a rubber glove stuffed with wet sand to give it a cold clammy effect. When the guests returned to the office the room was dark and Anna Eva Fay was there to answer any questions and reveal the future. Afterward all were required to write their names with the left hand which quite defaced the hotel register, and afforded a lot of fun.

An excellent and enjoyable banquet was given at the beautiful residence of A. C. Moore by the Phi Alpha Delta society, Saturday evening, Dec. 30. This was a happy social feature of the holidays while several members of this society were at home from college during the holidays. Especially was it happy to the fortunate guests who regaled themselves to satiety on the delightful refreshments, lavishly served in courses. Between each course Toastmaster James Kevil bid several of the guests respond to such subjects as a "History of the P. A. D.," "Woman," "Our Club Room," and "Gentlemen."

Those bidden were Mesdames Gustava Haynes, Inez Price, Willie Croft, Cora Melton, Verna Pickens, Allie Yates and Ellis Gray, Messrs. V. Y. Moore, J. L. Melton, J. S. Kevil, J. H. Yates, S. E. Boyd, of Kelsey; and Arthur Watkins.

Growing Prosperity.

An evidence of the growing wealth and prosperity of Marion and Crittenden county is the vast volume of business transacted in this city during the Christmas holidays. The Saturday before Christmas was an especial red letter day in the history of the town. The skies were brightly sunlit overhead; the spirit of the times was abroad in the land, the people from the country rushed in by the hundreds, and by 10 o'clock Marion was a seething mass of humanity all with full pocket-books and eager to spend it. The Press is informed by several of our leading merchants that on that day more goods were sold in Marion than on any day in its history; and nine-tenths of the sales were on a cash basis. This speaks well for the agricultural and mineral resources of old Crittenden county.

THURSDAY, JAN. 4 1906.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE.

The Kentucky Legislature convened a regular session at Frankfort at 12 o'clock noon, on Tuesday last, and the House was called to order by Speaker Stone.

The caucus programme for the session of officers was then gone through with and resulted in Henry Lawrence, of Trigg, being seated in the Speaker's chair. Mr. Lawrence is editor of the Cadiz Record, and will make an ideal presiding officer. He is a warm friend and admirer of Congressman James.

The distribution of the other officers of the "Pennyrite" fell heir to an equally rich plum in the election of M. P. Pogue to the Assistant Clerkship of the House, further mention of which is made elsewhere in this paper.

A joint Democratic caucus was called for Tuesday night and the question of the U. S. Senatorship may be settled before our paper goes to press. It is said the Blackburn men are "sparring for time."

The Legislature is not expected to transact much important business until the question of the Senatorship is disposed of.

SENATE.—Judge Thomas H. Payne was nominated for the U. S. Senate by the joint Democratic caucus Tuesday night. The vote stood: Payne, 59; Blackburn, 34; Halderman, 1; Smith 2; James 1; the two latter were not candidates. The administration crowd were quite hilarious over their brilliant victory. This division sounds the knell of Blackburn's political aspirations. Never again will he be a prominent factor in Kentucky politics. The star of his political destiny has set, to rise again nevermore! Poor old Joe! He could better have spared a better man.

John Howard, charged with the murder of Gov. Wm. Goebel and now under a life sentence in the penitentiary for that crime, has been denied a trial by the Supreme Court of the United States, which affirmed the decision of the Kentucky Court of Appeals to that effect. This decision may forecast that in the case of Charles Powers, should it go before that court, as the testimony in the two cases runs practically along the same lines.

John D. Rockefeller and several other Eastern financial magnates who are supposed to know whereof they speak, predict that a severe panic is impending in the United States. Mr. Rockefeller places it two years hence but others predict its occurrence at a much nearer period. The cause of this will be, they say, a general overproduction in all lines of manufactured goods and a weak market. Rockefeller also predicts that by this panic the families of seven million men will be forced to the verge of pauperism. It may be as well to heed the warning, coming from the well informed source it does, and begin putting our houses in order to breast the storm. The disaster would also affect England and the European continent to a very grave extent.

One of the most important measures to come before the General Assembly of Kentucky is the establishment of a State Normal School. The need for such an institution is self-evident. The inefficiency of a large number, if not the majority of our common school teachers is an evil which cries loudly for remedy. But in the present condition of the State finances the PRESS doubts that anything in this direction will be done at the present session.

Judge Aaron Towery leaves the office of County Judge with the confidence of the people. He was complimented when not twenty-one years of age with the office of school trustee, and for twenty years was county surveyor and then county judge, always giving satisfaction and dealing out justice in an even-handed way.

Hon. O. M. James is in Frankfort as a looker on at the fracas. He is said to have declared his preference for Lawrence, of Trigg, as Speaker of the House.

Mr. H. H. Loving has been granted a new trial by the McCracken circuit court and his friends are hopeful of his final acquittal.

Is not the "fine Italian hand" of O. M. J. noticeable in the late fight for the Speakership at Frankfort?

Won Out in a Canter.

Above is a good representation of the features of Hon. M. P. Pogue, who has just been elected for the third time Assistant Clerk of the Kentucky House of Representatives by the decisive vote of 61 to 13. Mr. Pogue is a typical self-made Crittenden county boy, and is one of the rising young politicians of the Old Gibraltar. The country needs such men as Marion Pogue, and Crittenden county is proud of him.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Kentucky seems to be finally awakening to the importance of inviting immigration to her shores, and a step in the right direction has been taken by Capt. W. J. Stone, chairman of the executive committee of the state development convention, in his recent appointment of a committee of representative citizens from over the state to urge upon the governor that he place the matter before the next legislature and request them to pass a law creating a Bureau of Immigration and Information, to be attached to the department of agriculture, labor and statistics. The crying needs for such a bureau are too self-evident for discussion. With her hundreds of thousands of acres of undeveloped forests, clothed with gigantic timber and teeming underneath with untold millions of mineral wealth; with the finest agricultural soil in the world capable of supporting a population ten times greater than she has; with all these advantages Kentucky barely holds her own, if that, in the mad race for empire and prosperity. Witness our own county. Agents from other state bureaus come into our county and whisk our very best citizens from under our noses to the wilds of the trackless west; and this exodus has finally reached such proportions as to become alarming. And doubtless like conditions prevail in other counties. Kentucky is not a dead state; only in a state of innocuous desuetude. She has the resources of a giant, but she needs population to develop them. And the only way to get that population is to let the outside world know what an enviable future awaits them within our borders. This is an age of progress and push, and the laggard is going to be kicked from the ranks—every time.

There has been a great deal of excitement in the Crayneville neighborhood in the last few weeks on account of hydrophobia. A mad dog was through the country about Dec. 12, biting several dogs and some stock.
It bit three dogs at Wm. Woodall's, a dog and a cow belonging to Rev. J. M.
Roberts and a sow belonging to Geo.
Sullenger, who finally killed it. The dog of Mr. Stallion's, which was also biten, died. Rev. Roberts' cow showed symptoms of hydrophobia on Dec. 30, and by night was perfectly wild. The other stock was separated from her and she tore down a heavy rail fence to get to them. She was then turned into the yard with a heavy paling fence between. Several panels of the fence covered with blood where she had tried to tear them down.

She fought wildly at every thing and about four o'clock Sunday morning killed herself fighting at a jickory stump. The people of the neighborhood are warned to be on their guard for a rabid dog or streak.

Dangers of a Cold and How to Avoid Them.

More fatalities have their origin in it is properly treated in the beginning.

Notice!

To the taxpayers of Crittenden county who owe tax.

You are aware of the fact that my term as sheriff has expired. You may not know that I am going to close out the business connected with my administration of said office in 90 days, but I do know it. If my time is worth anything whatever to me you have no legal or moral right to take it or to cause me to waste one moment of it. So I shall expect every taxpayer in this county who has not paid his tax for 1902, 1903, 1904 or 1905 or any one of these years, to call and settle and that immediately. You may have been returned delinquent. The county is still looking after you and I am ordered to collect the delinquents as well as the rest, and I may be able to find some property now that I could not find before or that my deputies could not find.

All real estate on which the tax is not paid by March 13th, 1906 will be advertised, and I propose not later than March 15th, 1906 to levy on every person who owes any tax for any of these years, whether he owns any real estate or not, if he owns any property that will sell for cash. The law also gives me the right to garni-shee the wages of any one who owes any tax.

Now if you are disposed to treat me right in this matter all will be well, and I believe that you will treat me that way. Don't think for a moment that this money is going to me, for it is not. I am compelled to account for it and every day it is put off is a waste of time to me. So pay up and sleep good.
Yours truly,
JAS. W. LAMB,
Ex-Sheriff.

TING BULL'S PIPE

Interesting Relic of the Fighting Old Sioux Warrior Comes to Light.

ecoa, Wash., Dec. 23.—Pierre, chief of the Couer d'Alene Indians, received one day last a tobacco pipe or calumet that, somewhat of a curiosity, and an interesting relic of the days when the tribes were still struggling for supremacy on the East side of the Rocky Mountains.

The pipe, which was inclosed in a desomely ornamented canvas bag, made of pipe stone, a calcareous material found in portions of the West. The bowl, which is four inches in diameter, fits into an aperture in the stem, which is of the same material, and is twenty inches long, exclusive of the short mouthpiece. The square sides and has been hollowed out from end to end with a fine, or other small instrument, through this aperture is inserted a small wooden tube, connecting the bowl with the mouthpiece at the other end. The weight of the stem and bowl approximates four pounds; there is some pretty ornamentation of inlaid beads and some crude attempts at carving.

Chief of the Blackfoot tribe, whose English name is Peter, came to Montana to present this pipe to his friend, Chief Wildaho at De Smet on the Couer d'Alene reservation.

According to Peter's story, which he told a few days ago in broken English to a correspondent on the reservation, the pipe was the original owner, a warrior had it in his possession for many years previous to his death. Its fragrant exhalations were more than once the symbol of peace, a conflict with soldiers of the United States or with some hostile tribe. The pipe was killed in a skirmish with regular troops at the Pine Agency, South Dakota, in December, 1890. An under-sub-chief whose name was not learned, then assumed command of the tribe and possession of the war-like accoutrements and other effects of warring to his predecessor. The remains of war were buried with the old chief but the pipe, the symbol of peace, was retained as a relic until a decade ago, and then passed on to a descendant of the old chief, and the owner of the relic had been called to his end, leaving the calumet to other hands.

At this time Peter, the Flathead chief, appeared among the Sioux and seeing the calumet and its history, succeeded in getting it by exchanging two of his best horses. After a short visit with his friends he returned to his own reservation and then started on his mission of friendship to the Couer d'Alene, bearing the emblem of peace to the latter's chief.

On the train of which Chief Peter was a passenger, hearing the man's story, was impressed with his faithfulness and offered money for the relic in excess of the value of the pipe, which were given in exchange. He was met, however, with a refusal.

He no longer felt me give it to William Couer d'Alene Chief, was refused, and no inducement could be used to shake his determination.

A presentation took place at the reservation the next day, and prizes the gift highly, for no less than for its intrinsic value.

Fate of the Tough Boy.

A boy stands on the street corner, smoking cigarettes, using slang, becoming an adept in the finesse of polite swearing, and making remarks about all the women that go by, and telling exactly where old Tom Smith misses it, in the management of his business affairs. He does not use the appellations of "June sweetener," "tough" and "peachero," applied to him throughout the community. His conduct, says the Nebraska City Times, is connived at by the wittless girls of the town, on the road to God knows where; he is dubbed the "proper stuff," by his associates, while the younger prodigals look upon his reputation as a consummation devoutly to be wished. After a little there is an opening in the firm of Stoddard & Stoddard, for a promising boy, offering a good salary to start on. But our young "peachero" doesn't get it, and he can't understand why he, of all the young men round about, should not have been approached with that proposition at least three days before any one else was thought of. Miserable, incorrigible fools! Poor, wretched, wretched, incapable, with distorted conceptions of life! What hath a business house to do with these? Boys, business men of a town know you better than your own parents do. Their eyes are on you when you are least aware. You may slip away from your old mother, who sits busy with her needle or her knitting; you may dope and deceive your best friends, you may elude the watchful eye of your teacher; you may trifle with the conscience of your Sunday School superintendent, but you can't fool the business men of your town, when they have a position of any trust to be filled.

Bent Her Double.

"I knew no one, for four weeks, when I was sick with typhoid and kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Annie Hunter, of Pittsburg, Pa. "and when I got better, although I had one of the best doctors I could get, I was bent double, and had to rest my hands on my knees when I walked. From this terrible affliction I was rescued by Electric Bitters, which restored my health and strength, and now I can walk as straight as ever. They are simply wonderful." Guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney disorders; at Woods & Orme's drug store; price 50c.

Hoofs of Colts And Mares

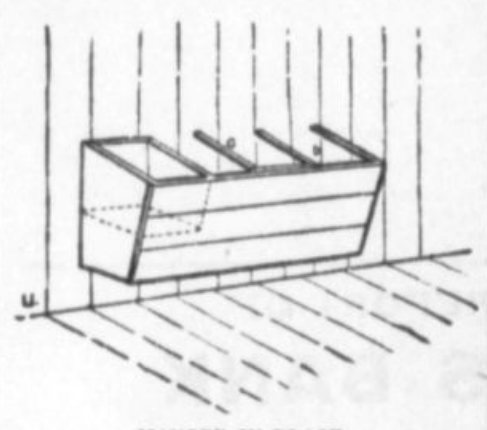

Breeders who intend to exhibit colts and brood mares at the shows this fall should be remembering that it takes a long time to grow out a badly chipped and broken hoof, says Breeder's Gazette. We are just now in the period of the year when the pestilential flies devour the stock that runs in the fields, and especially in a season of plentiful rainfall it does not take long to smash the hoofs up in bad shape. Then it is not possible to get them in shape again before it is time to load for the journey to the fairs.

It is extraordinary that so many breeders seem to fail to understand what a great handicap a stubbed hoof labors under in the show ring. Annually we see him with little or no hoofs at all. It costs only a little to keep colts shod for these few weeks now, and it will pay many times over. Then there is the additional matter that if a colt is worth showing at all he is worth showing to the very best advantage, and that means that he must have special care.

It would hardly do to run a big bunch of shod colts and brood mares in the field together, for they might injure one another, but colts are hardly ever got right ready for the shows run in bands on the grass. In the hot weather they should be stabled in the daytime and let out at night either singly or in pairs. The foot is the first thing the judge looks at in the show ring when it comes to judging horses, and surely for that reason, if not for personal profit and pride, breeders should see to it that their animals do not go stubbed toed into the arena.

Hay Saving Manger.

A great many horses acquire the wasteful habit of throwing out hay or other fodder on the stable floor, says an Arkansas farmer in Farm Progress. This is done in order to secure the loose leaves and other choice portions which settle or accumulate in the bottom of the manger.

MANGER IN PLACE.

tom of the manger. The habit is a bad one and a large part of the coarse fodder is made unfit for use by being trampled under foot. Much of it gets out of reach and is entirely lost, especially if the animals are tied short, as they usually are, when placed in a stall.

This waste can be prevented by use of the simple arrangement shown in the accompanying illustration. The two strips, c, are made from 1x3 hard wood and are hinged to the back of the manger. These two strips are connected at the outer end by a strip of hard wood, b. This arrangement is raised when the hay is being put in the manger, is then lowered and fastened down by means of a tongue or hook and remains there until the next feeding time. With it there is no danger of any hay being wasted.

The Hog For the Farmer.

The farmer, as a rule, does not care whether his hog wears red, white or black hair or whether his ears stick up or hang down. What he wants is a hog with a constitution, and any system of breeding that enfeebls the constitution is the kind of breeding he does not want in his herd. He wants his hog to be as immune from disease as possible, and to obtain this he must have the constitution-pigs that will fight for the best test before they are three hours old and that will even steal if given half a chance. The farmer's hog must be a hustler, a greedy fellow, healthy, vigorous and growthy and as good a looker as is possible to obtain without losing any of the before named important qualities.

Agricultural experiment stations have proved beyond any doubt that no man can afford to raise scrub hogs. Do not understand me to infer that you cannot make money handling scrub stock. What I do mean is that if you are making money handling such you can with the same amount of care and labor make much more by handling pure bred or even high grades.—W. W. Jones Before Kansas Institute.

A Word For the Mule.

From repeated experiments that have come under my observation in the past twenty-five years I have found that three mules fifteen hands high that were constantly worked consumed about as much forage as two ordinary sized horses worked in the same way, and while the mules were fat the horses were only in good working order, writes J. F. Cook in Farm and Ranch. Although a mule will live and work on a very low fare, he also responds as quickly as any animal to good feed and kind treatment. True, it is charged that the mule is vicious, stubborn and slow, but an experience in handling mules on the farm has failed to sustain the charge save in few instances, and in these propensities were brought about by bad handling. They are truer pullers than the horse and move more quickly under the load. Their hearing and vision are better than the horse.

A HUNTING PARTY

(Original.)

After father's death mother and I lived alone together. It was pretty hard for mother, with no man in the house, and I was only a girl of sixteen. We did all the housework ourselves, which wasn't much, and as much of the farm work as we were able to do.

Mother never kept any money in bank. In the first place, there was no bank nearer than ten miles, and, in the second, she wouldn't have known how to keep a bank account.

One day, one of our horses having died, mother went to town to buy another. At the time one farm hand was at work for us, a man we had engaged a few days before. Mother had been gone but about half an hour when he came into the house and told me she had asked him to keep a sharp lookout for me, as I was only a girl, alone, and without protection. He was so kindly spoken that at first I believed him. This emboldened him to say that there were tramps lurking about and I would do well to put any money there might be in the house in a safe place. Then I began to suspect that he said this to find out whether there was any money in the house, so I told him that all the money had been paid out except what mother had taken with her to pay for the horse she intended to buy. Then he threw off all pretense and ransacked after, he came into the kitchen, where I was washing dishes, and taking up a knife, threatened to kill me if I didn't tell where the money was kept.

Our sex are always dreading such trials as I was passing through, but when they come we surprise ourselves by standing up under them with unexpected coolness. I couldn't see how it was his interest to kill me, since the secret (for him) would die with me. I kept my mind bent on the problem of how to outwit him, but to outwit a man in a farmhouse, with no telephone or telephone or any one within calling distance, is not an easy matter, and I made no headway.

The only thing I could do was to tell him that there wasn't any money in the house, or, if there was, that I didn't know where it was kept. I recommended him to look in different places, the cellar, the cupboard and the upstairs closets. He ransacked every place I suggested, but found nothing.

He was not likely to find the place where the money was hidden. Our house was very old and had been built with an old fashioned big fireplace in the kitchen. Up the chimney, which was large enough to admit a human body, mother had taken out a brick and broken off half of it. This left room for any money she had behind the brick. When it was put back in its place it looked like the other bricks. Well, at last the man grew so fierce that I was afraid he might murder me, and I told him where the money was. He at once stood in the chimney and began to hunt. I told him the money was higher, and he pulled the kitchen table on to the hearth. In his search he supported himself by bracing his knees and back. I shoved the table farther in, so that it covered the mouth of the chimney. Then for the first time it occurred to me that I had him in a trap. There was a heavy cupboard in the kitchen, and I moved it against the table. Just then I heard an exclamation of delight and knew he had found the money.

His next move was to order me to take away the table, but I had another matter to attend to. Knowing that when he found he couldn't come down he would go up, I ran to mother's bedroom, where since father's death she had kept his rifle, loaded, standing at the head of her bed, and, seizing it, ran outside and was just in time to take aim at the man's head, which was above the top of the chimney.

I shall never forget the expression of his face when he saw me, a mere child of a girl, pointing a rifle at him, cocked and ready to fire. He knew enough of country girls to understand that most of them could shoot pretty straight and that if I chose I could put a bullet through his head.

"See here, little girl, you've caught me fair. Now if you'll let me out of this I'll go about my business."

I didn't like the probability of having to watch him all day, and if I could have trusted him I would have let him go. As it was, I told him to get below the top of the chimney or I would shoot him. He offered to throw down the money if I would let him off, but I refused to do so. I made him believe that I would carry out my threat, and he disappeared down the chimney. He called to me that he would burn the money, but even this didn't move me.

Well, all this happened in the early morning, and till 10 o'clock I felt obliged to keep on a strain lest he outwit me and get the upper hand again. Then when all was quiet I heard the sound of horses' hoofs and a gentleman in a red coat came riding up to the house.

"Did you see a hunting party go by here?" he asked.

"Haven't had time to notice. I've got a hunting party of my own."

He looked surprised and then for the first time noticed my gun. I told him my story, and when he learned that I had a man cornered in the chimney he burst into a laugh. I, relieved from the terrible strain I had been enduring, burst into tears.

Then the gentleman took my rifle and stood guard, while I took his horse and rode away for assistance. The game I had bagged alive was kept after that in the penitentiary.

Wrangling Among Union Miners.

Owensboro Inquirer: The investigation by the union of district No. 23, of the United Mine Workers, relating to the charges preferred against the officers of the district for misappropriating funds is assuming a serious aspect. The called meeting has been in session for three days now, and just how long it will take the delegates to wind up their business depends altogether on the report of the investigating committee. The meetings are being held behind closed doors. The contentions that are going on are of the most violent description. The delegates as a whole heard the reports and answers of the officers to the charges Tuesday and part of yesterday morning. After a short session yesterday morning the delegates adjourned to allow the use of the hall to the investigating committee, that they might take their depositions and carry on their investigations. This investigating committee was completed Tuesday afternoon, part of which was completed Monday afternoon. There was some trouble Monday afternoon appointing a committee satisfactory to both factions, but the one that was named is satisfactory to all concerned.

The national board members who are present are holding the high hand in the meeting and determined to see that all sides get justice. Immediately after the investigating committee make their report the matter of assisting the union miners in Union county will be brought up and discussed, and a decision made. The question will also be settled as to whether the non-union miners who took the places of the union miners shall be let into the union at the regular fee of $10 for the practical miner, or whether they shall be charged the fee of the non-union miner, $25. This is perhaps the most important feature of the meeting, and the time of adjournment depends altogether on the time that the question can be disposed of.

Thousand Dollars Worth of Good.

A. H. Thurnes, a well known coal operator of Buffalo, O., writes: "I have been afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble for years, passing gravel and stones with excruciating pain. I got no relief from medicine until I began taking Foley's Kidney Cure, then the result was surprising. A few doses started the brick dust like fine stones and now I have no pain across my kidneys and I feel like a new man. It has done me $1,000 worth of good. Woods & Orme."

The Grip.

"Before we can sympathize with others, we must have suffered ourselves." No one can realize the suffering attendant upon an attack of the grip, unless he has the actual experience. There is probably no disease that causes so much physical and mental agony, or which so successfully defies medical aid. All danger from the grip, however, may be avoided by the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy, not one case has ever been reported that has resulted in pneumonia or that has not recovered. Pay Day Was Fatal.

Wilksbarre, Pa., Dec. 30.—Martin Alhast and John Salkis, both of Port Griffith, a mining town near here, were murdered and robbed some time Saturday night. The crimes were separate and independent of each other.

Albast's body was found in the street a few minutes after he was killed. The body of Salkis was not discovered until this afternoon, some distance from the roadway, through a trail of blood leading from the road to the spot.

The two men received their pay yesterday and had been drinking. It was after midnight when Albast started homeward. Later two shots were heard close to the house and a neighbor jumping from bed, saw two men bending over his body in the roadway. Before an alarm could be given they had fled.

Salkis, with $22.50 in his pocket was last seen going homeward about midnight. He had evidently fought hard for his life. He was shot twice stabbed several times, and his head was battered with a club and hammer. Clutched tightly in his dead hand and covered with blood was a two dollar bill.

One man, arrested on suspicion, had money and a revolver in his pocket.

CHAPEL HILL.

Well, as Christmas is now over in Chapel Hill the public have all set in for a new year, and have gone to work with a will.

A large number of young people of Chapel Hill about forty in number, young and old, met at Mr. J. C. Adams' Christmas day, and had a fine Christmas dinner and every one present enjoyed themselves exceedingly well and remained over night and had supper, and every one went home telling all they met what a glorious old time they had, and those they did not meet they sent word to, so Mr. and Mrs. Cal Adams wear the blue ribbon yet.

On Tuesday night, Dec. 26th, a large crowd of young people met at

H. Bigham's in various styles of garments, which was called a tackey party, and I would have liked for Judge Hearin and Buril Walker to have been there and seen some of the spotted suits that the boys had on. But everything straightened out all right and the boys and girls enjoyed themselves and had what might be termed a jolly good time. Mr. Harry Vaughn and Miss Ada Hughes won the prizes, which was given to the one which was the most tacky in appearance.

Mr. W. L. Adams and wife were the guests of Mr. Silas McMurry, of Repton through the holidays.

EDUCATIONAL.

THE FIGHT.

The officers and members of the Executive Committee of Educational Improvement commission of Kentucky held an important meeting at the Capitol Hotel at Frankfort Saturday, Dec. 16th. The meeting lasted all day and a definite campaign was decided upon.

Among other things which form part of the plan of this Commission, is an effort to determine as far as possible, the will of the leading citizens of the state in regard to the State Normal School proposition. To this end the Commission has mailed out 8,000 blank petitions to the 8,000 white school teachers asking that their people be interviewed. Over 7,000 of the 8,000 teachers have already placed themselves on record many times heretofore in the matter.

The attitude of the press is especially gratifying. Out of a lengthy list of editorials last week there was only one that was not heartily in favor of State Normals.

There was an article in a county paper last week by one who signed the name of "An Ex-Teacher," that gave vent to the following thought: "Give a prospective teacher a thorough training in an up-to-date State Normal School and then send him out to teach in the average country district, and he will become disgusted with conditions, environments and salary, and abandon the work at the end of the first six months experience."

Here is where the "Ex-Teacher" is clearly in error. The trained teacher knows how to do "Common things" uncommonly well, and hence his work is a constant delight and fascination. He knows when conditions are wrong and he has the knowledge, training and heart-power to set to work and right them. It is one of the greatest functions of education to make the poor discontent with their poverty, and to fire them with a zeal and determination to better their lot in life. It is possibly the greatest function of a State Normal School to give such training to its student teachers, and to fit them to overflowing with an inspiration that will enable them to meet the adverse conditions in the country and transform them. It was State Supt. O. B. Martin of South Carolina who said: "One intelligent, kind and enthusiastic teacher can revolutionize a whole township and build a monument that will endure as long as appreciative hearts and growing minds endure."

Such a teacher will make conditions; he will create environment; he will command a salary. In the wake of his intelligent efforts will follow good school houses, splendid equipment, beautiful school grounds, local taxation, longer terms, larger salaries, and a more healthful public sentiment in favor of better education and a higher citizenship. Such a teacher will practically solve the problem of compulsory education. He will draw the children to him, and will secure the co-operation of his patrons.

Again, this "Ex-Teacher" seems to infer that the child in the country district is not entitled to a thoroughly trained teacher. Why not? There is no reason why man should not supply there, in the heart of nature, schools that shall offer as good educational facilities as are to be found in town or city. With such schools the country would be an ideal place for the education of men and women. Without such schools it is but a question of time when the best blood of the country will move to the towns and cities and leave in our rural districts only the poorest peasant population, too ignorant to know the value and the blessing of an education and too indifferent to care to secure it for their offspring.

Now is the time for thoughtful people to meditate solemnly and carefully. The Legislature will be in session this winter. Are you content to know that Kentucky drags behind all the other States and Territories in this matter? Are you willing to deny longer to the country boys and girls the privileges of a trained teacher? Are you satisfied to know that hundreds of thousands of good, honest country folks are favorably inclined toward education for the simple reason that they have never had a trained leader, but in place thereof have generally had unskilled teachers and very poor schools? Do you not believe it is a part of patriotism to change these conditions? If you do then it is your duty to be up and doing. Write to your Senator and Representative and tell them of your convictions. They will gladly give your opinion consideration. This is a government of the people, for the people and by the people. Then the people should express themselves to the Law-Makers.
