NEW CITY COUNCIL MEETS

Special Session to Consider Saloon License

FREE LICENSE GRANTED

The Matter of Night-Watchman Discussed But Action Was Deferred Till Regular Meeting

NEW OFFICERS ARE ALL SWORN IN

January 1, the new City Mayor Dr. E. Shively and Police Judge W. H. Walker went into power together with the newly elected council composed of the following men:

Geo. C. Gray, R. E. Flanary, H. V. Stone, Henry Paris, W. D. Cannan and J. C. Bourland.

All were duly sworn in and assumed the duties of office.

The first regular meeting can not be held until the second Tuesday but on account of the fact that the matter of saloon license would have to be considered before that time, Mayor Shively called a special meeting of the new council which met last Tuesday evening. Mayor Shively called the special meeting to order and appointed councilman J. C. Bourland clerk pro tem. The new board held its first meeting in a manner befitting an old board well versed in the manner of conducting city affairs. The meeting was held in the police headquarters, or city court room that had been set in order by City Marshal Cannon, and which is the flat building occupied by the Press before its removal to the Jenkins building.

On motion it was decided that saloon license for the present year should be granted upon the payment of the city license tax, $750 for each saloon and applications for license were made by F. W. Billart, Eberle-Hardin & Co. and Abe Klyman. Each case was considered separately as required by law and the board granted to each of the three firms the necessary permits to sell liquor this year at the stands they now occupy.

The matter pertaining to creating the office of night watchman, was mentioned in view of the fact that J. D. Gregory's time expired December 31. In this matter, however, no action was taken more than to defer it until the regular meeting night. Some of the councilmen expressed themselves as being in favor of maintaining the office and a few were opposed and it was thought best that the councilmen be given an opportunity to learn the will of the people before acting.

The commissions of City Marshal Cannan and City Attorney Jno. A. Moore do not expire until the first regular meeting of the board and therefore it will elect marshal and attorney next Tuesday night, also a city clerk and new street commission. Of the city or county officers taking their duties January 1, none feel prouder of the position he occupies, than the new Police Judge W. H. Walker, and none we believe, will try to fill his office in a more conscientious manner. His desk will be found in the city court room and Judge Walker says that the public in general and newspaper men in particular, are ever welcome.

That we will have a good city administration is not to be doubted as the board and all the offices are filled with men whom we believe will act from the sense of duty and right rather than for any selfish motives.

Mad Dog Scare.

There has been a great deal of excitement in the Crayneville neighborhood in the last few weeks on account of hydrophobia. A mad dog was through the country about Dec. 12, biting several dogs and some stock. It bit three dogs at Wm. Woodall's, a dog and a cow belonging to Rev. J. M. Roberts and a sow belonging to Geo. Sullenger, who finally killed it. The dog of Mr. Stallion's, which was also bit, died. Rev. Roberts' cow showed symptoms of hydrophobia on Dec. 30, and by night was perfectly wild. The other stock was separated from her and she tore down a heavy rail fence to get to them. She was then turned into the yard with a heavy paling fence between. Several panels of the fence covered with blood where she had tried to tear them down.

She fought wildly at every thing and about four o'clock Sunday morning killed herself fighting at a hickory stump. The people of the neighborhood are warned to be on their guard for a rabid dog or stock.

Flyer Empty for 446 Miles.

A passengerless flyer, running the length of Pennsylvania, was the proposition that confronted railroad men on Christmas day, says a Harrisburg telegram. The Pennsylvania Limited left Jersey City December 25 at 11:14 a. m., arriving at Pittsburgh at 9:25 p. m., and the remarkable thing about the trip is that there was not a passenger on the train from the time it left Jersey City until it reached Pittsburgh.

Not a passenger was taken upon the train at any of the exclusive points where it stopped for passengers or to change engines or crews.

This train carries more employees than any other train on the Pennsylvania—eleven besides the dining-car force of waiters and chefs.

Railroad men here claim that passing of a passenger train over the Pennsylvania railroad without a fare has never occurred in the history of the company.

Paynter Named on First Ballot.

Judge Thomas H. Paynter, of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, was nominated on the first ballot taken in joint caucus on January 2 to select a Democratic candidate for United States senator to succeed J. C. S. Blackburn.

Judge Thos. H. Paynter, 59, Senator J. C. S. Blackburn, 34, W. B. Haldeman, 10, Congressman D. H. Smith, 2, Harvey McCutcheon and Eli H. Brown were nominated on the first ballot for prison commissioners. The vote was 73 for McCutcheon, 74 for Brown and 44 for Fennell.

Judge Paynter's nomination ends one of the hardest fought senatorial struggles in the past twenty years.

W. L. Travis died at his home near Emaus church December 30. He was about sixty years old and had long been a resident of this county. He was a member of the Liberty lodge of Masons, No. 580. A wife and several children survive him, one of whom is Mrs. T. J. Wring, of this city. He was interred with Masonic honors at Owen's cemetery on Sunday, December 31.

23-2t R. F. WHEELER, Adm.

JUDGE W. H. WALKER.

Last Thursday Judge W. H. Walker qualified as Judge of the city court, and he entered upon his duties Monday, Jan. 1. Judge Walker is an old citizen of Marion. He is a man of sound and discreet judgment, well versed in the intricacies of the law, and is otherwise well equipped for the performance of the duties of the office. He has the confidence of the community, and while he will doubtless prove a terror to evil-doers, he will meet the commendation of all good citizens:

MR. P. E. COOK PASSES AWAY

Well known Former Citizen of This County Dies at His Home in Paducah.

Mr. P. E. Cook, age 42 years, of 514 S. Fourth street, died this morning at 10 o'clock at his home after a lingering illness of eight months of consumption.

The deceased was born in Crittenden county and moved here about three years ago. He was for a time manager for one of the Biederman Grocery company stores in Mechanicsburg, but when he gave up this business went on the road for a local stock food company with a view of bettering his rapidly failing health.

Eight months ago he became so ill that he was forced to come in and had since been seriously ill, his condition steadily growing worse, until death relieved him of his sufferings this morning.

The deceased was married and leaves a wife and two girls. Besides these he leaves several brothers and sisters, and two cousins, the later Mr. C. L. Cook, the well known photographer, and his sister, Miss Lillie Cook, one brother, Fred Cook, who was with him at the time of his death.

The body will be shipped tomorrow at noon to Marion and the burial will probably take place Thursday in Crittenden county. Paducah Sun.

The deceased was the son of Walter Cook, of this city. And besides the father, wife and two daughters, leaves a brother and sister, J. F. Cook, of this county, and Mrs. J. G. Gilbert, of this city. Also two half sisters, Mrs. J. M. Copher, of Crayneville, and Mrs. Albert Lucas, of this county. Two half brothers, J. W. Cook, of Texas, and J. R. Cook, of Arkansas.

Mr. Cook was well known here, where he formerly resided and married. The body was entered here Wednesday in the New Cemetery.

New Year Resolution.

The New Year resolution of County Attorney Carl Henderson, just sworn for his second term of office, was a good one. This time it was a boy and it happened early Wednesday morning. Thanksgiving day is many days past, but Attorney Henderson wears a smile that won't come off and for his good fortune evidenced by his recent success. His many friends rejoice with him.

MADE FOR THE RAILROAD COMPANIES

Sentiment Manufactured in Supplies furnished free of Charge.

If money and Herculean effort can turn the northwest states from their now evident purpose of standing by President Roosevelt in demanding government control of railroad rates, the railroads will win against him. Special agencies established in every section to dissipate the anti-railroad spirit says a Sioux City dispatch to the New York Press, have now been supplanted by the establishment of a "ready print" service. Every country newspaper which will use this "magazine section" gets it absolutely free, delivered at the office door. There is not a cent of charge for the printing, paper, type setting or expressage.

This "magazine section" is not a handbill affair but a work of merit. Good pictures, well selected miscellany and dressy appearance are in chief recommendations—after the effect that it is free. There is no disputing the accuracy of the statement of this service. The "ready print" houses of this and other western cities can testify that not a few of their customers have quit them and in explanation of their action have confessed that they were having their "patent insides" presented to them without cost. Some of the faithful, who wouldn't even accept a free railroad pass, even accepted this favor.

This new feature of the railroads' campaign of education has caught on. While the purpose of it is obvious, the promoters of the scheme are most adroit in the selection of matters for the "magazine section." For the first few weeks there was not a reference to the railroads in this "free service" but now there is an occasional article, cleverly disguised as news. In every instance the railroads are shown to be doing wonderful work in the development of the country, in supporting a vast army of employees and in making enormous outlay of wealth to the benefit of all people. Yet the dividends are said to be small. These statements would not arouse the suspicions of the average reader in a thousand years. It is only after one knows who the publishers are that the motive becomes apparent. The chief purpose is, of course, to keep newspapers friendly.

It is credibly reported that several hundred of the country newspapers are accepting and using this "magazine section" in Iowa, South and North Dakota, Minnesota and Nebraska, and it is said the service is extended over the entire west and south.

[The moral of the foregoing is obvious. The only safe way for a newspaper is to print all at home, so that the editor can control what goes into his columns. He never knows what interests he may be advocating when he uses ready print sides, "magazine sections" and innocent looking supplements.]—American Press.

A Narrow Escape.

W. B. Stenbridge, of the Iron Hill vicinity, had a narrow and miraculous escape from drowning in Piney creek last week. He was returning from Marion where he had made some Christmas purchases, and drove into the creek without noticing that it had risen considerably since he had passed over in the morning. The stream was too deep for fording and Mr. Stenbridge, with his wagon and team, was swept away, but by clinging to the limb of a tree he escaped and his wagon and team were found further down the creek lodged in the drift, but they were soon extricated and saved with great difficulty.

Prize Winners.

Morris & Yates received the prize awarded by the Marion Milling Company to the grocery firm selling the greatest amount of its meal and flour products. The purchase bills of this firm were $2370. The prize was a barrel of the company's best flour.

Birthday Dinner.

Stanton Pierce, one of Marion's oldest and most venerable citizens, ate his eighty-fifth birthday dinner at the home of his grand daughter, Mrs. Geo. M. Cridler this week.

Only his children and grand children who were living in the city and a few friends were present.

He is a devoted member of the Baptist church and a staunch Republican. According to his own count he has 4 children, 26 grand children and 22 great grand children.

He is always happy and cheerful and looks upon death as merely a change for a higher and better life where he will meet once more his loving wife and help mate who left him several years ago.

Notice to Teachers.

Will the school teachers of the county do us a favor by calling on Mrs. W. F. Mott the first time you come to town, at Morris & Yates' grocery store, and get a package of cards and some instructions. We want to visit every home in the county the third week in January. Will you please help us do this work?

Your Friend,
Mrs. W. F. Mott,
Chairman of H. H. Visitation.

THE LATEST MINING NEWS

Big Strike is Reported Made in the Field

A SOLID THREE-FOOT VEIN.

New Machinery Being Installed at the Keystone—Will Resume Work by the 15th

EAGLE STILL SINKING AND DRIFTING

Work continues on the Vaughn property adjoining the Mann. Operations are under the direction of Capt. T. H. B. Haase and excellent developments are anticipated to appear shortly on this property.

The Eagle Fluor Spar Company is still sinking and drifting preparing to block out tons and tons of ore at their property which during the life of the blocking extensions will yield an abnormal output when the company will begin milling operations and the marketing of ore.

The main shippers of fluor spar are now the Marion Mineral Company and the Kentucky Fluor Spar Company. They are over run with orders and just at the present the fluor spar demand is very great which is creating a higher market price for the ore. The price heretofore having been lower than the quality of the ore mined here warranted.

We have it straight from a party with inside information that a big strike has just been made in the field of a solid three foot vein of zinc jack which is 60 per cent pure and carrying on both sides an inestimable quantity of zinc carbonate. The full facts with reference to this strike cannot be given out now but at an early date it is likely that the location can be given. This discovery coming as it does when so much thought is being given to the zinc development in the field is opportunity and together with other recent movements in mining circles adds to the district's bright prospects for the coming season which it is expected will outstrip all others.

The Keystone mines have been shut down for the last few weeks on account of a broken pump and a damaged boiler. However, a new pump is rapidly being installed, the boiler repaired and Superintendent Hopewell informs us that he will be ready to resume operations by January 15. No company in the field has carried on a more steady development of property than the Keystone people and their labors are to be rewarded by an excellent producing mine, as is evidenced by what is now in sight in the 200 foot shaft. There is now a nine foot vein and at the present depth it is widening. In sinking, the company has taken out several tons of ore and besides what has been sold there is now in the dump five or ten tons. This is a high grade of fluor spar and on the market will command a good price.

ECHOES FROM THE WORLD'S FAIR

Contributed by W. J. L. HUGHES

(Concluded.)

The exposition could not be seen in a day, a week or a month. The palace of the arts alone would require weeks if one should attempt to work it thoroughly, and he might profitably spend an entire week between varied industries and liberal arts. A complete history of it all would fill a library.

On entering the manufacture's building I was bewildered to find myself in the midst of about a half acre of beautiful statuary carved from the finest Italian marble. I wondered if I had made a mistake and entered the fine arts building. I inquired and was told that while this statuary was art it was the product of a firm that manufactures large quantities of it, and these exhibitions were all for sale like any other manufactured article. In the French department of this building they were weaving silk in narrow stripes with perfect portraits of Roosevelt and Fairbanks on some of them and Parker and Davis on others woven with the goods. You could buy either according to your politics.

The Brown Shoe Company of St. Louis had a working exhibit in the manufacture's building. I never knew before how many processes and how many hands a shoe passes through. I was told that from the time the cutter takes hold of the leather till the finishing touches are put upon it the shoe passes through about eighty-five hands and that a pair of shoes would run the entire course in about twenty minutes. If that is true I should think they could turn out from seventy to seventy-five pairs of shoes per hour.

One of the things that I had to learn was that an article found in one of the exhibition buildings may be found in several others or all of them. While in the palace of varied industries I was admiring some of the most exquisite paintings. There were lions and tigers and birds of beautiful plumage, peafowls and pheasants, in short, many birds of many kinds, so perfect, so life-like that they would have made originals envious. I inquired after the painter and was told that the work had never been touched by pencil or brush, but was all the work of the needle, — embroidery.

In mines and metallurgy the most drawing card was the iron statue of Vulcan from Birmingham, Ala., which was 56 feet high, weighing 120,000 pounds and costing $20,000.

Near the palace of fine arts and in strange contrast with it stood the visible old double log cabin that General Grant built a few miles out from St. Louis. He felled the trees and hewed the logs himself. The ends of most of the logs were left just as they came from the stump, that is, they were cut down with an ax and the ends not squared. Grant lived in this house when he used to cut cord wood and haul it into St. Louis and sell it on the street.

The stairway went up in the entrance hall but was in so dilapidated a condition as to be considered unsafe and visitors were not allowed to ascend it, hence I could not tell what the upper part of the house looked like, but I think it was on the plan of the old fashioned story and a half so common all over the Mississippi valley from fifty to sixty years ago.

A noticeable feature about the state and national buildings is the way in which states and nations that are widely separated on the map are brought into close proximity. Tennessee and Idaho stand side by side, Texas and Germany are within gossiping distance of each other, Canada and Ceylon are door neighbors, Arkansas and Connecticut stand side by side and I should think could carry on a flourishing back door trade in tooth picks and wood-nutmegs.

I visited many of the state and national buildings. They were attractive mainly as places where you could generally find plenty of ice-water and sit down on comfortable seats and rest. There was but little of interest at any of these buildings except paintings and statuary, and some of the paintings were very poor. I make no pretensions whatever to be a judge of fine art, but a man, though a carpenter, may be able to differentiate between a palace and a pig sty, and while I am no judge of art, I know that many of the paintings in these buildings were mere daubs, some of them probably being cheap copies from very artistically executed originals. The New York state building was distinguished by a total absence of both paintings and statuary.

The Pennsylvania building had the historic old Liberty Bell that all my life I had so longed to see. No conquering hero ever made a grander triumphal journey than did this glorious old relic from Philadelphia to the exposition grounds. It was brought to the fair on the petition of 75,000 St. Louis school children. A burly Philadelphia policeman mounted guard over it continually to preserve it from the touch of vandal hands. All the same I know one pair of vandal hands that touched it. I walked around it and read from the bell itself that famous inscription that was cast with it when it was made, nearly a quarter of a century before it rang out the tidings of a new born nation on that memorable day in July, 1776. In view of subsequent events, the inscription appears like inspired prophecy. It is a literal quotation from Leviticus, xxv., 10, "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land, to all the inhabitants thereof." The bell weighs 2080 pounds, a little more than a ton. While slowly tolling for the funeral of Chief Justice John Marshall in 1835 it cracked and was silenced forever. Some authorities say it was being tolled in honor of Henry Clay who was visiting Philadelphia when it broke.

I patronized but few of the shows. Of those on the pike I have already mentioned the Wild West. The baby incubator was very interesting on both a scientific and a humanitarian standpoint.

Outside the pike, New York to the North Pole was a pretty optical illusion worth the money. Jerusalem may be passed with about the same remark. But the Boer war was the show of shows. In all the efforts to represent a genuine battle, there has perhaps never been anything so realistic as this. There were three distinct battles, the whole being intended as a sort of synopsis of the entire Boer war. After the introduction, one by one, of a number of men prominent on both sides in that war, and some other preliminary maneuvering, the first battle, that of Colenso, is brought on by an advance guard, or reconnoitering party of English. The firing is spirited; the enemy's position is rapidly uncovered, the bugles sound, the reserves are hurried forward, the infantry coming up on double quick and the cavalry in a run. A battery of artillery gallops up, wheels into battery with the easy discipline of seasoned veterans, the drivers dismount, the guns are unlimbered and wheeled away from the caissons and trained to the proper angle, and then the thunder of artillery is added to the din of small arms. The air is now full of smoke, the field is becoming strewn with the dead and wounded men and horses; the artillery horses are falling in the harness and the gunners with sponge-staff in hand are dropping by the muzzles of their guns. The firing ceases, the curtain hides the field from view—a victory for the Boers.

The two other battles vary from the first only in detail. In the last battle Mr. George Prescott, personating a character in the Boer war, who is a prisoner, and escaping from the English, leaps his horse from the top of a block house, kopje, making a perpendicular drop of 35 feet into a pool of water representing a river, and a few minutes later rides along in front of the audience, water dripping from man and horse, bowing and receiving applause. Whether or not the exact height was 35 feet, it was certainly the most remarkable equestrian feat that I have ever seen executed. It rivalled, if it did not surpass the world-famous leap of the last surviving Maureduke, who in escaping from the troops of Mehemet Ali, leaped his horse from the citadel of Cairo and escaped though his horse was killed in the fall.

In the last afternoon of my stay, I visited the Philippine village and paid my respects to our new cousins, the Igorotes, the last named being one of the pay exhibits. There I saw savage life in all its glory. At first I was puzzled to distinguish between the men and women, but I think I got the matter properly settled. I became satisfied that the women were all dressed, at least, sufficiently to meet the demands of propriety. The entire Philippine exhibit was under the direct control of the U. S. government, and I think the authorities compelled the women to dress, while the men had on just about enough clothing to wad an old fashioned shot gun. I witnessed two or three of their dances in which only the men participated. These dances are very primitive in their nature. About a dozen, I suppose there is no particular number required, string themselves around in a circle, each with an instrument that appears to be made of copper, and in size and shape resembled a medium sized milk pan, and with their faces turned toward the center of the circle. They beat those pans somewhat as the tambourine is used, and with a sort of half step and half jump movement, go around the circle monotonously chanting a sort of inarticulate jargon that is totally unintelligible, the music being entirely destitute of either rhyme or rhythm.

I did not see a man among them doing anything in the way of labor except that in some instances they were cooking in the most primitive manner, cooking their meat by running a stick through it and then holding it near a fire. Most of the women were weaving, the process being rude in the extreme and so slow that it would exhaust the patience of any woman among civilized people. She tied one end of the web to a tree a few feet from the ground and secured the other end to her body by some means, and sitting flat upon the ground, she shot the wool or filling through, not with a shuttle but with a stick, and beat it up with another stick. They were making an excellent article of cotton cloth about half a yard in width.

Our dear Uncle Samuel ought to make something of these people. He certainly has virgin soil in which to work. They appear already to be making some progress in civilization, but I fear that they are picking up the virtues more rapidly than the virtues of civilized life.

I regretted that I did not ride on the scenic railway nor ascend the observation tower. I did not desire to shoot the chutes or go up in the great observation wheel.

At sunset each day the exhibit buildings were closed and the tens of thousands of visitors were turned loose upon the broad, paved avenues, boulevards and plazas to enjoy the scene by the light of 100,000 electric jets. All the beauties of the grounds culminated in St. Louis Plaza, the Grand Basin, Cascade Gardens and the Hall of Festivity.

St. Louis Plaza was bounded on the east by the manufacture's building and on the west by the palace of varied industries. It was almost a perfect square whose sides were somewhat over 500 feet in length. At the north end stood the "apothesis" of St. Louis, the crowning piece of which was an equestrian statue of Louis IX, of France, who reigned in the thirteenth century and was one of the most renowned of all the rulers of that country. He led a large force of French and English in one of the crusades. He was canonized and added to the list of saints. For him the city of St. Louis was named. About midway of the east side of the plaza stood an equestrian statue of Louis Joliet, and directly facing him on the other side was a similar statue of Ferdinand and De Soto. These two men, as every student of history knows, were the discoverers respectively of the upper and lower Mississippi. At the south end of the plaza stood the Louisiana Purchase monument. Then southward stretched the Grand Basin, another 500 feet to the foot of the Cascades above which rises the Hall of Festivity—the crowning gem of the exposition.

Now, ascend the Cascade terrace and take a position at the entrance of the Hall and look northward over the Grand Basin shooting high in the air its geysers that break into sprays that glint in the electric light like threads and beads of silver, and beyond the basin stretches the plaza away to the "apothesis," both basin and plaza lighted by myriads of electric lights from the great buildings on the right and on the left, the scene stretching on and on like an elysian vista in some fairy land until light and darkness blend into an ethereal film that shimmers around the snow capped peaks of the Tyrolean Alps that majestically, though phantom like, rear their heads in the distance; lending to the beautiful a touch of the sublime.

Now, walk down across the Napoleon bridge, past the Napoleon statue and on to the north end of the basin and stand at the foot of the Louisiana Purchase monument and face about. Before you again is Grand Basin, covered with festive gondolas sparkling all over with electric lights and laden with merry pleasure seekers from whose throats are wafted strains of vocal music upon the balmy evening air; beyond rises the Cascade garden terrace upon terrace, upon which all the arts of the landscape gardener and the floriculturist have been exhausted, and down this terrace, leaping in frolicsome beauty from weir to weir, the cascades pour their 90,000 gallons of water per minute into the basin below. Beneath and through the falling water electric lights display all the colors of the rainbow, flowers, water and light producing an effect that in beauty has perhaps never been surpassed by the hand of man, and above all this rises the Hall of Festivity in its beauty and grandeur, covered from dome to base with electric lights that constantly change in color, now green, now red, now white like a crown of glory bedecked with ten thousand jewels and resting in the midst of a beautiful floral dream.

I have never seen the moon rise over Mont Blanc, or beheld the glories of an Italian sunset, or gazed upon the An ailing town woman, of middle age, asks if walking will be good exercise for her. I could answer the question with one word, "yes," but I am not sure she would get much good from walking if it stopped there. It is largely a matter of conditions connected with the walking. Suppose this sister decides that she must walk every day, a good deal as she would a dose of medicine. She gets ready by putting on the regulation dress, with corset and tight belt, long skirt, a choker around her neck, small gloves on her hands and snug fitting, trim shoes on

No paper in Western Kentucky is in a better position to fill your wants in the advertising or publicity line and none have a stronger or more substantial following. Call on THE RECORD, make your wants known and leave a few suggestions regarding your business to the publicity of its columns and note the results. If local and general news, together with a variety of other reading matter makes a paper popular THE RECORD certainly has all those features. beauties of the Alhambra by moon light, but if singly or collectively they can equal this scene in beauty, then they are worth a voyage across the Atlantic to see.

Many are the efforts that have been made to describe this scene in World's Fair guides and in newspapers and other periodicals, but all such efforts have been dismal failures. As well might they attempt to paint the sweetest strains of music or chisel the fragrance of the rose.

The great exposition has come and gone; the last character in the glittering pageant has passed before our sight, but for decades to come will it remain green in the memories of all who saw it in its glory.

A Jamaican Lady Speaks Highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

She has implicit confidence in it and would not be without a bottle of it in her home. Sold by HAYNES & TAYLOR, the enterprising druggists, of Marion.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

JAS. E. CHITTENDEN,
Editor and Publisher.

SUBSCRIPTION ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR.

Entered as second-class matter July 15, 1904, at the postoffice at Marion, Ky., under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

FRIDAY, JAN. 5, 1906.

Out of 287 cases decided by the court of appeals during the term just ended, 21 were dismissed and 110 reversed. When nearly half of the cases that go up are held to have been decided wrong in the lower courts, it is a somewhat significant commentary on the kind of circuit judges that are found in many districts. If law is a set of codified principles, little judges as well as big ones ought to guess right once in a while.

Respect to Parents.

We are going to offer you, dear parents and teachers, a eulogy we children think so justly due you.

It is our delight at this present occasion to present to you a slight token of our esteem. To say that we all love you, is to repeat what you must already know. Out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh but words do not always express our purpose. We want to express our heartfelt gratitude for all you have done for us.

We ask you to accept this as the greatest gift in our power; could we lavish more potently this gift we would do so with pleasure. This is a gift from loyal scholars, who recognize and appreciate your constant and untiring efforts to minister to our needs in every way and at all times.

We believe that we are discharging our duty by giving you a mite of indebtedness we owe you.

There are so many of our friends here that it leads us to believe boys and girls can do something after all, if nothing more than be obedient boys and girls, and love with all our hearts.

Our wish is that we may always be kept loving and true, and that when we shall come to the great River of Life that we shall pass over and receive a cordial welcome at the Savior's right hand, and receive a crown that just and obedient boys and girls are due.

We have tried to give you an idea of our appreciation of the many kind deeds done for us, although we know this is only a small portion due you. We shall ever try to live for you and partially repay you for your goodness toward us.

Kind parents, accept this from your children, and may the kind heaven bless you and keep you through life, is the wish of your obedient pupil.

MARY DEBOE.

The road to failure is paved with indecision.

There is never a time when shoddy work is excusable.

He who conditions the doing of a task on an "if" has little chance to win along any line.

All of us have more or less odd moments. Why not utilize these margins in the pursuit of some special knowledge? In the quiet of your boarding house these long winter evenings, how delightful to lose oneself in the beauties of literature, or puzzle the mind over some obscure problem. For such the outlay is small, the income large, not in dollars and cents perhaps, but we must remember that all things are not measured by a monetary standard.

Resolved, That we, the teachers of Crittenden county in institute assembled, do hereby request the fiscal court of said county to add two cents on each pupil of the county to the salary of County Superintendent J. B. Paris.

The above resolution was offered by R. M. Allen and unanimously adopted by the teachers. The reason for this is that so many have moved out of the county, going West, thus reducing very much the salary of your chief school official.

The legislature which met Tuesday will more than likely push through some important school legislation. Among other topics for consideration, that of normal schools will receive the first and most important notice of our lawmakers. Increase of teacher's salaries and a longer school term and better qualifications for the teachers will come in for a share of attention. But we are not sanguine enough over over-much school legislation. The election of a United States senator will absorb time and political talent. But any legislation for the betterment of schools will be hailed with delight, not only as a step toward improvement but as a real reform. No head-above-the-crowd schemes will suffice; the people are aroused and determined, and only a satisfaction of the demands will meet with the approval of the ballot battler.

ABUSE AND USE OF TEXTBOOKS.

Following is an article on "Abuse and Use of Textbooks," written by H. W. Adams:

The uses and abuses of the textbook are many. A textbook of education is excellent but it does not go far enough. There are many things in life to learn outside of the textbook. It is the practical things of life that count in the race of success. That which will benefit the child in the after years in a business way are the things the common school should teach.

Some abuses are:

1. Memorizing the text without using references.
2. Getting the words of text parrot-like without the sense.
3. Content with the text without supplementary reading.

But with all of its abuses the text book has some important uses. Among others we note the following:

1. They are excellent and trusty guides.
2. They represent the best thoughts of educated men.
3. They are stimulants to higher attainments.

The best plan for a teacher is not to use them too much nor discard them altogether. The teacher who clings to the book during a recitation as if for dear life, would better turn student and seek to know some of the many things in the text book. Preparation beforehand will eliminate the text-book clinging habit on the part of the teacher.

The Laundry Starts.

Marion has cause to be proud of starting on new years day with a new and modern laundry, equipped as well as any city laundry, with all the necessary machinery for doing first-class work; and under the present conditions in Marion it is a most auspicious time for opening a laundry. Every housekeeper will hail its advent with delight. Mr. R. W. Wilson, the builder, has presented it to his son J. W. Wilson, who is sole proprietor and manager. At present he has Mr. Colgan, of Chicago, an expert laundryman, who will remain until the new hands are initiated in the uses of the new machinery. Families here and all persons in other towns near by should patronize this much needed enterprise, and may be assured of fair treatment and first-class work.

Mrs. Fannie I. Champion and Mr. Arthur J. Crim were joined in the holy bonds of wedlock Monday morning at the residence of Mrs. Champion's mother, Mrs. C. A. P. Taylor.

The wedding was a very quiet one, only the near relatives being present.

This is the culmination of a pretty romance. The contracting parties had never met until several weeks ago when Mr. Crim came to this city to see Mrs. Champion. They had corresponded with each other for quite a while, however.

Mr. Crim's home is in California. The bride and groom left Monday morning on the 11:15 train for his home. THE RECORD joins their many friends in hearty congratulations.

SIMPSON-DUVALL.

Ed Simpson and Miss Ada Duvall were joined in matrimony Sunday, Dec. 24, at the residence of J. M. McChesney of this city, Rev. W. T. Oakley officiating. Only the near relatives and friends of the couple being present.

They are both very prominent young people and have many friends that will wish them much joy.

YOUNG-WARD.

R. C. Young and Miss Ida Ward were united in the holy bonds of wedlock at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, Jan. 3, at the home of the bride's father, Prof. Ward. Rev. W. T. Oakley officiating.

The bride is a lovely and popular young lady of the Chapell Hill neighborhood. The lucky groom is a son of Henry Young, of near Tribune. He is a well known and prosperous young farmer.

An informal dinner was given the young couple at the home of the groom's father. THE RECORD joins their host of friends in wishing them a future of uninterrupted bliss.

CRUCE-WHEELER.

On Christmas afternoon at the residence of Elder J. L. Paris, 1½ miles from town, Claude Cruce and Miss Mina Wheeler were united in marriage. The bride is the amiable daughter of H. S. Wheeler and the groom a son of George W. Cruce. May life be a continuous stream of joy to them.

Danger of a Cold and How to Avoid Them.

More fatalities have their origin in or result from a cold than from any other cause. This fact alone should make people more careful as there is no danger whatever from a cold when it is properly treated in the beginning. For many years Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been recognized as the most prompt and effectual medicine in use for this disease. It acts on nature's plan, loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by HAYNES & TAYLOR, the enterprising druggists, of Marion.

Notice.

TO THE TAXPAYERS OF CRITTENDEN COUNTY WHO OWE TAX:
You are aware of the fact that my term as sheriff has expired. You may not know that I am going to close out the business connected with my administration of said office in 90 days, but I do know it. If my time is worth anything whatever to me you have no legal or moral right to take it or to cause me to waste one moment of it. So I shall expect every taxpayer in this county, who has not paid his tax for 1902, 1903, 1904 or 1905 or any one of these years, to call and settle, and that immediately. You may have been returned delinquent; the county is still looking after you and I am ordered to collect the delinquents as well as the rest, and I may be able to find some property now that I could not find before, or that my deputies could not find.
All real estate, on which tax is not paid by March 13, 1906, will be advertised and I propose, not later than March 15, 1906, to levy on every person who owns any tax for any of these years, whether he owns any real estate or not, if he owns anything that will sell for cash. The law also gives me the right to garnish the wages of any one who owes taxes.

Now if you are disposed to treat me right in this matter all will be well, and I believe you will treat me that way. Don't think this money is going to me for it is not. I am compelled to account for it and every day it is put off is a waste of time to me. So pay up and sleep good. Yours truly,
JAS. W. LAMB, Ex-Sheriff.

WALKING THE BEST EXERCISE

The Writer Thinks There is Nothing
More Conducive to Good Health.

her feet. All this as a matter of course, as she is "not going out looking like a fright." Thus rigged may look very stylish, and make an impression on every one she meets, but not very much on her health. The little air she can breathe will be pure; this and the diversion her thoughts will be about all the good she will receive. Now let me tell you how to manage so that much good will come from walking. I have walked thousands of miles for exercise when attending institutes and it seems as though I had studied this question from every point of view. Your feet should be so loose that they do not restrict in the least the drawing of full, deep breaths. Leave off the corset; have the belt loose, as indicated above, support skirts from shoulders and have them comfortably short. Leave off the high collar and wear loose mittens. Have no article of clothing that fits tight at any point, thus restricting the circulation of the blood. Have the shoes broad and comfortable, so your feet will feel good with them as without them. The stockings should be loose, too, never hugging the feet closely. Corns and bunions are caused by narrow-toed and tight-fitting stockings, as well as by narrow shoes. If you are to walk a stone or wooden pavement, have rubber heels on your shoes. But by all means walk on mother earth directly where you can. Do I hear you say "I would like to before I would go out looking that way?" Well, cool off a little and then read on. If you have a pretty hat, some bright ribbons or colors here and there, and a little general style about your make-up, you may be real comfortable and still every man you meet will think how well you look, particularly if you have a smile on your face and walk gracefully. But it will be all the better if you can get into the fields pretty much by yourself. In one respect women are far ahead of men in their dress. Their hats never pinch their heads, so as to check circulation, keep away the air and bring on baldness. So you may be in fashion, as regard your hat, only do not have it over heavy. Now you are ready to go out. Do you know how to walk? "What a question," you say. "Of course I do." I am not sure about it, at any rate I am going to tell you. Don't stand up very straight, with head thrown back and most of the weight on the heels, the muscles of your back rigid, and then by main strength force first one foot ahead and then the other. You will find many people walking in this way, but it is all wrong. Let your arms swing perfectly free and relax almost entirely all muscles above the hips, just holding the shoulders easily back. Let the back be entirely easy. Then lean the body slightly and comfortably forward, bringing weight largely on balls of feet until first one foot, then the other, goes ahead with an easy, swinging motion, almost as a brace to prevent you from falling. It is worth any one's time to learn to walk in this graceful, easy way. I can make three miles an hour, or more, with almost no effort, or using up of strength. There is a mistaken notion that some have that they must put great vim into their walk to get any good from it. If you are young and have strength you want to waste, all right. But you do not gain any thing by violent exercise. You will get the best results for the muscles used, and your general health, every time, to get over the ground in the easy way indicated above. Do not hold the muscles unnecessarily rigid in legs and feet. Study over this. Let them be as easy as possible, same as those above the hips. Let the blood go to the muscles about the hips, which should do most of the work. The using of them tends to strongly increase one's vitality, and is one of the great advantages of walking as an exercise. It is also exceedingly important that you get in the habit of drawing comfortable full, deep breaths while out walking. Never strain the lungs any more than the muscles. These full breaths come easy to me by taking a certain number of steps while drawing in the breath and a certain number while expelling it. And the thought should often be in your mind that every breath is helping to carry dead waste out of your body and draw new, wholesome life in. Think of it over and over, and occasionally slowly expand the chest to its full capacity, throwing the shoulders well back. Ordinary breathing should always be by expansion of the abdomen. Such walking will stimulate decidedly, so care must be taken that it is not overdone. Always stop short of exhaustion. The muscles used may be a little tired and you are quite ready to sit down, if that tired feeling passes away after a few minutes rest. It is well enough to have some point to the walk, at least to go to a certain place and back. Do not walk right before or after a meal. A walk taken in this way is a positive delight to the writer. It furnishes excellent exercise for elderly people who do not work much, and those engaged in sedentary occupations.

Farmer Bunker and the Widow

(Original.)
"Zeke," said Farmer Bunker, "why don't y' make up to Mandy Sniffen? She's purtier 'n a new mowin' machine an' as good a gal as ever lived."

"H'm," replied the wary son, "wimmen's what y' say—jist like a mowin' machine. They're purty enough till y' git 'em harnessed up; then they cut down everything in their way."

Farmer Bunker since the death of Zeke's mother, a year before, had been casting longing eyes at the widow Sniffen, Mandy's mother. Knowing that his son had an objection to having any one put in his own mother's place, he felt if he could get Zeke to make a match with the daughter he might overcome the boy's scruples. But Zeke saw the trap and did not relish the advantage his falling into it would give his father. The old man, having failed with his bait, concluded to do a little courting and then propose. Zeke watched the maneuvers with anxiety.

One morning after one of the farmer's visits to the widow he awoke to see the widow's cow rummaging in his corn, some of which she had trampled underfoot. The old man fired up at once, but, remembering the situation between him and the widow, quietly drove the cow over a low place in the fence by which she had made her entrance to the shed where she belonged. He asked Zeke if he had carelessly left the fence lowered, and Zeke said that he had not. Then the farmer surmised that the cow had done it with her horns.

In a few days the cow was in the corn again. This time, after the farmer had driven her out, he went to the widow and suggested that she put a poke around the cow's neck. The widow declared that the cow didn't need a poke, that she was as good as a cow as ever gave milk and that some one on the Bunker farm must have been careless about the fence. Bunker assured her that there was no one on his farm except himself and his son and neither of them had touched the fence. There was a flash of temper between the two, and the farmer went away insisting on a poke for the cow. Zeke heard him grumbling and said:

"Father, don't y' believe me when I say I ain't touched the fence?"
"Of course I do, Zeke."

"Well, if I didn't do it an' y' didn't do it, the cow must 'a' done it. The widdler should get her a poke."

"That's what I told her, an' she 'lows the cow don't need a poke. She kind o' fired up when I mentioned it."

"What'd I tell y' about mowin' machines, father?"
The old man went off snorting.

Again the cow was found in the corn, and this time there was no change to be noticed in the fence. The balance of the farmer's corn was destroyed, and he went to the widow in a frame of mind by no means lovely.

"Mis' Sniffen," he began in an unbecomingly tone, "y'r cow has ruined $30 worth o' corn for me, an' I suppose—"

"Mr. Bunker, I want y' to understand that I ain't responsible for my cow gittin' into no farm that's not properly protected."

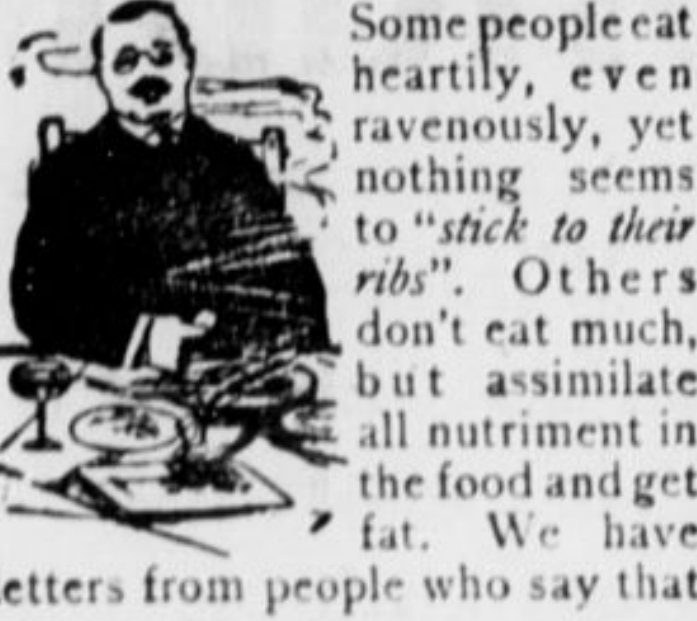

"My farm is properly protected," the farmer retorted.

At this moment Mandy appeared on the scene and took a hand in the proceedings, but not as might be expected. "Mr. Bunker," she said, "I think y' are right. Our cow's a bad un."

"Mandy," said her mother hotly, "y' go straight into the house."

Mandy obeyed, pouting, and, her interference having only added fuel to her mother's anger, the widow gave the farmer such a dressing as he had never had before. The old man went home, muttering, and as he passed his son, who had been leaning on the fence listening, he said, "Wimmen is mowin' machines, true 'nough, Zeke, all except the gal, an' she's an angel."

PERFECT ASSIMILATION

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

Some people eat heartily, even ravenously, yet nothing seems to "stick to their ribs". Others don't eat much, but assimilate all nutriment in the food and get fat. We have letters from people who say that

It makes them fat. It doesn't. It simply gets their digestive organs in shape to take the nutriment out of the foods which they eat. It also acts as a gentle laxative and tonic. Please try it.

A. C. Jones, of Harrisonville, Ind., writes: "I can say for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin that it is one of the best medicines I ever have taken. In just sixty days after I began to take your medicine, I had gained 30 pounds in weight, felt like a new man and I can highly recommend it to any one who is troubled with indigestion or dyspepsia."

The Good Old Way.

A severe cold or attack of la grippe is like a fire, the sooner you combat it the better your chances are to overpower it. But few mothers in this age are willing to do the necessary work required to give a good, old fashioned, reliable treatment such as would be administered by their grandmothers, backed by Boschee's German Syrup, which was always liberally used in connection with the home treatment of colds and is still in greater household favor than any known remedy. But even without the application of the old fashioned aids, German Syrup will cure a severe cold in quick time. It will cure colds in children or grown people. It relieves the congested organs, allays the irritation and effectively stops the cough. Any child will take it. It is invaluable in a household of children. Trial size bottle, 25c; regular size, 75c. For sale by Woods & Orme.

Of Ague and Malaria, can be relieved and cured with Electric Bitters. This is a pure, tonic medicine, of especial benefit in malaria, for it exerts a true curative influence on the disease, driving it entirely out of the system. It is much to be preferred to quinine, having none of this drug's bad after-effects. E. S. Munday, of Henrietta, Tex., writes: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice, till he took Electric Bitters, which saved his life." Don't Use Big Words.

It is highly amusing to see the efforts of some folks to read the following advertisement without getting their tongues twisted:
DON'T USE BIG WORDS
In promulgating esoteric cogitations or articulating superficial sentimentalities and philosophical or psychological observations, beware of platitudinous ponderosity. Let your statements have a clarified conciseness, compacted comprehension, coalescent consistency and a concentrated cogency. Eschew all conglomeration of flatulent garrulity, babblement and asinine affectations.

In trying to impress upon others the great superiority of —, and why you and every one else smoke them, it is not necessary to use jawbreakers.

Let your extemporaneous descantings and unpremeditated expatiations have intelligibility and veracious vivacity, without rhodomontade or trasonical bombast; sedulously avoid all polysyllabic profundity, psittaceous vacuity, ventriloquial verbosity and vandiloquent vapidity; shun double entendres, prurient jocosity and pestiferous profanity, obscure or apparent.

In other words, talk plainly, naturally, sensible and truthful; say that — is the best that has ever been offered. And that settles it.—Chicago Blade.

A Grim Tragedy

Is daily enacted, in thousands of homes, as Death claims, in each one, another victim of Consumption or Pneumonia. But when coughs and colds are properly treated, the tragedy is averted. F. G. Huntley, of Oaklandon, Ind., writes: "My wife had the consumption and three doctors gave her up. Finally she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which cured her, and today she is well and strong." It kills the germs of all diseases. One dose relieves. SWINE HUSBANDRY

Buttermilk, provided no water is added, is practically of the same value for feeding pigs as separator milk. writes a correspondent of American Cultivator. But it must be borne in mind that buttermilk from factories almost always has mixed with it a considerable amount of added water, sometimes as much as 50 per cent, and consequently by itself is not a suitable food for pigs. Many instances can be given of great mortality among pigs fed solely on buttermilk, practically from starvation, because they were not able to consume enough buttermilk plus water to derive sufficient nutriment to supply the demand of nature. But when the deficiency in solids is made up by adding meal, or even grass, roots or other fodder, pigs are found to thrive on the buttermilk.

Weaning Pigs.
Since no use can be made of sows milk it seems unwise to be in a hurry about weaning pigs when the mother's milk supply is still good. The suckling pig is making its lowest cost growth.

Care of Swine.
If pigs begin to show an out of condition appearance don't think of medicine the first thing. See if some mistake in feeding or care cannot be discovered, and if it is correct it—Farm, Stock and Home.

The Brood Sows.
Give brood sows the freedom of the pasture fields when with young pigs, and as soon as the pigs are old enough to eat feed a little shelled corn and dry middlings with a mash of wheat middlings and milk. Sows with pigs should always have access to a good blue grass pasture and should not be fed too much corn. The largest part of the ration should be made up of oats and bran with a little oilmeal. Have plenty of charcoal and ashes constantly available. An occasional feed of salt will be found profitable.—American Cultivator.

Soaking Corn For Hogs.
Ordinarily we believe that it does not pay to soak corn for pigs. Unless it is very hard they will grind it themselves, and soak it with the saliva which aids digestion. Professor Henry says that soaking corn is "about as useful as grinding it," which means that it is a question whether the gains overbalance the cost.—National Stockman.

Distinctively Different; In Every Way the Best.

The Weekly Globe Democrat, of St. Louis, covers a field peculiarly and exclusively its own. It is issued twice a week. A big SEMI-WEEKLY paper. Eight to ten large pages every Tuesday and Friday. One Dollar a year.

Nothing particularly different, you say, about that—there are other "Twice-a-Week" papers.

Yes, but the similarity ends there. No other paper is like the Globe-Democrat in any other respect.

An entirely unique feature of the Globe-Democrat, a feature which is highly prized by its readers, is its systematic method of preserving and presenting the CONTINUITY OF NEWS.

The two papers each week, Tuesday and Friday, are carefully prepared with the view of giving the complete news of all the world for that week.

They are so combined in the make-up as to form continued and connected stories of the various important events, showing the developments from day to day and the final results.

Other weekly and twice-a-week papers, as a rule, print only a few telegrams of the day of issue.

The "Twice-a-Week" Globe-Democrat gives the telegrams of every day in the week more comprehensively than the average Daily, and of more value to the average reader.

Moreover, the "Twice-a-Week" Globe-Democrat is not simply an echo of the Daily edition.

It is a separate and distinct publication, especially prepared to supply the requirements of people who want all the news of all the earth—and something more.

It presents the World's daily history in concise but complete form. It is of equal interest in all parts of the United States. It is invaluable alike to men and women, young and old.

It thoroughly provides for every member of the family. In high-grade literature it particularly excels. Its market reports are correct and complete in every detail.

Its departments devoted to "The Home," "The Farm and Garden," "The Family Circle," "The Sunday School," "Science and Industry," are each and all THE BEST of their kind and either one is more than worth the subscription price of the paper.

In politics it is strictly REPUBLICAN, but it is above all a newspaper, and it tells the truth without fear or favor. It has no equal or rival as a great National news and home journal.

Remember the price, only One Dollar per year—104 papers—less than one cent a copy. Postage prepaid.

You will make no mistake if you send $1.00 TODAY for a year's subscription. Or you can get your own paper ONE YEAR WITHOUT COST by inducing two of your neighbors to subscribe and sending their names with $2.00.

FREE SAMPLE COPIES, containing order blanks and full particulars, will be cheerfully furnished upon receipt of postal card request. Address Globe Printing Company, Publishers.
