Capital Said To Be Looking for an Investment in This District in the Early Spring

PRODUCE FINEST ZINC IN STATE

Mining operators are jubilant over what they say appears to be an indication that a considerable amount of capital is looking for investment in our district. It is needless to say it is welcome because more capital and more work means more money for the field men.

Again we have been informed that several new companies will enter the field here in the spring. With the sphere of importance which the district has already attained and the success of the new, dry process zinc separating plants being installed in this district, in a few years will out rival Joplin and other fields, not only in the production of the greatest flux known to secure fluorspar, but also in the production of lead and zinc.

Joplin, Mo., January 7.—The price of zinc ore has been on the decline and was $1 less than the week preceding. The highest price paid was $53 per ton for the choice bins. Assay basis ranged from $45 to $40 per ton for 60 per cent zinc.

The price of lead is still at the top notch of $80, which was paid all week for all that could be obtained.

The amount of ore mined the past week was behind the average, although the weather has not been severe.

Mining operations were resumed at the Ada Florence mine last Saturday. In the shaft here a four foot vein of spar is uncovered. This property is now owned and operated by the Great Northern Mining Milling Company, composed of Muncie, Indiana capitalists, chiefly. The present shaft, now 60 feet deep, is to be sunk to a depth about 200 feet after which the company proposes to put in all kinds of machinery. The Ada Florence mine is said to be on the same vein as the Keystone property adjoining where the operations have been almost continuous, and where work will be resumed Monday after a short delay on account of a broken pump.

The Eclipse Mining Company, of which Wm. Miller, of Louisville, is president, is now working on the McEcan farm at a depth of 67 feet where something unusual has developed in the way of an almost solid three foot vein of zinc jack which is said to be the finest from the point of quality ever found in Kentucky. The company now has a force of men at work putting up buildings and installing machinery. The owners are to be congratulated on the excellent results of their efforts. They are chiefly Louisville capitalists. A sample of the ore here has excited considerable interest.

Judging from the following clipping taken from the Yellville Arkansas Echo where J. N. Clark, formerly of this city, and who is well known to our readers, resides, Mr. Clark, who did considerable prospecting here several years ago, is meeting with some success in the mineral line in his Arkansas home. Mr. Clark was one of the promoters of the Marion Mineral Company, of this city, which is one of the most substantial companies operating here. Mr. Clark is known to the writer to be a man who can scent an ore vein farther than a bear can a bucket of honey and we just know that is the reason he moved from Roe up to Yellville. The clipping reads:

"J. O. Pence brought in a nice specimen of ore from his farm four miles south of town Wednesday. This is the property from which Mr. J. N. Clark brought some fine specimens of jack, to which the Echo referred last week. Mr. Clark, we understand, has a working option on the land, and with the small amount of work already done, has shown a four foot ore run near the surface. With further practical development work, we predict for this the making of a very valuable property."

Baptist Meeting.

Elder H. Boyce Taylor, of Murray, will begin a series of meetings at the Baptist church next Sunday, January 14. Elder Taylor is a good man and a good preacher and it is said of him that he does a wonderful work.

Celebrates Eighty-First Birthday.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 10.—Mayor John W. Breathitt, the present postmaster and the oldest living citizen who was born within the limits of Hopkinsville, celebrated his eighty-first birthday yesterday.

Mayor Breathitt was born in what is known as the Hopson place, one of the landmarks of this city, on January 9, 1825. His father was James Breathitt, for many years Commonwealth's Attorney of this judicial district, and who was a brother of former Governor of Kentucky John Breathitt, who died while still in office.

Henry Phillips.

Married, on the evening of the 10th inst., at the residence of the grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Russell, Mr. Thomas Henry, of Blackford, to Miss Ursie Phillips, of Rosebud. Rev. Thos. A. Conway officiating. The bride is the oldest daughter of Esq. L. B. Phillips of Bells Mines. She is pretty, amiable, modest, kind hearted, and a first-class prize in the matrimonial lottery. The groom is a trusted employee of the I. C. railroad, is well fixed financially, and is a moral and pleasant young gentleman. They will reside in Blackford. The Press extends congratulations and kindest wishes.

MAY THEY BE HAPPY EVER AFTERWARD

Romantic Courtship Followed by a Lover's Meeting Which Culminated in Pretty Wedding.

At St. Paul, Minn., at 3:30 o'clock last Thursday evening, Dec. 28, Dr. D. M. Daniel, of Weston, this county, was united in marriage to Mrs. Adelia Taylor, of the former city, the ceremony taking place at the German M. E. church, the pastor, Rev. Jacob Berger officiating. After the ceremony and the receiving of numerous congratulations, the happy couple left for a wedding tour to Lake City on the beautiful Lake Pippin in that state where the bride has friends and relatives. They also visited other places, then started for Kentucky, spending a short time in Chicago and arrived in this city on the morning of January 4, where they have since been guests at Hotel Crittenden.

The bride is a lovely and refined lady, and the groom who is well known to most of our readers, is a retired physician and a prosperous farmer, is to be congratulated on his success in winning so amiable a bride.

The wedding was the happy culmination of a romantic courtship. More than a year ago the two, though unknown to each other, became correspondents through a Chicago matrimonial agency. Many letters were exchanged between them during which time Cupid was not idle, and by the time the recent holidays were nearing, the little imp had his nets so tightly drawn that the doctor, unable to withstand the pressure, boarded a train for St. Paul, where, in due time, he arrived. He was met at the station by the pretty widow, saw each other for the first time. Cupid drew his net an inch or two tighter, and the two were driven to the home of Mrs. Taylor at 328 Van Dyke Court, closely followed, of course, by the aforesaid little imp.

From a near-by hotel the doctor paid frequent visits to the home on Van Dyke Court with the culmination as above narrated.

There's no human being so despicable as the one who tells miserable little lies about his fellows.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS IN MASONIC TEMPLE HALL

To Be Guests of Honor at Banquet—Token of Appreciation For Use of Pythias Hall.

Thursday evening, January 18, in their new temple hall the members of Bingham Lodge F. & A. M., No. 250, will give an elaborate banquet to the officers and members of Blackwell Lodge No. 57, Knights of Pythias.

After the fire of last March when, with the rest of the unfortunates, the local Masonic lodge was rendered homeless for the time being, the local Pythian lodge with that brotherly feeling and spirit of friendship for which is the basis of the institution, tendered its castle hall to the Masons who accepted it and used it as a place of meeting while their new temple was undergoing the process of construction. In return for the favor the Masonic order offered to pay rent, furnish fuel and lights, but the knightly Knights of Pythias of old Blackwell No. 57 would not have it so, and as an acknowledgment of the kindness shown, and as a token of deep appreciation, the banquet will be given.

Rosewood Camp, No. 22.

The installation of officers of Rosewood Camp No. 22, Woodmen of the World, took place Monday evening in their new quarters.

The following officers were installed: John Sutherland, council commander, R. I. Nunn, adv't. lieut. Jack Butler, banker, S. H. Ramage, clerk, Steele, watchman.

Hodge Fritts, sentry, Rev. J. R. McAfee, chaplain, W. B. White, Jno. Nunn and W. H. Clark, trustees.

After the installation of the officers, the members of the lodge repaired to Copher's restaurant where they partook of their annual banquet.

MAYOR SHIVELY CALLED TO OWENSBORO

Father's Health and Business Affairs Demand the Attention of His Son.

Mayor G. E. Shively left Wednesday afternoon for his former home at Owensboro where he was called to look after the affairs of his father's estate on account of the incessant illness of the latter and where his family had already preceded him. Dr. Shively's stay in Owensboro will therefore be somewhat indefinite, but his request is that his friends here be notified that he hopes to be able to return to Marion soon. Dr. Shively has only resided in Marion a comparatively short time, but during that time he has risen rapidly in the practice of his profession and for a young man has won for himself signal honors, one of which was his recent election to the Mayorship of this city on the Independent Citizens ticket.

Wednesday morning before his departure, Attorneys, Thos. W. and J. B. Champion and Dentist F. W. Nunn, who have their office on the same floor with Dr. Shively, presented him with a nice family Testament, which was delivered with an appropriate speech by Thos. W. Champion, and inscribed over their signatures on the fly leaf was the following:

"Accept this small gift from three friends, with every expression of kind regard."

It is hoped that his father's health and business affairs will shape themselves promptly so that Mayor Shively will be permitted to return.

A Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank with all our hearts our many kind and urbane friends of Marion, for the urbanity shown us during the illness of our daughter.

And most especially would we remember our kind and faithful physician, Dr. T. Atchison Frazer.

W. W. MARSH THE WINTON PLACE PROPHET

Predicts The Weather For 1906—Rarely Ever Misses in His Prognostications.

W. W. Marsh, the Winton Place prophet, who rarely ever misses in his prognostications, has this to say concerning the coming year:

"The year 1906 will be a very prosperous year in the commercial line; great prosperity prevailing over the entire country—the year will be free from wars; peace over the entire world.

"The storms during the year will be disastrous, both on land and water, causing much destruction on the great bodies of water, Atlantic Ocean, Great Lakes and Gulf of Mexico and adjoining states." Great storms over Southern and Gulf states and the Eastern and New England states, the West and Northwest. Cyclones and heavy rains will do much damage, with floods over the states west of the Mississippi river especially over Kansas, Nebraska and along the western streams in the month of June.

"There will be a shortage in the corn and wheat crops on account of the early killing frosts during the fall months, and drouths during summer months. The spring will be late and fall an early one, with killing frosts. The summer hot, with intense heat. The winter will not be a severe winter, but an open one. The winter storms will be severe, and occasional coal waves will prevail in all sections of the country, but of short duration. During the month of January, 1906, severe winter storms will prevail in all sections of the country, the snowfall being quite heavy over the states west of the Mississippi, the Eastern and New England states and the North Atlantic coast, lake regions and the Northern States, Northern Ohio, Pennsylvania Virginia.

"Tariff will suffer over the East, West and Southwest and Northwest on account of snow blockades. February, 1906, will be an open month. The weather during this month will be mild with an occasional cold wave and snow, but the precipitation will consist of heavy rains. Floods will occur during February and March, and very high water in June. The month of March

How He Got His Nest Egg

(Original.)

Who does not remember some one who was once a boy? Morgan Enright was so. He was two years older than I, and we were respectively seventeen and fifteen. I was fully as tall as he, but not as well developed. At age I gave him a good thrashing and ended his annoying me, though ugliness toward me was increased. When I began to earn a living I was attracted by the large sums paid to divers and became a diver. The is, I was in love, and, being anxious to marry, chose that which seemed to enable me to secure a nest egg. My sweetheart didn't approve of the occupation at all, but, like me, was the nest egg. However, I had a way to take care of, and the nest egg failed to appear. I was pretty discouraged when something happened that very nearly rendered it necessary.

A ship had gone down close to shore on which there was heavy insurance. A diver was to be sent down representing the underwriters, together with one representing the owners and the captain. I was chosen to represent the underwriters. I was standing on a float in diver's rig, all except the helmet, waiting for the owners' diver when a boat pulled off from the shore and when it came near enough was should be in it but Morgan Enright. He was as much astonished to see me as I was to see him. Neither knew that the other was a diver, much less that we were to go down together, but we were boys no longer, and I offered him my hand. He took it, but the look on his face froze the marrow in my bones—a look that I did not fully understand till later.

Well, we struck bottom about the same time on a stretch of white sand. The ship was in a good position for inspection, for her bow had come down on a ledge of rock that lifted it above the sand and only a few feet above our heads. It was no secret that I was there to look for foul play, and the place to find it was on the ship's bottom. I walked along, looking upward, till at last my head was even with the inclining bottom, and after that I was obliged to stoop. Enright accompanied me, also looking. He soon got ahead of me and motioned me to come on, shaking his head as if to say that he had been looking carefully where I was hunting and had found nothing. I looked all the more carefully and at one place, poking my finger in an indentation, found a hole. I succeeded in pushing my fist through the bottom and into the ship. Enright turned back and saw me stooping, with my arm thrust into the hole. He came up to me and the first thing I knew was me around the body and gave me a wrench that broke my arm. I occurred to me at once that he had been sent down by the owners to foil an attempt to discover, or at least report on the scuttling of the vessel. Quick as a flash of lightning all that had passed between me and him from the first blow he had given me before I was old enough to protect myself all the day I had thrashed him came up before me. And now he was to take his revenge fifty feet under water. He was to kill two birds with one stone—have his revenge and prevent my reporting the scuttling of the ship.

Realizing that, handicapped as I was, I would be no match for him in a struggle, I pretended to faint and sank down on the sand. He raised his head and brought it down on the glass over my face, but its thickness, together with the resistance of the water under his foot, saved me. He failed in the attempt. Then he took a knife from his pocket and cut the signal line. He was too late, for I managed to give the signal to be raised. When he saw me rising he cut the rope that was lifting me, and I sank again on the sand. Then seeing that I was cut off from succor he gave the signal to be taken up. As he was rising I saw one chance for my life. Enrighting his leg with my sound arm. I clung with the strength of despair. Had he been above water he might have shaken me off. As it was, he was unable to do so. The men above, feeling the extra weight, pulled hard, and before my enemy could do anything to prevent we were both at the surface.

As soon as I saw that I was saved I fainted. When I came to myself Enright had gone, but, turning my eyes toward the shore, I saw him pulling for the dock with furious strokes. Hurriedly I called on those standing by to stop him, and two of them, entering another boat, reached the dock in time to prevent him from getting away.

When the underwriters heard my story they resolved to push both the owners, the captain of the ship and especially Enright to the wall. They had no end of money with which to do the job and landed every one connected with the swindle in state prison. The courts couldn't hang Enright, as he deserved, because he had not succeeded in taking my life, but the judge gave him twenty years, and he still has ten of them to serve.

That was my last trip under water. No man could get me to put on a helmet for any money, but it has not been necessary. I had saved the insurance to the underwriters, coming within an ace of losing my life in doing so. They made up a purse for me, each putting in $2,000, and as there were seven of them you can figure that I got my nest egg. Besides, I have been in their employ ever since. I was married that autumn and have lived comfortably on my salary and the interest of my capital, which has been steadily growing.

Educational Column

W. HUGH WATSON, Editor.

Practical things made practical are the first things first of the school room.

There are many ways to kill time in the form of teaching. Tear off the mask of pretense and a nonentity will show itself.

Now that the school is nearly out is a splendid time for retrospection. What have I done right? What have I done wrong that nobody but I know about?

The unsuspecting patron is easily deceived, but it is a very difficult thing to do to play a deception upon oneself.

Really, truly by the straight edges of facts and figures, have you really advanced your pupils in things that will benefit them in the after years? You can't be with them in the heat of their own battles to suggest, to help--what then? Your work will tell then, either for success or failure.

Some practical things worth the teachers' while, worth the pupils' while:

How to write a promissory note.

How to write a receipt.

How to write a business letter.

How to spell simple, everyday words correctly.

How to write plainly enough to be read after twenty-four hours cooling.

These are some of the things we, as teachers, should know, and be able to teach it to the boys and girls under our charge.

Some think bad penmanship, (let's call it plain writing,) is a sure avenue to greatness, for no other reason, perhaps, than because they have read somewhere Horace Greeley and some other notables were poor farmers of letters. Ah! Reading Shakespeare does not produce Shakespeares, neither does bad writing produce greatness.

Success casts over one a charmed spell. The successful man has numberless imitators, the paltry imitation being the barrier to success. The resourceful, the man of determined initiative is the one who will succeed.

Work, work hard, work constantly and then only will success come. There is truth still in the old adage, "There is no excellence without great labor."

The genius-dependent stops not far beyond mediocrity. Not so much dash and a little more constancy will solve success problems. James Whitcomb Riley's advice to literary aspirants is, "Dig, dig, dig."

Fear of soiling lily white hands or soiling laundry will be the bug bear to success. "I would have done so and so, if--" there was the secret hinged on the fatal "if."

In this discussion I will let you have a half-way peep into my library--let you see four treasures in my store house of mind lore.

Samuel Smiles has helped more men and women who really are striving to attain, than any other one man, perhaps. His set, consisting of four well sized volumes occupy a prominent place in many libraries. I have the set and they are a ready help and inspiration.

The volumes bear the titles: "Thrift," "Self-help," "Duty" and "Character." The titles are not misleading with regard to their contents.

In the bookness of those who long to do and to be (but don't stop at the mere longing) these books are invaluable aids. They are messages burning intensely with action. The trend of their thought is, you can best help others by making of yourself the best possible man or woman.

Work is absolutely necessary to success. Books are the tonic of work. They don't in themselves bring success, but they aid in bringing it. They broaden thought and acquaintance, and, to know, to be and to do--that is success.

The Grip.

"Before we can sympathize with others, we must have suffered ourselves." No one can realize the suffering attendant upon an attack of the grip, unless he has had the actual experience. There is probably no disease that causes so much physical and mental agony, or which so successfully defies medical aid.

All danger from the grip, however, may be avoided by the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy, not one case has ever been reported that has not resulted in pneumonia or that has not recovered. VOTE FOR PEGGY AND THE CHILDREN

Contributed by J. N. TOWERY

The people must rule or our republic perish. Initiative and referendum is the only salvation for the nation. Initiative and referendum being non-partisan, all can partake in it. The people's veto is the only safe guide to maintain a republic.

The people's sovereignty is safer than delegated power. It is not my intention to advance the interest of any political party by writing this article. Primary initiative and referendum belong to the people. There is nothing to hinder them from obtaining it if they will only act and then secure secondary initiative and referendum.

I think I will be able to show before I get through this article the power of the governed and that our law-maker should heed to the will of the people. The people possess all power and they should use their sovereign rights. Those of us who live in America are inclined to be careless of the right to self government. We possess the ballot and can therefore defeat the candidate who is against us, but it was not always thus. It took seven long years of war to establish American Independence. That war was for the preservation of self government.

To all Englishmen the rights of no taxation without representation was established way back in 1262 as the result of the Baron's war which lasted four years and was, says John Fiske, in the beginning of New England, an event of the same order of importance as the great rebellion of the seventeenth century and the American revolution, and among the founders of that political freedom which is enjoyed today by all English speaking people, the name of Simon De Montfort, Earl of Leicester, deserves a place in our grateful remembrance, besides the names of Cromwell, Napoleon and Washington.

Simon's great victory at Lewis in 1264 must rank with Nasby and Yorktown. The work begun by the House of Commons was the same work that has continued to go on without essential interruption down to the present day. The fundamental principle of political freedom is no taxation without representation. You must not take a farthing of my money without consulting my wishes as to the use that shall be made of it. Only when the principle of justice was first practically recognized, did government begin to divorce itself from the primitive bestial barbarian system of tyranny and plunder and to ally itself with the forces that in the fullness of time are being placed on earth and good will to mankind. Of all dates in history, there is none more fit to be commemorated than 1265, for in that year there was first asserted and applied at Westminster on a national scale, that fundamental principle of "no taxation without representation." That paramount kernel of the English idea still lives and will as long as the English language is spoken.

When we ponder over these dates we can see the advantage to monopolies and trust, in crushing all good principles of self government, and realize the import of the saying that with the Lord a thousand years are but as one day, and we feel that the work of the Lord cannot be done by the listless or the slothful. So much time and strife by sea and land has it taken to establish and secure our liberties, it will be when the yeomanry of this country come off guard. All will be lost after thousands of true, patriotic men have given up their noble lives to establish our republic. Nor without unremitting watchfulness can we be sure that the day of peril is yet passed. From kings, indeed, we have no more to fear--they have come to be as specks and bogies of the nursery. But the gravest dangers are those which present themselves in new forms against which people's minds have not yet been fortified with traditional sentiment and phrases.

The inherited predatory tendency of men to seize upon the fruits of other people's labor is still very strong and while we have nothing more to fear from kings, we may yet have trouble enough for commercial monopolies and favored industries, marching to the polls other hordes of bribed retainers. Well, indeed, has it been said that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. God never meant that in this fair but treacherous world in which he has placed us, we earn our salvation without steadfast labor. I will admonish all voters to be placed now on their guard, and they will now be in favor of enlarging the power of the people--power of giving the optional initiative and referendum the power to veto any mean and foul legislation that would endanger the liberties of this country.

The new form in which the power of the few exist, is known to all its machine rule, which frequently is centralized in a single head or boss. The strength of the machine or boss is, power to enact legislation, therefore, he is able to and does sell legislation as merchandise. This is the only question: How can this new form of injustice be terminated? God who has brought the human family to its present stage of happiness, has not deserted or changed his mind.

Gradually a system has been developed in which the party machine can be transferred from the party to the people to take to themselves a veto power through what is known as the referendum and they take to themselves a direct initiative in addition to the indirect form. These two developments, the referendum and the initiative, better described as the people's veto and direct initiative, terminate most of the evil features of party politics.

For a century the system has been developing and everywhere with excellent results, but party government has developed more rapidly until a few years ago in 1903 in South Dakota the referendum and initiative were extended to all legislation except agency measures and the same is true in Utah and Arizona. Constitutional amendments have been submitted in Massachusetts, Missouri and Nevada while in all the other states a hot contest is on. Likewise in the nation the people have found they can take to themselves the final power, thereby improving legislatures and congress and benefitting every honest legislator. It removes the possibility of corruption so that honest men can afford to serve the public.

Reviewing what has been said, it appears that the way to restore our liberties is to transfer from the political parties to ourselves the final power as to laws. The easiest way to secure this in state affairs is to pledge all candidates for the legislature that if elected they will vote to, the people of the state an opportunity for a constitutional amendment for final power in the people. The details of the amendment to conform to certain specific requirements. This places the issue where it is the strongest. The mere rights of the people to veto or propose changes in the system of government, rightly expressed and recognized in the bill of rights and believed in by the people.

In other words, the line of least resemblance has been found. No earthly power can defeat this progress. All the people believe in it, therefore, candidates dare not oppose it. I know of no better method of closing this than to show you the workings of monopolies. As one of the most potent factors in human affairs, they are, in my judgment where the most danger lies that is daily digging the dirt from under our feet. Soon they will overthrow our republic, if not hindered.

I will give you the workings of monopolies in California in 1898. It will suffice to show how they can bribe legislature and overthrow the will of the people--a thing they don't dare to undertake in republic Switzerland, the original birthplace of majority rule. Some of the countries of Switzerland are so Democratic, initiative of a law comes from the people. The law making power dares not listen to the people. The laws when discussed by the people, are in accordance to what the people want. They are as perfect as human wisdom can invent, made for all the people.

I will now give you an effort of the people in California in 1898 to secure initiative and referendum and how they were thwarted by monopolies and sell-outs. It is as follows:

Monopolies defeat majority rule. The strength of monopolies and other determined efforts to prevent majority rule is most clearly shown in California in 1898. The people of San Francisco adopted a new charter. It was prepared by a committee of one hundred business men who placed in it provision for a compulsory referendum as to franchise for city monopolies and direct initiative as to all questions upon the petition of fifteen per cent of the voters. The legislature ratified the charter. Later, the cities of Sacramento to Pasadena and Alameda adopted a people's veto and direct initiative. The referendum by counties was provided for a few years ago by the legislature, but two years ago the supreme court of the state decided the law unconstitutional. Organized labor aided in securing the majority rule provision. For years the Californians have been demanding a reform in the legislative system by placing in the people's hands the veto power and direct initiative. At the annual conventions in January, 1901, a resolution was adopted directing the executive committee to prepare a constitutional amendment and secure its submission by the legislature during the summer. Work along this line was begun in the southern part of the state without knowing what organized labor had done. The California Direct Legislation League was organized and Dr. John Haynes was elected president and George H. Dunlap, secretary, both of Los Angeles. Dr. Haynes is a wealthy, popular and busy man, who was the soul of the struggle in securing

THE NEW FIRM

The Hina Hardware Co.

FOR several years I have studied the question of how supplies could be furnished the Farmer, Gardener, Builder and other classes of people at the least cost and lowest possible expense. I have figured it out that debarring the cost and worry of keeping books, and debarring accounts that are never paid by some unfortunate individuals, but which profit on goods sold you help make up, cutting these items out I found that goods could be sold at 10 per cent. less, at least, on the cash basis, and that is what we have adopted.

ARE YOU WILLING TO BE IN BUSINESS WITH US?

And have one-half the regular profit usually made on Hardware? Then buy your goods at our store, the ONLY CASH Hardware Store in Crittenden County, and you will be convinced the profit has been divided with you, because you do not have to help pay the other fellow's account, nor the cost of keeping books. The prices will verify our statements. Come in and get our prices.

SUBSCRIPTION ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR.

Entered as second-class matter July 15, 1904, at the postoffice at Marion, Ky., under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

FRIDAY, JAN. 12, 1906.

Only one side of a proposition will not permit a just conclusion. If you are an honest man, get the other side.

Have the Home Merchants broken their new year's resolution to advertise a little more this year and try to make it a better year than last?

The sneaking, sniping type of humanity is an abomination among decent people anywhere. If you mean to do the best for your constituency, weigh well the propositions that are made to you.

The Democratic office holders in Caldwell have agreed to pay all costs including lawyer's fees and the Republican contestants have dismissed their contest suits without prejudice.

Representative Ollie James has introduced in congress the bill he offered last session to provide for the extradition of refugees upon requisition from the governor of the state from which the refugee has fled. It covers of course, such cases as that of W. S. Taylor, in Indiana.

The north pole has seemed to be so much nearer us this week that we thought it a good time to tell you what we thought of the Chicago Record Herald, to begin his proposed search for it in the airship. It is said that Major Hersey, formerly in charge of the Louisville weather bureau, will accompany him.

It is reported that Henry Youtsey is quaking in his boots in the Frankfort penitentiary over the prospect of Jim Howard's arrival. It may not be exactly pleasant for Youtsey to think of having to spend the remainder of his life shut up with a man who has been deprived of liberty largely through his injury, but it is not likely that Jim Howard would attempt to harm a creature like Youtsey. —Paducah Sun.

The merchant who takes the pains to use printers' ink and tell you what he has to sell, deserves your patronage. Such a man is an enterprising adjunct to any community. If he solicits your trade he will try to furnish you precisely what you want. The inducements that he offers you will bring you, possibly those from afar. Such a campaign for trade is founded on the policy that all are bound to recognize. His efforts help his town because he invites people from abroad. He helps his town and therefore his county. Support such a merchant and keep him in your midst. Of course, while he uses printers' ink the newspaper man may reap a benefit, but had you thought of the fact that the newspaper man deserves all he can reap. He says and scatters abroad those things from time to time, that are calculated to bring capital into your midst. Isn't that what we need, capital? Just think of the thousands of things said, gratis, by the newspaper editor in behalf of your town and county and let the general verdict be: The newspaper man deserves all he can reap, and let us not forget the editor of our county paper.

Speaker of the State Senate Lieutenant Governor W. P. Thorne was almost profuse in the honors showered upon our fellow-townsmen, Senator P. S. Maxwell. Besides making him chairman of the senate committee on "Banks and Banking," he was also appointed as a member of the following senate committees: "Ways and Means," "Geological Survey," "Religion and Morals," "Printing," "Mines and Mining," "Trust and Investment Companies," "Immigration and Labor," "Corporations," "Appropriations" and "Agriculture and Manufacture."

Speaker Lawrence, of the house of representatives at Frankfort appointed the representative from Crittenden and Livingston counties, M. B. Clark, on the following three committees: "Public Warehouses and Granaries," "Mines and Mining" and "Ways and Means," but without a single chairmanship. While it may be politic for speakers to recognize members of opposing parties, it is not considered subservient to give them places for which members of the party in power may hunger.

The Governor and the machine seem still to be holding the whiphand at Frankfort, which confirms the tuneful truth of Judge Mulligan's immortal verse:

"Politics is the damndest
In Kentucky."
—Sturgis Democrat.

The following dispatch from Frankfort appeared Saturday in the Louisville Herald: "State Senator Henry George is slated to succeed Lillard as warden of the Frankfort penitentiary. George was the chairman of the joint Democratic caucus, which nominated Judge Paynter for the United States Senate, and Eli Brown and Harvey McCutcheon for prison commissioner. Henry Hagerman is slated to succeed himself as warden of the branch penitentiary at Eddyville, but Jesse Olive, the deputy warden, will be dropped. Olive is a kinsman of Ollie James, and was defeated in the Democratic caucus with Ed Fennell as a nominee for prison commissioner."

The Young Man's Opportunity.

BY E. F. H.

Twenty years ago it would have been difficult to have made the young man of those days believe that agriculture was coming to the forefront of the world's attention. Even the farmer boy imagined if he was set free from the pitiful drudgery of farm work he would stand a better chance to make his fortune in the city, as there seemingly were two chances in the city to one in the country.

But now invention has robbed the farm of the "drudgery" and made it possible to do farm work with dispatch, economy and pleasure. The city has no use for the man who cannot supply the wants to the letter. Unless he has been educated for some special purpose he is not likely to be successful, but is turned away for some one else who has been educated for that branch of business. Everywhere he goes it is the same way, not wanted unless qualified to hold the position.

It would have been better for him to have attended an agricultural school and learned the composition of feed for growing stock, than to know how book keeping by single entry is done.

Throughout the country agriculture is now experiencing a wonderful uplift, being such a forward movement as no other calling ever received, and no other age has ever witnessed.

But the time will be, and at no great age, when only the educated farmer will have a chance in the sharp competition of the future. And he will live so much better and make so much more than the farmer of today that it will make most of the farming of the present time pale into insignificance.

What then of the man who leaves the country to find work in the city? Can he promise himself anything there if he has not chosen his profession? No, and you will not find a man going there unless he has a calling. If he does, mark you, he will not succeed anywhere. It is best to learn all you can, but learn to do something, or all your learning will be useless to you or anybody else.

Of what use is there in paying attention to the "get rich quick" schemes which are cunningly devised for alluring the country boy away from the farm and getting his labor for comparatively nothing because he is not acquainted with city ways? And why are the country people looked upon as an inferior class of people by some folks who live in the city, who, if they had as much brain as they have hair, would see things in an entirely different light?

The farmer is as good as anyone; he may not sport a Prince Albert and wear a pair of five dollar patent leather shoes but he dresses neatly and is not owing his tailor. Are not the people of the city entirely dependent upon the country people for their daily bread? Sure, but you hear them say, "Oh, I could never, never live in the country for the people are so common." That is the class which needs to see things in a different light, and the same who love to visit the country "in the good old summer time."

WASHINGTON LETTER

From Our Regular Correspondent

In the same connection it may be mentioned that, a bill has been introduced in the House reducing the mileage of members from twenty to six cents. The former figure, twenty cents, is a relic of the old stage-coach days when a man was a long time making the journey to Washington from anywhere and when he had to stop over night at taverns and the like. The mileage has remained at that ever since, and few congressmen ever spend their mileage at all but ride on a pass and pocket the difference.

The advocates of single statehood for Oklahoma and Indian Territory are coming to fore and their promises to be quite as hard a fight over this question as over the question of separate statehood for Arizona and New Mexico. There is a strong delegation from I. T. here now. They say that statehood and separate statehood was promised them in the Curtis Act, passed by Congress eight years ago and they are averse from being tied up with Oklahoma on the statehood issue. A hearing will soon be given the delegation by the committee of Mr. Hamilton is the chairman and the joint presence from Indian Territory and from Arizona may result in holding up the two statehood measures for another session of Congress.

Official orders do not stick unless they are intended to, and they are not intended to in the case of certain privileged persons. For instance the anti-pass order issued with a flourish of trumpets by the railroads some weeks ago will not apply to any congressman who wants to save his mileage. The day after the order was issued one of the correspondents in Washington declared that he did not believe the order genuine. He telegraphed in the strength of his suspicions to a high official in the Pennsylvania for transportation for himself and wife to St. Louis and return. The pass came back by return mail, and he displayed it to a number of his friends as an evidence that his suspicions were correct. As a matter of fact he had no earthly use for it and returned it a little later with a polite note saying he had found it impossible to make the trip.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6, 1906.—The Philippine tariff bill farthured by Chairman Payne, has been introduced in the House and bids fair to cause a couple of weeks of debate at least. The main opposition to the bill comes from the cane and beet-sugar interests and from the tobacco trust which says it is afraid the American market may be flooded by cheap tobacco as the sugar men are afraid it will be flooded with cheap sugar. Chairman Payne, and he has the backing of Governor Luke Wright and other expert testimony, asserts that there is no danger of sugar and tobacco flooding the American market. In the first place there is not enough land available for either crop to make their great increase a matter of concern to this country, and there is not labor enough available to raise either in great quantities. On the other hand it is claimed that the opening of the Philippines will make a fresh market for American leaf tobacco for cigar wrappers and will enlarge the Philippine market in China and Japan. Of course the tobacco trusts does not want to enlarge the American raw leaf market. It would mean that the American grower would have just that much wider territory in which to dispose of their crop. The American Tobacco Company, of America, and the Imperial Company, of England, have pooled the Oriental market to suit themselves, and naturally they do not want it interfered with. But it is very likely that the Philippine tariff bill will pass even if in somewhat amended form, and there will be a letting down of the tariff bars which form one of the chief obstacles in the material development of the island.

Congress can be very funny when it gets dignified, and one of the latest instances in this line was this week when Representative Sims, of Tenn., became excited over an editorial in a local paper and demanded an investigation by the committee on Postoffice and Post-roads into the alleged abuse of the franking privilege in Congress. The investigation was ordered and the committee will probably return a report that the specific charges are unfounded. At the same time every one knows that the franking privileges are abused enormously. Plenty of private and semi-private circulars requiring a reply have been sent out under a frank with a frank envelope enclosed for an answer. Members also do frank a number of things through the post-office that have no business in a mail car. Whether it is true, as alleged, that cows and horses and household goods and kitchen utensils are also franked may be open to question. But it would not be surprising if they were. The little government paster given free of the mails to departmental matter has covered a multitude of sins in its time. It may be news to some Representatives, but it was not many years ago that a distinguished member of the Geological Survey, caught in the field at the end of a session when his appropriation had run low, simply pasted government envelopes on his tents, poles, instrument cases and mess chests and sent them all back to Washington by mail. That was perhaps an isolated and exceptionally aggravated case, but there is a lot of cheap grafting under cover of the Congressional frank that the committee could uncover if it wanted to.

Jim Howard's appeal has been denied by the Supreme Court, and his last resort is an appeal to the President.

Obituary.

James B. Bradley, a ruling elder in Piney Fork church, passed to his reward December 18, 1905, aged 39 years, 10 months and 18 days. He professed faith in Christ at twenty-six years of age and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian church in August, 1900; was elected deacon March 1902; was elected and ordained ruling elder in Oct. 1904.
He was a devoted christian. He will be missed in the home, in his community as a citizen and in the church. Danger of a Cold and How to Avoid Them.

More fatalities have their origin in or result from a cold than from any other cause. This fact alone should make people more careful as there is no danger whatever from a cold when it is properly treated in the beginning. For many years Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been recognized as the most prompt and effectual medicine in use for this disease. It acts on nature's plan, loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. OUR FASHION LETTER.

Even the Rain Coats Are Decorated This Season.

A STOCK OF SOFT WHITE SUEDE

Amulets Are in Favor Among Fashionable Women—Contrasts Employed in Street Costumes—The New Belts Are Very Striking.

The latest stiffening for drop skirts is an interlining of princess haircloth or the curved Paquin ruffle. Drop skirts are laced to the outer skirt on the wearer, as it is a doubtful thing to arrange the fold of a ten yard skirt on a dummy, the lines falling in such different places on a form. The knack of making these attachments is a nice one. The best dressmakers fasten the outer skirt to the "drop" with a long thread of buttonhole silk, and the stitch is well anchored to make it secure.

SMART THREE-QUARTER COAT.

care without being in the least tight. A full inch of double twist must be allowed between the two skirts.

Italy coats are particularly smart this season, and the touch of the decorative is to be seen even in this useful garment. A delightful coat of this description is in snuff brown cloth. The cut is an extremely full sack shape. The sleeve is a full leg of mutton rucked into almost mousquetaire wrinkles. Above this is a combination cape and dolman sleeve starting from the shoulder and falling free. The neck is finished with a flat collar that may be turned up when required.

The latest stock and cravat direct from Paris is made of soft white suede. The very becoming and smart cut in the cut is intended for cloth or velvet. It is cut with a tight fitting bodice and a plaited basque. The roll collar and turn back cuffs are composed of black satin, over which a handsome passementerie trimming is laid. Of double width material, four and a half yards will be required.

ATTRACTIVE TRIFLES.

Amulets are much in favor among fashionable women, and the jewelers are supplying many quaint conceits containing lucky jewels and birth stones. It is a question whether the modern woman is really superstitious or cannot withstand the temptation of the shops.

In street costumes contrasts are greatly used. A Parisian suit that has been much admired is in heliotrope broadcloth, having a bolero trimmed with an insertion down the front and on the elbow, sleeves of palest blue, embroidered in lavender and a still paler shade of blue.

A striking French belt is of gray elastic marked with lavender and plum shades. It has a cut steel buckle and is very wide—seven inches. There are others of this pattern in black, covered thickly with jet beads and gray belts with cut steel.

A very new belt is of silk trimmed with a trellis work of gold or silver braid, with a buckle to match. Then there are belts of gathered satin trimmed with gold braid, buttons and slides.

The blouse in the cut is evolved from the new shot moire silk, displaying a changeable pale blue and silver effect. Silver buttons and simulated buttonholes trim the surplised fronts. The neck finish is a high tabbed collar of Irish crochet lace ornamented with tiny blue satin bows.

RUCHES AND VEILS.

Charming ruches of white tulle or malines are to be found in the shops designed especially for evening wear. They are about a quarter of a yard wide and are triple box plaited on a piece of wide white satin ribbon to extend comfortably around the throat. The ends are finished with long streamers of white grosgrain ribbon with a sat in edge. These ruches are expensive to purchase ready made, but the price is reduced a third if made at home.

Veils come to match all hats. Even the different shades of mauve are to be found, both dotted and in plain mesh. The newest black and white veils just over from Paris have tiny black dots very close together. These beautifiers defeat their purpose when worn by a woman with a thin face.

The smartest things in hosiery are silk and linen stockings in delightful tones of fruit red.

Embroidered ribbon belts lined with a color and worn with the prettiest buckle you possess are very smart; also high girdles of gold braid ribbon.

A lovely corsage trimming is made of white artificial flowers with a fringe of blossoms hanging from it.

The hat illustrated is of dahlia velvet. About the low crown is a ruche of malines in a pretty harmonizing shade of mauve. The front trimming is a panache of white feathers and an aigret. The back is backed up with a ruching of malines.

SMART FANCIES.

The new stiffened skirts have brought bustles in their train—not the old time cage effects, but a series of silken ruffles sewn in at the back of the skirt just below the waist line. The ruffles extend down the skirt eight or ten inches and are three fingers deep. Care must be taken that they do not encroach on the hip lines.

For afternoon wear chiffon cloth is a favorite material of the moment just diagonally mixed with tinted Bruges lace.

Tinted woolen lace is very popular for stoles and muffs of a ceremonious order, edged and elaborately trimmed with chinchilla or ermine and lined with soft white fur.

Smart wraps of cloth and silk velvet are adorned with enormous silk buttons worked in gold or silver, while decorative costumes show buttons of paste and enamel.

Buckles of dull gold, gun metal and silver studded with colored stones figure largely on small Parisian hats. One may buy corset covers of exquisitely fine long cloth stamped in an English embroidery design for 40 cents. The entire waist is blocked out ready to be cut and made up. These corset covers when completed in the shops cost from $3 to $5.

The girl's gown seen in the cut is of blue etamine. A bias band of plaid silk is inset into the skirt, which is formed of alternate box plaits and tucked panels. The sailor collar on the blouse waist is strapped with cloth. The tie and girdle are of plaid silk.

JUDIE CHOLLET.

BABY'S BOWELS

are delicate and no drastic purgatives should ever be given. Neither should a mother give her child any concoction containing opiates. If necessary to assist Nature to move the little one's bowels give it one-quarter teaspoonful of

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

Pleasant to the taste—contains nothing which can harm the most delicate organism. Physicians will testify to the truth of this statement. See page 21 of our book of "Proofs." Write for it today.

Mrs. Ailie Jackson, of Farmer City, Ill., writes: "My seven months old baby was troubled a great deal with his stomach and bowels. I had tried numerous remedies with no good results, until the baby lost much flesh, and was in poor health. A friend recommended Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I procured a 50c bottle at the drug store and gave the contents to the baby according to directions, after which there was a decided improvement in his condition. Have been giving him Syrup Pepsin for about a month with very satisfactory results. His stomach and bowels being in good healthy condition and his former weight regained."

The Good Old Way.

A severe cold or attack of la grippe is like a fire, the sooner you combat it the better your chances are to overpower it. But few mothers in this age are willing to do the necessary work required to give a good, old fashioned, reliable treatment such as would be administered by their grandmothers, backed by Boschee's German Syrup, which was always liberally used in connection with the home treatment of colds and is still in greater household favor than any known remedy. But even without the application of the old fashioned aids, German Syrup will cure a severe cold in quick time. It will cure colds in children or grown people. It relieves the congested organs, allays the irritation and effectively stops the cough. Any child will take it. It is invaluable in a household of children. Trial size bottle, 25c; regular size, 75c. For sale by Woods & Orme.

A good Kentucky mule is said to be worth from $175 to $200, and pairs have sold as high as $900.

A Grim Tragedy

Is daily enacted, in thousands of homes, as Death claims, in each one, another victim of Consumption or Pneumonia. But when coughs and colds are properly treated, the tragedy is averted. F. G. Huntley, of Oakland, Ind., writes: "My wife had the consumption and three doctors gave her up. Finally she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which cured her, and today she is well and strong."

It kills the germs of all diseases. One dose relieves. Guaranteed at 50c and $1.00 by HAYNES & TAYLOR, druggists. Trial bottle free.

Missing Boy.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 8.—Dr. L. S. Byers, of Seeleyville, Ind., came here in response to a letter signed "Edward Cox," telling him that a boy held his shanty boat by Gypsies answers the description of his son "Rich," who was kidnaped a year ago last May, when 5 years old. Dr. Byers saw a boy referred to in the letter, but it was not his missing son.

Distinctively Different; In Every Way the Best.

The Weekly Globe Democrat, of St. Louis, covers a field peculiarly and exclusively its own. It is issued twice a week. A big SEMI-WEEKLY paper. Eight to ten large pages every Tuesday and Friday. One Dollar a year.

Nothing particularly different, you say, about that—there are other "Twice-a-Week" papers.

Yes, but the similarity ends there. No other paper is like the Globe-Democratic in any other respect.

An entirely unique feature of the Globe-Democrat, a feature which is highly prized by its readers, is its systematic method of preserving and presenting the CONTINUITY OF NEWS.

The two papers each week, Tuesday and Friday, are carefully prepared with the view of giving the complete news of all the world for that week.

They are so combined in the make-up as to form continued and connected stories of the various important events, showing the developments from day to day and the final results.

Other weekly and twice-a-week papers, as a rule, print only a few telegrams of the day of issue.

The "Twice-a-Week" Globe-Democrat gives the telegrams of every day in the week more comprehensively than the average Daily, and of more value to the average reader.

Moreover, the "Twice-a-Week" Globe-Democrat is not simply an echo of the Daily edition.

It is a separate and distinct publication, especially prepared to supply the requirements of people who want all the news of all the earth—and something more.

It presents the World's daily history in concise but complete form. It is of equal interest in all parts of the United States. It is invaluable alike to men and women, young and old.

It thoroughly provides for every member of the family. In high-grade literature it particularly excels. Its market reports are correct and complete in every detail.

Its departments devoted to "The Home," "The Farm and Garden," "The Family Circle," "The Sunday School," "Science and Industry," are each and all THE BEST of their kind and either one is more than worth the subscription price of the paper.

In politics it is strictly REPUBLICAN, but it is above all a newspaper, and it tells the truth without fear or favor. It has no equal or rival as a great National news and home journal.

Remember the price, only One Dollar per year—104 papers—less than one cent a copy. Postage prepaid.

You will make no mistake if you send $1.00 TODAY for a year's subscription. Or you can get your own paper ONE YEAR WITHOUT COST by inducing two of your neighbors to subscribe and sending their names with $2.00.

FREE SAMPLE COPIES, containing order blanks and full particulars, will be cheerfully furnished upon receipt of postal card request. Address Globe Printing Company, Publishers.

Sticking Shivering Fits
Of Ague and Malaria, can be relieved and cured with Electric Bitters. This is a pure, tonic medicine; of especial benefit in malaria, for it exerts a true curative influence on the disease, driving it entirely out of the system. It is much to be preferred to quinine, having none of this drug's bad after-effects. E. S. Munday, of Henrietta, Tex., writes: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice, till he took Electric Bitters, which saved his life." At HAYNES & TAYLOR's drug store; price 50c, guaranteed.

Seventy-five new locomotives have been ordered by the Illinois Central rail road for immediate construction. The necessity for these arises out of the increasing traffic of the road and proposed additions to the passenger train schedules that have not yet been made public.

DROPS DEAD WHILE

SWEEPING PORCH

Mrs. Mary Gilliam Dies at The Home of Her Sister Tuesday Morning.

All Marion was shocked Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. Mary Rebecca Gilliam, at the home of her sister, Mrs. R. H. Woods, corner Bellville and College streets.

Mrs. Gilliam had not been complaining, but was in splendid health and was engaged in sweeping the porch when she was stricken.

She had only a few minutes before left the room where her nieces, Misses Fannie and Bessie Woods, and their father, R. H. Woods were seated. Suddenly, without any warning, they heard loud groans and on opening the door found her lying prostrate, still holding the broom in her hands.

Although help was given her and medical attention summoned as quickly as possible, 'twas all to no avail, as death had already ensued.

Mrs. Gilliam was one of the most lovable characters that ever resided in Marion, being of a kindly disposition and a true christian, having for years been a member of the Presbyterian church in this city.

Her life has been a sad one, having lost her husband and five children, she being the last surviving member of her family.

She was born Feb. 1, 1845, and had she lived until the first of next month would have been sixty-one.

She was the daughter of Alfred Armstrong, a former merchant of Marion, and in his day one of the first citizens of the place. Her mother was Miss Mary Eliza Wilson, the only sister of Mr. R. W. Wilson of this city.

She is related to many of Marion's first citizens, being a first cousin of Mesdames R. W. Wilson, H. K. Woods, J. W. Blue, S. M. Jenkins, and of John W. Wilson.

Mrs. Gilliam was married in 1863 to Dr. Albert Gilliam but he met an untimely death about twelve years later from an injury received by being thrown from his horse.

The funeral was conducted by the Rev. James F. Price at the Presbyterian church, Wednesday afternoon, and the interment took place immediately afterwards, at the new cemetery, where she was laid to rest by the side of her husband, who preceded her to the grave so many years before.

The pallbearers were chosen from among her friends—those who had known and loved her from their childhood—and were: C. S. Nunn, G. M. Crider, H. A. Haynes, J. F. Dodge, R. V. Stinson, of Mt. Vernon, Ind., W. E. Stinson, of Enfield, Ill.

The floral offerings were very beautiful.

IS IT NOT TO YOUR INTEREST TO Trade With Schwab?

Are you not satisfied to have a house that stays open the year around? You are fully aware that all others have quit every summer. You surely don't care to sell five months in the year and eat your surplus seven months in the year. For twenty years you had this experience. Stay with those that stay with you.
