OLLIE WAS "OILY".

Congressman James Neatly Corners A Republican Member.

Washington, Jan 15.—By a series of skillful questions Ollie M. James of Ky., late yesterday afternoon found a Republican, Henry Cullen Adams of Wisconsin, to lay at the door of the National Administration responsibility for the defeat of Myron T. Herrick for governor of Ohio, and the election of Patterson, the democratic candidate, as governor.

Mr. Adams said that Secretary Taft's Akron speech did the work. He is the first republican who has openly made the declaration and the statement created a sensation. He did not intend to go so far but fell a victim to James' prodding.

The colloquy occurred during a discussion of the Philippine Bill. Mr. Adams touched upon a cabinet officer going into disputed territory and turning down a republican candidate. Suspecting that Adams did not intend to become more explicit, and not wishing to lose an opportunity to force a republican into admitting embarrassing truths, Representative James asked:

"What republican officer made that speech?"

"The gentleman can read the papers and knows perfectly well," replied Mr. Adams.

"I am not criticising the President and wish to commend his independence, and I want also to commend the rising spirit of independence that came up in the democratic party New York City and in many Southern states."

Mr. James then asked: "Is it not the case that the cabinet officer to whom the gentleman has referred is William H. Taft, and that he is speaking about ring rule and about Cox in Cincinnati?"

"Yes," was Adams' laconic response.

"Do you say that caused the defeat of the republican ticket in Ohio?"

"I issued the persistent Kentuckian. It is so stated by the press of that state and by democratic gentlemen on the floor of this house," replied the Wisconsin man, attempting to dodge.

"That the republican party stood for ring rule?" asked James.

"No, sir," said Adams. "How did it defeat you then?" persevered James.

Driven into a corner Adams came out with what was on his mind. "I say it had that effect there," he declared. "That the Republican President permitted a Cabinet officer to go into a state where a hot campaign was raging and to be more explicit than in my former statement, he did denounce ring rule, denounced the rule of men who were supporting the republican candidate, and the effect of that unquestionably was to elect the democratic candidate."

That ended the controversy between the two men, and Ollie James was happy, for it was in the Record that the President contributed to the defeat of his own party in a State which gave him a plurality of 255,000 in 1904.

An Old Edition.

The thanks of the Press are due to Mrs. Mollie Travis for a copy of the "Marion Reporter" dated Thursday, April 11, 1878, and it is like a dream of the past to read its pages. Nall & Adams were the publishers and both are now gone from here and one of them has crossed the dark river from whence no traveler ever returns. In it we see that J. W. Blue, Sr. was a candidate for congress of the First District and T. J. Nunn, now of the Court of Appeals, was aspiring to be Judge of Crittenden county, and J. W. Bigham, now a presiding elder in Florida, was anxious to be county clerk of this county.

In another column we find where passengers were warned to be in Princeton on time to catch the train on the Paducah & Elizabethtown railroad, as no rail road reached Marion until 10 years later.

A mass convention was called Apr. 8th, 1878, county court day, to instruct delegates to the Appellate Convention to be held at Henderson and the delegates were instructed to cast their votes for Judge Caswell Bennett.

Dr. Carrington was then conducting a drug store here and J. N. Woods and T. J. Cameron dry goods stores.

Schwab Sells Out.

The C. F. Jean Produce Co. last week bought out the R. Schwab Produce Co. here, including all teams, wagons and stock on hand, also taking the house on Salem street occupied by Schwab.

DEATHS

Mrs. H. E. Powell of Halls, Tenn., died at the home of her parents in Salem Tuesday morning, Jan 16th, at 4:30 of tuberculosis combined with malignant malaria. Mrs. Powell's health had not been good for some time past, and a few weeks ago she came from her home in the south to visit her parents, hoping that a change would be beneficial. It did not prove so however, and she gradually grew worse until relieved of her suffering. Her husband came to be with her and every care and attention was bestowed upon her, but to no avail.

Mrs. Powell was the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Franks of Salem and was the sister of Mrs. Norman Faris. She was first married to Will Elder, a son of Wash Elder, that lived just west of the city on the Salem road. By this marriage one son was born, Rubell, who is now 10 years old, he being her only child.

About a year ago she was married to Howell E. Powell, of Halls, Tenn. Mrs. Powell was known to many of our people as Miss Birdie Franks and afterwards Mrs. Birdie Elder, and was a young woman of fascinating manner and was endowed by nature with many personal charms, which endeared her to many friends, who will be grieved and shocked to hear of her untimely death, she being less than thirty years old. The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, at the Baptist church. Rev. Conway, Carter and Henry officiating, and the interment at the new cemetery immediately afterward.

Dr. E. E. Newcom of Repton lost his little daughter Gladys last Tuesday. Her death took place at Dekoven, where she was attending school. Her mother, who was the daughter of Alex Woody, and wife, died several years ago. Little Gladys was eight years old and a remarkably bright and pretty child. The burial will take place today at 11 o'clock at Mt. Zion.

A Guaranteed Cure For Piles

Itching, Blind, Bleeding, Producing Piles. Druggists are authorized to refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

D. E. Woods Promoted.

D. E. Woods, of this city, whose position is now that of traveling auditor for the Illinois Central, has been appointed special traveling auditor with headquarters in Chicago. His appointment became effective on the 15th. Mr. Woods will continue to reside in Decatur as he owns a home here. His new position will bring a considerable increase in salary as well as added responsibilities. He will hereafter check up only the larger stations and attend to other special work as may be assigned to him. Mr. Woods came to Decatur about three years ago. Previous to that he had been located on the Louisville division. He built himself a handsome home with the expectation that he would be permanently located here. Naturally, he hates to give this up and he will continue to reside here unless necessity demands that he shall move to Chicago. He is popular with railroad men and his standing with the company is attested by his advancement.—The Decatur (Ill.) Review.

New Students.

The following is a list of new students who entered Marion High School Jan. 8th. Miss Bulah Conyers, Eight Grade; Misses Birdie Spees, Lora Johnson, Seventh Grade; Georgia Kuykendall, Mary Kuykendall, Colmar Foster, Third Grade; Roy Drury, Edna Clark, Homer Porter, Second Grade; Orville Sisco, Dewey Deboe, Kevil Drury, First Grade.

This places the enrollment at nearly 445. Prof. Kee is expecting quite a number of additional new pupils at the opening of the second term, Jan. 22. The attendance has been splendid during the term just closed and new desks have been ordered to meet the demands for seating capacity.

Four Leaf Clover Quartette.

Marion now has a full fledged quartette which has some talent more than the ordinary. It is composed of M. C. Sutherland, J. L. Shrode, G. M. Crider, Jas. Travis, with Miss Lilly Doss accompanist. They will sing one Sunday night in each month at each of the churches and it will be a rare treat which no one should miss. Next Sunday night they will be heard at the Presbyterian church and we hope everyone in town will hear them.

An Entertaining Lecture.

The lecture at the Cumberland church Friday night by M. J. Fanning, the noted Irish orator, was immensely enjoyed by those present. Mr. Fanning certainly proved himself to be a man of exceptional power. His pleasantness of address, his winning way, his superb eloquence held his audience enthralled for two hours.

His lecture did not consist of opprobrious epithets, bitter vituperation or scandalous villification, but of fair and candid reasoning, indisputable facts, coupled with the spirit of fairness and good will to all men that displayed the nobility of a great man. He sets men to thinking, he creates a healthy public sentiment on a great question. The large audience were all well pleased with the lecture.

The Fiscal Court.

The Fiscal Court composed of squires J. R. Postleweight, Hodges, Sam Marks, L. B. Phillips, met last week and voted an appropriation of not to exceed $1000 to repair and repaint the court house. The advocates of a new court house will of course regret to know this as it puts that much to be desired and much needed building only farther distant in the future. Every one however, should be glad to know the old building is to have a new dress and a few finishing touches to brighten it up while it does stand.

WANTED:—District Managers to post signs, advertise and distribute samples. Salary $18.00 weekly, $3.00 per day for expenses. State age and present employment. IDEAL SHEAR CO., 39 Randolph Street, Chicago.

The "As You Like It Club" were royally entertained at the New Marion by Mrs. Sam Gugenheim Friday afternoon, January 11. The special feature of the evening was to guess each guest present from their picture when a baby. First prize, which was a lovely glass talcum bottle with sterling silver top, was won by Mrs. J. W. Wilson. Second prize was cut and won by Mrs. S. M. Jenkins, being a handsome silver shoe hook.

Refreshments were served during the afternoon in three courses, consisting of croquettes, ham, bread and butter, sandwiches, pickles, olives, cream cake and coffee. The guests were as follows:

Mesdames Thos. Clifton, A. H. Cardin, R. D. Drescher, S. T. Dupuy, James Henry, R. F. Haynes, S. M. Jenkins, R. L. Moore, A. C. Moore, Chas. Moore, Geo. P. Roberts, Jas. Travis, J. W. Wilson, G. C. Gray, Euclid Marshall, J. H. Tonkin, Edgar James, Hugh Hurley and Miss Lizzie James.

HOW GOVERNMENTS RISE, FLOURISH AND FALL.

—By—
EULA THURMAN
A A A A

I wandered forth one morning into the fruit laden orchards and reaching up plucked a great, ripe apple from a bough. Surely it was a most beautiful fruit. Perfectly rounded, its glossy red was heightened by the sun's rays falling on it, and about the stem there was no sign of disease. But when my knife had cut its shining peel and its bruised and worm-eaten interior lay before me, I asked myself the question, Where is the substance?

How many people, if their inner lives were known are but a show! How many natures, like the apple, present to the world a fair exterior, but whose inner government is corrupt and on the verge of ruin! Nations like Rome, Greece, Babylon, and others rose, reached their highest power and fell, because they lacked unity, the virtue and patriotism that go to make up good government.

Grecian history is interesting but disappointing and sad. From the very first Hellas was divided into two parts: Athens and Sparta, the one Ionic, civil and democratic; the other Doric, military and aristocratic. The stolid and haughty Spartans always believed in a government of the few, but Athenian love of individual freedom led them to overthrow the monarchy and as early as 510 B. C. we find them banishing the tyrant Pisistratus. Then Athens entered upon her career as a republic, under which she reached the greatest power. At the head of a great confederacy her territory embraced Thracian and the Ionic cities of culture in Asia Minor and her intelligence extending to the Hellespont, she controlled the extensive trade of Pontus.

Sparta was regarded as the leader of the aristocratic cities of the Peloponnesus and Spartans had no equal in battle; but it was Athens as a republic that inspired Greece to withstand and defeat the Persians. Her sturdy soldiers, though fewer in number than the Persians, had all the superior intellect of a patriotic people under a pure government, and not corrupted by vice and excessive wealth. With such force she fought the barbarians and conquered them.

But her very success proved her ruin. Sparta, ever jealous, was never more so, since she had lost her right as a military leader. Pericles, looking ahead, saw that war must ensue and admonished his countrymen to prepare for it. The Peloponnesian contest left Athens destitute; the confidence of her great men destroyed, and her leadership as a republic broken forever. Spartan institutions were established in its stead.

Thus Greece was never a nation nor were her people ever united. With them the strength of a nation lay in a community of not more than ten thousand inhabitants. The only time they ever did approach a unit, was when they joined forces to fight the freedom-giving battles of Marathon and Salamis. When foreign dangers were removed they straightway fell to quarreling among themselves again and prepared the way for Phillip of Macedonia to obtain control of all Greece.

Looking to the north, we see a nation the story of whose existence is veiled in obscurity for centuries and then bursts suddenly forth in grandeur. After a reign of comparatively few years, during which her territory embraced all the wealth of the orient she sank again into oblivion under Phillip. Macedonia extended her power over Greece as a result of the battle of Chaeronea, and her legions marching under the standard of Alexander conquered the region from Africa to the Indus.

Little wonder the servile Asiatics believed the conqueror was descended from the gods. History makes him one of her heroes, because no other man accomplished greater things.

But with the death of Alexander Macedonia lost her existence as a world power. The wealth, idleness, vice and servile worship she had borrowed from the Persians rendered her once strong and broad minded people too weak to preserve the strong empire which Alexander had gained for them. It was divided first into four provinces. Later the number was decreased to two, and finally the whole was overshadowed by the growing power of Rome.

That vast Persian empire which Alexander himself had conquered, had once been great and was now falling to pieces. Persia captured Babylon and her people deteriorated with captured wealth. Too idle and pleasure loving to enter the battle field, they entrusted their country's safety to hired soldiers. Persians had no real patriotism; there was no Persian Cincinnatus, no Regulus. The word of the king was law, and had he from certain fancy killed a man's son, the father would have complimented him on his good marksmanship. These were the causes of Persia's downfall for no nation can live where freedom and individual thought are denied.

But even in the West, where freedom is the birthright of every man, nations rose, flourished and decayed. Carthage was once the mistress of the Mediterranean, and the city which rivaled Rome in its greatness. But she fell because of her wars, internal strife and vast but separated territory.

Rome grew from a little market town on the Tiber, extending her power over one native tribe and then another. Her government, at first a monarchy, united her people and prepared the way for a strong republic; under this rule her territory was extended over Greece, Gaul and Carthage, and the conquered people coming into the city, trouble began for the government. These people were denied the right of citizenship and the fact the slaves were often the superior of their masters rendered the situation still worse.

Among the Romans themselves party strife sprang up. From the founding of the city Patricians and Plebeians had divided Rome among themselves. The times were full of such scenes as the murder of Tiberius Gracchus, the civil wars of Sulla and Marius, and the contests of Caesar and Pompey.

Rome was at her greatest power just after the Punic wars, when Carthage had been destroyed. But the riches which later conquests brought into the city, the growing idleness and cruel enjoyment of gladiatorial combats and party strife marked the downfall of the republic. Patriotism and honor seemed dead, and vice and corruption had seized the city, until Julius Caesar took into his hands the reins of government.

He ended party strife by destroying the parties themselves, and established a government monarchical in reality but republican in form. Under the later emperors Rome sank still deeper into vice, and the life stories of some of her rulers of this time are the darkest that history contains.

Rome fell when her territories reached the farthest bounds. Her population was greater than ever before and the conquered people enjoyed more rights. The Pagan religion had given way to the softening influence of Christianity. But the weakness lay in the Romans themselves. Barbarians were pressing upon all the State's boundaries, and hostile tribes within its own limits revolted at the same time. The Picts broke down the wall of Antoninus and recaptured the Isle of Britain. The Vandals overran Spain and captured Carthage, thus setting up a government in Africa. The Goths were already ravaging Italy. The government of Rome was divided and a few years later the Western empire fell.

Are we to believe these nations merely lived and passed away without a definite purpose? Even the apple, though deceiving in its exterior view, carried out a definite plan in its existence. Thus Greece gave to the world a language; Rome gave to it law and order; while Carthage, with her extensive commerce, served to carry these to all peoples. But there was a greater purpose than this. The conquests of Alexander wrested the vast Persian empire from eastern monarchs and brought it in contact with Greece. Greece, conquered by Rome, prepared the way for Christianity, by uniting the world under a single rule and a universal language.

Obituary.

Mrs. Mary Rebecca Gilliam was born in Fredonia, Ky., Feb. 1, 1845. Her parents were Alfred and Mary Eliza Armstrong. Her mother was the sister of R. W. Wilson, of this place. In her early life her parents removed to Marion. From the time her parents made their removal until her death, she resided here. She had three sisters—Melinda Jane Miles, Mrs. S. F. Woods, the only surviving child of Alfred Armstrong and James Ella, (commonly called Dedie) Planary.

She was married to Dr. Albert Gilliam. To them five children were given, three of whom died when young, the other two, John and Ada, grew to maturity.

She professed religion and joined the Presbyterian church Sept. 27th, 1867. Her husband, Dr. Gilliam, died Oct. 24, 1877. Since then, for these 28 years, she has lived a widow. John and Ada survived their father's death a few years and then passed away, leaving Mrs. Gilliam the only vestige of the family.

What shall we say in regard to her life and character? To know her was to love her and the better you knew the better you loved her. With eyes beaming with the soft radiance of kindness and a sunny countenance, betokening the great soul within her, it was delightful to bask in the presence of her purity and enjoy her sweet converse of humility and love. She had in her very being a nobleness of nature, a spirit of fairness and justice to all that characterizes God's true nobility. The innermost circle of relatives and friends who have lived and associated with her unstintingly testify of her sweetness of disposition of her forbearance and forgiveness of the faults and follies of others. How free she was from any word of censure or unkindness to others.

She was a woman of remarkable intelligence and broad culture; yet so modest was she and reserved in her nature that those who did not know her well would not likely thus judge.

She was a fine musician. In her palmy days, but few could equal her on the piano. It seemed that the music emanated spontaneously from the instrument under the deft touch of her skilled natural talent.

She was a pleasant visitor. Whenever she went she made the social circle happy. They were always glad of her arrival and loath to give her up when the time came for her departure. She had so many insistent invitations to spend weeks with these various friends that she could not fill the tide of these invitations. In the providence of God she came home to die; to fold her mantle and sink to sleep—came home where she was best known and best loved. She seemed so glad to see all of her friends.

She was a noble Christian lady. In the glory and beauty of her young womanhood she gave her heart and life to Jesus and to his church; she loved the church, while affliction often prevented her attendance. She loved her Bible and made it her daily companion. Its blessed promises buoyed her up amid the successive sorrows and scenes of bereavement through which she passed. Such a life, so pure, so sweet, so good, passes out from mundane shores, but anchors in the haven of rest. No long and lingering illness. But one shaft from death's arrow and she went home to Jesus. She sweetly fell asleep; while loving hands could not restore the life, bright angels caught the quivering spirit and conveyed it through the fields of ether, and she awoke in the Paradise of God!

Cassie Goes to the Pen.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 10. Mrs. Cassie Chadwick was taken to the State penitentiary this morning to serve out a ten year sentence. No friends were at the station to bid her farewell.

"I am going to be brave and keep up to the end she said, as she got in the car, "and I am going to be a model prisoner."

Bent Her Double.

"I knew no one, for four weeks, when I was sick with typhoid and kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Annie Hunter, of Pittsburg, Pa., "and when I got better, although I had one of the best doctors I could get, I was bent double, and had to rest my hands on my knees when I walked. From this terrible affliction I was rescued by Electric Bitters, which restored my health and strength, and now I can walk as straight as ever. They are simply wonderful." Guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney disorders; at Woods & Orme's drug store; price 50c.

TOWN IMPROVEMENT HINTS

The best method in which a town can pave its way to success is to pave its streets and improve the highways leading therefrom.

The women of Wenatchee, Wash., have formed a local floral association and introduced plant and flower culture into many homes. The success has been so great that a midwinter fair is planned to properly exhibit flowers produced.

The parks board of Hamilton, Canada, is co-operating with the citizens of the town in the planting of shade trees on all the leading streets.

It is the poorest sort of economy to have bad sidewalks. There are many cases on record where the amount paid as the result of accidents amounted to more than enough to put the walks in good shape. Any town can well afford to bond itself for sidewalk repairs.

The Men's league of the Congregational church of Elgin, Ill., has made town improvement one of its chief objects for consideration and has taken steps toward the formation of the Elgin Public Improvement society.

There is common sense in spending your money in the community where you live.

Good Citizenship.

Good citizenship is true patriotism and true patriotism is not a Fourth of July affair, not an affair of powder and steel only. There is more patriotism in the carrying out of the Ten Commandments, than in all of the powder ever burnt. Our soldiers are good citizens and save our country in war; but the men who lose the moral battles at home, who let passion conquer the Ten Commandments, undo the victories of the soldiers and betray their country to worse evils. Roman armies extended Rome's empire; Rome's morals destroyed it. The man who is a traitor to his country is, in the same sense, a traitor to his God. He will not wish to believe it, but it is true. I may put a bulletproof shield above my breast, and so let no enemy but without overcome me, but if my heart is weak the steel that encases the shield will not prevent me from being of heart disease. The nation that without a conscience, the nation that does not observe the Ten Commandments will perish from internal weakness despite a large army and navy. To become a good citizen amounts to this: have a conscience and keep God's laws.

Notice how the truth is exemplified in some cases. "Thou shalt not steal" was said of the taxes as well as of a private purse. The good citizen in office observe that commandment. "Thou shalt not bear false witness" applies at the polls, as well as in the courts; and a good citizen never lies, much less calls God to witness to a lie. The conscientious vote and the conscientious observance of the law, the honest week and the cheerful, religious Sunday, everything that makes good citizenship, goes back to the Ten Commandments. Be true to God and you will be true to your country.

On the other hand good citizenship does not mean a craven submission to unjust laws. Look at Russia. There seems to be a lack of good citizenship in that country at this time. We should like to see the forces for good there organized and active.

Pray, therefore, for good citizenship everywhere. Pray especially for Russia, that the people may do their full duty in the crisis now upon preaching.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS' TRAINING CLASS

LESSON XV.

There will be two Sunday-school lessons in this week's readings. April 15, "Jesus' power over disease and death," G. T. Jan. 11-25. April 22, "Jesus the sinner's friend," G. T. Lk. 7:50.

DAILY MANNA.

Sunday, Jan. 21, Jesus comes down from the Mount and enters Capernaum, Mt. 8:1; Lk. 7:1.
Monday, Jan. 22, The Centurion's servant healed, Mt. 8:5-13; Lk. 7:2
Tuesday, Jan. 23, The widow's son at Nain raised, Lk. 2:11-17.
Wednesday, Jan. 24, Report of John's disciples, Lk. 7:18.
Thursday, Jan. 25, John the Baptist's last message, Lk. 7:19-20.
Friday, Jan. 26, Christ's last testimony to John, Mt. 11:7-19; Lk. 7:24.
Saturday, Jan. 27, Woman anointing Christ, Lk. 7:36-50.

HELPS TO STUDY.

After finishing the sermon on the Mount, Jesus went back to Capernaum. A centurion was an officer over a company usually of 100 soldiers; sometimes less. He was a Gentile in the service of Herod Antipas, and was evidently a man of wealth. He asked the elders of the synagogue to make the request, and when Jesus drew near to his house he sent friends to request him only to speak the word and his servant should be healed. "Jesus marveled," he was as capable of being surprised as any man. What great faith and humility are found united in this Roman centurion.

Nain was a small village about seven miles south of Nazareth and twenty-five miles from Capernaum. The tenderness of Jesus and his compassionate sympathy in human distress appear in his words to the mother. The Jews did not bury in closed coffins, but wrapped them in grave-clothes and laid them in a tomb. Burial was always soon after death.

John the Baptist was granted some liberties for he was in communication with his disciples. He had emphasized the judgment side of Christ and now is perplexed when he sees him performing only acts of mercy. Jesus does not directly answer, but the Messianic passages which he used (Isa. 35:5; 61:1) would be understood by John as an affirmative answer. The figures Jesus uses (Lk. 7:24, 25) expresses weakness and love of ease, which John never exhibited. John was a prophet, but more than a prophet because he was the messenger of Christ. It was easy for the Jews to believe the prophecies that a Christ would come, for they believed that he would be the sort of person they wanted him to be. They found their own sort of Christ in the prophecies. Even John and the apostles before the resurrection did not have a sufficiently clear idea of the Coming One. The ideas of many others were much more befogged in regard to the nature of Messiah. For such persons to accept Jesus as the Christ meant that they had to conquer prejudice and, so to speak, conquer their way into the kingdom. This is what is meant by "the violent take it by force." It took a violent effort, like soldiers storming the fort, to break away from their old ideas and prejudices, and to accept a Messiah of an entirely different cast from what they had anticipated. Perhaps the hardest day for faith in Jesus as the Christ was between his baptism and resurrection, and this fact Jesus recognizes.

Mt. 9:15 is a call to discover more than a mere surface meaning in the words just uttered. The woman's tears bathing Jesus' feet was doubtless unintentional and led her to the impulse to dry his feet with her hair. The other acts of this repentant woman are marks of her profound gratitude for release from sin.

Jesus shows, both that he knew what was required by conventional politeness, and that he noticed that Simon had not treated him as a social equal. Love for Jesus is in proportion to consciousness of sin and forgiveness, therefore the greatness of her love.

TOPICS FOR STUDY.

- 1 Roman military officials. 2 Synagogues. 3 Funeral customs.
- 4 Machabrus castle. 5 John the Baptist's privileges while in prison.
- 6 Cause of his doubts. 7 Oriental courtesies on entering a home.
- 8 Internal improvements in Rome. 9 O. T. History, 4th period.
- 10 Reviews. 11 Palestine—its rivers.
- 12 The people of Palestine. 13 Training Jewish children.
- 14 The different attitudes of Jesus and the rabbis toward the masses.
- 15 Teachings given by Jesus while dining.

SEARCH QUESTIONS.

- 1 Give the features which are different as given by Matthew and Luke in the healing of the centurion's servant. 2 Do they contradict each other at any point? 3 What were the expressions of the people in regard to the raising of the widow's son? 4 Is there any evidence that anyone exercised faith beforehand in the power of Jesus to raise the young man? 5 In what sense is one of the least in the kingdom of heaven greater than John the Baptist? 6 What sort of a man was Simon? 7 What things would it have been polite for him to do for Jesus? 8 Describe what the woman did. 9 Give the illustration Jesus used, and why he used it.

GENERAL QUESTIONS.

- 1 Where was the Sermon on the Mount preached? 2 Where did Jesus then go? 3 What is a centurion? 4 In whose service was he? 5 What was his religious condition? 6 How did he show his feeling of unworthiness? 7 What was remarkable about his faith? 8 State his argument clearly. 9 What two characteristics seem combined in him? 10 What characteristics of Christ was brought out in his address to the woman whose son was dead? 11 Describe the raising of her son. 12 How did the Jews bury? 13 Why had John the Baptist been arrested? 14 Where was he imprisoned? 15 Was his uncertainty natural? 16 What sort of Christ had he foretold? 17 What line had Jesus so far pursued different from this? 18 What is there in the method of Jesus' reply that is worth following to-day? 19 How does Jesus describe John? 20 What do the figures he uses express? 21 Why did Jesus think men had to struggle to become his followers? 22 Are there as many difficulties to-day in accepting him? 23 Did this woman intentionally shed tears over Jesus' feet? 24 Is it necessary to be a great sinner in order to love God much? 25 Is it not better to grow naturally into a love of God? 26 Can a man sometimes be so virtuous himself as to be harsh in his judgment of others? 27 How can such a condition of one's heart be avoided?

Dangers of a Cold and How to Avoid Them.

More fatalities have their origin in or result from a cold than from any other cause. This fact alone should make people more careful as there is no danger whatever from a cold when it is properly treated in the beginning. For many years Chamberlain's Remedy has been recognized as the most prompt and effectual medicine in use for this disease. It acts on nature's plan, loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by Woods & Orme, the leading drug store in Western Kentucky.

Head Ache Sometimes?

If so, it will interest you to know that it can be stopped with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills; and without any bad after-effects, and this without danger of forming a drug habit or having your stomach disarranged. They positively contain no opium, morphine, cocaine, chloral, ether or chloroform in any form. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain, and leave only a sense of relief. The reason for this is explained by the fact that headache comes from tired, irritable, turbulent, over-taxed brain nerves. Anti-Pain Pills soothe and strengthen these nerves, thus removing the cause. They are harmless when taken as directed.

"We use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for the cure of headache, and we think that there is nothing that will equal them. They will cure the severest spell of nervous or sick headache in a very few minutes. I am of a nervous temperament, and occasionally have spells when my nerves seem to be completely exhausted, and I tremble so I can scarcely contain myself. At these times I always take the Anti-Pain Pills, and they quiet me right away. It is remarkable what a soothing effect they have upon the nerves."

MRS. F. E. KARL, Detroit, Mich.
Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit. If it fails, he will return your money. 25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

A. C. Moore has purchased the residence of J. W. Wilson on east Depot street and has rented it for the coming year to Ed Metz and Frank Dodge. Mr. Wilson and family will board up-town so as to be nearer his work at the Laundry.

Misses May Travis and Mary Debee should be highly complimented on being the only students of Marion Graded High School who obtained an average which released them from taking the final examination. They are both favorites in the city and in the school and everyone is glad to know of their success.

Has it occurred to you why so many wheat flaked foods have come and gone? Lack of quality of course. The richness that is distinctively noticeable in Cream Crispy gives it a taste quality unequalled. This accounts for growing business. Start now and get full value for your dime. Ask your grocer and accept no substitutes.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Nunn are being congratulated by all their friends, and they are many, on the arrival at their home of a beautiful little daughter who put in appearance there Monday morning at 4 o'clock. Mother and child are getting along nicely. In honor of the event John will sell cradles and high chairs at cost for the rest of the month.

From the notice in the amusement column of the New Orleans Item, J. F. Sutherland, the actor formerly of this city, must be climbing the theatrical ladder of fame. We hope that he will continue to improve and achieve fame as he has in the past two seasons, which were his first. We predict that in a few years he will be among the famous of character actors on the American stage.

One tract of land 2 1/2 miles east of Salem, Ky., lime stone soil, living stream of water on same, about 20 acres in timber, one barn and crib, stables, house, could be made comfortable with a little work on same. This land is located in a good community with a good school-house and church within 1/2 of a mile of it, 100 acres in tract. Wilson Laundry is doing a fine business. The patronage the second week taxed the capacity of the hands who worked until midnight Saturday. In the future as the employees become more expert the output can be doubled without an increase of help or expense. Manager Wilson hopes to have all his machinery installed and everything working fine and running as smooth as a ribbon before the end of the month. This is a home enterprise and should receive the patronage and support of the people.

A LION'S SPRING

(Copyright, 1905, by R. B. McChesney.)

We were washing for gold among the streams of the Wind River mountains and it was midsummer. The Indians were hostile and had given us several close calls until we had penetrated the fastnesses and got beyond their ranging ground.

We had on this morning moved our camp about three miles down the creek and I was not feeling at all well. While my partner Joe went back after a second load I looked for a spot in which to rest for an hour. Ten rods to the west of the creek there was a rocky bluff and ten feet up I saw the mouth of a cave. It was a distressingly hot day, although deep among the mountains, and I sought the cave for its cool shelter. It was a place not over eight feet long by three deep, a crevice among the jagged blocks of limestone, and it was just the spot in which to rest. I had been working in low cold water, with the hot sun beating down on my head, and I was feverish and hot by turns. I was, in fact, a little light headed and realized that I was. I sat leaning against the back of the cave and almost went to sleep. I was drowsing when I heard a slight noise above me and was wide awake at once. From the lay of the ground I knew that only a wild animal of some sort could have gained the rocks above.

For five minutes I sat without movement, able only to see directly in front of me. Then a shadow appeared on the earth below me. The sun was at my back, and at the back of whatever thing was up there, and its shadow crept into view inch by inch. In time I made out the ears and head of a mountain lion. There was no mistaking it for the head of any other animal. From a lair higher up among the rocks the animal had got my scent on the morning breeze and had come down to stalk me. Down on the other side of the brawling creek was my rifle, and I had even left my hunting knife among the camp equipage. If the lion was minded to leap down on the shelf at the front of the cave, I should be helpless.

I had studied the beast from a hunter's point of view and therefore had no trouble in reading what happened during the next half hour. In the first place, if he had got my scent he had also got that of some one else. It was not the scent of another beast, but of a man. I could tell that by the nervous movements of the beast I could not see. He did not growl, as he would if watching bear or wolf or one of his own species, but now and then he whined and seemed a bit afraid.

When Joe returned he would not pass the cave, but halt 200 feet away. He had his rifle and revolver with him. Missing me, he would call out. The lion would not attempt to attack an armed man by daylight and at that distance. It seemed to me that the beast must be watching some one nearer by. I had not given the lay of the ground much attention, but was under the impression that a shallow ravine led from the cave in a northerly direction, parallel with the stream. This would furnish cover for any one creeping up to view the site of our new camp and lie in ambush for us. I finally settled it in my mind that some Indian hunter or some young brave anxious to make a record had in some way struck our trail and was planning to get our scalps. He was creeping up the ravine, and the lion was watching him.

I could trace the progress of the man by the actions of the animal above. Sometimes the shadow inclined the neck and shoulders of the lion, and sometimes it retreated altogether. Sometimes there was deepest silence for a moment and then it was broken by a whistle or the clicking of claws. What I began to fear as the minutes glided away was that Joe would return and be shot by the lurking savage before the lion could interfere. That he meant to spring when his prey came near enough I had no doubt. It was just the sort of situation to appeal to a lion—the cat and the mouse.

By watching the shadow and listening to the movements of the beast I was enabled to gauge the movements of the enemy in the ravine. How near at hand he was when the lion first caught sight of him I could only guess afterward as I looked over the ground. But I made it about 200 feet. He had the cover of the boulders and bushes for all that distance, but he moved with the greatest caution. The nearer he approached camp the greater his caution.

At fifty feet away he halted for full ten minutes. During this interval he must have been surveying our camp outfit and wondering why no one was in sight. With the suspicion of his race he probably scented some ambush on our part. I knew when he came moving along again—when he was within thirty feet—twenty—ten. I had now lost all fear that I was to become a victim and was deeply interested in watching for the climax. The lion was fifteen feet above the man and would have to spring outward about ten feet. This would be an easy effort for him.

As the Indian came nearer the lion ceased to whine or click his claws, but I could almost feel the quiver of his muscles as he made ready. I was watching and listening with all my might, and I surely thought I should be able to detect his last movement before taking the leap, but all I saw was a black ball pass before my vision, and then the stillness was rent by a wild scream of surprise and terror. There was a snarl and a growl, sounds of a struggle, and then all was silent.

"SAVED MY LIFE"

—That's what a prominent druggist said of Scott's Emulsion a short time ago. As a rule we don't use or refer to testimonials in addressing the public, but the above remark and similar expressions are made so often in connection with Scott's Emulsion that they are worthy of occasional note. From infancy to old age Scott's Emulsion offers a reliable means of remedying improper and weak development, restoring lost flesh and vitality, and repairing waste. The action of Scott's Emulsion is no more of a secret than the composition of the Emulsion itself. What it does it does through nourishment—the kind of nourishment that cannot be obtained in ordinary food. No system is too weak or delicate to retain Scott's Emulsion and gather good from it.

We will send you a sample free.

A COSTLY LESSON.

Lack of Fire Engines Causes Heavy Loss in Ohio Town.

An Ohio town had a lesson recently which it will not forget in a hurry. During a fire that started in the business section it developed that there was no organized fire department in the town and no fire engines. The only apparatus was a quantity of worn-out and useless fire hose. The inhabitants were unable to quell the conflagration and it was finally extinguished by a heavy rain after burning several hours and destroying much property.

This is a lesson which every community should heed. The best fire apparatus is expensive, but it will prove cheap in the long run. Fire organizations are likely to deteriorate through lack of interest in their work by the citizens. Salaried fire departments are luxuries which only the larger cities can afford to indulge in, so most of the work of guarding property and life from the ravages of fire devolves on volunteer fire organizations, and as a rule they have performed that duty well.

To these organizations every citizen should give hearty support and co-operation. Modern and ample apparatus should be furnished, suitable quarters provided and moral and financial aid extended whenever needed.

Many towns take great pride in their fire companies, and the best young men in the community feel it an honor to be a member of a crack fire organization. Where these conditions prevail all is well. But there are other towns, alas, where antiquated engines and old fashioned and obsolete equipment are lying in some outhouse, neglected and forgotten, and when the time comes when it shall be needed, and badly needed at that, it will be found utterly unfit for its intended purpose. Then will come regrets, but they won't restore the property destroyed.

I had studied the beast from a hunter's point of view and therefore had no trouble in reading what happened during the next half hour. In the first place, if he had got my scent he had also got that of some one else. It was not the scent of another beast, but of a man. I could tell that by the nervous movements of the beast I could not see. He did not growl, as he would if watching bear or wolf or one of his own species, but now and then he whined and seemed a bit afraid.

When Joe returned he would not pass the cave, but halt 200 feet away. He had his rifle and revolver with him. Missing me, he would call out. The lion would not attempt to attack an armed man by daylight and at that distance. It seemed to me that the beast must be watching some one nearer by. I had not given the lay of the ground much attention, but was under the impression that a shallow ravine led from the cave in a northerly direction, parallel with the stream. This would furnish cover for any one creeping up to view the site of our new camp and lie in ambush for us. I finally settled it in my mind that some Indian hunter or some young brave anxious to make a record had in some way struck our trail and was planning to get our scalps. He was creeping up the ravine, and the lion was watching him.

I could trace the progress of the man by the actions of the animal above. Sometimes the shadow included the neck and shoulders of the lion, and sometimes it retreated altogether. Sometimes there was deepest silence for a moment and then it was broken by a whine or the clicking of claws. What I began to fear as the minutes glided away was that Joe would return and be shot by the lurking savage before the lion could interfere. That he meant to spring when his prey came near enough I had no doubt. It was just the sort of situation to appeal to a lion—the cat and the mouse.

By watching the shadow and listening to the movements of the beast I was enabled to gauge the movements of the enemy in the ravine. How near at hand he was when the lion first caught sight of him I could only guess afterward as I looked over the ground, but I made it about 200 feet. He had the cover of the bowlders and bushes for all that distance, but he moved with the greatest caution. The nearer he approached camp the greater his caution.

At fifty feet away he halted for full ten minutes. During this interval he must have been surveying our camp outfit and wondering why no one was in sight. With the suspicion of his race he probably scented some ambush on our part. I knew when he came moving along again—when he was within thirty feet—twenty—ten, I had now lost all fear that I was to become a victim and was deeply interested in watching for the climax. The lion was fifteen feet above the man and would have to spring outward about ten feet. This would be an easy effort for him.

As the Indian came nearer the lion ceased to whine or click his claws, but I could almost feel the quiver of his muscles as he made ready. I was watching and listening with all my might, and I surely thought I should be able to detect his last movement before taking the leap, but all I saw was a black ball pass before my vision, and then the stillness was rent by a wild scream of surprise and terror. There was a snarl and a growl, sounds of a struggle, and then all was silent.

"SAVED MY LIFE"

—That's what a prominent druggist said of Scott's Emulsion a short time ago. As a rule we don't use or refer to testimonials in addressing the public, but the above remark and similar expressions are made so often in connection with Scott's Emulsion that they are worthy of occasional note. From infancy to old age Scott's Emulsion offers a reliable means of remedying improper and weak development, restoring lost flesh and vitality, and repairing waste. The action of Scott's Emulsion is no more of a secret than the composition of the Emulsion itself. What it does it does through nourishment—the kind of nourishment that cannot be obtained in ordinary food. No system is too weak or delicate to retain Scott's Emulsion and gather good from it.

We will send you a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

A COSTLY LESSON.

Lack of Fire Engines Causes Heavy Loss in Ohio Towns.

An Ohio town had a lesson recently which it will not forget in a hurry. During a fire that started in the business section it developed that there was no organized fire department in the town and no fire engines. The only apparatus was a quantity of worn-out and useless fire hose. The inhabitants were unable to quell the conflagration and it was finally extinguished by a heavy rain after burning several hours and destroying much property.

This is a lesson which every community should heed. The best fire apparatus is expensive, but it will prove cheap in the long run. Fire organizations are likely to deteriorate through lack of interest in their work by the citizens. Salaried fire departments are luxuries which only the larger cities can afford to indulge in, so most of the work of guarding property and life from the ravages of fire devolves on volunteer fire organizations, and as a rule they have performed that duty well.

To these organizations every citizen should give hearty support and co-operation. Modern and simple apparatus should be furnished, suitable quarters provided and moral and financial aid extended whenever needed.

Many towns take great pride in their fire companies, and the best young men in the community feel it an honor to be a member of a crack fire organization. Where these conditions prevail all is well. But there are other towns, alas, where antiquated engines and old fashioned and obsolete equipment are lying in some outhouse, neglected and forgotten, and when the time comes when it shall be needed, and badly needed at that, it will be found utterly unfit for its intended purpose. Then will come regrets, but they won't restore the property destroyed.

At Lawrenceburg, Ky., last week, the jury sentenced Wm. H. York to life imprisonment for the murder of his brother, James R. York. Both were very old men. The murder was peculiarly wicked and atrocious, James York being shot dead as he lay asleep in his bed. After his sentence York still persisted that he was innocent.

SWINE HUSBANDRY

Buttermilk, provided no water is added, is practically of the same value as feeding pigs as separator milk. Writes a correspondent of American Agriculturist. But it must be borne in mind that buttermilk from factories almost always has mixed with it a considerable amount of added water, sometimes as much as 50 per cent, and consequently by itself is not a suitable food for pigs. Many instances can be given of great mortality among pigs fed solely on buttermilk, practically in starvation, because they were not able to consume enough buttermilk and water to derive sufficient nutriment to supply the demand of nature. But when the deficiency in solids is made up by adding meal, or even grass, roots or other fodder, pigs are found to thrive on the buttermilk.

Weaning Pigs.

Since no use can be made of sows milk it seems unwise to be in a hurry about weaning pigs when the mother's milk supply is still good. The suckling pig is making its lowest cost growth.

Care of Sows.

If pigs begin to show an out of condition appearance don't think of medicine the first thing. See if some mistake in feeding or care cannot be discovered, and if it is correct it.—Farm, Stock and Home.

The Brood Sows.

Give brood sows the freedom of the pasture fields when with young pigs, and as soon as the pigs are old enough to eat feed a little shelled corn and dry middlings with a mash of wheat middlings and milk. Sows with pigs should always have access to a good blue grass pasture and should not be fed too much corn. The largest part of the ration should be made up of oats and bran with a little clover. Have plenty of charcoal and ashes constantly available. An occasional feed of salt will be found profitable.—American Cultivator.

Soaking Corn For Hogs.

Ordinarily we believe that it does not pay to soak corn for pigs. Unless it is very hard they will grind it themselves, and soak it with the saliva which aids digestion. Professor Henry says that soaking corn is "about as useful as grinding it," which means that it is a question whether the gains outweigh the cost.—National Stockman.

The Grip.

Before we can sympathize with others, we must have suffered ourselves. No one can realize the suffering attendant upon an attack of the grip, unless he has the actual experience. There is probably no disease that causes so much physical and mental agony, or which so successfully defies medical aid. All danger of the grip, however, may be avoided by the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Among the thousands who have used this remedy, not one case has ever been reported that has resulted in pneumonia or that has not recovered. For more particulars, write to J. C. Woods & Orme, the leading druggists of New York.

OUR NEW YORK WEEKLY LETTER

Just Arrived—An Englishman, With One Hundred and Fifty Suits, Sets the Fashions in Ties.

From a woman's standpoint there does not seem to be much whimsical extravagance in men's fashions, but when one reads of the recent arrival of a certain Englishman with 150 suits—well, what of extravagance then? And one of his fads—it is yet to be proved whether it will become a fashion—was what might be called a stock tie of black silk, allowing just a little bit of his collar to be seen. It brings to mind the old fashioned stock that swathed the aristocratic necks of our great-grandfathers, only with them there were no stiff high collars, but only the softest and finest of mesh.

The pastel shades still continue to be very popular in four-in-hands, and at all times of the day there are seen the softest pinks, hunters' green, heliotrope and pale lavender—indeed, so varied are the colors that any one is fashionable. Even the staidest old gentleman who seldom departs from his beloved black is seen day after day with a smart tie of hunters' green, which he half apologizes for wearing.

French four-in-hands are to be seen everywhere, either in two and a quarter or two and a half inch sizes. For afternoon or with semi dress, English squares and puff shapes in black, white and colored silks are worn by the best dressers.

But when it comes to indulging his really natural love of color, which on the street and in full or semi evening dress is given up to women, just make a tour some afternoon among the fashionable shops. There you will see the most elaborate bathrobes and lounging robes, all done up in stunning colors.

One handsome lounging robe, which looked as if it might be a garment of state—it was so heavy and rich—was made of beautiful Zennah silk, which, with other expensive qualities, is soft and thick. It was black and lined with the palest lavender taffeta, having a wide turn down collar and fastened at the neck and waist with lavender cords.

Several others almost as rich looking were of heavy brocade cut velvet in pale gray and deep crimson, looking warm and comfortable enough to make a tired business man long for his pipe, his easy chair and a magazine by the fire.

Another, and with luxury written in every fold of its ample girth, was a robe of fine black broadcloth lined with rich plaid, looking ever so warm and comfortable.

But the most serviceable was a bathrobe of mercerized white cheviot, with broad variegated stripes running to the deep hem. It was lined with terry cloth and had deep cuffs and a turn down collar of the same. This, with the heavy white cord at the waist, was ever so useful and could easily be washed.

During these last few weeks of such glorious weather that New York is almost surprised out of itself there has not been much use for fur overcoats and only a few are seen in the automobiles, and automobiling has become such a universal fashion that its devotees have fads and fancies which are very changeable.

Alaska dogskin and Russian calf coats, all heavily lined, are very popular for motoring. One of the oddest, yet most beautiful, things this week was seen one very rainy day. It was a gentleman's imported umbrella. The handle was of pure ivory wrought in a design which none but the patient little Jap would attempt. As with most oriental carvings, the figures were hideous, but done with such exquisite workmanship that it made the whole an almost invaluable gift.

Farmer Bunker and the Widow

(Original.)

"H'm," replied the wary son, "wimmen's what y' say—jist like a mowin' machine. They're purty enough 'till y' git 'em harnesssed up; then they cut down everything in their way."

Farmer Bunker since the death of Zeke's mother, a year before, had been casting longing eyes at the widow Sniffen, Mandy's mother. Knowing that his son had an objection to having any one put in his own mother's place, he felt if he could get Zeke to make a match with the daughter he might overcome the boy's scruples. But Zeke saw the trap and did not relish the advantage his falling into it would give his father. The old man, having failed with his bait, concluded to do a little courting and then propose. Zeke watched the maneuvers with anxiety.

One morning after one of the farmer's visits to the widow he awoke to see the widow's cow rummaging in his corn, some of which she had trampled underfoot. The old man fired up at once, but, remembering the situation between him and the widow, quietly drove the cow over a low place in the fence by which she had made her entrance to the shed where she belonged. He asked Zeke if he had carelessly left the fence lowered, and Zeke said that he had not. Then the farmer surmised that the cow had done it with her horns.

In a few days the cow was in the corn again. This time, after the farmer had driven her out, he went to the widow and suggested that she put a poke around the cow's neck. The widow declared that the cow didn't need a poke, that she was as good a cow as ever gave milk and that some one on the Bunker farm must have been careless about the fence. Bunker assured her that there was no one on his farm except himself and his son and neither of them had touched the fence. There was a flash of temper between the two, and the farmer went away insisting on a poke for the cow. Zeke heard him grumbling and said:

"Father, don't y' believe me when I say I hain't touched the fence?"

"Of course I do, Zeke."

"Well, if I didn't do it an' y' didn't do it, the cow must 'a' done it. The widdler should get her a poke."

"That's what I tole her, an' she 'lows the cow don't need a poke. She kind o' fired up when I mentioned it."

"What'd I tell y' about mowin' machines, father?"

The old man went off snorting. Again the cow was found in the corn, and this time there was no change to be noticed in the fence. The balance of the farmer's corn was destroyed, and he went to the widow in a frame of mind by no means lovely.

"Mis' Sniffen," he began in an unacceptable tone, "y'r cow has ruined $50 worth of corn for me, an' I suppose—"

"Mr. Bunker, I want y' to understand that I hain't responsible for my cow gittin' into no farm that's not properly protected."

"My farm is properly protected," the farmer retorted.

At this moment Mandy appeared on the scene and took a hand in the proceedings, but not as might be expected. "Mr. Bunker," she said, "I think y' are right. Our cow's a bad un."

"Mandy," said her mother hotly, "y' go straight into the house."

Mandy obeyed, pouting, and, her interference having only added fuel to her mother's anger, the widow gave the farmer such a dressing as he had never had before. The old man went home, muttering, and as he passed his son, who had been leaning on the fence listening, he said, "Wimmen is mowin' machines, true 'nough, Zeke, all except the gal, an' she's an angel."

"Wouldn't trust any of 'em, father?"

"Y' kin trust her sartin. She hain't like her mother a bit. She tole the ole hag jist what she was."

About a week after this, when the feelings of the two old persons had had time to cool, Zeke, who was sleeping comfortably in bed, awoke and heard a sound without. He got up and, going to the window, saw by the light of the moon, which was full, Mandy let down the fence and drive her mother's cow into the inclosure.

Zeke jumped into his clothes, ran downstairs and caught the girl before she reached her home.

"Mandy," he said, "y'r keched. I sor y' drivin' the cow into our farm. What'd y' do it for?"

Mandy hung her head. Most girls look pretty in moonlight, and Mandy was a pretty girl at any time. She made a confession. Fearing that her mother would give her a stepfather, she had been putting the cow in among his corn for the purpose of making trouble. She had served a double purpose for herself and Zeke.

"What'd y' take sides with dad for?" he asked.

"Oh, I know mother. If I'd 'a' sided with her she'd 'a' turned in his favor an' made it up."

"Mandy," said Zeke, "y'r a remarkable smart gal. Y've broke it off between the two old uns, an' dad wants"—He hesitated.

"What's he want?"

"He wants me to marry y'."

Mandy turned half around, looked down and waited. Zeke went to her and put his arm around her waist, and they stood silent, with none but the round moon looking down on them.

One day Mandy and Zeke walked off to a parson and were married. Farmer Bunker's delight was in proportion to the widow's chagrin.

Obituary.

James B. Bradley, a ruling Elder in Piney Fork church, passed to his reward Dec. 18, 1905, aged 39 years, 10 months and 18 days.

He professed faith in Christ at 26 years of age, and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian church in August, 1900; was elected Deacon in March, 1902; was elected and ordained Ruling Elder in October, 1902.

He was a devoted christian and he will be missed in the home, in his community as a citizen, and in the church.

While he was a great sufferer he never murmured, but assured his family that he was ready to go at any time. His hope grew brighter during his long, severe illness. A visit with him was a benediction and an inspiration and his faith in God.

He leaves a wife, father and mother, one brother and three sisters, to mourn their loss but his eternal gain.

His funeral was preached by his pastor, the writer, from Luke 20:36. May the great Comforter console the bereaved ones.

It Quiets the Cough

This is one reason why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so valuable in consumption. It stops the wear and tear of useless coughing. But it does more—it controls the inflammation, quiets the fever, soothes, and heals. Sold for 60 years.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been a regular life preserver to me. It brought me through a severe attack of pneumonia, and I feel that I owe my life to its wonderful curative properties. —WILLIAM H. TRUITT, Wawa, Pa.

SWINE HUSBANDRY

Buttermilk, provided no water is added, is practically of the same value for feeding pigs as separator milk, writes a correspondent of American Cultivator. But it must be borne in mind that buttermilk from factories almost always has mixed with it a considerable amount of added water, sometimes as much as 50 per cent, and consequently by itself is not a suitable food for pigs. Many instances can be given of great mortality among pigs fed solely on buttermilk, practically from starvation, because they were not able to consume enough buttermilk plus water to derive sufficient nutriment to supply the demand of nature. But when the deficiency in solids is made up by adding meal, or even grass, roots or other fodder, pigs are found to thrive on the buttermilk.

Weaning Pigs.

Since no use can be made of sows milk it seems unwise to be in a hurry about weaning pigs when the mother's milk supply is still good. The suckling pig is making its lowest cost growth.

Care of Swine.

If pigs begin to show an out of condition appearance don't think of medicine the first thing. See if some mistake in feeding or care cannot be discovered, and if it is correct it—Farm, Stock and Home.

The Brood Sows.

Give brood sows the freedom of the pasture fields when with young pigs, and as soon as the pigs are old enough to eat feed a little shelled corn and dry middlings with a mash of wheat middlings and milk. Sows with pigs should always have access to a good blue grass pasture and should not be fed too much corn. The largest part of the ration should be made up of oats and bran with a little oilmeal. Have plenty of charcoal and ashes constantly available. An occasional feed of salt will be found profitable.—American Cultivator.

Soaking Corn For Hogs.

Ordinarily we believe that it does not pay to soak corn for pigs. Unless it is very hard they will grind it themselves, and soak it with the saliva which aids digestion. Professor Henry says that soaking corn is "about as useful as grinding it," which means that it is a question whether the gains overbalance the cost.—National Stockman.

The Grip.

Before we can sympathize with others, we must have suffered ourselves. No one can realize the suffering attendant upon an attack of grip, unless he has the actual experience. There is probably no disease that causes so much physical and mental agony, or which so successfully defies medical aid. All danger from the grip, however, may be averted by the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Among the thousands who have used this remedy, not one case has ever been reported that has resulted in pneumonia or that has not recovered. For more by Woods & Orme, the leading druggists.

OUR NEW YORK WEEKLY LETTER

Just Arrived—An Englishman, With One Hundred and Fifty Suits, Sets the Fashions in Ties.

From a woman's standpoint there does not seem to be much whimsical extravagance in men's fashions, but when one reads of the recent arrival of a certain Englishman with 150 suits—well, what of extravagance then? And one of his fads—it is yet to be proved whether it will become a fashion—was what might be called a stock tie of black silk, allowing just a little bit of his collar to be seen. It brings to mind the old fashioned stock that swathed the aristocratic necks of our great-grandfathers, only with them there were no stiff high collars, but only the softest and finest of mesh.

The pastel shades still continue to be very popular in four-in-hands, and at all times of the day there are seen the softest pinks, hunters' green, heliotrope and pale lavender—indeed, so varied are the colors that any one is fashionable. Even the staidest old gentleman who seldom departs from his beloved black is seen day after day with a smart tie of hunters' green, which he half apologizes for wearing.

French four-in-hands are to be seen everywhere, either in two and a quarter or two and a half inch sizes. For afternoon or with semi dress, English squares and puff shapes in black, white and colored silks are worn by the best dressers.

But when it comes to indulging his really natural love of color, which on the street and in full or semi evening dress is given up to women, just make a tour some afternoon among the fashionable shops. There you will see the most elaborate bathrobes and lounging robes, all done up in stunning colors.

One handsome lounging robe, which looked as if it might be a garment of state—it was so heavy and rich—was made of beautiful Zennanah silk, which, with other expensive qualities, is soft and thick. It was black and lined with the palest lavender taffeta, having a wide turn down collar and fastened at the neck and waist with lavender cords.

Several others almost as rich looking were of heavy brocade cut velvet in pale gray and deep crimson, looking warm and comfortable enough to make a tired business man long for his pipe, his easy chair and a magazine by the fire.

Another, and with luxury written in every fold of its ample girth, was a robe of fine black broadcloth lined with rich plaid, looking ever so warm and comfortable.

But the most serviceable was a bathrobe of mercerized white cheviot, with broad variegated stripes running to the deep hem. It was lined with terry cloth and had deep cuffs and a turn down collar of the same. This, with the heavy white cord at the waist, was ever so useful and could easily be washed.

During these last few weeks of such glorious weather that New York is almost surprised out of itself there has not been much use for fur overcoats and only a few are seen in the automobiles, and automobile has become such a universal fashion that its devotees have fads and fancies which are very changeable.

Alaska dogskin and Russian calf coats, all heavily lined, are very popular for motoring. One of the oddest, yet most beautiful, things this week was seen one very rainy day. It was a gentleman's imported umbrella. The handle was of purest ivory wrought in a design which none but the patient little Jap would attempt. As with most oriental carvings, the figures were hideous, but done with such exquisite workmanship that it made the whole an almost invaluable gift.

Farmer Bunker and the Widow

(Original.)

"I'll n," replied the wary son, "wimmen's what y' say—jist like a mowin' machine. They're purty enough till y' git 'em harnessed up; then they cut down everything in their way."

Farmer Bunker since the death of Zeke's mother, a year before, had been casting longing eyes at the widow Sniffen, Mandy's mother. Knowing that his son had an objection to having any one put in his own mother's place, he felt if he could get Zeke to make a match with the daughter he might overcome the boy's scruples. But Zeke saw the trap and did not relish the advantage his falling into it would give his father. The old man, having failed with his bait, concluded to do a little courting and then propose. Zeke watched the maneuvers with anxiety.

One morning after one of the farmer's visits to the widow he awoke to see the widow's cow rummaging in his corn, some of which she had trampled underfoot. The old man fired up at once, but, remembering the situation between him and the widow, quietly drove the cow over a low place in the fence by which she had made her entrance to the shed where she belonged. He asked Zeke if he had carelessly left the fence lowered, and Zeke said that he had not. Then the farmer surmised that the cow had done it with her horns.

In a few days the cow was in the corn again. This time, after the farmer had driven her out, he went to the widow and suggested that she put a poke around the cow's neck. The widow declared that the cow didn't need a poke, that she was as good a cow as ever gave milk and that some one on the Bunker farm must have been careless about the fence. Bunker assured her that there was no one on his farm except himself and his son and neither of them had touched the fence. There was a flash of temper between the two, and the farmer went away insisting on a poke for the cow. Zeke heard him grumbling and said:

"Father, don't y' believe me when I say I ain't touched the fence?"

"Of course I do, Zeke."

"Well, if I didn't do it an' y' didn't do it, the cow must 'a' done it. The widder should get her a poke."

"That's what I tol' her, an' she 'lows the cow don't need a poke. She kind o' fired up when I mentioned it."

"What'd I tell y' about mowin' machines, father?"

The old man went off snorting.

Again the cow was found in the corn, and this time there was no change to be noticed in the fence. The balance of the farmer's corn was destroyed, and he went to the widow in a frame of mind by no means lovely.

"Mis' Sniffen," he began in an unacceptable tone, "y'r cow has ruined $50 worth of corn for me, an' I suppose—"

"Mr. Bunker, I want y' to understand that I ain't responsible for my cow gittin' into no farm that's not properly protected."

"My farm is properly protected," the farmer retorted.

At this moment Mandy appeared on the scene and took a hand in the proceedings, but as she might be expected. "Mr. Bunker," she said, "I think y' are right. Our cow's a bad un."

"Mandy," said her mother hotly, "y' go straight into the house."

Mandy obeyed, pouting, and, her interference having only added fuel to her mother's anger, the widow gave the farmer such a dressing as he had never had before. The old man went home, muttering, and as he passed his son, who had been leaning on the fence listening, he said, "Wimmen is mowin' machines, true 'nough, Zeke, all except the gal, an' she's an angel."

"Y' kin trust her sartin. She ain't like her mother a bit. She stole the ole hag jist what she was."

About a week after this, when the feelings of the two old persons had had time to cool, Zeke, who was sleeping comfortably in bed, awoke and heard a sound without. He got up and, going to the window, saw by the light of the moon, which was full, Mandy let down the fence and drive her mother's cow into the inclosure.

Zeke jumped into his clothes, ran downstairs and caught the girl before she reached her home.

"Mandy," he said, "y'r keched. I sor y' drivin' the cow into our farm. What'd y' do it for?"

Mandy hung her head. Most girls look pretty in moonlight, and Mandy was a pretty girl at any time. She made a confession. Fearing that her mother would give her a stepfather, she had been putting the cow in among his corn for the purpose of making trouble. She had served a double purpose for herself and Zeke.

"What'd y' take sides with dad for?" he asked.

"Oh, I know mother. If I'd 'a' sided with her she'd 'a' turned in his favor an' made it up."

"Mandy," said Zeke, "y'r a remarkable smart gal. Y've broke it off between the two old uns, an' dad wants— He hesitated."

"What's he want?"

"He wants me to marry y'."

Mandy turned half around, looked down and waited. Zeke went to her and put his arm around her waist, and they stood silent, with none but the round moon looking down on them.

One day Mandy and Zeke walked off to a parson and were married. Farmer Bunker's delight was in proportion to the widow's chagrin.

Miss Mamie Campbell left here on Sunday en route to her home in Livingston county; Miss Campbell has made a host of friends in this neighborhood during her stay, who regret to see her leave.

Miss Madge Black, who has been visiting relatives in this neighborhood, returned to her home at Grove Center Monday.

Bro. Boggess called in his appointment at Hebron the first Sunday on account of holding the funeral services of Robert Yates at the Love graveyard.

Mr. Henry William's and Miss Mary Nations were united in marriage, at the home of the bride's father, Tuesday evening, Jan. 2, Rev. J. R. McAfee officiating. The beautiful bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Nation of Ford's Ferry. She is generally conceded one of the most attractive young ladies of this vicinity. The groom is the son of Mr. Wm. Williams, of this county. The groom has been living in Missouri the past year, where the newly married couple will reside. Their friends join in wishing them success, long life and happiness.

NEW SALEN.

Farmers taking a rest.

Travel nearly suspended on account of bad roads.

John Harpending came home from Golconda Saturday.

Our sick are all improving.

A letter received from Harry Harpending by his mother last week informed her that he had left Salt Lake Utah for Bullfrog, the great mining camp in Nevada.

Crittenden county today and Crittenden county forty years ago are two very different counties, in many things. Forty years ago every farmer raised a crop of tobacco; bought all of his goods and groceries on time, one third of them hardly ever coming out even, generally having to execute their notes for balances due, their merchants; no stock of any kind for sale except now and then a milch cow or yoke of oxen, or maybe a mule colt. Now in the good year of our Lord, 1906, how different. Now eight-tenths of our people are out of debt and one half of them have a bank account; our county full of stock buyers, ready to buy anything, from half a dozen chickens to a thousand dollar bunch of cattle; and the working man, who labors by the day to feed his wife and little ones, instead of $13 a month and board himself, now gets $35 or $40 per month. Still we have men who grumble at hard times, but this same kind of people would grumble inside the pearly gates of the celestial city; we believe in being thankful for small favors and larger ones in proportion.

Our friend Henry Bronster talks of taking a trip to the Rocky Mountains towards spring.

Berry Davidson, of Milford, was in this section last week.

Lan Harpending spent Sunday with his friend, Dr. Anthony Davidson.

Men who have no respect for the Sabbath day are pretty certain to get a free ticket to that place where they don't put up ice.

WESTON.

Mrs. C. E. C. Travis entertained the young people Saturday evening with a taffy pulling.

I noticed in the Press last week that several of the children of Marion made perfect records at Sunday School in 1905. There was four in the C. P. Sunday School at this place that made perfect records--Birdie Hughes, Jimmie Hodge, Mickie Hughes and Geo. L. Rankins, Jr.

R. E. and M. A. Wilson have received their sawmill but have not yet gone to sawing.

Mr. R. N. Grady has very poor health this winter.

Margaret Rankin returned Saturday after having closed her school at Copperas Spring.

Mr. J. P. Rankin and wife visited Mr. Frank Williams Saturday and Sunday.

Misses Byrdie Hughes and Ethel Hensel, and their escorts were guests of Miss Ruby Hughes Sunday.

Messrs. Lacey Truitt and Elmer Gahagan of Rodney attended prayer meeting at this place Sunday night.

Misses Katharine and Eliza Hill spent the day Sunday with Miss Laura Truitt.

Dr. E. Newcom and Mr. Bill Howerton still make their regular trips to Weston.

Chronic Constipation Cured.

One who suffers from chronic constipation is in danger of many serious ailments. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation as it aids digestion and stimulates the liver and bowels, restoring the natural action of these organs. Commence taking it to-day and you will feel better at once. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is very pleasant to take. Refuse Substitutes. Woods & Orme.

Safe-Blowers at Work.

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 11.--The large safe of Unverzagt & Klenn, grocers, was blown at 2 o'clock this morning by a gang of four safebreakers. Two of them got away and two were captured by the police. The burglars obtained about fifty dollars in cash. One of the men under arrest gave his name as William Barrett, and the other would not give his name, saying only that he was from Mt. Carmel, Ill.

The store where the safe was blown was located within one block of Main street. The explosion was distinctly heard by all who were awake in that part of the city. One of the arrested men had a box of fuses, and caps and a fine pistol.

Getting Close to Us.

The store of Bell Bros. at Dalton, was burglarized Saturday night, who blew the safe open in the postoffice, with nitro-glycerine and secured near $400 in money and stamps. It was about 12 o'clock Sunday before the robbery was discovered, and as the burglars had several hours the start to make their escape there is no clue to them. About $200 of the money belonged to Bell Bros. The government lost about $25 in stamps, and the remainder was money that had been deposited by different parties. A reward of $200 has been offered for the robbers.--Providence Enterprise.

BANQUET WITHOUT MEAT.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY EATS A UNIQUE VEGETARIAN
DINNER.

Absence of Meat not Noticed by the Guests. Analysis of Foods Made by Dr. Wiley, the Government Food Expert.

Few wealthy and socially prominent women share with Mrs. John B. Henderson, wife of the former United States Senator from Missouri, the distinction of being a strict vegetarian
and yet being able to entertain large dinner parties successfully without the use of any kind of meat.

Mrs. Henderson's home, Boundary Castle, in Washington, is one of the handsomest dwellings in the Capital and is fitted up in the most sumptuous

Mrs. Henderson's vegetarian dinners have always been a feature of her social program during the winter. The only plea against them is that diners
seriously object to being defrauded,
even if ever so skillfully, into believing
they are eating meat, patties and croquettes, when, in fact, they are eating
"just vegetables."

This particular dinner in honor of delegates to the food congress was voted a distinct success. Those who were included in Mrs. Henderson's invitations declared that had they not known the exact character of the dinner to which they sat down they would have been convinced that various dishes were the result of the study and ingenuity of Mrs. Henderson's famous chef who had utilized meat in a strange but most alluring manner.

Mrs. Henderson was formerly Miss Mary N. Foote, of New York, and is one of the most democratic and popular hostesses in Washington.

NOW COMES THE MOTOR BOOT.

Threatens the Popularity of the Motor Bicycle, the Automobile
and the Motor Boat.

Gay Paris has just been startled by the apparition of a gigantic person
"whizzing along the Champs Elysees
at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour." He was not on horseback, according to the Washington Post, neither was he in an auto. He simply stood up straight on his own legs, and the only unusual thing connected with his appearance consisted of a pair of immense boots. He didn't walk. He never lifted either foot from the pavement. He simply carried himself erect and "fairly flew."

Subsequent inquiry developed several interesting facts. Fastened to the soles of the tall stranger's boots were tiny automobiles with rubber tires
eight inches in diameter, and in a belt worn about his waist were "accumu-lators" of one and a quarter horsepower, connected with the boots by means of wires. Thus equipped, the mysterious person sped along the avenue at the speed above stated, exciting wonder, admiration and alarm in about equal proportions.

Seven-League Boots Not in It.

In other words, this astonishing but highly uncomfortable gentleman—Constantini is his name—appears to have invented the long-looked-for and much-feared "motor boot." As a matter of fact his device will enable the individual citizen to acquire a pair of boots
by means of which he can chase along the boulevards of Paris or any other capital at a frightful rate of speed, and,
as long as the "accumulators" hold out,
make anywhere from six to thirty miles an hour. It is the much-desired consummation—the apparatus whereby we may pay a hundred calls during any afternoon, evade policemen, street cars, footpads, the carriages of the aristocracy, and the importunities of the very fleetest newspaper reporter.
No more need to squander money on night-hawks, hordies, "copays," or even broughams and victorias. Put on your three seven league boots, light your cigarette, push the button, and away you go. The time is foreseen when our greatest statesmen will provide themselves with the Constantini boot
and laugh at would-be interviewers.

Only one misgiving is nourished.
There is always a fly in the ointment.
A crumpled rose leaf on the couch of
joy. Suppose, for instance, that Secretary Taft, or General Grosvenor, or

LEAVE THEM INDIANS.

COMMISSIONER LEUPP OF INDIAN AFFAIRS AGAINST HIGHER EDUCATION.

The Red Man is Original and Should not be Considered Merely White
With a Dusky Skin—Highly Interesting Report.

The Indian should be an Indian and
nothing more.
So says Commissioner of Indian Affairs Francis E. Leupp in his annual report. He does not believe the Indian should be educated for higher professions in the great colleges of the country to the neglect of his sound and practical learning.

His report is, beyond any doubt, the most interesting one ever received from the Indian Office.

Made-Over Indians Useless.

"The made-over Indian," he says, "is bound to be like the Navajo blanket, from which all the Navajo has been expurgated—neither one thing nor the other. I like the Indian for what is Indian in him. I want him to retain all his old contempt for hunger, thirst,
cold and danger when he has anything to do. I love the spirit of many independence which moved a copper-colored sage once to beg that I would intercede with the Great Father and throttle a proposal to send rations to his people, because it would pauperize
his young men and make them slaves to the whites."

Mr. Leupp declares that the common mistake of white men dealing with in-

COMMISSIONER F. E. LEUPP.

dians is that they proceed upon the idea that the red man is merely a white man with a dusky skin. Another mistake is to class the Indian with the colored man.

Lead Him Back.

Since he became Indian Commissioner Mr. Leupp has appointed in several of the schools a teacher who supervises the study of native music.
The duties of this teacher are to lead
the Indian back to the sublime and patriotic thoughts of his forefathers.
"The Indian is a natural warrior, a natural logician, a natural artist. We have room for all three in our highly organized social system. Let us not make the mistake, in the process of absorbing them, of washing out of them whatever is distinctly Indian. Our aboriginal brother brings, as his contribution to the common store of character, great deal which is admirable and which needs only to be developed along the right line. Our proper work with him is improvement, not transformation."

VANDERBILT'S NEW AUTO.

It is Planned to Make 150 Miles an Hour.

Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt is having constructed secretly an automobile
which he hopes will be the fastest machine in the world. He is an automobile enthusiast and is determined with the aid of the wealth at his command to break the present record. The machine which he is having built is estimated to be capable of developing 122
miles an hour with 250 horsepower.
Such speed is the equivalent of 218 feet per very clock tick; it means a mile in 23 2-5 seconds. The present mile record is 22 4-5 seconds made by H. L.
Bowden, at Ormond Beach, Fla., last February.

Should Mr. Vanderbilt be able to attain such extraordinary speed with this automobile it will mean that it will go faster than anything in the world heretofore. The best time ever made on a railroad was a mile in 30 seconds;
this was on the Plant System on a run
from Fleming to Jacksonville, Florida, when five miles were covered at the rate of 120 miles per hour. Not only will it go faster than the speed machines of to-day but the new automobile flyer promises to carry its driver faster than man has ever traveled before in the world. In fact it is stated that even few birds could fly at such a pace.

Cares for 1,000 Canaries.

Mrs. Sarah Noble, a widow, of Cincinnati, Ohio, feeds 1,000 canaries in her luxurious home in that city. During one of her trips abroad many years ago she purchased and brought here
the ancestors of these birds at a cost of $1,000. They live in seventy large cages. It costs Mrs. Noble $65 a year to feed her birds, and the most expensive heating and ventilating arrangements obtainable are provided for them.

A HOLLAND AIRSHIP.

Inventor of Sub-Marine Boat is Working on One that Will Fly.

The report comes from New York that John P. Holland, the inventor of the submarine boat, is about to give to the public an invention of a flying machine said to be of as perfect a construction as the submarine bearing his name. Mr. Holland has been working on flying machines for nearly twenty years, during which time four models have been constructed and destroyed on account of their imperfec-tions. He is now working on the fifth model, which he believes will be made to fly. This latter model weighs only thirty pounds. It is arranged to be strapped to the back of the person desiring to soar in the air. There will be two vertical arms crossing at right angles with the axis and two pairs of wings; these are to vibrate in opposite directions. One pair of wings will be placed at the back of the head and the other pair near the waist. They are of light steel construction, weighing about a pound each. In speaking of his invention, Mr. Holland said:

"Any man who walks three miles an hour can easily fly the same distance in ten minutes with my invention and I do not consider that statement an exaggeration."

"I have taken birds as my pattern.
With this machine men will be able to fly on the same principle as a bird flies. If a cog breaks or something else goes wrong, or if he becomes exhausted and the propelling ceases,
there will be no danger, for he will be able to descend gently to the earth and land easily upon his feet."

Mr. Holland discounts the course taken by a number of flying machine experts who use a combination of balloon and aeroplane. This form, he believes, will never become practical for aerial navigation because he considers the gas bag offers too much resistance to the air, and, on the other hand, believes that flying machines and the aeroplane idea—the latter of the Lan-ley class—will be the real means of navigation of the air in the future. He expressed his belief that with the new Holland airship he will be able to fly from New York to Washington to attend the next presidential inauguration and get back home the same night. It is his intention to make experiments with his machine next spring.

Facts About Henry Hudson.

Why should an Englishman who received by baptism the name of Henry be dubbed Hendrik? For more than half a century Americans have been writing and saying "Hendrik Hudson."
This habit, without a legitimate foundation, has been emphasized afresh recently in the "Hendrik Hudson Memorial Bridge" and the "Hendrik Hudson Intercentenary Committee." The only excuse that can be offered for using the Dutch equivalent is that Henry Hudson sailed under Dutch auspices on one of his four voyages of discovery. The Netherlands themselves knew him
only as "Henry" Hudson.

In 1859 Henry C. Murphy, while at The Hague examining the old Dutch records for data referring to Hudson, found in the royal archives a Dutch copy of Hudson's contract with the directors of the East India Company. The document was appended to a manuscript history of the company, prepared at its request by P. van Dam,
the counsel of the company from 1652

until his death in 1706. The copy opens thus:

"On the eighth day of January, in the year of Our Lord one thousand six hundred and nine, the Directors of the East India Company of the Chamber of Amsterdam, of the ten years reckoning, on the one part, and Mr. Henry Hudson, Englishman, * * * of the other part." Two of the signers were Dutchmen; the third, "Henry" Hudson. In both cases the name was spelled in plain English, "Henry." Hudson knew so little of the Dutch language that his conferences with the Hollanders were conducted through the medium of an interpreter.

No better time for correcting this abundant usage could be found than on the eve of the celebration of the anniversary of Hudson's voyage to this part of North America. Let the bridge to be named after the English explorer be the "Henry Hudson," or the "Hudson,"
but not the "Hendrik" Hudson memorial bridge. The committee has already dropped the "Hendrik" from its title and styled itself simply "The Hudson Tercentenary Committee."

Edward Eggleston's "Hoosier

from one end of the Union to the other. "The little red brick school house"

many times more perplexing than those which troubled the pedagogues of our forefathers. In those days we had the great resources of an unbroken and an unsettled wilderness. The residents of Ohio and Kentucky were pioneers.
Vast tracts of rich, but unbroken,
wilderness stretched to the westward,
affording opportunity for the making of thousands of new homes and beckoning with alluring finger the surplus population of the Eastern States.
The soil was rich and fruitful, the home market for agricultural products was good, and the crowded centers of the Old World sought eagerly for our surplus products. Such a thing as agricultural education was unknown.
Mother Earth was fruitful from the stored-up fertility of the ages and great middle class of Americans, which made of the nation a people of intelligent thinkers. They already possessed qualities of sturdy integrity and self-reliance which constituted them "good citizens," and their system

of common-school education, sufficient at that time to meet all the demands of the country, elevated them as a whole into a body the superior of any "middle class" in the world, ready and able in any period of crisis to decide great public questions aright, and to do, with the courage of their convictions. Since that time what we call "higher education" has developed, and new systems and methods have supplanted "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," and the birch rod, identified with the

The farmer of to-day finds an entirely different situation and a strong and increasing competition. The vast wilderness has been settled, and through continual and often ignorant and ill-advised tillage, the soil has been depleted of its fertility. While agriculture has thus been retrograding
and the competition continually growing keener but little has been done to fit the farmer to cope with the changing conditions. The average country boy to-day receives a much better education, viewed by present educational standards, than did his grand-father,
yet it is along lines which help him
but little to maintain his position in the country's development. He learns the very things which, instead of making him satisfied with the farm, impel him to leave it and seek occupation in the centers of population. The farm boy who receives a commonschool or a high-school education naturally turns toward the place where he can best apply it. His schooling has not been such as would help him to farm better, to make more money on the farm or to make of farming an interesting employment. And so he goes to the city to utilize his special knowledge. The trend of the country-raised lad is irresistibly in that direction,
while there is no equalizing current impelling the young people of the cities to fill his place in the country. And the city boy as he grows up and marries would like to have a home of his own on a piece of land, of course, but he knows only the trade or profession that he has learned. He knows nothing of farming and he would not know how to make a living from a piece of land
if he had it. It has often been said that it is worse than useless to put the poor of the great cities out in the country, because they will not stay there. As a matter of fact, they cannot be expected to, for to them it is a strange and barren story. The experience of the Salvation Army, however,
as shown in its farm colonies in different sections of the country, demon-

Roosevelt's Rifle.

The rifle which President Roosevelt used on his recent hunting trip has been received at Springfield (Mass.)
Armory, extensive repairs being necessary as a result of rough usage. The rifle, which was made for President Roosevelt under the direction of Colonel F. H. Phipps, commandant at the armory, is essentially a magazine army rifle, with slight changes from the regulation model to make it more suitable for sporting purposes.
