Neuralgia And Other Pain.

All pain in any disease is nerve pain, the result of a turbulent condition of the nerves. The stabbing, lacerating, darting, burning, agonizing pain that comes from the prominent nerve branches, or sensory nerves, is neuralgia, and is the "big brother" of all the other pains.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills rarely ever fail to relieve these pains by soothing these larger nerves, and restoring their tranquility.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills leave no bad after-effects, and are a reliable remedy for every kind of pain, such as headache, backache, stomachache, sciatica, rheumatism and neuralgia.

They also relieve Dizziness, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Car-Sickness, and Distress after eating.

"For many years I have been a constant sufferer from neuralgia and headache, and have never been able to obtain any relief from various headache powders and capsules, until I tried Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They always cure my headache in five minutes time." FRED R. SWINGLEY, Cashier 1st Nat. Bank, Atkinson, Neb.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit, if it fails he will return your money. 25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Solitude.

Laugh, and the world laughs with you;
Weep, and you weep alone;
For the sad old earth
Must borrow its mirth,
It has trouble enough of its own.

Sing, and the hills will answer;
Sigh, and it is lost on the air;
To the echoes bound
To a joyful sound,
But shrink from voicing care.

Rejoice, and men will seek you;
Grieve, and they turn and go;
They want full measure
Of all your pleasure,
But they do not want your woe.

Be glad, and your friends are many;
Be sad, and you lose them all;
There are none to decline
Your nectared wine,
But alone you must drink life's gall.

Feast, and your halls are crowded;
Fast, and the world goes by;
Succeed and give,
And it helps you live,
But it cannot help you die.

There is room in the halls of pleasure
For a long and lordly train;
But one by one
We must all file on
Through the narrow aisles of pain.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON V, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JAN. 28.

Text of the Lesson, Mark 1, 1-11. Memory Verses, 10, 11—Golden Text, 1 Sam. xii, 3—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

A few words about the man used to write this gospel may not be amiss in connection with this our first lesson in it this year. If the name always refers to the same Mark—and it seems to—then we gather from the references to him that his surname was John, that he was the son of Barnabas' sister Mary and lived in Jerusalem. He started with Paul and Barnabas on their first missionary tour, but left them and yet afterward went forth with Barnabas. Although Paul refused to take him on the second tour and quarreled with Barnabas about him, he afterward found him profitable, and we see him at Rome with Paul and at Babylon with Peter (Acts xiii, 5, 13; xv, 39; xii, 12; Col. iv, 10; 1 Tim. iv, 11; 1 Pet. v, 13). Neither he nor any one else counts for anything apart from the Lord Jesus, in whom alone are redemption and life eternal. Having Him, we have life, but apart from Him there is no life (1 John v, 10). The good tidings concerning Him are called the gospel of God concerning His Son, the gospel of the grace of God, the gospel of salvation, the gospel of peace, the gospel of the kingdom of God, the gospel of the glory of the blessed God, etc. (Rom. i, 1, 3; Acts xx, 24; Eph. i, 13; vi, 15; Mark i, 14; 1 Tim. i, 11).

Each of the four gospels tells the glad tidings, and in that all are alike, but each has a somewhat different story to tell of Him, as the King, the Servant, the Son of Man and Son of God. Although the first verse of our lesson calls Him the Son of God, it is the Son of God becoming the Servant of God that He may be also the servant of men. Sonship means service, for God said to Pharaoh, "Let my Son go that He may serve Me" (Ex. iv, 23), and in 1 Thess. i, 9, we find that we turn to God from idols to serve the living and true God.

As John the Baptist was the Lord's messenger, just a voice for Him, preparing His way, so should we now be the Lord's messengers with His message preaching repentance and the remission of sins through Jesus Christ (Luke xxiv, 47; Acts x, 43; xiii, 38, 39). Any so-called gospel that does not proclaim forgiveness of sins through Jesus' blood as the free gift of God is not the gospel of God, but another gospel, concerning which see Gal. i, 8, 9. There must be conviction of sin and confession of sin, then there will be forgiveness, for if we confess He is faithful and just to forgive (1 John i, 9). The true messenger of God does not think much of himself nor seek great things for himself, but is ever meek and lowly, seeking honor only from God and glory for God.

John the Baptist came in the spirit and power of Elijah (Luke i, 17) and was like him in many ways. Elijahs are needed now, having as their motto, "The Lord God Breth, before whom I stand" (1 Kings xvii, 1). We know that the real Elijah will come before the Lord comes back in His glory (Mal. iv, 5; Matt. xvii, 11), but every believer should now be filled with the spirit and by life and testimony proclaim the gospel that the elect church may be gathered out and the long postponed kingdom become a reality.

We shall never be the witnesses we ought to be until filled with, or baptized with, the Holy Spirit (Acts i, 5, 8), but inasmuch as He who sends us, whose messengers we are, is the one who baptizes with the Spirit, and He is more willing to do this than parents are to give good gifts to their children, why should we not be filled, and filled again, for each new act of service as the apostles were? Matthew and Luke, who also record His baptism, speak of fire and point out to the harvest time, but there may be some work of the fire needed now, for which we are not ready, in connection with being filled with the Spirit. When Jesus came to John to be baptized of him, John at first refused to do it, saying that he had greater need to be baptized by Jesus, but when Jesus said, "Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness" (Matt. iii, 15), then John baptized him, and Jesus began to be numbered with transgressors, for He was no sinner and had no sins to confess, but perhaps here He began to be made sin for us in some sense, although it was on the cross that He bore our sins in His own body (1 Cor. v, 21; 1 Pet. ii, 24).

In these words of Jesus to John we have His second recorded utterance, as in last week's lesson we had His first, and, while there is a breadth and length and depth and height here which we may not comprehend, can we not appropriate the words "Suffer it to be so now" and for His sake submit to many things which seem to us unnecessary and uncalled for and even unjust, that He may be glorified and His righteousness made manifest? Let us take as our constant motto, "About my Father's business, suffering all things for Jesus' sake," and we shall have many a realization of our Father's approval. Learn from the opened heaven the interest manifest there in all that concerns Him here. See the dove which found no perfect rest anywhere else on earth resting and abiding upon Him (John i, 33) and consider that if He, the perfect One, needed this anointing for His public ministry (Acts x, 38), how much more must we be anointed to follow His steps. See the Trinity, the Father, the Son and the Spirit, and say as the poor idiot said, "Three in one and one in three, and all the three are all for me."

THE CLODHOOPER AND THE BALD-HEADED MAN.

[A story of love and business told in verse, and written expressly for THE RECORD by Robert C. Haynes, author of "Dark Days and Bright."]

Just how it was done no one ever can tell,
For tho' over so soon 'twas done none the less well.
Bim! bim! bang! ker-whack! Thro' the window—Joe's plan—
As if kicked by a mule, crash'd the bald-headed man!

XXI.

Another week pass'd, and one day pounder Green—
He had just left his room and his writing machine—
Walking down Middle street, was just going across
To his home, when he met the big, bald-headed boss.

"How's your health today, Green?" asked the bald-headed man;

"Let me speak a few words to you, sir, if you can.
Now of course what I tell you will be without price,
I just want to drop in, sir, a word of advice.

"It appears to me, Green, that a good man like you—
Good on a machine, and you're up in years, too—
Would be better equipped for the battles of life.
If he had a good all-round, business-like wife.

XXII.

"I've been thinking," continued the bald-headed man—
"And there's no one can down me in forming a plan—
That no girl would suit you so well, Pounder Green,
As that bright, little fairy-faced elf, Imogene.

"A treasure more precious than gold she would be;
No helpmate more willing or loving than she.
A girl who can pound on a writing machine
Would make a good wife, too, for any man, Green!

"And I'll further say this, Green—for such is my plan—
Set between you and me," said the bald-headed man,
"If you'll lose no more time, and will wed Imogene,
I'll give you a splendid new writing machine."

XXIII.

"Well, I'll duly consider your words," answered Green;
"I have always tho't well of the fair Imogene,
And will give, sir, due weight to your words and your plan.
For you are, after all, a kind bald-headed man."

Then out, off and on went the hard-pounding Green,
Who was soon again punching his writing machine;
And tho' on he kept punching, his thoughts would go
To a nice little home down on Middleton Row.

"I'm in luck! ha! ha! ha!" laughed the bald-headed man,
"I have struck now—ha! ha!—on a sure going plan
To get square with that clod-popping, hod-toting Turk!
That oily-tongued Green can most sure do the work!"

XXIV.

It was evening again, calm and clear, and the light—
Hemm'd off from the earth by the "curtains of night"—
Faded slowly but surely, and then, by and by,
The stars, one by one, boldly peep'd from the sky.

While the last rays were fading away, Imogene,
Who sat pensively, listlessly watching the scene,
Just as she had watch'd the same scene oft before,
Heard a footstep without then a knock at the door.

"There's a visitor coming—who would have tho't so?
Coming thus unannounced—I'll just wager 'tis Joel!
Then arising and crossing the room, Imogene
Softly open'd the door. 'Twas the hard-pounding Green!

XXV.

"My! What a surprise! So 'tis you Mr. Green,
When I tho't it was Joe," smiled the fair Imogene.
"Just come in, have a seat, sir, and tell me the news;
You and I, you know, always had similar views."

"That's a fact I am slow to forget, Imogene,
And I trust they may coincide still," answered Green;
For, to tell you the truth—which should always be told—
And I trust you'll not think me untimely and bold—

"I've been thinking to-day, and for days," went on Green,
"As I pounded away on my writing machine,
'Twould be well, in fact best, as the Bible has said,
To quit living alone and, in fact, to be wed."

XXVI.

"What a 'striking' coincidence, that, Mr. Green!
Ah, is it not strange, sir," went on Imogene,
"That our views run like parallel lines, I might say?
For I, too, have been thinking precisely that way!"

"What first set me to thinking this way, Imogene,
Was the falling in love with a girl," resum'd Green.
"She's so noble and sweet—this bright-eyed little elf—
I fell 'heels over head' and in spite of myself!

"It happened one day," went on hard-pounding Green,
"I had just quit my room and my writing machine,
And out on the street and was starting to go
Just a few blocks away, down on Middleton Row.

XXVII.

"We two met, and she gave me a smile and a bow,
Then I went for my hat, and some way, or some how,
It made my heart flop—even faster I ween,
Tanh the swift-going keys of a writing machine!

"Oh! my, my! How romantic!" exclaimed Imogene.
"And how similar, too, ev'ry way, Mr. Green,
To a little 'adventure' that happened with me
And the 'cutest' young man—a heart-winner was he!

"A fine, bright day it was, and as still, Mr. Green,
As the boss' deserted old writing machine!
Well, we met and I bowed—for I could but do that—
But oh! my poor heart, when he 'dived' for his hat!"

If a woman don't like her husband, she likes to show it by remarking that she wouldn't be surprised at anything he might do.

If we could see our backs, we would probably find them blushing at things
said behind them to spare the feeling of our face.

Following is an article on "Practical Arithmetic" by H. W. Adams:

PRACTICAL ARITHMETIC.

The many changes and methods of instruction in our schools have made it necessary to revise "Practical Arithmetic."

No other work on arithmetic ever had so extensive use or wide-spreading popularity. Every principle is clearly explained by analysis or solution of simple examples, from which a rule is derived.

In view of these facts it has been the constant aim in making this revision more carefully features of the peculiar method of its learned author.
Teachers everywhere throughout the land are familiar with its pages. Many of the pupils have gained their arithmetical knowledge from the study of its principles. The pupil is never required to perform any operation until the principle on which it is founded has first been explained.

This is followed by graduated exercises
designed to render the pupil familiar with its application.

The subjects of "interest" and "discount" have received that careful attention which their importance demands, and a running series of articles with numbered paragraphs to increase the convenience of textbook for recitation and for reference.

The publishers desire to express their thanks to the many teachers whose corrections are in the present edition.
The changes are made under two heads.

1. Those which adapt the book better to the method of instruction.
2. Those which exhibit present methods of business.

In the first place, special attention is given to the beauty and refinement of the printer.

How far this object has been secured is again submitted to those engaged in the responsible work of education.

Railroad From Shawneetown.

Evansville, January 25.—It has been announced that the building of a new railroad from Shawneetown, Ill., to Brookport, Ill., on the Ohio, near Metropolis City, behind which are the
L. & N. and Big Four roads, will be commenced the coming spring and completed during the summer.

The new road will be about forty miles long and will open up a territory
along the Ohio river in Southern Illinois that at the present time has no railroad facilities and which is rich in mineral wealth, especially in fluor spar, extensive mines of which are operated at and near Rose Clair.

The survey for the new line has been completed and is now on file in the office of the L. & N. in this city. It is said that the project was brought forward by the Big Four and it was taken up jointly by that road and the L. & N., both of which would profit greatly by the building of the L. & N., now having a line into Shawneetown and the Big Four only a short distance away at Eldorado, at which point it would receive much traffic from the Brook-port extension.

The country through which the new road will pass is a very rough and hilly
one and the building of the forty miles of road will be a big job, but it is considered a paying investment, as it will tap a country that will be productive of much freight traffic. The road will start at Shawneetown, pass through a portion of Gallatin county, through Hardin county, through Pope county and through a portion of Massee county to Brookport.

It will go directly through the rich
fluor spar district about Rose Clair,
from which vast quantities of the mineral are shipped by boat up and down the river. The new road will thus interfere with the river traffic to a great extent.

The plan to build the road has been under consideration for a year or more and all the surveys have now been completed. It has been decided to commence the construction as early in the spring as possible in order to complete it before winter. Brookport, Ill., which will be the terminal of the new road, is the present terminal of the Illinois Central.

Asked to Appoint Committee.

Governor J. C. W. Beckham has been asked by the "Home Coming Week"
committee to appoint a commissioner for every county in the State to officially represent the counties during
"Home Coming Week" in Louisville.
These commissioners will be in charge of the various county headquarters
where county registers to enroll the names of visitors will be opened.

Danger of a Cold and How to Avoid Them.

More fatalities have their origin in or result from a cold than from any other cause. This fact alone should make people more careful as there is no danger whatever from a cold when it is properly treated in the beginning.
For many years Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been recognized as the most prompt and effectual medicine in use for this disease. It acts on nature's plan, loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by HAYNES &

Marion.

Rate for Kentuckians.

There will probably be in effect after
"Home Coming Week" in Louisville, June 13 to 17, a rate of one cent per mile for former Kentuckians who attend the "Home Coming Week"
ceremonies and wish to visit friends and relatives out in the State.

ASTROLOGER SPANGLER
SEES MANY THINGS

Wars, Floods and Earthquakes Shown in 1906 Horoscope--Vengeance
For Jewish Massacres.

Here are Spangler's prophecies for 1906:

The dissolution of Russia.
The overthrow of Turkey.
The assassination of the czar of Russia.
The assassination of the sultan of Turkey.
The prevention of three wars by President Roosevelt.
A protracted race war in the south.
Destructive spring floods in the United States.
A destructive eruption of Mt.
Vesuvius.
The activity of Mount Pelee and Popocatepetl.
Volcanic eruptions in all parts of the world.
Destructive earthquakes in California and the Philippines.
Rebellion in Spain.
Great disturbances all over Europe.
Spangler says further that the summer of 1906 will be hot and sultry throughout the temperate zone, with extensive death rate.
That Christ will make his spirit felt among the peoples of the United States and England, in which countries there are to be fervent religious and potent political movements, which are to overcome in a great degree the present
spirit of graft and commercialism.
That the United States will continue
a world power, and the leader of other nations.
That Pennsylvania is to have an administration of the people, and that discoveries of corruption will be discovered, which will drive some of the guilty to suicide.
That God will wreak terrible vengeance upon the Russians for the massacre of the Jews.

Master Commissioner's Sale.

CRITTENDEN CIRCUIT COURT, KY.
Mrs. Lena B. Powell, plaintiff Against
Audell Elder, defendant Equity.

By virtue of a judgment and order of

LETTER TO THE RECORD READERS

Haynes & Taylor Guarantee Hyomei To Cure Catarrh Or It Costs You Nothing.

Editor of The Record:—

In view of the prevalence of catarrh at troubles at this season of the year, we want to tell your readers that we have never sold anything that has given more satisfaction than Hyomei, when used in catarrhal troubles. You get immediate relief from the treatment, and consistent use will prove to every sufferer as it has to many of our customers, the virtue of this preparation.

The complete Hyomei outfit consists of a pocket inhaler, and a bottle of Hyomei, and the price is only $1, while additional bottle can be obtained for 50 cents.

We positively guarantee a cure when Hyomei is used in accordance with directions, or we refund your money. This certainly shows our faith and belief in the virtues of Hyomei.

Yours very truly,
Haynes & Taylor.

Big Victory for Mr. Roosevelt.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce yesterday, by a majority vote, agreed to report the Dilliver bill, providing for the regulation of railroad rates. This action gives the right of way in the Senate.

The vote comes as a surprise to the railroad interests, which had looked for a milk-and-water measure, which would not hurt. The Dilliver bill was the bill endorsed by President Roosevelt, and its provisions are ample to compel the railroads to abandon the alleged practice of secret rebates and favored shippers.

The result of the vote is quite a surprise, the railroad men have lulled themselves in the faith that their friends controlled the committee. The outcome hence is all the more startling because it is found the contrary is true.

In a nutshell, the President has won the first and important step in the fight, and the burden is now on the railroads, rather than upon the President, where the railroads hoped it would be.

SUBSCRIPTION ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR.

Entered as second-class matter July 15, 1904, at gress of March 3, 1879.

FRIDAY, JAN. 26, 1906.

In the busy, bustling world men too
oft forget to consider the little things.

It is evidently true that the advancing price in shoe leather is due to the anticipated election of "Walking Nunn Wilson" to Congress and the abolition of the railroad pass.

Editor Coper, of the Livingston Democrat, says the newspaper man who lies about his subscription list and comments on the financial condition of his rival's paper, gives him that "tired
feeling."—Evening Post.

If you cannot scatter sunshine, because of a morose nature or feeling, drop a thrilling gem of gladness into the heart of your fellowman by the smile you can give when you look in upon his face and behold his burdens.

The bill that has been introduced in the legislature requiring sheriffs and tax collectors to advertise the time when taxes shall become due and penalties, is a good measure and from a logical standpoint, such a law would have a tendency to reduce the delinquent list.

It has been officially announced that Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte will soon retire from the cabinet and Norman H. Newbury, now his first assistant, will succeed him. Newbury is a Detroit millionaire and a warm personal friend of the president.

Convinced of the sincerity of the assurances received from France regarding her loyalty to the Monroe doctrine and all that it involves, the Washington Government has given the Paris Government a free hand in the execution of the program for the solution of the Venezuelan problem.

Don't forget that we are all human and the common purpose of each is to do the best we can. Our neighbor, by personal instinct, differs from us.
Every man has a reason for the belief that is in him, and the greatest blunder anyone can make is to haughtily
ridicule the convictions of another.
The vindictive soul is dwarfed in its brotherly attributes. Remember that all men should be brothers, but not twins for happiness sake.

Regardless of the fact that the records show that the court of appeals reversed the decision of about fifty percent. of the cases decided in the lower courts because of incompetent ruling,
thus casting reflection upon Kentucky's judgeship. Yet, Gov. Beckham asks that the Legislature take from the jury and the people the right to assess the penalty and asks that it be placed in the hands of the circuit judge.
Could the circuit judge be eliminated from partisan politics we might be able to see the wisdom of the recommendation.

Have you renewed your subscription to THE RECORD? The equipping of our new plant has gone steadily on ever since the fire of last March in full conscience that our readers would appreciate our effort and help us to make THE RECORD the best paper of its kind in the State. It has already commanded respect and attention at home and abroad. It is your paper as well as ours. In our effort to make it what we desire for, we may be criticized here or there, but let us all lend our influence toward its success, and our word for it after years will not be regretted.

Too much money is asked for the building of the new State Capitol.
It is needless to say that the legislature is not likely to appropriate the amount now asked for. Expenditures reported thus far are as follows: $32,- $37 for work; $34,396.40 out of special appropriation of $40,000 for purchase of site for the building; salary of secretary and superintendent, $5,506.65;
commission received, $520.90, for sale of old house on the site. One million dollars is sufficient to build a Capitol that any citizen of Kentucky
can take pride in but neither, one, two or three million will avail if it is all taken up in high salaries and hundred disbursements that are unequalled for.
There is one thing that should have attention, but which is not likely to be given it at this time because of the heavy and often unreasonable appor-tions already asked for, and that is the State Normal school, for the training of teachers, that should be established. The trouble now, there are a few school men in the General assembly. This district broke the spell by sending a practical teacher of the public schools, but he belongs to the minority kind. We can not now hope for minority accomplishment.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature to prohibit the shipment of liquors into local option districts. That's the Kentucky legislature, too.

It looks as if the Kentucky legislature intends to do the foolish thing of requiring or attempting to require one convicted of carrying concealed a deadly weapon to the governor for a pardon.
Such an act would be a flagrant violation of the constitution. Our bill of rights provides that all citizens shall have justice administered without sale, denial or delay. Our constitution gives the governor the unqualified right to grant pardons. This right cannot be taken away or abridged, by an act of the legislature. Furthermore all convicted criminals should fare alike.
Under this act the rich could buy a pardon while the poor man could not.
Under the law the jury may fix the fine at $100 if they so elect. This proposed law is a waste of time. Suppose the legislators who are so keen to suppress pistol "toting" get a trifle
busy about that provision of the constitution they have sworn to uphold,
and pass a law fixing penalties for public officers accepting and railroads
for giving passes.—Henderson Gleaner.

WASHINGTON LETTER

From Our Regular Correspondent

This is a pretty severe arraignment of congress, coming as it does from the secretary of state who is admittedly a good business man and a good lawyer
and one who knows conditions at home and abroad. The worst of it is that it is all true. The senate regards the consular service as too good a repository of debt paying patronage to want to see it reformed. And that is the secret of the amendments to the consular bill
just when the whole country is clamoring for a reform in the service and when the state department is doing its best to furnish the reform.

There has been a small row that may develop into a sensational case in the hearing of Poultney Bigelow before the senate committee on inter-ocean canals.
Mr. Bigelow has refused to answer some of the questions put to him on the ground that they would involve the means of persons who had talked to him in confidence about isthmian affairs. The committee has already decided that Mr. Bigelow is in contempt and there is a possibility that he may be put in jail to reconsider the matter. Possibly the senate may go to this length for it is jealous of its dignity. But, if it does, there is a serious question whether it will get more out of Mr. Bigelow than it could out of a great many other witnesses and the contempt proceedings, if they are instituted, will be one of the best advertisements for Mr. Bigelow's books and magazine stories that could possibly be advised.

The Keep commission report on the method of the agricultural department in collecting crop statistics has been submitted to the president, and now all that is needed is congressional action
to clinch the good work that has already been begun. The report is the result of months of patient study. It shows where the methods of the department are at fault and points out some of the remedies. It also recommends the transfer of acreage reports to the census bureau. This last is a matter that will have to be dealt with by congress
since the making of the reports by the agricultural department is fixed by law.
The secretary of agriculture says that some of the changes and improvements in method that have been suggested by the commission have already been put in force. The secretary's contention is that the work of the department since the reorganization of the bureau of statistics has been accurate and satisfactory. He says he is willing to make improvements if they are pointed out to him, but leaves the inference that he has not found any such suggestions
in the commission's report.

Secretary Root did not lose the opportunity to unburden himself of a few thoughts in regard to China, too. He said that it was arrant nonsense to send a commission to China to study the existing conditions. Said he: "If you gentlemen want to come up to the state department we can bury you so deep in Chinese reports that you won't dig out for a week. They are reports too, made by the consuls in China and by men who have almost a lifelong acquaintance with China and the Chinese language and customs. What we want is not more information but more action. The Chinese exclusion law is wrong in principle and has been harshly and unjustly administered. The president has attended to the administration end of it and there will henceforth be much less to complain of in that line. But the law itself is wrong.
We do not want to let China coolies
into this country, but we want a law that will keep them out and will not at the same time work as an insult to the respectable Chinese merchants, business men and students who come over here. That is a matter that congress will have to deal with. We want the law justly and humanely administered,

but we want a new law at the same time.

Secretary Root, while appearing before the appropriations committee of the House this week took occasion to say a few words on the consular system. He pointed out facts that ought to be perfectly well known to congress at large, but which, considering the way that the consular bill has been emasculated in the senate, would seem either to be unpleasant truths to which congress would rather shut its eyes or else facts in which they do not believe.

Here are some of the things that Secretary Root said:
"The American consulates in many places are in bad shape. Congress knows the conditions and the reasons
as well as anyone. The consular service has been from long custom made the stronghold of the spoils system and has been used as a berth into which to shove any eminently respectable citizen who had outlived his usefulness elsewhere and who needed to be taken care of. The object of the consular service and consular salaries seems to have been to pay political debts and not to put live Americans abroad to foster
American trade. Important clerkships in foreign consulates have too often been held by natives of the countries to which the consuls were accredited and not by Americans, this to the detriment of American trade. The provisions of the consular reform bill for the examination of young men and promotions based on seniority and ability have been stricken out by the senate, and while some provisions of importance
have been left in, it is a question whether even the amended bill will pass."

At the Turn of the Year.
"Father mine hour is come! The twelfth stroke falls,
I faint before Thy Throne amid the
snows!
Here at Thy feet the burden I lay down—
A heart, all deep despair and bitterness,
For deeds undone that I was given
to do,
And many a battle lost upon the way.
My strength diminished to this feeble
end,
Weary and old I die; my youth's fair
dreams
Forever vanished in this cold, gray
mist;
The firs and hemlocks, black above the
snows,
Like shades of passions spent, envi-
ron me;
Sorrow alone remains, and vain regret,
Remembering the promise of my spring!"
Down from High Rings of ever-circling Light,
Stooped pityingly the Lord of Heaven
and Earth,
And laid His touch upon the dying
year.
"Beloved, rise! I give to thee again
Thy radiant youth, more glorious than
of old;
Sweeter and wiser, stronger with each
death,
For the endeavor and the burdens
borne.
From cycle unto cycle! Go, once more;
And love and strive and conquer!
Thou art mine,
And Mine the Event, and will not forsake.
Lo! in the East the star shines! It is Morn."

Do We Need "Elastic Currency?"

"Yes, yes," answered Jacob Schiff, Secretary Shaw, and practically every banker in the country.
"Not so," replies Albert Griffin, of Topeka, Kas., author of the "Hocus Pocus Money Book," in an article in the forthcoming February number of Watson's Magazine, written long before Mr. Schiff's recent speech. "We want stable money, a stable currency
—not one that fluctuates." Mr. Griffin shows that while in 1888 the bankers drew interest on $3.41 of loans for every dollar of loanable capital they owned, yet by 1905 they had managed to draw interest on $256.89 for every dollar of loanable capital belonging to them. In 1888 they had $1,700,000,000 more deposits than they had cash to pay with, and in 1905 they had $7,900, 000,000 more deposits than cash—an increase of over 54 billion of bank-ledger, "hocus pocus" money. Do you see why they want some "elastic"
bank notes?

Western Asylum Improvements.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 24.—After spending the entire day yesterday in inspecting the Western Kentucky Asylum for the Insane, the joint legislative committees on charitable institutions
took their leave last night, all of them
expressing themselves as heartily in favor of the appropriation of $35,000 which has been asked for.

The appropriation of $35,000 asked for is to cover the cost of new machinery and additions as follows: Laundry $15,000; engine, dynamos and ice machine, $1,200; kitchen, $2,000; baker shop and fixtures, $6,000. The committee was shown all over these departments, as well as the entire main building, and several times the committeemen asked if the amount asked for would cover the cost. They were all impressed with the general indication of orderly tidiness throughout the institution, and warmly praised Dr.
Board and his assistants for their good work, and expressed themselves as being not only in favor of this appropriation, but also willing to help the doctor in any other of his charitable improvement.

Verdict for Five Thousand Dollars.

A dispatch from Paducah states that
J. P. Pierce received a verdict of $5,000 in the damage suit of J. P. Pierce, administrator of Malcom Greenlee vs.
the Paducah Electric Street Car Co.
Greenlee was a motorman on a street car and was killed last summer while on duty reversing his car in front of the Richmond hotel, being run into by a runaway car. The evidence in the case showed that the superintendent of the company knew that the crippled
car was in service.

Young Greenlee was a native of this county and the nephew of J. P. Pierce of this city. The case came up in the Paducah circuit court and Mr. Pierce has been there this week in attendance.
He will likely return home tomorrow.

COURT PROCEEDINGS— IMPORTANT NOTES

Appropriation to Repair Court House Is More Than Necessary—$1000 Being Allowed.

Land processioners for the county whose duty it is to establish lines and corners on real estate when called upon, have been appointed by the county judge as follows: Ira Hughes, W. A. Woodall and Geo. H. Foster.

In the quarterly court Monday, the case of J. P. Reed against G. W. Sutton was settled. Mr. Reed claimed $45 for rents, etc. A counter claim was presented by the defendant and Mr. Reed received judgment for $30.

Several small cases were disposed of by default judgment, and the case of J. H. King against Mitchell with several other cases, was continued.

Repair work on the court house is being done under the direction of Judge Blackburn. The fiscal court ordered that if necessary $1000 be expended in repairing the building, but Judge Blackburn thinks that the necessary repair can be done with less money. Broken down floors in some of the offices have been caught up, doors have been repaired and among other things the building is to receive a fresh coat of paint. One of the most noticeable changes to be made will be the removal of the dome. The fiscal court ordered this removed because of the very bad condition in which it was.

The brick about the base was all rotten and crumbling and it was feared that it might fall. Especially on such windy days as some we have been having lately, it was dangerous to life and property. It is being removed and the roof will be merely covered over in its stead. Judge Blackburn expressed regrets at being called upon to remove this as he said the building would present a rather odd appearance.

Probably Fatally Burned.

Princeton, Ind., Jan. 24.—Miss Louisa Young, an aged spinster living three miles south of this city, was probably fatally burned today while carrying a shovel full of fire from one room to another.

In some unexplainable manner the coals set her dress on fire and before she realized her condition was a mass of flames. Her clothing was almost burned from her body. She sustained terrible burns about the upper part of her body and her arms and hands.

Miss Young is 75 years of age and her condition is serious.

ROBERT NEWTON WALKER SUCCEUMBS TO DEATH

One of the Oldest and Most Prominent Residents of the City—In His Seventy-third Year.

Wednesday morning at 8:45 o'clock the life of Robert Newton Walker, one of the oldest and most prominent residents of the city passed out, in his seventy-third year. Mr. Walker was the father of R. C. Walker, of Grand Junction, Col. who, as a citizen of Marion and publisher of a local newspaper attained a point second to that of no journalist in the state.

The deceased leaves a wife, one son, R. C. Walker, of Grand Junction, Col., and five daughters, as follows:

Mrs. D. B. Moore and Ed Doss, of this city, Jesse Olive, of Eddyville, Henry Ledbetter, of Elizabethtown, Ill., and Miss Nelle Walker, of this city.

The deceased was a native of this county and was born and reared near the village of Tolu on the Ohio river. While yet a farmer, Mr. Walker as a young man met and wooed Miss Sarah J. Clement.

He was elected sheriff of the county in 1868 and moved to the city and was re-elected the following term, 1870, the terms lasting two years each at that day. After this he continued to reside here where he has since lived, first engaging in the tobacco business, being a member of a local firm, Walker, Wilson & Co. He was in this business for three years, after which, with P. H. Woods, now of Ardmore, I. T., he engaged in the dry goods business for several years. He then with his son-in-law, Jesse Olive, engaged in the furniture business and continued in that until about six or seven years ago, when the firm, Walker & Olive, dissolved and Walker has since been retired from business.

The news of this death will be heard with universal regret wherever the deceased was known. He had been in failing health for some time, but his recent intense suffering came rather suddenly.

He was a member of the M. E. church here from which the funeral will be conducted Saturday, being delayed to await the arrival of R. C. Walker, who left Grand Junction Wednesday morning and will arrive here this afternoon.

The funeral will be preached by Rev. J. R. McAfee and the interment will be in the new cemetery.

How He Got His Nest Egg

Who does not remember some school mate who was especially antagonistic to Morgan Enright was so to me. I was two years older than he, and we were respectively seventeen and fifteen he tyrannized over me. At fifteen I was fully as tall as he, though not as well developed. At any rate I gave him a good thrashing, and he ended his annoying me, though his ugliness toward me was increased. When I began to earn a living I was attracted by the large sums paid to divers and became a diver. The truth is, I was in love, and being strong to marry, chose that which promised to enable me to secure a nest egg. My sweetheart didn't approve of my occupation at all, but, like me, wanted the nest egg. However, I had a mother to take care of, and the nest egg failed to appear. I was pretty well discouraged when something happened that very nearly rendered it unnecessary.
A ship had gone down close to shore on which there was heavy insurance. A diver was to be sent down representing the underwriters, together with one representing the owners and the captain. I was chosen to represent the underwriters. I was standing on the boat in diver's rig, all except the helmet, waiting for the owners' diver, when a boat pulled off from the shore, and when it came near enough who should be in it but Morgan Enright. He was as much astonished to see me as I was to see him. Neither knew that the other was a diver, much less that we were to go down together, but we were boys no longer, and I offered him my hand. He took it, but the look on his face froze the marrow in my bones — a look that I did not fully understand till later.
Well, we struck bottom about the same time on a stretch of white sand. The ship was in a good position for inspection, for her bow had come down on a ledge of rock that lifted it above the sand and only a few feet above our heads. It was no secret that I was there to look for foul play, and the place to find it was on the ship's bottom. I walked along, looking upward, till at last my head was even with the inclining bottom, and after that I was obliged to stoop. Enright accompanied me, also looking. He soon got ahead of me and motioned me to come on, shaking his head as if to say that he had been looking carefully where I was hunting and had found nothing. I looked all the more carefully and at one place, poking my finger in an indentation, found a hole. I succeeded in pushing my fist through the bottom and into the ship. Enright turned back and saw me stooping, with my arm thrust into the hole. He came up to me and the first thing I knew scared me around the body and gave me a wrench that broke my arm. It occurred to me at once that he had been sent down by the owners to foil an attempt to discover, or at least report on the scuttling of the vessel. Quick as a flash of lightning all that had passed between me and him from the first blow he had given me before I was old enough to protect myself till the day I had thrashed him came up before me. And now he was to take his revenge fifty feet under water. He was to kill two birds with one stone — have his revenge and prevent my reporting the scuttling of the ship.
Realizing that, handicapped as I was, I would be no match for him in a struggle, I pretended to faint and sank down on the sand. He raised his head and brought it down on the glass over my face, but its thickness, together with the resistance of the water under his foot, saved me. He failed in the attempt. Then he took a knife from his pocket and cut the signal line. He was too late, for I managed to give the signal to be raised. When he saw me rising he cut the rope that was lifting me, and I sank again on the sand. Then seeing that I was cut off from success he gave the signal to be taken up. As he was rising I saw one chance for my life. Enrighting his leg with my sound arm, I clung with the strength of despair. Had he been above water he might have shaken me off. As it was, he was unable to do so. The men above, feeling the extra weight, pulled hard, and before my enemy could do anything to prevent we were both at the surface.
As soon as I saw that I was saved I fainted. When I came to myself Enright had gone, but, turning my eyes toward the shore, I saw him pulling for the dock with furious strokes. Hurriedly I called on those standing by to stop him, and two of them, entering another boat, reached the dock in time to prevent him from getting away.
When the underwriters heard my story they resolved to push both the owners, the captain of the ship and especially Enright to the wall. They had no end of money with which to do the job and landed every one connected with the swindle in state prison. The courts couldn't hang Enright, as he deserved, because he had not succeeded in taking my life, but the judge gave him twenty years, and he still has ten of them to serve.
That was my last trip under water. No man could get me to put on a helmet for any money, but it has not been necessary. I had saved the insurance to the underwriters, coming within an ace of losing my life in doing so. They made up a purse for me, each putting in $2,000, and as there were seven of them you can figure that I got my nest egg. Besides, I have been in their employ ever since. I was married that autumn and have lived comfortably on my salary and the interest of my capital, which has been steadily growing.

A Great Deal of Fluffy White Is Worn About the Neck.

THE EVER POPULAR PRINCESS

The New Rain Coats Are Made in the Richest Colors—Hand Painted Velvet Belts—The Continuing Popularity of the Bolero.

To make a gown becoming there must be plenty of white around the neck in the form of lace, muslin or chiffon. Irish point and many creamy soft stuffs are used for chemisettes. Stiff linen collars are very smart with tailored gowns, but women past their first youth should be careful how they wear these trying effects. The bows to be worn with linen collars are of microscopic size and are made by taking the ribbon over the top of the collar band so that it shows between the turnover division and then making a bow so small that it will barely tie.

BLACK CHIFFON FROCK.

A series of tiny bows gradually diminishing in size connected with links of ribbon is a pretty neck trimming. They are made upon a little crimoline foundation and pinned on separately.

The princess gown is undoubtedly the most fashionable model of the season, and so cleverly are materials manufactured that this dress, with its long, graceful lines, can be made becoming to almost every figure.

The evening gown in the picture is of black chiffon. The skirt is elaborately trimmed with applications of lace edged with satin quilting. The low bodice has the same inset just above the waist line and about the full puffed sleeves. A girle of black panne velvet encircles the waist.

SARTORIAL NOVELTIES.

The new rain coat is not, as was the old one, of somber and unbecoming hue. The richest colors distinguish many of these useful coats. Instead of the former plain surfaces there are hair stripes, little checks and fancy plaids. The buttons of such coats are made of the same material and are very small. Except in a modest trio upon the sleeve, perhaps, they are often not seen at all, for a number of the single-breasted coats close with fly fronts.

Among the more expensive novelties of the season are hand painted velvet

belts, which are exceedingly effective. A charming combination was recently displayed consisting of a short coat of chinchilla drawn in at the waist with a broad belt of pale gray chiffon velvet, adorned with a beautiful hand painted design of pale blue and pink forget-me-nots.

The popularity of the bolero is undoubtedly due to the fact that it can always be made to look charming. Some of the latest boleros are more like short coats, while others are little more than a deep yoke or fichu. For gowns it is the small bolero that is chosen, the coat being left for the tailor made suits. This small bolero comes to a finish just under the arms, meeting across the front or not, according to the trimming of the bolero.

The waist illustrated is a simple and attractive design. Over the lace yoke and narrow vest is a fanciful arrangement of silk braid. The sleeves have deep lace cuffs trimmed with rows of braid.

COSTUME TRIFLES.

Princess styles have invaded the realm of the wrapper and lounging robes with the prettiest results. Instead of the loose, full negligees tied with broad ribbon into a semblance of shape the new designs have tucks outlining the waist or rows of shirrings arranged in the form of a girle. Every soft, lightweight material is used, but perhaps French flannel is the most serviceable of them all.

In the new lingerie blouses blind embroidery, eyelet and drawn work are flung together with an artless art that is perfectly fascinating, with here and there a tiny Japanese dragon thrown in by way of originality.

Fillet lace, which created such a furore in Paris last year, is a winner here this winter. On blouses a single square medallion displaying a heraldic design or a conventional flower darned in is a pretty yoke trimming, helped out by the aid of embroidered medallions edged with lace.

The hat sketched is a white felt trimmed with pastel shades in pink and empire green. The roses are pink and the chon green. The feather under the brim is pale green and the plume curling over the brim Du Barry rose.

NEWSY DRESS NOTES.

Collar and cuff sets of ecru batiste embroidered in French knots are done by hand in pale blue cotton. They are cut in deep points and buttonholed in ecru cotton.

The newest blouse is of stockinet with a fine and silky gloss that distinguishes it from the old time jersey fabric. It is plaited in shirt waist style and has full tucked sleeves with deep cuffs. The fastening is in the back. It has no trimming, depending for effect upon its rich, shining texture.

FUR JACKET.

for modishness. This blouse is especially designed for slipping on under heavy winter coats.

Painted velvet belts are worn with short fur coats.

Du Barry scarfs in plain and Persian effects are wonderfully convenient and attractive to protect dainty shirt waists from contact with dark coats.

All kinds of old fashioned jewelry are in the height of modishness. Big cameo and carnelian brooches are used for belt buckles. They are sometimes mounted on a regulation belt clasp, but their owners usually prefer to use the old fastenings. Whatever the jewel worn, it must be something decidedly unobtrusive and unique.

The little strap of black velvet affected by "before the war" beauties is appealing once more to the belles of today. They are worn, of course, with a collarless bodice, and on them is hung a quaint little locket. The velvet is clasped with a pretty jewel in the back.

The stunning jacket pictured is of sable and is the latest cult in furs. The cut is decidedly Parisian and could be carried out successfully in cloth or less expensive fur edged with stitched velvet and equipped with a waistcoat of the same fabric richly embroidered.

DARK BROWN TASTE

Nothing makes you feel as miserable as a bilious, nauseating dark brown taste. Yours may be the most innocent dark brown taste in the world, or it may be the result of bending your arm—chop suey—or those things. You matter how you got it, you can only get rid of it by cleaning out your stomach and bowels. Waste no time but begin at once to take

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

It will make you feel new all over, clear your brain, relieve all discomfort, restore your appetite. No other medicine like it in effect or result.

Fred A. Brackett, of Des Moines, Ia., writes: "It gives me pleasure to attest to the curative powers of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is an aid to digestion and cures constipation, and is a valuable remedy to have in any house. After being out late, I often take a dose before retiring, and wake up the next morning with a clear brain, ready for the business of the day."

EUGENE L. HARPENDING APPOINTED POSTMASTER

And Will Assume Charge at Once of the Postoffice at the Town of Salem, Kentucky.

The fight for the Salem postoffice, in which parties at that place were very much interested, has resulted in the appointment of Eugene L. Harpending, a bright young Republican.

A change in postmasterhip at the Salem office became necessary, because of the resignation of Miss Nettie Grassham, who resigned to go West where the climate was more inviting to her health and where a good position awaited her. The two leading candidates for the office were Messrs. J. O. Gray and E. L. Harpending, although, toward the close, other parties asked for the place.

Mr. Harpending should congratulate himself over the successful fight he made, and with reference to his conduct of the office, it is safe to say that he will always try to deport himself in a way that will be pleasing to his constituency. As soon as his commission arrives, Mr. Harpending will assume charge of the office which is to be kept in the Masonic building at that place.

Both Mr. Gray and Mr. Harpending had strong endorsements, but, perhaps the success of Mr. Harpending rested in his ability to secure the endorsement of Mr. Speight.

The Good Old Way.

A severe cold or attack of la grippe is like a fire, the sooner you combat it the better your chances are to overpower it. But few mothers in this age are willing to do the necessary work required to give a good, old fashioned, reliable treatment such as would be administered by their grandmothers, backed by Boschee's German Syrup, which was always liberally used in connection with the home treatment of olds and is still in greater household favor than any known remedy. But even without the application of the old fashioned aids, German Syrup will cure a severe cold in quick time. It will cure colds in children or grown people. It relieves the congested organs, allays the irritation and effectively stops the cough. Any child will take it. It is invaluable in a household of children. Trial size bottle, 25c; regular size, 75c. For sale by Woods & Orme.

A FEW PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS

For the Patrons of the R. F. D. Routes and Others Concerned. "Little Things Added Together Make Big Things and Which Can be as Easily Done as Not."

1. You will be doing your carrier a great favor if you will stamp all your mail before putting same in box, either by putting on the ordinary stamps, or, better yet, use the government stamped envelopes with your name written upon upper left-hand corner. This will guarantee delivery or return of the letter.
2. In case you should not have the stamps or the stamped envelopes, wrap the necessary amount up in paper and fasten to letter in some good manner, remembering that in cold weather if the money is put in box loose the carrier has to take off his gloves or mittens to get hold of these loose pennies.
3. In addressing your letter do not write above the middle of the envelope, because the letter has to be plainly postmarked and the address may be partly blurred by being struck with the postmarking stamp.
4. You will also help the handling of the mail by always putting the stamp in the upper right-hand corner.
5. In addressing a letter to a visitor or some one who is not a regular patron of a rural route or postoffice, you will be helping the service by marking on the envelope, in whose care the letter or package should go.
6. If you have visitors kindly give the carrier their name by putting slip in box.
7. In regard to boxes—Help your carrier by having a good one in a GOOD, EASY PLACE TO DRIVE UP TO, and oil the hinges occasionally.
8. Mail boxes are protected by the government—any tampering with them by anyone not interested should be reported at once to your postmaster.
9. Anything deposited in boxes is counted mail matter and is subject to ordinary postage rates.
10. It is suggested that the patrons buy their stamps ahead and so do away with the penny business.

CLOSE TIES.

Paris, Jan. 17.—An extraordinary double marriage here to-day was that of the twin brothers Charneau well known painters, to the twin sisters Renaud, their cousins.

Alphonse and Gabriel Charneau are so positively alike that they have often been made the victims of ludicrous mistakes. The brothers are so fond of each other that they had resolved never to marry. Both of them fell in love almost simultaneously, however, their sweethearts are also almost indistinguishable, and mistakes occurred so frequently that they had to adopt different costumes.

Both the couples are now living in the same house.
