KENTUCKY GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

Mr. F. Julius Fohs Has Completed the Preliminary Work in Lyon County.

Mr. F. Julius Fohs, of the State Geological survey, was interviewed by a PRESS reporter on his return last week from Lyon county, where he had practically completed his preliminary work. Owing to the resignation of the Topographic assistant who was with Mr. Fohs last year and also in the first part of the season, the topographic work has been temporarily delayed, but will be resumed July second and will be pushed. The object of the work which Mr. Fohs is doing is to supply maps which will be of practical value to the mining men of the district in the location of the veins and faults, as well as to prepare a more detailed report on the lead, zinc and spar deposits of Western Kentucky. Last year was spent in field work in Livingston Crittenden and Caldwell counties, etc., detailed surveys having been executed in Livingston and Western Crittenden, while preliminary work was carried on in Caldwell, Lyon, Christian and Trigg. The winter season was spent in the preparation of a detailed report, consisting of about 400 pages, about 20 maps, numerous explanatory drawings, and photographs on "Livingston County, Its Mineral Veins and Other Resources," while the general report on the district was also begun. The former report is in the printer's hands. The field season has been spent so far in detailed work in Caldwell, and further work in Lyon, while work is to be taken up in Trigg the present week, and later Christian and eastern Crittenden will be taken up in the order named. When asked what he thought of the proposed agitation a topographic-geological survey by the U. S. Geological Survey he said:

"My information is, that the mapping which is being carried on in cooperation (that is jointly) by the Kentucky and U. S. Geological Surveys, is being extended westward as rapidly as funds available will permit. It has been thought necessary to 'agitate' the question, since Prof. Norwood, State Geologist, at once took up the matter of making topographic maps of the western regions as soon as the act of 1904 became a law, and he has been pushing the work in this direction as rapidly as circumstances will allow. A party under Mr. Berry is even now at work on a 15 minute quadrangle that will be in the eastern part of Crittenden, say east from a point 4 or 5 miles east of Marion, thus including practically all the coal measures other than outliers in Crittenden; this quadrangle also takes in part of Caldwell. Prof. Norwood has informed me that two or three additional quadrangles will be taken up next season. Of course with the funds at hand and the many other regions in the state requiring mapping, it is not practicable to cover the entire region in a year, or even in two years. I understand, from seven to ten thousand dollars to map a 30 mile quadrangle in this region. However, topographic mapping is a rapid work, work done this year for instance may not be put in map form and issued before a year has elapsed; possibly not before two years. As to the proposed geological survey by the U. S. Geological Survey, of course if the Survey can be secured to duplicate the work it has already done in this region, as is done in Professional Paper 36 Bulletin 255, as well as that which has been done, and is now in progress by the Kentucky Survey, we will have just that much more in the way of publications. I presume however that the U. S. Geological Survey is slow to undertake duplications.

"Having great interest in this district and realizing the necessity for detailed work which would be practical and of service at the earliest date practicable, and knowing the time which must elapse if we waited on the completion of topographical maps by the U. S. parties, Prof. Norwood decided upon the work I have in hand."

As to the character of map work being done Mr. Fohs said:

Two types of maps are being prepared; one a large map on a scale of 2 miles per inch, exhibiting the general relation of the fault zones and faults and veins to each other; the other, page maps on a scale of from 200 feet to 4000 feet per inch according to the amount of detail it is necessary to show, to determine the location of the veins and faults for practical work. In connection with such maps tables are prepared describing each rock outcrop that might have a bearing on the location of the veins, also each mine and prospect. A number in the table corresponds with a number on the sheet and data relative to what fault zone, fault or vein each is on or near, and in the latter case the direction and approximate distance from some fault or vein is also given. Finally the altitude of each point is given. In excess of 1000 elevations were determined by leveling in Livingston county, while about 400 were determined in Western Crittenden, and numerous less important points were determined by checked barometrical readings. It will thus be seen that very close topographical work has been done in the sections which warranted it; in fact much closer work than is done for the preparation of topographic maps which show contours. It was decided not to put contours on the maps made as it would unnecessarily complicate them and it would be of more practical value to give the precise elevation of the points, actually determined, which both layman and engineer could make use of, while if the latter desired contours for any particular section.

"The real application of a 'contoured' map is not understood by everybody; some persons have an exaggerated idea as to its value. There are cases, for example, where contours on a map simply disguise it, are in the way, and serve no useful purpose. The maps which the State Survey has made and is making in this district, are so constructed that they will prove of more practical value than if simply the ordinary form of topographic map had been made."

MRS. LUTHER MINNER DEAD.

Last Thursday Mrs. Luther Minner died at her home on the R. E. Flannery farm near Crittenden Springs. She was before her marriage Miss Minnie Ethridge of Lyon Co., and leaves besides her husband three children. She was a sister of Mrs. Robt. Yates of Sheridan. The funeral was preached by Rev. E. D. Boggess of Hurricane Methodist church of which she was a constant member. The burial was at the Love Grave Yard Friday and was largely attended, by sorrowing friends.

Barn Burned.

Saturday evening lightning struck the stock barn of W. E. Dowell, of Tolu, and it was destroyed by fire, together with all his saddles, harness, hay and corn and some fencing wire, and numerous other items. The loss is about $1000 with no insurance.

FIRST GOVERNOR OF OKLAHOMA

Lee Cruce, Ardmore's Favorite Son Will Be The Man.

[Ardmore Morning Democrat.]

In the first Governor of the new state the people want a level-headed, experienced business man instead of a professional politician. They want a man in whom there is no guile, against whom no man can offer a word of criticism. A governor of the whole people instead of one for the corporations.

The taxpayers must know they are in safe hands, sound hands, able hands and honest hands. They must have a man whose experience in the business world has been such that he can meet the great corporation lobbyists, know the ear-mark of their handiwork and thwart them without finching. He must be a man with a known conscience and reputation for doing the right without being influenced or coerced into varying a hair's breadth from what that conscience tells him is the greatest good to the greatest number—and in the count he must reckon the day laborer, the tiller of the soil, the small private independent business man, the peer of them all—the real salt of the earth. This first governor of the great state of Oklahoma will determine whether the people or the trusts and corporations are to control. And in view of all these things we again repeat, we must know our man.

The Chickasaw Nation offers such a man in the person of Lee Cruce of Ardmore. Mr. Cruce is a young, vigorous, thoroughly alive successful business man in all lines, from farmer to banker. He grew up a hard working Kentucky farmer boy, and continued as such until after his maturity. He then worked out for himself a thorough education; went into the mercantile business and for three years was acknowledged one of the most successful merchants in his section. But he had kept up his studies, later graduated in law and was admitted to the bar and came immediately to the Indian Territory where he was for ten years a member of the law firm of Cruce, Cruce & Cruce, and all the Southwest knows as well as the writer, how phenomenal was the success of the firm.

About four years ago a number of strong capitalists decided to put in a modern banking institution in the city of Ardmore, which was already supposed to have the best and strongest banks and bankers in the southwest. Lee Cruce was unanimously chosen as its directing executive head and remains there today, notwithstanding the fact that he is still heavily interested in farms and stock. Mr. Cruce is a mild mannered man, and as modest as a woman and tender hearted as a child, and yet he has a known and undisputed reputation for "going through the most intricate business problem in a way that is astounding to the political and financial schemer. Ardmore and the Chickasaw Nation claims Mr. Cruce as a man whose public and private life has been such as to inspire the love and confidence of ALL his friends, and neighbors, and that he is a man against whom no man could or would offer a word of criticism. Morally he is a model and he is one of the broadest minded and most liberal men one would wish to meet.

To the voter in all walks of life we offer Mr. Cruce's name, with the full understanding that if we have overdrawn the picture of Mr. Cruce, and that he is not even more than we claim, we give you a solemn obligation to withdraw his name.

New Hardware Firm.

Last Monday week an invoice was begun on the stock of the "Hina Hardware Co." in order to allow Felix Cox to take over the interest of C. E. Weldon, who now retires from the hardware business on account of his many other business interests and his official duties as county court clerk.

Mr. Cox needs no introduction at our hands. He is one of the representative and best farmers in the county, and knows the wants and needs of the farmers and will cater to that class of trade. He gives his personal attention to the business, and from now on will be found at his post. His son Virgil will also assist in the store.

Walters—Stembridge

Last Sunday Miss Dama Stembridge of the Iron Hill section, was led to the altar by J. C. Walters, of Crider. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. B. Blackburn in his usual impressive way, at the residence of the bride's brother, Sam Stembridge, in East Marion.

The bride is the daughter of H. R. Stembridge, one of the county's best citizens, and is a sister of Messrs. Sam and A. J. Stembridge of this city, and is entirely worthy of the man of her choice.

The groom is head miller for the Crider Milling Co., and stands high with all who know him. They left Sunday night for Crider where they will reside.

More Improvements.

Two more handsome brick residences will soon be erected in Marion for Judge Walter Blackburn and Gus Taylor, both of whom own beautiful lots adjoining each other on Poplar street next to Rowe Williams' new house. The work will begin just as soon as they can get brick and each building will be modern and up-to-date.

Marion has taken an upward step in the way of home building, the latest ones being marvels of beauty and convenience.

HURRAH FOR WATKINS!

Large Contract Made by Mayfield Man in Clay Pit Near Paris, Tenn.

Mayfield Messenger: Mr. Harry Watkins of the city and connected with the Kentucky Construction and Improvement Company, has returned from Paris, Tenn., where he closed quite an extensive deal with eastern capitalists, in which he sells the entire output of the Tennessee Ball & Sagger Clay Company. The plant is located near Whitlock, and is the next largest of the kind in the south. The daily capacity of this pit is almost as large as the Clay Switch, Pit and contains about the same kind of material, which is the finest in the world. This trade being made Mr. Watkins will have more time to devote to increasing the facilities of the Clay Switch plant.

The stockholders met at Morganfield several days ago and offered Mr. W. N. Jeffrey of Mayfield the management of this Tennessee pit, but Mr. Jeffrey declined, owing to devoting his time to the K. & I. Co., of which he is a big stockholder as well as having an interest in the Tennessee pit.

This Tennessee concern was organized about the first of the year, and Mr. Watkins is president. The contract just made is said to be the largest Clay contract ever made in America. Several Mayfield people who are stockholders are much pleased over the deal.

BRILLIANT SOCIAL EVENT

Operatic Cantata, "The Haymakers," At Opera House July 3d

A brilliant, artistic and social event will be the operatic cantata, "The Haymakers," by Sturgis talent, directed by Miss Mae Garner, Tuesday night, July 3d, at Marion opera house. This entertainment was given at Sturgis on the night of June 26, to a crowded house, and was pronounced a decided success. Reserved seats at popular prices will be on sale at Haynes & Taylor's drug store on Thursday, June 28th, and by reason of both the attractive program and the popularity of Miss Garner and other members of the company we bespeak for these, our neighboring people, a large and enthusiastic audience. Get your seats early, and avoid the rush.

Bought Grocery Store

R. C. Haynes yesterday afternoon bought of Charles Dickinson his store on Springfield Avenue. Mr. Haynes took charge of his new store this morning.—Springfield (Mo.) Leader.

Visits His Old Home.

Mr. Wm. Shewmaker and son, John and wife, of Joplin, Mo., were the guests of relatives in Marion and vicinity last week. Mr. Shewmaker is well known to many of our old citizens. He was born and reared in this county, but left here and located in Missouri in 1850 where he has since resided. While he has passed his three-score and ten, yet he possesses the vigorous step and active mind of many men several years younger. He is a brother of P. E. Shewmaker and Mrs. Angeline Holman, well known citizens of the county.

Secure a Good Position

A commendable feature of the Bowling Green Business University, Bowling Green, Ky., is that it not only gives its students a thorough and practical education, but also secures for them pleasant and profitable employment upon graduation. Any one contemplating taking a Commercial Course should write for Catalog and full particulars. Address Bowling Green Business University, Bowling Green, Ky.

A Change of Positions.

Miss Leaffa Wilborn who has for nearly five years occupied the position of chief clerk at the post office has retired from that place and is now cashier at the Record office.

Miss Wilborn has, by her gracious manner, won many friends in her conduct of the government affairs and the best wishes of every one who knows her will attend her where ever she may go.

Loving Case Continued.

The murder charge against Hammond H. Loving, who shot and killed H. A. Rose, was continued in the special term of circuit court yesterday until the regular term of the court.

The continuance was asked on account of the absence from the city of Dr. Sights and the enforced absence of Mrs. Gibson, who is ill. Both are important witnesses and hence the continuance.

Ice Plant Progressing Nicely.

The machineries are busy placing the machinery for the new ice plant and very soon it will be turning out the crystal blocks, of frozen comfort. Much delay has been caused by the lack water, but very soon the well will be deep enough to reach the stream that is inexhaustible and then the machine will start to turning out ice.

Will Get a Place.

FISHERS VILLAGE NOW A CAPITAL

Trondhjem Norway, Crowded With People For the Coronation.

Christiania, Norway, June 17.—Trondhjem, Norway, yesterday the city of fishers, today is the capital. Many of those who will participate in the coronation of King Haakon have already swelled the population and others are crowding North by steamers and trains. Gaiety over the confirmation of the country's independence will reach its full tide when King Haakon, Queen Maud, and the baby crown prince, Olaf, reach Trondhjem.

All over the country flies the flag of Norway. One hears tales that the radical Republicans object to the new monarchy. They calling Haakon "Mr. King," but undoubtedly the great majority genuinely welcome the new order of things which will reawaken patriotism which promises greater and finer accomplishments by the entire Norway nation.

The announcement that Emperor William will visit King Haakon in July has been received with great satisfaction. It will be the first visit of a foreign ruler to the established kingdom, therefore strongly appeals to the people.

Cured of Brights Disease.

Geo. A. Sherman, Lisbon Red Mills, Lawrence Co., N. Y., writes: "I had kidney disease for many years and had been treated by physicians for twelve years; had taken a well known kidney medicine and other remedies that were recommended but got no relief until I began using Foley's Kidney Cure. The first half bottle relieved me and four bottles have cured me of this terrible disease. Before I began taking Foley's Kidney Cure I had to make water about every fifteen minutes, day and night, and passed a brick-dust substance, and sometimes a slimy substance. I believe I would have died if I had not taken Foley's Kidney Cure. Woods & Orme.

Struck Down While Murdering a Woman.

Louisville, Ky., June 24.—While plunging a knife into the body of Sallie Anna Jordan, colored, whom he had previously shot, Dan Jones, also a negro, was struck in the back of the head by a boulder thrown by a white man, sustaining a fracture of the skull. It is believed that both will die.

The frightful affair took place this morning. Eleven times Jones sank the knife into the woman's body. The rock, timely thrown, hit him behind the right ear and crushed in the entire back of his skull. Insane jealousy and an argument over a ring valued at a trivial sum are the causes assigned for Jones' deed.

With one knee on her breast he plunged the knife time after time into her body. When after the eleventh stab, the woman who still struggled, Jones prepared calmly to select a vital spot. His weapon was raised and about to be plunged into the woman's heart, when the blow in the back of head felled him. The cutting was witnessed by no less than a hundred negroes, who stood paralyzed on the scene. A pedestrian, who happened on the scene, threw the rock and then calmly walked away. His identity could not be learned by the police.

When the ambulance arrived on scene and the surgeons went to Jones' side the horde of negroes remonstrated with them and asked them to let him die on the sidewalk while they watched his struggles. The police were forced to intercede before the physicians could remove the dying negro.

Will Cure Consumption.

A. A. Herren, Finch, Ark., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar is the best preparation for coughs, colds and lung trouble. I know that is has cured consumption in the first stages." You have never heard of any one using Foley's Honey and Tar and not being satisfied. Woods & Orme.

Letter from Washington.

Zillah, Wash., June 19.—Monday evening, June 4, at 8:30 p. m. Miss Myrtle Jacobs was given a surprise by several of her friends and relatives of Toppenish and Zillah.

Arriving at her home, taking all the family, also Mrs. Nona Woodall, who was there to spend the night, completely be surprise. They were welcomed in. They brought refreshments of candy, oranges and bananas, and Mr. C. E. Coppach, presented Miss Myrtle with a large box of nice candy.

Several games were played in the house, each one taking a part, and enjoying his or herself very much, then it was suggested that they go out on the lawn and play, as the house was crowded and real warm, so they all went out on the nice green lawn and had a game of "Drop the Handkerchief," and a game of "Old Kentucky Snap," each one taking a part and having a most delightful time. While Miss Myrtle, while running, struck her chin on another girl's shoulder and hurt the back of her neck; her neck popped so loud that all around her heard it, screamed and started to fall unconscious, when one of the boys caught her. She was carried into the house and a Doctor summoned at once, and with the Doctor's and other's care, she lay unconscious until Wednesday morning, when she rallied and began throwing up blood.

She has not been able to leave her bed since, and continues spitting up blood. At the present writing the doctor thinks she is hurt internally, and is thought to be in a dangerous condition.

All the crowd stayed till after midnight, and some all night, doing everything that could be done for her.

Those present were as follows:

Mrs. Lillie Hill and daughter Bertha, Harve Vinson and wife, Misses Carrie and Annie Jacobs, Mary and Cora Hill, Miss Lexie Shinall, Messrs. A. E. Coppach, H. Baecn, E. G. Rider, J. Harris, E. McDonald, J. Lindsey; Gilliam Jacobs, Ewell Hill, Robert Farmer, Fletcher Hamby, Mrs. Nona Woodall and baby.

A Texas Wonder.

There is a Hill at Bowie, Texas, that is twice as big as last year. This wonder is W. L. Hill, who from a weight of 90 pounds has grown to over 180. He says: "I suffered with a terrible cough, and doctors gave me up to die of consumption. I was reduced to 90 pounds, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption Coughs and Colds. Now, after taking 12 bottles, I have more than doubled in weight and am completely cured." Only sure Cough and Cold cure. Guaranteed by Woods & Orme, Druggists. 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free.

Millionaire Sleeps on Roof.

John Farson, millionaire banker, automobile enthusiast, and horse-show promoter, is the foremost advocate of fresh air in the west. He applies his teachings to his daily life says the Chicago correspondent of the Baltimore Sun.

Two weeks ago, on a sultry night, Mr. Farson arose from his bed, made a tour of the house, found an army cot, and dragged it out on the roof garden of his home and there he remained until dawn. The next day he had an awning erected over the garden and i. has been virtually his home since then.

There is no attempt at style in his roof garden home. Every thing is plain and simple and practical. A few chairs, a table, a settee, a few palms and the $3.60 army cot comprise the furnishings.

The Very Best Remedy for Bowel Trouble.

Mr. M. F. Borrowhs, an old and well known resident of Bluffton, Ind. says: "I regard Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as the very best remedy for bowel trouble. I make this statement after having used the remedy in my family for several years. I am never without it." This remedy is almost sure to be needed before the summer is over. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? For sale by Woods & Orme druggists.

THE IRONY OF FATE.

A Starving Man Who Stole a Quarter Gets Six Years.

New York, June 21.—Freedom for a man who pleaded guilty to stealing $100,000 which did not belong to him and appropriating the money and six years in prison for another, who stole 25 cents were the portions meted out to two prisoners yesterday. Henry Hirschman was a Member of the firm of Hirschman Bros. jobbers in gentleman's furnishings in 1902 and 1904. It is alleged that by deceit the firm obtained a high commercial rating, upon the strength of which they proceeded to buy over $100,000 worth of goods on credit, disposed of them at a forced sale for cash and invested the proceeds in real estate. Then they sailed for Europe. Last year the brothers were indicted for grand larceny.

When Henry was arraigned and entered a plea of guilty, a representative of the creditors appeared in court and asked that sentence be suspended as the prisoner was his brother and had made partial payment, and had promised to make full payment. Henry's brother Joseph will probably not be brought to trial.

The man who went to prison was Joan Clark, who has no home. He is 45 years old and has served two previous sentences in Sing Sing. He was walking up the Bowery a week ago when he saw a barber standing in front of his shop flipping silver quarters in the air. Clark sprang upon him and seizing a quarter he made for the nearest saloon. He had gone but a few steps before he ran into the arms of a policeman.

"I had to do this or starve," Clark explained to the judge when arraigned for sentence. "Whenever I try to get honest work the cops knock out."

Long Tennessee Fight.

For twenty years W. L. Rawls, of Celis, Tenn., fought nasal catarrh. He writes: "The swelling and soreness inside my nose was fearful, till I began applying Bucklen's Arnica Salve to the sore surface; this caused the soreness and swelling to disappear never to return." Best salve in existence. 25c at Woods & Orme, druggists.

Wooden Leg Saved Him.

Columbus, O., June 21.—Reuben Stanley, a ten year old lad, can certainly thank his good fortune for having a wooden leg, which proved to be his saviour yesterday from a watery grave. The boy was fishing near the state dam when his brother slipped and fell into thirty feet of water. The brother grabbed Reuben to save himself and he too was pulled in. There was sufficient buoyancy, however, in the wooden extremity to float him to shore, for the lad could not swim.

LETTER FROM TEXAS

Amarillo, Tex., June 17.—Mr. editor it is through your valuable paper that I wish to describe some of the western country through which I have traveled since leaving my old Crittenden county home, to my many friends and relatives who live back there, and would also be glad to have the privilege to give them any information that I can that would encourage them to come west, for I think chances are much better for a man in this country than back there.

My first stop after leaving home was at Demasus, Ark., which is a healthy locality; the land around there is a white sandy land, looks thin, but the people told me it produced better than it looks to. I left there and went to Stonewall, I. T., a business little town about three years old, and has about 600 inhabitants, surrounded by some fine farming land which is a black waxy land with just enough sand to make it easy to cultivate. The principal crop there is cotton and corn, and some wheat and hay. A man with small means can do very well leasing or renting land from the natives. You can lease 160 acres for a term of five years for $160 and put same under fence and build a house also. I don't think that country is healthy; they have chills and fever.

The healthiest place I was in in the territory was at Sulphur. It is noted for sulphur water. There are eleven springs and four artesian wells of sulphur water and one spring of bromide water, but I don't think the water is as strong with sulphur as that of old Crittenden Springs back there in Kentucky. That town is a great summer resort. Uncle Sam has an old soldier's home there for the old soldiers that are disabled and without homes. After leaving there I went to Oklahoma City and staid there a week while the old soldier's reunion was going on. That is one of the most up-to-date cities in the west. Shawnee is another thriving city.

After leaving Oklahoma City I went to Harper, Kan., over the Santa Fee railroad. Along this route are some fine farms and large orchards, and grape vineyards. Around Harper is fine wheat country.

After leaving Harper I went to Texico, N. M., which is a new town growing rapidly. That is a fine country if it was not so deep to the water level. They told me that plenty of water could be had at from 150 to 400 feet. The claims are rapidly being took up, and if they could only have sufficient rain fall it would be the finest farming country in the west. The land is a dark sandy loam. It would be hot there if it was not for the steady breeze that blows all the time. It is cool enough at night that you can sleep under two covers comfortable. That is a healthy country. There is not a stick of timber, only what has been shipped in, and no slushy wet land or stagnated water to obstruct good health, no decaying matter of any kind; the water seems to be pure and clear when it is pumped up.

After leaving there I came back through the Pecos Valley, one of the prettiest countries I ever saw from Texico to Canyon City, Tex. This valley is as beautiful a land scene as can be found any where on the plains. After leaving Canyon City on toward Amarillo, the city where I am now located, is broken in places, but around the city of Amarillo the land is nearly a level plain. This is one of the most important cities of the Pan Handle. It has a population of 7,500 and has three railroads; the Ft. Worth and Denver, the Chocktaw and Santa Fee and Pecos Valley. The Santa Fee has car shops here, and the Ft. Worth and Denver are making preparations to put in shops here right away. The business part of the city is built of brick and stone, and also has several branch wholesale houses. This is a good place for a working man to locate. They have a large ice plant, electric light plant, and water works, two steam laundries, five good schools and churches of all denominations. But after all the grandest features is the steam plows. They use the traction engine here to break the ground; they break from

Surveying the Ohio.

Two surveying parties will start about July 1 to finish the work of surveying the Ohio river from Pittsburgh to Cairo, which has been in progress for the last two years. Last summer and fall two parties were engaged in the work. One party took the soundings from Rising Sun to Louisville and the other party took both the soundings and precise levels from Louisville to Owensboro.

The first party will begin work at Owensboro and the party probably will begin work at Elizabethtown, Ill., and continue to Cairo. About forty-five men will be engaged in the work. It is expected the work will be finished by the time winter sets in. A party of four men, headed by J. M. Coons, by order of Capt. Burgess left Louisville last week in the little boat, "Wave," to set gages in order that the low water mark might be obtained by the surveying corps. It will take about ten days for this party to complete the work of setting the gages which will be at intervals of several miles.

The object of making the survey is to ascertain what it would probably cost to make a nine-foot stage of water in the Ohio the year round. The survey is made by act of Congress, resulting from the agitation of the Ohio River Improvement Association.

A BRIEF AND SIMPLE SERVICE

Marks the Funeral Of Ohio's Late Democratic Governor.

Milford, Ohio, June 21.—After a simple funeral service attended by high state officials, party associates and friends the body of John M. Patterson, late Governor of Ohio, was this afternoon consigned to the grave. At noon the residence had been opened to the public, and for two hours a steady stream of home people and State visitors kept passing the simple black casket in which the Governor lay until 2 o'clock, when the funeral services took place. Rev. Marion Leonard, pastor of the Milford M. E. church, was in charge and led the services.

The procession to the grave was then formed headed by the First Regiment, of Cincinnati, headed by Col. Hake. The casket was carried from the residence by eight privates, as active pall-bearers, and placed in the funeral car. The procession wended its way through the shady grove of Promont to the Perrington pike, and to Greenlawn cemetery, where the procession halted. The casket was carried to the family lot, and lowered into a steel vault. The interment was private, only the immediate family and pastor being at the grave.

The burial services were read by Rev. Mr. Leonard.

Outwits the Surgeon.

A complication of female troubles, with catarrh of the stomach and bowels, had reduced Mrs. Thos. S. Austin, of Leavenworth, Ind., to such a deplorable condition, that her doctor advised an operation; but her husband fearing fatal results, postponed this to try Electric Bitters; and to the amazement of all who knew her, this medicine completely cured her. Guaranteed cure for torpid liver, kidney disease, biliousness, jaundice, chills and fever, general debility, nervousness and blood poisoning. Best tonic made. Price 50c at Woods & Orme's Drug store. ### In Memoriam.

[JAMES HICKMAN WALKER.]

BY O. G. W.

How can I picture him that all may know
His form of dignity and eye serene,
His candid countenance and noble mien,
His smile ingenious and his serious brow,
How tell his love to stranger and to kin;
His truth, and sympathy, and counsel wise,
And willing help, that pillar to advice;
And benefactions men were proud to win?
Sweet virtues moved like music thro' his mind,
Resolving all to harmony, till forth
He journeyed, without speech, his home to find;
We weep, who stay, and garner up his worth,
And think him near, and in some happy clime,
Which holds no place for pain, no name for time.

CLEVER LADY NAVIGATOR.

MRS. ROSE E. WATKINS GRANT-ED PILOT'S LICENSE ON
ILLINOIS RIVER.A Model Housekeeper and Expert
Cook—Assists in Painting Engines of Steamers—Husband is Engineer of Boat of Which She is Pilot.

In the early spring of this year when the Steamboat Inspectors began their examinations at Chicago of the various applicants for license to handle steamers on the Illinois River, they were somewhat startled over the appearance of Mrs. Rose E. Watkins in the class, and only after a most thorough test as to her ability to handle a steamer was she issued a license.

Mrs. Watkins is the wife of Captain George T. Watkins and they own the boat with which they navigate the waters of the Illinois. For the last eight years Mrs. Watkins has made her home on her husband's boats. Their home was originally at Peoria, where Mrs. Watkins spent her girlhood days and before her marriage to Captain Watkins had taught school.

EXPERT IN RIVER NAVIGATION.

For the last four years they have put in the summer conducting an excursion business between Chicago and the scenic points down the Illinois River, including Starved Rock and the rapids and canyons surrounding it. Mrs. Watkins has been for years an expert in navigating these waters, but not until this spring did she formally apply for a pilot's license. While classed as a navigable stream, it has generally been regarded that the navigation of the Illinois ended at La Salle, but in spite of this the Watkins and one or two smaller craft have been regularly plying the upper reaches of the river. Last winter the steamboat men were notified that the boats on this section would have to comply with all the government regulations to carry regularly licensed pilots and engineers.

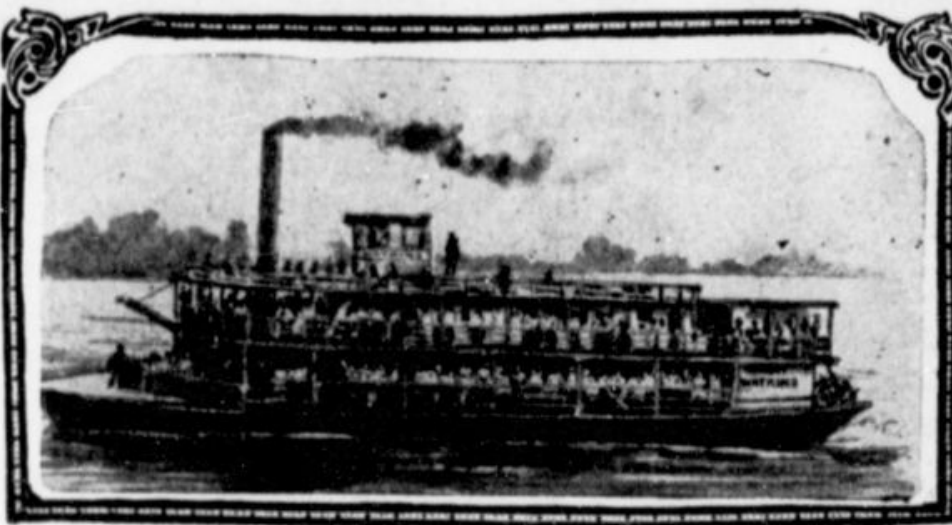

A few weeks later Inspectors Mansfield and Peck came to Ottawa to inspect the Watkins. Since Mrs. Watkins has secured her pilot's license there have been all sorts of stories in circulation as to that inspection. One romance reads that the inspectors found her seated at a table in the pilot house poring over a chart looking up the location of a recently discovered rock. It is a pity to spoil such a beautiful romance, but these are the hard, utilitarian facts in the case: The pilot house of the Watkins is too small to hold a table and Mrs. Watkins is much too busy to pore over a chart at this season of the year. Then the only really dangerous "snag" in the river at Starved Rock is the admission fee which the corporation that owns it charges before the sightseer and its tributaries. Mrs. Watkins is a modest and refined woman who is not given to boasting of her exploits along lines into which women seldom venture. But she takes a pardonable degree of pride in the fact that she is not an amateur pilot but is the real thing in that line.

DISPLAYS UNCOMMON ABILITY.

When the excursion season closes the Watkins not infrequently seek other business in the late fall and early spring on the lower reaches of the river and it is while engaged in this work that Mrs. Watkins has the opportunity to display her real ability as a navigator. She has brought the boat up the river in all conditions of wind and current and that, too, when it was handling a great barge piled high with props for the Spring Valley mines or with great walnut logs for a piano factory at Chicago.

As to her ability to handle a crew of deck hands there is a determined glint in her eye which indicates that she can do that also, and she can cook for them as well as she can direct their labors on board. There is nothing mannish or strenuous or new womanish about this lady master of the steamer Watkins—she is a model housekeeper and is household guardian angel for all the crew who dwell upon the boat. This is the plain story of a good woman, refined, pleasant and energetic, who does the work that comes to her thoroughly and who is surprised that her ability to handle a fair-sized fresh water craft should have attracted the attention that it undoubtedly has.

Interstate Commerce Commission.

An opinion at one time prevailed that the members of the interstate commerce commission had an easy time. A place on the board was characterized in the slang of the day as a "soft snap." However, this may once have been true, but it is not true now. The dispatches show that not only is

That the members of Congress are fond of a ball game was evidenced a few days ago when a call of the House—a desire to obtain a quorum of the members—caused the Sergeant-at-Arms to send out his deputies to arrest whatever members his squad could corral. Twenty-two Congressmen were gathered up from the grandstand and bleachers of the Washington Baseball Club, Mr. Nicholas Longworth and his wife being brought in from the President's box.

the attempt. The scheme cuts adrift absolutely from all other of the time-honored customs of traveling over the eternal ice of the Arctic zone. Mr. Wellman is no novice in arctic travel, as he has already made one attempt for the Pole, in the old fashioned way.

From Spitzbergen, Wellman, together with Maj. Henry B. Hersey, representing the United States Weather Bureau, and M. J. Smith, a wireless operator, will start in the biggest airship ever constructed on the 600-mile journey toward the goal of so many men's desires. If the airship works and the winds remain true to the analysis of them made by the Janssen expedition, the thing is done.

The North Pole is a terribly illusive sort of nonentity, and a thousand unforeseen calamities may be ready to pounce upon Walter Wellman and his plucky associates. Yet the quest is not an absolutely forlorn hope. To the American newspaper man may yet be given the honor of locating the North Pole, just as to a British newspaper man was given the glory of cutting Africa in twain.

The Princess' Bridal Dress.

Princess Ena's wedding dress attracted great interest in Spain, as it is truly a Spanish product, in fabric and finish, except for the wonderful Brussels lace, which was brought to adorn it. It was a fancy of the King and of the Queen-mother that the wedding dress should be made in Spain, and the Princess Ena graciously fell in with this patriotic sentiment. The dress is, therefore, one of the special presents from the King and is a marvel of elegance.

The silk was manufactured from a special pattern in one of the large Spanish silk establishments. It was made up with all the artistic skill of the court dressmakers. The silk is heavily overlaid with wonderful silver embroidery, with soft frills of the finest Brussels lace, said to have cost $50 a yard. The laces were publicly exhibited before being put on the dress, and excited the admiration and astonishment of even the aristocratic ladies of Madrid. Orange blossoms were profusely used with the silver embroideries and laces for the corsage,

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

The scenes of the story are laid in the 14th century. The monks of the Cistercian Monastery of Alby, assemble to witness the trial of a lay brother, known as Hordie John, upon numerous grave charges brought against him. He pleads guilty and is sentenced to be expelled from the Order and at the same time it is decreed that he be dragged forth and scourged from the Abbey's precincts. He threatens to assault a number of the brethren, and in the excitement escapes. Shortly after another of the lay brethren of the monastery, Alleyn, takes his departure from the monastery in accordance with provision of his father's will, that in his twentieth year he shall go forth into the world for one year to choose for himself his future calling. In sadness he wanders from the monastery on his way to visit his brother, the Sonman of Minstead whose reputation is a most unsavory one. Night coming on, he seeks shelter in a road-side inn.

CHAPTER III.

Though it was an autumn evening and somewhat warm, a huge fire of heaped billets of wood crackled and sparkled in a broad, open grate, some of the smoke escaping up a rude chimney, but the greater part rolling out into the room, so that the air was thick with it, and a man coming from without could scarce catch his breath. On this fire a great caldron bubbled and simmered, giving forth a rich and promising smell. Seated round it were a dozen or so folk, of all ages and conditions, who set up such a shout as Alleyn entered that he stood peering at them through the smoke, uncertain what this greeting might portend.

"A rouse! A rouse!" cried one rough-looking fellow in a tattered jerkin. "One more round of mead or ale, and the score to the last corner." "Tis the law of the Pied Merlin!" shouted another. "Ho, there, Dame Eliza! Here is fresh custom come to esters, lifted the big pot off the fire, and a third, with a huge pewter ladle, served out a portion of steaming collops to each guest. Alleyn bore his share and his ale-mug away with him to a retired trestle in the corner, where he could sip in peace and watch the strange scene, which was so different from those silent and well-ordered meals to which he was accustomed.

Three or four of the men round the fire were evidently under-keepers and verifiers from the forest, sunburned and bearded, with the quick restless eye and little movements of the deer among which they lived. Close to the corner of the chimney sat a middle-aged gleeman, clad in a faded garb of Norwich cloth, the tunic of which was so outgrown that it did but fasten at the neck and at the waist. His face was swollen and coarse, and his watery, protruding eyes spoke of a life which never wandered very far from the wine-pot. A gilt harp, blotched with many stains and two of its strings missing, was tucked under one of his arms, while with the other he scooped greedily at his platter. Next to him sat two other men of about the same age, one with a trimming of fur to his coat, which gave him a dignity which was evidently dearer to him than his comfort, for he still drew it round him in spite of the hot glare of the fagots. The other, clad in a dirty russet suit with a long sweeping doublet, had a cunning foxy face with keen twinkling eyes and a peaky beard. Next to him sat Hordie John, and beside him three other rough unkempt fellows with tangled beards and matted hair—free laborers from the adjoining farms, where small patches of freehold property had been suffered and even in dainty clusters along the train, which is four yards long.

According to Spanish traditions, the bride must at once present this wedding dress to the Virgin de la Paloma, the popular protectress of maternity.

"Naive" Questions.
Mrs. Alexander, the novelist, lives in Florence. There a young American woman recently interviewed her. "Mrs. Alexander was delightful," said the young woman. "She amused me very much. I, too, amused her—she thought me naive."

"Once, when I asked her a certain question about the financial side of novel writing, she declared that my question was as naive as that of a little Florentine child's that she had heard about the day before."

"This child, at dinner with her parents, turned to her mother and said: 'Mamma, where were you born?'"

"At Padua, darling."

"But I was born in Florence, wasn't I?"

"Yes, dear."

"And father, where was he born?"

"In Venice."

"The little girl looked gravely from one to the other."

"Isn't it funny," she said, "that we should all have met like this?"

the house, and not a drain for the company."

"I will take your orders, gentle: I will assuredly take your orders," the landlady answered, bustling in with her hands full of leathern drinking-cups. "What is it that you drink, then? Beer for the lads of the forest, mead for the gleeman, strong waters for the tinker, and wine for the rest. It is an old custom of the house, young sir. It has been the use at the Pied Merlin this many a year back that the company should drink to the health of the last comer. Is it your pleasure to humor it?"

"Why, good dame," said Alleyn, "I would not offend the customs of your house, but it is only sooth when I say that my purse is a thin one. As for as two pence will go, however, I shall be right glad to do my part."

"Plainly said and bravely spoken my suckling friar," roared a deep voice, and a heavy hand fell upon Alleyn's shoulder. Looking up, he saw beside him his former cloister companion, the renegade monk, Hordie John.

"By the thorn of Glastonbury! Ill days are coming upon Beaulieu," said he. "Here they have got rid in one day of the only two men within their walls—for I have had mine eyes upon thee, youngster, and I know that for all thy baby face there is the making of a man in thee."

While he was speaking the landlady came in again, bearing a broad platter, upon which stood all the beakers and flagons charred to the brim with the brown ale or the ruby wine. Behind her came a maid with a high pile of wooden plates, and a great sheet of spoons, one of which she handed round to each of the travellers. Two of the company, who were dressed in the weather-stained green doublet of for-

to remain scattered about in the heart of the royal demesne. The company was completed by a peasant in a rude dress of undyed sheepskin, with the old-fashioned gullskins about his legs, and a gayly dressed young man with striped cloak jagged at the edges and parti-colored hose, who looked about him with high disdain upon his face, and held a blue smelling flask to his nose with one hand while he brandished a busy spoon with the other. In the corner a very fat man was lying all asprawl upon a truss, snoring stertorously, and evidently in the last stage of drunkenness.

Alleyn listened to the talk which went on round the fire. "Elbow room for Floiting Merry!" cried a woodman. "Twang us a merry lilt."

"Aye, aye, the 'Lasses of Lancashire,'" one suggested.

"Or 'St. Simeon and the Devil,'" "Or the 'Jest of Hendy Tobias.'"

To all these suggestions the jongleur made no response, but sat with his eye fixed abstractedly upon the ceiling, as one who calls words to his mind. Then, with a sudden sweep across the strings, he broke out into a song so gross and so foul that ere he had finished a verse the pure-minded lad sprang to his feet with the blood tingling in his face.

"How can you sing such things?" he cried. "You, too, an old man who should be an example to others."

The wayfarers all gazed in the utmost astonishment at the interruption. "By the holy Decon of Hampole! our silent clerk has found his tongue," said one of the woodmen. "What is amiss with the song, then? How has it offended your babyship?"

"A milder and better-mannered song hath never been heard within these permitted to set foot on the shore that beautiful and historic spot. The plain facts in the case are that the inspectors made their official visit to the boat Mrs. Watkins was engaged in painting the engines. During the winter months the two Captains Watkins were engaged in overhauling and renovating their boat—a small task when one remembers that the boat can carry 600 passengers and its two decks.

As a result of the examination, which they recently underwent at Chicago, Captain George Watkins, an engineer's and a master's mate, while his wife holds a license as pilot and pilot which entitles her to pilot any craft up to 100 tons burden upon the waters of the Illinois the commission a very busy body, but that its activities are yielding much important information. Its inquiries into the methods of the railroads interested in coal, and into the practices of the Standard Oil Company in absorbing or freezing out opposition, are in the highest degree valuable to the public, and should lead to the redressing of many abuses. If the board were composed of twenty members, all could find work at this time in the field which as yet has been but scratched.

Wellman and the Pole.

As the time draws near for Walter Wellman, the newspaper correspondent, to make his proposed "dash for the North Pole" by means of an airship, the world at large is waking up to the vast daring and importance of walls!" cried another. "What sort of talk is this for a public inn?"

"Shall it be a litaney, my good clerk?" shouted a third; "or would a hymn be good enough to serve?"

The jongleur had put down his harp in high dudgeon. "Am I to be preached to by a child?" he cried, staring across at Alleyn with an inflamed and angry countenance. "Is a hairless infant to raise his tongue against me, when I sing in every fair from Tweed to Trent, and have twice been named aloud by the High Court of the Minstrels at Beverly? I shall sing no more to-night."

"Nay, but you will so," said one of the laborers. "Hil! Dame Eliza, bring a stoup of your best Will, to clear his throat. Go forward with thy song, and if our girl-faced clerk does not love it he can take to the road and go whence he came."

"Nay, but not too fast," broke in Hordle John. "There are words in this matter. It may be that my little comrade has been over-quick in reproach, he having gone early into the cloisters and seen little of the rough ways and words of the world. Yet there is truth in what he says, for as you know well, the song was not of the cleanest. I shall stand by him, therefore, and he shall neither be put out on the road, nor shall his ears be offended indoors."

"Indeed, your high and mighty grace," sneered one of the women, "have you in your south so ordained?"

"By the Virgin!" said a second. "I think that you may both chance to find yourselves upon the road before long."

"And so belabored as to be scarce able to crawl along it," cried a third. "Nay, I shall go! I shall go!" said Alleyn hurriedly, as Hordle John began to roll up his sleeves, and bare an arm like a log of mutton. "I would not have you brawl about me."

"Hush, hush!" he whispered. "I count them not a fly. They may find they have more to do than to stand there and know how to spin. Stand thou clear and give me space."

Both the foresters and the laborers had risen from their bench, and Dame Eliza and the travelling doctor had flung themselves between the two parties with soft words and soothing gestures, when the door of the Pied Merlin was flung violently open, and the attention of the company was drawn from their own quarrel to the newcomer who had burst so unceremoniously upon them.

CHAPTER IV
He was a middle-sized man, of most massive and robust build, with an arching chest and extraordinary breadth of shoulder. His shaven face was as brown as a hazel-unt, tanned and dried by the weather, with harsh well-marked features, which were not improved by a long white scar which stretched from the corner of his left nostril to the angle of the jaw. His eyes were bright and searching, with something of menace and of authority in their quick glances, and his mouth was firm-set and hard, as befitting one who was wont to set his face against danger. A straight sword by his side and a pointed long-bow jutting over his shoulder proclaimed his profession, while his scarred brigandine of chain-mail and his dented steel cap showed that he was no holiday soldier, but one who was even now fresh from the wars. A white surcoat, with the Lion of St. George in red upon the centre, covered his broad breast, while a sprig of new-plucked broom at the side of his head-gear gave a touch of Genoan velvet with twelve eils of purple silk. Thou, rascal, there is dirt on the hem! Thou hast brushed it against some wall, coustine!"

"Not I, most worthy sir," cried the carrier, shrinking away from the fierce eyes of the woman.

"I say yes, d'ye!" By the three kings! I have seen a man gasp out his breath for less. Had you gone through the pain and unease that I have done to earn these things you would be at more ease. I swear by my own finger bones that there is not one of them that hath not cost its weight in French blood! Four—a incense-bowl, a ewer of silver, a gold buckle, and a cope worked in pearls of St. Denis man made at the Church of St. Denis took them away with me lest they fall into the hands of the wicked. Five—a cloak of fur with stand and miniver, a gold goblet with stand and cover, and a box of rose-colored sugar. See that you lay them together. Six—a box of money, three pounds of it, mouline gold-work, a pair of boots, mouse-tanned, and lastly, a store of spicing linen. So, the tally is complete! Here is a great apiece, and you may go."

"Go whither, worthy sir?" asked one of the carriers.

"Whither? To the devil, if ye will. What is it to me? Now, ma belle, to supper. A pair of cold capons, a mortress of brown, or what you will, with a flask of the right Gascony. I have money in my pouch, my sweet, and I mean to spend them. Bring in wine while the food is dressing. But, my lady, have I said? You shall each empty a stoup with me."

There was an offer which the company in an English inn, at that or any other date, are slow to refuse. The laborers were regathered, and came back with the white foam dripping over their chins. Two of the woodmen and three of the laborers drank their portions off hurriedly and trooped off together, for their homes were distant and the hour late. The others, however, drew closer, leaving the place of honor to the right of the gleeman, to the free-handed newcomer. He had thrown off his steel cap and his brigandine, and had placed them with his sword, his quiver, and his painted long-bow, on the top of his varied heap of plunder in the corner. Now, with his thick and somewhat bowed legs stretched in front of the blaze, his green jerkin thrown open, and a great quart pot in his corded fist, he looked the picture of comfort and good-fellowship. His hard-set face had softened, and the thick crop of crisp brown curls which had been hidden by his helmet grew low upon his massive neck. He might have been forty years of age, though hard toil and harder pleasure had left their grim marks upon his features. Alleyn sat, staring with open eyes at a type of man so strange and so unlike any whom he had met. Men had been good or bad, but here was a man who was fierce one instant and gentle the next, with a curse on his lips and a smile in his eye. What was to be made of such a man as that?

It chanced that the soldier looked up and saw the questioning glance which the young clerk threw upon him. He raised his flagon and drank to him, with a merry flash of his white teeth.

"A tel, mon garcon!" he cried. "Hast surely never seen a man-at-arms, that thou shouldst stare so?"

"I never have," said Alleyn frankly. "I have only heard talk of their deeds."

"By my hilt!" cried the other, "if you were to cross the narrow sea you would find them as thick as bees at a teahole. Couldst not shoot a bolt down any street of Bordeaux. I warrant, but you would pick archer, squire or knight."

"And where got you all those pretty things?" asked Hordle John, pointing at the heap in the corner.

"Where there is as much more wait-stranger and more stirring were soon to crowd upon him. The fat, red-faced gleeman, the listening group, the archer with upraised finger beating in time to the music, and the huge sprawling figure of Hordle John, all thrown into red light and black shadow by the flickering fire in the centre—memory was to come often lovingly back to it.

At the time he was lost in admiration of the doer, in which the jongleur disguised the loss of his two missing strings, and the lusty, hearty fashion in which he trotted out his little ballad of the outland bowmen, which ran in some such fashion as this:

"What of the bow?
The bow was made in England:
Of true wood of yew wood,
The wood of English bows;
So men who are free
Red light and black shadow by the
And the land where the yew tree grows.

"What of the cord?
The cord was made in England:
A rough cord, a tough cord,
A cord that bowmen love;
So we'll draw our bows
To the English flax
And the land where the hemp was sown.

"What of the shaft?
The shaft was made in England:
A long shaft, a strong shaft,
Barbed and trim and true;
So we'll drink all together
Here's to you—and to you
And the land where the gray goose dew.

"What of the men?
The men were bred in England:
The bowmen—the women—
The lads of dale and fell
Here's to the true
To the hearts that are true
And the land where the true hearts dwell."

"Well sung, by my hilt!" shouted the archer, in high delight. "Many a night have I heard that song, both in the old war-time and after, in the days of the White Company, when Black Simon of Norwich would lead the stave, and four hundred of the best bowmen that ever drew string would bowmen roaring in upon the chorus. I have seen old John Hawkwood, the same who has led half the company into Italy, stand laughing in his beard as he heard it, until his plates rattled again. But to get the full smack of it ye must yourselves be English bowmen, and be far off upon an outland soil."

"It passes me," he cried, "how all you lusty fellows can hide scratching your backs at home when there are such doings over the sea. Look at me—what have I to do? It is but the eye to the cord, the cord to the shaft, and the shaft to the mark. There is the whole song of it."

"And the wage?" asked a laborer.

"You see what the wage brings," he answered. "I eat the best. I treat my friend, and I ask no friend to treat me. I clasp a silk gown upon my girl's back. Never a knight's lady shall be better beddressed and bed-trinketed. How of all that, men ask me? And how of the best of trifles that you can see for yourselves in yonder corner? They are from the South French, every one, upon whom I have been making war. By my hilt! camardes, I think that I may let my plunder speak for itself."

Though there may be peace between our own provinces and the French, yet within the marches of France there is always war, for the country is much divided against itself, and is furthermore harried by bands of dayers, skinkers, Brabaccons, tardiveus, and the rest of them. When every man's grip is on his neighbor's throat, and every five-sous-piece of a baron is marching with tuck and drum to fight whom he will, it would be a strange thing if five hundred brave English boys could not pick up a living. Now that Sir John Hawkwood hath gone with the East Anglian lads and the Nottingham woodmen into the service of the Marquis of Montserrat to fight against the Lord of Milan, there are but ten-score of us left; yet I may be able to bring some back with me to fill the ranks of the White Company."

"But the wage?"

"I have nought to wager. Come out for the love and the lust of the thing."

"Nought to wager!" cried the soldier.

"Why, idiot, you have that which I covet above all things. That big body of thine that I am after. See now, I have a French feather bed there, which I have been at pains to keep these years back. I had it at the sack of Issoudun, and the king himself hath not such a bed. If you throw me, it is thine; but, if I throw you, then you are under a vow to serve the White Company as long as we are enrolled."

"Then you may bid farewell to your bed, soldier," roared Hordle John.

"I shall be the new embroidery cotton that's taken the place of silk for working table covers, cushion tops and daisies. Costs less, looks as well and wears better. To be sure of receiving one of these dainties, write me, enclosing a stamped, state which pattern and size is desired."

A grocer may recommend a loose coffee at so much a pound. He is all right. He means well. If he handled the coffee himself, from the tree to you, you might well trust him implicitly.

But he does not!

He may know something about coffee. He may think he does, but let that pass. He buys it loose! From whom? You don't know—if you did it would mean anything. He trusts the man he buys it from—maybe a salesman, maybe a wholesaler, maybe a little local roaster. It does not matter. What do they know about coffee? More than the grocer? Perhaps.

Where do they get their coffee? Where does it come from? Whose hands touched it last? Where had they been? They can't tell Java from Brazilian by the looks after it is roasted, and it takes a man, expert by years of practical experience, to select sound, sweet green coffee of high cup merit; and another man with the knowledge and experience

"Nay, I am a man of peace," said Alleyn Edrickson. "Besides I have other work to do."

"Festel!" growled the soldier, striking his flagon on the board until the dishes danced again. "What, in the name of the devil, hath come over the folk? Why sit ye all moping by the fire-side, like crows round a dead horse, when there is man's work to be done within a few short leagues of yet? Out upon you all, as a set of laggards and hang-backs! By my hilt! I believe that the men of England are all in France already, and that what is left behind are the women dressed up in their paltocks and hosen."

"Archer," quoth Hordle John, "you have lied more than once and more than twice; for which, and also because I see much in you to mislike, I am sorely tempted to lay you upon your back."

"By my hilt! then, I have found a man at last!" shouted the bowman.

"And, 'fore God, you are a better man than I take you for if you can lay me on my back. For seven long years I have found no man in the Company who could make my jerkin dusty."

"We have had enough of balance and boasting," said Hordle John, rising and throwing off his doublet. "I will show you that there are better men left in England than ever went thieving to France."

"Pasques Dieu!" cried the archer, loosening his jerkin, and eyeing his foeman over with the keen glance of one who is a judge of manhood. "I have only once before seen such a body of a man. By your leave, my red-headed friend, I should be right sorry to exchange buffets with you; and I will allow that there is no man in the Company who would pull against you on a rope, so let that be a salute to your pride. The other, however, I should judge that you have led a life of ease for some months back, and that my muscle is harder than your own. I am ready to wager upon myself against you, if you are not afraid."

"Afraid, thou lurd!" growled Hordle John. "I never saw the face yet of a man that I was afraid of. Come out, and we shall see who is the better man."

"But the wage?"

"I have nought to wager. Come out for the love and the lust of the thing."

"Nought to wager!" cried the soldier.

gayety and grace to his grim, war-worn equipment.

"La petite is frightened," said he. "Ah, c'est l'amour, l'amour! Curse this trick of French, which will stick to my throat. I must wash it out with some good English ale. By my hilt! camardes, there is no drop of French blood in my body, and I am a true English bowman, Samkin Aylward by name; and I tell you, mes amis, that it warms my very heart-roots to set my feet on the dear old land once more. When I came off the galley at Hythe, this very day, I downed my earth, as I kiss thee now, ma belle, for it was eight long years since I had seen it. The very smell of it seemed life to me. But where are my six rascals?"

At the order, six men, dressed as common drudges, had bowed solemnly into the room, each bearing a huge bundle upon his head. They formed in military line, while the soldier stood in front of them with stern eyes, checking off their several packages.

"Number one—a French feather-bed with the two counterpanes of white sandell," said he.

ing for any brave lad to pick it up. Where a good man can always earn a good wage, and where he need look upon no man as his paymaster, but just reach his hand out and help himself. Aye, it is a goodly and a proper life. And here I drink to mine old comrades, and the saints be them! I raise all together, mes enfans, under pain of my displeasure! To Sir Claude Latour and the White Company!"

"Sir Claude Latour and the White Company!" shouted the travellers, draining off their goblets.

"Well quaffed, mes braves! It is for me to fill your cups again, since you have drained them to my dear lads of the white jerkin. Hola, mon ange, bring wine and ale. How runs the old stave?"

"We'll drink altogether. To the gray goose feather. And to the land where the gray goose

By the tooth of Peter! it would be a bad thing if I could not muster many a Hampshire man who would be ready to strike under the red flag of St. George, and the more so if Sir Nigel Loring of Crutchurch, should don hauberk once more and take the lead of us.

"Ah, you would indeed be in luck that night," quoth the woodman, "for it is said that, setting aside the prince, and mayhap good old Sir John Chandos, there was not in the whole army a man of such tried courage."

"It is sooth, every of it," the archer answered. "I have seen him with these two eyes in a stricken field, and never did a man carry himself better. Mon Dieu! yes, ye would not credit it to look at him, or to hearken to his soft voice, but from the sailing from Orwell down to the foray to Paris, and that is clear twenty years, there was not a skirmish, onfall, sally, bushment, escalado, or battle, but Sir Nigel was in the heart of it. I go now to Christchurch with a letter to him from Sir Claude Latour, to ask him if he will take the place of Sir John Hawkwood; and there is the more chance that he will if I bring one or two likely men at my heels. What say you, woodman? Will leave the bucks to loose a shaft at a nobler mark?"

The forester shook his head. "I have wife and child at Emery Down," quoth he. "I would not leave them for such a venture."

"You then, young sir?" asked the archer.

"I have nought to wager. Come out for the love and the lust of the thing."

quick feint he threw the other off his guard, and then, bounding upon him, threw his legs round his bull neck, in the hope of bearing him to the ground with the sudden shock. With a bellow of rage, Hordle John squeezed him limp in his huge arms; and then, picking him up, cast him down upon the floor with a force that might well have splintered a bone or two, had not the archer with the most perfect coolness clung to the other's forearms to break his fall. As it was, he dropped upon his feet and kept his balance, though it sent a jar through his frame which set every joint a-creaking. He bounded back from his perilous position; but the other, heated by the bout, rushed madly after him, and so gave the practised wrestler the very advantage for which he had planned. As big John flung himself upon him, the archer ducked under the great red hands that clutched for him, and, catching his man round the thighs, hurled him over his shoulder—helped as much by his own mad rush as by the trained strength of the heave. To Alleyn's eyes, it was as if John had taken unto himself wings and flown. As he hurtled through the air, with giant limbs revolving, the lad's heart was in his mouth; for surely no man ever yet had such a fall and came scathless out of it. In truth, hardly as the man was, his neck had been assuredly broken had he not pitched head first on the very midriff of the drunken artist, who was slumbering so peacefully in the corner, all unaware of these stirring doings. The luckless limner, thus suddenly brought out from his dreams, sat up with a piercing yell, while Hordle John bounded back into the circle almost as rapidly as he had left it.

"One more fall, by all the saints!" he cried, throwing out his arms.

"Not I," quoth the archer, pulling on his clothes. "I have come well out of the business. I would sooner wrestle with the great bear of Navarre."

"It was a trick!" cried John.

"Aye was it! By my ten finger-bones! It is a trick that will add a proper man to the ranks of the Company."

"Oh, for that," said the other, "count it not a fly. For I had promised myself a good hour ago that I should go with thee, since the life seems to be a goodly and proper one. Yet I must fain have had the feather-bed."

FORESTRY AND HOMECROFTS

ADDRESS OF GEORGE H. MAXWELL, DEAN OF THE HOMECROFTERS GILD OF THE TALISMAN.

Before the Biennial Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, at St. Paul, Minn., June Fourth, 1906.

MADAME PRESIDENT AND DELEGATES—LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

When I received the invitation to be with you here to-day and speak upon the subject "Forestry and Homecrofting," as it is announced on the program, I felt that the occasion was one of much importance, and the opportunity one which I so greatly appreciated, that I ought to do something which I rarely do, and that was to at least think out a speech in advance. I was asked for a manuscript of it for the press, but I felt that it was unsafe to give it because I never did that yet that something didn't happen that made me lay aside my speech and talk about something else.

I have a speech, I prepared which was planned to last for half an hour, and there it is (holding up a card). Now, I have fifteen minutes to speak, and I am going to save that speech for some other occasion, in some other place, and talk to you about something which has been suggested to me here this morning by the address we have just listened to from Mr. Mills.

I was born in California and spent my life there (applause from the California delegates) until within a very few years when my work in the National Irrigation Movement took me away from my native state. But I want to take advantage of this opportunity to stand here and make a plea for the preservation of those Temples of God—the Big Trees of California. (Applause.)

I question very much whether those who are here to-day realize the power that is yours, in bringing about right state legislation. We often say that this is a government of the people, and that it is controlled by their votes. So it is. But behind the vote is the thought of the people. It is public opinion which controls this country. The vote is merely a registering of that opinion; and the thought of the people which precedes that opinion and brings about reforms, is, in my judgment, often a thing that springs from the minds of the women of the country rather than from the minds of the men of the country.

I am free to say that in my earlier years, and before I had a wider experience and opportunities of observation, I was not a believer in giving the ballot to the women. I am not here to make a plea for that to-day, because I am not so much impressed with the importance of it as others who think that the ballot is the main thing. It is the conversation of the home circle and the thoughts that spring most often from the minds of the mothers of the country that control this country. (Applause.)

And although I believe to-day that the status of the man and the woman, so far as their rights of citizenship and rights before the law are concerned, should be the same, I want to lay that conclusion before you simply as a basis for the broader statement that women can control this country by the power of thought without the ballot. If the women who are here to-day and those who are affiliated with you in this great organization, would take up one or two things as the result of this conference and go hence and agitate it in every home circle, and in every women's club, and in every village and city, and through the columns of every newspaper in the land, and by correspondence, you could accomplish within the next twelve months two great things which would be a record of accomplishment sufficient for one year of hard work for your organization, and that is, first, to save the big trees of California (Applause); and, second, to secure the passage of the bill providing for forest reserves in the White Mountains and on the Appalachian Range. (Applause.)

If those great trees in California were once destroyed they could not be replaced in centuries and probably never. They were there when Christ walked the earth. They were there when Rome shone resplendent in all her glory. They were there when Carthage nestled amid green fields and vineyards on the southern shores of the Mediterranean. They were there when Palmyra, with all her magnificence, was the meeting place of the caravan traveling between Asia and the Mediterranean country. And to-day they stand there pleading with their out-reaching branches against ruthless destruction to satisfy the need of man.

We may go back through history, and ruined city after ruined city shows how ephemeral is everything that man builds. Did it never occur to those who are interested in uplifting and bettering the power for good of the church, and in carrying its missionary work into the cities and into the slums and into the tenements, where God dwells, it is needed most of anywhere on this earth—has it never occurred to you that a child nurtured in the tenements and in the slums and in the city state, and seeing nothing around but bricks and mortar and asphalt and trolley-cars and things that man made, lives where there is nothing to create a conception of a higher world and lacks the influence of the grand manifestations of nature, which we have that there is a God, and that there is a faith in religion the heart of every man.

You want to make this a religious movement, as you must if it is to be preserved, you must get the children of cities back to nature, and under the spell of its influence, or at least bring them in an environment where they can see and be convinced by the power of nature's mysteries that there is a God who Rules the world and the ages on. (Applause.)

So through you I appeal not to the women of the country, but to the churches of the country, to put every influence, not only to save

those great trees in California, but to aid this whole great movement for the preservation of the forests we have, by their right use, for the planting of new forests, and for the scattering through this great nation, in every state and territory, of forest plantations that, when they come to maturity a generation from now, will supply every state with wood and timber of every kind for every purpose from Forests and Tree Plantations within its own borders.

I have no time today to go into details, but if you will go into the South and see the actual conditions with reference to the water supply on the streams flowing from the Appalachian mountains, and study the beauties of that country, you will be converted in an instant to the necessity for the creation of the Appalachian Forest Reserve; and the same thing is true of the proposed "White Mountain Forest Reserve" in New England. Those Reserves are comparatively small things in the amount of money involved. If we can throw money to the birds, as a manure spreader throws it out of the back of a wagon into the field, to build the Panama canal and manage the conquest of the Philippine Islands, and to build large battleships, I maintain that we can at least spare money enough to perpetuate the forests that God gave us and for the preservation of all the internal resources of our country at home. (Applause.)

I maintain another thing, and that is that if the women who are here to-day would go to their homes from this convention, and take up and study the possibilities of the development of Arizona and New Mexico under a policy which will reserve for national control the forests and the water supply which are the only things that keep that great country from going back to the desert, you would save this nation from the infamy of joining Arizona and New Mexico in the bonds of joint statehood. In the face of your opposition that great wrong could never be accomplished. All women in the land should rise up and protest against it, because it is abandoning the destiny and development of the foundation of all the resources for homemaking of those territories to the unrestrained legislative control of a legislature which will be dominated by the most evil political influences that ever existed in any state—the outcroppings of the worst political rottenness that ever prevailed in Pennsylvania, coupled with the iniquities that will prevail by reason of the fact that so large a proportion of the population of New Mexico cannot even speak the English language. The joint statehood bill proposes to give to the control of such a legislature as that, without any possible check or hindrance, a land grant of about twenty million acres to grab and speculate with and graft on and practically to do with as they please. (Applause.)

I only want to say in closing: If you find crime anywhere; if you find a man gone wrong anywhere; if you find political corruption or anything of the kind, in our political institutions, you will find it, if you trace it back, that the fault lies in its original source, at some place or other, in the fact that there was not the right kind of a home and the right kind of a mother. If you find a man of strong and sterling character (or a woman either) you trace it back, and you will find that it was because there was the right kind of a mother, and the right kind of a home. We have heard a good deal lately about the "man behind the gun" and the "man behind the pick" and the "man behind the ballot" and the "man behind" a great many other things, but I want to tell you that you can pile them all one upon another like Ossa upon Pelion and all of them together are not of as much importance as the "Mother behind the Home" (Applause.)

If you are to have the right kind of homes and the right kind of mothers everywhere throughout the length and breadth of this great and beautiful country of ours, you must make it easily possible for every man who works and lives by his toil to have a home of his own on the land—a HOMECROFT, however small.

You must train every child in garden schools to know how to plant seeds and make things grow and get food directly from the bosom of Mother Earth. You must so train all boys and girls that their first great ambition will be to get a home of their own with a piece of ground around it large enough for a garden.

The Good Book tells us that "God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed. And out of the ground he made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight and good for food."

God intended that every man and woman and every child should live next to nature and on the land, and every man who marries a woman should put her in a home in the midst of a garden.

The great movement which is now fairly under way, known as the HOMECROFT MOVEMENT, proposes to do that very thing, and the Creed and Platform of the Homecrofters tells how it may be done.

The slogan of the Homecroft Movement is: "Every Child in a Garden—Every Mother in a Homecroft—and Individual Industrial Independence for Every Worker in a Home of his Own on the Land."

Is not that a Cause which should have the ardent and enthusiastic support and co-operation of every man and woman, and especially of every mother in the land?

"The Citizen standing in the doorway of his home—contented on his threshold, his family gathered about his hearthstone, while the evening of a well spent day closes in scenes and sounds that are dearest—he shall save the Republic when the drum-tap is futile and the barracks are exhausted."—Henry W. Grady.

"The slums and tenements of the great cities are social dynamite, certain to explode sooner or later. The only safeguard against such dangers is to plant the multiplying millions of our fast increasing population in individual homes on the land—homecrofts, however small, owned by the occupant, where every worker and his family can enjoy individual industrial independence."—George H. Maxwell.

The Brotherhood of Man

Charity that is Everlasting

The Secret of Nippon's Power

Lesson of a Great Calamity

The Sign of a Thought

This book is the first of a Series which will chronicle the Progress of the HOMECROFT MOVEMENT and inform all who wish to co-operate with it how they may do so through the formation of local Homecrofters' Circles, Clubs or Guilds to promote Town and Village Betterment, stimulate home civic pride and loyalty to home institutions, industries and trade, improve methods and facilities of education in the local public schools, and create new opportunities "At Home" that will go far to check the drift of trade and population to the cities.

The first Guild of the Homecrofters has been established at Watertown, Massachusetts. The Guildhall, Shops and Gardens are located at 143 Main Street, where the Garden School is now fully organized and over one hundred children are at work in the Gardens. The departments for training in Homecraft and Village Industries are being installed. The Weavers are already at work at the looms. It is not designed to build here an isolated institution, but to make a model which can be duplicated in any town or village in the country.

Copies of "THE FIRST BOOK OF THE HOMECROFTERS" can be obtained by sending twelve two-cent stamps with your name and address (carefully and plainly written) to The Homecrofters' Guild of the Talisman, 143 Main St., Watertown, Massachusetts.

There is New Hope and Inspiration for every Worker who wants a Home of his own on the Land in the CREED AND PLATFORM OF THE HOMECROFTERS which is as follows: "Peace has her victories no less renowned than war."

EDUCATION
CO-OPERATION
OPPORTUNITY
HOMECROFTS

We believe that the Patriotic Slogan of the Whole People of this Nation should be "Every Child in a Garden—Every Mother in a Homecroft—and Individual Industrial Independence for Every Worker in a Home of his Own on the Land," and that until he owns such a Home, the concentrated purpose and chief inspiration of labor in the life of every wage worker should be his determination to "Get an Acre and Live on it."

We believe that the Slums and Tenements and Congested Centers of population in the Cities are a savagely deteriorating social, moral and political influence, and that a great public movement should be organized, and the whole power of the nation Free the states exerted for the betterment of all the conditions of Rural Life, and to create and uphold Centers of Social and Civic Life in Country and Suburban Towns and Villages, where Trade and Industry can be so firmly anchored that they cannot be drawn into the Commercial Maelstrom that is now steadily sucking Industry and Humanity into the Vortex of the Great Cities.

We believe that every Citizen in this Country has an inherent and Fundamental Right to an Education which will train him to Earn a Living, and, if need be, to get his living straight from Mother Earth; and that he has the same right to the Opportunity to have the Work to Do which will afford him that living, and to earn not only a comfortable livelihood, but enough more to enable him to be a Homecroft and to have a Home of his Own, with ground around it sufficient to yield him and his family a Living from the Land as the reward for his own labor.

We believe that the Public Domain is the most precious heritage of the people, and the surest safeguard the nation has against Social Unrest, Disturbance or Upheaval, and that the Cause of Humanity and the Preservation of Social Stability and of our Free Institutions demand that the absorptive private ownership, without settlement, be forthwith stopped; and that the nation should create opportunities for Homecrofters by building irrigation and drainage works to reclaim pay the government the cost of construction of the irrigation works, and that the amount needed each year for the construction, as recommended by the Secretary of the Interior, shall be made available by Congress as a loan from the general treasury to the Reclamation Fund, and repaid from lands reclaimed, as required by the National Irrigation Act.

SAVE THE PUBLIC LANDS FOR HOMEMAHERS.

6. That not another acre of the public lands shall ever hereafter be granted to any state or territory for any purpose whatsoever, or to any one other than an actual settler who has built his home on the land and lived on it for five years, and that no more land scrip of any kind shall ever be issued, and that the Desert Land Law and the Commutation Clause of the Homestead Law shall be made to conform to the recommendations of the Public Lands Commission appointed by President Roosevelt and of the Message of the President to Congress.

PLANT FORESTS AND CREATE FOREST PLANTATIONS.

7. That the Timber and Stone Law shall be repealed, and that all public timber lands shall be included in permanent Forest Reserves, the title to the land to be forever retained by the National Government, stumpage only of matured timber to be sold, and young timber to be preserved for future cutting, so that the forests will be perpetuated by right use; and that the National Government shall, by the reservation or purchase of existing forest lands, and the planting of new forests, create in every state a sufficient supply of wood and timber, which, through all the years to come, can be annually harvested to supply the needs of the people of each state from the Forest Plantations in that state.

UNITED OWNERSHIP OF LAND AND WATER.

8. That it shall be the law of every state and of the United States, that beneficial use is the basis, the measure, and the limit of all rights to water, including riparian rights, and that the right to the use of water for irrigation shall inhere in and be apportioned to the land irrigated, so that the ownership of the land and the water shall be united, and no right to water as a speculative commodity ever be acquired, held or owned.

RIGHT OF APPROPRIATION FOR BENEFICIAL USE.

9. That it shall be the law of every state and of the United States, that all unused and unappropriated waters are public property, subject to appropriation for a beneficial use, first in time being first in right, and that on all interstate streams, priority of use shall give priority of right, throughout the entire course of the stream, without regard to state lines, and that in each drainage basin the irrigators therein shall control the distribution of the water.

IT IS NOT AN EASY MATTER

to make a million people believe that so good a magazine as Maxwell's Homemaker Magazine can be published for ten cents a year. But we are doing it because the magazine speaks for itself and tells its own story.

Here is what one of our subscribers at Crockett, Texas, writes:

"The March number of your excellent magazine is before me. It is certainly filled with helpful articles, and I would be glad to know that every family in Texas had the benefit of its teachings. The first article in this number, 'A Homecroft's Garden,' should be preserved for reference. THE ARTICLE 'HEALTH IN THE HOME,' IF CAREFULLY FOLLOWED, WOULD SAVE SICKNESS IN EVERY FAMILY. Anything that I can do to assist you in extending your circulation in Texas will be gladly done."

Our circulation has grown so satisfactorily that with the April number we were able to enlarge the magazine and add several new features, and it will continue to improve every month!

If you have not yet seen the magazine, write for a free sample copy. It will convince you that for only ten cents a year you can get a magazine of more real genuine value than any other magazine that is published to every one who is really studying how to make the home life better and happier, how to lighten the housekeeper's labors, how to bring up the children and keep them and the whole family well and strong all the time, and do it all on a moderate income.

"The Delights of Gardening" in the April number would open the door of a new life in many a family if they would read it.

And here are some of the other Departments:

Stories and Sketches, Little Folks in the Home, Home Etiquette, The Home Garden, Garden Notes, Editorial Comment, The Home Study, Music in the Home, Entertaining in the Home, Home Sewing, Care of the Home, Health in the Home, Home Cooking, Building the House (with plan and design for a cottage home), Home Handicraft, Home Cheer.

You will get this April number and in addition ONE WHOLE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION, covering twelve copies of the magazine, one each month for twelve months, if you will put one dime or five two cent stamps in an envelope with your name and address (write it plainly), and mail it to MAXWELL'S HOMEMAHER MAGAZINE, 1405 Fisher Building, Chicago, Ill.

LESSON XXXVI.

In this week's readings we have the S. S. lesson for Sept. 9, "The Triumphal Entry," Mt. 21:1-17. G. T. Mt. 21:9.

DAILY MANNA.

Sunday, July 1, Supper and anointing at Bethany, Mt. 26:6-73; Mk. 14:3-9; Jn. 12:2-9.
Monday, July 2, Pharisees desire to put Lazarus to death, Jn. 12:10, 11.
Tuesday, July 3, The triumphal entry, Mt. 21:1-11; Mk. 11:1-11; Lk. 19:20-44; Jno. 12:12-19.
Wednesday, July 4, Return to Bethany, Mt. 21:17.
Thursday, July 5, Cursing the fig-tree, Mt. 21:18, 19; Mk. 11:12-14.
Friday, July 6, Second cleansing of the temple, Mt. 21:12-14; Mk. 11:15-18; Lk. 19:45-48; 21:37a.
Saturday, July 7, Hosanna to the children, Mt. 21:15, 16.

HELPS TO STUDY.

Although now Bethany is a poor Moslem village of some forty rude houses, it is the largest place on the road from Jerich to Jerusalem, and so it was in Jesus' day. Cut off entirely from sight of Jerusalem by the Mount of Olives, there is nothing in the views from Bethany to suggest the proximity of a great city, and we can readily understand Jesus' selection of a spot at once so convenient and so secluded for his lodging place during these trying days. "Simon the leper" is not otherwise known. It was Mary that anointed Jesus (Jno. 12:3) Spikenard was a perfumed ointment. This might have been sold for 300 denarii, about $45, but with a purchasing power of about 300. From the disciples' point of view it did seem prodigal to anoint with a perfume worth a year's wages of a laborer (Mt. 20:2). But Jesus would never permit the spontaneous expression of love to be misinterpreted. V. 8 contains the interpretation which Jesus, foreseeing his speedy death, put upon Mary's act.

As the Passover fell on Thursday, Jesus must have arrived in Bethany on Friday. "Martha served." (Lk. 10:40.) Yet the supper was not in the house of Lazarus, but of that of Simon, Lazarus being a guest.

Bethphage has never been certainly identified, but was on the Mount of Olives, near Bethany. Matthew makes a quotation from Isa. 62:11 and Zech. 9:9. The latter is the more important and was currently regarded as messianic. He was dramatically fulfilling a messianic prophecy in order thereby unmistakably to announce his estimate of his mission as Messiah. Hitherto Jesus had been intent upon showing his character as the son of man, the type of the kingdom he was founding; now that this was reasonably clear, and he had proved the faith of his disciples in him as the future Christ, he wished to make in equally clear to them and to the people generally that he, such as he was, without political or military ambitions, meek, self-sacrificing, was indeed the Christ. For this reason he does not rebuke them when they give him messianic titles (Lk. 19:39, 40), but even himself plans a public announcement that he is the Christ.

Lk. 19:40, "the stones will cry out," a proverb showing the impossibility of checking the enthusiasm of the disciples. V. 41, "when he drew nigh," probably refers to a point on the southern shoulder of the Mount of Olives, just where the road bends sharply to the north and west, and begins the descent to the valley of Cedron. The spot affords a commanding view of Jerusalem, with the temple in the foreground. Christ's tears are a testimony to his love of his people and to his determination not to let the enthusiasm of the moment sweep him into a compromise with the current political messianism. He was the Christ, but he would not be the Christ the Jews wanted.

The cleansing of the temple recorded by the synoptists as an event immediately following the triumphal entry was a part of Jesus' public announcement of his messianic mission. In it he was protected by the popularity evidenced by the enthusiasm shown during his public entry into the city. V. 17 contains a noble protest against the prostitution of a sacred place. From these words of Jesus it is apparent that he was not an open opponent of the temple but rather of the abuse of the temple by the priests who were using or allowing others to use the temple courts as a place for selling the animals intended for sacrifice. Matthew adds the account of the shouting of the children in the temple. They were evidently continuing the enthusiasm of the crowds of disciples. The reply of Jesus to the objection of the scribes and priests is a distinct acceptance of the messianic title.

THE TEACHER.

Rules for Teaching.—

4. Never use a hard word if an easy one will convey the meaning. Let your language be simple, clear, easily understood. This does not detract from beauty in language.

5. Never begin a lesson without a clear view of the aim you desire to accomplish. In every lesson we should aim to impress the truth of the lesson on our pupils for their conversions and edification. We need the power of the Holy Spirit to help us make this application.

6. Never give an unnecessary command nor one which you do not mean to be obeyed.

SEARCH QUESTIONS.

1. What was the attitude of the people toward Jesus? 2. What was the attitude of the Sanhedrin toward Jesus? 3. Tell the story of the anointing of Jesus. 4. What criticism was directed against Mary? 5. How did Jesus interpret her act? 6. Was Jesus opposed to charity? 7. Why did the priests wish to kill Lazarus? 8. When did the Pharisees begin to show opposition to Jesus? 9. What was the ground of their opposition? 10. What was the attitude of the Sadducees to Jesus? 11. When and for what reason did they become active in opposition to him? 12. Give an account of the triumphal entry. 13. What was the purpose of Jesus in cleansing and permitting it? 14. In what sense did it mark a new policy on his part? 15. Why did Jesus lament over Jerusalem? 16. Can we imagine what would have been the result to the world if the religious leaders of the Jews had accepted Jesus as the Christ, and not put him to death? 17. Tell the story of the cursing of the fig-tree. 18. What lesson was it intended and used by Jesus to teach? 19. Describe the cleansing of the temple. 20. What was its significance and what were the results? 21. Was Jesus attacking the temple? 22. Are places of worship kept sacred today? 23. What is it to keep a church sacred to the purposes of God?

In the Tomb of Ioua and Tioua

A RICH find was made in the land of the pharaohs recently which throws light on the customs of the Egyptians of a very early period and reveals the fact that the people of that ancient era possessed many things strangely resembling those of modern times. In the course of the excavations in the sacred valley of the kings a tomb was found which proved to have a curious history. From the hieroglyphics on the mummy cases the archaeologists made out that the burial place was that of "Ioua, hereditary prince, chief friend among the friends of the sovereign." Near his mummy was that of his wife, Tioua. The tomb was in a state of much confusion. Mummy cases were broken open, coffin covers were left standing against the wall and the apartment was filled with vases, furniture and adornments scattered about in a haphazard way. It was the tomb of the father and mother of Ti, a queen of the eighteenth dynasty, about 1700 B. C., whose changing of the national religion caused uproar and violence in those faraway days. It is conjectured that she wished for her father and mother a royal burial, but as the times were not auspicious placed their mummies in this tomb temporarily, with the funeral offerings, until the desired honors could be duly paid.

Evidently the period of quiet did not arrive, and the mummies were left where they were placed. Perhaps a thousand years passed away, and then the tomb was entered by a robber, who stole jewelry and other things which seemed to him of value. He scattered many things about in his wanton disregard of the sacredness of the place, but nevertheless left the tomb in possession of the very articles most valuable to present day students of that distant time. It was not opened again until the archaeologists removed the debris from it a few weeks ago, and thus but for a single rude intrusion it has lain undisturbed for almost 4,000 years.

Owing to the custom of those early days of placing in the tombs of the rich and great the things they were supposed to need in the other world, or the symbols of the same, including even effigies of servants to minister to them, this burial place was filled with many articles which because of their antiquity and the knowledge they supply to the life of that time are now of intense interest. Not only vases containing food, but furniture, a chair, a bed and chairs, an embroidery stand and a jewelry box and similar articles, were put in the rock hewn resting place of Ioua and Tioua by Queen Ti. As the contents of the tomb represented in part the furniture or other belongings of a princely household, they were typical of the best workmanship of the period. In design and decoration there is an astonishing similarity between the chairs found in this tomb and those of the French empire and Louis XVI. style now so much affected.

The Egyptians were adepts in the sculpture of animals. Many of the gods and goddesses were represented with human bodies, but with heads of the animals sacred to them, and thus the sculptors became especially proficient in modeling such forms. One of the chairs of this tomb, which looks almost as if it might have been made in the time of Louis XVI., has gazelles under the arms of each side which in their execution are remarkably realistic. The back contains sculptured figures of the god Bes standing between two figures of the goddess Taure, who is represented with the head of an animal. The chair is supported by claw footed legs, which thus are seen to antedate by several thousand years the similar characteristics of so called antique furniture now popular.

A chair which might be said to be in the empire style has legs modeled on those of the ox. The carved work is gilded with Nubian gold, and the back is sculptured with a scene representing Queen Ti's daughter Set-Ammon on a throne. One chair had a cushion stuffed with goose feathers, perhaps a thoughtful provision by Queen Ti for the comfort of her mother in the other world. Evidently this princely pair were fond of sweets, for among the beautiful alabaster jars containing funeral offerings of food was found a pitcher filled with honey, still in a fluid state, to which the wasps came buzzing when it was brought into the open air. The mummies of Ioua and Tioua were excellently preserved, and the features could readily be distinguished. All the relics are to be preserved at Cairo.

An Awful Death.

Carries, Miss., June 20.—Setting fire to the jail to burn their way to liberty, two prisoners were cremated in this place at 1 o'clock on Monday morning. The dead are Geo. Washington and Tom Ladnier, who were in jail on the charge of selling whiskey without a license and housebreaking. The men expected to burn a hole in the roof large enough to crawl through.

The flames got beyond their control and the heavy smoke overcame them. Their weak cries attracted a passer by but when help arrived both prisoners were dead.

The jail door was broken down in an effort to rescue the bodies but the flames drove back the crowd and the bodies were reduced to ashes.

Found a Peck of Money

Captain Louis Kotmyer thought he had struck it rich one day last week when upon landing his boat upon the Ohio side of the river he discovered about half a peck of silver money, halves and quarters.

At first he thought he was dreaming, and he pinched himself severely several times and then had a passenger to kick him good to see whether he was awake. He then gathered up his find, which amounted to nearly fifty dollars, and he would have felt better but along with the money he picked up the dies in which the spurious stuff was cast.

Some manufacturers of counterfeit money had evidently concluded they were about to be caught and dumped their money and dies into the river, which had fallen until they were exposed.—Boone County Record.

THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1906

We publish elsewhere in today's paper an article from the Ardmore, Okla., Morning Democrat, announcing Mr. Lee Cruce as Ardmore and the Chickasaw Nation's candidate for the governorship of the new state of Oklahoma. The article is carefully considered and ably written and does but simple justice to the many shining qualities and executive ability of Mr. Cruce, as his host of admirers and friends here are well aware. It would be hard for the inhabitants of that young commonwealth to pick a man better equipped with all the virtues and business qualifications that serve to make the honest and impartial ruler, than Lee Cruce. Here, where he was born and reared to manhood, there is nothing but respect, admiration and love for him among all parties, and should he be elected ruler of his adopted State, none will more heartily rejoice than the people of Crittenden county. That country, and especially the city of Ardmore and the Indian Nation, owes much to the executive ability and far-sighted business acumen of Lee Cruce. No man in that country has done as much to develop its magnificent resources and to place its financial system on a solid basis as Mr. Cruce. The people of the young State know this and hold his services at their full value. This being the case, and having, as is stated, the entire Indian Nation and Southwestern Oklahoma solid for him, his chances for the governorship of that magnificent young commonwealth are indeed bright. So here's to Governor Lee Cruce, of Oklahoma, with three times three and a tiger!

The pure food bill has passed the House practically without opposition and will become a law. This bill will give several fake industries in this country a very black eye, and thus redound to the health and happiness of our people.

Gov. Beckham has announced himself a candidate for the U. S. Senatorship from Kentucky. J. B. McCreary is the only other announced candidate, if we except Col. Thompson, who has not yet formally announced himself.

President Roosevelt contemplates taking a trip to Panama next October, to see the big canal. He will go, it is stated in one of the large Government cruisers, and should be escorted by a fleet of war ships. And why not? If we must ape royalty in this country why not do the thing in style. And besides, Roosevelt has more real power than King Edward of England, anyhow. Yes, we favor the escort.

Golconda, Ill., was severely scorched last week by a fire which destroyed two of its principal business blocks. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The fire started in the laundry.

Congressmen Stanley and Shirley had a lively tilt in the House last week over an argument on the whiskey clause of the Pure Food Bill.

Our Magazine Section next week will contain an interesting article entitled "A Lady Navigator;" another article "Arrest of Twenty-five Congressmen;" Second installment of the thrilling story of knighthood days, entitled "The White Company;" also an agricultural page, an article on the Appalachian Forest Reserve, entitled "A Plea for the Trees."

J. C. Elder retires July 1st, from the post office and will be succeeded by Lester Bibb, son of G. R. Bibb, who is already taking the primary lessons at the post office. Lester is a good boy but it will probably be several days before he becomes as proficient as the "old war horse," J. C. Elder, Jr. Mr. Elder has not decided what business he will engage in.

Miss Gustava Haynes, daughter of W. D. Haynes, has received the appointment of chief clerk at the post office. That she will do her best, goes without saying and when one makes their best endeavors it is not long until they become proficient. Miss Gustava's friends (and they are many) predict for her a successful career satisfactory to the patrons of the office.

IN SOCIETY

Miss Elizabeth Cook, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Cook, invited thirty two little girls to help her celebrate her fifth birthday last Friday afternoon from 4 to 6.

Delicious refreshments consisting of sherbert, ice cream, cake and candy were served and the crowd of jolly little folks spent the afternoon delightfully, and all left wishing their little hostess many happy returns of the day.

In remembrance of the happy occasion each little guest brought a souvenir gift.

The members of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle gave a picnic supper in the yard of Atty. W. J. Deboe on Friday evening last.

The members of the society and their husbands were present together with a few invited guests, among them being Mrs. D. E. Woods, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. D. C. Roberts, of Chicago, Ill.

The members and their husbands who were present were

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Crider,
" W. B. Yandell,
" J. I. Clement,
" H. H. Sayre,
" J. W. Blue,
" H. A. Haynes,
" G. C. Gray,
" J. H. Orme,
" A. Dewey,
" W. J. Deboe.

Misses Nellie Walker, Sallie and Lena Woods, Mrs. H. K. Woods and Messrs. T. H. Cochran and C. S. Nunn.

At the beautiful cottage home of J. L. Stewart, June 22, Miss Lena Holtsclaw entertained a number of boys and girls at a lawn party.

The lawn was beautifully lighted with electric lights and as each one entered punch was served to them by Mrs. Stewart.

Many games and contests were indulged in and refreshments were served during the evening. The invited guests were Misses Gwendoline Haynes, Madeline Jenkins, Elvah Pickens, Alma Asher, Katie Yates, Jessie Croft, Gussie Burgett, Amy Williams, May Travis, Grace Taylor, Anna Elgin, Mildred and Bertha Rankin, Maude Flannery, Nannie Rochester, Messrs Sylvan Price, Gray Rochester, Galen Dixon, Harry Babb Emmett Clifton, Maurice Boston, Orlin and Homer Moore, Aubrey Cannon, Elmer Franklin, Virgil Cox James Carliss, Raymond Guess, Ray Flannery and Wathen Rankin.

Last Saturday evening, at the residence of Mr. H. A. Haynes, his daughter, Miss Mildred, and Miss

Ira Price gave a charming social to their circle of young folks, which included the following and many others whose names we couldn't get:

Misses Ellis Gray, Allie May Yates, Maud and Bernice Driskill, Pearl Doss, Willie Croft, Cora Melton, Mary Deboe, Lena Terry, Mary Finley, Messrs. Leslie Melton, Creed Taylor, Ray Flannery, Virgil Moore, Clarence Gilliland, Trice Bennett, Sylvan Price, Wilbur Haynes.

Miss Gwendoline Haynes served fruit punch in the main entrance hallway throughout the evening.

Several contests were engaged in, and Mr. Creed Taylor won the prize. Elegant refreshments were served, consisting of berry sherbet, cake, fruit, nut frappe. Although the weather was inclement and the rain fell in torrents, the spirits of the party were not dampened, but in the interior of the house all was bright and happy, and everything went merry as a marriage bell.

In honor of her sixth birthday, Miss Miriam Blackburn entertained a number of her little friends last Monday afternoon from 4 to 6 at the residence of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Hurley.

The little folks enjoyed themselves very much and spent a great part of the time playing childish games of their own selection. Refreshments of ices and cake were served late in afternoon. Miss Miriam received a number of beautiful presents from her little friends. Those present were Mary Weldon, Martha Lowery, Elizabeth Cook, Geneva Daniel, Mary Ray, Virginia Flannery, Marion Ainsworth, Fannie Sims, Ruth Dodge, Alsie Hudson, Opa Ringo, Tommy and Louise Conway, Virginia Guess, Mamie Fritts, Miriam Pierce, Reginald Wilson, Willard Hurley and Miriam Blackburn.

"Outlaws" Take Sheridan's Scalp.

A "Dukes Mixture" of boos representing most every neighborhood in the county, but sailing under Marion's banner, played the regular lineup of Sheridan Saturday on the latter's grounds defeating them to the tune of 25 to 9. The weather was rather uncertain for base ball but a fair crowd of would-be fans had congregated to see the home team sweat the horsehide to all parts of the lot and to see the general stunts connected with base ball.

The field was in fair (?) condition for playing with the exception of a few holes in the infield and asparagus sprouts and stubbles in the outfield which made fielding rather unpleasant for some of the Sheridan lineup. Nevertheless the game came off quietly and peacefully with the usual 'roasting' of the players including the staff correspondent of the Press who was holding the 'honorable' position of score-keeper.

The features of the game were the heavy batting of the visitors who eluded the sphere to all parts of the lot, two and three baggers being common throughout the game and the splendid work of the visiting battery, Franks causing ten batsmen to fan the ozone and allowing but 6 hits, four of which came in the fifth inning. The field work of both teams was ragged at critical times which figured largely in the scoring, but both teams played excellent ball considering the fact that they were out of practice. The score:
Innings 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 H R
Marion 4 4 2 3 3 3 2 1 8 25
Sheridan 0 1 1 1 4 0 0 2 0 6 9
Batteries—Franks and Grimes, W. Griffith, Salliers and G. Griffith, Three Base hit—Guess 3, Franks 1, two base hit—Hamilton 2, Thomas 1, Grimes 1, Griffith 1; Struck out—by Franks 10, by Griffith 4, Salliers 2, Umpire—Smith. Attendance about 200. Time of game 1 hr. 50 min.

A PROUD MOTHER.
Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. and her son, the Richest of Babies.
There was great delight in the Rockefeller family when a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to bear the name and inherit the millions of the Standard Oil money king.
The senior Rockefeller has several grandchildren, but the infant born in New York city a few days ago is the only grandson who has inherited the Rockefeller surname. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is the only son of the famous millionaire. He married in 1901
Miss Abby Green Aldrich, daughter of Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, and the new baby therefore has for one grandfather a United States senator and for another the richest man in the world. He is pro-

MRS. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.
spectively the richest infant in the world and has been termed "the billionaire baby."
It has been figured out that by the time John D. Rockefeller 3d reaches his majority the Rockefeller fortune, now estimated at $1,000,000,000, will have increased to something like $2,000,000,000.
The baby if he lives will be heir to probably the greatest part of this fortune. He has a little sister, Abbie Rockefeller, who was born three and a half years ago. Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was noted for her beauty and accomplishments when she was a Providence belle. She met young Mr. Rockefeller when the latter was a student of Brown university.
Mrs. Rockefeller is tall and graceful and about thirty-one years of age.
Some time ago she acted as waitress
at a men's clubhouse that the elder Rockefeller built when an entertainment for men was given. A man offered her a tip, and she promptly pocketed it and said she would put it in the contribution plate Sunday, telling the men not to be shy about giving more tips. She got a lot of them.

HADLEY AND HIS FIGHT.

Victory From Oil Trust.
Herbert S. Hadley, attorney general of Missouri, who has forced the magnates of Standard Oil to disclose some of the secrets of that powerful institution, declares that all around honesty is the only cure for social ills which are now attracting so much attention.
It is not often that a man starts out to fight the big oil trust and wins a victory, but that is what Mr. Hadley has done, and his name is now familiar to millions of people who had never heard of him a year ago. The object of the suits brought by him against the Standard in the state of Missouri is to establish charges of violation of the laws against trusts. At first the oil corporation's spokesmen refused the information Mr. Hadley wanted, but he obtained a decision from the su-

HERBERT S. HADLEY.
preme court of Missouri, which compelled them to answer questions, and now he says he has the knowledge he desired. Mr. Hadley is thirty-four years old and was public prosecutor of Kansas City at the same time that Joseph W. Folk held a similar position in St. Louis. He was nominated for attorney general on the Republican ticket in 1904. All the candidates on the Republican state ticket won in that year except the nominee for governor, who was defeated by Mr. Folk. Though of opposite political faiths, Governor Folk and Attorney General Hadley agree in many of their ideas.

Uncle Sam and The Powder Trust

THERE is talk at Washington about blowing up the powder trust. At any rate, the bills now under consideration in congress would have some such effect as this if enacted into law. It has been stated on the floor of the house of representatives that the government is in the power of a trust, so far as obtaining its supply of powder is concerned, and that in case of a war it could not get enough powder
for a prolonged campaign, as the plants
now in existence would not be able to provide it. It has been argued that the government should have a powder
plant of its own, and this is conten-plated in bills which have been introduced. Secretary Taft of the war department has notified congress, however, that he would not counsel the embarkation of the government in powder manufacture to such an exten-
as to drive from business the plants of a private character now engaged in powder making.

The institution commonly called the powder trust is the company known as E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co.
The parent plant is in Delaware, but there are now other plants in various parts of the country. The history of this company dates back to the beginning of the nineteenth century, and the Du Pont family has had a prominent part in the defense of the nation. The Du Ponts have borne themselves gallantly in the fighting, and they have supplied powder to the government in three wars.

The founder of the American Du Pont family was Pierre Samuel Du Pont de Nemours, who was born near Paris in 1739. He was an expounder of the economic system of Quesnay and was secretary of the assembly of notables in 1787, member of the states general from Nemours in 1789 and later was president of the constituent assembly. Though he was a reformer, he was conservative in his methods and thus won the hostility of the revolutionists and only escaped the guillotine
through the death of Robespierre.
After his house had been looted and his property destroyed by the mob he took refuge in this country, bringing with him his sons Victor and Eleuther.

T. COLEMAN DU PONT.
Irene. They landed at Newport in 1800.
During the reign of terror the youngest son, Eleuther Irene, was in retirement at Essone, where the government powder works were located, and there became a student under the great chemist Lavoisier and examined the processes by which powder was produced.
This knowledge served him in good stead on arriving in this country. His attention was called to the bad character of the powder in use by the American government, and he determined to establish a plant for manufacture of this much needed article. Thomas Jefferson invited him to locate in Virginia,
but on account of the existence of slavery in that state he also in Maryland he chose Delaware instead and in 1802 brought models and machinery from France and set up the original plant on the Brandywine. A short time afterward the elder Du Pont, who had returned to France, assisted in the negotiations which resulted in the transfer of Louisiana territory to the United States. He remained in France until 1816, but died in 1817 at the family home near Wilmington. The great powder making industry founded by E. I.
Du Pont has remained for a hundred years in the hands of the Du Pont family. When E. I. Du Pont died in 1834 he was succeeded as head of the business by his son, Alfred Du Pont, who in turn was succeeded on his death in 1859 by his brother, General
Henry D. Du Pont. His son, General Henry A. Du Pont, is perhaps the most distinguished living member of the family. He was a Union soldier in the civil war, was brevetted four times for "distinguished services and gallantry in action" and won a congressional medal of honor. He claimed election to the United States senate from Delaware in 1895, but was not seated owing to the famous factional contest which for several years has prevented Delaware from having more than one representative in the upper branch of congress. He is one of the most powerful of Edward S. Addicks' opponents. The present head of the powder firm is T.
Coleman Du Pont. The late Rear Admiral Samuel Francis Du Pont, son of Victor and grandson of Pierre Samuel Du Pont de Nemours, was one of the most conspicuous of the naval officers on the Union side in the civil war, and another Du Pont, Lambert, rendered the Union cause great services.

MAJOR GENERAL WOOD.

His Rapid Rise in the Army and Brave Record.
Major General Leonard Wood, who has been criticised on account of the attack upon the Moros in the battle of Mount Bado, has had a remarkable career, and his rapid promotion in the army has made for him many enemies.
His advancement to the rank of brigadier general in the regular army by President McKinley aroused much criticism, and when President Roosevelt advanced him to the major general's rank the hostile comments broke out afresh. General Wood is not a graduate of West Point and was a surgeon in the army at the beginning of the

MAJOR GENERAL LEONARD WOOD.

Spanish war, when he organized and assumed command of the famous regiment of rough riders in which President Roosevelt was lieutenant colonel.
General Wood holds a congressional medal of honor which was awarded him for bravery in a campaign against Apaches. His career is a notable illustration of the pranks of fortune. An old friend of General Wood once said:

"Some time in the fall of 1897-I don't recall the exact date-I received a letter from General Wood. He wound up by saying that he was thinking strongly of making a trip into the Klondike country, which was then the sensation of the hour. The exact wording escapes me, but the inference was that the future looked rather blank-- in short, that he would have to do something then, if ever, and the Klondike seemed to offer a chance. In less than four months after getting this dependent letter the Maine was destroyed, and the circumstances were in motion that were destined to put a general's stars on the doc's shoulder straps, and surfeit him with glory. If he had made the necessary arrangements in 1897 I dare say he would be sitting today in a miner's cabin."

OFFICER AND HEIRESS.

Romance of Lieutenant Scharrar and His Young Bride.

Love, bravery and beer formed a most unusual combination in the case of the beautiful Miss Wilhelmina Busch and the gallant Lieutenant Edward F. Scharrar. The lieutenant is an officer of the German army. The girl with whom he fell in love is the daughter of the millionaire brewer, Adolphus Busch of St. Louis. He was an ardent wooer and it is said had proposed several times previous to the memorable day on which he took the brewer's daughter on a ride to Belleville, a suburb of St. Louis. She had not said "yes" before, but on this day
he was particularly ardent and suggested marriage on the spot. They went to a hotel, and the would be bridegroom wrote on the register "Mr.
and Mrs. Edward Scharrar." How-

MRS. EDWARD F. SCHARRAR.

ever, no marriage took place at that time. While he was trying to arrange for one of the young lady in the case called up her father by telephone, and he put in a protest, as the result of which they both returned to St. Louis without being married. Then the daughter was packed off in haste to the California home of the family at Pasadena. There followed a race across half the continent between the lieutenant and the more or less perturbed parent. Papa Busch took a special train, but the young officer got there first and persuaded the fair Wilhelmina to permit a second attempt at matrimony to be made. The marriage was duly solemnized.

The House Fly.

The musca domestica, or common house fly says Mary Hinman Able in her article on "Flies and Food," in the Delineator for July, is known to convey cholera in the East, and it is under suspicion as to other diseases.

Its origin and habits are such as to put us on our guard. It lays its eggs in excrement, preferring horse manure, but if that does not offer it readily uses any other. It feeds on the same and on the sputum of diseased throats and lungs, on refuse of any kind, and it bears on its hairy feet and legs particles of these substances.

Unlike the mosquito, the house fly
is not a biter, but it has its own way of carrying contagion. It deposits, wherever it goes disease, and disease
germs may abound in its breeding and feeding places. On the joint of meat exposed for sale by the butcher on the bread and sweetmeats of the confectioner's counter, on the edge of the milk pail, on the kitchen and dining room tables they have been found.

The epidemic of typhoid fever in Chicago in 1902 was caused by the fly. It was especially severe in the nineteenth ward, which furnished
one-seventh of the deaths while containing but one thirty-sixth of the city's population. This locality did not differ from the rest of the city,
in its water or food supply but it did differ in having more than fifty percent of its houses without sanitary plumbing, the water being insufficient.
Flies caught in undrained closets, on the fences, and the room of a patient were proved to carry the germ.

Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain,
and leave only a sense of relief.
The reason for this is explained by the fact that headache comes from tired, irritable, turbulent, over-taxed brain nerves. Anti-Pain Pills soothe and strengthen these nerves, thus removing the cause. They are harmless when taken as directed.

"We use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain pills

GIRL IS TOO RICH TO LIKE WORK

Finds that Even Her $1,000 Violin Won't Make Work Easy.

After little over a week of earning her own living, 17-year-old Portia Keefer, daughter of the millionaire, coal operator, has written her father that she is tired of that task, and is now reported to be at the home of her grandmother, in South Chicago, says a Pittsburg telegram. Her father is out there and her mother will leave next week to bring the young lady home.

Miss Keefer was a student at the Pittsburg Central High School, and had some trouble with her teachers. She wanted to quit school, but her father forbade it. On May 18 she disappeared, taking with her a few changes of linen and a one thousand dollar violin, a present from her father.

A week later she was located, but refused to come home, saying that she wanted to earn her own living. Mr. Keefer was disposed to let her try, and the trial has not proven an easy one for her. Although a violinist of remarkable ability she found her talent unmarketable.

She could have secured plenty of engagements in vaudeville, as her leaving home had made her somewhat of a celebrity, but she shrank from the notoriety she would thus obtain.

How to Break Up a Cold

It may be a surprise to many to learn that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days' time. The first symptoms of a cold are a dry, loud cough, a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thin, white coating on the tongue. When Chamberlain's cough remedy is taken every hour on the first appearance of these symptoms, it counteracts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition within a day or two. For sale Woods & Orme druggists.

Self-Reliance.

Nothing better could happen to the young man who has the right kind of spirit, than to be thrown upon the world and his own resources. Dr. Samuel Smiles has written. A well to do Judge once gave his son $1,000 and told him to go to college and graduate. The son returned at the end of the first year, his money all gone and with extravagant habits. At the close of the vacation the Judge said to his son:

"Well, William, are you going to college this year?"
"I have no money, father."
"But I gave you a thousand dollars to graduate on."
"It is all gone, father."
"Very well, my son, it was all I could give you; you can't stay here, you must pay your own way in the world."

A new light broke upon the vision of the young man. He accommodated himself to the situation; again left home, made his way through college, graduated at the head of his class, studied law, became governor of the state of New York, entered the Cabinet of the President of the United States, and made a record that will not soon die, for he was none other than William H. Seward.

Coming Changes In Supreme Court

JUSTICE HENRY B. BROWN.

THE recent decision of the United States supreme court on the subject of the trusts and the anticipated changes in the membership of the body have drawn especial attention to the judicial institution which occupies so high a place in the respect and esteem of all Americans. As the court of last resort of the republic the nine justices of the supreme court possess powers which have no parallel among the courts of other nations. It has been said that the constitutional convention of 1787 scarcely realized the great powers it conferred upon the supreme court in creating that body and that if it had and the people of the states had understood the same the constitution might not have been adopted, so great was the jealousy of the states at that time as to the powers they themselves claimed. It is generally recognized today as the most august body of the kind in existence. It is the balance wheel by which the affairs of the nation in its relation to the states are kept in order and is the final judge of the validity of all laws passed by congress or by the legislatures of the several states when brought to the test of the constitution of the United States. The lawmakers at Washington stand in wholesome fear of its powers, and in the discussion now in progress on the railroad rate bill every effort is being put forth by friends of railway rate reform to frame a measure which will pass the inspection of the supreme court.

The court has made several decisions recently which are considered to strengthen greatly the interests of the people when opposed by the power of corporations. Some of these decisions relate to interpretation of the anti-trust law, and one sustains the contention made by the city of Chicago in its contest with traction corporations, thereby creating a precedent for the guidance of other judges in the decision of similar questions. There were ten decisions affecting the right claimed by corporations to refuse to furnish evidence concerning their affairs on the ground that such evidence might be used to incriminate them. Two related to the so called tobacco trust cases and the majority opinion in them was delivered by Associate Justice Henry B. Brown. It declared that the right of a person under the fifth amendment to the constitution to refuse to incriminate himself was "purely a personal privilege of the witness" and not intended to apply to a corporation.

Justice Brown was appointed to the supreme bench from Michigan by President Harrison in 1890. He was born in March, 1836, and has therefore reached the age of seventy. In so doing he became eligible for retirement but that is a matter a supreme court justice exercises his discretion about. Some justices have served until past eighty. The late Justice Stephen J. Field served thirty-four years, or until he was eighty-one. It was during the latter portion of his service that Justice Brown took a seat in the tribunal. Justice Field was not able, by reason of infirmities, to do his share of the work and the court was somewhat handicapped in consequence. The other judges were overworked. Talking of the situation to a friend, Justice Brown said one day:

"When I get to be seventy, if I don't resign from the bench, I want you to come to Washington and kick me off."

A few days ago this friend paid a visit to him.

"I have come to remind you of a conversation we had ten years ago," remarked his friend. "This is your seventieth birthday, and I have come to comply with the instructions you gave me then."

Justice Brown remembered the conversation and laughed. But he had already notified the president of his intention to retire. It is understood that he will continue to serve for several months to come. The retirement of Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller is also expected in the near future. He is now seventy-three years of age and was appointed by President Cleveland in 1888

HAS IT OCCURRED TO YOU WHY . . .

So many wheat flaked foods have come and gone? Lack of quality of course. The richness that is distinctively noticeable in Cream Crisp gives it a taste quality unequalled. This accounts for growing business.

Unknown Friends

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done much toward making it a household word by personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the home and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by Woods & Orme druggists.
