PIONEER SETTLERS OF CORTLANDT COUNTY

Look upon the Early Church
And Its Influence on Our Times.

They say that the first house you see upon entering a new country is the church. In the early days of the first settlers, the church was the center of the community. The people gathered there for worship, for education, and for social interaction. It was a place of refuge, of fellowship, and of hope. The church provided a sense of community and belonging, a place where the people could come together and share their faith and their beliefs. And so it is today, even as we celebrate the Fourth of July and think about the future of this country, we must remember the importance of the church and the role it plays in our lives.
