ADVERTISE IN COUNTY PAPERS

Surest Road to Success
Says W. H. Copher

BUILD UP YOUR OWN TOWN

A Place Is Good Enough for a Man to Make Money In It Is Good Enough to Spend It In.

NO SUCCESS WITHOUT ADVERTISING.

Mr. W. H. Copher, the restaurant and groceryman, is a strong believer in advertising and building up his home town instead of helping to build large cities. In conversation with a RECORD man the other day Mr. Copher said:

"We are proud of our splendid cities, and we want them to increase in wealth and population, and we also want our country towns to grow. We wish the city merchants to build up, but we also desire the country merchants to prosper. I do not believe in the mail order citizen. If a place is good enough for a man to live in and to make his money in, it is good enough for him to spend his money in."

"No merchant can succeed without advertising in one way or another. Patronize your town papers, build them up, and they will build the town up and build you up in increased trade and greater opportunities. Do not be afraid that business is going to be hurt by the recent exposures of wrongdoing in the commercial world. No man who is doing an honest business can be injured by the light. All business will be better for the cleansing process it is going through and for the stamping out of evils."

FORMER PRINCIPAL HERE.

Now Holds a Similar Position in Ardmore, I. T.

Prof. Charles Evans, former principal of the Marion Graded School, is among his many Marion friends once more. He arrived in Kentucky several days ago and did some institute work and is now among the scenes of his former school work.

Prof. Evans is very pleasantly situated in Ardmore, I. T. and is superintendent of city schools. The city schools are located in six different buildings, each building has a principal who is directly responsible to no one but Prof. Evans. There are 35 teachers teaching in these six different buildings, and the superintendent is expected to visit and keep in touch with the work carried on there.

Last year there were enrolled 2300 pupils and the average attendance was 1890.

One of these buildings is used for colored children.

Professor Evans went to Ardmore at a salary of $1200 per year. At the close of this school year the directors voted him an increase to $1800 per year for the coming year, and also voted a free gift of $100 for the past years service as a token of appreciation of work well done.

To say that Professor Evans has gotten a strong hold upon the people of Ardmore would be putting it very mild.

With that same vim, vigor and spirit of publicity that characterized his work in Marion he has seated himself well in the saddle, gathered the reins with a firm hand and guides the public schools of Ardmore with a keen sense of the fitness of things.

It pays the Professor, it pays the school and it pays the community at Ardmore to have a wide awake, enterprising, aggressive head and to trust the management in his hands.

If we mistake not Prof. Evans will outgrow Ardmore as he did Marion, and a somewhat longer purse will mark time while he packs his household goods for another journey.

Cobalt in Tennessee.

Centerville, Tenn., July 23.—Mr. John Morris, who has been in the county for several months prospecting for cobalt for Thomas A. Edison, has met with much encouragement. To a Banner correspondent he stated that he was well pleased with his investigations in Hickman County so far, and that the revelations made him confident that the quality of the mineral would justify expectations. Numerous specimens of cobalt have been obtained from various sections of the county and brought to Centerville to be tested by Dr. K. Sutton, who is also assisting Mr. Edison in the work here. Mr. Morris has obtained five or six tons of the mineral on Wolf Creek which will be shipped this week to Orange, N. J., to be thoroughly tested by Mr. Edison. This will be the first car-load of cobalt ever shipped in the United States, and it marks the beginning of a greater era of prosperity for this section. Mr. Morris will leave in a few days for Idaho to investigate a cobalt find there, after which he will return and organize his forces for a most thorough search for the mineral in this and adjoining counties. He says Dickson, Perry, Lewis, Lawrence and Wayne counties are yet to be prospected. A specimen of fine cobalt has been received by Dr. Sutton from Maury county, and Mr. Morris, who saw it Saturday, pronounces it excellent quality.

Specimens are being gathered and forwarded almost daily to Mr. Edison, and since the farmers are through working their crops, the hunt for the mineral will be stimulated.

MISS RIVES

Becomes the Wife of Post Wheeler, of New York.

According to the Washington, D. C. Post, Miss Hallie Ermine Rives, the young Christian county woman who has achieved remarkable success as an authoress, is the bride of Post Wheeler, brilliant journalist, traveler and poet.

The only intimation received here by relatives and friends of Miss Rives came in the society supplement of the Post, which published a portrait of the authoress, under the caption "One of the brides of the season—Mrs. Post Wheeler, formerly Miss Hallie Ermine Rives."

For several years Mr. Wheeler has been a devoted admirer of Miss Rives, and their marriage was expected, but no formal announcement of the nuptials has been made, and the bride's aun's in this city and other relations have heard nothing of the union further than the Post's statement.—Hopkinsville New Era.

Tobacco Crop in Crittenden.

The Crittenden Record has been to some trouble in getting the following information concerning the crop of tobacco now growing.

It has been a matter of record and this record has been collected by many whose every interest has been to arrive at the truth of the condition of our growing tobacco crop. These men are located in every neighborhood. The crop this year is 90 per cent. of an average crop.

In acreage it shows an increase of 10 per cent. over last year.

The general condition of the plant is the best ever known at this season of the year. The plant has been worked and is clean and in fine fix. It is also of uniform size and is stout, hardy and no worm holes.

Crittenden farmers have good cause to congratulate themselves that one of the main crops of the country is, generally speaking, in the best fix ever known.

Martin Family at Sturgis.

The Martin family composed of father, son and daughter, who held a revival meeting in Marion a few weeks ago will begin another series of meetings in Sturgis, Ky., August 5th. This time the family engaged in the work will be composed of father, mother, son and three daughters—six in all.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to those who came to us in the sad illness and death of our beloved husband and father. May God's richest blessings rest upon them be the prayer of Mrs. H. F. Kuykendall and children.

Base Ball.

Marion Juniors played the Blackford team, the score being 21 to 22 in favor of Marion. Marion batteries, Rochester and Johnson. Blackford batteries, Croft and White.

ENCOURAGED IN CRITTENDEN

Louisville Capital Interested

Made.

MEANS MUCH TO THIS COUNTY.

A number of Louisville men owning mining property in Crittenden county says the Post, received word today from experts working at their mines that leads them to believe that they will become capitalists in a short time. In seeking fluor spar, a vein of ore rich in lead and zinc was unearthed and will be worked at once.

The mines referred to are located near Crittenden Springs and are near the famous Eclipse Mines that are among the richest lead and zinc mines in this part of the country. The lead was struck in paying quantities thirty feet below the surface. Here it assays 25 per cent. and is thought to be much richer farther down. Attorney James Edwards, Mr. William Miller and Mr. John M. Rankin are local persons having large interests in the mines.

They expect to realize over $100,000 in the next few months, and are making active preparations to work the mines day and night.—Henderson Journal.

PROF. CHARLES EVANS

Is Delightfully Entertained by His Former Pupils and Friends in Marion.

Professor Charles Evans had been in Marion but a few short hours when some of the old time spirits of Marion Graded Schools arranged for an informal meeting between those old time spirits and the once all powerful Professor.

The place arranged for was the home of Attorney A. C. Moore. The time was Monday night, July 16. The well-known and entertainers chosen were Miss Walker and Miss Carrie Moore.

The choice old time spirits consisted principally of Virgil Moore, Gray Rochester, Lottie Gilbert, Leslie Melton, Sylvan Price and Hope Yates.

The time was propitious, the night ideal, the spirits of all kinds were congenial, and the ices were delightful. Punch flowed from rivulets to rivers and that good woman, who has presided over the destinies of that household for so many years, seemed to have an inexhaustible supply of red cherries and all those good things that enter into the composition of good punch.

The well-known and entertainers entertained and all went merry as a marriage bell.

At a certain stage in the proceedings Professor Evans took the floor and pulling down his vest in the proper manner delivered himself as follows:

"Young gentleman it is good for us to be here. In order that we may have a more perfect understanding and that some of the hazy mysteries of the past may be cleared, suppose we have a heart to heart talk of the memories of long ago."

"It will be of no use of course, but there are a few miracles which happened in Marion Graded school that if I understood thoroughly I believe I could die happy."

The professor was so in earnest that the old time spirits agreed to draw aside the veil and confess. The professor then continued, "I remember one time standing at my desk before my chair preparatory to sitting down, I had a premonition of evil. I could not for the life of me detect a thing out of the ordinary with a pupil in the room yet the air was electrical and surcharged. A little more cautiously than usual I sat when quick as a flash I discovered the trouble. It was a pin.

I did not move but watched each narrowly until I could get away and returning got a good view of the instrument of torture. That night I admired the skill with which that pin had been placed. It was ingenious. Now young gentleman who placed that pin there?"

The choice spirits saddled it on Lottie Gilbert.

The professor continued, "I am very anxious to know who arranged all the coal buckets so they would tumble down stairs upon opening the door, making a sound like the building was falling down."

The choice spirits saddled it on Virgil Moore.

"Well," said the professor, "Who nailed my hat to the wall with two large tacks so that when I put it on my head there was left two little bunches of fur on the wall?"

The choice spirits saddled it on Gray Rochester.

The reserve of the choice spirits had by this time worn away and the conversation became general. Each choice spirit vied with another to tell and the vision of the professor gradually broadened.

The transom to the inner doors over at the school building are filled with glass and when set at a certain angle they give a reflection of any one approaching from the outside. This was a wonderful revelation and explained away a number of miracles to Prof. Evans.

Roy Terry's imitation of Prof. Evans shooting his camera and his injunction to "now look pretty" given by one of the choice spirits was very good.

The heart to heart talks were, very instructive, and very enlightening. The evening passed all too soon. With a pang at the heart that the hour had passed these young men and their former teacher left the dwelling of Mr. A. C. Moore and went west on Depot street to their respective homes.

Politically Different.

EDITOR RECORD: I notice that the solid democratic jury selected to try the defendant member of the Democratic State Central Committee in the case of the commonwealth of Kentucky against Jas. Hargis found no trouble or remorse of conscience in acquitting the defendant, who had been proven guilty of the murder of J. B. Marcum in twenty minutes after the case was submitted to the jury, so you see it sometimes becomes necessary to use a democratic jury to try democrats as well as when trying republicans, but I suppose you will readily notice the difference in the results. While a democrat is acquitted in twenty minutes a republican is invariably sentenced to the penitentiary for life or to be hung in about the same length of time and without proof of his guilt. And will you please give us a hint as to what excuse the democratic party will give for having a solid democratic jury to try Hargis in a county which is strongly republican. Can you as editor of THE RECORD or otherwise tell me what republicans can do and be decent, and become eligible for jury services in Kentucky. Please answer quick.

INQUISITIVE.

Finds Mineral.

Several expert miners have visited the M. C. Wright mineral find since being reported in the papers some two weeks ago. Each one has pronounced it good and believe that it is on the Fairview lead. The dirt is mineral bearing from within six inches of the top of the ground. Much interest is manifested by our citizens as all feel that this part of the country is rich in mineral. This property and the adjoining property, Mr. A. C. Babb's, was optioned to the Ohio Valley Mining Co. for three years, but this expired last April. From indications now, they were very near their goal at one time. Any company wishing to invest in mineral land are requested to come and examine for themselves.

Goes To Eddyville.

Mr. Chas. Miller, who has been inspector at the Hopkinsville Asylum for several years, will go to Eddyville the first of August and take the position of assistant warden at the penitentiary. Mr. Miller during his stay there has been faithful in the discharge of his duties and has made many warm friends who will regret to see him leave.

This recalls to mind that Mr. Jesse Olive former townsman will soon retire from the position of deputy warden of Eddyville.

The new deputy warden of Eddyville is E. P. Gillenwater, of Barren county, and the new assistant deputies are: Mr. Wilson, of Union county and Chas. W. Miller, of Hopkinsville.

SOME POINTERS FOR FARMERS

Uncle Sam Instructs Tobacco Growers

MUCH DEPENDS ON SEED

Too Many Seed Plants Should Not
Be Turned out in One Field.

SHOULD BE IN DIFFERENT PLACES.

The selection of seed plants must be made before the plants are topped, says A. D. Shamel, of the United States Department of Agriculture, and the most successful selections can only be made after a study of the crop from the seed bed to harvest. It is necessary to study the plants in all stages of growth to judge of their fitness for the parentage of the future crops. In order to fully determine the value of the plants, it is advisable to follow the leaves from the separate plants, through the curing shed and compare the cured leaves from the selected plants. This plan of examination of the product of the seed plants is extremely important, and this test of the seed plants is unusually neglected. The leaves from the seed plants are not ordinarily of as good quality as the leaves from the plants that have been topped, and this fact must be kept in mind during the comparison of the Tobacco in the warehouse.

In making selections of seed plants it is desirable to run over the entire field and mark the best plants for a second examination. This preliminary selection can be made just before topping, but it should not be done before the plants are pretty well developed, so that the type is determined. A second selection should be made before the flowers begin to open. The best plan for making such studies is to follow some regular outline of points, such as are used in the plant breeding records of the United States Department of Agriculture. In this way definite data is secured as to the actual condition of the plants, which can be kept for use when the leaves are compared in the warehouse. The number of desirable leaves should be noted, and in counting them only the leaves usable for manufacture should be counted.

The size of the leaf can be pretty accurately determined by measuring the middle leaf of each plant. The length should be measured from the tip to the point of attachment of the leaf to the stalk, and the width measured at the widest point of the leaves. The number of suckers is easily recorded and the time of ripening of the leaves should be kept, in order to throw some light on the time of maturity and the comparative earliness of the plants. In addition to these notes a final record should be kept of the quality of the cured Tobacco.

The number of seed plants to be saved for seed depends upon the size of the Tobacco fields for which they are expected to supply plants. Each seed pod contains from 5,000 to 7,000 seeds, and as there are from 50 to 150 pods to every plant the average seed plants produce from 300,000 to 700,000 seed. It can be seen that in view of the large number of seed grown by the seed plants it is necessary to save but a few plants in order to secure enough to set out a large field.

For a field of ten acres a dozen plants is all that is necessary to save in the field, and after the examination of the cured plants it is necessary to save only the best two or three plants for seed purposes for the following season.

Where only two or three seed plants are saved it is desirable to save the seed in separate samples and divide the seed bed into two or three sections, sowing each section with the seed from one seed plant. The seedlings from each section should be set out in separate portions of the field, so that the field is a test of the transmitting power of the individual seed plants. The selection of seed plants for the next year can be made from the section of the field in which plants are most uniform and of the most desirable type.

able type. In this way improvement in the uniformity of the type can rapidly be secured by the grower.

Death Summons.

George Arthur Gass succumbs to typhoid fever. He was the son of Richard E. and Maggie E. Gass. He was born June 13th 1879, in Smith county Tenn. In 1885 his parents moved to Crittenden county Ky., but George was his grand-father's favorite he therefore remained with him till his grand-father died in 1889. He and his grand-mother then joined the family in Kentucky.

In 1895 or 1896 he professed faith in Christ and joined the Baptist church at Piney Creek in said county. He was a zealous worker and beloved by the brethren and sisters of his church. In 1901 he and family moved to Henderson, his grand-mother having died. He soon joined the Audubon Baptist church, by this church he was chosen deacon.

In 1905 he was married to Miss Florence Ligon, of this place, with whom he lived happily till death, July 16, 1906. After appropriate funeral services at Audubon Baptist church he was laid to rest in Fernwood cemetery, this place on July 17, 1906.

He is survived by his parents, one sister, Mrs. Lida F. Condon, two brothers, Joseph G. and Alvin H. Gass, a nephew, Oliver P. McMican, son of his oldest sister, Mrs. Mattie I. McMican, his wife and a host of friends.

George was an industrious man of the highest order. He was a true Christian, a faithful church member and an efficient officer. He was a true faithful and loving husband. He was a loyal citizen and an obedient and lovable son. He was loved by all who knew him. Oh! how we all will miss him. The vacant chair, the empty pew, and the silent voice at home and at church. His loss can be mourned but not repaired soon, if ever. But happy thought amid these dark lonely hours while he is gone from us, he is gone to rest. He has passed over the river to the sunny side, gone to be with Christ and the angels, gone to his great reward, gone where there is no sin, no sickness, no pain, no death, no separation, gone to await our coming. As we miss him here we look for him up yonder and as we count the time and trace the sun we realize we are gathering home, one by one. Ah! how soon the family, relatives and friends will be gathered together. Yes, when the work on earth is done and the dark lonely hours are passed, we hope we all will be gathered home at last.

Dear George how we miss you here, how it grieves us to give you up, but we bow in humble submission to the divine will, and say not my will but thine be done. We will never forget you, we will ever cherish the fond memory of you until the Lord shall say to us as he did to you "It's enough, come up higher." Then we will climb the sunny slopes to the City of God where we all may dwell together for ever more. By his pastor,

C. L. ROBERTS.

FACING THE FATES

Mr. Sayre Bravely Meets Any and All Tests.

The Crittenden Coal & Coke Company is fortunate in the possession of a general manager whose nerve is supreme and who bravely meets and faces any danger or superstition.

Last Friday, July 20th, Mr. Sayre started across country for Zeigler, Ill. We repeat he started on Friday. According to the wise one who saw the start the selection of the day as selected by Mr. Sayre was very unfortunate. Never begin anything on Friday.

Mr. Sayre had with him his little daughter, Helen, and was driving Mr. J. H. Tonkin's horse and buggy.

As no news to the contrary has been received we presume Mr. Sayre and daughter arrived safely.

In Mineral Circles Now.

Nobody would have ever accused our genial friend, Cort Pierce, of getting "crazy" on the subject of mineral, but this certainly must be so, for Cort has gotten to be quite "chummy" with Capt. Haase, Mr. Reed and other celebrities of this class. Cort purchased a farm near Mexico and found a few lumps of spar on it and since that time you can not get him to talk of anything but "mineral."

RIGHT COMPASSES

NAVY DEPARTMENT TO HELP NAVIGATORS OF LAKES.

Marks to Be Set Up at Points Where Beds of Iron Under Water Disarrange the Needle.

Washington, D. C.—The navy department has sent Commander Reginald F. Nicholson, assistant chief of the equipment bureau, to Cleveland to take steps to help the captains of lake vessels to rectify their troubles with refractory compasses. For many years past these compasses have been bothered by the erratic behavior of their needles in different localities on the lakes. At first it was thought that the cargoes of iron or other ores they were carrying in their vessels were responsible for this deviation in the needles; but nowadays it is recognized that the real source of the trouble lies in the nature of the bottom of the lakes, and not in the cargoes. Great beds of iron underlie the lakes in various places, and these affect the compasses.

It is to correct this evil that Commander Nicholson is going to Cleveland with instruments that will enable him to set up, at certain conspicuous places, "marks" fixed at the true north, so that the captains of passing ships may note any errors in their compasses and make the necessary adjustments. At present it is his intention to set up these "marks" in St. Clair river and in the straits of Mackinaw, which will cover the greater part of the lake traffic.

How strongly the underlake influences affect the compasses of lake vessels was revealed to a traveler last summer while crossing Lake Ontario on a lumber steamer. From the time the ship cleared the mouth of the St. Lawrence river on its westerly passage until it was across the middle ground in the center of the lake, the captain or mate stood upon the flying bridge conning the ship from the compass on that lofty height. Experience had taught the skipper that natural conditions under the bed of the lake affected his compass in the wheelhouse so materially that the compass was practically useless in that particular portion of the voyage, and consequently the vessel's course was kept by the compass upon the bridge, which was so far above the disturbing mineral elements as not to be affected by them. For the greater part of the run across the lake the compass in the wheelhouse was a point or two "off" from the true direction of the one on the bridge. The "marks" to be set up by the government's hydrographers will enable this particular captain, as well as others, to correct such deviations every trip if they care to.

FISH IN SUNKEN BOAT.

Hold of Vessel Contains Food Stuffs Upon Which They Fatten.

Portland, Ore.—When the steamer George W. Elder is finally floated her hold will be found alive with fish. This was brought to light the other day by one of the divers when he emerged from hatch No. 2 after having made a final examination of the patches put over the large break that sent the steamer to the bottom.

The water in the hull is black, and the diver was completely in the dark, but in groping his way over the bottom came in contact with a veritable school of fish, which he believes are carp. He says they were so thick that he had to push his way through, and he could feel the commotion in the water.

The fish have been feeding and growing fat on the flour and other foodstuffs allowed to remain in the after part of the vessel to keep her on as even a keel as possible, and besides they have been sheltered from the strong current and have had things their own way for more than a year.

HAVE MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

Motorists at Lake Como Land with Their Machine in a Tree.

London.—An extraordinary automobile escape is reported from Lake Como, Italy. It is something beyond the usual when motorists find safety, machine and all, in a tree. A French artist had been staying at Lake Como, and was driving an automobile with three friends near Brunate, when descending a steep hill the car struck a large stone, swerved violently against the parapet protecting the mountain road from a precipice and, breaking through the masonry, went clear over the edge. Luckily, the branches of a tree growing from the side of the rock, and reaching nearly to the road level, caught the car as it fell, thereby saving the four men from certain death. After being "treed" for some hours, the party were rescued from their unpleasant position.

Horse Rescued from Well.

A horse backed into a cistern on Missouri point, opposite Alton, a few days ago, while trying to disengage itself from the rails of a fence it was trying to leap. Neighbors planned for several hours to rescue the animal, when one of them conceived the idea of filling the cistern with loose straw, gradually raising the horse's footing until the animal could step out. Four big loads of straw were used in the rescue, which was successful.

ROOFING A POTATO PATCH

Montana Man Evolves Method of Growing Tubers in Sixty Days.

Great Falls, Mont.—A half-bushel of sawdust, a dash of chemical solution and 15 potatoes carefully enveloped with the sawdust will enable the average householder to grow a bushel of tubers on his housetop or in his cellar within 60 days. This process has been discovered and elaborated by W. D. Darst, of this place. Moreover, the grower will have no contest with gr. worms.

The product of Mr. Darst's process is termed "vineless potato," from the fact that, grown under these apparently unnatural conditions, there is no surface vegetation. Because of this each potato buried in the sawdust is enabled to produce at least 12 normal-sized tubers.

The other day at the Oakland plaza, in the rear of the Oakland hotel, Mr. Darst disclosed the methods of growing potatoes by his system. Operating on the theory that the presence of surface vegetation was only a method of securing nourishment and in reality sapped the vitality of the tuber, Mr. Darst experimented more than six years, and found he could overcome this seemingly natural course on the part of the plant by supplying it artificially with its needs.

By employing sawdust, straw or any other earth product that would permit of the circulation of air, moisture and heat and the application of solutions of various salts, he discovered a single potato would multiply itself by attaching to itself from 12 to 16 other potatoes of approximately the same dimensions without throwing off any of its energy above ground.

Packed in loosely arranged bins permitting the free access of air and arranged in rows six inches above each other, with an allowance of one cubic foot of sawdust to the seedling, Mr. Darst has demonstrated the rapidity of growth and the proportions that the potatoes may attain by showing that within 60 days 15 potatoes will produce a bushel. In the character of his experiment and the success that has attended them Mr. Darst has the endorsement of Luther Burbank, the eminent horticulturist and botanist.

TALLEST THERMOMETER.

Twenty-Foot Heat Indicator Attracts Hundreds of People to Store in Boston.

Boston.—There are thermometers and thermometers, but the largest one in the world attracts hundreds of people to Jaynes & Co.'s store at Summer and South streets. It is not wholly a show thermometer, however, for it works perfectly and marks the variations in temperature just about as accurately as one of the pretty all-glass indicators. From top to bottom this gigantic thermometer measures 20 feet. The mercury tube is a little more than 16 feet in length and 1 1/4 inches in diameter.

Ten tubes were broken by the makers, a Rochester, N. Y., concern, before they succeeded in producing this one and the task involved great difficulties. It was packed with care and every precaution to guard against breakage was taken when it was unpacked and set up. When it was finally in place on the building the men in charge breathed a sigh of relief. The graduated scale over which the tube is conducted is the work of some of the experts sent here from Rochester, the home of thermometers of all styles and classes.

The manufacturers of the big thermometer say they know of no other anywhere that approaches it in size with the single exception of one at the World building, New York, and that is much smaller, in fact, is only about half the size of the Summer street temperature recorder.

FERTILIZE WITH SKIM MILK

Good Results from Unsalable Product Obtained by New York Farmers.

Middletown, N. Y.—Skim milk as a fertilizer for crops is interesting the farmers in the vicinity of Halsey, N. J., and several declare that astonishing results have come from its use. Several weeks ago a creamery of that place had a lot of skim milk that could not be used. W. Clark Mains and John A. Segler, farmers, took the milk and poured it on their lands as an experiment. Mains emptied 75 cans on a timothy sod lot. Segler emptied 160 cans on a piece of meadow land. Remarkable results have been obtained.

Their grass is now seven times as vigorous as on adjoining fields where the milk was not used, but which were covered with commercial fertilizers. The farmers predict that milk will be used henceforth.

Bloodhounds for Petty Thieves.

City Marshal Charles Kimsey, of Muskogee, Ind. T., has purchased a pair of bloodhounds from state officials in Texas and will bring them to Muskogee, where he will keep them in training to run down criminals in the city. They will also be used by the federal officers of the district whenever they are called for. Officer Kimsey thinks the bloodhounds will be specially useful in running down petty thieves among the colored population of the city.

Tramp Dog Steals Rides.

Clinging to the top of a box car, a tramp dog rode 117 miles from Pittsburgh to Altoona on a fast-freight train recently. It was discovered by the brakemen on top of a beef car shivering with cold and badly scared.

MYSTERY IS SOLVED

DYING CONFESSION EXPLAINS LOSS OF FARMER'S WEALTH.

Revenge of Former Friend Who Was Unfairly Beaten in Contest for Girl's Love—Fortune Boiled.

Lake Ainslee, Cape Breton.—By the confession of Thomas MacDougal, made on his deathbed, a mystery of ten years has been cleared up. Here is the story:

Twenty-five years ago MacDougal and Jonathan MacFarlane were neighbors and both fell in love with the same girl, a pretty young woman of Hawkesbury. MacFarlane won out, but his neighbor did not consider that the means he used were quite above board, and being a disbeliever in the old saying that all is fair in love and war, he became a bitter enemy of his old friend. After the marriage he became a recluse, and seldom left his house except to go to the store to purchase supplies.

Both men were prosperous and made money farming. MacDougal banked his money in Hawkesbury, but what his neighbor did with his cash was a mystery. It was known that he sent sums of money to Boston and received in return small flat packages forwarded by registered mail, but what was contained therein no one could guess. They were always received at stated times and were guarded so carefully that everyone judged them to be of great value.

Finally, in some way, MacDougal discovered that the mysterious packages contained United States postage stamps in various denominations and that his neighbor was secreting them somewhere in his house. He was well aware that MacFarlane was afraid of banks, but why he should convert his wealth into foreign postage stamps was not clear. On making the discovery, a way to square accounts for the fancied or real wrong does him suggested itself, and he bided his time.

In the summer of 1895 a servant who had been employed by the MacFarlanes since the day of the wedding died, and when the body was taken to the grave the entire family accompanied it, leaving the house unguarded for the first time in ten years. The day after the funeral MacFarlane suffered a slight shock of paralysis, and two years later died from the effects.

At this time his widow created a sensation by telling of a statement made by her husband while he was dying. This was to the effect that his entire wealth had been converted into United States postage stamps and concealed in an old copper kettle in the cellar. The stamps were in good condition when he left for the cemetery the day the servant died, but when he returned he found that some one had boiled them during his absence and that they were dissolved into a sticky, unrecognizable mass. His reason for putting his wealth into stamps bought in the United States instead of into Canadian postage was that thieves would be unable to dispose of the plunder without leaving Cape Breton. How much money was lost he refused to say, but the shock killed him.

MacDougal was suspected, but there was no evidence against him and no arrest was made. His confession was complete and bears out the story of the widow. He said that he sneaked into the house after the funeral, searched until he found the stamps and then boiled them on the kitchen range. He completed his work an hour before the party returned from the grave.

TEXAS TELEPHONE LINES.

Every Town and Hamlet in the Big State Provided with Ample Service.

San Antonio, Tex.—The construction of rural telephone lines in southwest Texas is surprisingly rapid at this time. In the section of country where a few years ago there was no service but the man on horseback for the dissemination of news, there is now a network of telephone lines that give communication between the numerous new farms and the ranches and villages and cities.

There are at this time in the southwestern section of the state more than 100 independent telephone systems, many of them being rural party lines. Each of these lines is connected with the larger systems at the various villages, and the farmers are capable of having direct communication with the county seat and with each other.

It is said by promoters of the lines that the Texas farmers are the most enthusiastic patrons of the rural telephone proposition, and that it can be but a few years before the number of subscribers to telephone lines that reach the farms of Texas will be greater in proportion to the population than in the older states, where the telephone has been longer in use.

Chinatown as City Asset.

The people of San Francisco have begun to discover that Chinatown was a paying investment. The district drew a trade of $30,000,000 annually, most of which came from tourists who looked upon the quarter as a world's curiosity. Hence it will be difficult either to suppress Chinatown or to improve it much. What the tourists examined in open-mouthed wonder was chiefly its dirt. To remove that would be to remove a prime cause of profitable curiosity. Altruism is not going to slope with the new San Francisco.

The State College of Kentucky

LEXINGTON, KY.

THE Agricultural and Mechanical (State) College of Kentucky offers the following courses of study, viz: Agricultural, chemical, biological, mathematical, physical, normal school, classical, mechanical engineering, civil engineering, mining engineering, each of which extends over four years and leads to a master's degree. Each course of study is organized under a separate faculty. The general faculty number nearly fifty professors and instructors.

County appointees receive tuition, room rent in dormitories, fuel and light, and if they remain ten months, traveling expenses.

The laboratories and museums are large, well equipped, comprehensive and modern. Military tactics and science are fully provided for as required by Congress. Graduates from the several courses of study readily find excellent positions and liberal remuneration. The demand is largely in excess of the ability of the college supply. The matriculation for the last year was, including Summer school, 815.

Specialists with the necessary number of assistants have charge of each department of natural science. Summer schools are provided for pedagogy, engineering and instruction in science and arts.

The State College of Kentucky is the only institution in the Commonwealth doing in any proper sense university work.

The college home for young women provides facilities for good board and lodging. It is well equipped with all modern conveniences, including bath room and a room for physical culture. It is heated by steam and lighted by electricity.

An opportunity is thus afforded to them of a thorough education in classics, modern languages, literature, science, mathematics, logic, metaphysics, history and political economy. No other institution in the State offers advantages for the education of women at all comparable to those offered by the State College of Kentucky.

A new Library building will, through the generosity of Mr. Carnegie, be erected during the next Collegiate year.

The Normal Department will be on a better footing than ever heretofore. Last year's largely increased attendance, with the unprecedented growth of the Summer Normal School, both indicate that an era of prosperity surpassing that of all previous years has opened for the Normal Department of the State College.

WHY SHE THOUGHT IT APPEALED TO HER.

"Would you not like to fly with me to some hidden part of the world," asks the enamored youth, "where the false conventions of modern society are things unknown, where the hampering requirements of our present civilization are unheard of, where the people live near to nature's heart, dreaming naught of our silly changes of fashion, knowing naught of the allurements of hats and dresses and—"

"Oh, Harold!" exclaims the sweet young thing, "Is there such a place? Oh, how wonderful it would be to go there!"

"Do you mean that would go?" he cries, his voice thrilling with a wondrous upsurging of soul.

"Would it? It would be heavenly! Think of being able to introduce all the latest things in bridge and shirt waists and bonnets among those women, and make them all realize what frightful back numbers they are!"—Life.

Done Again.

"I bought your 'six best sellers,'" said customer in the book store.

"Ah, indeed," replied the clerk, with a smile; "how did you like them?"

"Well, I think you should abbreviate your advertisement!"

"What do you mean?"

"Why, make it the 'six best sellers.'"—Chicago Daily News.

Mr. Ewing Young, Stonefort, Ill., Cured by Zemo After Six Years' Torment and Humiliation

ZEMO

POSITIVELY CURES ANY FORM OF SKIN OR SCALP DISEASE

READ MR. YOUNG'S LETTER

E. W. ROSE MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo. STONEFORT, ILL., April 3, 1905.
Dear Sirs:—It is a source of pleasure for me to permit you to use my picture before and after cured by "ZEMO," and to tell what "ZEMO" did for me. I doctored this case of (Acne) pimples for six years and spent several hundred dollars with physicians and specialists. The more salves and creams I used, the worse my face became. Mr. Ira Blackman recommended "ZEMO." Eight bottles entirely cured me, and I honestly believe "ZEMO" is the best remedy in the world for any skin disease. Yours very truly, Ewing Young

POULTRY AND BEES

TO CLOSE HIVE ENTRANCES

Simple But Effective Method of Using Sections of Wire Screening.

A unique way of closing hive entrances with screen wire cloth is that of E. R. Jones, of Beeville, Tex. It is the cheapest and quickest that I have ever seen or heard of, declares the editor of Gleanings in Bee Culture. I have tried the scheme myself, while moving colonies, and was highly pleased with it.

The wire cloth is cut into strips (Fig. 1) twice the width of the entrance to be closed, and exactly the inside length of the same. For the standard three-eighths-inch depth entrance the strips would be three-quarters of an inch wide; for the three-quarter inch entrance one and one-half inches. The strips are next bent into shallow troughs (Fig. 2) by placing them lengthwise between two straight-edged boards and letting half their width extend out to be bent down by the use of another board.

On closing the entrances, simply lay one of these strips down on the bottom-board with its curved "back" in the entrance, and by means of a piece of section box (Fig. 4) push it into place about half way under the end of the hive so it will be in position as in Fig. 3. This finishes the job. The strips are easily pushed in but not out. The sharp projections of the cross-wires of these strips will "stick" into the wood above and below, and form a "truss" in such a way that, the more pressure is put behind it, the finer the strip will be in the wood. It takes "quite a pull" to remove them when releasing the bees. The point of a pocket-knife is inserted at one end then pry out, and the screen is caught by the thumb and pulled out with a hard, quick jerk. There is no danger of these entrance-closers being pushed in or torn off en route, as they are completely hidden out of the way. Mr. Jones has shipped bees closed in this way in a car several hundred miles without any trouble. When shipping out small lots of nuclei he fixed them in this way also. Care should be taken not to get the strips too wide or the "teeth" will not stick into the wood. They are simply inexpensive, requiring but little wire cloth and no strips of lath or nails; besides the time required in the preparation of many of the entrance-closers now in use.

UNBALANCED RATINGS.

Effect Easily Noted on the Eggs and the Hen—Need of Thought Here.

If we examine the body of a hen we find fat, lean meat and bone, says James A. Rice, of Cornell. If we examine the food that she eats we discover, in wheat, for example, that it contains starch and oil (the carbohydrates or fat-forming material), which is the fat of the grain and which, when eaten by the animal, goes to make heat, energy and fat. We see also, little grains of gluten, which might be called the lean of the grain and which, when utilized by the animal, make the lean meat. We further find the mineral matter (the ash) which might be called the bone of the wheat and which, when assimilated by the animal, makes bone and egg-shell.

Therefore it is easy to understand why it is that when food is deficient in lime and other mineral matter the eggs are soft-shelled; why a ration deficient in protein produces weak, spindling chickens, or a ration containing an excess of easily digestible carbohydrate matter causes the fowl to become excessively fat.

Thus we see the necessity of having properly balanced rations which simply means that there must be a properly balanced relationship between the food nutrients in the ration in order to produce a perfect animal or a perfect egg. Is it any wonder, then, that a hen whose body contains 21 per cent of protein, and whose egg contains more than 14 per cent of the same nutrient, will fail to grow well or to lay satisfactorily when her food is deficient in this particular material, or any other that her body requires?

Watson's Magazine

The leading exponent of Jeffersonian Democracy, edited by Hon. Thos. E. Watson, of Georgia, the Father of Rural Free delivery; author of "The Story of France," "Life of Napoleon," "Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson," "Betheny" and other books. Mr. Watson was the People's Party nominee for Vice-President in 1896, and for President in 1904. He is today heading a middle-class reform movement which is bound to sweep the country in a short time.

Watson's Magazine is not a Socialist publication. It does not stand for collective ownership for all the means of production. Mr. Watson believes in public or government ownership of railroad, telegraphs and telephones; in municipal ownership of street railways, gas, electric lights, water works, etc.; and he believes in private ownership of all industries not natural monopolies.

The middle class—the home owners, farmers, small business men and property owners—won Jefferson's victory in 1800; won Jackson's victory over Nick Biddle's money power in 1832; won Lincoln's victory in 1860. But each time after the flush of victory had died away, they became careless of their rights and went to sleep. They have slept a good portion of the time since 1865, but—

Watson's Magazine is waking them up. Another great victory is in the air. Keep in touch with the movement.

CALLED HER BLUFF AND WAS WILLING TO PAY FOR MORE.

He had been calling on the young lady for many moons, but being rather backward his suit progressed slowly. Finally the dear girl decided it was up to her to start something, so the next time he called she pointed to a flower in his buttonhole and said:

"I'll give you a kiss for that rose." A large, open-faced blush meandered over his countenance, but the exchange was made. Then he grabbed his hat and started to leave the room.

"Why, where are you going?" she asked, in surprise.

"To the—er—florist's for more roses," he explained.

And further deponent sayeth not.—Chicago Daily News.

Cynical.

"That speaker had a tremendous crowd."

"Yes," answered Farmer Cornfassel.

"People must like to hear his speaking."

"Oh, I dunno. Folks is powerful curious. I reckon a man could draw a crowd by jest wavin' his hands an' stompin' his feet, same as he did, without sayin' a word."—Washington Star.

A Poor Plan.

Husband—So that new girl goes out three nights a week. I'll tell you how to keep her in. Scare her. Tell her a terrible fellow called Jack the Kisser is prowling around, kissing every girl he can catch.

Wife (doubtfully)—Well, don't know, my dear; I was a young girl once myself. I'm afraid she'd be out every night.—N. Y. Weekly.

No Browning.

She was fond of the writings of the poet Browning. Going into the country she forgot to take her copy of her favorite author. She determined to try and get one at the village shop.

"No."

"Why not?"

"What's the use? I never tan, and nobody'd believe I'd been there when I came back."—Cleveland Leader.

Perhaps.

"No, he hasn't been to see me for over a week, and I promised to sing for him the next time he came, too."

"You promised?"

"Yes."

"Gee! may be he took it as a threat."—Houston Post.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

GEO. M. CRIDER, Editor and Publisher.
EUGENE GUESS, Associate Editor.

SUBSCRIPTION ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR.

Entered as second-class matter July 15, 1904, at the postoffice at Marion, Ky., under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1906.

Twelve million silk hats are sold every year in England. Is this why beavers are so scarce and high?

In China every man's first object in life is to purchase a coffin for himself.—Exchange.

This is copied for the benefit of Nunn & Tucker and R. F. Dorr.

*A Kansas City ice man testifies that he went into business with $600 and the following season made $45,000. That beats Jim Givens.

Whatever else may happen to his reputation, Harry Thaw is now in a fair way to escape the terrible disgrace of dying rich.

Col. Bryan intimates that he stands just where he did in 1896 and 1900. It will be remembered he stood outside the White House gate in those years.

It is now up to Mr. Thomas Taggart, of Indiana, to decide whether he will run the democratic party or the gambling joint at French Lick Spring.

The Whitehouse-White-Boyd jungle, situated immediately east of the Crittenden Hotel and west of the property of Curg Travis, has the appearance of being a good place for snakes. The town council's attention is respectfully invited and their action would be cordially welcomed.

The question that is now uppermost in the Kentucky democratic mind is whether or not Hon. O. M. James, the big Congressman from this district, will enter the lists and try for a seat in the gubernatorial chair at Frankfort. Like some famous men in past days Mr. James has left his native land and crossed the deep, and for aught the RECORD knows he may be perched on the top of London tower listening to wireless waves from his own Kentucky bailiwick. From a number of exchanges all over the state comes the news that he will run, and that he won't run, but from all alike we learn that the cable stations and the wireless stations are working over time. The RECORD would be very glad to give out definite news to its readers concerning a subject of interest to all, but from our viewpoint in politics we have, as it were, an impediment in the line of vision between us and the inner sanctum of the democratic tepee. Therefore until definite news comes sizzling across the ocean from London town we patiently wait.

Uncle Russell Sage has passed away. For seventy-five years he has toiled and worked and at last the grim reaper mows him down. This generation has known him as the greatest money leader the world ever saw. He has continually had more hard cash at any and all times than any other man with which to supply the wants of the very needy, whether the rate was 1½ per cent. or 1000 per cent. He has been maligned, and vilified, especially after extreme perilous times to the business world in which your Uncle Russell raked in millions of dollars at enormous rates of interest. The biting, sarcastic news has taken its fling at him in no uncertain tones. And yet from this man may we not learn a lesson? Listen at a few of his maxims:

"Any man can earn a dollar, but it takes a wise man to use it."
"Those who live for pleasure alone do no good to themselves or to others."
"Fifty cents is enough for a straw hat; it will last two seasons."
"A boy who knows bargains in socks will become a man who knows bargains in stocks."
"An active man builds success upon failures; a passive man does not."
"Real charity is disturbed without the blare of trumpets."

A remarkable man has gone. His $150,000,000 is still here.

Bees Worth Being.

The bee which has no sting and the attendant aftermath—pain—is that one or ones which make up personal qualities. People of strong personality are people of strong character. "Crankiness" or peculiar eccentricities should not be mistaken for character! The incorrigible eccentric often has no other stock in trade. That which will stand the test and weather life's gales is not the front shams but the reals, hidden though they be.

Character may be either a growth or heredity or both. Right training will give character a deeper, firmer setting. Note some character bees. Be worth knowing. There is a mind-store of valuable love that puts the face value on people as well as currency. There is a current of personal telegraphy that connects kindred spirits—other-wise similar personalities, likes and dislikes. All these must be considered but outside and beyond this there is that that makes one worth knowing and why it is we shall not attempt to explain. Franklin had it, Washington, Clay and Lincoln had it, and just now can we not catalogue many of our own associates whose very personality makes them worth knowing? Be worth knowing and bear acquaintance.

BE WHAT YOU SEEM.

The bearing in private life should be an excellent gauge with which to measure our life in public. Be in front of the curtain what you are behind it. The double do in private ought not to be negated by a dozen doubts in public. The left hand of private life should know the doing's of the right hand of public life. To this truth there is no alternative, though the contrary is practiced notwithstanding.

BE WORTH YOUR WAGES.

There are wages not in the market nor do the credits and debits of your bank account show it. It is that that makes success absolutely necessary, and without which there is no success. It is that part of yourself you put into your work by yourself. "I am a part of all I have met" is true, but all I have met is a part of me as is true also. Some men are dear at the lowest wages; some are cheap at the highest, wherefore the difference? Not in the money salary but in the personality—what you stand for.

BE WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE.

What a broad meaning has the word confidence! Jesus Christ measured confidence by a seventy times seven forgiveness, or the restoration of confidence after having been broken the four hundred and ninetyth time. But being human the third-time the charm idea forever stigmatizes the other fellow. Lost confidence! Lost confidence! What more common slogan has the half of mankind of the other half. "Act well your part; there all the honor lies" self sins sour sanctity; little faults loom and multiply more readily, being little. And these are the result of carelessness. A wise admonition is: Be wisely care free, be eternally careless free.

W. HUGH WATSON.

At Home Again.

Mr. R. Henry Haynes, son of Mr. H. A. Haynes, returned last week from an extended sojourn in New York City. He went there to be under the care of a celebrated specialist and was accompanied by his brother, Chastain Haynes. They bring back a good report in that Mr. Henry is on the road to ultimate recovery and feels very much encouraged after undergoing the operation and after several months of the physicians treatment.

This physician or rather specialist is the same one who treated Congressman O. M. James. Mr. James was in New York and introduced the boys to the doctor before he set sail for England.

In conversation with Henry Haynes he said:

"The biggest thing I saw while gone was the New York Hippodrome. The stage was large enough to contain a tank representing a real river in which horses plunged swimming from one side to the other.

"The newspaper tales about the breeze around the flat iron building is no myth. There is a strong breeze there at all times and sometimes a gale when the balance of the city is becalmed.

"While we were in New York a certain young man came into his inheritance. Putting $17,000, in currency into his pocket he proceeded to take in the sights. He lay on the sidewalk all night long in the very worst part of the city and was arrested and taken to the station house the next morning. The officers found over $16,000, on his person.

"I visited the New York Underwriters Agency. The man who met me immediately called the number of our agency and asked the how I would like to take a drive over to Shady Grove.

"We had a delightful trip all the time we were gone and the only drawback to mar the pleasantness of the occasion was the cost. The cost was something fierce. The running accounts I keep with my father has assumed such proportions and has fallen into such disrepute that I am thinking seriously of rubbing the slate clean and beginning all over again. I think I shall consult him about it, at least, and get an expression from him."

The Marion Graded School is one of the most progressive in the state. Additional courses in German, Latin, and Higher Mathematics were added last year, and will be continued in the course of study. Mr. Victor G. Kee has proven a worthy successor of Mr. Chas. Evans who resigned last year to accept a position in Oklahoma, and the prosperity of the school has been unchecked. Tired Nervous

When you feel languid, tired, nervous and irritable, your vitality is low—your supply of nerve energy exhausted, and your system running down for lack of power.

The organs of the body are working poorly, or not at all, and you are not getting the nourishment needed. This soon impoverishes the blood and instead of throwing off the impurities, distributes it all through the body. This brings disease and misery.

Feed the nerves with Dr. Miles' Nerve, a nerve food, a nerve medicine, that nourishes and strengthens the nerves, and see how quickly you will get strong and vigorous.

"My wife suffered with nervousness previous to a recent attack of typhoid fever, but after her recovery from the fever, she was much worse, and could hardly control herself, being exceedingly nervous when the least excited. She was very restless at night, and never had a good night's rest. She also suffered much from nervous headache. Dr. Miles' Nerve was recommended by a friend. After the first three doses she had a good night's rest, and at the end of the first week's treatment she was wonderfully improved. Continued use of Nerve has completed her entire cure."

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The sermon at the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning was preached from the text, Mark 8:5, "How many leaves have ye?" The subject of the remarks was "The Supplying the Wants of a Needy World." This problem has ever been a difficult one for the church to solve, but the feeding of the thousands by Christ is an example of how it can be done. Christ stands between his disciples and a needy world today as he did of old and asks "How many leaves have ye?" There were three causes which combined to make this problem and it devolved upon Christ its work and its solution. The hungry multitude, the lack of food, the desert place. The church has the same problem to face today. There are multitudes hungering and thirsting for the gospel. They are without the food and many are in desert places. This question was answered by the work of Christ and his disciples. They had to be willing to make the effort, Christ used the means at hand, and his divine power was called into play. Thus the great problems of the church are solved today. We must be willing to make the effort, we must consecrate our means and call upon Christ to bless us. Then we shall feed the multitudes.

Regular services at the Presbyterian church next Sunday. Preaching at 11 o'clock by the pastor. A meeting of the session is called to meet at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Rev. J. R. McAfee filled the pulpit at the Methodist church Sunday. His subject was "Christian Living." He used the first Psalm as his text. A good congregation listened to the sermon.

The union services were held Sunday night in the Methodist church. Mr. Duke Hill preached the sermon. His text was "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?" The sermon showed careful thought and preparation and was listened to very attentively. An added interest in the services was caused by the fact that Duke Hill is one of our boys. His father is Mr. Tom Hill, of the Chapel Hill neighborhood. The choir gave some good music and Mrs. Fannie Walker rendered a splendid solo. Her many admirers are rejoicing that she has returned and will be heard

RESOLUTIONS

Of Liberty Point Baptist Church—
Notice To Members.

While we appreciate that "law is not a savior," yet, for the deepening of the spiritual life of the membership, this church has decided on the following procedure: That such rules or Church Government as we have been revived, with the adoption of the additional rule that each member communicate with the church at least once a year, either by presence, notification, or verbally. Failure to comply will be considered sufficient to drop a member from our books. Furthermore, to assist the members in reporting, besides sending each a copy of these resolutions, a yearly Roll-Call will be established, taking place the Anniversary of the Organization (commencing the third Sunday in August, 1907). Moreover, for the mutual benefit of those members who live away and our sister churches in their community, it is thought best to advise transfer.

It is earnestly requested that each member will govern himself in accordance with the above. The one object of these measures is the spiritual welfare of this and other memberships; for the furtherance of the one cause for which the Church on earth exists, and it is hoped that other Baptist

OWENSBORO MOB

Wakse an Attack on the Jail to Get a Negro Prisoner.

Owensboro, Ky., July 16. —A determined mob made three attempts to get Silvester Basket out of jail here this morning, but Jailer Calhoun and Deputy Jailer Lyons refused to give up the keys. Members of the mob were disguised with handkerchiefs tied over the lower portion of their faces.

The mob entered the jailer's residence by kicking down the front door. When they demanded the keys of the jailer, he positively refused to hand them over, and declared that the mob would have to kill him before they got them.

The mob secured a telephone pole, and using it as a ram tried for ten minutes to batter down the jail door, but made no progress.

During the demonstration the prisoners in the jail were much excited. While the mob was trying to batter down the door, the jailer and his deputy stood by and watched the attack, unable to do anything to prevent it.

Baskett is the negro who shot and wounded Patrolman Fobbins three weeks ago. He was arrested Saturday in Mt. Vernon, Ill., and was brought here Sunday afternoon.

There was a crowd of several hundred men at the station when the train arrived. The negro was hustled off the train and put in a carriage with 200 or 300 men at his heels. The horses were whipped into a run, but the shouting crowd followed the vehicle to the county jail.

Thirty Year Franchise.

Princeton, Ind., July 16. —The city council at a meeting held here tonight granted a thirty-year franchise to the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph company. The grant provides for a specified charge for all telephones to be installed in the city and for a sliding schedule of rates after as many as 800 are placed in the various stores and houses here.

The Cumberland company has been endeavoring for some time to secure a franchise, and its officers feel highly elated over the action of the council.

Baseball Is Expensive.

One can say that thousands of dollars are expended annually for baseball games and convey in a vague way what baseball expenditure means.

Presuming that 25,000,000 spectators witnessed baseball games in 1905, which is the estimate of one hopeful citizen, it is fair to say that at least half of the 25,000,000 paid admission to the games. Supposing that each of this 12,500,000 paid 25 cents to witness his favorite sport. That would make a gross total of $3,125,000 at the gate in one season. That begins to sound like figures.

Now add to that car fare which was expended by each spectator, where the games are played in large cities, and the amount which was handed out to the peanut boy and the lemonade peddler, and an idea begins to form that baseball receipts accumulate quite a total, even if it is the cheapest and most popular form of outdoor sport.

Nor is what the spectator pays to witness the games all that is expended during the year. Great factories work day and night to make baseballs, and men have acquired fortunes in placing their wares before the public. Hundreds of tailors are employed in making baseball uniforms, and scores of turners gain a livelihood in turning out baseball bats, while the forests of the middle West have been ransacked to obtain the best timber to provide the players with sticks to suit them.

Put a million dollars more on top of the amount paid to see games and the mark has jumped over $4,000,000. Clubs expend large sums to travel. The railroads and the hotels are also benefited. Spectators very frequently journey long distances to witness matches between famous nines. At the world's series last fall there were three spectators who had come all the way from California, to see the Giants play for the championship. It would make $300,000 small to cover the expenditure on account of travel in behalf of baseball during the summer months.

The fact that baseball costs the people of the United States more than $5,000,000 annually, and the bill is growing heavier every year; but so small is the per capita expenditure and so great the enjoyment which is derived from the game that it is contributed without complaint and more open indication of real satisfaction than any "direct tax" which is levied upon the community in behalf of a good time. —Washington Post.

MERCHANTS LIABLE

To Heavy Fines for Doing Business Under Assumed Names.

Frankfort, Ky., July 16. —There are probably from 20 to 100 persons in nearly every county in Kentucky doing business under an assumed name in violation of Chapter 23, acts 1906 which became very effective July 11.

The merchants who have been caught by the penalty of $25, for each day's violation are not aware of such law and in every county the Commonwealth's and county Attorneys will flood the dockets with indictments at the next terms of the Circuit Court.

Such persons or firms may be exempt from the penalty, or may have been exempted when the law went into effect by filing with the County Clerk a statement giving the names of the parties so doing business under such assumed names.

The law does not apply to corporations. The penalties of thousands of dollars in nearly every county will fall on persons and firms in most instances of small means.

Best Place on Earth.

Talk of Crittenden county being a poor county. There has been in two weeks shipped from Marion eleven hundred sheep and lambs, worth $5000., and about $6000. worth of cattle and hogs besides. Same from Blackford and about three hundred head of sheep and lambs from Repton, worth about $1500. This shows that Crittenden is a prosperous county. She always has something to spare and plenty left for home use, and the best people in the world. Then why do people keep leaving here? We can't answer that, but we do know why they come back.

How Would You Like to Be the Iceman?

Consider the Ice-man's Progress Digest the experience of one LYONS. Contemplate his struggles to eke out a slippery existence. Marvel at his venturesome spirit embarking a melting capital of six hundred cool dollars and sweating them down to a trickling,

He toils not, neither does he spin; he is astonished at his own moderation, and by strict economy he emerges, a cold proposition some $400,000 to the good!

He Heard The Report

Scene—Any delicatessen shop any afternoon last week. The disconsolate looking proprietor leans on a showcase in which are displayed several brands of prepared meats. A woman enters, evidently an old customer. Without altering his position the delicatessen man nurses an abashed forehead.

The woman (pleasantly)—Good afternoon, Mr. Imbleheimer. Isn't it warm to-day? Now, you must help me out. We are not going to have a heavy dinner this evening, only a cold luncheon, and what to get for it I don't know, seeing that—

Delicatessen Man (gloomily)—If it had been two weeks ago, Mrs. Third-flat, I would have suggested a nice cold cut, maybe a potato salad, some English preserves, thin, sliced bread, wafers and tea, but—

She (delightedly)—Why, that sounds nice. Why can't I have it now? Haven't you any of those things in stock?

Delicatessen Man (mournfully)—In stock, ma'am; I've got nothing but stock, but—

She—Now, you mustn't grow discouraged. I know those horrible revelations have affected your trade, but you know we do not believe everything we read in the newspapers. No, indeed, and if there is anything particularly nice we will take it, that is, of course, if you are sure it isn't affected. Let me see, the cold cut comes first. What would be nice for that?

Delicatessen Man (hopefully)—Well, there's some nice fresh roast beef. It's—

She (surprised)—Mr. Imbleheimer, that would—um—just wait, Mr. Imbleheimer. Have you ever heard of lumpy jaw?

Delicatessen Man (who has just unearthed the beef from the ice chest)—What did you say the gentleman's name was, Mrs. Third-flat, Limpy John?

She (somewhat coldly)—I did not say Limpy John, Mr. Imbleheimer. I said lumpy jaw. That's something awful that roast beef suffers from, the report says.

He (resignedly)—All right, ma'am, we will leave out the beef if you want to and take an extra slice of chicken. It's—

She (more coldly)—Chicken! Mr. Imbleheimer, did you say chicken? Not if I know it. Didn't you read what the report said about chicken? I'm sure it said something about chicken—how they take the poor, innocent little chicks and keep them in cold storage for years until they grow large enough. The brutes, to keep the poor little things in that cold atmosphere!

And how do we know that it may be excruciating and bituminous coal? The only chicken that will ever come into my home will be a live one, bringing with it a doctor's certificate that it is not suffering from a chronic ailment. And I will attend to the slaughter myself. Never say chicken to me, Mr. Imbleheimer.

Delicatessen man (wiping the perspiration from his face)—Excuse me, ma'am, I guess it's the heat. I didn't mean to insult you. Well, that leaves some nice cold lamb and some tongue, with a strip of ham.

She (freely)—Mr. Imbleheimer, I told you that we were not disposed to be led away by sensational federal reports of anything, but do you know that you have actually offered me lamb, ham and tongue! Do you want me to give my children something that might give them a taste for boracic acid and formaldehyde all their lives, besides subjecting them to trichinosis, glanders, and that thing they call the botts? If you have nothing better to do than to offer me such things, I will go elsewhere.

(She departs and the delicatessen man's head drops on the showcase.)

(He is aroused by some one tugging at his hair.)

Delicatessen Man (gruffly)—What is it, little girl?

Little Girl (dropping a can of potted ham on the showcase, cracking the glass)—My maw says to please send up ten cents' worth of herring instead of this ham you sold the other day to my little brother. She says my paw will come around and see you about it this evening if he gets out of court for beating up those three Eretilians in time.

(The exchange is effected and the despondent position is resumed to be interrupted by a tall man, who grabs the delicatessen man's head and bumps it vigorously against the scales.)

Tall Man (indignantly)—You will sell my wife a box of sardines, you old murderer, will you? Want to fill us up on butterine and cloverdales and those other things! Want to have us swallowin' gas, pants buttons and missing workmen! I ought to throw you into one of those vats that feller wrote about. Now, you take back these sardines, and you give me 12 cents' worth o' cheese quick, or you'll wish you was an embalmed beef and that soon. Get a move on!

Wife—What will we have for dinner to-night, John?

Delicatessen Man (in a high-pitched voice)—I want some roast beef with the lumpy jaw, some tongue with whatever tongue gets, some trichinosis ham, some post-mortem bacon, some resurrected chicken, some potted ham, deviled chicken, beefsteak, pork in all forms and some butterine.

(His wife shrieks wildly and rushes out, and when the ambulance arrives the delicatessen man is found sitting on a throne of corned beef cans, with a crown of frankfurters, proclaiming himself monarch of the jungle.)—Chicago Chronicle.

Annie E. Lemon, Guardian for Mary P. Lemon, etc., plff., vs. Equity Mary P. Lemon, etc., defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Crittenden Circuit Court, rendered at the June Term thereof, 1906, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-house door in Marion to the highest bidder, at PUBLIC AUCTION, on Monday the 13 day of Aug., 1906, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout, (being Court day), upon a credit of six months the following described property, to wit:

"A certain parcel of land lying and being in the County of Crittenden, State of Kentucky, and on the road leading from Marion to Sulphur Springs, and known as the old John Clark place and Thompon place, and same deeded to first party by Dr. Swope, and bounded as follows: Beginning on a stone, corner to Henry Fritts and Jennings; thence N 25 E, 20 poles to a dogwood and black oak, John Moore's corner and Joiners; thence with Joiner's line N 85 W, 33 poles to a stake, Joiner's corner; thence with line of same N. 22 W, 27 poles to a gum in the lane; thence with line of same N. 59 W, 53 poles to a stone, Joiner's corner; thence with line of same, N. 30 E, 100 poles to a white oak in Joiner's line and corner to Dunn land; thence W with Dunn's line 100 poles to a stake in Dunn's line; thence S 30 W, 100 poles to a double white oak, corner to J. It appears that, in running out the calls of this land, a small portion of the field through which the line runs off from the Dunn line on west side of survey is not covered by the original calls of about 10 or 12 acres and bounded as follows: "Starting from a stake in Dunn's line running west 57 poles to a dogwood, supposed to be Carrick's corner; thence S. 17 W, 40 poles to the original line which the said James E. Lemon, deceased, held by quit claim deed. That, from the above boundaries of land there was sold and surveyed to Mrs. Josephine Clark, by the said James E. Lemon, during his life time, the following described boundary of land, viz: "A piece of land in Crittenden County, Kentucky, on the waters of Hurricane Creek, and being a part of the land conveyed to Jas. E. Lemon by R. W. Wilson, and bounded as follows: Beginning at a white oak, Hughes' corner; thence S. 30 W, 100 poles to a stone; thence S. 83 W, 59 poles to a stone; thence N. 95 poles to a stone; thence E. 118 1/2 poles to the beginning, containing 52 acres by survey.

For the purchase price the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute Bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.
