THE PREVENTION OF TYPHOID FEVER

Circular Issued by the State Board of Health of Kentucky.

TO THE HEALTH OFFICIALS, PHYSICIANS AND PEOPLE.

This Board again feels it to be a duty to call the earnest attention of our health authorities and people to the increasing prevalence and mortality from typhoid fever and to the consequent growing importance of the constant use of the methods endorsed and confirmed by scientific research and observation for the prevention of the disease. 13,305 cases of this disease and 1,575 deaths were reported in Kentucky last year, chiefly confined to people in the prime of life and usefulness. The cost of caring for those sick of it, to say nothing of the sorrow, suffering and loss of life, for the year, is reported as being $963,750.

Typhoid fever is probably the most preventable of all diseases, not even excepting smallpox. It is now definitely known that, like cholera and dysentery, the germs of the disease are contained only in the discharges from the bowels and kidneys of those sick of it, and that it is necessary for a person to swallow some of such discharges, or things polluted by them, in some way, in order to contract the disease. They usually gain entrance to the system through infected water from wells or streams draining inhabited areas, and polluted by infected fecal matter, or such matter may be carried by flies and deposited on the food, utensils and hands in unscreened kitch ens and dining rooms. The germs may also be carried on the hands of careless attendants, or on soiled clothing, or indirectly, by using milk other articles of uncooked food or drink from pans and vessels washed in infeeted water. Ice from infected water is also dangerous, as it has been proven that freezing does not kill the germs.

A large volume of water may be infected from one case, and if already polluted with organic matter, becomes a ready culture fluid for the multi- of using in the creamery. He wants day morning. plication of the germs. In the now noted epidemic at Plymouth. Penn. involving the sickness of 1,104 persons, and the death of 114, the outbreak was traced to the use of water from a stream infected by the discharges of one imported case. The recent disastrous epidemic at Ithaca, New York, at home a few days visiting his fathcausing many deaths, and requiring the suspension of Cornell University, was traced to the use of a public water supply similarly infected.

On the other hand, in the distressing and fatal epidemic which clung to our military camps at Chicksmauga, Camp Mead, Montauk Point and other places, during the Spanish. American was, flies were found to be the principal carriers of the disease by the United States Commission appointed to investigate the origin of the outbreaks. By the use of white powder prakled over the discharges in the latrines, thousands of these pests were tracked direct from these and found covering the food, hands and utensils in the kitchen and mess rooms of the common soldiers. Cultures taken from the feet, legs, bills and intestines of these flies showed the germs of typhoid fever in countless numbers. The kitchens and mess rooms of the moued to the bedside of his father, officers were screened, and they most uniformly escaped the disease. Other Mr. G. W. Phelps, of Mattoon, Monfacts no less convincing as to both water and flies being carriers of this day morning, but when he reached terly meeting at Smithland and on disease might be multiplied indefinitely, if space permitted. Based upon the teachings of the foregoing facts, the following rules and is survived by the wife and twelhave been prepared with care for the guidance of all persons interested in ve children, six sons and six daughtheir own and the public health:

1. When it is known or suspected that a person has typhoid fever, he been a member of the Methodist should be placed in a large, well ventilated room, with the windows and church for twenty-four years. The doors well screened, and such preparation should be made from the first day deceased was a native of Logan counfor the thorough and systematic disinfection of , all discharges from the ty, but had been living in Crittenden bowels and kidneys as will protect other members of the family; the atten- about fourteen years. dants, any the community.

2. A solution of chloride of lime, eight ounces to the gallon of water should be provided in quantity, and a quart of this should be put in the hed-pan or vessel each time before it receives the discharges, and should be well stirred and allowed to stand in the vessel at least an hour before it is buried. An equivalent solution of creolin, or a thick white-wash made from the fresh quicklime, may be used in the same way when the chloride of lime cannot be obtained, but with these at least two hours will be required to complete the disinfection.

3. Soiled bed or body linen should remain in the chloride of lime solution for an hour, and may then be safely put in the family wash. Soiled paper or clothes used about the patient should be immediately burned. Attendants should wash the hands frequently, and the lips, and rinse the mouth always before eating. No one should partake of any food which has stood in the sick room. All of these precautions should be continued until all diarrhea has ceased.

4. Typhoid fever is not a contagious in the sense commonly understood, and if the precautions above indicated are faithfully and intelligently carried out, a case may be treated in any family or community with perfeet safety. If others have the disease, it will be because they were infeeted from the same source as the patient, or contracted it elsewhere. The same precautions should be observed in dysentery and all other diarrheal diseases, including summer complaint in children.

5. All well water and unfiltered water from rivers draining inhabited areas, where typhoid fever and diarrheal diseases are likely to occur at any time, and milk stored in cans or vessels washed in such water, should be looked upon as suspicious, and should always be boiled before it is drunk by any one not immune from typhoid fever. In the absence of a reliable, filtered, public water supply, carefully collected and properly stored, cistern water is safest. 6. The windows and doors of all dwelling houses, and especially of the kitchen and dining room, should always be well screened, and the flies actually kept out. Unless this is done, a carlessly managed case of typhoid fever, or other dirraheal disease, even a mile or more away, may be a source of nanger on account of flies. As mosquitoes are now known to be carriers of malaria, the same precaution will protect from this poison

The universal and effectual practice of these precautions would require intelligent care and some expense, but would result in the practical disappearance of one of our most common ann fatal domestic pestilences, which is not only a disgrace to our civilization, but an annual scourge and tax upon the people of Kentucky in comparison with which yellow fever and rs. plague and other exotic diseases so feared by our people sink into

To find out for a certainty whether or not your heart is affected. One person in four has a weak heart; it may be you. If so, you should know it now, and save serious consequences. If you have short breath, fluttering, palpitation, hungry spells, hot flushes; if you cannot lie on left side; if you have fainting or smothering spells, pain around heart, in side and arms, your heart is weak, and perhaps diseased. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure will relieve you. Try a bottle, and see how quickly your condition will improve.

"About a year ago I wrote to the Miles Medical Co., asking advice, as I was suffering with heart trouble, and had been for two years. I had pain in my heart, back and left side, and had not been able to draw a deep breath for two years. Any little exertion would cause palpitation, and I could not lie on my left side without suffering. They advised me to try Dr. Miles Heart Cure and Nervine, which I did with the result that I am in better health than I ever was before, having gained 14 pounds since I commenced taking it. I took about thirteen bottles I the two medicines, and haven't been bothered with my heart since." MR3. LILLIE THOMAS.

Cloyd's Landing, Ky., Aug. 10-Twenty-six years ago William S. Matthews, a young man who lived at Morrowbone, this county, mysteriously disappeared from his home leaving a young wife and two small children. Nothing could be learned of his whereabouts, and he was mourned as dead.

J. D. Davis, postmaster at Marrowbone, has just received a letter from Henry McCarter, of Greenville, S. C., stating that Matthews had recently died at that place and making inquiries concerning his wife and two children, whom he had made Mr. Zed A. Bennett, the insurance beneficiaries of his will. He should testify of the Father, or reveal the will of the Father. He would guide the followers of Christ into all truth. In this world so fall of error, how we need to be divinely guided into truth. Christ says, "He shall glorify me:" that is, the Holy Spirit shall glorify Christ. He does this by taking the work of Christ and showing it unto us causing us to see it in its true light and to appreciate it; he takes the work Christ has wrought out for us and applies it to our hearts and lives, makes it efficient for us.

In the seventeenth chapter of John occurs the wonderful Intercessory prayer of Christ. It is the heart of Christ running out for his followers. He prays for that perfect unity to exist between his followers that existed been him and the Father. How Joan Took the Country first prize in the school of photography, and her friend, Lucile King, stepped from the platform of the little station near the farm where they intended to spend the summer, they at first saw no one waiting for them.

Joan's quickly moving eyes covered the whole scene in appreciation. The colliding and jostling of incoming and outgoing passengers, the frantic haste of belated travelers contrasting with Girn the rav-tornadoes agent, the jogging pace of the man bech a low hind the baggage truck, the vociferous voiced driver of the bus, besieging passengers to ride to the Pullet House; the passive miened driver of the one shabby hack, formed a series of most realistic pictures which made Joan touch the button many times.

A peculiarly fashioned horse attached to a two seated democrat now drove up. Joan was somewhat in doubt at first as to the genuineness of the animal, which seemed to her to have a homemade aspect. The driver was gazing into space, with no manifest interest in the arrival of the train.

Again she touched the button, while Lucile, who had spent the summers of two years in this vicinity, went quickly up to the newcomer.

"Why, how do you do, Mr. Bates? AMPION This is my friend, Miss Williams." The girls occupied the back seat of the vehicle. Mr. Bates uttered a mild "Geed-ap!" and the horse made a forward movement, tearing away in clumsy gallop across the long bridge, at the end of which he settled down into a

> "Old Hundred didn't omit his usual bridge sprint," observed Lucile. "Old Hundred! He doesn't deserve such a cognomen," observed Joan.

"You will think so. He hasn't settled down into his snalliest pace yet." "Geed-ap!" reiterated Mr. Bates, roused to effort by this insinuation and smartly slapping the reins across the steed's ample back.

"He doesn't 'geed-ap' very fast," commented Joan. "Do you earn your own living, too?"

"Lucile," said Jean gravely when their hostess had returned to the kitchen precincts, "I had thought of naming this delightful place Noah's Ark, but now I think the Hogs' Back will be more appropriate."

At breakfast Mrs. Bates gave more particulars of the disasters that had attacked the Locke household and asked to enlist their help in the forthcoming ball. Joan appeared abstracted and offered no suggestions. Lucile proposed a fair in connection with the dance and began to ply her needle in the fashioning of sofa pillows.

The next few days were devoted by Joan to long solitary rambles, in which she always carried her camera,

On the momentous evening she went to the big barn where the dance was to be held an hour in advance of the time set. When the Bates household arrived they saw her seated demurely at a table surrounded by a group of eager, chattering folks. An artistically lettered sign read:

"Would you see yourself as others see you? Come and find yourself! If not here, faces made to order at future

Lucile and the Bates family hastened to the table, which was covered with photographs of all styles and sizes, snapshots of the country folks in and about Hedgeton caught in unpremeditated poses-Farmer Lange hooking up the team, Mrs. Lapps feeding chickens, Bessie Graves churning, Jed Strackhom milking, the little Blatchfords going blackberrying, Lane's Carlo bringing home the cows, etc. No one was drug store. Price 50c. and $1 : trial overlooked.

Also there were pictures of home, barns, cattle, the church, the cemetery, schoolhouse, sawmill and many old landmarks, all on sale, not to mention pictures of the Looke girls.

The news spread, and every newcomer hastened up to see if his likeness was there. Ardent swains secured pictures long denied them by coy damsels. At the close of the evening her hand bag was well filled with coin.

"This," she said, extending the money to Mrs. Bates, "is my contribution toward the Locke estate."

As she suspected, she was besieged for many days by people from miles around who heard they had been "took." If by chance one had been overlooked, the omission was remedied. "I think," remarked Joan meditatively as she looked a last farewell from city, "that the country and I are now on intimate terms, and with the sale of pictures and proceeds of the dance, not to mention contributions from the neighbors, I can see at least two years of prosperity for the Locke girls."

The Farmer's Individualism.

Farming is virtually the only great series of occupations that is unorganized, unsyndicated, unmonopolized, uncontrolled, except as it is dominated by natural laws of commerce and the arbitrary limitations imposed by organization in other business. In a time of extreme organization and subordination of the individual the farmer still retains his traditional individualism and economic separateness. His entire scheme of life rests on intrinsic earning by means of his own efforts. The scheme in most other businesses ered at house or in person. Mr. Bates | is to make profits, and these profits are stopped in front of a barn near the often nonintrinsic and fictitious, as, for example, in the habit of gambling in stocks, in which the speculator by mere shrewdness turns over his money to advantage, but earns nothing in the process and contributes nothing to civilization in the effort. If the farm-"All right." Bestowing a knowing er steps outside his own realm he is met on one side by organized capital and on the other by organized labor. "How are the Locke girls?" asked He is confronted by fixed earnings. What he himself secures is a remainder left at the end of a year's business .-

The Cruelty of Swans as Displayed

Toward Other Fowls. The graceful swan is one of the most ungracious in its ways. Not only (in the breeding season) does a male bird resent the intrusion of a strange gentleman, but it will spend the day in driving off from its domain any unlucky geese which might be plainly assumed to have no designs upon its domestic arrangements and have, indeed, no desire beyond that for a comfortable wash and swim. It will also pursue even the most innocent of newborn ducklings while they unwittingly rejoice in an early taste of their common

When an only child has passed out of the cygnet stage of life and grown to full physical if not mental maturity father and mother swans have been known to fall upon and deliberately beat it to death with wing and beak. The gratified parents swam gracefully about the mere in which they lived while the great white corpse of their son lay battered and dead upon the shore. The following year, after another had been born to them and in infancy carried upon his mother's back, they began to treat him so roughly that, not being pinioned like them, he wisely flew away, and we saw him no more. Curiously enough, geese which have experienced rudeness from swans in the lusty spring have been known to retaliate in the calmer autumn, when the fierceness of their enemy had become mitigated. I have seen a gander leap upon the back of a once arrogant swan and pound away at it in the full enjoyment of gratified revenge,-Cornhill Magazine.

Word Fashions.

The history of the word asparagus shows how, even in the days of diction- ed 14c. aries, word fashions change. In the eighteenth century, even in elegant usage, the delicacy was regularly called "sparrow grass." A dictionary of 1791 says that "sparrow grass" is now so general that "asparagus" has an air of stiffness and pedantry. "Sperage" had been the usual English form in the sixteenth century, but in the seventeenth herbalists brought back the original Greek and Latin spelling "asparagus." She couldn't understand it. Her dreams hadn't ended that way at all. One day in the tiny idle little bank Mr. Horace Matlock stopped short as he recognized a stooped, gaunt figure with a patrician face.

"Why, it's Professor Mornton, isn't it?" he cried, stepping up to him with a cordially outstretched hand.

When Matlock years ago had entered Yale as a freshman Thornton had been tutoring, and quite a friendship had sprung up between them. Subsequently they had lost track of each other. But the satisfaction of the younger out an insurance, even when failure man in meeting the older one again to do so is ruinous to him in a busi-

"Poor old professor! How thin and Matlock as he drove the professor home to his modest little cottage.

Out in the cottage's side yard by the hollyhocks a girl was picking a great bunch of sweet peas for the lunch table. When she heard the smart little trap stop at the gate she looked quickly up from the blossoming vines and wondered. Who was the distinguished looking stranger? And where had he picked up dear daddy?

A few days later Matlock drove up to he cottage again. It was only decent, he told himself, that he should show the professor some attention and take him driving now and then. Perhaps some day also he would take the professor's daughter. He liked ber. He liked the natural, unabashed way in which she had asimowledged her father's presentation of laim, with her sleepes rolled up and her arms full of sweet peas; he liked the width between her eyes, the brenden, of her brow, the lines of her mouth. She was less more ty than many young girls, but there was about her a freshness, a sweetness, that pleased blm, and he had no-iced that her figure in her simple little gown was well molded and slim. One evening toward twilight, when out in the open lawn bats were whiri-ng aimlessly and tirelessly, Matlock dropped in upon the professor to make him a little call. He had fetched him his afternoon mail as pretext. While they were sitting out on the porch from the shadowy little parlor came the first chords of Beethoven's beautiful 'Moonlight Sonata."

"That's Cynthia," said Professor Thornton in answer to his guest's start of surprise. "She's never too tired, no matter how hard or long the day has been, to play that sonata for me in the evening. I love it above all other written music, and she never forgets."

Then while the tree toads droned their harmonies he told Matlock a little about his daughter-how four years ago he had suffered a paralytic stroke and she had been obliged to leave school in her graduating year and nurse him night and day with untiring sweetness; how, when their slender income was exhausted a year back, she had begun to make use of her musical skill and give lessons on the plane. And when the professor told of Cynthia's triweekly trips to Adams, the nearest town, his silvered head went down on his coat sleeve, and in the gloaming behind the honeysuckies the two men were silent.

Presently they smoked their usual cl gars and indulged in their usual conversation - newspaper topics chopped fine by individual opinion, a good dear of politics, a little of art and science. Last of all, Cynthia came out.

"Delighted!" she said, going prettile up to Matlock with outstretched hands "While you two have been gossiping for tea and have drawn you a cup. Will you come in, or shall we have it
