Town and Country Life 2000 Years Ago

the same old life, in many ways, that we live to-day.

see great changes going on every day of my life, but I see no change every year.

light you are, Mr. Dooley, and you have added in all truthfulness that, many basic respects, 'twas the same life in city, town, village and country two thousand years ago as is lived day right here in new America.

Of course, there was no iron horse plowing over the earth two thousand years ago. Travelers by foot and horse did not yet been scared half out of their wits by the tooting automobile. A little schoolhouse did not sit in every village. The convenience of rural free delivery was still to be invented; so, also, a reaper, the telephone, the threshing machine, the telegraph. But "man's a man for a' that," has been from the beginning, will doubtless be so to the end, and hence, just as the life we live is similar in many ways to that of two thousand years ago, so it will bear numerous striking resemblances to the life of our descendants in 3906 A. D.

Cuneiform writings, which have been recovered from ancient Babylon and her long-buried cities, prove beyond a shadow of doubt the similarity between city life of to-day and of yesterday. Papyri and other personal and public documents recently recovered from an Egyptian sand, in and about the ruins of ancient Oxyrhynchus, a Greco-Roman colony, one hundred and forty miles south of Cairo, that had long been a flourishing condition when Joseph and Mary and the child Jesus into Egypt, furnish equally indisputable proof of similarities of town and country life then and now.

There are the private letters of Lucius Irenus Gemellus, for example. Gemellus, it seems, after he was honorably discharged from his legion—Egypt was then under Roman rule—took farming for a livelihood. But, like any men of to-day, he made his home in town, whence he ran his various affairs by written instructions and personal visits.

I blame you greatly for the loss of a pig owing to the fatigue of the day, when you had ten animals fit for work," he wrote in Greek, which was the vernacular of the colony, to a nephew, evidently in direct charge of one of the farms. "Heraclides, the donkey driver, shifted the blame from himself, saying that you had told him to drive the pig on foot."

His nephew, by name Epagathus! He himself felt very badly on receipt of the letter, but had he not so instructed the Egyptian donkey driver with the name of the world of to-day would have been ignorant of the fact that the animals were carried, as well as driven to the farms, two thousand years ago.

In another letter to Epagathus, Gemellus expresses his irritation over the slow progress with which the farm work is proceeding:

Please carry forward the digging of the olive yards and their plowing up and hoeing, and plow up and hoe the field, and urge the driver to do his work every day. Up to to-day we have not harvested the field at Apollonia, but have neglected it, and so far have only harvested half. Wherefore, I urge you."

The trick of thinning out an orchard by pulling up a piece of woodland was well understood. "You will oblige me," writes Gemellus, "by sending Pindarus to me at the farm. Hermonax has asked me to take him to Kerkesucha to look at the olive yard (orchard), as it is overgrown; and he wishes to cut down some of the trees which are to be cut in the morning." says Farmer Smith to his neighbor Jones: "I wonder if you'd let me come over and give me a lift on the load of wheat I want to take to town to-day."

"I BLAME YOU GREATLY FOR THE LOSS OF TWO PIGS"

Gemellus was a great believer in manure as a fertilizer. In one letter he admonished his nephew to keep adding to the manure heap, and in another he gives these directions:

"Send the animals to carry manure at the vegetable ground (truck garden) at Psinacis, and the manure carts, for Pasis is crying out that we must not allow it to be dissolved by the water; and let them fetch his hay."

That one had to watch sharp to keep from being "stuck" in a deal, still another of Gemellus' epistolary efforts make plain:

"Aunes, the donkey driver, has bought a rotten bundle of hay at 12 drachmae, a little bundle and rotten hay, the whole of it decayed—no better than dung."

Gemellus had a married daughter, Gemella. She had a son whom the grandfather affectionately termed "the little one." He took great pleasure in planning a birthday party for the child and another for his daughter, ordering fowl, sucking pigs, olives, and other delicacies to be sent in from his farms. He had a sharp tongue and did not hesitate to use it when he felt inclined. "Don't talk nonsense about the threshing," and "what you write me about not neglecting the building, you have said more than enough," he wrote his son, in charge of a farm. Fortunately, however, for his twentieth century reputation, his softer side is revealed in his birthday party plans, his observance of religious festivals, and his taking "the little one" to the city for a few days of wondrous sight-seeing.

Several of the papyri show that it was the common practice for one farmer to loan seed to another less fortunate than he.

"I, Petheus, son of Patron, acknowledge the direct receipt from Acusilaus, son of Theon, of two and a half artabae of vegetable seed, new, pure, and undiluted, and of six and a half artabae of barley; and I will repay the whole in the month of Pauni of the present thirty-eighth year of Caesar at Pelusium, measured with a quarter measure. And if I do not repay I will forfeit for each artaba of vegetable seed ten artabae, and for the barley—"

The rest of the receipt (or is it a promissory note?) is missing; nor is it known whether or not Petheus, son of Patron, was able to repay the loan at the end of the stipulated four months and thus escaped the heavy penalty named for failure so to do.

Once in awhile there was an owner of a farm who had no difficulty in keeping the same tenant year in and year out:

"Didyme, also called Matrona, daughter of Asclepiades, to Heron, son of Satabous, cultivator, greeting. I have received from you, the rent for the twenty-second year of my plot which you cultivate, two and a quarter artabae, the tax of an artaba and the naubion being payable by you, Heron."

Perhaps the town drunkard has existed ever since there was a town and intoxicants. At any rate, he was a staple character around Oxyrhynchus two thousand years ago, and his favorite method of getting money wherewith to secure the one thing his heart craved for most was to clip coins. Here is the letter of one town drunkard to a crony in his cups:

"Endemon to Longinus, greeting: I entreat you, sir, to hasten to me and bring, if you please, the crystal (instrument) and we can clip the cash. If you will, you will be able to strain me some good Mareotic wine, when you come, with the proceeds."

In all probability the letter was written in some grog shop of the day.

The highway robber also plied his trade whenever he got a chance:

"To Megalonymus, strategus (inspector) of the divisions of Themistes and Polemo in the Arsinoite nome (district), from Pasion, son of Heraclides, and Onesimus, son of Ammonius, both pig merchants of the metropolis. Yesterday, as we were returning from the village of Theadelphia, about dawn we have attacked halfway between Polydenia and Theadelphia by robbers, who bound us and assaulted us with many blows, and wounded Pasion, and robbed us of a pig and carried off Pasion's tunic. Wherefore, we entreat you to register it, in order that when the culprits are discovered we may bring charges against them on these counts."

Is it your impression that the guarantee is a modern business device? Then

CHAPTER IV.

Then began her struggle for life, bitter and long maintained. She had always possessed a certain talent for writing, a facility of expression, picturesque of description, power of imagination, and she resolved to embrace literature as a calling.

Many a mile she walked, from office to office, which, with a fluttering heart and overstrung nerves, she entered to offer manuscripts over which she had spent much time, always hoping she might find acceptance. Money was terribly needed by her. The result was ever the same. Each magazine or journal had its own staff of contributors; hundreds of stories were waiting for consideration. The supply was greater than could be exhausted for years. And such manuscripts as she was permitted to leave or which she sent by post, were not lost, or mislaid—invariably returned to her, until her spirit was well-nigh broken.

A turn came in the tide of her affairs when they seemed most desperate. A tale retained by a magazine for over twelve months at last saw the light of publication. Reviews spoke of its truth to nature, pathos and originality of plot. A second story was accepted by the same magazine and an editor who had returned her stories and essays unread requested her to send him some articles. Those he had previously rejected were posted to him and paid for within a week.

Slowly and gradually her name began to grow familiar to the public. With appreciation came courage to persevere, and, putting forth all her strength, she wrote a novel largely embodying in its pages her own life. This had been published by George Bostock. Its success was immediate. Her name being famous, independence was won.

Her husband, after years of absence, returned to claim the benefit of her work. "Veronica," she exclaimed, flinging arms in a transport of joy and gratitude, "that was not without remorse and her mother's neck, while she was pitying, tenderly, lovingly, you believe me, Veronica?"

"Father," the girl said, infinite trust and tenderest love expressed in that one word.

"Thank God!" Olive Dumbarton murmured.

Veronica kissed her again and again, then she was quieting the room, as if in this she would convey the faith and affection which words failed her to express. To refrain from thinking was impossible to that stricken woman, though thought was absolute.

As she lay there in the silence of gloom, heart sick and despairing, the memory of the lurid tragedy which had kindled and intensified all her sorrows.

In only child, worshipped by her mother—her sole surviving parent—and loved by her friends, she had entered a room when she should have been in a school-room.

Followed and admired, praised and loved as she was, society was to her a world of enchantment, and before her and season ended she had wholly absorbed her heart to a young lieutenant of hers but five years older than herself, handsome, daring and fascinating, a perfect dancer, a skilled polo player, a winner in dress, winning in speech, a regular among women, hailed as a good young man among men.

Before her eighteenth birthday she had married him against the advice of her father and in spite of the warning of her friends, ending him, who was dependent upon his pay and stepped in with the handsome fortune left her by her father. Then came three years of married life of varying happiness, at the end of which time the ardor on his part remained unabated, while on his it had vanished quite.

His growing indifference made her, like many a woman, more anxious to retain his affection, while her eagerness defeated her own ends by rendering him more restless still.

Her disillusion, once begun, was quickly completed. Soon came the knowledge of his unfaithfulness, his waning interest, and the perception that his nature was gradually becoming more and more dissipated.

The day was not long postponed when she learned that her whole fortune had been squandered by him in ways which were wrong to her. And, when no more was to be had, she was unable to preserve her patience, she was utterly struck by him. By the time he had quitted the army, and was appearing, he left her mother being dead.

changed fortunes—returned a worn-out wreck, a hardened adventurer, a confirmed roue. For her own sake, and for the sake of her child, she protected herself against him, and succeeded in buying, for a considerable sum, his consent to a legal separation, which she could otherwise have obtained had she brought the incidents of her life into court. And for five years she heard of him no more, until at the period the story opens she received a demand for money, to which she paid no heed, nor had she seen him since that terrible night—his last on earth. When breakfast was brought she drank some coffee, but could not eat, nor did she talk—her mind was now so busy with plans, surmises, possibilities, fears.

At last Veronica said: "There is some one waiting to see you."

"Who?" Olive Dumbarton said, fearfully.

"Mr. Bostock."

A sense of intense relief came to the miserable woman at the sound of that name, and she suddenly realized that she was not quite alone in life.

"How kind of him! Has he been long waiting?"

"About an hour. I did not like to tell you before. I don't think you are strong enough to see him, dear."

"I must, Veronica; he will advise me."

"Then let him come to your dressing-room," the girl suggested.

"Very well, dear."

A moment later the door opened and George Bostock entered. He went quickly forward to where Mrs. Dumbarton sat and took her hand.

"My dear friend, this is terrible—this is terrible!" he said, in a grave, troubled voice.

"I am innocent!" she replied, lifting her eyes to his again.

"I know, I know," he answered rapidly, his voice full of pain.

"You did not—you did not think me guilty?"

"Not for a moment," he replied fervently.

"Thank God!" she murmured. There were two at least in the world who believed her incapable of this crime, the two whose faith and trust in her she valued most.

"But the position in which you are placed—"

George Bostock said uneasily, his face expressing the anxiety he felt.

"Appearances are all against me, I suppose."

"So far. But who knows? I came here at once to consult with you, if I may."

"If you will," she replied, quietly, patting her hand. "My cousin, Valerie Galbraith, is now on her way to Egypt," she said, after a moment's consideration. "He may be in Paris yet; perhaps it would be well to send for him."

"He will read of the—the occurrence in the papers and be sure to return. Meanwhile you must have the best legal advice you can get. If you approve, I will go and see Corry & Son at once."

"Do as you please," she answered. "I feel sure you will act for the best."

"There is no time to lose," he said, rising, and then adding, with some hesitation: "You know the inquest will take place to-morrow, when you will be expected to attend."

She winced visibly at the thought his words conveyed, but after a second's silence said:

"You have not asked me how—how it happened—last night."

"I didn't wish to distress you," he replied, "seeing how weak you are to-day."

"I will tell you," she murmured, turning pale at the recollection of the previous night's tragedy.

"Not now; it pains you too much—another time," he suggested.

"It's best you should know all as soon as possible," she responded, bracing herself to recount what had passed between her and the man whose lips were silenced forever.

CHAPTER V.

George Bostock was eager to hear Mrs. Dumbarton's account of the event. Not that he needed words of hers to confirm his belief in her innocence—of that he was more certain than he—but he was impatient to hear how it came to pass that she was found in a position and under circumstances that conveyed an idea of guilt.

Veronica, likewise, longingly awaited this narrative, which she felt certain would prove a complete vindication of her mother's innocence.

"When you had left last night," Mrs. Dumbarton said, turning toward the publisher, who sat at a little distance, his grave, anxious face expressing interest and sympathy, "I took up the book which had arrived by the last post and began to read. Feeling hot and feverish, I kept the lower window open. All within was perfectly silent; no sound came from without and the peace seemed restful to my senses."

"The book interested me and I felt no inclination to sleep," Mrs. Dumbarton continued, and then paused while a slight shudder passed through her frame, as if some distressing sight presented itself to her vision.

"How long did you continue to read?" George Bostock asked.

"Probably for a couple of hours after you left. I know I was suddenly startled by hearing the garden gate flung violently back and sounds of footsteps rushing toward the house; but before I could realize what had happened a figure darted through the open window and stood within the room—a man's figure, whose actions were frantic, as if he were stricken with madness or made desperate from pain. At this sight I screamed, then paralyzed by terror, I remained speechless and motionless."

"I saw that the man before me was my husband. Scarcely had I understood this when he came staggering toward me, but before he reached me he fell, a cry for help and mercy on his lips. As he did not move, I drew nearer to him, fascinated, fearful, expectant, until, overcoming my terror and the sense of repulsion that filled me, I stood beside him, when for the first time I saw—I saw a knife had been thrust into his breast."

"As yet there was no sign of blood, no forewarning of death; my sense of dread was undefined. The sight of his white, haggard and distorted face appealed to me through all, and I had but one thought, to save him from danger, when, acting on impulse, I stretched out my hand and drew the knife from his breast. As I did blood gushed from the wound upon my hands, upon my dress, and he moaned as if stricken anew. Unable to grasp what had happened, I bent over him, to see his eyes grow glassy and his face become livid. Then I knew he was dead."

"Of what happened afterward I was but dimly conscious," Olive Dumbarton continued. "As one sees a figure in a dream I saw my maid rush into the room and as suddenly disappear; then came Veronica, and finally the servant returned with a policeman. At sight of him a fresh sense of horror and heavy forebodings of ill fell upon my senses, and I remember no more."

"Did you see no one else—no second figure pursuing him?" George Bostock asked, his anxiety plain to witness.

"No."

"And he mentioned no name—spoke no word that would lead you to know or suspect who he had been murdered?"

"The only words he spoke were those in which he asked for help and mercy."

"You are sure nothing has escaped your memory?"

"Nothing. You think my case seems hopeless," she said, reading his thoughts.

"I have no doubt," George Bostock said, with the object of cheering her, "that the truth regarding this unhappy affair will come out—that is, that the truth of your innocence will be proved."

"God grant that it may," she cried; "but I cannot fail to see that my danger is great."

"You are not guilty," he answered, deeply moved by her words and the pain with which they were uttered. "Surely that can be proved."

"Only by discovering who is," she replied promptly.

(To be continued.)

Why He Didn't Look

Senator Hale, apropos of an awkward remark, said:

"It reminds me of the conversation of two ladies at a reception."

"These ladies were strangers to each other. After a moment's desultory talk the first said, rather querulously:

"I don't know what's the matter with that tall, blond gentleman over there. He was so attentive a while ago, but he won't look at me now."

"Perhaps," said the other, "he saw me come in. He's my husband, you know."

Household Suggestions.

Simple but Useful Recipes.

Cream Cake.—One cupful of maple sugar, one egg, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one cupful sour cream, one and one-quarter cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful soda. Add the soda to the cream; when it foams add the egg well beaten, next the sugar and salt, last the flour. Bake in a quick oven.

Corn Sauté.—Place the contents of a can of corn in a saucepan with a third of a cupful of butter and allow it to simmer for five minutes. Then add a cupful of cream, a dusting of white pepper and salt and a little nutmeg. Cook gently for a few moments, then pour into a hot dish and serve.

Ham Salad.—Chop some ham very fine and slice twice as much cold potatoes very thin. Arrange the ham and potatoes in a salad dish in layers and sprinkle each double layer with chopped celery, then pour French dressing over all. Garnish with hard-boiled eggs, cut in slices or in fancy shapes.

Veal Soup.—Take a well-broken joint of veal weighing about three pounds and cover with four quarts cold water; boil gently for several hours, then add one-quarter pound macaroni, previously cooked tender, or a cupful of boiled rice, season to taste with salt and pepper, boil up once and serve.

Salmon and Celery Salad.—Flake enough canned salmon to make one cupful. Arrange lettuce leaves around with one cupful of celery cut in tiny crosswise slices. Make a mound of the mixture in the center of the lettuce and pour on a dressing made from two table-spoonfuls of oil, three table-spoonfuls of vinegar, a salt-spoonful of salt and a dash of pepper.

Potatoes with Cheese.—Pare and cut into small cubes enough potatoes to make a pint; lay them in cold water half an hour, drain and cook in salted water until tender. Place a layer in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle thickly with grated cheese, pepper and salt, with bits of butter and a little celery salt; fill the dish in this way; pour over a cupful of milk, bake fifteen minutes and serve hot.

Red Kidney Beans.—Soak one pint of red kidney beans over night in two quarts of cold water; rinse and cover with fresh, cold water. Add a small onion with one clove stuck in it and a rounding table-spoonful of butter. Cook slowly until tender, but not broken, and add water as it boils away. Season with salt and pepper. Take out the onion and turn the beans on to a platter to make a bed on which to serve broiled chops, sausages, or roast pork.

Devilled Eggs.—Boil a sufficient quantity of eggs hard; when cold, peel and dip the first into beaten raw egg, next into oil, and roll them in salt and a small quantity of cayenne. Make a little tray by twisting up the corners of half a sheet of oiled writing paper, place the eggs in it, put on a gridiron over a clear fire, and shake it about until the eggs are quite hot. Meanwhile prepare equal quantities of olive oil and chutney sauce around them; garnish with parsley and serve.

Banana Desert.—Slice half a dozen ripe bananas, and three tart oranges, arranging a layer of bananas and then a layer of oranges in a glass dish; sprinkle each layer of fruit with powdered sugar, and then spread over the top a thick layer of sweetened whipped cream which has been faintly tinged with a few drops of strawberry extract. Have fruit and cream very cold, and serve as soon after preparing as possible passing with it fingers of sponge cake or macaroons.

Brown Bread.—One cupful Indian meal, one cupful rye meal, one cupful flour, mixed together. Add one-half cupful sour milk, one-fourth cupful of molasses, pinch of salt, heating table-spoonful soda, dissolved in warm water; mix thoroughly. Our grandmothers used their hands to mix brown bread. Add warm water to make a thin batter and bake one hour in tin cans. Be sure to bake in small cans; the little round slices look appetizing and taste like the brown bread of brick oven fame.

Cocoanut Pie.—Heat four cupfuls of milk and add two cupfuls of grated fresh cocoanut and let heat for ten minutes. Cool and add four eggs well beaten with half a cupful of one cracker very fine and paste-lined plates. Put a spoonful of butter cut into and bake. Cover with a layer from the whites of two eggs with one-half cupful of powdered sugar and brown in the oven before putting on the milk.

Daffodil Pudding.—One quart, one-half cupful of milk, one-half cupful of granulated sugar, three level cupfuls which is thoroughly mixed spoonfuls of baking powder, a cupful of finely chopped apple of small, seedless, teaspoonful of cinnamon mixture until as light as steam for one-half hour, rich lemon sauce.

Raisin Roll Cake.—Beat sugar with the yolks of the one cupful of flour with a spoonful of baking powder, the sugar and egg, then stiffly beaten whites of the Add a teaspoonful of lemon and, last, three teaspoonful water. Beat well and pour shallow pan. Bake in a Turn on to a cake rack a once with a mixture made of powdered sugar and whites of two eggs beaten of chopped raisins.

COPPER IS KING

THOMAS W. LAWSON Says: "Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world today"

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER Says nothing, but puts millions of dollars into Amalgamated and other Copper stocks.

H. R. ROGERS Says: "Lawson, we have verified your conclusions as to the value of Copper stocks as an investment."

SENATOR CLARK Does not talk but draws a year in dividends from a mine, the United Verde.

The world's greatest financiers have seen the possibilities of Copper; they are pouring their millions into Copper stocks; they are piling up their dollars mountain high with dividends from Copper stocks; gold mines no longer interest them; the cry is—"Copper!"

Copper is the Safest—the Most Profitable—the Most Permanent Investment in the World Today

Copper is a Safe Investment Copper is a Permanent Investment Copper is a Profitable Investment

The uses of Copper are extending every year. The demand is far ahead of the supply. All the present production of Copper in the world cannot supply the demands of electricity alone. All scientists agree that we are just beginning to learn the uses of electricity. As these uses multiply, so will the demands for Copper increase. The price is steadily going up. In the last few years it has risen from 11c to 19c a pound.

Thomas W. Lawson says: "A good Copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

THE COPPER MINE IS THE MINE OF TO-DAY.

No man can tell how long a good Copper mine will last, because no man has ever seen one exhausted. The Rio Tinto mines in Spain have been worked for over two thousand years, and last year they were the third largest producer in the world. The Mansfield mines in Germany have been worked for seven hundred years, and last year they were the sixth largest producer. Copper was discovered in this country in 1845, and in the Lake Superior district the levels are a mile below the lake, yet last year they produced more copper than ever before in their history. The famous Anaconda mine is steadily increasing its production. The United Verde in Arizona is turning out more and more Copper every year. No real Copper mine in this country has yet been exhausted.

One copper mine that cost $1,200,000 a year ten million dollars in dividends, with largest Western trunk line railroads, which of track, paid only $9,750,000 dividends. The leading Copper mines in this country capital of $20,000,000, have paid over dividends, while no railroad in the U. S. ever paid back its original cost.

The Steel Trust, with a capitalization of 1,000,000,000, earned only $74,000,000 profit.

Of the seven largest dividend-paying United States to-day, six are Copper.

No wonder the shrewd investors good Copper stocks!

Investment in Copper Stocks Offers the Safety of a Government Bond with the Speculative Element of a Gold Mine.

OUR PROPERTY IS FAVORABLY LOCATED IN THE HEART OF A GREAT COPPER L-TRICT

The Consolidated Copper Creek Mining Company's property is located in Yavapai County, fifty miles South of Prescott and twenty-four miles South of Jerome, Arizona, and in the same range with the great United Verde mine, which pays $20,000,000 in dividends yearly to its stockholders. The Crown King Mine, a great producer, just West, has produced hundreds of thousands of dollars. The Richmond mine, which produces 100,000 tons of copper annually, is located near Humboldt and Mayer are located three independent smelters, with a capacity to handle the entire output of the district. Cordes, our railroad station, is but 30 miles west of us, and it is from that point, when connected by the completion of a good wagon road, we will deliver our output and receive freight.

will produce $6,120.00 per day net profit, but our intention is to erect a concentrator of 1,000 tons capacity. Such a plant would produce a daily profit of over $30,000, a yearly profit of over $10,000,000.

All this shows the presence of an enormous Copper deposit. In short, beyond the possibility of doubt, there is Copper ore on the Company's land sufficient to keep an enormous plant running for generations to come. We do not believe there is any such showing of Copper as this property and this district exhibit anywhere else on the American continent.

The great United Verde, the mine of Senator Clark, is some 20 miles North of us and in the same range its main workings consist of only one level. It is difficult to have the surface showing our property and it is turning out over $4,000,000 a year.

More than that—Copper Creek, the greatest unmined water supply in the district, runs through our property for 180 feet, and as water is absolutely essential, its value cannot be estimated.

We offer you a ground-floor proposition. With this we actually expose to you a concentrator of 800 tons capacity, as quickly as it can be erected, for an indefinite period. Unless every geological sign fails, within two years, with ample capital, we should be mining ore enough to supply a 800 ton concentrator for generations.

We have had assays from four of these lodes, with the following results of pure copper: 14.4 per cent, 30.6 per cent, 27.7 per cent, 27.7 per cent.

These were selected samples, and we are frank to say that no such ore exists in the deep workings of copper mines. On the property adjoining, however, on a vein which is traceable in ore, at a depth of 97 feet, ore was taken out which cannot be distinguished from the ore at the 400 and 500 feet levels in the United Verde Copper mine, which runs 6 per cent in Copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda producing ore which averages only a little over 4 per cent.

Three hundred tons daily of 6 per cent ore any other section of the world. Spain and the Indians mine the metals while there are prehistoric races known to have mined in their crude way mined in many places prospecting for more veins which are still in the mountains and valleys are underlaid with such a wealth of ore as exists nowhere else in the world.

OUR BIG ADVANTAGE OVER OTHER GREAT COPPER MINES. All the large Copper mines quoted had to expend from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000 in hauling distance to the smelter. There are THREE large independent haulage distances to the smelter. All we need to do is to ore, an inexpensive process compared to the other mines. This is the same position that the Copper mines attained a expenditure of millions.

Remember this company's property, free and clear; it is not encumbered. There is no preferred stock. All stock shares alike. No salaried officers until.

The Officers and Board of the Consolidated Copper Creek Mining Company, which guarantees a square deal, honestly stands as a surety for your investment.

Price of Stock Now 10c. a Share---Par Value

The Executive and Finance Committee of the Consolidated Copper Creek Mining Company has authorized a limited amount of treasury stock at 10c a share. Par value of this stock is $1.00 a share, and we believe it will be worth a dollar a share on the markets of the world; nor will it stop there. A good Copper stock is a safe investment.

AS OUR SHAFTS GO DOWN, THIS STOCK WILL GO UP IN VALUE. We therefore, reserve the price without notice. If you are wise, buy stock now and thus secure the benefit of future advances.

OUR EASY PAYMENT PLAN

We have planned for improvements and machinery which will take some time to complete and install. Therefore, the money will not be needed all at once; and, realizing that it will be advantageous to investors and to the company to sell stock on an easy payment plan, have decided to accept subscriptions 10 per cent down and the balance in nine monthly payments.

100 shares will cost you $1 down and $1 per month for 9 months; estimated value on 1000 ton production $1500.

1000 shares will cost you $10 down and $10 per month for 9 months; estimated value on 1000 ton production $15,000.

2500 shares will cost you $25 down and $25 per month for 9 months; estimated value on 1000 ton production $37,500.

10,000 shares will cost you $100 down and $100 per month for 9 months; estimated value on 1000 ton production $187,500.

WHY WE SEL

We have a great prospect money to develop it. If a quarter section of land and to cultivate it with, it will sell for him get more proper machinery to work it with a mine. If we would demand the land to come in with us and this property the greatest of the continent. So we go to your judgment and sound ask YOU to join with us, and share alike, in the United Verde of this property there is hardly any limit to the amount of money that will be proud to be a stockholder Consolidated Copper Creek Mining Company.

A great deal of development work and production is still going on in district. Some of the properties which have ceased to be regarded as dividend payers have, as it were, blossomed out like a rose and now give promise of being the best yet. Among these is the Schoolfield-Spees Mining Co., near Carrsville, and the old Jim property near Crittenden Springs where a four foot vein of carbonate has been uncovered and the prospect is equal to the original old Jim lead which enriched its owners. Another property which produces an excellent grade of fluor spar in large quantities, which is being worked after a short rest, is the Hodge Mine, where a very large tonnage is now being taken out.

Several parties interested in mines and mining have visited this district this past week.

were concerned, was dead, but thanks to the good Lord, I believe this a return to her former glory. I trust the management will have instruments sufficient, and at least fifty good singers in attendance. Let everybody pray that the preacher may come filled with the Holy Ghost, and that we shall witness another such time as when the notch was cut in the past. Come to the campmeeting, old Piney will throw wide her doors, and with true Kentucky hospitality and old time Cumberland liberality you will receive a hearty welcome.

I shall ask Bro. Hugins to preach on Wednesday at 11 o'clock, the sermon he preached in the Grand Army Hall at Decatur, Ill. on Sunday at 11 o'clock.

Come to old Piney and let us have one more fresh drink from the fountain. What is a few days and a little cost compared to what you will get by being at Piney Fork in the year 1906.

Let Wednesday, the 12th, be "old folks" day, and one never to be forgotten. Let everybody gather on the ground on Friday and Saturday before and prepare the grounds.

Brethren, excuse me for my "butting in" in giving suggestions. I am so full of this meeting already that I can scarcely refrain from crying out at the top of my voice, "Glory to God in the highest." Let everybody come. I hope to meet all my old friends whom I used to meet at Piney Fork. And above all, let us pray for multitudes to be saved on that occasion.

AN OLD PIONEER PASSES AWAY

UNCLE WALT COOK DIED LAST SATURDAY MORNING AT 8.40

Was Taken Suddenly Ill and Died Five Hours After the Attack

Last Saturday morning at 4 o'clock, John Walter Cook, one of the best known and oldest men in the county, was taken suddenly and seriously ill and died at 8.40 a. m., living less than 5 hours after the fatal attack.

He was visiting at his old farm at the home of Albert L. Lucas, his son-in-law, near Mattoon.

Mr. Cook was born May 6th, 1822, at Pittsburg, Pa., and came to this county over fifty years ago and settled near Bells Mines. He was a coal operator and was interested with Wheatecroft, Bell and other operators of anti-bellum days.

He was married four times. His first wife being Miss Wheatecroft, the second a Miss Clinton, his third a widow, Mrs. Pickering, his fourth, also a widow, Mrs. Lafeld, all of whom are dead.

He was the father of nine children; two by his first wife, five by his second and two by his third.

WALLINGFORD'S STABLE

For the Third Time Burned to the Ground Friday Night

Friday morning at 2 o'clock the blowing of whistles, ringing of bells and the cries of fire, aroused many of our citizens who hurried to the aid of the afflicted person without knowing or caring who it was. 'Twas not long until those good samaritans ascertained that it was Dudley Wallingford's stable in the rear of his residence on Salem street, that was a prey to the flames, and so far was the fire advanced that there was no hope of saving the building, and all hands turned their attention to saving the stock and vehicles, all which were saved.

Mr. Wallingford has had two previous fires and in each his loss has been heavy, and every one regrets this new misfortune. Previous experience, however, has taught him to not run his business without insurance, and we are informed he had some insurance on his property but we did not learn how much.

Fortunately his new brick stable on Belleville street is nearing completion and he can occupy a part of it, and by pushing the work will have it ready for occupancy. It is one of the largest and best equipped stables in this section and has been equipped throughout with a dozen electric lights.

The only item burned besides the stable were the glass shutters to his omnibus and several sets of harness. Mr. Wallingford has been the old reliable liveryman here for many years and his friends will now stick to him only the closer.

BAPTISTS MEET AT PINEY CREEK

INTERESTING SESSION OF THE OHIO RIVER ASSOCIATION.

Greatest Year, Financially and Otherwise, in History of Organization.

This body held its twenty-fourth annual session last week with Piney Creek Baptist church. Thirty-four churches were represented by messengers and letters. The introductory sermon was preached by Elder H. B. Taylor, of Murray, by request of the Association. His subject, "Salvation by Grace," was presented clearly and forcibly, and was greatly enjoyed by the large congregation present.

The reports from the churches show a marked advance in contributions to all the benevolences of the churches. Peace and prosperity seem to abound throughout the churches.

We were honored and helped by a number of visitors, among whom we recall Elders H. B. Taylor, John Grady and D. M. Green, of Blood River Association. Brother Green is one of the pioneer Baptist preachers of this country, being now about eighty-four years young, vigorous and active. For a number of years he has led the opening and closing prayers of the Association. Elder H. C. McGill, of Ohio Valley Association, representing the Western Recorder, and Miss Abercrombie, of the Baptist Orphans' Home, of Louisville, Ky., were also esteemed visitors.

Elder E. B. Blackburn, one of the veteran ministers of the Association, was chosen moderator, and gracefully filled the chair and presided over the deliberations. R. A. LaRue was re-elected clerk. The association was royally entertained by Piney Creek Church and community.

Ring resolutions were passed, pledging the body to the support of Anti-Saloon League and calling for such legislation as will suppress Sabbath excursions and base ball playing throughout the State.

POLICE FIRE ON AUTOISTS

WIFE OF MILLIONAIRE PACKER ESCAPES BULLETS.

Mrs. Armour and Daughter and Two Women Friends Given Bad Fright By Officer.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Residents of Lake Forest, Evanston and other North Shore towns demand an investigation of the Rogers Park policeman who fired five shots at an automobile containing Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, her daughter Lolita and two women guests.

C. H. Huck, the chauffeur, said he drove Mrs. Armour, Lolita, Miss Biller and another woman from Chicago to Lake Forest. At Rogers Park, he said, he was stopped by a policeman who threatened to arrest him and then fired five shots at the automobile, greatly frightening the women he carried.

The policemen, according to Huck, said his name was "Mike" Donovan. He made no arrests.

Later the automobile was stopped in Evanston by Policeman Kane. It was taken to the court of Justice Boyer, where Huck was fined $20 for speeding.

The police say Patrolman Saxon tried to stop the automobile in Rogers Park, but the chauffeur refused to stop, and Saxon fired three shots.

Saxon says that after the car was halted he was hit on the head with a parol by one of the women. The chauffeur, he says, immediately clapped on full power and the machine dashed away.

THE TEAMSTERS HAVE TROUBLE

Chicago Police Called to Quell Fighting Between Rival Organizations.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—A clash occurred in the hall at 75 Randolph street between the Cornelius P. Shea faction in the local teamsters' union and the members who are striving to launch another organization under the name of the United Teamsters of America.

One of the victims of the struggle was Albert Young, who led the revolt of the Chicago teamsters in the national organization two weeks ago. Young sustained some bad bruises. Another victim was George F. Golden, one of Cornelius P. Shea's chief supporters, who was beaten nearly into insensibility.

Twelve others received painful bruises in the fight.

The trouble was all caused by an attempt made by Golden to have all but Shea supporters ejected from the hall. The chairman ruled Golden out of order, and then the trouble started. The climax came when Golden, seizing a chair, swung it over his head and brought it down on Young.

Instantly the fight became general. Chairs and tables were thrown about, while the hostile drivers struggled from one end of the room to the other.

A squad of police arrived and put an end to the fight. No arrests were made.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 23.—A terrific rainstorm prevailed in Kansas City and vicinity Thursday, causing more or less serious damage.

In Kansas City 5.92 inches of water fell, a record for the time, three hours and a half.

Low lying lands were flooded and the police and fire departments were called upon to rescue two persons from basements in Little Italy, in the north end of town, and the east and west bottoms, where the water entered many small houses. Several downtown basements were flooded and goods damaged. Trees were stripped of their foliage and hundreds of sparrows were killed. Telephone poles were blown down and street car traffic tied up.

The Quindaro power house was flooded, putting several car lines out of commission on the west side. The Rooker, Prospect and Vine street lines were also tied up for several hours.

Many downtown buildings had from three to five feet of water in their cellars.

The electric light plants were also crippled by lightning. A few houses were also struck by lightning, but no serious damage was done.

A telephone message received from Edinwood cemetery says that several bodies were washed out of their graves by the record-breaking rainstorm.

GRUESOME FIND OF FISHERMEN

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 23.—At an isolated spot on the shore of Vancouver Island a party of fishermen found a ship's rowboat containing the bodies of eight persons.

The boat was identified as one that safely got away from the big steamship Valencia of the Pacific Coast Steamship Co., from San Francisco to Puget Sound points, which went ashore on the night of January 22, on Vancouver Island, 120 miles north of Victoria, just eight months ago.

It was known that a raft, on which were eight women, and a boat bearing an unknown number of persons, left the ship, but neither was ever heard of until today. The total loss of life on the Valencia was 119, only 40 persons being saved. Most of the lost went to death when the ship broke in two on the rocks.

INSANITY THAW'S DEFENSE.

Attorneys Will Contend He Was Crazy When He Killed White.

New York, Aug. 23.—A decision was reached by attorneys for Harry K. Thaw, that Thaw's defense to the charge of killing Stanford White will be a plea of emotional insanity. This will include as part of the defense that Thaw's insanity existed only until after White was killed, and that Thaw is now sane again, and has been since the killing.

The decision to make this plea was reached after the reports of two alienists who visited Thaw in the Tombs had been communicated to Clifford W. Hartridge, of Thaw's counsel.

It was decided also that Mrs. Harry K. Thaw will be the chief witness of the defense in its effort to prove that Thaw was insane when he killed White.

It was about the question whether a plea of insanity should be made that Thaw and his former counsel disagreed, resulting in the dismissal of the lawyers.

The plea insisted upon by Thaw's former counsel included the admission that he is now insane, and if accepted by the court the jury would have caused his confinement in an insane asylum. The plea now decided upon makes no such admission.

CANADA DESTROYING AMERICAN FISH NETS

Washington, Aug. 23.—Captain Ross, chief of the revenue cutter service of the treasury department, reported to Acting Secretary Murray of the department of commerce and labor, that he had received advices that the Canadian cruiser Vigilant was destroying the nets of American fishermen in Lake Erie. The reports of the fishermen indicate that the nets were so well within American waters.

The matter will be reported to the state department, and will probably constitute the subject of an exchange between the American and Canadian governments.

Thirteen Firemen Injured.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Thirteen firemen were either overcome by smoke or injured by explosions while fighting a fire in the paint manufacturing plant of John Lucas, 33-55 North Desplaines street. The fire, which is believed to have started from spontaneous combustion, caused a property loss of $65,000.

Bids Are Opened.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Bids were opened at the bureau of insular affairs, war department, for $1,000,000 of Philippine certificates. Numerous bids were submitted, but it is expected that the whole amount will be awarded to Flisk & Robinson, of New York, whose bid was $1.02 25-100 for all or none of the amount. One of the bids was as high as $1.04 for $100,000 worth.

Bad On The Hog.

A Missouri farmer, whose hog was killed by a train, wrote the company's claim agent for a settlement. He opened his communication thus: "My razor back strolled down your track a week ago today. Your 29 came down the line and snuffed his life away. You can't blame me—the hog you see slipped through the cattle gate—so kindly pen a check for 10 the debt to liquidate." He received the following reply: "Old 29 came down the line and killed your hog we know; but razor backs on railway tracks quiet often meet with woe. Therefore my friend we cannot send the check for which you pine; just plant your dead, place over his head, 'Here lies a foolish swine'."

Summer Diarrhoea in Children.

During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. O. Stockland, Pastor of the first M. E. church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years, and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children. Sold by Woods & Orme the leading druggists in western Kentucky."

Traveling Man Picks Up $100,000.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 22.—Geo. J. Mitchell, a traveling salesman from Newark, N. J., and who stopped at the Gibson house when in this city, dropped into a telephone booth in that hotel. He found lying in the booth a pocketbook containing ten $10,000 bills—$100,000 all told—and valuable papers.

Going to the clerk's desk he placed them there for safekeeping. Soon Frank Gard, president of the Gard Mining Co., of Denver, who was stopping at the Hotel Lackman, rushed into the booth and out again greatly excited. He asked the clerk if he had found a pocketbook and the man behind the desk required him to describe it.

"And you left a pocketbook containing $100,000 in a telephone booth," replied the clerk.

All kinds of questions were asked. Mr. Gard asked who found it and offered one $10,000 bill to Mitchell, who could not bring himself to accept it.

In lieu of that, however, he gave him $10,000 worth of mining stock, which sells at par and told him if he kept it it would some day make him some money.

The Rev. J. C. Warren, pastor of Sharon Baptist church, Bellair, Ga., says of Electric Bitters: "It's a god-send to a ailed, it cured me of lame back, stiff joints, and complete physical collapse. I was so weak it took me an hour to walk half a mile. Two bottles of Electric Bitters have made me so strong I have walked 3 miles in fifty minutes. It's made a new man of me." ### Riot Over Stolen Melon.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 24.—Believing that a tiny pickaninny had been frozen to death in ice box, fully one thousand negroes gathered in front of Geo. W. Wilts' grocery store last night and threatened dire things against the proprietor.

With shouts of "Lynch 'im!" "Kill 'im!" the black mob surged about the store, and had it not been for the timely work of a squad of policemen, who fought their way through the mob to the relief of the besieged man, Wilts would have been roughly dealt with by the infuriated blacks.

"Joe" Adams is a diminutive negro, it appears and he grabbed a watermelon. Wilts caught him, took him into the store, gave him a lecture and sent him out the rear door. Negroes spread the cry that the youngster had been shut up in the ice box and was slowly freezing to death.

LOW RATES FOR THE STATE FAIR

Railroads Fix One Fare For the Round Trip.

MANY VARIED ATTRACTIONS

Provided for State Fair Week, Sept. 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22.

TROTTERS AND RUNNERS WILL RACE EACH DAY

Surpassing Exhibition of Horseflesh, Cattle, Sheep and Swine—Woman's Department a Joy to Housewives. Twenty-five Thousand Dollars in Premiums and Purses.

Railroad rates for the State Fair have been fixed at one fare plus 25 cents for the round trip from all points in Kentucky and in Southern Indiana. With nine railroads running into the city of Louisville, where the fair will be held during the week of September 17-22, one hundred passenger trains daily will carry thousands to the metropolis of Kentucky. In addition many special trains will be run in order to accommodate those who wish to visit the fair for a single day only. There is no part of the state of Kentucky from which Louisville can not be reached in a reasonable time. From the western part of the state the Henderson and Illinois Central railroads will furnish ample accommodations, and in the southern part the L. & N. will bring thousands, while from the central and eastern sections the C. & O., Southern and L. & N. will bring the crowds.

A CLYDESDALE

Once in Louisville, ample amusement will be provided to keep every visitor well entertained and amused during his stay, whether it be for a day or during the entire week. Of course the fair itself will be the center of interest, and there so many free attractions have been arranged for that the whole time can be spent enjoyably and profitably without seeking other recreation. Each of the men having the different departments in hand is thoroughly qualified by long years of training and experience to arrange the exhibits in his charge in the most attractive and approved manner.

Many Things to Please.

The fair proper, that is, the exhibits of horses, cattle and other live stock, the products of farm and field, the garden and flower beds, mechanical department and that devoted to woman's handiwork, will be both interesting and of great educational value. This is not even half of the pleasure that has been provided for those who attend the State Fair. Those who love a contest, and how many Kentuckians are there who do not, between the clean-limbed and high-spirited trotting horses and thorough-reds, will find four races on the program each day. There will be either a trotting or pacing race, best three heats in five, and three running races. For over a month the track has been in course of preparation for the trotting races. Thousands of gallons of water have been poured on it daily, and after each wetting it has been rolled and packed so that the trotters will find firm and resilient surface under their shoes rather than the deep and sandy soil, which is better suited to thoroughbreds. The hard surface will not be of disadvantage to the owners, inasmuch as the races immediately before the fair will be at Douglas Park, a track that was built for trotting purposes, and which is considerably harder than the average running track. Among the races on the program is one for trotters of the 2:10 class and a free-for-all for pacers, which will be decided on Friday. In the thoroughbred division there will be a gentleman's cup race and two steeple chases, while every day there will be at least one race of a mile or over. As there will be no other racing in the west during the fair, the best horses in training and the highest class jockeys in the west will take part in the racing at the State Fair. Purses for the trotting races will be $600 each, a considerably larger amount than is ordinarily offered at fairs.

RED POLLED BULL.

Varied Attractions.

Visitors in the city during the week can enjoy the many varied attractions at night. They can go to the fair and enjoy a concert by one of the most famous musical organizations in the United States. They can go over the grounds and take in the carnival shows or can sit in the Palm Garden and enjoy the music while they chat over pleasures of the day with their friends and renew their acquaintance with Kentuckians from other parts of the state. The social feature of the fair will undoubtedly prove one of its most attractive points, and as the years go on the State Fair will become more and more a meeting ground for Kentuckians from all sections of the commonwealth, where they can see what the other parts of the state are doing and exchange ideas of mutual benefit. The State Fair is the place to meet your friends and enjoy a few days' outing. It comes at a season of the year when the farmer and stock raiser can best afford to leave their homes for a few days, and thousands will take advantage of the low rates in order to be there.

When the exhibits of horseflesh, cattle and swine in the morning and the races in the afternoon have been sufficient for the day at the fair, the visitors can find other forms of recreation and amusement in the five theaters in Louisville or at any one of the several parks about the city. At Macaulay's theater they can find high-class drama; at the Masonic, enjoy a musical comedy; at the Avenue, a thrilling melodrama, or at the Hopkins, refined vaudeville.

Classes Well Filled.

Practically every class for which prize money has been offered has been well filled, and the leading stock raisers of the state will be there to show their horses, their cattle, their sheep and their hogs. The exhibits of horseflesh will undoubtedly surpass anything ever before seen at the State Fair in Kentucky, and will excel even those of the well-established State

A FOUR-YEAR-OLD.

Fairs of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The fact that only one week intervenes between the fair and the Louisville Horse Show has added many entries in the horse division. The classes for the high steppers, roadsters and both three and five-gaited saddle horses have many entries that will be shown at the Louisville Horse Show. The light harness and plantation saddle classes, which are exhibited only at fairs in Kentucky, have likewise been well filled.

In many of the saddle rings as many as twenty entries have been received. This is especially true of the five-gaited saddlers, and many other entries are expected before ribbons are tied. In the beef cattle division entries will come from Missouri, Ohio and Indiana to compete with Kentucky stock raisers, and it is predicted that the Shorthorn and other beef cattle classes will surprise even those who have been regular attendants at fairs. The Overton Hall Farm, near

PRIZE TAMWORTH SOW.

Nashville, Tenn., will send its entire herd of Jerseys, considered the greatest that has ever been furnished in this country. It will include Brookhill Fox, the champion Jersey bull of England.

The judges selected for all the classes have been chosen with the greatest care. They are men not only qualified to pass upon merits of the entries, but also men who are absolutely unbiased and whose judgment would be readily accepted by both winners and losers alike.

Don't you like this stretchy weather When its hot, When you seem to run together In a clot Of hot, reeking perspiration? Don't you feel a wild elation, And a wish for dissipation? Do you not? Don't you long for beds of tulips In the sun, And for quarts on quarts of juleps, And the fun? That is where the flags are bending And the wild perfumes are blending? And for, where a stream is wending, Fishes run. —Houston Post.

Plays Fire-Eater; Near Death.

St. Louis, Aug. 21.—In trying to imitate the "fire-eating trick" of a circus man Johnnie Cottle, eight-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Cottle, of 1215 Armstrong avenue, filled his mouth with coal oil and set it fire with a match. In a moment he was covered in flames. Mrs. Sarah Peterson, who lives on the ground floor at the same number, wrapped her skirt about him and smothered the blaze, after which the boy was sent to the city hospital, where his condition was pronounced serious. The boy is not expected to recover.

Children in Pain

Never cry as do children who are suffering from hunger. Such is the cause of all baby's who cry, and are treated for sickness, when they really are suffering from hunger. This is caused from their food not being assimilated but devoured by worms. A few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge will cause them to cease crying and begin to thrive at once; give it a trial. At Woods & Orme's.

Baby Deserted by Mother.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Deserted by its mother, a 2-year-old infant was found in a dirty dark room at 225 Chestnut street. It had cried all night from hunger. Neighbors who heard its wails notified the police. The baby was taken to St. Vincent's asylum. The mother's name is Berth. She has not been found.

Beautiful Legend.

There is an old legend that runs in this wise: At the creation's dawn an angel came down to earth and before returning looked around for something to carry back to heaven. There were three things that attracted the attention of the white-winged messenger a bouquet of sweet flowers that had been gathered from one of the earth's fair and blooming gardens, the smile of a baby that had been playing with a sunbeam, and mother's love. These three the angel carried away, but when they reached the pearly gates of paradise the flowers had withered—the baby's smile had vanished. Only a mother's love remained the same, and being found as pure and eternal as the waters that flowed by God's throne, all the angels that ranged about exclaimed in unison: "There is nothing on earth pure enough for heaven but a mother's love." This was a tribute containing a sublime thought. And through all the ages it has been human experience that the angels referred to in that fair-away legend, were not over-extravagant in the message that they passed out through the opened windows of the "many mansions" along the banks of the "River of God." —Henderson Gleaner.

Wash Cruce.

An interesting letter was received from an old Crittenden county citizen last week by his nephew and name sake G. W. Stone. The party who wrote the letter was G. W. Cruce, of Clinton, Mo., well known to many of our older citizens as Wash Cruce who moved west nearly a half of a century ago, since which he has spent much time in Mo, Kan, and Texas, finally settling down at Clinton, Mo., where he now resides with his wife and two sons. How careless people get about writing and keeping up with their friends and those they love is shown by Mr. Cruce's letter. In it he inquires about his sister Lucy's health, she having been dead four years and was Caleb Stone's wife and mother of councilman G. W. Stone who received the letter.

He also asked about sister Jane Wilson, not knowing she had passed over the dark river twenty-two years ago, and sister Mary Cole, who for over forty years has been Mrs. Gettings, and now lives at Kuttawa.

And about brother Presley, who unknown to him had died thirty-five years ago, and about brother E. Well, who has also been dead twenty-five years or more. Two brothers, James and Marion, live in Livingston Co, between the rivers now and with the one sister Mrs. Gettings, of Kuttawa, comprise all the family of that generation now living.

Electric Power.

The hydraulic power now used in Switzerland for running electric plants is estimated at more than 225,000 horse power, of which 40 per cent is employed for electric lighting, 13 per cent, for traction, 23 per cent, for electrolytic work, and 24 per cent for motors. Even with this work done by water, the imports of foreign coal amount to nearly $2,000,000 annually. Continued increase in electric plants is thus assured, and a projected one in the Bernese Oberland promises 40,000 horse power, while others are expected to follow to supply the 150,000 horse power needed by the railroads. A hydro-electric plant on the Rhine near Numpf is to have a 230-foot head of water, with a canal fifteen miles long to lead the water from the dam to the turbine station.

Frightfully Burned.

Charles W. Moore, a machinist of Ford City, Pa., had his hand frightfully burned in an electrical furnace. He applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve with the usual result, "a quick and perfect cure." Greatest healer on earth for burns, wounds, sores, eczema and piles. 25c. at the drugstore of Woods & Orme.

The Deceptive Hen's Fate

A hen wanted to have some fun at her master's expense, so she procured an ostrich's egg and placed it in her nest.

"Oh, my," cried her master when he saw it, "what a remarkable hen I have! See, she has laid this enormous egg." And he thought it was so wonderful that he immediately put the hen in a cage and took her to the circus, so that everybody could see the hen that laid eggs as big as she did. He made a nice nest for her in a box, and she was given a good position on the side-show platform between the fat lady and the tattooed man.

Everybody went to see the wonderful hen, and her master was very much pleased. But the next day the hen laid an ordinary egg, and day after day it was the same size. At the end of the week the circus man went to the hen's master and said:

SHE GOT AN OSTRICH'S EGG.

"Why have you deceived me? This hen only lays ordinary eggs."

And the master did not know what to say. He gathered up his cage with the hen in it and went back home.

When he got there he picked up an ax and chopped the hen's head off.

And that reminds me that we should always be careful not to make things appear in a wrong light.—Detroit Journal.

RARE JUSTICE

Bunny Rabbit went one day last week to rob Mr. Coon's corncrib, and Mr. Coon caught him in the very act. "I'll march you off to jail, sir, and that's what I'll do with you!"

"Oh, don't march me off to jail! Anything but that! I know I ought to be killed. Throw me in the river, drown me, but don't march me off to jail!" pleaded Bunny Rabbit.

"All right," said old man Coon. "But if I throw you in the river you'll swim out. I know you. That's what you'll do."

"I was just coming to that," said Bunny Rabbit. "I was just going to ask you to tie my hands behind my back, so I couldn't swim a stroke. I'm afraid when I get in that cold water I might try to swim, and so I want you to tie me."

Old man Coon thought he never had seen such a repentant rabbit in all his days. There was something suspicious about it, but he tied Master Bunny Rabbit's paws hard and fast. Then Bunny Rabbit stood on the bank of the river and wept, and the tears hopped down his furry little cheeks, and his paws were tied so he couldn't wipe them away. Oh, he was a piteous spectacle!

"Go up to the top of that high hill," said he, "and run down just as fast as you can and give me a good shove away out into the middle of the water, so I will drown quick!"

Mr. Coon went up and ran, but Bunny Rabbit's hind feet were not tied, and when Mr. Coon got to him Bunny Rabbit stepped to one side. Splash went old man Coon into the water.

"Oh, save me!" Save me, Brother Bunny Rabbit!" he cried, for Mr. Coon, who could not swim, was helpless with fear.—Atlanta Constitution.

Situations Guaranteed.

We do not guarantee situations to prospective students in order to get their patronage. Schools cannot do so without resort to such dishonest practices. Fake schools "guarantee" situations in order to secure students because they have no other inducements to offer. Our work is so thorough that a guarantee is superfluous. Business men are so eager to get competent help here that a large per cent. of our students take positions before they graduate. See us before making arrangements for your business and stenographic education at any inferior, fake school. We will take pleasure in telling you all about the loopholes in the "position guarantees" of dishonest schools. Catalogue free.

THURSDAY, AUG. 28, 1908

We are authorized to announce W. F. COMPTON, of Smithland, as a candidate to represent the counties of Crittenden and Livingston in the next General Assembly, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Sentiment is one thing; business another.

Count that day lost in which no progress has been made.

Set your stake, and when you reach it, set further ahead.

A good name is better than riches, and rather to be chosen than fine apparel.

Difficulties are thrown in our path by various circumstances, and should only arouse our latent energies.

Stop knocking. Don't misjudge. Remember that half an evil eye can see more iniquity than the whole of a innocent one.

Every day is a little life, every life only a short day. Teach us, O Father, that life's duties are bound up in each day, and that life, long or short, is made up of days.

There are many striking examples of the value of good roads. Wherever roads have been permanently improved it is found that there has been a very great increase in the value of the adjacent property, as a matter of fact the increase in the value of lands in the blue grass section has been sufficient to cover the entire cost of the turn-pikes.

Alfred Mosely, a wealthy Englishman, says American boys are brighter than English boys. He does not appear to know why. One of the chief reasons why young America is bright is because it tips the sap to no acquire, squireling or other condescending overman. And, in addition to this he may find by listening to the conversation of Uncle Sam's sons and daughters that each and every one has a towering ambition; not one is satisfied to stay in a particular class if he or she can see a way of getting higher.

Why is it that so many people now dislike to live in the country. If you go to a city there are people by the hundred who live from "hand to mouth" in every square, and whose total wealth is represented by the clothes they have on. Years go by and these persons never have a home. They lose that independence that the proud owner of a farm has. If there is any needed reform in America it is to keep people away from the condensed cities.

The name of our little city stands for a picture in the minds of all who have a chance to linger, even for a short time within our gates or for a few fleeting days under the charm of its wondrous beauty. It stands not alone as a pleasant picture but as the future ideal of its loyal citizens who each year are adding to its attractive homes, with pretty yards and lots of flowers. It is unique among its rivals as a city of homes, even the county is noted for its minerals, many health giving waters and rich river bottom farms on three sides, the Ohio on the north, Cumberland on the south and Tradewater on the east.

One of the most ingenious and useful household articles we have seen in many years is called the Economy Scrubbing Brush which is being sold now by agents in the city and county. It is a labor saver which any housewife will be glad to own and use after seeing it tried. It is simple, easily kept clean and is really a necessity.

BE CONTENT.

These are the days when the discontented farmers' fancy lightly turns to moving.

The great railway systems of the West, food the mails with manuals setting forth the beauties and virtues of this or that region, each claiming to be par excellence, the homemaker's paradise.

Agriculture has in this aspect taken the place of mining. In former times the "new country" that offered the most attractions to settlers from a distance was that in which gold was taken out of the ground in big yellow nuggets.

In these later days the search is still for a quick fortune but the medium exploited is the growing crop, which can be turned into gold by the slower processes of agriculture—planting, cultivating and harvesting, and the pioneer now has for his emblem the gang-plow and the twine-binder, instead of the pick and the pan.

Now the advertising letters teem with prints in which the settlers' homestead and happy family are shown projected against fields of heavy headed grain, trees groaning under apples and peaches proportionably as large as watermelons, and the cattle of a thousand hills grouped in pen by the side of the railroad track awaiting rapid shipment to markets where buyers stand in long lines, waiting for a chance to draw fat checks in payment.

While these pictures are fair to look upon, and attract the eye of many, few if any have ever bettered their condition in all respects by leaving our own fair city and county, and the few who have left would be glad to be back in old Kentucky, and the dream of their life in the far West is for the day to come when they will have a "home, sweet home" in the "blue grass State."

IN SOCIETY.

Last Friday afternoon the tennis devotees had their contesting game on the court at the Sayre residence. The first gentlemen contestants were W. Murray Sanders and Chastain Haynes, which was a very closely contested game, and the prize, which was won by Mr. Sanders, was a bountiful supper served on the lawn by the mellow light of the moon, with myriads of Japanese lanterns for secondary illuminations. The second contest was between Dr. Frederick S. Stillwell and Chastain Haynes, Mr. Haynes winning first honors. The only lady contestants were Mrs. H. H. Sayre and Miss Ruby James, the latter winning first honors. Among the other guests were Misses Kitty Gray, Leaffa Wilborn and Della Barnes, and Virgil and Julian Elgin, of Louisville, and Will McElroy. The refreshments consisted of gingerale punch, which was served throughout the evening, ham and chicken sandwiches, pickles, olives, deviled eggs, Saratoga chips, cherry sherbet, ice cream and cake. The affair was unique, and each of the guests were charmingly entertained.

Success Depends on Optimism and Hustling

By WILLIAM CRERAND,
Successful Publisher Who as a Boy Kicked a Gordan Press.

PEOPLE go out of their way to help a successful man, and no man who has all his faculties has any excuse for being a failure.

The lack of enthusiasm on the part of any individual is one of the first signs of the "going-back-to-sit-down" feeling, and a sour face on a man who ought to be hustling is as discouraging as a "to let" sign.

The spirit of the times is all optimism despite the muck rakers. There's money and success in the air and every man can get some of it if he will go out after it.

Every one wants to feel that he is in the company of people who are doing something, and unless a man gives some evidence that he is making good the crowd don't want to sit with him. They will stand for disappointments that have made a man temporarily embarrassed so long as he shows a disposition to keep moving and doesn't stop to cry.

That nothing succeeds like success is a saying as old as the hills, and none is truer, and to get on in the world a man must make a show of success.

When a workman in a shop achieves the place of foreman, he gets other things that go with an authoritative job. The man who has worked beside him is apt to say he can't see why the other man should have the place and sulks. He goes on sulking, and one day his old friend, the foreman, has to discharge him, and the man goes out into the world saying bitter things about his old friend. A man at the bench, just in front of the other man, recognizes that the man who is made foreman is the foreman and should be treated as such. He tells him little confidences as to things in his part of the shop. He is the first to subscribe for a present for the foreman's anniversary, and seeing that the foreman is getting on successfully, works a little harder to help him make good as to his part of the product. One day when the foreman goes up to a superintendency the man who contributed to the success is made a foreman, and then his success attracts the attention of some other man who follows his policy, and so it goes on, working in the same way and on the same principle from the ranks of shoe string sellers to bank presidents and every one can share in it if they'll be ready to cut loose when the whistle blows and keep it up all the time.

Greater Lessons in Travel Abroad

By REV. PETER MacQUEEN.

I do not think the young American will learn nearly so much by traveling in America as he will by first going to Europe, Asia or the tropics.

To begin with, every American knows something of America.

He knows the village, the town or perhaps he has seen Niagara, the Adirondacks, the White mountains or New York city. If he has seen any or all of these and has been through the public school he has learned all he needs to know of his own country to start with. A visit to Canada, the Yellowstone, California or the south can be made when he is older—even when he is an old man.

Traveling in our own country first is like studying modern history before studying ancient history. For the young man or woman of the United States will learn more of his own country by one summer's visit to Europe than he can in 20 years by seeing the forests, rivers, cities or prairies at home. And the reason is this: In Europe he will find the beginning of all good things American. In the British museum he will see the magna charta, and the declaration of independence. In Scotland, England and Ireland he will find the scenery, the hills, towns, cities that have colored the intellectual life of his fathers. The songs we sing in America, the traditions we love, the laws we honor he will find in the land of our fathers.

There are the lakes of Killarney, and Blarney castle; then Glasgow and the Bonnie banks of loch Lomond, Edinburgh, seat of Scottish intellect, Bannockburn and the Braes of Bonnie Doon. Across the border he will find England with "snowy summits old in story," Warwick and Kenilworth, Stratford and Cambridge, Oxford and grand old foggy London, which are our American heritage as well as Bunker hill and Gettysburg.

In France he will find Paris, the magic city by the Seine, with its glittering boulevards, its Louvre and its Luxembourg galleries; its arches and its memorials of that meteor man, Napoleon. He may visit Madrid in 36 hours from Paris, and learn of Columbus, Isabelle and the gloomy tyrant of the Escorial.

In Italy he will find Rome, the mistress of the world, where every stone has a tongue to tell of the brave days of old. He cannot use a sentence of his native American language without paying tribute to Cicero and Caesar. Then Pisa, Genoa, Naples, the buried city of Pompeii; gentle Venice and glorious Florence. In the galleries of Florence alone he may learn as much as he did in school or college; canvases before which an angel might bow, and statues that have frozen into marble the human form divine.

The vine-clad hills of fair Bingen on the Rhine, the blue Danube, the minarets of old Stamboul, the bells of Moscow, the fjords of Norway, the mountains of Switzerland, and the dykes of Holland—all these should be seen before visiting even our great plains or the silent Sierra Nevadas.

In youth we can stand the toil of a hard sea voyage, and the discomfort of a strange land better than in older years. To our American mecca we can be taken on palatial steamers and flashing express trains, taken in comfort among a people we know and with friends that we can rely on, in a country where the language and customs are our own. All this I claim can be done easier than the foreign trips such as to Canton, Yokohama or the Philippines, Cairo or Algiers.

Moreover, coming back from these older lands, we can note with growing appreciation the excellent tendencies and justice our fathers have given us here, and while we shall find our America far behind Europe in art, we shall also find her a more cherishing mother; and while trying to remedy her defects we shall take the wide lesson of the past. We shall thus strive to make our America not only what she must always be to us, dear and pure as our own mothers are, but we shall by our travels and observations learn how best we can make our own land most beautiful and holy.

GUIMARD, THE SPIDER.

The Great Dancer of the Great Days of the Ballet.

The elder Vestris, who flourished in the middle of the eighteenth century, called himself the "god of dancing" and declared in all sincerity and without rebuke that his century had produced but three supreme men—himself, Frederick the Great and Voltaire. On one occasion when reproving his son Augustus for refusing to dance before the king of Sweden he said that he would not tolerate any misunderstanding between the houses of Vestris and Bourbon, which had lived hitherto upon the most friendly terms.

Madeleine Guimard made her debut when she was thirteen years of age and for nearly thirty years kept all Paris worshipping at her feet. This was a success of art and not of beauty, for Guimard was so aggressively thin that she was known as "the spider." She discovered the great painter David, who helped Fragonard to adorn her house with frescoes. Indeed, Fragonard, for whose paintings today fabulous sums have been paid, lost his commission because he dared to fall in love with his patron. Guimard had a theater in her own house, and her entertainments there were deemed extravagant in an age of luxury. Paris could not spare her to London until she was past her fortieth year. She was a sort of boulevard adviser to Marie Antoinette, and so great was the esteem in which she was held that one of the most distinguished sculptors of the day modeled her foot, and when her arm was broken in a stage accident a miss for her speedy recovery was celebrated at Notre Dame.—Macmillan's Magazine.

THE BLACK BASS.

A Marine Butcher That Kills For the Pleasure of Slaughtering.

The bass is like a roaring lion going about seeking whom he may devour. I have seen a good sized specimen get into a school of minnows and eat and stuff until he could not get any more into his capacious insides, then go off by himself, throw up what he had eaten and begin over again, after which he would keep on killing the poor innocent minnows, apparently for the mere pleasure of killing. Very young bass will attack minute water life which flourishes on water plants and get away with every one in sight, adopting the same method as their elders. To illustrate the extent of the cannibalism of the black bass here is the experience of a superintendent of one of the fish hatcheries in Pennsylvania.

"The superintendent made an actual count of 20,000 young bass about an inch long and placed them in a fry pond by themselves. He gave them food six times a day, and, according to his statement, each fish ate on an average three times its own weight of the prepared food every twenty-four hours. They were placed in a pond on the 1st of July, and on Oct. 1, when they were taken out, there were only 11,000, and the record showed that less than 200 died from sickness. It is reasonable to suppose, therefore, that in addition to the food given them by the superintendent there were about 9,000 bass devoured by their stronger and more fortunate companions."—W. E. Meehan in Field and Stream.

Caring For the Teeth.

Without good teeth there cannot be thorough mastication. Without thorough mastication there cannot be perfect digestion, and consequently poor health results; hence the paramount importance of sound teeth. Clean teeth do not decay. The teeth should not be brushed from side to side. If this is done the points of the gums will be injured and the teeth loosened. The upper teeth should be brushed from the top downward from the gums to the ends of the teeth, the lower teeth from the bottom upward, also from the gums to the extremity of the teeth. It is essential to wash the teeth at night and wise to wash them also in the morning. Rinse the mouth after each meal.

Swiss Enterprise.

There is a weekly journal published at Zurich, Switzerland, called the Engaged Couples' Advertiser, which has agents at work all over Switzerland ascertaining the name of every girl who is engaged to be married and that of her prospective husband. These names are printed in the paper, with the addresses of the sweethearts and a description of their social position. Soon after the announcement of her engagement a girl finds herself almost in a position to start a shop, so numerous are the samples she receives from firms anxious to sell their goods to her.

Gun Barrels.

To brown gun barrels wet a piece of rag with chloride of antimony, dip it into olive oil and rub the barrel over. In forty-eight hours it will be covered with a fine coat of rust. Then rub the barrel with a fine steel scratch brush and wipe with a rag dipped in boiled linseed oil. To rebrown remove the old coating with oil and emery paper, then remove the grease with caustic potash.

Sitting on Chairs.

Does sitting on chairs tend to make people stiff and awkward? Orientals can sit on their heels however fat and elderly they may be, while many English people after middle age can rarely rise from their chairs without assistance.—London Graphic.

Nose For News.

"That man is an inveterate gossip, and he has a perfect genius for smelling out squally times in families." "Then his is something of a storm center."—Baltimore American.

It is easy to be brave when you know the enemy has only blank cartridges.

J. G. Phelps Stokes, Socialist—Brownlow and the Ice Wagon—Lyman J. Gage, "Stand Pat" Perkins—Richard Olney—Wetmore's Fight.

J. G. PHELPS STOKES.

SEVERAL times a millionaire, yet a Socialist, J. G. Phelps Stokes is one of the most interesting young men in America today. After dabbling with socialism for several years he has at last joined the Socialist party and declares that "either with them or as a wholly independent citizen I shall strive to promote recognition of the fact in which I believe—that the so-called capitalist system, as such, is indefensible ethically and disastrous industrially through the inescapable wage slavery to which it leads and that it must be supplanted by a more righteous system of co-operation and mutual aid."

Although president of the Nevada Central railroad, the Woodbridge company, the Haynes company and the Austin Mining company, Mr. Stokes left his father's mansion in November, 1902, to live in the settlement house at 184 Eldridge street, New York.

In the course of social settlement work Mr. Stokes met Rose Harriet Pastor, a girl with a mind sharpened by years of study while toiling as a cigar-maker. She was a reporter for a Jewish paper and was assigned to interview Mr. Stokes. It was a case of love at first sight. They were married in the spring of 1905. Their city home is a flat on the seventh floor of a tenement house, and they also have a handsome country home at Noroton, Conn., which was not long ago the meeting place of a group of well known people who are interested in socialism.

Shortly before congress adjourned Vice President Fairbanks came down the street in Washington in his finest carriage. He met Representative Walter P. Brownlow of Tennessee, who was walking along Fifth street.

"Get in, Brownlow," said the vice president, "and I will take you up to the capitol."

Brownlow hopped in. They chatted together pleasantly for a short time, and then the vice president halted the carriage in order to go into a store. He left Brownlow in the carriage. Two or three representatives, walking to the capitol, came along and found Brownlow there, sitting in state.

"Hi, Brownlow!" said one of them. "How about this? When did you get a tumbler like that, and what are you doing here?"

"Nothing," Brownlow replied, "nothing at all; merely getting a free ride in the ice wagon."

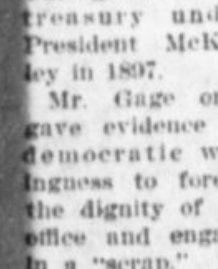

Then some one told the joke to the vice president, and Brownlow put in half an hour at the Indiana statesman's elbow trying to square himself.

George D. Perkins, the Iowa "stand pat" who, with the more or less active assistance of Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, is trying to take the governorship of the state away from A. B. Cummins, is an editor. He was born in New York state, learned the printer's trade in Wisconsin, fought in the civil war with the Thirty first Iowa and since 1890 has edited the Sioux City Journal. He is a rock bound Republican and was removed from the office of United States marshal by President Cleveland for "offensive partisanship." Mr. Perkins served in the Iowa state senate and in congress and has been a candidate for the United States senate. His journalistic motto is "Always tell the truth," and he is a last ditch fighter.

Lyman J. Gage, who is said to have joined Mrs. Katherine A. Tingley's school of theosophy at Point Loma, Cal., had a brilliant career in the financial world. Starting as an office boy in a bank in Rome, N. Y., he worked his way up until he resigned the presidency of the First National bank of Chicago to become secretary of the treasury under President McKinley in 1897.

Mr. Gage once gave evidence of democratic willingness to forego the dignity of his office and engage in a "scrap." He was presiding at the auction sale of the old government mint in Philadelphia. Although the room was crowded, it became evident that the $2,000,000 mark that had been set as the knock-down price would not be reached.

During a momentary lull some one made a loud comment upon the administration's relations with Wall street, suggesting that a mistake had been made by not selling the mint there and reflecting directly upon Mr. Gage himself. The secretary turned in the direction of the voice and answered in a tone that was as firm as it was quiet. "You're a liar!"

A friend of Mr. Gage asked him later what he would have done if the man had answered back and invited trouble. "Well, if he really wanted trouble," was the reply, "I was perfectly willing to satisfy him then and there."

Richard Olney of Massachusetts, who has been elected chairman of the International Policy Holders' committee, is best known as the secretary of state during the second Cleveland administration. He was not known at all to the people throughout the country up to the time of his first appointment to a cabinet position, when he was made attorney general. He was probably the leading corporation lawyer of New England at that time, although somehow he had never figured prominently in the newspapers. Mr. Olney comes from an old family and is a man of fine breeding, polish and superior mentality. He works hard and finds pleasure in it, but he is also very fond of recreation. Although there was a strong mutual admiration and friendship between them, Mr. Cleveland always stood a little in awe of the Boston man. When Mr. Olney was secretary of state he frequently gave expression to the opinion that appointees to the consular service should speak the language of the countries to which they were respectively accredited. One day when a breezy western politician who was desirous of serving the Cleveland administration as consul at one of the Chinese ports presented his papers to Mr. Olney the latter remarked: "Are you aware, Mr. Blank, that I never recommended to the president the appointment of a consul unless he speaks the language of the country to which he desires to go?"

Now, I suppose you do not speak Chinese?" Whereupon the westerner grinned broadly and replied, "If, Mr. Secretary, you will ask me a question in Chinese I shall be happy to answer it." He got the appointment without further parley.

Senator George Peabody Wetmore of Newport, R. I., who may find a constant for his seat at Washington in Colonel Samuel P. Colt, will have finished his second term next March. Both men are wealthy and prominent in society. Although Mr. Wetmore has not attracted great attention outside of his own state and even there works along quiet lines, his political career has been an active one. Now that he has reached the height of his ambition his opponents will not let him rest in peace.

Born in London Aug. 2, 1846, during a visit of his parents abroad, he is a graduate of Yale university and Columbia College Law school. After holding several appointive political and public positions of an honorary nature he was elected governor in 1885 and succeeded himself the following year, but was defeated in 1887.

What he was working for all the time, however, was a United States senatorship. He sought election to fill the unexpired term of Jonathan Chase, who resigned in 1880, but Nathan F. Dixon was chosen on the eighth ballot. In June, 1894, he was elected to succeed Senator Dixon and was re-elected in 1900.

Possibly no man in the United States belongs to more clubs and social organizations, including the leading ones in New York, Newport, London and other places.

Samuel J. Flickinger, managing editor of the Dayton (O.) Journal, who has been appointed secretary to Governor Andrew Harris, is one of the oldest and most popular journalists in the Buckeye state. He began his newspaper career in 1876, just after leaving Cornell university. In the office of the paper of which he is now editor, going to Columbus in 1878, he was on the Ohio State Journal for fifteen years, nine years as managing editor. He was connected with two S. J. Flickinger prominent press associations before he returned to the Dayton Journal and during his residence in the state capital was closely associated with all the public men of the state. While always a rigid partisan, Mr. Flickinger has never been an offensive partisan and numbers among his friends the big men of both parties. He has attended every state convention since 1873 and has been on terms of intimacy with every governor from Bishop to Patterson. He has known the present governor for many years. Mr. Flickinger's father was a bishop of the United Brethren society and for many years worked in foreign fields.

A South Carolinian of the old Bourbon school was taunted with the possibility of having to cast his vote some day for Senator Benjamin R. Tillman for president.

"No, sir, I shall never vote for Senator Tillman," the old man said. "The man I vote for for president must have two eyes and but one tongue."

Overalls Worn by Girls.

Waverly, Iowa, Aug. 15.—Society women of Waverly have declared war against the girls who work in the sugar beet fields, because these girls have discarded dresses and wear overalls like men at work. The society people declare that the overalls are shocking to modesty, and that they are ashamed to take drives into the country for fear of meeting a group of girls dressed like men. The working girls declare they can not work in skirts, because of tearing up the young plants, as well as on account of the dirt. The employers defend the girls for the reason that the labor is cheaper than that of men.

MARY ANN LUCAS.

Mary Ann Lucas, daughter of A. L. and Ella M. Lucas, was born Aug. 25th, 1898 and died July 29th, 1906. She was afflicted for nearly a year and perfectly helpless for six months. Mary was naturally a sweet spirited child and bore her afflictions with great patience and fortitude. No doubt she was sustained by the grace of God.

She loved the church and took an interest in giving of her little means for the support of the preachers. Though so young, her heart seemed to be in the work of the church. One day when I had gone to see her she asked me to have prayers as one of more mature mind.

Mary has gone to live with the Redeemer in Heaven and may the family join her there.
