DYNAMITE OUTRAGE NEAR PRINCETON

EXPLOSIVE GOT TOO DAMP TO DO MUCH —DAMAGE TO TOBACCO

R. T. Lamb, Owner of the Warehouse had Been Warned of the Attempt at Destruction

NO CLEW TO THE PERPETRATORS

Princeton, Ky., Jan. 4.—An attempt was made early this morning to blow up the small tobacco warehouse of R. T. Lamb, situated near this city. Owing the heavy rains the dynamite placed in the building became too wet to be effective and when the explosion occurred very little damage resulted.

R. T. Lamb, the owner, had been warned that unless compelled his tenants to join the growers' association he would be sorry for it, but he had paid no attention to the threats.

Great indignation is felt at this renewal of lawlessness. There is no clue to the perpetrators.

It said that the cropper on the place discovered water rising in the barn caused by an overflow of a creek near the barn, and fearing damage to the tobacco down in bulk placed part of the crop on a wagon under the barn shed Wednesday afternoon. The next morning upon going to the barn it was found that dynamite or some kind of explosive had been placed on the wagon and the wagon, resulting in slight damage to the tobacco, but none to the barn.

Important Advance Step by The State Board of Health.

To the Medical Profession and People of Kentucky:—

The infamous practice of criminal abortion, infanticide, to speak plainly, dangerous to the health and lives of women to an extent not generally realized, and a constant encouragement to immorality, has become so common in recent years, even with married women in the higher walks of life, often church members and otherwise respectable, that the General Assembly has made it the solemn duty of the Board to revoke the license to practice of any physician proven guilty of this horrible crime. After full consideration the Board has decided to take up this work in a systematic way and to discharge the solemn duty imposed upon it without fear or favor. In the very nature of things this is one of the most difficult of crimes to prove, and for this reason it has been decided to earnestly invoke the aid of the county medical societies, boards of health, court and other officials and the people. We promise to make a prompt investigation of every case reported to us, and to cite physicians, high or low, to appear before Board for trial whenever the evidence warrants

it. We appeal to the medical profession in its organized capacity, and to all officials and good citizens, to aid us in the enforcement of this wise and timely law.

It is also made the duty of the Board to revoke the license of any physician who becomes addicted to the liquor or drug habit to a degree which disqualifies him to practice with safety to the people. No drunkard or opium or cocaine habitue is fit to practice a vocation where health and life are constantly dependent upon acuteness of intellect or correctness of judgement. This is a mild offence compared with the cowardly murder involved in every criminal abortion, and this phase of the law will be used to secure reformation wherever this is possible. Copies of this letter will be sent to every newspaper, physician and official in Kentucky, and we ask the assistance of all good people in the work.

By order of the Board,
J. N. McCormack, M. D., Secretary.

Married at Central City.

Miss Della Fugate who lived here quite a while and was connected with the Press and also the Record was married Dec. 19, to Edward E. Reno, editor of Republican published at Central city. The Press congratulates Mr. Reno.

An Old Land Mark Roughly Handled.

The floods of last week carried away the old bridge on the Salem road west of the city. It lodged in the field below and had to be torn up to get it back in position. Judge Blackburn lost no time in getting hands there as soon as the waters subsided and the old bridge is doing service again at the old stand.

Protracted meeting at the Methodist church is getting along nicely, good congregations attended each service and great interest is being taken.

Rev. J. F. Price preaches at Lisman next Saturday and Sunday.

We had a fine Bible Class last Sunday afternoon, twenty or more in the class and good interest. The class will meet again the third Sunday in January at 2:30 p. m. The lesson is Gen. chapters V, IX., inclusive. Read these Scriptures carefully before the meeting of the class.

J. F. Price.

There will be preaching at Forest Grove School House next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. Benjamin Andrus.

The service at Presbyterian church next Sunday night will be dispensed with, on account of the meeting at the Methodist church and the services at Forest Grove.

Layne & Leavell Bros., the mule buyers, will be in Marion county court day, Jan. 14, 1907.

IMPERIAL COMPANY PAYS TEN, TEN & TWO

FOR FINE CROP—JOHN A. GIBSON THE LUCKY MAN

Equity Receivers Kept Busy at Both Elliott and Barret Factories—John M.
Long Gets Good Price

BIG RECEIPTS FEATURE OF THE DAY

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 7.—When John A. Gibson, of Geneva, sold a five thousand pound crop to the Imperial Company for ten, ten and two, the discernment of the county fair judges was vindicated. This is the tobacco which was adjudged the second premium in the fall at the Tri-County Fair. At the same time Mr. Gibson sold for his neighbor, John M. Long, a crop at the first-class price of $10, 9.80 and $2, which is going some. Both samples were of exceptional character and quality, rich, leafy, heavy fired, smooth and well picked.

OLD HOMESTEAD PASSES OUT OF THE FAMILY

The Bart Moore Home Place Sold To Henry Metz, of Caseyville, Ky.

A CONSIDERATION OF 3000.00 DOLLARS

Henry Metz, of Caseyville, the father of Ed Metz, of this city, has purchased of Gus Summerville and wife, the Bart Moore residence and 90 acres of land adjoining near Mattoon, where Mr. and Mrs. Summerville have lived for several years. The consideration was $3000 which is considered a bargain when all the valuable improvements are mentioned. The late R. L. Moore lived and died there. His son Evel was the next owner. At his death Mr. and Mrs. Gus Summerville became the owners, in disposing of that part of their holdings they retained over 200 acres adjoining on which they will build a new home in the spring.

The ladies of the Chautauqua Literary and scientific circle following their usual custom kept open house at the hospitable home of Mr. G. C. Gray last Thursday. On this occasion, these ladies expected all their friends to call and exchange New Year's greetings. The reception was delightful in every way, and over one hundred ladies and gentlemen were there during the day. Each guest was given a flower. Fruit and punch was served, and the best of cheer was in the air. Every body was glad to see every body else, and each one seemed to have the best time.

NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION A BRILLIANT SUCCESS

Was Given at The Gray Residence
Tuesday Afternoon January 1st, 1907

MANY DESERVING COMPLIMENTS.

The ladies of the Chautauqua Literary and scientific circle following their usual custom kept open house at the hospitable home of Mr. G. C. Gray last Thursday. On this occasion, these ladies expected all their friends to call and exchange New Year's greetings. The reception was delightful in every way, and over one hundred ladies and gentlemen were there during the day. Each guest was given a flower. Fruit and punch was served, and the best of cheer was in the air. Every body was glad to see every body else, and each one seemed to have the best time.

Mrs. T. H. Cochran received the guests at the door, and Misses Lena and Ina Woods and Mesdams H. K. Woods and G. M. Crider served fruit and punch, to each guest or arrival. Miss Beana Hill, of Cadiz, was the flower girl and if a single visitor left without a flower was not her fault, for the flowers were there and a pretty girl to pin one on each guest as a souvenir. The spacious interior was thrown together by opening the folding doors and evergreen, palms, smilax and ferns added much to the beautiful effect produced by the illuminations. The house having been darkened and the lights turned on for the happy occasion. The reception committee was composed of the following: Mesdams H. A. Haynes, R. D. Drescher, H. H. Sayre, J. I.

Clement, W. B. Vandell, J. W. Blue, J. H. Orme and G. C. Gray.

Before departure each guest was requested to register a New Year's greeting original or quotation with their signature, Miss Nell Walker was Registrar, some of the guests who made wishes were the following:

With many kind wishes, and I thank the club for the pleasure given me is many good wishes and happy returns of the day. Carrie Thomas.

A great pleasure to be with you, best wishes for the coming New Year, may the happiness all be yours. Gustava Haynes.

Wishing the club a very happy New Year, Mrs. C. P. Noggle.

The greatest pleasure of the season is the sincere wish of Maurice Schwab May every Chautauque meeting prove as enjoyable as this and better Hilda Schwab.

May this "club" be the heaviest affair that ever hits you D. C. Roberts.

Here's hoping that there will be many returns of the day H. H. Sayre.

Happy New Year to "club" Mrs. J. G. Rochester.

I wish you many more happy club meetings Mrs. Mary Miller.

Get Out or Get in Line.

If all the letters, messages and speeches of Lincoln were destroyed, except that one letter to Hooker, we should still have a good index to the heart of the Rail-Splitter.

In this letter we see that Lincoln ruled his own spirit; and we also behold the fact that he could rule others. The letter shows frankness, kindness, wit, tact, wise diplomacy and infinite patience.

Hooker had harshly and unjustly criticised Lincoln, his Commander-in-Chief, and he had embarrassed Burnside, his ranking officer. But Lincoln waives all this in deference to the virtues that he believes Hooker possesses and promote him to succeed Burnside. In other words the man who had been wronged promotes the man who had wronged him, over the head of a man whom the promoter had wronged and for whom the promoter had a warm personal friendship.

But all personal considerations were sunk in view of the end desired. Yet it was necessary that the man promoted should know the truth, & Lincoln told it to him in away that did not humiliate nor fire to foolish anger; but which certainly prevented the attack of cerebral elephantiasis to which Hooker was liable.

Perhaps we had better give the letter entire, and so here it is:

Executive Mansion

Washington, Jan. 26, 1863.

Major-General Hooker:

General: I have placed you at the head of the Army of the Potomac. Of course I have done this upon what appear to me to be sufficient reason, and yet I think it best for you to know that there are some things in regard to which I am not quite satisfied with you.

I have you to be a brave and a soldier, which, of course, I like.

I also believe you do not mix politics with your profession, in which you are right.

You have confidence in yourself, which is a valuable if not an indispensable quality.

You are ambitious, which, within reasonable bounds, does good rather than harm; but I think that during General Burnside's command of the army you have taken counsel of your ambition and thwarted him as much as you could, in which you did a great wrong to the country and to a most meritorious and honorable brother officer.

I have heard, in such a way as to believe it, of your recently saying that both the army and the government needed a dictator. Of course it was not for this, but in spite of it, that I have given you the command. Only those generals who gain successes can set up dictators. What I now ask of you is military success, and I will risk the dictatorship.

The government will support you to the utmost of its ability, which is neither more nor less than it has done and will do for all commanders.

I much fear that the spirit you have aided to infuse into the army, of criticising their commander and withholding confidence from him, will now turn upon you. I shall assist you as far as I can to put it down.

Neither you nor Napoleon, if he were alive again, could get any good out of an army while such a spirit prevails in. And now beware of rashness; beware of rashness, but with energy and sleepless vigilance go forward and give us victories.

Yours very truly,

A. LINCOLN.

One point in this letter is especially worth our consideration, for it suggests a condition that springs up like deadly nightshade from a poisonous soil. I refer to the habit of sneering, carping, grumbling at and criticising those who are above us.

The man who is anybody and who does anything is surely going to be criticised, vilified and misunderstood.

This is a part of the penalty for greatness, and every great man understands it; and understands too, that it is no proof of greatness. The final proof of greatness lies in being able to endure contumely without resentment. Lincoln did not resent criticism; he knew that every life must be its own excuse for being, but look how he calls Hooker's attention to the fact that the dissension Hooker has sown is going to return and plague him! Neither you, nor Napoleon, were he alive, could get any good out of an army while such a spirit prevails in it. Hooker's fault falls on Hooker—others suffer, but Hooker suffers most of all.

Not long ago I met a Yale student home on a vacation. I am sure he did not represent the true Yale spirit for he was full of criticism and bitterness toward the institution. President Hadley came in for his share, and I was supplied items, facts, data, with time and places, for a "peach of a roast."

Very soon I saw the trouble was not with Yale, the trouble was with the young man. He had mentally dwelt on some trivial slights until he had got so out of harmony with the institution that he had lost the power to derive any benefit from it. Yale is not a perfect institute—a fact, I suppose, that President Hadley and most Yale men are quite willing to admit; but Yale does supply certain advantages, and it depends upon the student whether they will avail themselves of these advantages or not.

If you are a student in a college, seize upon the good that is there. You get good by giving it. You gain by giving—so give sympathy and cheerful loyalty to the institution. Be proud of it. Stand by your teachers—they are doing the best they can. If the place is faulty, make it a better place by an example of cheerfully doing your work every day the best you can. Mind your own business.

If the concern where you are employed is all wrong, and the Old Man a curmudgeon, it may be well for you to go to the Old Man and confidentially, quietly and kindly tell him that he is a curmudgeon. Explain to him that his policy is absurd and preposterous. Then show him how to reform his ways, and you might offer to take charge of the concern and cleanse it of its secret faults. Do this if for any reason you should prefer not, then take your choice of these: Get Out, or Get in Line. You have got to do one or the other—now make your choice.

If you work for a man, in heaven's name work for him!

If he pays you wages that supply you your bread and butter, work for him—speak well of him, think well of him, stand by him and stand by the institution he represents.

I think if I worked for a man I would work for him. I would not work for him part of the time, and the rest of the time work against him. I would give an undivided services or none.

If you put to a pinch an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness.

If you must vilify, condemn and eternally disparage, why, resign your position, and when you are outside, damn to your heart's content. But, I pray you so long as you are a part of an institution, do not condemn it. Not that you will injure the institution—not that—but when you disparage the concern of which you are a part, you disparage yourself.

More than that, you are loosening the tendrils that hold you to the institution, and the first high wind that comes along you will be uprooted and blown away in the blizzard's track—and probably you will never know why. The letter only says, "Times are dull and we regret there is not enough work," et cetera.

Everywhere you find those out-of-a-job fellows. Talk with them and you will find that they are full of railing, bitterness and condemnation. That was the trouble—thru a spirit of fault-finding they got themselves swung around so they blocked the channel, and had to be dynamited. They were out of harmony with the concern, and no longer being a help they had to be removed. Every employer is constantly looking for people who can help him; naturally he is on the outlook among his employees for those who do not help, and everything and everybody that is a hindrance has to go. This is the law of trade—do not find fault with it; it is founded on Nature. The reward is only for the man that helps, and in order to help you must have sympathy.

You cannot help the Old Man so long as you are explaining in undertone and whisper, by gesture and suggestion, by thought and mental attitude, that he is a curmudgeon and his system dead wrong. You are not necessarily menacing him by stirring up discontent and warming envy into strife, but you are doing this: You are getting yourself upon a well-greased chute that will give you a quick ride down and out.

When you say to other employees that the Old Man is a curmudgeon, you reveal the fact that you are one; and when you tell that the policy of the institution is "rotten," you surely show that yours is.

Hooker got his promotion even in spite of his failings, but the chances are that your employer does not have the love that Lincoln had—the love that suffereth long and is kind. But even Lincoln could not protect Hooker forever. Hooker failed to do the work, and Lincoln had to try some one else. So there came a time when Hooker was superseded by a silent man, who criticised no one, rallied at nobody—not even the enemy. And this silent man, who ruled his own spirit, took the cities. He minded his own business, and did the work that no man ever can do unless he gives absolute loyalty, perfect confidence and untiring devotion. Let us mind our own business, and work for self by working for the good of all.

Long Live the King!

is the popular cry throughout European countries; while in America, the cry of the present day is "Long Live Dr. King's New Discovery." King of Throat and Lung Remedies! of which Mrs. Julia Ryder Pain, Truro, Mass., says: "It never fails to give immediate relief and to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Pain's opinion is shared by a majority of the inhabitants of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throats after all other remedies have failed, and for colds it's the only sure cure. Guaranteed by Woods & Orme, Druggists. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

THE ROOSEVELT THIRD TERM NATIONAL LEAGUE

Republican politicians are puzzled about the Roosevelt Third Term National League, which has opened headquarters in the Tribune Building, Edward A. Horner formerly of Colorado, is the president of the league, and to-day promulgated an address declaring that President Roosevelt is the peoples choice, irrespective of party, and demanding his nomination in 1908.

"We intend to have a member in every county of every state in the Union," said Mr. Horner. "The state chairman will be sounded on the matter and their co-operation will be sought, but this is a people's movement, not a politicians' movement. It is true the President has said he would not run again, but we take the position that if the people need him and insist that he serve another term he cannot refuse."

BACTERIA HAS BEEN DISCOVERED IN COAL

A French scientist has discovered bacteria in coal.

In behalf of tender-hearted persons we regret this discovery. Knowing that the cunning little bacteria now has its nest in a lump of coal, sentimental persons will not have the heart to use coal as a fuel. Think of destroying the lives and homes of millions of bacteria when you shove a shovelful of coal into the insatiable maw of the furnace!—Boston Post.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Benefits a City Councilman at Kingston, Jamaica.

Mr. W. O'Reilly Fogarty, who is a member of the City Council at Kingston, Jamaica, West Indies, writes as follows: "One bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy had good effect on a cough that was giving me trouble and I think I should have been more quickly relieved if I had continued the remedy. That it was beneficial and quick in relieving me there is no doubt and it is my intention to obtain another bottle." For sale by Woods & Orme, the leading Drug Store in Western Kentucky.

The Pain Family

You know them; they are numerous and make their presence felt everywhere. The names of the family are Headache, Toothache, Earache, Backache, Stomach ache, Neuralgia, etc. They are sentinels that warn you of any derangement of your system. When the brain nerves become exhausted or irritated, Headache makes you miserable; if the stomach nerves are weak, indigestion results, and you double up with pain, and if the more prominent nerves are affected, Neuralgia simply makes life unendurable. The way to stop pain is to soothe and strengthen the nerves. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do this. The whole Pain family yield to their influence. Harmless if taken as directed.

"I find Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills an excellent remedy for overcoming headache, neuralgia and distressing pains of all sorts. I have used them for the past seven years in this capacity with the best of results."—MRS. JOE MERRILL, Peru, Ind.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit. If it fails, he will return your money. 25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk.

DEAR OLD PRESS—

Cordial greetings and a happy New Year to the Press and all its patrons and readers. May its welcome columns full of intelligence from the old Kentucky home far away, never fail to reach us, in this far away land of flowers.

The recent cold snap actually froze things, and we saw the gleam of the sunshine on the icy pendents, and felt once again the crisp cold breath of winter reminding us for a few brief hours of the winter's grip in dear old Kentucky. But now the genial sun smiles again, and the flowers bloom once more, the song birds thrills as surety and I'm going a fishing.

Treasurer's Settlement!

A Settlement made with the Judge of the Crittenden County Court by R. W. Wilson, Treasurer of the Ohio Valley Railroad Commission for the Marion precinct in Crittenden County this the 5th day of January, 1907.

I find said Treasurer chargeable as follows:

Tax for year 1904—J. W. Lamb, Sheriff. . . $1,666.24
Tax for year 1906 in part collected from
J. F. Flanary, Sheriff. . . $1,515.00
Total chargeable. . . $3,181.24

I find said Treasurer is justly entitled to credit
as follows:

1905
Oct. 11. By amount due Treasurer as per last settlement
July 13th, 1905. . . $ 298.46
By bonds Nos. 54 and 60, $500 each, paid. . . 1,000.00
By bonds Nos. 23, 35 and 36 for $100 each paid. . . 300.00
1907
Jan. 2. By interest on coupon paid. . . 34.88
By bond No. 58, paid. . . 500.00
By bond No. 61, paid. . . 1000.00
Interest on coupons paid. . . 15.00 5 per cent. Commission allowed Treasurer on $3,181.24. . . 159.06
Cost of this settlement. . . 3.00
Total Credits. . . $3,310.40

Leaving balance due R. W. Wilson, Treasurer. . . $129.16

This settlement does not include tax for year 1905 not yet paid the Treasurer by the Sheriff

Given under my hand this Jan. 5th, 1907.

W. A. BLACKBURN, C. J. C. C.

There are outstanding bonds to the amount of $3,800.

When the sheriff makes his settlement with the treasurer for Railroad tax collected by him for the year 1905, the amount of bonds should be reduced to approximately $2,000.

There will probably be $500 more collected from Sheriff on Railroad tax for the year 1906 which will still further reduce the railroad indebtedness to $1500.

When the Railroad tax for the present year 1907 is all collected it should be ample to pay off all of the Railroad bonds of the Marion precinct.
R. W. WILSON, T. R. K. S. F.

Obituary.

Died at her home Nov. 1, 1906, Alma May Crowell, daughter of V. V. Crowell, aged 14 years. On Wednesday evening about 6 o'clock she closed her eyes, no more to open them on earth. Like some delicate flower, too weak to stand the fitful changes of this world; like some lovely song, whose last cadence, so sad and low, we scarcely realize its force, her spirit passed over the river of death. In life she was amiable in death an angel. No one knew only to love her; in school she was kind and affectionate to her schoolmates and to her teacher obedient.

They say if our blessed dead Should seek the old, familiar place, Some stranger would be there instead And they would find no welcome face.

We can not tell how this would be In other places, but this we know, Would dear Alma come to us That she would never find it so.

Oft times the flowers have come and gone, At times the summer's winds have blown; And while her peaceful rest went on And we have learned to live alone.

Have slowly learned from day to day In all life's tasks to bear our part, But whether grave or whether gay, We hide her memory in our hearts.

Fond, faithful love has blessed our way, And friends around us, true and tried, They have their places, but hers to day Is empty as the day she died.

We dare not dream the blissful dream, It fills our hearts with wild unrest; Where yonder cold white marbles gleam. She still must slumber, God knows best.

Sheriff J. F. Flannery received word Wednesday that the one year old baby boy of his brother Chas. Flannery had died the day before at Ohara, Ky. The little fellow died of croup. The interment took place at Dulany Wednesday. Sheriff Flannery at ended.

The Marion Electric Light and Ice Co., will probably build a new brick stack and additional room for storing coal, in the near future. The high price of fuel now will cause a loss in the operation of the plant for the months of Jan. Feb. and March. By storing cheap coal in the summer this can be awarded in future.

Don't forget to call on Klyman by the 16th. We go out of business then.

Elsewhere in this issue we publish the statement of R. W. Wilson, Treasurer of the sinking fund of the Ohio Valley Railroad bonds. His statement shows a healthy condition of that part of the two Marion districts in debt and it will be highly gratifying to the tax payers, every one of whom should read it.

Criticism on Milton's Minor Poems

By MISS MAY TRAVIS

Read before Senior English class of Marion High School Dec. 12.

Milton, the author of "Paradise Lost" is so transcendently great that he quit over shadows Milton, the author of L'Allegro, Il Penseroso, Arcades, Comus, and Laydeas. Yet had the latter been all that he ever wrote they would place him almost as high as Shakespeare. After Milton had completed his college course at Cambridge he went to his father's at Horton and it was during his stay of six years here, that the Minor Poems were written.

L'Allegro and Il Penseroso were written in 1633 and are a very beautiful reflection of Milton and his surroundings. They are masterpieces of English literature which have few equals and perhaps one superior in the poems of Shakespeare. Each piece is directly in contrast with the other, yet each is necessary to complete the thought. Garnett has said that they "may be in a sense regarded as one poem, whose theme is the reasonable life."

Throughout L'Allegro, mirthful though it is, there is an undertone not of cheerfulness but of sadness while in Il Penseroso, the poem of Melancholy, there is an undertone of gaiety. In these poems Milton shows himself a cavalier in all save his severe chastity. In them he demonstrates his belief in the close connection of seriousness and gaiety of heart.

As a painter of nature Milton shows himself an artist of marvelous skill. His method was that of the time in which he lived, "absolutely true in broad effects, sometimes ill-defined and even inaccurate in minute details." He displays a true love of the beautiful in nature, though he saw it so largely through books. We see the

"Meadows trim, with daisies pied, in shallow brooks and rivers wide," L'Allegro or in Il Penseroso the "Arched walks of twilight groves, and shadows brown that Sylvan loves."

As plainly almost as if they were really before our eyes.

Milton uses many classical allusions in the poems, especially in the "Il Penseroso," when understood, these add greatly to the beauty of the poems; but when they are not, they detract from our interest. Some critics condemn Milton for this, others commend him. A notable feature in their use, is their blending with the Christian religion and the worship of the true God. This makes them even more difficult to understand.

Some critics have accused Milton of inaccuracy in his mythology, because he does not follow the old accepted canons. This is not exactly just, however, for he did this not through lack of knowledge, but for the purposes of the poem. Thus he makes Venus, the Goddess of Beauty and Bacchus, the god of revelry and wine, the parents of Mith, while melancholy is the daughter of Vesta, the goddess of the home, and Saturn, the duty of civilization. Certainly no one can deny that in both cases the genealogy is most appropriate.

In L'Allegro and Il Penseroso we see the full soul of the complete man. The true man has sympathy for every thing that is pure and good, whether it be gay or grave in the whole life. He would turn away not only from the "vain deluding joys" of folly and sin, but also from the "loathed melancholy of dark despair and unbelief. There is a time for cheerfulness and harmless mirth as well as for quiet thoughtfulness and respect.

"Never were ideas of such dignity and power embodied in verse so easy and familiar, and with such apparent absence of effort, as in L'Allegro and Il Penseroso." Though Spenser was in some ways Milton's model in these poems, yet he (Milton) never copies from him, but writes what is distinctively his own. He clothed even such ideas as he did borrow, in such beautiful language and that so entirely his own that we recognize his right as a great poet to borrow from others in this way.

L'Allegro and Il Penseroso each cover a period of about one day. L'Allegro begins in the morning, showing the delights of a day in the country, and comes to an end when "When done, the tales, to bed they creep By whispering winds soon lulled asleep."

Il Penseroso begins at night and lasts

"Till civil-suited morn appear, Nottricked and frownced as she was wont With the Attic boy to hunt, But kerchief in a comely cloud."

Milton makes skilful use of the figures of speech, especially personification. "Loathed melancholy," "heart-easing mirth," "brooding Darkness," "wrinkled Care," in L'Allegro, and "vain deluding Joys," "divinest melancholy," "mute silence," "deny-feathered sleep," in Il Penseroso are examples of this. Milton regarded man as the theme around which the rest of the poem should be grouped and therefore he gave added force to the thought by personifying these things.

These two poems are the best portrait which we could have of Milton at this time. They prove that he was a close student of nature and he must have used his eyes to good advantage for greatly as he depended on books for his knowledge of nature he certainly had some intimate experience of his own while living in the country at Horton is situated in a very beautiful part of England. They show two moods which he doubtless felt at different times for he had made no definite decision yet as to his future and it must have been a time of unrest and disquietude for him.

Arcades was also written in 1633. It was a "masque" or mask given in honor of the seventieth birthday of the Dowager Countess of Derby. A mask was a historic spectacle, Italian in origin, which somewhat resembled a drama, and which was very popular in England at this time. When Arcades was written the masks had fallen off in literary value but it showed the influence of the earlier masks and was superior to the bulk of the work at that time.

Arcades has often been considered of too little value and has been passed over as a mere understanding for Comus. This is unjust how for though the better is more pretentious yet Arcades is to all intents and purposes quite as good. "Throughout the poem a high level of poetry and humanity is maintained; some serene interest in all things worthy and of good report prevails.

The lyrics which were sung in the mask were very skilfully written combining with artistic taste, grace and delicacy with praise to the venerable Countess-Dowager in whose honor they were written. In form for example, Milton was past-master of the harmony of words but he had but small skill in little tunes. "His was not a parlour voice." This was well illustrated in the songs of both Arcades and Comus. We cannot doubt that they were effective in their proper setting, but they are never sung now. Milton's songs the reader suspects, came from his brain and conscience by way of his deep-toned organ harmonies and must have overpowered many an unsophisticated reader. Or with their complexity of suggestion they must have seemed artificial to plain folk who missed heartiness and melody in all the measures of these book lyrics.

Classical illusions, especially to the old forest duties as Pan, Syrinx, and the wood nymphs, are often employed in Arcades. There is the same beauty in these when understood as in L'Allegro and Il Penseroso. The descriptive passages are also considered very beautiful for instance the shady roof, of branching elm star-proof, or many others might be mentioned.

Comus was written in 1634 and like Arcades was a mask. It was presented at Ludlow Castle before the Earl of Bridgewater in honor of his having been made President of Wales. This mask shows that the Puritan spirit was growing on Milton but yet it belonged to the earlier age. Like the masks of the time of Queen Elizabeth it had music and dancing but it also contained a growing strain of moral earnestness. Comus settled Milton's rank forever as a poet. It displaced itself as a mask to rise as a magnificent poem, a song to temperance.

Comus teaches that purity and innocence can tread the darkest paths and most tangled mazes of earth without receiving harm and this through the inherent strength of goodness. Milton enjoyed the masks quite as keenly as any courtier of Charles I and in Comus he wished to set forth in finer and more glorious verse than had been dedicated to courtly tastes, the battle between virtue and its tempters and the Divine help which is always aiding it. We see that the very powers of Heaven come down to protect and care for assailed innocence and that virtue is a mighty power within itself.

"Against the threats of malice or of sorcery, or that power, Which erring men call chance."

Halloman says: "Comus was sufficient to convince any one of taste and feeling that a great poet had arisen in England and one partly formed in a different school from his contemporaries." In many ways Comus was the most ambitious of Milton's works in his earlier days. "The Lady is the sweet embodiment of Milton's youthful idea of virtue." Comus, although he is wicked and vile inwardly, has an outward beauty and grace that are scarcely surpassed villain though he is, yet he is the real hero of the mask.

The versification of Comus rendered it them unparalleled. "It was marked by a greater grandeur of style and thought, by a graver beauty and more exercised and conscious art than any poem of its character which England had as yet known. It belonged to the Elizabethan spirit, but it went beyond it and made a new departure for English poetry."

Dawden says: "Milton as an artist works in the manner of an idealist. Comus is the work of a youthful spirit. There are some features in Comus which do not appear in his other poems. Humor, the quality which Milton almost entirely lacked is best displayed in Comus. It is in Comus also that his poetic power is greatest. It teaches that the struggle between good and evil is the prime factor of life and that the good must always win.

Lydas, the last of the Minor poems, was written in 1637. It was an elegy, or poem mourning the death of his friend, Edward King. It was also written in the form of a pastoral and represents King and himself as two shepherd lads brought up together. It is not a poem of passionate sorrow and grief it does express is too often only dignified and intelligent and it is courteous rather than lamentable.

Let us remember however that such friendship as that of Tennyson and Hallam, Shelley and Keats, or Wordsworth and Coleridge, did not exist between them and that they were merely school friends. "Probably Milton's own account is sufficiently accurate, when due allowance has been made for the large and remote phraseology characteristic of Milton's muse:

"For we were nursed upon the self-same hill Fed the same flock by mountain, shade and rill; Together both, ere the high lawns appeared, Under the opening eyelids of the morn," Lydas follows the usual form of pastoral poetry, having its introduction and its epilogue, while between them is the monody of the shepherd who has lost his friend. As Virgil had copied from the old Greeks so the Italians of the Renaissance copied from Virgil also adding an element of moralizing which verged on satire. With Renaissance the pastoral came to England and reached its height in the works of Spenser. Lydas is of this same type and is regarded by some as superior to the "Faerie Queen."

There is a tone of religious earnestness pervading all of Milton's poems which were written while he was at Horton. In Lydas it takes the form of a fierce denunciation of the corruption of church and the clergy—describing the former as that "grim wolf with the privy paw." The bishops are the faithless shepherds of the flock.

"The hungry sheep look up, and are not fed,"

But the time of retribution is near and they will receive punishment.

By common verdict of the critics, Lydas is reckoned to be one of the very finest poems ever written by any poet; and that it was never again matched by Milton himself, is an opinion equally strongly held some critics though not so generally. Milton pays a beautiful tribute to his dead friend, praising him highly. He recognizes that we are all living under the pure eye of God, and that Duty and not selfishness should be our motto.

A Thousand Dollars Worth of Good

A A. Thunes, a well known coal operator of Buffalo, O., writes: "I have been afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble for years, passing gravel and stones with excruciating pain. I got no relief from medicine until I began taking Foley's Kidney Cure, then the result was surprising. A few doses started the brick dust like true stones, and now I have no pain across my kidneys and I feel like a new man. It has done me $1000 worth of good."—Woods & Orme.

A MENACE TO CITIES

Professor Fessenden Sounds a Note of Warning.

Lities Not Adapted to Operate Business Enterprises—Loss of Capital Through New Developments—The Danger a Real One.

It is becoming more and more generally recognized that undertakings founded on the great public needs of the highly organized society of modern times should be controlled by society. Whether, having the power, it is advisable that municipalities should actually engage in such undertakings or whether they should merely maintain their control, as it has been aptly put, through their powers as a landlord, is a matter which will be determined by the municipalities from political, social and economic as well as engineering considerations.

Considering the question from its engineering side alone, it is found that from the very essential nature of the matter only a certain class of engineering undertakings can be efficiently and properly operated by states or municipalities. It is very important that this limitation should be recognized, as where the limitation has been overstepped it has resulted in heavy financial losses to the governing bodies immediately concerned, it has seriously checked development in engineering lines, and these results have in consequence afforded a strong argument to those opposed to municipal operation of public utilities.

It is true that under state or municipal operation some minor and sporadic developments may be expected, but nothing of a general or important character. Important developments generally come only from the hands of individuals or bodies responsible only to themselves and provided with the incentive of a large profit. The elimination of self responsibility and incentive would inevitably produce a condition in industrial and scientific development analogous to the dark ages.

It is to be noted that this conclusion is derived from engineering considerations alone and does not include any consideration from the political, social or economic side. There may, it is conceivable, be political, social and economic considerations which tend to affect this limitation. Considered, however, from the engineering standpoint alone there can be no question but that the field of state and municipal operation should be limited to undertakings in which there is no immediate prospect of or need for improved method.

A danger which is always associated with the ownership of industrial undertakings is that the capital invested may be lost through the development of new and cheaper methods and processes. The extent to which industrial machinery of certain types is rendered obsolete by new improvements is not always realized. The writer is personally acquainted with one street car railroad plant in which the entire electrical equipment of the power house was thrown out and replaced with improved machinery four times within a period of ten years. The Carnegie company is reported, correctly, it is believed, to have scrapped on one occasion more than $1,000,000 worth of new machinery which had never been used.

This has already become a serious matter for many municipalities which have engaged in undertakings lying outside of the engineering limits defined above. Many of these municipalities installed plants for the production of electric light at a time prior to the advent of important improvements in generating and distributing electricity, and as these municipalities in common with most municipalities made no proper allowance for depreciation the capital invested has been practically lost, and in addition the cost of electric light to the consumer is much higher than it is in other places equipped with later and more economical types of machinery. In addition, heavy and expensive repairs have been necessary and the taxes correspondingly increased. This has reacted upon the municipalities, since the heavy rates have caused manufacturers to move away to other towns, and this again has still further increased the burden upon those remaining. There are already indications that a considerable number of these municipalities which have engaged in improper undertakings are entering upon a period of financial difficulty.—R. A. Fessenden.

As a Socialist Sees It.

Every recognized authority on Socialist economics, from Marx to Ferri, has been and is an avowed economic evolutionist. They all without exception recognize that public ownership under capitalism must come before the full Socialist programme can meet with realization.

When the Socialist party shall succeed to power in municipality, state or nation it will fall heir to the holdings of its capitalist predecessors. Every dollar's worth of property that we can wrest from private capitalism through public ownership will fall into the hands of the Socialist party without a struggle upon its succession to power.—International Socialist Review.

What Government Is For.

It is the appropriate function of the government to safeguard the individual and to see that the game of business is fairly played, that the cards are held above the table and that everybody is given a square deal. It is not the appropriate function of the government to sit in the game.—Hon. Leslie M. Shaw.

MASQUERADED AS A MAN; DEATH REVEALS THE SEX

Uhoelz, Ariz., Jan. 4th, 1907—N. Deryan, who came here two months ago from Chicago with a Dr. Rowe, died last night of consumption. Deryan claimed to be a son of a Russian Admiral and to have a wife and a son in Chicago. He said he had been at one time assistant vice consul of Russia in Chicago, and had served with the Americans in the Spanish War. He had many medals, and it is said, some letters of commendation from President McKinley. At the undertaking parlors it was discovered that the deceased was a woman. Dr. Rowe declares that he had no knowledge of this before and he is innocent of any conspiracy.

DIGNITY OF THE COURT.

An Incident of History at Mayville N. Y., Fifty Years Ago.
At the last term of court a Chautauqua County lawyer sent a post card containing a picture of the Marville courthouse to a lawyer who had been a student in this county nearly half a century ago, and received the following in reply. The answer discloses a standard of dignity on the part of the bench so far below anything that would be tolerated in these times that we are almost forced to admit that the world is improving.
"Thank you for the picture of the Chautauqua courthouse. My first visit to it was about forty-seven or forty-eight years ago. Judge George Barker, then a practicing lawyer, went to Mayville on Monday and on Wednesday I followed. The first thing that I saw upon the bench as I entered the court-room was a pair of muddy boots near the end of the desk, and a moment later a round face looking like a full moon appeared near the other end.
"The whole outfit belonged to Judge Martin Grover. He was really sitting upon his backbone with his heels on the bench. He had got off some joke and laughing had sunk so low in his chair that he had quite disappeared and now was gradually rising. We became good friends later on and I learned, too, the unwisdom of judging by appearances, but as a boy I was not much impressed by what I saw then."—From the Jamestown (N. Y.) Evening Journal.

ON WATCH FOR NEW TOWNS,

Rapid Growth Necessitated Carefulness on Part of Train Crew.
Apropos of the mushroom growth of new towns on the western frontier, a locomotive engineer relates the following:
"One day I was driving my engine across the prairie when, suddenly, a considerable town loomed up ahead, where nothing had showed up the day before.
"What town's this?" says I to my fireman.
"Blamed if I know," says Bill. "It wasn't here when we went over the road yesterday."
"Well, I slowed down and directly we pulled into the station where over 500 people were waiting on the platform to see the first train come in.
"The conductor came along up front and says to me:
"Jim, first we know we'll be running by some important place. Get this town down on your list and I'll put a brakeman out on the rear platform to watch out for towns that spring up after the train gets by!"

Politest People on Earth.
It has been said that the French are the most polite people in the world, writes a lady in San Sebastian, but my personal opinion is that the Spaniards can beat him.
If you ask your way in the street, of some ordinary woman, she will almost certainly go out of her way to accompany you down the street and to carefully put you on the right road. The Spaniards are very cheerful and gay, but they are never vulgar—as we understand the word. Even the men in the streets who stand and frankly stare at a pretty girl do it in a light hearted, pleasant way which does not give offense. As to the manners of Spanish men belonging to the best society, they are almost perfect.
Watch a Spaniard of distinction address his mother or any elderly lady and you will see a manner which is tender and caressing, and at the same time exquisitely protective.

Freer Family Exchanges.
Wishing to find out along what lines his 12-year-old son's ambition ran, William D. Freer, sporting editor of the Hartford Courant, asked his boy what he intended to be when he grew older. The boy replied that he hadn't yet thought of the situation. Thinking that he might be "a chip of the old block" Mr. Freer said to his son: "How would you like to be a reporter?" "Not that kind of work for me, dad," Freer, Jr., answered, appearing highly insulted.
The father laughed and said: "Well, you know, my boy, it takes a man of brains to become a reporter."
Looking sharply at his "dad," the youngster quickly replied: "Well, if that is the case, how under the sun did you ever turn out to be a reporter?"

"Father" Taylor's Correction.
"Father" Taylor, one Sunday, explained the true meaning of the word philanthropy, and announced that a collection would be taken up the following Sunday, in aid of the poor of the district.
Evidently the collection fell short of his expectations the following Sunday, for before the close of the meeting, he said:
"Last Sunday I explained to you that the word philanthropy meant the love of our species, but you must have understood me to say specie, which probably accounts for the small collection, and you will prove, I hope, that you are no longer laboring under this mistake!"

Had the Same Result.
In a Georgia town where prohibition prevails a man was arrested three times in one day, charged with being drunk on the streets.
"Where did you get the whisky?" asked the mayor.
"I didn't drink no whisky," was the reply. "Nuthin' in the world, yer honor, 'cept cane juice, liver regulator, hair tonic, an' red ink!"—Pittsburg Press.

History of the Dime.
That neat and lovable little coin, the dime, has had a most useful history. As far as we are aware it is unique among the world's coins, having no nearer equivalent than the English six pence, which is worth two cents more. It is one of the handiest of coins, being about as small as a silver piece can conveniently be. Being less in size and weight than the nickel, which is worth only half as much, it is vastly more convenient to keep and hoard, and that is one reason why it is becoming extraordinarily scarce in spite of the fact that more dimes are now turned out of the mints than ever before in the country's history. There is a large range for "dime banks," and some of these mechanical contrivances are so pretty, so ingenious and so alluring that they force people to save dimes who have no earthly occasion to do so.

Singular Austrian Law.
A few days ago the murderer of Mr. Reid, the Paisley man who mysteriously disappeared from Heidelberg last July, having been arrested in Austria, was tried at Feldkirch and was convicted and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment.
The case illustrates a singularity of the Austrian criminal law. Generally speaking, a premeditated murder is punishable by death in Austria, but it cases where between the time of the murder and the arrest the prisoner has been punished for some other crime a sentence of capital punishment cannot be passed upon him.
In this case the murderer had served a week's imprisonment for petty theft about January of this year, and to this circumstance alone he is indebted for his life.

Bird in the Hand.
On a cabbage patch owned by a negro in a southern community oil was found. Speculators offered the negro $20,000, which was accepted without waiting to consider another proposition, said to be worth $40,000.
"What is this about your cabbage patch?" inquired a neighbor of the negro. "I understand you have sold it for $20,000."
"Yes, that's true, boss," replied the negro. "You see, men come picking round my place, an' dey say dar's oil heah. Dey say: 'We gib yo' $20,000.' I say: 'All right.'"
"I am told if you had waited a day or two you might have sold it for $40,000."
"Yes, dat mebbe so; but a bird in the han's th' nobles' wok of God!"

Cotton Long Known.
The manufacture of cotton in India dates back to its earliest history. There are allusions to it connected with India in the Bible. In old Sanscrit records mention is made of its being used in India nearly 3,000 years ago. At the time of Alexander's invasion of India the dress of the Hindus was described as consisting largely of calicos, pure white or having figures. Among the imports into Europe during the first century, enumerated from India are described as of superior quality.

On Tact.
Chancellor James R. Day was once advising a young undergraduate of Syracuse university to cultivate tact. "But, alas," he said, "I fear that advice on such a subject must always be wasted. On tact the last word was spoken by Barbey d'Aureville when he said:
"If tact could be bought, only those already possessed of it would want to buy it."

New Extension Is Completed.
The Burlington-Great Northern extension to Ashland, Wis., has been completed, and a mixed service is now being maintained. Full operations will not be started for at least a month. This extension opens the Burlington's connection with Lake Superior, and opens a new route for Nebraska grain to the Atlantic seaboard.

The Idea.
"Pop."
"Yes, my son."
"When a fellow goes to a circus and gets red lemonade and gum, doesn't he have to give money for 'em?"
"Certainly he does, my boy."
"Well, this paper says here that money won't buy happiness."

When the Damage Happens.
If a cut bleeds profusely it should be held under a stream of cold water. Compress the wound and apply clean lint. If an artery has been severed the lint tight above the cut and by introducing a stick under the handkerchief and twisting it round check the bleeding until surgical assistance can be obtained.

Significant Facts.
There remain the facts, however, that more passengers are killed in collisions and derailments than in any other way, and that about two-thirds of the collisions occur on railroads at block-signaled and by reason of errors which do not occur in block signaling.—N. Y. Press.

Good Reason.
Jones—Why did you give that woman on the car your seat and leave your wife standing?
Brown—Great Scott, man! that was our cook!—Judge.

A Certainty.
You cannot conquer the world by winning over its wickedness. Cassell's Journal.

the Lord breathes His wrath above the bosom of the waters, on the rollers are a-poundin' on the shore,
the mariner's a-thinkin' of his wife and son and daughters, and the little home he'll, maybe, see no more;
the bars are white and yeasty and the shoals are all a-frothin', when the wild no'theaster's cuttin'
like a knife,
though the seethin' roar and screech he's patrolin' on the beach—
The Gov'ment's hired man fer savin' life.

—Joe Lincoln.

Today Uncle Sam's hired men for life endang'ed by storms on the coast patrol the beaches from Head on the North Atlantic to the disappointment on the North Pacific are also to be found on the Gulf of Mexico and the coast, swept by storms as fierce as ever raged on the Atlantic.
Two thousand men strain eye and ears out to sea every day and night; and nearly every hour that passes these winter months along the storm-beaten coast, the members of saving crews risk their own lives to save shipwrecked fellow beings, or putting forth every human effort possible to warn others that go down to the deep in ships away from destruction on hidden reef and sunken bar.

Since the day when Uncle Sam began to employ coast guards, his heroes of the surf have saved upwards of a quarter of million lives. Under the present system of life saving, dating from 1871, they have attended fifteen thousand disasters, and out of the 105,000 lives involved they have been able to save all except one in every hundred. As secondary work, of the $225,000,000 worth of property imperilled, they have saved an amount valued at $175,000,000. No other life saving service of the world can point to a record anywhere near comparable to this in epic grandeur. A moment spent in reflection on these statistics will reveal the transcendental heroism back of them. On one hand, the combined elements, in their fiercest mood, roaring destruction; on the other, a handful of men in oils and sou'westers—a crew of six or seven men; and in the average instance, the little band of fighters overwhelmingly victorious.

Where is the much vaunted heroism of battle when compared with the unseen heroism that takes place in the black night on some lonely strip of beach?
For while one is the excited heroism of destruction, the other is the calm heroism of salvation.

The Government spends annually about $1,750,000 for the maintenance of the service. This is less than one-fourth of the property value saved from the sea in the same period, to say nothing of the lives succored. Each succeeding year finds the sum set aside by the Government for life saving somewhat augmented; the first appropriation called for $5,000. This was made in 1877, and with it the keepers of 14 houses along the Atlantic coast were furnished with means to render assistance in case of ship wrecks. The life saving service proper was not really instituted until the following year, when an appropriation of $10,000 was made for the establishment of eight life saving stations on the New Jersey coast between Sandy Hook and Little Egg Harbor.

And right here let the man who was most instrumental in securing this appropriation—the man who is, therefore, the founder of the life saving service—tell how he came to conceive the idea of the service. It is a story little known, yet it forms an interesting chapter in the history of federal life saving. Thus it is told by Dr. William A. Newell, who, though well along in the eighties, until recently was actively practicing medicine in Allentown, N. J.:

"My identification with the life saving system of the United States was the result of a marine disaster I happened to view during the summer of 1839,

when an Australian brig-gasto, was wrecked on Monmouth, now Ocean

dry. The sailors were endeavoring to swim

FADS AND FANCIES.

We are pleased to announce that the great success of our pattern service enables us to furnish the patterns at ten cents each hereafter, instead of fifteen cents, as heretofore. This change in price will doubtless still further increase their popularity as helpful and reliable aids to the home dressmaker.

For the benefit of those who have never used these Paris patterns we wish to say that all patterns are cut with full seam allowance and may be used with a full dependence upon their fixed and unwavering correctness.

The curves and shapes of the various seams are cut according to the highest French standard, and will be found to give not only a garment that fits, but every line will be full of that grace which distinguishes and characterizes the highest art.

No. 1611. Ladies' waist, closed in front, with plastron collar, long or elbow sleeves and body and sleeve lining. All seams allowed.

This is a charming style of dressy waist and is generous in possibilities for individual effects in combinations of materials and colors. A distinguishing feature is the handsome plastron collar, very deep at the back and over the shoulders, and extended in plastron effect at the closing, ending under the belt; at each side of the chemise it is turned back in pointed revers and a tie is arranged about the neck, under the revers, below which it is tied in four-in-hand fashion.

The pattern is in six sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure. For 36 bust the waist needs five yards of goods twenty inches wide, or two and three-quarters yards thirty-six inches wide, or two and one-quarter yards forty-two inches wide. As illustrated, seven-eighths yard of all-over lace eighteen inches wide is needed for collar, front facing and sleeve puffs, three and one-half yards of double row insertion and four yards of edging to trim. Price 10 cents.

No. 1604. Misses' yoke waist, with long or three-quarter length sleeves. Plaid silk and all-over lace are attractively combined in this smart looking waist, and plain silk is used for the trimming bands or straps following the edges of the pointed yoke and the wrists of the sleeves. The straps, which are crossed on the shoulders at the front and back and on the sleeves, are a charming feature of the waist, giving a decidedly chic effect. Usually waists of this style match the skirt, but they are also properly worn with skirts of different material.

The pattern is in three sizes, thirteen to seventeen years. For a miss of fifteen years the waist will need three yards of material twenty inches wide, or one and three-quarters yards thirty-six inches wide, or one and one-half yards forty-two inches wide. As illustrated, five-eighths yard of plain material twenty inches wide and five-eighths yard of all-over lace eighteen inches wide are needed. Price of pattern, 10 cents.

No. 1623. Ladies' shirtwaist, with or without collar straps. Tailor-made effects in linen, cotton, silk and woolen shirtwaists are exceedingly smart. An attractive model is here portrayed, a novel feature being the bolero straps, which encircle the arms-eyes and suggest the use of a contrasting material or color. These straps lap over the top of the sleeves to give the modish long-shoulder lines. They may be used or not as desired.

The pattern is in six sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure. For 36 bust the waist will need four and a half yards of goods twenty inches wide, or two and one-half yards thirty-six inches wide, or two and one-eighth yards forty-two inches wide. Price of pattern, 10 cents.

No. 1626. Misses' dressing sack, with front yoke and box-plaited back. This little dressing sack is easy to make and exceedingly pretty in effect. It is fashioned with full, gathered fronts joined to a square yoke and a loose back, with two double box-plaits extending from neck to lower edge. The material is a dotted challis in pale rose. A deep fancy collar covers the front yoke, and it is prettily pointed at the back and its edges are prettily trimmed with a frill of lace and a row of lace insertion. Any pretty, serviceable material may be used for dressing sacks. The pattern is in three sizes, thirteen to seventeen years. For a miss of fifteen years the sack needs four and one-half yards of goods twenty inches wide, or two and three-eighths yards thirty-six inches wide, or two and one-eighth yards forty-two inches wide; four and three-quarters yards of insertion and three and one-half yards of edging are needed to trim, and two yards of ribbon for ties. Price of pattern, 10 cents.

No. 1602. Misses' nine-gored plaited skirt. Plaited skirts are popular in cloth, silk, and all sorts of dress goods. The newest model is here shown. It is cut in nine gores, and the plaits all turn from the center of the front and are evenly spaced. The plaits are stitched from the belt to below the hips to preserve the perfectly close adjustment so desirable in skirts this season, and are pressed well, but fall free below. This skirt will be popular with shirtwaists and with coats and jackets of all styles.

The pattern is in three sizes, thirteen to seventeen years. For a miss of fifteen years the skirt will need eight and one-quarter yards of material twenty inches wide, or four and one-quarter yards thirty-six inches wide, or three and three-quarters yards forty-two inches wide. Price of pattern, 10 cents.

To secure these patterns promptly, be careful to give correct number and size of pattern wanted, and enclose ten cents for each pattern desired. Address all communications to FASHION CORRESPONDENT, Room 308, R. G. Dun Building, 290 Broadway, N. Y. City.

Home Economies

By MINNA S. CRAWFORD.

There was a time when folk regarded the serious study of dress and fashion as an evidence of pure vanity. Nowadays this study has come to be a real necessity, for in modern life a woman cannot hope to attain success of any kind, social or financial, unless she presents an attractive outward appearance and her clothing bears those indefinable yet very apparent touches that are recognized as the hallmarks of recent fashion and style.

To veer with the ever-changing weathercock of fashion and conform with its demands upon the limit of a small income requires a very high order of financial ability, as well as superior taste and judgment. Hence, the woman who is wise gives the question of apparel a great deal of time and thought.

The many quick and radical changes in fashions are enough to drive the economically-minded to despair. How to remodel last year's gowns in a way that will not betray the makeshift is a problem which confronts many possessors of loan purses.

In making over a dress the first thing to be thought of is an up-to-date corset, because the change of figure demanded by fashion is fundamental and begins with the corset. You will be surprised to find that the waist and skirt relied over the new high-bust, slender-hip corset at once begin to assume a different air.

With the proper corsets as a foundation, the reshaping of last year's frocks is very much simplified.

Fortunately the blouse waist has become so exuberant and exotic in the

READ EVERY WORD OF THIS--It Means Big Money to You

THE SEARCH FOR ENTERTAINMENT HAS BECOME MORE THAN A PASTIME WITH THE GREAT AMERICAN PUBLIC--IT HAS BECOME A BUSINESS.

This is not a gold or silver, coal or copper mine, nor yet an oil scheme. It is a first class business proposition, handled by first class business men who have made splendid successes in their particular field of operation and whose names are a guarantee that they will "make good" in whatever they undertake.

During the last few years the larger cities of this country have established at some favorable spot, usually along a trolley line, what are known as Amusement Parks, (some two thousand of them are now in successful operation) which the public has never failed to generously patronize when first class attractions have been offered. These Parks are owned and operated by local people and the transportation companies principally interested are usually large stockholders. Such standard features as Scenic Rides, Chute the Chutes, Carousels, Shooting Galleries, etc., etc.,

The Company will operate its shows upon the circuit plan, that is from town to town, just as theatrical and Vaudeville shows are run, because it can be done at the least cost and greatest profit, the entire twenty productions being managed from the Central Office in New York. This is possible because the Parks granting us concessions on a percentage basis keep check on the receipts to insure their percentage, thus reducing our operating expense to a very small figure. Our productions will comprise Spectacular Shows, Scenography, Kinographs, etc., this being the class of attractions operated at least expense and paying the biggest money at Expositions, Summer Resorts and Amusement Parks. We base our claim to financial success on what has been done in the past, and when it is realized that our method of handling concessions in a wholesale way eliminates all chances of failure for any one of them, it is certain the returns of each attraction installed will play to full capacity for the season. NOW LOOK AT THE FIGURES--"The Johnstown Flood," the first of this class of attractions, took in, in six months at the Pan American Exposition $167,000, paying the investors nearly 400 per cent. It was taken to Coney Island, and in three seasons cleared over all expenses $90,000, a grand total of $257,000. "The Trip to the Moon" and "The Galveston Flood" were equally successful. "From New York to the North Pole" and "Creation" each took in more than a Quarter of a Million Dollars in Six Months. "Creation" has had two successful seasons at Coney Island taking in more than $200,000 each year. Since the wonderful success of "Luna Park," similar Parks have sprung up all over the country and popular and profitable have been the parks that by next season, Canada, Australia, Japan, in fact all over the world, will be found Amusement Parks in close proximity to every city of 100,000 inhabitants and less.

A Partial List of Great Spectacles which Edward J. Austen has Produced.

THE MEN BEHIND THE GUNS. Aside from the fact that each Scenograph or Spectacular Production will have Mr. E. J. Austen's personal supervision in its construction, the General Management will be in the hands of no less a person than Mr. F. W. McClellan, who has had the management of Thompson & Dundy's wonderful "Luna Park" at Coney Island ever since its gates were opened to the public. With two such successful and resourceful men of National Reputation and wonderful Executive ability, the success of the company is assured success.

THE SMALL INVESTORS' OPPORTUNITY TO BECOME RICH.

When big enterprises are launched, the men of large capital are given the first chance at the stock, and it is usually over subscribed if the proposition is a good one. Now, just here the International Amusement & Concession Company proposes to reverse the general order of things. We would rather have must be of identical lace or material, or they will not bear that look of relationship which is needed to prevent the waist from looking like patchwork. Sleeves in their present state of over-elaboration help to solve the problem of their making over. This applies, of course, chiefly to sleeves of dressy waists and gowns. The sleeves of cloth dresses and suits are more severe and require different treatment.

The sleeve decoration of an afternoon, theater or party waist usually partakes of the trimming characteristics of the yoke, but in the matter of shaping the styles are unusually elastic. Some sleeves consist of a single small puff scarcely reaching to the elbow, others are made of a succession of such puffs joined together with lace bands. A narrow sleeve, if sufficiently long, can have the upper sleeve portion slit lengthwise three times and gathered up to elbow length and joined with three bands of heavy lace. Narrow straps of material with edges turned in and stitched make a very effective over-trimming to use across broad lace bandings, or to suggest a vestee effect at front of waist. These straps should be about three-eighths of an inch wide and may be made of either straight or bias material; each little strap should have a small button or tiny braid ornament at each end. Very pretty braid ornaments can be made of narrow white or colored soutache braid by simply casting a chain of five stitches with an ordinary zephyr crochet-hook, then drawing the end at which you begin through the sixth loop; pull both ends closely and fasten with thread and needle before cutting off.

A lady whose daughter had grown too tall and stout for her last year's tailored gown was enabled to widen and lengthen it, and transformed it into an exceptionally handsome suit by use of soutache braid and velvet. To do this she opened the lengthwise seams extending from the shoulders at front and back of coat; into these she introduced a narrow gore of velvet of the same shade as the suit. This gore of velvet was not over an inch wide at its widest part, and narrowed down to half that width at the waist line. This velvet strip was reinforced by a lining of canvas of the same weight as was used for interlining the coat. After carefully basting the canvas and velvet teen gore under the carefully turned edges of the cloth, the coat was on and fitted before stitching the gore to place. The inside edges, that is, edge of the gore nearest the center, left unstitched to permit the introduction of the ends of narrow tailor-made straps of broadcloth, also of the same shade as the suit. These straps were scant half inch in width and went into inch and a quarter lengths. The one end of each strap was placed on the inside edge of the overlying cloth and held in place by the stitching. The free ends of the straps were taken to the opposite edge of overlying cloth and fastened with small braid ornaments made as those described above. The flat collar and the cuffs were trimmed with shaped emplacements of the velvet slip stitched to place.

The skirt, which was of the same variety, presented a more difficult problem. It was ripped from the back, back plaits and placket opened, and apart through the center of the front into which a very narrow gore of velvet not wider than four inches at the bottom, was introduced. This gore was cut the full length wanted. The skirt was then fitted to a velvet yoke which had two nine inch tabs at each side. The edges of the velvet overlapped the edges of the cloth, and the skirt was and were stitched to place. Narrow straps of the broadcloth crossed the skirt panel in front and at the side; they had the braid ornaments at each end. The suit is much handsomer than the last, and no one would ever suspect that it was remodeled, for the clever trimming touches give it all the air of an exclusive and individual design.

tion when the Parks open their doors to the amusement-loving public of America. The demand for Mr. Austen's spectacles is so great that to comprehend the handle them, the International Amusement and Concession Company has organized under the laws of the State of New York with a full paid up capital divided into 160,000 shares, each of $5.00. The Company offers for sale 50,000 shares at $5.00 each. The Company reserves the right to cancel subscription notices because it knows from Mr. Austen's previous successes that no money will be needed and that the money which it is offered to the public for the purpose of this Company is to make the scenery, scenography or spectacular productions and to operate concessions on a large scale at the various Amusement Parks throughout the United States.

LITTLE ABE CORNCOB'S BIG IDEA.

By W. F. Mariner

HERE is a wonderful Puzzle. A lady had twelve pieces of chain which she wished made into an endless necklace of one hundred links. The Jeweler charged 25 cents each for opening and joining a link. How much should the lady pay for getting the chain mended?

1,000 PRIZES WILL BE DISTRIBUTED among those sending the best answers to the above Puzzle. For the best, briefest and clearest correct solution, $100 in Gold. If two or more correct solutions are of equal merit in respect to brevity and clearness, the $100.00 will be equally divided. For the three next best, briefest and clearest correct solutions, $50 each in Gold, subject to sub-division if there are more than three of equal merit.

A valuable prize ("700 WONDERFUL CHINESE PUZZLES," by Sam Loyd) will also be sent free to the next 996 best, briefest and clearest correct answers. This is the first of a Series of Prize Puzzle Contests which the publishers of Cheerful Moments are inaugurating, to call attention to the unrivalled merits of their publication. If you are good at solving puzzles, you'll surely want to subscribe to Cheerful Moments for there will be many chances to win valuable prizes.

The puzzles are devised by Mr. Sam Loyd, the greatest living puzzle expert and mathematician. They are all remarkably clever, and will be found in every case capable of a simple solution.

These contests are open to every one without any charge, and it is not necessary to be a subscriber to Cheerful Moments to enter them, on the contrary the publishers of Cheerful Moments welcome answers from everyone who reads these advertisements, feeling assured that they will be so interested that they will become subscribers and regular readers of their Magazine.

Cheerful Moments is a publication that has enjoyed a high reputation for many years, and is especially suited for home reading. It devotes a page in each number to a puzzle department, in which it would like every reader of this advertisement to become interested. The determination of the merits of all answers is to rest finally with the Puzzle Editor of Cheerful Moments.

The Correct Answer and the Announcement of Awards of above puzzle, and those that follow, will appear only in Cheerful Moments. The subscription is 25 cents a year, or it will be sent four months for 10 cents.
