SECURING EVIDENCE

That It Is Believed Will Put Night Riders in the Penitentiary

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 19.—News has been received from Princeton to the effect that the citizens' committee, which has recently been investigating the action of the night riders, who, several weeks ago, burned two tobacco factories at that place, has been continuing its labors, and it is thought with considerable chances of ultimate success. The claim is now being made by one of those who have been specially active in the work of making these inquiries, that there will be shortly enough evidence to convict a number of those who were actively engaged in the work of destroying the tobacco warehouses and factories last month.

Considerable excitement was caused at Princeton by a statement made by a citizen whose name has not been given to the public, that as he was coming into town on the night of the raid, he met a party of horsemen going into Princeton. Fearing trouble, he hid at the side of the road, and as the horsemen passed he recognized a number of them, as they had not then put on their masks. This citizen, it is stated, will testify before the coming grand jury, if he is guaranteed protection, that he recognized several of the night riders.

An agreement has been entered into between the growers of the Protective association and the independent tobacco men, pursuant to which a large number of the latter are taking their tobacco into Princeton and shipping it to the warehouses of this city, and other points where the association has representatives. It is thought there will be no further trouble, as the authorities are so earnestly at work trying to discover the guilty and they will be punished if found.

Reached The Limit.

Of all the indelicate, foolish acts ever perpetrated by a body of intelligent men who meant all right, the memorial transmitted by the commercial organization of Brownsville, Texas, thanking President Roosevelt for discharging the battalion of colored troops, was the limit. President Roosevelt did not discharge the whole battalion, because some of its members killed Brownsville citizens; he did not discharge them because they were negroes; he did not discharge them as punishment. He did discharge them because, being soldiers in the uniform of the United States and under oath to uphold the constitution and laws of the United States and to protect the lives and property of its citizens, they conspired to protect law breakers and murderers; and he therefore, deemed them unfitted for further duty as soldiers. The president, as he said, merely performed his duty in dissolving the contract with the soldiers. There was thanks coming from no one, and the effect of the Brownville memorial can be only no reflect on the motives of the president.

"Don't Cross Your Legs"

"The prevalence of appendicitis is an admitted fact," said a surgeon. "Crossing the legs is responsible for a good deal of this trouble. That sounds strange, doesn't it? Nevertheless it is a theory advanced by more than one great surgeon. Indeed, I know some surgeons who say that if people never crossed their legs appendicitis would disappear. You see crossing the leg squeezes and cramps the delicate vermiform appendix. Squeezed and cramped, the appendix becomes irritated. Inflammation sets in, intense pain comes, and then the sweet and heavy fumes of chloroform are choking you, and the appendicitis specialist bends over you with a sharp knife."

Concentration of Wealth

One per cent of our population owns practically 99 per cent of the entire wealth of the nation. Our 18,000,000 wage-earners receive an average of but $400 per year. Nine-tenths of our business men are notoriously failures. Our clergy receive an average annual salary of about $500; the average for educators is even lower. Of our 6,000,000 farmers, one-third are tenants and the homes of one-third of the remaining two-thirds are mortgaged.—Henry C. Call to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

INFANT DIES

The Little Eight Months Old Child of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gill

A telegram was received in Marion Wednesday announcing the death of the little eight months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gill, which occurred at their home in Milburn, I. T., Tuesday morning at eight o'clock. The family arrived in Marion with the remains of the little one this morning and the interment will take place at the new cemetery this afternoon.

Mrs. Gill was Miss Cora Clark, before her marriage, and has many friends who sympathize with her and her husband in their bereavement.

Enrollment of Marion Graded School

The enrollment at the beginning of second term of the Marion Graded School is very encouraging to both teachers and patrons. In the following we give the enrollment of each grade: First Grade 99, Mrs. Walker teacher. Second Grade 55, Miss Woods teacher. Third Grade 47, Miss C. Harris teacher.

Fourth Grade 50, Miss Hard teacher. Fifth Grade 48, Miss Harris teacher. Sixth Grade 43, Miss Cook teacher. Seventh Grade 28, Miss Gray teacher. Eighth Grade 50, Miss Moore teacher. High School 24, Prof. V. G. Kee teacher.

This makes a total enrollment of 435 students. The enrollment for the last two weeks has been thirty-one and Prof. Kee is still expecting several more pupils for the Spring, these will enter as soon as their schools in the country close.

Oratorical Contest

The contestants were chosen Monday afternoon for the oratorical contest, February 22nd, 1907.

It has been the custom for members of the High School to choose three pupils to participate and the faculty chooses two, all contestants being members of the High School.

Misses Fenwick Wathen and Annie Dean and Mr. Jones Gill were chosen by the High School and Messrs. Gray Rochester and Hollis Franklin were elected by the faculty.

These are all pupils of splendid oratorical ability and we predict one of the most interesting contests.

The Grand Mogul

The Grand Mogul, Klaw & Erlanger's stupendous production with 100 people will be the attraction at the Wells-Bijou theatre in Evansville, Friday, Feb. 1st. It comes direct from its long run at the Colonial Theatre in Chicago. On Thursday, Jan. 31, the ever popular Francis Wilson puts on his latest success, "The Mountain Climber," under the personal direction of Chas. Frohman.

The popular price show for the first four nights of the week will be "The Woman in the Case," Blanche Walsh's great play with Eugene Blair in the leading role.

HENRY WARD BEECHER

Gave His Reasons For Total Abstinence

When stopping at a hotel in the White Mountains, Henry Ward Beecher was asked to explain to the guests his position on the use of intoxicating liquors by Christians. He replied in these words: "It is just like this. Suppose there is a precipice out by a school house, where many children are assembled. Suppose that half way down the precipice there is a spring that I especially enjoy, and, strong man that I am, I can go down there safely, by a narrow path, dangerous to many, but not to me. Suppose that the children are determined to go down there after me and will not believe that the path is dangerous since they see me tread it with impunity. Some of them that try it fall and break their necks and others are lamed for life. Now, what sort of man, much more, what sort of Christian should I be, if under these circumstances I persist in going down that dangerous path? Nay, verily, if I have one particle of magnanimity of soul, I shall put a good strong fence across that path, and never tread it any more. That is my position on the total abstinence question.—Ex.

LANDSLIDE CAUSES TERROR

Plat of Ground Containing Fifteen Acres Slides Down Hill

Olive Hill, Ky., Jan. 18.—East of town a few hundred yards, a hillfield owned by S. M. Edwin, slipped for about 100 feet. The piece of ground that moved contained more than 15 acres, and contained two residences. The houses are badly damaged and are on the verge of falling into a large ravine 100 feet deep. The families living in the houses fled into town.

The noise caused by the slipping of the acres of dirt, rock and trees was heard for miles. At one point in the slide huge trees sank in the ground until their tops were as low as their base had been only a few moments before. When the slide left the main hill it stands like a wall of stone and earth 60 feet high. No cause for the slide is known except the continued wet weather and the fact that all the hill is on a rock slanting toward the creek. The tract of land and houses damaged by the slide are valued at $3,000.

The county road that passes over this piece of ground has moved ten feet down the hill and is so broken by huge cracks that it cannot be used and will probably have to be abandoned.

Real Hooligan Coming

Of the three great "hits" in caricature, Happy Hooligan, Buster Brown and the Brownies have outlived them all, and for all round fun Hooligan outclasses them all. His well meaning innocent interference in everything conceivable not at all his business, gets him into so many scrapes, it is with eagerness that we look hastily over our Sunday papers' funny pages to see and laugh again at Hooligan. The first and original comedy, Hooligan's Troubles, written to suit the character, by Mark E. Swan, is still creating fun in the best theatres of the country. The original number one company presenting the original, Arthur O. May; the original Freckles, handsome Grace Burgoyne, and the original all star company come to Marion on Jan. 28. The plot of this hilarious fun maker, Hooligan's Troubles, is consistent. There are twenty-one vaudeville and musical numbers in the program and an enjoyable evening is guaranteed all who attend.

Sells Out

Mr. H. K. Woods has sold his interest in the Woods & Orme drug store to his partner Mr. J. H. Orme. The title of the new firm will be J. H. Orme.

This store has always been a popular one and has always enjoyed a splendid business and no where will you find a more beautiful store. The fixtures are all new and very pretty. It is called "The Crystal Palace" and it certainly deserves the name.

Mr. Woods has not decided what he will do, but says he does not enjoy loafing and will embark in business of some kind again soon. But we hope he will not leave our little city.

Geo. H. Crider Sick

Mr. Geo. H. Crider who with his family left here about a month ago for Canyon City, Texas, is at the home of his father-in-law, W. D. Haynes, of this city, is very ill. He has been traveling for a big land and real estate company and was in Memphis, when stricken with a severe attack of rheumatism. He has been unable to move and is suffering very much. He was no better at the last report.

Good Report

The report of Superintendent Chas. Evans of the city schools is encouraging in many respects, and one in particular, that being the fact that out of about 1,500 children in attendance upon the schools only eight were reported tardy during the month just closed. When the weather is taken into consideration, this is one of the finest showings ever made by a superintendent of schools anywhere in the country.—Ardmore, I. T., Ardmoreite.

Entertained

Little Thomas Crider Cochran, entertained two of his little friends, John Marshall Drescher and Frederick Bruce Nunn, at luncheon last Wednesday. His mother was hostess, having Mesdames R. D. Drescher, F. W. Nunn J. I. Clement and Miss Mattie Henny to assist her in keeping the little one entertained.

CARNEGIE'S DECLARATION

Would Give Millions for Ten Years Lease on Life

New York, Jan. 19.—A Philadelphia dispatch says that at the end of the Clover club's 25 anniversary dinner there Friday night Col. A. K. McClure the aged editor, dean of the club and its ex-president, made a speech in which he declared fear of old. He said: "Old age has nothing in it to fear. When death calls to me I shall not be afraid."

Col. McClure continued: "After dining with Mr. Carnegie once, he said to me that he would give $200,000,000 to have a lease on life. There is a difference, I said: 'And you would be bunched at that price.'"

"Two hundred million, Alec, he said to me, 'That is what I would give for a lease on this life. I am not hogish, either. I would give it for ten years only.'"

"I don't think Carnegie is afraid of death, but he clings to life. There is a difference, I said: 'And you would be bunched at that price.'"

ED RUTTER IN JAIL

The Negro Who Shot Tom McLean Surrendered to the Officials

Ed Rutter, who shot Tom McLean on Wednesday night, Jan. 16, came in Sunday night and gave himself up to the authorities. He was lodged in jail to await his examining trial, which is to be held next Thursday, Jan. 31.

Rutter claims to have done the shooting in self defense. A knife was found next morning where the killing happened, this was identified as McLean's knife. Rutter says his body is cut in several places and claims that McLean did the cutting.

A Plausible Fish Story

Madisonville, Ky., Jan. 19.—When the dam at the big lake at Earlington broke recently thousands of fish escaped in the overflow. The St. Bernard Coal Company had spent much money in stocking up the lake with fine fish, and the place was one of the favorite resorts of fishermen in Western Kentucky, people coming here each spring to fish.

Since the break in the dam numerous sportsmen at Earlington have been seizing the small ponds and creeks below the dam and capturing fish, which were replaced in the lake. Thursday was the banner day for this. Several men worked all day, and, according to reports from there about 50,000 fish were captured and replaced in the lake.

The work on the dam is progressing rapidly, and the water covers about 40 acres. In the course of a week or so the dam will be replaced as good as before.

Secretly Married

It is mighty hard to keep a secret, especially if it concerns a wedding. We have recently heard of a secret of this kind and we are crazy to tell it, but have promised not to "call any names," but we are going to tell a little about it anyway.

The bride of this much talked of wedding is a very attractive young lady and does not live in our little city, but is a Kentucky girl.

The groom is an imported young man, but has won many friends since he came to dwell with us.

To add a little more romance to the affair, this happy young couple hid themselves to a neighboring city and now "two hearts beat with but a single thought."

Keep Your Blood Pure

No one can be happy, light-hearted and healthy with a body full of blood that cannot do its duty to every part because of its impurity; therefore, the first and most important work in hand is to purify the blood so that every organ will get the full benefit of a healthy circulation. There is no remedy we know of so good as that old family remedy, Brandreth's Pills. Each pill contains one grain of the solid extract of sarsaparilla blended with two grains of a combination of pure and mild vegetable products, making it a blood purifier unexcelled in character. One or two taken every night for awhile will produce surprising results. Brandreth's Pills have been in use for over a century and are sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar-coated.

D. A. R. RESOLUTION

Thanks Hon. Ollie James For His Favors to the Chapter

Be it Resolved by Chapter No. 376 of Paducah, Ky., of the Daughters of the American Revolution that the thanks of this chapter be, and they are hereby extended to the Hon. Ollie M. James, member of congress from the First district of Kentucky, for his prompt and efficient ability in securing the passage of a bill through the lower house of congress, granting to this chapter the privilege of erecting a drinking fountain on the property of the United States at Fifth and Broadway, in Paducah, Ky.

Be it Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions, duly attested by the regent and secretary be forwarded to Mr. James.

MATTIE BOONE, Regent.

Attest: EMILY MORROW, Secretary.

TWINKLES FROM MARION SCHOOL

By BOBBY SPRITE

The second term of school began on Monday morning. There are bright prospects for a successful one.

0-0

Professor Kee is all smiles this week over the number of new scholars.

0-0

The boys had a meeting of the Athletic Association Wednesday evening to break in the new scholars. The goat was very busy for a few minutes.

0-0

A boy in the third grade was asked from whom he inherited his mathematical abilities. He replied from his grand-mother or his father's mother-in-law.

0-0

The high is slowly developing into an Academy. It now has four Latin classes and that is going some.

0-0

Some twenty-five or thirty new scholars began school this week.

0-0

The oratorical contestants have been elected. They are Misses Dean and Wathen Messrs. Franklin, Rochester and Gill. Look out for a warm time on Washington's birthday.

0-0

The library has been lately enlightened by the addition of a new dictionary.

During the tedious and doleful hours of our examinations the gloom was dispersed by a book agent. So we now conclude that everything in this world has a purpose.

0-0

The auditorium is now full at chapel exercises. We will either have to build more chapel or take turns in attending the exercises.

0-0

The piano got one of its rollers broken off last week but the music teacher can still perform upon it.

0-0

Look out for something great to happen soon. The eighth grade is going to give a big show of some sort.

0-0

Some nice library cards have been issued and each pupil given one. We owe him that loathsome card for verily he shall pay ten cents for it.

0-0

Some of the ninth grade girls are getting really poetical. Short poems can be seen on the library walls almost any time.

0-0

The eighth grade is getting crowded but Miss Maggie Moore says "there is room for one more."

0-0

The question of the week is "who are you betting on in the oratorical contest."

How To Cure Chills

"To enjoy freedom from chills" writes John Kemp, East Otisfield, Me., "I apply Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Have also used it for salt rheum with excellent results." Guaranteed to cure fever, sores, indolent ulcers, piles, burns, wounds, frost bites and skin diseases. 25c at Haynes & Taylor's.

MARVELOUS MEETING.

10,000 Fight In Vain To Hear a Chicago Evangelist.

Ten thousand weary and disappointed people were turned away from the doors of the auditorium yesterday, unable to gain entrance to one of the most remarkable religious meetings held in Chicago since the days of Moody and Sankey. Frantic efforts to get inside the structure were made by the late comers, some of them succeeding in breaking down the stage door, only to be driven back by Milward Adams, manager of the house.

The fame of "Gypsy" Smith, the noted evangelist, and the religious interest which is sweeping the city as the results of the spectacular religious campaign of the Rev. R. A. Torrey, drew a crowd at the doors of the theater that has never been equaled in its history.

The service was scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock. Hours before that time hundreds of men, women and children were standing patiently before the doors. As the hour drew near for service the hundreds increased to thousands, massed against the doors, and extending across Congress street to the opposite side, and to either end of the block.

The doors were thrown open at 2:30. It took exactly seven minutes to fill the building and at 2:37 the doors were closed again with 4,000 seated inside the great theater and a larger crowd outside than had been able to gain entrance.

Meanwhile each street car and elevated train was bringing more people. The crowd stayed for a while in the hope that "Gypsy" Smith would decide to hold a short meeting, dismiss the audience, let in the overflow and hold a second service. It was not till the service was nearly half over that a crowd outside finally dispersed.

"Gypsy" Smith had not spoken long, when all over the house men and women could be seen in tears, and when with a dramatic appeal he begged those who wished to find Christ to rise to their feet, two hundred men and women responded. It was an old-fashioned revival service punctuated with the "Amen's" and "Hallelujahs" of the workers. One man seated far back in the balcony who rose for prayer startled the audience with the fervency of his ejaculations.

"Christ for me," he cried in tones that rang through the house. "Bless God! Hallelujah!"

Taking as his theme, "A Lost Christ," and as his text that portion of the second chapter of Luke, which tells of the boy Christ remaining behind in the temple while his parents were searching for him, the evangelist made a powerful arraignment of Christians and churches which had lost Christ.

J. S. McMurray Sells Out

J. S. McMurray, the old land mark of Repton, Ky., has sold out. He sold nineteen acres of ground, dwelling house and store house for $1600 cash to Mr. Sam D. Asher, a son of William Asher, of Marion, Ky. Sometime next month Mr. Asher will buy his stock of merchandise and will then be in full possession and control.

Mr. McMurray has not yet decided as to what he will do. It is related that he wakes up every night with a start and then gazes straight into the darkness while his mind revolves over and over this last trade he has made. Sometimes he pulls the cover up slightly and allows his feet free range in the cooler air. He will soon be down and out and all he will have to show for a good stock of goods, a good patronage, good buildings and fine property will be the money. He may go to Texas. THE RECORD hopes that if he does go he will come back and will not be long about it.

Walker-Crowell

Mr. Bert Walker and Miss Belva Crowell, of the Iron Hill neighborhood, were married Sunday, January 20, 1907, at Mr. Walker's home, Rev. W. T. Oakley officiating.

The bride was an orphan girl and was reared by the groom's parents and is an attractive young lady.

The groom is an energetic young farmer.

THE RECORD joins their many friends in wishing them a happy and prosperous life.

TORTURING AND ITCHING SKIN DISEASES

yield quickly to the most wonderful discovery in the last hundred years.

+ ZEMO +

is now recognized as "The world's greatest cure for all diseases of the skin and scalp." Itching skin diseases are caused by a germ. ZEMO cures by destroying these germs. It never fails to cure.

Mrs. E. S. Reynolds, 5560 Maple Ave., St. Louis, says: "I am 71 years old, and I have suffered 15 years with itching, burning eczema. My son-in-law, Jno. S. Davis of the Country Shoe Co., procured a bottle of ZEMO. Within one week the itching was stopped and the swelling reduced and the eruptions almost disappeared. It is the greatest cure for all skin diseases."

NO CAUSE FOR WORRY.

Lady Didn't Mean to Lose "Splendid Girl" for a Triviality.

At a meeting of a woman's club in an eastern city, the members discussed the problem of securing and retaining good housemaids. After the session one of them told another member that she had "a splendid girl," and then (in strict confidence, of course), narrated the following incident:

She had attended a meeting of the club the previous week, and upon returning home earlier than expected, entered the house by means of a latchkey. Going upstairs quietly she was surprised, on suddenly opening a door, at seeing her husband in the act of kissing the "splendid girl." Naturally there was surprise all around, but without saying a word the clubwoman returned to the lower part of the house. In a short time down came the maid arrayed for departure.

"What is the matter, Annie?" asked the mistress of the house. "Why are you going at this time?"

"Well," replied the maid, "after what you have just seen I don't think you want me to stay here any longer."

"Don't let that worry you, Annie. Go upstairs and take off your things. If two of us cannot satisfy his propensity for kissing I shall get another servant to assist us."

And that is one woman's way of keeping a "splendid girl" as her maid.

Black Walnut.

Black walnut is produced in this country at an annual rate of about 33,000,000 feet. The larger portion of it now comes from southwestern Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Indian territory, although there is some scattering growth still picked up in Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee and West Virginia. The most considerable stand of the wood remaining east of the Mississippi river is on the upper waters of the Guyandotte river in West Virginia, says a writer in The Southwest. The home demand for black walnut lumber is only for comparatively small quantities. Its use is largely confined to gun stocks, novelties, electrical work, etc. The chief demand for walnut comes from Germany and Hamburg is the commercial center of the market.

Barnes Explained Why.

Many people in this section remember Augustus Barnes, who for years drove the stage between Tilton and Franklin, before the railroad was built. Dr. Tucker, president of Dartmouth college, tells of riding across from Tilton one day. Just out of Tilton, on the sandy bank of Winnipisogee river, is located the Tilton cemetery.

Dr. Tucker was occupying a seat beside the venerable driver, and as they passed the city of the dead, he said: "That is a queer place for a cemetery. I wonder why such a spot was selected?"

Barnes' explanation was short and to the point, his answer being: "Easy digging."—Boston Herald.

Pat's Prize Effort.

An American visiting Dublin told some startling stories about the height of some of the New York buildings. An Irishman who was listening stood it as long as he could, and then queried:

"Ye be—n't seen our newest hotel, have ye?"

The American thought not.

"Well," said the Irishman, "it's so tall that we had to put the two top stories on hinges."

"What for?" asked the American.

"So we could let 'em down till the moon went by," said Pat.

Frugal Soul.

Visitor—I do hope that poor Jack, your brother, does not grieve too much at my having broken our engagement, I feel sure he must be very unhappy. What did he say, dear?

The sister—Oh, he said what a jolly lucky thing it was you broke it off this week instead of next, as it saved him from having to buy you a birth day present.

SIGN WELL PAID FOR.

One Thousand Dollars a Word for Railroad Crossing Warning.

At the Franklin Inn, a literary club of Philadelphia, a young poet, licking his lips, said that Conan Doyle was paid one dollar a word.

"That is nothing," said one of the reading railroad advertising men. "I know of a case where a man was paid 1,000 a word. Our line used to have at its grade crossings a very long and complicated sign that began: 'Beware of the engine and cars,' and then this sign went on with a lot of injunctions and warnings that would have taken five minutes to read. In a number of accident cases the claimants for damages declared that our long signs were not clear warnings. Therefore the line decided at last to get a new grade crossing sign, and Judge Paxson was engaged to write one."

"The sign that Judge Paxson wrote cost $1,000 a word, but it was a classic. It remains a classic. It has been copied everywhere. It is as well known among us as 'Father, I cannot tell a lie,' or 'England expects every man to do his duty.'"

"But what was the sign?" the poet asked, impatiently.

"The sign that cost $1,000 a word, or $6,000 in all," said the railroad man, "was the famous 'Railroad crossing—stop, look and listen.'"

It's a pleasure to tell our readers about a Cough Cure like Dr. Shoop's. For years Dr. Shoop has fought against Opium, Chloroform, or other unsafe ingredients commonly found in Cough remedies. Dr. Shoop it seems, has welcomed the Pure Food and Drug Law recently enacted, for he has worked along similar lines for many years. For nearly 20 years Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure containers have had a warning printed on them against Opium and other narcotic poisons. He has thus made it possible for mothers to protect their children by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Sold by Haynes & Taylor.

More Good Shows

The Wells-Bijou Theatre in Evansville continues to offer only the very best line of attractions. Beginning Sunday, Jan. 13th, for four nights and two matinees, the bill will be Howard Hall, in that strong and stirring play, "The Millionaire Detective," at the Well's popular prices. On Thursday night, Henrietta Crossman comes here in "All a Sudden Peggy," the new play which took Chicago by storm, and Friday "Tim Murphy" in his new comedy, "A Corner in Coffee."

ELECTRIC BITTERS

Confused the Elevator Man.

New York elevator operators have a dislike of the word "next."

"It is too confusing," said one man. "For example, two men stepped into my car the other day. One said, 'Fifth floor.' The other said, 'Next.' I stopped at the second floor and waited and waited for the man who had ordered 'next' to get out. He flew into a rage. 'I don't want this floor,' he said. 'I said the sixth floor. Didn't the other fellow say "Fifth," and didn't I say "Next," and isn't sixth next after fifth? Huh?"

"The following day one passenger called out, 'Third floor,' and the other said 'Next' at the same time. I thought I knew my business that time. I hustled the third floor man right up to his landing and took the chap who wanted 'next' on to the fourth floor. He was angry also. 'What did you bring me up here for when I wasn't looking?' he thundered. 'Didn't you hear me say next?' 'Yes,' said I, 'but the other man said third—' 'I don't give a rap,' said he, 'what the other man said. We were then on the first floor, and when I said next didn't that mean second? I'll report you for inattention, that's what I'll do.'"

"And that is what he did do," sighed the operator. "Clearly the word 'next' ought to be abolished."—New York Sun.

The Old Fashioned "Bird Girl."

The "bird girl" (we never, never alluded to her as "the maid" in the small American town or quiet country place where you and I were "raised") was like one of the family, and mother was glad to have her help, and none of us put on any frills with her, and she was not compelled to put on any frills of cap or apron with us. Offtimes, especially in the quiet country places, her social standing was as good as that of anybody else. Usually she was one of a grown family of girls. There was plenty of help at her home, and so she came and assisted our mother at our house. In their hours of ease mother and she discussed the neighborhood gossip together. The "bird girl" had her beau, a neighbor's stolid, sheepish son, and much was she joked about him, and finally, after years of faithful and friendly servitude, she married him. We went to the wedding, and it was quite a social affair, with much temperate merriment and with many cheap but useful presents.—Everybody's Magazine.

Webster's Compliment.

While it is well known that Daniel Webster in speaking of General Taylor's candidacy for the office of president pronounced it "a nomination not fit to be made," he never failed to do justice to the general's military abilities and eminent service in the field. On one occasion he paid the old soldier a delicate and well deserved compliment. General Taylor was complaining of the crowds of people who daily besieged him soon after his accession to the presidency.

"They interfere," he said, "with my official engagements and violate my domestic retirement, but still I do not wish to turn my back upon my friends."

"You never did upon your enemies, general," Mr. Webster instantly replied.

The Snob.

The snob cultivates a man or a woman not because he expects to get a job or a loan out of either, but because he thinks either can help him along into society's elect. He cuts a former acquaintance because the unfortunate person seems to be of no use in his own social advancement. He suppresses the impulse that may lead him to dislike useful people and like useless ones just as the ambitious bank clerk suppresses his small extravagances, his fondness for the race track. Because social position seems so important to him he admires excessively those who have it and snubs those whose position he deems inferior to his own.—New York Mail.

The Letter A.

The letter A is in Hebrew called aleph, an ox, and the Phoenician character which represents this sound was originally a picture of an ox head; hence the name. If You Want Cash

For Your Real Estate or Business

I CAN GET IT

No Matter What Your Property is Worth, or in what Town, City, State or Territory it is Located

If I did not have the ability and facilities to sell your own property, I certainly could not afford to pay for this advertisement. This "ad" (like all my other "ads") is practically sure to place on my list a number of new properties, and I am just as sure to sell these properties and make enough money in commissions to pay for the cost of these "ads," and make a good profit besides. That is why I have to have a real estate business today.

Why not put your property among the number that will be sold as a result of these "ads?" I will not only be able to sell it—some time—but will be able to sell it quickly. I am a specialist in quick sales. I have the most complete and up-to-date equipment. I have branch offices throughout the country and a field force of men to find buyers.

I do not handle all lines usually carried by the ordinary real estate agents. I MUST SELL real estate and lots of it—or go out of business. I can assure you that I am not going out of business. On the contrary, I expect to find, at the close of the year, that I have sold twice as many properties as I did the past year, but it will first be necessary for me to "list" more properties. I want to list YOURS and SELL it. It doesn't matter whether you have a farm, a home without any land, or a business; it doesn't matter what it is worth, or where it is located. If you will fill out the blank letter of inquiry below and mail it to me today, I will tell you how and why I can quickly convert the property into cash, and will give you my complete plan.

NO CAUSE FOR WORRY.

Lady Didn't Mean to Lose "Splendid Girl" for a Triviality.

At a meeting of a woman's club in an eastern city, the members discussed the problem of securing and retaining good housemaids. After the session one of them told another member that she had "a splendid girl," and then (in strict confidence, of course), narrated the following incident:

She had attended a meeting of the club the previous week, and upon returning home earlier than expected, entered the house by means of a latchkey. Going upstairs quietly she was surprised, on suddenly opening a door, at seeing her husband in the act of kissing the "splendid girl." Naturally there was surprise all around, but without saying a word the clubwoman returned to the lower part of the house. In a short time down came the maid arrayed for departure.

"What is the matter, Annie?" asked the mistress of the house. "Why are you going at this time?"

"Well," replied the maid, "after what you have just seen I don't think you want me to stay here any longer."

"Don't let that worry you, Annie. Go upstairs and take off your things. If two of us cannot satisfy his propensity for kissing I shall get another servant to assist us."

And that is one woman's way of keeping a "splendid girl" as her maid.

Black Walnut.

Black walnut is produced in this country at an annual rate of about 35,000,000 feet. The larger portion of it now comes from southwestern Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Indian territory, although there is some scattering growth still picked up in Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee and West Virginia. The most considerable stand of the wood remaining east of the Mississippi river is on the upper waters of the Guyandotte river in West Virginia, says a writer in The Southwest. The home demand for black walnut lumber is only for comparatively small quantities. Its use is largely confined to gun stocks, novelties, electrical work, etc. The chief demand for walnut comes from Germany and Hamburg is the commercial center of the market.

Barnes Explained Why.

Many people in this section remember Augustus Barnes, who for years drove the stage between Tilton and Franklin, before the railroad was built. Dr. Tucker, president of Dartmouth college, tells of riding across from Tilton one day. Just out of Tilton, on the sandy bank of Winnipisaukee river, he located the Tilton cemetery.

Dr. Tucker was occupying a seat beside the venerable driver, and as they passed the city of the dead, he said: "That is a queer place for a cemetery. I wonder why such a spot was selected?"

Barnes' explanation was short and to the point. His answer being: "Easy digging."—Boston Herald.

Pat's Prize Effort.

An American visiting Dublin told some startling stories about the height of some of the New York buildings. An Irishman who was listening stood it as long as he could, and then queried:

"Ye be—sn't seen our newest hotel, have ye?"

The American thought not.

"Well," said the Irishman, "it's as tall that we had to put the two top stories on hinges."

"What for?" asked the American.

"So we could let 'em down till the moon went by," said Pat.

Frugal Soul.

Visitor—I do hope that poor Jack, your brother, does not grieve too much at my having broken our engagement. I feel sure he must be very unhappy. What did he say, dear?

"The sister—Oh, he said what a jolly lucky thing it was you broke it off this way instead of next, as it saved him from having to buy you a birth day present."

SIGN WELL PAID FOR.

One Thousand Dollars a Word for Railroad Crossing Warning.

At the Franklin Inn, a literary club of Philadelphia, a young poet, licking his lips, said that Conan Doyle was paid one dollar a word.

"That is nothing," said one of the reading railroad advertising men. "I know of a case where a man was paid $1,000 a word. Our line used to have at its grade crossings a very long and complicated sign (that began: 'Beware of the engine and cars,' and then this sign went on with a lot of injunctions and warnings that would have taken five minutes to read. In a number of accident cases the claimants for damages declared that our long signs were not clear warnings. Therefore the line decided at last to get a new grade crossing sign, and Judge Paxson was engaged to write one."

"The sign that Judge Paxson wrote cost $1,000 a word, but it was a classic. It remains a classic. It has been copied everywhere. It is as well known among us as 'Father, I cannot tell a lie,' or 'England expects every man to do his duty.'"

"But what was the sign?" the poet asked, impatiently.

about a Cough Cure like Dr. Shoop's. For years Dr. Shoop has fought against Opium, Chloroform, or other unsafe ingredients commonly found in Cough remedies. Dr. Shoop it seems, has welcomed the Pure Food and Drug Law recently enacted, for he has worked along similar lines for many years. For nearly 20 years Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure containers have had a warning printed on them against Opium and other narcotic poisons. He has thus made it possible for mothers to protect their children by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Sold by Haynes & Taylor.

ELECTRIC BITTERS THE BEST FOR BILIOUSNESS AND KIDNEYS.

Confused the Elevator Man.

New York elevator operators have a dislike of the word "next."

"It is too confusing," said one man. "For example, two men stepped into my car the other day. One said, 'Fifth floor.' The other said, 'Next.' I stopped at the second floor and waited and waited for the man who had ordered 'next' to get off. He flew into a rage. 'I don't want this floor,' he said. 'I said the sixth floor. Didn't the other fellow say "Fifth," and didn't I say "Next," and isn't sixth next after fifth? Huh?"

"The following day one passenger called out, 'Third floor,' and the other said 'Next' at the same time. I thought I knew my business that time. I hustled the third floor man right up to his landing and took the chap who wanted 'next' on to the fourth floor. He was angry also. "What did you bring me up here for when I want looking?" he thundered. "Didn't you hear me say next?" "Yes," said I, "but the other man said third— 'I don't give a rap,' said he, 'what the other man said. We were then on the first floor, and when I said next didn't that mean second? I'll report you for inattention, that's what I'll do."

"And that is what he did do," sighed the operator. "Clearly the word 'next' ought to be abolished."—New York Sun.

The Old Fashioned "Hired Girl."

The "hired girl" (we never, never alluded to her as "the maid" in the small American town or quiet country place where you and I were "raised") was like one of the family, and mother was glad to have her help, and none of us put on any frills with her, and she was not compelled to put on any frills of cap or apron with us. Oftentimes, especially in the quiet country places, her social standing was as good as that of any body else. Usually she was one of a grown family of girls. There was plenty of help at her home, and so she came and assisted our mother at our house. In their hours of ease mother and she discussed the neighborhood gossip together. The "hired girl" had her beau, a neighbor's stolid, sheepish son, and much was she joked about him, and finally, after years of faithful and friendly servitude, she married him. We went to the wedding, and it was quite a social affair, with much temperate merriment and with many cheap but useful presents.—Everybody's Magazine.

Webster's Compliment.

While it is well known that Daniel Webster in speaking of General Taylor's candidacy for the office of president pronounced it "a nomination not fit to be made," he never failed to do justice to the general's military abilities and eminent service in the field. On one occasion he paid the old soldier a delicate and well deserved compliment. General Taylor was complaining of the crowds of people who daily besieged him soon after his accession to the presidency.

"They interfere," he said, "with my official engagements and violate my domestic retirement, but still I do not wish to turn my back upon my friends."

"You never did upon your enemies, general," Mr. Webster instantly replied.

The Snob.

The snob cultivates a man or a woman not because he expects to get a job or a loan out of either, but because he thinks either can help him along into society's elect. He cuts a former acquaintance because the unfortunate person seems to be of no use in his own social advancement. He suppresses the impulse that may lead him to dislike useful people and like useless ones just as the ambitious bank clerk suppresses his small extravagances, his fondness for the race track. Because social position seems so important to him he admires excessively those who have it and snubs those whose position he deems inferior to his own.—New York Mail.

The Letter A.

The letter A is in Hebrew called aleph, an ox, and the Phoenician character which represents this sound was originally a picture of an ox head; hence the name. The right hand stroke of the A represents the top of the head, the other down stroke the left side, and a line, since fallen out of use, represented the right side of the head, while in very old Phoenician manuscripts two dots above for eyes and two below for nostrils rendered the resemblance complete.

"And my bachelor uncle," said Mrs. Wheel, "when he heard that my baby had begun teething, wanted to know if it would begin hating soon."—New York Press.

WAY TO TELL A DIAMOND.

Useful Hint for Lovers of These Beautiful Stones.

The jeweler made a small dot, like a period, on a piece of white paper with a lead pencil. Then he held a large diamond over the dot.

"Look through this," he said. Through the diamond the dot looked precisely the same as before.

"Now look through this," he said, taking up another stone.

Through the second stone the dot was transformed to three dots.

"There," the jeweler said, "is an easy way for the average man to tell a real diamond from an imitation. A dot on a piece of paper, looked at through a real diamond, is the same as before; but, looked at through a fake, it shows double or triple, or it appears blurred, scattered."

Beggar's Ready Explanation.

Eugene Higgins at a dinner on his yacht Varuna described a winter he had spent at Nice.

"But the Nice beggars!" he said, laughing. "The splendid, sun-drenched Promenade des Anglais, with its ivory white villas on one side and the blue Mediterranean on the other, is always haunted with these beggars. One of them accosted me one morning as I came out of the Cercle Meditaneen, the fashionable French club.

"Monsieur," he said, "one little sou, for the love of heaven. My poor wife is starving."

"Why, look here," said I, "only last week I gave you some money to bury your wife and now you tell me she is starving. How can that be?"

"But, monsieur," said the beggar, "I have a new wife now."

Disuading a Tempter.

A pompous Chicago merchant, arrogantly carrying the signs of his prosperity about him, accosted an acquaintance of his who conducts a successful rescue mission, and said:

"James, I'd like to attend one of your meetings."

"Certainly," rejoined the minister, "but leave your watch and diamonds with the hotel clerk."

"What!" asked the merchant in astonishment, "are not the men of your mission converted thieves?"

"True," answered the mission leader, softly, "but, George, you look so easy and wholesome. Really, I don't want my men to regret that they promised me never to steal again."

Her Secret Out.

Robert Watchorn, the commissioner of immigration, has made a sympathetic and thorough study of the immigrant types that reach New York.

Discussing these types the other day, he said: "The most naive are the Germans from the smaller and remoter states. They have the charmingly simple and quaint minds of children. A beautiful German girl disembarked here the other day. She was tall and strong, blue-eyed and yellow-haired. She wanted to know at once if there were any letters for her. The postmaster at the pier, after getting her name, said, by way of a joke: 'Is it a business or a love letter that you expect?' The girl faltered: 'A business letter.'

"Well, there's nothing here," said the man after looking over the assortment.

"The girl hesitated. Then, blushing as red as a rose, she said: 'Would you mind just looking among the love letters now, sir?'"

Using Left-Over Fruit.

Whenever you have any fruit left over from a meal, can it. Cook the fruit until tender, with plenty of sugar. When tender pour into your jar, which should be made hot by the use of boiling water. By placing a tablespoon or knitting needle in the jar you will prevent it from breaking when pouring in the hot fruit. The jar should be filled to overflowing, and immediately screw on the top. Then turn the jar upside down until the next day. If the juice has not leaked out the can is airtight and may be put away for winter use in a cool, dark place. By this process a jar of fruit at a time may be preserved without much labor. Never throw away the juice that is left over. If it is put in sealed glasses or jars it is very good in mince pies or may be used as a sauce over ice cream or cottage pudding.

The Unequal Struggle.

The hungry mosquito made several attempts to get into the house, but found itself barred out by wire screens.

"Robbed of my living by the iron trust," it hummed, plaintively.

Wearied by its exertions it flew back to the margin of the pond whence it came.

Some enemy had sprayed the surface of the water with kerosene, making the neighborhood utterly uninhabitable.

"Defrauded of my ancestral home by the oil trust!" it moaned. "What is the use of keeping up the struggle against predatory wealth?" Then it laid down and died—an other victim of plutocratic greed.

Murderous Act of Parisian.

A few days ago a carpenter named Letourneur was walking along the St. Martin canal. In Paris, when he seized a boy of 12 and threw him into the water. As it happened the boy could swim, but when he reached the bank, the brutal carpenter kicked him back into the water. Some burgoes ran up in time to save the boy, and after thrashing the would-be murderer, handed him over to the police. Letourneur's defense is that he wanted to earn a reward for saving the boy from drowning.

Tomatoes Stuffed with Rice.

Cut off a slice from one end of ripe tomatoes and take out the seeds with a teaspoon. Fill with boiled rice that has been drained. Dust with salt and pepper. Lay a thin slice of onion on each tomato and put them in a baking pan. Put a tablespoon of butter melted with one of water into a pan. Set in the oven; bake slowly for half an hour, basting the tomatoes occasionally. Take off the onion and serve the tomatoes with the sauce in the pan poured over them.

More Precautions Against Wrecks.

Under the new order issued by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad all locomotive engineers are required to stop at all times and pick up flagmen when the latter have been overtaken. The order is arbitrary, and is regarded as an additional precaution providing against accident by engineers disregarding flagmen and colliding with trains in distress.

Suspicious.

Pearl—I suspect that he has kissed some girl before.

Ruby—And why should you think so?

Pearl—Well, he told me to lift 'my veil, as the flavor of the dye on a veil always annoyed him.—Chicago Daily News.

Old Man Made a Guess.

Prof. Brander Matthews, along with his belief in spelling reform, believes in short words and in simple constructions. The simplicity of his prose style as it is manifested in his books is only equaled by its grace. Apropos of simplicity, Prof. Matthews said the other day: "In my youth I once passed the summer in the country. One of my friends, an elderly farm hand, visited New York during my country visit and on his return I said to him, employing a word needlessly complex and long: 'Well, Jabez, how did you like the metropolis?'"

"'Wot say?' asked the old man.

"'How did you like the metropolis?'" I repeated.

"'Twa'n't open,' said he."

Safety in Coupling.

A new and useful invention is now being tested on the railroads and tramways of Belgium, which promises to do away with the most prolific cause of accidents during shunting.

The apparatus is in two parts, the first an automatic coupling arrangement, and the other an automatic brake whereby if a coupling snaps the detached vehicles are at once brought to a standstill.

On a trial trip in which nearly all the chief railway officials participated, all sorts of tests were made and the arrangement was declared to be a complete success.

WAY TO TELL A DIAMOND.

Useful Hint for Lovers of These Beautiful Stones.

The jeweler made a small dot, like a period, on a piece of white paper with a lead pencil. Then he held a large diamond over the dot. "Look through this," he said. Through the diamond the dot looked precisely the same as before. "Now look through this," he said, taking up another stone. Through the second stone the dot was transformed to three dots. "There," the jeweler said, "is an easy way for the average man to tell a real diamond from an imitation. A dot on a piece of paper, looked at through a real diamond, is the same as before; but, looked at through a fake, it shows double or triple, or it appears blurred, scattered."

Beggar's Ready Explanation. Eugene Higgins at a dinner on his yacht Varuna described a winter he had spent at Nice.

"But the Nice beggars!" he said, laughing. "The splendid, sun-drenched Promenade des Anglais, with its ivory white villas on one side and the blue Mediterranean on the other, is always haunted with these beggars. One of them accosted me one morning as I came out of the Cercle Meditaneen, the fashionable French club.

"Monsieur," he said, "one little sou, for the love of heaven. My poor wife is starving."

"Why, look here," said I, "only last week I gave you some money to bury your wife and now you tell me she is starving. How can that be?"

"But, monsieur," said the beggar, "I have a new wife now."

Dissuading a Tempter.

A pompous Chicago merchant, arrogantly carrying the signs of his prosperity about him, accosted an acquaintance of his who conducts a successful rescue mission, and said: "James, I'd like to attend one of your meetings."

"Certainly," rejoined the minister, "but leave your watch and diamonds with the hotel clerk."

"What!" asked the merchant in astonishment, "are not the men of your mission converted thieves?"

"True," answered the mission leader, softly, "but, George, you look so easy and wholesome. Really, I don't want my men to regret that they promised me never to steal again."

Her Secret Out.

Robert Watchorn, the commissioner of immigration, has made a sympathetic and thorough study of the immigrant types that reach New York. Discussing these types the other day, he said: "The most naive are the Germans from the smaller and remoter states. They have the charmingly simple and quaint minds of children. A beautiful German girl disembarked here the other day. She was tall and strong, blue-eyed and yellow-haired. She wanted to know at once if there were any letters for her. The postmaster at the pier, after getting her name, said, by way of a joke: 'Is it a business or a love letter that you expect?' The girl faltered: 'A business letter.'

"Well, there's nothing here," said the man after looking over the assortment.

"The girl hesitated. Then, blushing as red as a rose, she said: 'Would you mind just looking among the love letters now, sir?'"

Using Left-Over Fruit.

Whenever you have any fruit left over from a meal, can it. Cook the fruit until tender, with plenty of sugar. When tender pour into your jar, which should be made hot by the use of boiling water. By placing a tablespoon or knitting needle in the jar you will prevent it from breaking when pouring in the hot fruit. The jar should be filled to overflowing, and immediately screw on the top. Then turn the jar upside down until the next day. If the juice has not leaked out the can is airtight and may be put away for winter use in a cool, dark place. By this process a jar of fruit at a time may be preserved without much labor. Never throw away the juice that is left over. If it is put in sealed glasses or jars it is very good in mince pies or may be used as a sauce over ice cream or cottage pudding.

The Unequal Struggle.

The hungry mosquito made several attempts to get into the house, but found itself barred out by wire screens.

"Robbed of my living by the iron trust," it hummed, plaintively. Wearied by its exertions it flew back to the margin of the pond whence it came.

Some enemy had sprayed the surface of the water with kerosene, making the neighborhood utterly uninhabitable.

"Defrauded of my ancestral home by the oil trust!" it moaned. "What is the use of keeping up the struggle against predatory wealth?" Then it laid down and died—an other victim of plutocratic greed.

Murderous Act of Parisian.

A few days ago a carpenter named Letourneur was walking along the St. Martin canal, in Paris, when he seized a boy of 12 and threw him into the water. As it happened the boy could swim, but when he reached the bank, the brutal carpenter kicked him back into the water. Some barges ran up in time to save the boy, and after thrashing the would-be murderer, handed him over to the police. Letourneur's defense is that he wanted to earn a reward for saving the boy from drowning.

Tomatoes Stuffed with Rice.

Cut off a slice from one end of ripe tomatoes and take out the seeds with a teaspoon. Fill with boiled rice that has been drained. Dust with salt and pepper. Lay a thin slice of onion on each tomato and put them in a baking pan. Put a tablespoon of butter melted with one of water into a pan. Set in the oven; bake slowly for half an hour, basting the tomatoes occasionally. Take off the onion and serve the tomatoes with the sauce in the pan poured over them.

More Precautions Against Wrecks.

Under the new order issued by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad all locomotive engineers are required to stop at all times and pick up flagsmen when the latter have been overtaken. The order is arbitrary, and is regarded as an additional precaution providing against accident by engineers disregarding flagsmen and colliding with trains in distress.

Suspicious.

Pearl—I suspect that he has kissed some girl before.

Ruby—And why should you think so?

Pearl—Well, he told me to lift my veil, as the flavor of the dye on a veil always annoyed him.—Chicago Daily News.

Old Man Made a Guess.

Prof. Brander Matthews, along with his belief in spelling reform, believes in short words and in simple constructions. The simplicity of his prose style as it is manifested in his books is only equaled by its grace. Apropos of simplicity, Prof. Matthews said the other day: "In my youth I once passed the summer in the country. One of my friends, an elderly farm hand, visited New York during my country visit and on his return I said to him, employing a word needlessly complex and long: 'Well, Jabez, how did you like the metropolis?'"

"'Wot say?' asked the old man.

"'How did you like the metropolis?'" I repeated.

"'Twa'n't open,' said he."

TELEPHONE 136

FRIDAY, JAN. 25, 1907

Weeks have passed since the state fire marshal went to Princeton bent on bringing to justice the night raiders who disgraced the name of Kentucky and perpetuated an outrage on society by burning two warehouses, locking up the police and fire apparatus and subjecting the citizens to terror and their city to the perils of a conflagration. What has been the result? One man was arrested and discharged by the examining magistrate and the audience cheered the decision. There were hundreds of men in that calvacade that took possession of Princeton, and were at no pains to conceal their work. It is impossible that their names are not known. Naturally the inhabitants are dumb with terror, but it is up to the state authorities to see that the men, who committed the crime are disclosed and sent to prison. That this crime should go unpunished is unthinkable.—Paducah Sun.

It is certain unthinkable and absolutely unpardonable that Caldwell county should allow this burning outrage to go unpunished. If the citizens of Princeton will arise and see that the guilty parties are landed in the penitentiary, such an act will atone and restore confidence. If they do not then the outside world takes it for granted that the business element in Princeton either connive at the outrage or are very weak in the enforcement of law.

Whenever the resolutions in regard to the Brownsville affair come to a vote in the Senate, if they ever do, the Democratic Senators will vote to sustain the President's action. They have so decided, and they could not act otherwise and be consistent. Yet we wish to give them credit for that consistency. And with Republicans, well, to us it looks something like this. In his magnificent speech placing Grant in nomination in the Chicago convention Senator Conkling said substantially: "The Third term does not enter into the question. None are opposed to the Third term save those who are hopelessly longing for the First term." Around the ambition and genius of Senator Foraker may be found the determined opposition to President Roosevelt on the Brownsville question. To discredit President Roosevelt and to eliminate Secretary Taft as a Presidential possibility are schemes of such magnitude and daring as to be worthy of Senator Foraker's great ability—on these he has staked his chances, and he seems destined to lose.—Pantagraph.

Sir Alexander Swettenham governor of the British colony on the island of Jamaica refused the proffered offers of help from Admiral Davis and dismissed from the island all the United States battle ships. He conducted the whole affair in a churlish manner and thereby came near getting the British foreign office in a pretty mess. The stirring scenes incident to the earthquake no doubt unbalanced him to some extent, and it is up to him to now make due explanations and possibly apologies. Great Britain will not allow anything that looks like a slight or a snub to the United States to pass unnoticed, and therefore we read that practically all the ministers are adopting a highly appreciative attitude toward the United States and it cannot be doubted that the incident will be settled probably by the recall of governor Swettenham.

We think we saw somewhere that the last week resulted in the death of thirty-five or forty people. Time was when a wreck of like proportions would have blackened the front page of every daily paper in the United States. The last slaughter was hardly noticed from ordinary news and if the present trend of affairs keeps up the daily press will be obliged to "cut out" wrecks for the simple reason they cannot give all their news space to one subject.

Professor Charles W. Oldrieve the champion water walker and wave climber has passed down the Ohio on his way to New Orleans. He is, according to the Uniontown Telegram "The king of fakers". The Telegram describes his whole show a farce and claims that he rides in a gasoline launch most of the time. The Professor has succeeded in gaining quite a lot of free advertising and his hat passing act is also quite a success.

Marion Needs One.

The following is taken from a Paducah paper. We would like for every business man in Marion to read it carefully and prayerfully. Marion needs something of the sort. She has one kind of sand required. Has she got the other kind?

"Just one little effort and then the end is accomplished. The Commercial Club has come to the final rally for the $15,000 bonus for the glass plant. There yet remains only $1,750 to be raised. Those who have given, have given generously and promptly, but the last thousand dollars is harder to raise than all the thirteen odd thousand that preceded it. Committeemen are devoting hours from their business to raising this money, and it seems wrong that they should be compelled to worry it out of the business men. The committeemen first subscribed to the fund and then carried the paper around to others. It is as little as the others could do, to write their names down voluntarily. The glass plant will throw $3,500 weekly into the retain trade channels. Every man in Paducah will realize some benefit from the increased wealth and the increased population. Owensboro which once had a glass plant, experienced no difficulty whatsoever in raising a bonus to get another one, because the people know the value of it. Other cities not so fortunately located as Paducah, would give more money than this city is called upon to contribute to the expense of moving the plant here. Come, let us get the rest of that $15,000 before another week goes by."

Some of the driest men in the world have been seen on the streets of Marion in the last few days.

Four more rural routes starting from Marion are a probability in the near future.

Real Hooligan Coming

Hooligan's Troubles, the King of Laugh provokers, now in its fifth season, is coming. Five years ago it made an instantaneous hit—at its first production—and still continues to do so. Mark E. Swan, the author, conceived the idea of writing the play from the famous character cartoon, appearing in the great dailies, and confined himself strictly to the various people or characters used by the cartoonist. By confining himself strictly to these, he produced an unequalled success. There isn't a dull character in it, and they all create natural laughter. The plot is sensible, interesting, and being entirely free of buffoonery, it is lasting. The original number one (only) company comes to Marion Opera House Monday evening, Jan. 28, and will offer Hooligan's Troubles exactly as has been presented in all the larger cities for fun lovers. The program includes twenty-one up-to-date musical and specialty features, including the famous Parisian sensation, The Red Domino.

Rhode Island Red Hens

Respectfully referred to Dr. J. O. Dixon, John A. Moore and Levi Cook for their approval or disapproval and perusal:

"January 1, 1907, marked the close of a series of experiments extending over a period of two years with 100 Rhode Island Red hens. Rhode Island Reds are a comparatively new chicken having only been admitted to the 'Standard' by the American Poultry Association in February, 1904, but as a result of the experiments conducted at this station we have no hesitation in saying that they have more good practical points combined with fewer undesirable qualities than any other chicken. They are broilers at seven weeks, fliers at nine weeks, layers at twenty weeks.

When full grown Rhode Island Red hens weigh seven to nine pounds each and cocks nine to thirteen pounds. They are big red birds with brown beaks, red eyes and smooth yellow legs. The males are rich cherry red and the females a lighter shade of red. They have the laying qualities of the Leghorn, the vitality of the Malay Game and the heavy coat of feathers peculiar to the Cochins, but with bare legs.

Their color does not show soil and they are a desirable table fowl at any age, having oblong bodies, wide, deep, full plump breasts and yellow skin. They mature early, are very hardy and will stand severe winters and continue laying. They are good hustlers and bug hunters and so require less feed than common chickens. They lay big brown eggs, are enthusiastic setters and excellent mothers, although at the same time they can be easily broken from setting. They are free from disease and with their wonderful laying qualities, especially in the winter, are the ideal farmer's fowl.

The census statistics of 1900 show the average yield per hen throughout the United States is only 120 eggs annually. The experiments at this station have shown conclusively that Rhode Island Reds can be depended on to lay from 190 to 210 eggs per hen, and as they cost less than ordinary chickens to maintain, it would seem to be a logical conclusion that Kentucky poultry raisers would do well to devote their attention to this wonderful new chicken. A small folder accurately describing Rhode Island Reds and giving such useful advice as to raising, housing, feeding and mating chickens will be sent free to citizens of Kentucky on application to Moss J. BRALL, Director Experiment Station, Horse Cave, Ky.

A Letter From Missouri.

Odessa, Mo., Jan. 21st, 1907.

DEAR RECORD:—Thinking it might be of interest to your many readers to hear from me, I therefore ask a short space in your columns to say a few things. I reached this place Dec. 27, 1906., and my family joined me Jan. 18, 1907. Odessa is a thriving little town situated on the Chicago & Alton railroad forty miles east of Kansas City, with 1800 population, and surrounded by a comparatively level and very fertile country. There are two banks, three drug stores, two furniture stores, three hardware stores, eight dry goods and clothing and department stores, one shoe store, six groceries, three restaurants, three hotels, four blacksmiths shops, two jewelers, two cobblers shops, two meat shops, two poultry houses, two lumber yards, one bakery, four livery and feed stables, three mule and sale stables, eight churches, good public schools, one college, one cannery, one flouring mill, one grain elevator, and several other minor business houses too numerous to mention, and preachers, lawyers, dentists and doctors by the whole bunch, and that which is best of all is that the "lid is on" good and tight. I have been here about four weeks and have not seen a single person who seemed to be the least bit under the influence of liquor. To those who are interested to know will say I have purchased a nice little home here, and am hoping that the future holds naught but comparative contentment and a good degree of prosperity for myself and family.

As to my ministerial labors here it will require time in order to estimate results.

May heaven's richest blessings rest upon the RECORD and its hosts of readers.

Yours sincerely,
J. L. PARIS.

It Rains

"It rains," cries the coal dealer. "Ain't it the devil?"

For weeks I have not sold a lump! It only means prices will rise when this crises is over, and then watch 'em jump!" "It rains," cries the debutante.

"Isn't it awful! I can't do a thing with my hair! This nasty old drizzle Takes out all the frizzle—I simply won't go any where."

"It rains," cries the school-marm. "How very untimely!"

Pray what barometric relation Could render this strata

Pro rata per data So excessive in precipitation?"

"It rains," cries the chorus. "Oh, would it would cease!"

Whatever our motives or reason We'd all gladly greet

Either hail, snow or sleet, But pray no more rainfall this season!"—Gleaner.

AMONG OUR CHURCHES

Rev. J. H. Butler preached at the Baptist church Sunday morning. He read for the lesson the tenth chapter of Romans: His text was Romans 10:1, "Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to Israel is, that they might be saved." The sermon was a good one, preached to a large congregation.

Rev. Virgil Elgin preached Sunday evening at the Methodist church. He read Luke nineteenth chapter for the lesson. His text was Psalms 119:9, "Wherewithal, shall a young man cleanse his way? By taking heed thereto according to thy word." The sermon was delivered especially to young men and was listened to by a large audience. The protracted services closed Sunday night.

Rev. Andres preached at the Presbyterian church last Sunday on the doctrine of God. The text was Deut. 6:4, "The Lord our God is one Lord." The idea of God is vague in the minds of many men on account of their lack of knowledge of the scriptures. The world owes a great debt to the Presbyterian Standards for the excellent description of God in the shorter catechism, which is based upon God's Word. God is a spirit, infinite, eternal and unchangeable, in His being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness and truth. There is but one God only, the living and true God. There are three persons in the Godhead; the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, and these three are one God, the same in substance, equal in power and glory. This is the description of God as contained in the Westminster Standards, and covers the scope of scriptural teaching on this subject. This refers to His being attributes, and to the Trinity of God. He is the only living in contrast to gods of the heathen. He is infinite, eternal and unchangeable. His attributes may be classified as follows:—Intellectual, moral and emotional. The review of this doctrine suggests these practical thoughts:—1st, Faith in God; 2nd, Love for God; 3rd, obedience to God; 4th, The souls devout worship of God.

The celebration of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the Presbyterian church next Sunday. Preparatory service will be held Thursday and Friday night at seven o'clock, and on Saturday at 10:30 o'clock.

The bible class at the C. P. church had an interesting session last Sunday afternoon. It will meet again the first Sunday in Feb. afternoon. Every one who loves bible study is cordially invited to come. You will find it helpful and interesting. The next lesson will be Gen. x—xiv; also a study of Job and his times.

BITS OF BYPLAY.

Quite a little pleasantry has been handed around and mostly by Col. D. C. Roberts anent the multifarious duties of certain people in Marion. Until the attention is called one is not apt to think of the many and various duties devolving on those whose work follows several channels. Take for instance one of our physicians, Dr. T. A. Frazer, and let us see if we can dig up all the things in which he is interested. He represents in a medical way quite a number of life insurance companies as examiner. He is a member of The American Medical Association, The Kentucky State Medical Association, The Ohio Valley Medical Association, The South Kentucky Medical Association, The Crittenden County Medical Society, The Farmers Association, and he is honorary member of The Union County Medical Society. Dr. Frazer is a member of The Golden Cross, The Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and the Masonic Lodge. He also is member of The Auxiliary Legislative Committee of the American Medical Association and Secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, Health Officer for Crittenden county and Referee for the State Board of Health. We might stop at this and do very well, but a few others should be mentioned. He is secretary of the board of pension examiners, is Vice President of the Crittenden County Medical Society, Vice Grand in the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Senior Warden of Bigham Lodge A. F. and A. M., Trustee of the M. E. church south and from the last accounts we had of him he was a member in good standing of the Methodist church in Marion.

An editor in Grayville, Ill., trespasses as follows: "A modest young lady of taste, Was given a peek-a-boo waist But the stuff was so thin, That they called it peek in, Which shocked the young lady of taste."

We sent this verse to Colonel Roberts at Carthage, Tenn, asking for a character, and he replied with this: "A modest young man of Joliet, Was given a filthy cigarette, He sucked it there, And lost his air, And killed the darned scoundrel."

A tale has gone the rounds whether so or not the CRITTENDEN RECORD does not vouch. Mr. Frank M. Fisher, of Paducah, wanted to build a dwelling.

He had so much money to put in the house and was at a loss how to proceed. He finally solved the problem by advertising for bids for a $15,000 house. All the plans and specifications there were had been boiled down to one question, "What will you give me for $15,000?" It is said that some of the contractors drew off and would not make any bids at all.

Marion Milling Company's Products

The makers name on a food article means a great deal to the consumer—also the maker of the product if it has merit.

The name Marion Milling Co., stands back of it—it means that the maker is proud to use his name in connection with the product.

The names "ELK" and "CROWN" is on all the flour products of the Marion Milling Co., because the makers are positive their flour is clean, honestly made, wholesome, and satisfactory and that the product is a credit to their name.

When you buy the Marion Milling Company's flour product you know what you are getting, and you know that their guarantee behind it means something.

When you order from your grocery specify the Marion Milling Company's Flour and help a home industry, and same will be appreciated by your friends.

Senator Carmack, of Tennessee, is after the manner of the late Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, rhetorically. He bites off his sentences in his oratorical flights and hurls them with considerable force. A few days ago the Brownsville affair was up before the Senate for consideration and in the midst of a speech he referred to "Fire Alarm Foraker," of Ohio, and delivered himself thus:

"I can remember with what frantic energy he used to wave the bloody shirt—a red shirt with the crimson current of his own rhetoric; I remember how he used to go raging over the land a bifurcated, peripatetic volcano in perennial eruption, belching fire and smoke and melted lava from his agonized and tumultuous bowels. I can remember how in his speeches he spattered the gall of his bitterness on the South until I came to think that the Senator wished all the white people of the South—men, women, children and babes at the breast—had but a single neck, that he might sever it at a blow."

A little nigger sat on a door step and howled. His wallings were long and loud. A man passed and stopped. He noticed the similarity of this kid and the Katzenjammer outfit and when the hubbub had somewhat subsided he inquired, "Say kid, what is the matter?" After calm had been restored the little pickaninny replied, "Oh Mr. Cook, she put the power to me."

Harry Allis, the ever rotund and ready knight of the road, blew into Marion one night this week for the purpose of calling up some of his constituency located at Tolu and transacting hardware business by wire. After staying with Quint Conyer's table until all the others had fled he finally rolled into the hotel office and said, "I heard the other day of an optimist who certainly filled the bill for a definition of the word. It was an old woman who had been in the poor house forty years. She said she was so thankful, and when asked what she was thankful for she said she was so thankful that she had two teeth left and that they were directly opposite."

A dry looking individual paced back and forth before the law office of Moore & Moore and the insurance office of Bourland & Haynes one day last week. His gaze into the two offices was eager and was supplemented by a look of expectancy. A lady was seated in the office of Moore & Moore, so he knew that would not do at all at all. Joe Bourland had been standing in the middle of his office watching the dry individual and as he opened the door preparatory to making an inquiry about Old Hickory Joe drew out in his inimitable style, "Got a-n-y l-a-u-n-d-r-y?"

If Colonel Double Column Roberts will only come back and try and live down the John P. Reed Mining Development Exploitation and Building lot 18x20 Company all will be forgiven. He can have a job on this sheet at a handsome salary from editor in chief up to the position held by Hon. Ben Wright, and we feel certain this handsome salary will be doubled if he will only resurrect the children's column among the columns of our most distinguished and esteemed contemporary, "The Crittenden Press."

A prominent merchant of this town tells this: One day not many months ago he went to Crooked Creek for a day of fishing sport. He was well provided with all those things that make fishing popular. After a long wait he was rewarded by a nibble and then a bite. With a dexterous jerk and a steady pull he finally landed a keg on the bank, and, lo and behold, he found that his bait had fallen through the bung hole of the keg and had been captured by a fish too big to go through the only opening left in the keg. His explanation of the occurrence wound up by stating that there was only two solutions to the mystery, the first was that the fish on feeling the hook got scared and the fright caused him to get small enough to enter the bung hole where upon feeling somewhat secure in his surroundings he swelled up and could not get out. The other was that the fish went in the keg when it was a little minnow and grew there until he could not get out. Obe Young standing by said, "Yes, I have another theory and it beats those two. My theory is that the whole thing is a lie."

Iron Hill.

A paradise for mud wasp—Crittenden county.

The back water is coming again.

Married Sunday morning Jan. 20th, at the home of the bride, Bert Walker and Miss Belda Crowell, Rev. W. T. Oakley officiating.

G. P. Wilson, of Weston, spent a few days last week with friends here.

John Butler is moving his corn from the Blue bottoms to his home near Tribune.

Fell Walker, of Farmersville, spent Sunday night with his father's family.

Rev. Oakley filled his regular appointment at Sugar Grove Saturday and Sunday.

Maggie Walker who has been living with her brother at Farmersville, has come home to live.

Hog killing is the order of the day.

Crayneville

Glad indeed, to see the sun shining once more.

Those who have tobacco are hauling it to Marion.

Jas. F. Canada went to Marion Tuesday.

Jim Hill and family are moving to the late Mrs. M. E. Crayne house.

Jesse McCaslin and family are moving to their home here from Marion.

W. Harrison Bigham, of Chapel Hill, was here Tuesday.

Elbert Scott, of near Fredonia, attended Sunday school here Sunday.

Thos. Woodall, wife and children returned Sunday with Mrs. Sanders, Mrs. Woodall's mother, to her home near Otter Pond. They will stay probably a month or more.

Saturday and Sunday are Rev. Oakley's regular appointment. Everybody come and hear a good sermon.

Life Only a Century Ago.

One hundred years ago a man could not send a telegram.

He could not ride a bicycle.

He had never struck a match.

He had never crossed an iron bridge.

He had never ridden on an elevator.

He had never taken a ride on a steamboat.

He had never seen his wife use a sewing machine.

He had never used anything but a wooden plow.

He had never seen a reaper or a self-binding harvester.

He would not call in a stenographer and dictate a letter.

He could not go from Washington to New York in a few hours.

He had never seen an electric light or dreamed of an electric car.

He couldn't take an anaesthetic and have his leg cut off without feeling it.

He never looked pleasant before a photographer, or had his picture taken.

He couldn't talk through the telephone and he had never heard of the hello girl.

He never saw through a Webster's unabridged dictionary with the aid of a Roentgen ray.

He could not buy a paper and learn things that happened all over the world.

WHAT IS CATARRH?

Simple Way to Overcome the Dangers of this Disagreeable Disease

Stomach dosing in the hope of curing catarrh of the head and throat is useless and often leads to serious stomach trouble.

Hyomei, breathed through, a special
inhaler that comes with every outfit, brings a medicated healing air to every part of the nose and throat, killing all catarrhal germs and soothing and easing any irritation in the mucus membrane.

A complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1, extra bottles of Hyomei, if needed, 50 cents, and Haynes & Taylor give their personal guarantee with every package that money will be refunded
unless the treatment cures.

CHEAPER FARM LANDS.

Southwest Offers Best Opportunities
For Securing Homes.

Many farmers in the Northern and Eastern states are selling their high priced lands and locating in the Southwest. Many who have been unable to own their homes in the older country are buying land in the new country.

Unusual opportunities exist along the lines of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain Route. The rich, alluvial, delta lands and river bottom lands of Southeast Missouri, Eastern Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, capable of producing 60 bushels of corn, a bale of cotton, 4 to 6 tons of alfalfa, 150 bushels of potatoes, and other grains, vegetables and hay crops, can be bought for $7.50 to $15.00 per acre. When cleared and slightly improved will rent for $4.00 to $6.00 per acre cash.

Uplands more rolling, lighter soil,
adapted to fruit growing—peaches,
pears, plums, grapes, berries, also melons, tomatoes and other vegetables, can be bought for $5 to $10 per acre in unimproved state. Many places with small clearings and some improvements
can be bought very cheap.

This is a fine stock country. No long winter feeding. Free range, pure water, mild climate. A healthy growing country, with a great future.

ture on Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana,

PLENTY OF CHALK.

A Block That Was Once as Large as the Continent of Europe.

The small piece of chalk which is in constant use in the schoolroom, the lecture room, the billiard room and the workshop has a strange history, the unraveling of which through all its complexities is one of the most difficult problems with which the science of the present day is called upon to deal. This piece is in reality a chip of an immense block of chalk that once filled an area the size of the continent of Europe and of which even yet several gigantic fragments remain, each hundreds of square miles in extent.
These patches are scattered over the region lying between Ireland on the west and China on the east and extend in the other direction from Sweden in the north to Portugal in the south.

In the British Isles the chalk is found in greatest perfection and continuity in the east and southeast of England. A sheet of chalk underlies all that portion of England which is situated to the southeast of a line crossing the island diagonally from the North Sea at Flamborough head to the coast on the English channel in Dorset. This enormous sheet of chalk is tilted up slightly on the west, and its depressed eastern portions that dip toward the waters of the North sea are usually buried from sight by means of overlying sands and clays. Where the edges of the chalk floor come upon the sea the cliff scenery is strikingly grand and beautiful. Any one who has once seen the magnificent rocks of Flamborough and Beachy head, the jagged stacks of the Needles or the dizzy mass of Shakespeare's cliff, near Dover, can understand why "the white cliffs of Albion" has grown into a stock phrase.

This massive sheet of chalk appears again in France, in many parts of Europe as far east as the Crimea and even in central Asia beyond the sea of Aral. How far it stretched westward into what is now the Atlantic may never be known, but chalk cliffs of at least 200 feet in thickness are seen at Antrim, in Ireland, and less conspicuous formations are found in Scotland, in Argyll and Aberdeen. There can be little question that all these now isolated patches were once connected in a continuous sheet, which must therefore have occupied a superficial area about 3,000 miles long by nearly 1,000 broad,
an extent larger than that of the present continent of Europe.

Sitting Bull and the Telephone.

Sitting Bull had been captured by the United States troops and was held in close confinement. So also was another obstreperous Indian held in confinement at a post about 100 miles away. The officer in charge of Sitting Bull had been chasing the Indians
for two months and was wondering what he would do with the captive.
In an inspired moment he decided to arrange an interview between the two Indians over the telephone. After the necessary ringing up Sitting Bull was asked if he cared to talk into the machine. He talked into it for several minutes and did a heap of listening also. He put down the instrument finally and for hours was even more gloomy than usual, at last beginning to talk to himself, something very rare for the Indian. Asked if he was dissatisfied with his accommodations or if there was anything he could do for him, he broke forth at last:

"No, I'm finished. It's all right when the white man's plaything talks the white man's language, but when it learns to talk the red man's tongue it's time to stop."

It is believed that this talk over the telephone between the two Indians had a considerable influence in shortening the Indian wars.—Boston Herald.

When Umbrellas Were First Used.

Umbrellas are of great antiquity.
Among the Greeks they were a mark of elevated rank, and one is seen on a Hamilton vase in the hands of a princess. We find the umbrella figured upon the ruins of Persepolis, and the Romans carried it at the theater to keep off the sun. Yet Coryate, the traveler, in 1611 notices the umbrellas of Italy as rarities. These and other umbrellas are only described for keeping off the sun, which may be explained by the comparative scarcity of rain in the above countries. The frequency of rain in other lands led to their being used for a very different purpose. Jonas Hanway is described to have been the first to walk the streets of London with an umbrella over his head, which he had probably used in his travels in the east. And in 1778 one John Macdonald, a footman, was ridiculed for carrying in the streets an umbrella which he had brought from Spain. However, as he tells us, he persisted for three months in carrying his umbrella, till people took no further notice of the novelty.

Dogs and Fleas.

I have tried all sorts of soaps and solutions for killing fleas on dogs, with the result that the dogs die first. Now, fleas are as much a part of a dog as ticks are of a cow. But, of course, there must not be too many fleas on the family pet—just enough to keep it well tickled and to prevent it from becoming too phlegmatic. There seems to be but one cure, and it comes from the land of fleas—India. The Hindus use a crude oil emulsion, which consists of 80 per cent of crude petroleum mixed with 20 per cent of whale oil soap.
This combination forms a jelly which mixes freely with water. A 3 per cent solution is used. At 10 per cent it kills fleas with perfect certainty. Any animal washed with it will be relieved of the insects. It can be applied to walls, ceilings and floors by means of a garden sprayer.—New York Press.

WALT WHITMAN.

Days of the Poet Who Was Loved by All Who Knew Him.

This is the Walt Whitman who was known and loved by those who met him daily.

"After some conversation Whitman proposed a walk across to Philadelphia.
Putting on his gray slouch hat, he called forth with evident leisure and, taking my arm as a support, walked slowly
the best part of a mile to the ferry.
Crossing the ferry was always a great pleasure to him. The life of the street and of the people was so near, so dear.
The men on the ferry steamer were evidently old friends, and when we landed on the Philadelphia side we were before long quite besieged—the man or woman seeking fish at the corner of the street, the tramway conductor, the loafers on the pavement—a word of recognition from Walt or as often from the other first; presently
a cheery shout from the top of a drag,
and before we had gone many yards farther the driver was down and standing in front of us, his hands given to the care of some bystander. He was an old Broadway 'singer,' had not seen Walt for three or four years, and tears
were in his eyes as he held his hand.
We were now brought to a standstill, and others gathered round. George was ill, and Walt must go and see him.
There was a message for the children,
and in his pocket the poet discovered
one or two packets for absent little ones. But for the most part his words were few. It was the others who spoke and apparently without reserve."
—Whitman as Carpenter Saw Him in Craftsman.

A CRUEL ENDING

The Lonely Death and Desecrated
Grave of Laurence Sterne.

Laurence Sterne, the great writer,
was left alone in his rooms on Bond street, London, in those last bitter days, with a servant of the lodging house for his only attendant. As he lay dying a knock was heard at the door and a footman entered, come from a house near by to inquire as to his health.

The footman waited till the end, saw
the thin arm raised as if to ward off
a blow and heard the almost inarticulate murmur from white lips, "Now it is come."
Then he went back to the house, where a large party was gathered, and told the news to the feasters, most of whom were Sterne's friends. For the space of half an hour they lamented him, and then the talk turned on other things—so soon are we forgotten in this workaday world.

"Alas, poor Yorick!" His publisher and a single friend followed him to the tomb, while ghouls watched outside and marked the spot where he was laid. Two nights afterward the body was stolen, shipped to Cambridge and placed, strangely enough, upon the dissecting table at his own university.
A friend recognized his features and fainted away when it was too late to stop the desecration.—Myrtle Reed in Book News Monthly.

The Typewriter.

Although he was not the first to devise a machine for typewriting, John Pratt won the distinction of inventing
the first working typewriter that secured a sale. He was born in Unioville, S. C., on April 14, 1821, and in 1864, with his wife, he went to England, Pratt devoting his time to the invention of a mechanism which he designated the "pterotype," the first practical typewriter. Provisional protection to the invention was granted by the British government in February, 1864,
and on Dec. 1, 1869, letters patent No.
3163 were granted to Pratt. On returning to the United States, in 1868,
he secured letters patent in this country. Mr. Pratt was the first inventor of a machine in which a type wheel was moved by key levers, and he was the first man to make and sell typewriters, having sold several in London in 1867.

Mexican Musicians.

We were listening to the playing of a military band the other night when my friend said: "Do you know that, although I have heard just about all of the best orchestras and bands in this country at different times, I have not discovered a single one that can hold a candle to Mexican musicians? Those fellows are something wonderful, all full of music, and, although half of them cannot read the language of their country, they read the music and get notes from their instruments that would really astonish you."—Columbus Dispatch.

A Little Sarcasm.

An old woman went into a grocer's
and ordered a pennyworth of carrots.
After being served she inquired, "I've not throw something in wi' them?"
"Oh, yis," replied the grocerwoman; "if ye wait a minute I'll throw in a seek o' titties an' a barrel o' apples an' a hundredweight o' turnips an' a box o' oranges! An'," he shouted as the old woman flounced out of the shop, "when I'm busy I'll throw in the horse an' calf! If ye not satisfied then, come back for the shop!"—London Mail.

A Half Length Picture.

A countryman bargained with a California photographer for a half length picture of himself at half price, and when the artist delivered a fine view of the subject from the waistband down the victimized sitter indulged in remarks more forcible than polite.—
Philadelphia Inquirer.

All Wrong.

New Curate—Your husband is a confirmed invalid, is he not? Mrs. Bill yus—Confirmed, sir? No, sir; he ain' Church of England. New Curate—mean, is he a permanent invalid? Mr.
Billyus—Permanent? Lor', no! Doc-says he can't last a month.

The Franks-Grady Discussion

My friend's letters have been unkind. His criticisms have unfair and unjust. He brings into this discussion a statement of mine and has never written a line upon the original subject. He has me charged with finding a kinship between man and lower animal. Let us examine the article entitled, "More Explanations." He begins by saying, "It seems to me the more C. E. G. explains the more complicated his case becomes." Listen to the last paragraph of this letter. "If you had never said what you did at Weston, and then jumped up by the way of THE RECORD for what we said at Weston concerning your talk there we would now nearly agree." His statements seem to be contradictory. He finds much fault at first but now nearly agrees. Again he says, "A man that would cavel over the comparison between a human and a hog needs to stand up for a while, at least, until he recovers from the skimming," but he also says, (quoting from me) "that a woman that would go to a saloon and get drunk, and lay out all night is but little better than a hog." I say so too, and I say the same thing of a man, if you do not care.

He claims I have committed a great crime, but did you notice that he agreed with me? Stand brother, until you recover from the skimming. He told me that I ought to consider that ignorance is bliss. A young fellow here recently gave some whisky to a minor, he stated in court that he thought the boy was 21. He was ignorant of the boy's age. He is now in jail, surely he is happy, for ignorance is bliss.

I once heard a sermon delivered by a Methodist Circuit rider, he gave an illustration where some young fellow had died who knew not God. He was trying to show the importance of the individual reading the bible. This young fellow had listened too much to others and was ignorant of the real teaching of Christ. He seemed to think that this young fellow missed heaven, but I guess he was happy, for ignorance is bliss. On Jan. 20th, 1907, I heard a minister say that she knew of a mother who taught her boy how to play cards, claiming no harm could come from his learning. He is now a gambler, and the mother is in sorrow, she should be happy according to my friend, for ignorance is bliss.

He states that "the force from above does not save without co-operation." Friends I believe the Grace of God is sufficient to save to the uttermost. I believe there are christian women who have husbands as mean as Satan himself. Talk about my heresy, but how this? Should he a student of this institution go out and make such a statement? There are people in this state who would say that Indiana University would not turn out another skeptic. It is unfair, unjust and unkind to so severely criticize a college student when he makes a statement you oppose. Strange to me we cannot hear something new.

This is not all, "He says, (quoting again from me) criticism never kills." I said, "criticism need not kill." Again quoting from me, he says, "that a woman that would go to a saloon, get drunk and lay out all night is but little better than a hog." I never said this. I don't believe it. I said in my letter, "the woman who will leave her child to go to a saloon, get drunk and remain out all night and when she is sober go home and live in dirt like a hog is but little better than a hog." Any school boy can see a difference.

Now why do I speak of a woman and not a man? I have been taught that the best thing on earth is a good woman and I was also taught in my youth that the worst thing in all the world is a bad woman. I did not say man for fear that some one who would read my letters might have a relative who was a drunkard. I knew no woman in the county that drank.

According to my friend, my own relative is no better than a hog. According to my friend, my own dear sister is living with a man who is no better than a hog. How cruel this old world is! I have never taken a dram of whisky in my life, but I must listen to some man who tells me that my own brother is no better than a hog. I am not offended, I have heard it before. When my college career is ended, I wish to return to you, my own dear people, just a plain Crittenden county boy and not merely a lad who sees wonderful visions or dreams strange dreams.

C. E. GRADY.

Indiana University, January 21, 1907.

A Great Outside Remedy

Most pains are of local origin—a "crick" in the back, a twinge of rheumatism, a soreness all over arising from a cold—are all cured by outside applications. The quickest, safest and most certain method is Alcock's Plaster, known the world over as a universal remedy for pain. They never fail, they act promptly, they are clean and cheap. You can go right ahead with your work while the healing process goes on. Sixty years' use has given them a great reputation.

A Contrary Flag.

If ever there was anything in the world that went by contraries, it is the Chinese flag. It will be recalled that it is one of the gayest of national standards. The body of the banner is of a pale yellow. In the upper left hand corner is a small red sun, and looking at it is a fierce Chinese dragon. About 1,000 years ago, so the story runs, the Chinese made war upon the Japanese. They prepared for a great invasion. As a prophecy of victory they adopted a standard which is that of the present time. They took the sun of Japan and made it very small. This they put in front of the dragon's mouth to express the idea that the Chinese dragon would devour the Japanese. It happened, however, that the Chinese fleet, conveying an army of 100,000 men, was wrecked on its way to Japan by a great storm, and all but three of the 100,000 perished. The result of recent events has not been any more convincing than the first affair that the Chinese flag has been correctly conceived.

Humor in the Far East.

Abdur Rahman, the late ameer of Afghanistan, had a grim sense of humor which was sometimes exercised without scruple. On one occasion a durbar he was holding was interrupted by a man who, in a state of the greatest excitement, rushed in declaring that the Russians were advancing to invade Afghanistan. Turning aside for a moment from the business in progress, the late ameer in the most unconcerned tones ordered his shahbassi to conduct the man to the summit of a certain watch tower. "Look you out well for the Russians," commanded Abdur Rahman, "for you do not eat until you see them arrive."—Grand Magazine.

Cooks Ruin Their Taste.

"I never season things up to my own taste," said a man who has cooked in a restaurant for many years. "Very few cooks do. They have palates that crave high seasoning. The longer they cook the more salt and pepper and spices they require. If I should send up my dishes as I like them, they would be so hot and peppery that half the patrons in the restaurant would be unable to eat them."—New York Press.

The Accident.

Hizonner—You are charged with breaking a chair over your wife's head. Prisoner—It was an accident, your honor. Hizonner—What! Didn't you intend to hit her? Prisoner—Yes, but I didn't intend to break the chair.

The Lazy Horse.

An Irishman once tapped a poky horse with a whip and said, "Pick up your feet, and they'll fall themselves."—Acheson Globe.

The readiest and surest way to get rid of censure is to correct ourselves.—Demosthenes.

THE CODE OF HONOR.

Duelling as It Was in France in the Time of Richelieu.

The passion for duelling, which had cost France, it was said, between 7,000 and 8,000 lives during the twenty years of Henry IV.'s reign, was at its height when his son came to the throne. The council of Trent in 1545 had solemnly condemned the practice of single combat, impartially including principals, seconds and spectators in its penalty of excommunication. In 1602 an edict of Henry pronounced the "damnable custom of duelling introduced by the corruption of the century" to be the cause of so many piteous accidents, to the extreme regret and displeasure of the king and to the irreparable damage of the state "that we should count ourselves unworthy to hold the scepter if we delayed to repress the enormity of this crime."

A whole series of edicts followed to the same effect, but it was easier to make edicts than to enforce them. Degradation, imprisonment, confiscation of property, loss of civil rights and death were the penalties attached to the infringement of the laws against duelling, and still the practice prevailed. In 1626 Richelieu published a milder form of prohibition. The first offense was no longer capital, a third only of the offender's property was to be confiscated, and the judges were permitted to recognize extenuating circumstances.

A few months later the Comte de Bouteville thought fit to test the minister's patience in this direction. The Place Royale had long been a favorite dueling ground, and De Bouteville traveled from Brussels to fight his twenty-second duel here, in the heart of Paris, in deliberate defiance of the king's authority. The result was not encouraging. Montmorency though he was, the count went with his second to the scaffold, and the marked decrease from that time in the number of duels may be attributed either to the moderation used in framing the law or to the inexorable resolution with which it was enforced.—Macmillan's Magazine.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Villains usually get what is coming to them—on the stage.

It too often happens that the only flowers mother gets are those strewn on her grave.

The man who saves money is sure of one thing—he will never find that he made a serious mistake in doing it.

There are some people who pray for patience and then get mad because the fire goes out when they prayed so long.

Perhaps the next time you do what you shouldn't you will have reason to regret you didn't quit with the last time.

If you get along with people you do not like, your friends think you have tact and your enemies accuse you of being "smooth."

No matter how poor a man's memory is about other things, he never forgets the time and place where he once found money on the street.—Acheson Globe.

Jarring Realism.

A popular novelist described at a dinner in New York the difference between realism and romanticism in fiction. "To make my meaning clearer," said the author, "I will take the case of a young man and a girl—sweethearts. The young man, a romanticist, said passionately to his girl, 'Darling, it shall be my life's one purpose to surround you with every comfort and to anticipate and gratify your every wish.' The girl, a realist, smiled faintly as she answered, 'Oh, Jack, how good of you, and all on $9 a week too!'"

Marrying an Opera Company.

The late "Aunt" Louisa Eldridge, meeting a reporter on one of the New York papers, learned that Lillian Russell was to be married to Signor Rusconi.

"Isn't she clever?" quoth Mrs. Eldridge. "Why, she first married a leader of the orchestra, then a composer of comic operas, and now she will wed a tenor. Bless my heart! If she keeps on, she'll have an entire operatic outfit of her own."

Baby's Progress.

"How is Bilkins' baby boy getting along?"

"Fine. I was up there yesterday and was surprised to learn that he is beginning to talk."

"Does he pronounce his words plainly?"

"Not very. They sound like a railroad brakeman calling out stations."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Nerve.

Lazy Larry—Say, lady, I'm dat hungry I don't know w'at to do. I ain't had nothin'— Mrs. Goodart—Walk around to the kitchen, poor man, and you shall be fed. Lazy Larry—Aw, say, dat's a purty long walk, lady. Couldn't yer hand it out here jist as well?—Catholic Standard and Times.

Irremediable.

Fan—I wasn't expecting to be called on to say anything, you know, and when the president of the club asked me to make a few remarks I just went all to pieces. Nan—You remember I told you those buttons on the back of your waist wouldn't stand the slightest strain, don't you?—Chicago Tribune.

Few Left-handed People.

About 94 per cent of otherwise normal people use the right hand in preference to the left; 6 per cent are left-handed, and it is a curious fact that one-third of the 6 per cent are ambidextrous.—Portland (Ore.) Journal.

THE REAL CHINESE GONG.

It Makes an Uproar as Awful as It Is Astonishing.

By the way, did you ever hear a real Chinese gong? I don't mean a hotel gong, but one of those great moon disks of yellow metal which have so terrible a power of utterance.

A gentleman in Bangor, north Wales, who had a private museum of south Pacific and Chinese curiosities, exhibited one to me. It was hanging amid Fiji spears beautifully barbed with sharks' teeth, which, together with grotesque New Zealand clubs of green stone and Sandwich Island paddies wrought with the baroque visages of the shark god, were depending from the walls; also there were Indian elephants in ivory, carrying balls in their carven bellies, each ball containing many other balls inside it.

The gong glimmered pale and huge and yellow, like the moon rising over a southern swamp. My friend tapped its ancient face with a muffled drumstick, and it commenced to sob like waves upon a low beach. He tapped it again, and it moaned like the wind in a mighty forest of pines. Again, and it commenced to roar, and with each tap the roar grew deeper and deeper till it seemed like thunder rolling over an abyss in the
