BRILLIANT RECEPTION

Mesdames W. B. Vandell and J. I. Clement Entertain in Honor of Mrs. S. D. Swope.

Tuesday afternoon opened the social festivities of the season, when Mrs. W. B. Vandell and J. I. Clement gave a reception in honor of Mrs. W. D. Swope, of Deming, New Mexico, at the Vandell residence on West Belleville street. The guests were greeted by Miss Ina Woods and ushered by Mrs. C. King, Mrs. W. B. Vandell and Mrs. J. I. Clement, who formed the receiving line. After chatting with the hostesses, Mrs. Geo. M. Crider asked each guest to register, from whence they were invited to the dining room where they were greeted by Misses Nelle Walker and Leafa Wilborn, who served the delightful refreshments, consisting of cake, ices, ice cream and confectioneries. The house was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and golden rods.

DIABOLICAL MURDER

Negro Living in Montgomery County, Tennessee Shoots His Wife Fifteen Times.

One of the bloodiest murders ever reported in this section of country, occurred Friday afternoon at the home of Cap. Darnell, just over the state line from Edgerton, Ky. A negro man named Jack Allen went to Darnell's where his wife was at work, and called her out to have a talk. They left the house a short distance and sat down on a stump talking for some time. They were seen by another negro man who was not far away. Suddenly Allen arose, backed away a little from the woman, drew a pistol and began firing at her. At the third shot she fell and he fired two more shots into her prostrate body. Then reloading the pistol he fired five more shots into the quivering corpse. Not content with this, he loaded the pistol a second time and once more emptied it into the body of the woman. After shooting her in all fifteen times he walked away. The only witness was the negro who saw it from a distance afraid to try to interfere with the work of the black demon. Allen is a young negro, black and heavy set.

What occurred leading up to the killing, or what it was about, no one knows but the murderer himself. Whatever was the motive, he deserves to be hung for his diabolical crime. The woman was unarmed and attempted no resistance. Her murder, for down-right brutality, has never been surpassed in this part of the country.

Allen had not been caught at last account.—Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

Married Wednesday Afternoon.

The marriage of Miss Carrie Moore of this city to Mr. M. E. Bacon, of Hopkinsville, was solemnized Wednesday evening, as previously announced in these columns. The ceremony was performed at the Methodist Church at 3 o'clock, Rev. J. P. Adams, officiating. There were no attendants, only the ushers: Messrs. Robert Cook and Chastain Haynes preceding the bridal couple to the altar. The bride, tastefully gowned in a gray traveling dress, with hat and gloves to match, and always a beautiful woman, was unusually handsome on this occasion. The church was decorated with potted plants, palms and ferns and brilliantly lighted making the scene of loveliness never to be forgotten. The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony for Hopkinsville, the groom's home, where they will reside and took with them the best wishes of hosts of friends both here and elsewhere.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

EDITOR OF THE COMMONER WAS THE GUEST OF OUR CITY.

Hon. W. J. Bryan, Twice the Democratic Nominee for President Spoke to a Large Crowd at this Place Tuesday Morning.

A better day for Mr. Bryan to visit Marion could not have been made to order. Tuesday, Oct. 8th, 1907, will go down in history as a bright and glorious day—a Bryan day. The day dawned auspiciously, not a cloud was in sight and from early dawn until the appointed time for the speaking the people came in two's and fours and in droves. That they came to see Bryan was evidently the fact that they went direct to the depot, and many of them did not even come up town. At the depot many hundreds did not get to hear or even see the speaker, it was variously estimated from two to three thousand. The public school was dismissed at 11:30 a. m., to give the 400 children an opportunity to see the distinguished visitor, and most of them availed themselves of the opportunity.

The special train arrived as previously advertised at 11:15 a. m. Mr. Bryan was given an ovation when the train came rolling in amid the blasts of steam whistles and music of the "Marion Silver Cornet Band." He was introduced by Congressman James in his own imitable way, and delivered a 31 minute speech which was well received by his hearers. Mr. Bryan was in good condition except for a slight hoarseness, but this did not prevent his making himself heard by all those who could get close enough. On the special train was also S. W. Hager, candidate for Governor, Secretary of State McChesney, Congressman James who introduced Mr. Bryan, and many other distinguished men. The special train bearing Mr. Bryan pulled out at 11:46 a. m., for Princeton which was the next stop.

Large Contract.

One of the largest contracts ever pulled down by a Paducahan has been captured by W. F. Katterjohn, who will furnish ballast for 1,350 miles of track for the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Railroad company. It will require five years time to complete the task. At Greenville, Miss., Col. Katterjohn will dredge 1,500,000 yards of gravel from the Mississippi river. He is in Paducah today making arrangements to buy a sand and gravel digger or dredge boat. Over 1,000 yards of gravel a day will be pumped from the river bed that will take two and three big freight trains to handle.—News Democrat.

Don't fail to see "For Mother's Sake," one of the best plays of the season, at the Opera House, Friday, Oct. 11.

Crittenden County Boy at Harvard.

Beverly Todd Towery en route to "Harvard," writes us as follows: Dear Mr. Editor: I regret very much that I have not gotten in to see you and all my friends and acquaintances of Marion this summer. I am now on my way to Harvard University, at Cambridge, Mass., where I will be entered into the Law Department. I am both glad and thankful to be going and believe that my people have the same feeling toward me. The immortal excellence of culture and learning, though hard to attain, is within the reach of the humblest citizen of the land, I will strive hard to reflect due honor and respectability upon my native county and State. Cadiz, Ky., Oct. 5, "Night Riders" visited the store of Mike Delaney, in Canton, nine miles west of here, last night and broke up every bottle of "wivo" which he had in stock. Wivo is a drink put up in bottles like "pop" and is sold extensively throughout prohibition territory. It is claimed that last Saturday afternoon several young men came to Canton from the surrounding country and got pretty well "loaded" on something, and it is the general impression throughout this section that it was "Wivo." They then went several miles below Canton that night, where they proceeded to raise a disturbance at Blue Spring church, where there was preaching, and as this crowd of "night riders" came from the direction of Blue Spring church, it is supposed that the previous occurrence was largely the cause of the visit to Mr. Delaney.

The party arrived in Canton about eleven o'clock and arousing Mr. Delaney made him go with them and unlock his store, after which they proceeded to break up every bottle of "Wivo" they could find. After doing this they departed quietly without doing further harm to anything or anybody. There is no clue to the persons who committed the deed.

Kentucky State Medical Association.

My Dear Sir:—I take pleasure in informing you, for your columns, that the 52nd Annual Meeting of the Kentucky State Medical Association will be held at the Galt House in Louisville on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 15, 16 and 17. Two-thirds of the physicians in Kentucky are members of this Association and it is estimated that this will be the largest meeting ever held. Especial attention will be given to the Pure Food question, and there will be an extended discussion on diseases of the thyroid gland, and papers will be read on the latest developments in the treatment of typhoid fever, appendicitis and other diseases. The new opsonic theory of treatment of disease will be explained by a lecture illustrated with a stereopticon. By special invitation Dr. George H. Simmons, the great Editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, will be present to explain the purposes of that magnificent organization.

The purposes of the Kentucky State Medical Association are purely altruistic. Its members are studying together how to prevent disease and how to cure it. Any notice you give of this meeting will be appreciated, not only by your local physicians, many of whom will participate in the work of the session, but by all of your people who are interested in the public health.

Very truly yours,
A. T. McCORMACK, Secretary.

The letter is dated October 2, 1907, and says: "Dear Sir: I have taken an apple off the city land that I want to pay for."

The Question of Tonnage.

In the discussion of the necessity for improvement of the inland waterways of the United States it is gratifying to note that the question is no longer treated as in the academic stage, but as a question that is in the foreground and not to be dislodged from its commanding position until it has been met and answered satisfactorily by the Congress of the United States. The dominant note of the discussion is in the question of tonnage, whether it be the tonnage, that is offered to the railroads and refused for lack of capacity for transportation, the tonnage that is offered and accepted and then delayed on side tracks or in railroad yards or the tonnage that would come if the particular stream in question should be improved.

The latter phase of the question is the right phase. Tonnage follows the avenues of trade and commerce with inevitable certainty—that is to say, it follows the path on which there are means of transportation. But while it is conceded by all that inland waterway improvement is an absolute necessity, the fact remains that there is but one stream in the United States which, though only partially improved, has a commanding volume of tonnage and but one stream which carries tonnage from its source to its mouth—and that stream is the Ohio River. The Mississippi below St. Louis has no through tonnage save the tonnage that goes out from the Ohio. The fact is recognized nowhere so completely as it is in New Orleans where the Picayune deplors the fact that while there is no tonnage on the Mississippi, between New Orleans and St. Louis, and admits that "There has been no such falling off on the Ohio" and in a later issue says: "Three decades ago there were great steamers plowing our mighty river between this city and St. Louis, and there were also regular lines between this city and Cincinnati and other cities on the Ohio."

The steamers and the tonnage remain to the Ohio, though it is but partially improved, and among all streams it stands preeminently on merit in demanding the completion of the nine foot stage from Pittsburgh to Cairo. It is a demand based on facts of present tonnage and on future tonnage which its improved condition would enable it to bear at all seasons of the year, and at rates that would reduce the cost of the articles carried to the consumer who now pays not alone the initial cost but the excessive railway freight charges added. It is a demand which Congress must heed in the interest of the entire country, but the demand must be insistent, intelligent and harmonious. With those elements in the demand, the answer cannot be otherwise than favorable and speedy.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.

Peter Fry, Woodruff, Pa., writes: "After doctoring for two years with the best physicians in Waynesburg, and still getting worse, the doctors advised me if I had any business to attend to I had better attend to it at once, as I could not possibly live another month as there was no cure for me. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me by a friend, and I immediately sent my son to the store for it, and after taking three bottles I began to get better and continued to improve until I was entirely well." Mistook Wife for a Burglar.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 6th.—Ver-non Shrode, editor of the Clay (Ky.) Courier, shot his wife in the head, mistaking her for a burglar, and inflicted a serious scalp wound. Shrode got up during the night after hearing a noise at the back door, and thinking a burglar was entering the house, he secured a pistol and fired.

Mrs. Shrode had risen to take some medicine and was sitting in the door when her husband fired in that direction. A scream from Mrs. Shrode told her husband what had happened, and he hurriedly carried her into the house and called for surgical aid. Mrs. Shrode is expected to recover. Shrode recently started the Clay Courier, going there from this city.

Letter From Texas.

Mallin, Texas.
DEAR EDITOR:—Through the kindness of a friend I get to read your paper which by the way is a good county paper. I know you will wink your eye and say "There it is, another fellow reading my paper at some one else's expense" that is allowable in Texas, especially if the Texan went from Kentucky to Texas. I have been here six months, have gone through the acclimating process which lasted about two months, six weeks of the time I was walking the floor with an abscess in my ear. I am all O. K. now and gone to work again. My purpose in writing to your paper is to let my Crittenden county friends know that I think of them and am right side up out here in this great State of Texas. I taught school at Dyeusburg, Caldwell Springs and Jackson's school-house where I spent some of my best and I believe happiest, and I hope to some extent profitable days. As I write I think of some in Marion who were among the number who came under my care as pupils and who have always filled a large place in my estimation.

Some of them are fathers and mothers and are now interesting themselves in the education of their own children. How time does fly. Just think that Mrs. Cora Crider and Mrs. Maggie Moore of Marion were once bright sweet little girls in my school room, besides these, there were all the children of both J. P. Pierce and his brother, Ahart, the Koons, Brashers, Jacksons, Butlers, Buggs, Brookes, Browns, Dyeuses, Olivers, Bennetts, Turleys and many others who flashed across memory's track and call up the days of yore. To all of them who read these lines let me lift my hat and hand you out bouquets in the way of love and good wishes for your happiness and success in this life and eternal life when this old world is on fire. God bless you all and cause His face to shine upon you. Making you useful in your day and generation. Bro. Price was the county superintendent whom I learned to love on account of his interest in the work and the kind, encouraging words he gave me when he visited my schools. It has been my pleasure to know something of him since, in his labors of love as he presented to the people a risen Lord and personal savior to all who would let Him come into their hearts. Since I began this letter, names come filing up before me until I am sure my letter would be too long were I to mention them and would either be cut down or thrown in the waste basket. So I must close by asking all of my friends not to think I did not think of them because I failed to mention their names. Peace, joy, true happiness, good health and long life to all.

American Factories Lead the World.

The extent and the variety of its natural resources, as, in one particular field, is revealed by its mineral riches, is one of the reasons why the United States heads the list of the world's nations in prosperity and progress. In the ten years which have passed since the business revival set in at the close of the industrial stagnation of 1893-97, the country's population has increased twenty-one per cent. In those ten years the value of its annual mineral output has expanded more than 200 per cent.

Those who take a gloomy view of the outlook for business in the United States should try to grasp the facts just presented. Here are a few more for them to ponder on: While the United States has only five per cent. of the world's population, it produces twenty per cent. of the world's wheat, twenty-five per cent. of its gold, thirty-three per cent. of its coal, thirty-five per cent. of its manufactures, thirty-eight per cent. of its silver, forty per cent. of its iron, forty-two per cent. of its steel, fifty-two per cent. of its petroleum, fifty-five per cent. of its copper, seventy per cent. of its cotton, and eighty per cent. of its corn.

William Stanley Jevins, the British economist, and in 1867 that when England lost her supremacy in coal and iron production her fall would be as sure as Rome's was after Constantine removed the capital to Constantinople, and after his sons divided the empire into three parts, and that the fall would be swifter than was Rome's. Forty years ago that seemed to be a safe forecast, for iron production in the United States in 1867 was less than a twenty-fifth part of what it is in 1907, coal production was less than a fortieth of what it is now.

But the years which have passed since 1867 have told a tale which nobody in that day dreamed of. In the extent of its manufactures the United States passed England in iron and steel production in 1895, coal output in 1900. And in every one of these fields the United States to-day is $120,000,000,000, or more than that of its two nearest competitors, Great Britain and France, combined. Every successive sunrise sees $10,000,000 added to the market value of the tangible property of the United States.—Jas. W. Van Cleave, in the Circle for October.

Ordinary Methods for Treating Catarrh Prove Unsuccessful.

Recent statistics showing an increase in catarrh have shaken the confidence of medical men in the usual prescriptions to safeguard human health from the ravages of this disease.

When stomach dosing proved ineffective, it was natural to look for some other treatment, and it is believed that in Hyomei an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles has at last been found. Breathed through a neat pocket inhaler, its healing medication reaches every spot where there are catarrhal germs, destroys them, prevents their future growth, and soothes the irritated mucous membrane so that relief is felt almost instantly, while lasting cure is practically sure to follow.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and is sold by Haynes & Taylor under an absolute agreement to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction. It is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold under a guarantee to cost nothing unless it cures, but Haynes & Taylor has so much faith in its power to cure all catarrhal troubles that they are willing to take the risk, so if Hyomei does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense. Get an outfit at once on this liberal plan.

Mrs. Jennie Waddell visited Mrs.
Laura Shreeves Sunday.

The Fairview road that leads to Dycusburg and the South is in fine shape.

Eurie Howard and wife were between the rivers visiting relatives last week.

J. H. Brouster, of the New Salem Valley, made a flying trip to Fairview the other day.

Our school at this place is progressing nicely, under the management of Prof. Johnson.

Miss Denie Waddell who resides near Marion, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Laura Shreeves.

J. M. Persons has struck it rich on the Ibbie Hodge place, he has a large crew of experienced miners on works and is getting out twenty to thirty tons daily.

Wm. Shreeves is just hitting the ground in high places and wears a smile that wont rub off over the arrival of a nine pound democrat, he says he is going to name him for Roosevelt's successor—well he can just go to calling him Ted for short.

The farmers of this neighborhood have just housed and cured one of best crops of tobacco ever produced in this section. They set the price at ten cents per pound. They say they will get that price or will be holding their tobacco when Gabriel blows his horn.

Out of Sight.

"Out of sight, out of mind," is an old saying which applies with special force to a sore, burn or wound that's been treated with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles too and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by Haynes & Taylor, and J. H. Orme druggists 25c.

Take something now and then to help the stomach. Kodol will do this.
It is a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. It is pleasant to take. It digests what you eat. Sold by J. H.
Orme.

The Dramatic Author Is Inferior to the Actor

By YVETTE GUILBERT.

HE dramatic art is the poorest of all arts. It passes through too many hands to be able to retain its real value. It reaches the public, after it has been trampled upon and cut to pieces, in a faded condition and stripped of its beauty.

The author who has pored over his own sheets of paper knows his play in his own particular way; the manager who receives it looks at it with a different eye, the stage manager gives his opinion, and the actor considers it according to his own temperament and means, while the public who welcome it stare at it with a fifth eye! To this number add another dozen or more of accessory actors. Poor author! How could he expect to remain master of such an effort when so many collaborators are bound to upset the harmony?

The best interpreted author is the one who abandons himself to the hands of his interpreters—of course, if they are talented. If they are artists they will employ the best means of utilizing his canvas. They will, perhaps, find out certain effects which the author sought to convey, but if left to themselves will discover or create other impressions, which will contain more brilliancy and taste, because they spring from a fount which produces masterpieces.

The comedian's role in the drama is far superior to that of the dramatist. The comedian relies upon himself for success; he can do without the dramatist; he utilizes with ease his own forces for tragedy or comedy; if he has any talent he will use it wherever he thinks fit, and vary it whenever necessary. As Scaramouche before Moliere, he will, without the help of others, reveal his true power, whether comical or tragic. There always have been from time immemorial certain "grimacers" of genius who could act without the text of others! The day the comedian refuses to interpret his work the dramatist simply will starve. He will find himself faced with the alternative of interpreting his own plays, like Shakespeare or Moliere.

The day perhaps will come when "improvisation," spontaneous and immediate, will replace modern drama, which is studied and repeated, which makes us weep automatically and laugh a hundred times over, every night at the same hour! Routine! Routine!

Why not create a new art, where the actors will enter the arena and the public suggest to them certain actions to simulate, certain characters to create, ask them to give a dozen different impersonations? This will be the only means of revealing true, sincere, and manifold talents, whose destinies no longer will be guided by the author, the stage manager, the director, but who will be emancipated and freed of all restrained emotions.

How long will it be before we have a theater of improvisers? How long before the abolition of theatrical slavery? How long before the possibility of showing in 20 minutes the artistic nobility of Sarah Bernhardt, the humanity of La Duse, the wit of Rejane, the farce of Galipaux—distinction, beauty, ugliness, laughter, tears, love, life and death? When will that theater come into being?

Taxing the Bachelor

By DR. ROBERTSON WALLACE.

to beauty, or to acknowledge the sovereignty of woman. He is a perpetual challenge to the powers of fascination exercised by the fair sex. His defiant attitude courts attack, and puts every girl of spirit on her mettle.
Every bachelor that escapes the wiles of the hunter, means one bride the less and one aching heart the more. No bachelor retains his state of insularity without a struggle. Il faut souffrir pour etre bachelier.

And no professed bachelor can be quite certain that he may not of a sudden become a benedict. He has no fixity of tenure, but trembles in the balance from day to day. He knows that life is full of surprises, and sweet and twenties. Also that it is always the unexpected girl that happens. His bachelor life is simply lived from hand to mouth. To-morrow some other hand and mouth may claim his undivided attention. He never knows when he is safe. Even into the seclusion of his club the airs and graces of gentle womanhood find their way through the medium of the illustrated papers. Can he resist the appeal of beauty that pleads to him in half-tones? Can he continue to frown on a sex that smiles on him to assiduously every week for sixpence? Perish the photographers!

The bachelor who, "in spite of all temptations" to multiply relations, remains single to the end of the chapter deserves a better fate. He is such stuff as heroes are made of. He is a brave man. Obviously he would have made an excellent husband; possibly, an exemplary father. As it is he has shirked his plain duty of transmitting his misogynist qualities to posterity.
Imagine how he would have strengthened his cause and helped the glorious propaganda in future ages, had he left half a dozen sons to preach the tenets of bachelorhood when he had been gathered to his golden opportunities. His attitude of master inactivity though perhaps, dignified, is certainly dangerous. No man can shirk allegiance to the sex or his duty to the state with impunity. Charmers and tax collectors alike will see to it that he contributes his fair share towards the prosperity of his country.
He must be made to contribute in money what he refuses in men.

But, after all, the modern bachelor is by no means so black as he is painted. He is simply one of those exceptional men who have been born without the genius for matrimony. To marry at all, a man requires inspiration; to marry well, aspiration; and to marry foolishly, desperation. None of these qualities has been vouchsafed to the singular being who deliberately and of malice prepenze leads the single life. As the result of his unnatural mode of life he becomes self-centered, warped, selfish, irritable, and difficult to please. He has no home, as the word is generally understood. He may have a house and a retinue of servants, but as "stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage," rooms and a retinue do not make a home. From the point of view of scientific evolution he is an outcast, a mere wanderer in clubland. He has no fixed place in the general scheme of nature. What, then, is he here for? "To be taxed," say the ladies unanimously. Well, perhaps they are right.

"We wish," wrote the editor of the Tartown Trumpet, "to correct an error which crept into our issue last week. In describing the unfortunate runaway accident on Main street we wrote: 'While awaiting the arrival of the ambulance, Dr. Skinner, who was fortunately present, took the victim's pulse.' It was the printer who carelessly changed the 'I' in the last word to 'r.' We make this correction in justice to Dr. Skinner, who never presents a bill in advance. In a north of England town recently a company of local amateurs produced "Hamlet," and the following account of the proceedings appeared in the local paper next morning:

"Last night all the fashionable elite of the town gathered to witness a performance of 'Hamlet' at the town hall. There has been considerable discussion in the press as to whether the play was written by Shakespeare or Bacon. All doubts can now be at rest. Let their graves be opened; the one who turned over last night is the author.

A printer of Maine left home with $165 in his pocket. He went to purchase a drink. This was three weeks ago and the supposition is that he got what he went after, at least once! There has been times when an individual who desired a drink has had difficulty in securing it, but no man with $165 in his pocket ever set out determinedly to satisfy his craving for a highball but sooner or later reached the bar. That the Maine resident has not returned, is further evidence that this statement is true. He may have had to go a long way for the stimulant but he will come home some day with the fire of success in his eye and a three months' overdue haircut on his head, but he will have had that drink. There is no use in trying to legislate liquor away from a man with $165 and a thirst.

A Wisconsin editor was visiting in Chicago and he decided he would buy a new Panama hat. Going into a store he asked the price of one that looked good to him. The clerk replied: "Fifteen dollar," whereat the editor asked: "Where are the

A genuine novelty in the shape of a thrilling melodrama of American life is booked to appear at the Marion Opera House on Friday night, Oct. 11. This is a pretty big claim when you consider the number of melodramas before the public, but that this proud claim by the management of "For Mother's Sake" is no idle boast the press where it has been given this season will substantiate. Carrie Ashley Clarke, the author, has given the public in "For Mother's Sake" a real dramatic sensation. The play is entirely along new lines, and the treatment of the theme is most original. The management have given it an elaborate mounting and an excellent company.

Pain anywhere, pain in the head, painful periods, Neuralgia, toothache, all pains can be promptly stopped by a thoroughly safe little Pink Candy Tablet, known by druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets. It pleased God to take from our midst Sister Verna Todd, Sept. 10, 1907. She would have been twenty-four years old in October. She leaves a father, mother, sister and a host of relatives and friends to mourn for her. How sad is the broken home! She has been called to that home where no traveler ever returns. A noble Christian girl has gone, but God needed one more jewel. We know not why God would call away one who was so much needed in this world, but the Master has said, "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." So we bow in humble submission to his divine will knowing that he doeth all things well. She has gone to behold the King in all his beauty. Only those who have had the same experience can realize the desolation wrought in the home and hearts by her death. Never will her dear lips greet loved ones again in this world, but we hope in some brighter, sweeter climate to receive her greeting again. "Farewell dear father, mother and sister I will strive to meet you in heaven," and though we shed the tears of love the consolation is given us that she is happy now, her soul is safe in heaven.

Sister Verna Todd belonged to the Baptist church at Shady Grove. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. T. C. Carter, of Marion, Thursday at 11 o'clock and they were very impressive. A large crowd of sorrowing relatives and friends were present. She was laid to rest in the Shady Grove cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

Though God in his own good wisdom has seen best to take her from us, we read in his blessed word that God is wise and good and just in his judgment, and that the righteous are the Lord's portion and that if our earthly tabernacle was dissolved we have a building of God not made with hands eternal in the Heavens. Then why should we weep, for if we live right some day we will clasp hands with our loved ones on the other shore.

Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

If you will allow me space in the columns of your valuable paper, I will once more try and give the readers of the RECORD-PRESS a few items from Fort Leavenworth, which may prove of interest to some.

We are now drilling from three to four hours a day preparing for a trip to St. Joseph, Missouri, at which place we will go for the opening of the Carnival, which opens September 23rd. The 18th Infantry will give an exhibition drill which at present is causing a great deal of hard work for the men of the 18th Infantry. We will remain at St. Joseph for 3 days returning to Fort Leavenworth, September 28th, and then the work will begin, preparing for a long and wearisome journey for the Philippine Islands for which the 18th Infantry will proceed by rail for San Francisco, Cal., arriving about Oct. 4th, and from that Port will embark on the United States Army Transport Sheridan en route for the Philippine Islands sailing about October 7th, and will go by the way of the Hawaiian Islands which is about 7 days sail from San Francisco and at which Port we will coal up, being there for a period of three days which will give the boys an opportunity to visit the city of Honolulu.

The next stop after leaving Honolulu, will be Nagasaki Japan, we will lay there for a period of 2 days, giving the boys in blue a chance to visit the most important places of that city which the majority of them never had. I myself, had the pleasure of visiting both the former cities several times before, but there are always something new to be seen in a foreign country which proves to be of interest to any one.

We will leave Fort Leavenworth over the Santa Fe R. R., going through the following States, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and California, and will give the boys of the 18th Infantry an opportunity of seeing a great deal of the western country.

I shall keep the data of my voyage across the Pacific and if any of the RECORD-PRESS think that it will prove of interest to them they may receive same by addressing "Burt E. Woody," Company D, 18th Infantry, Manila, P. I.

I shall take this means of bidding my friends and loved ones good-bye, wishing them much happiness and the worlds success.

Coal, Iron and the Ohio.

In press discussions of the imperative necessity for the improvement of inland waterways, it is a deserved tribute to the entire Ohio Valley Improvement Association cited as an example of what concentrated effort can do, and the press and the industrial and commercial organizations of the Ohio Valley hold up as illustrating the value of cordial and earnest support of the great work of improvement of the Ohio.

The Ohio River is the only river in the country which carries tonnage from source to mouth. There is no river in the country equalling it in tonnage, nor is there any river comparing with it in possibilities of tonnage on completion of the Nine Foot Stage. In a recent editorial the New Orleans Picayune well said that "Coal and iron are the two most important minerals used by man and as iron cannot be put in any usable form except by the aid of heat, which means the combustion of coal, it follows that coal is more important than iron." The question of the value of the Ohio is stated in that paragraph. By no other means save at prohibitory railway rates of freight, can the South procure its iron or its coal. No States in the Union can compare with Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana or Illinois in the production of coal and of iron—nor with any one of them nor with their capacity to supply not only the States of the South but all states.

The value of the Ohio, though stated in the paragraph quoted, is thus emphasized by the Picayune: "Not a steamboat is plying between New Orleans and St. Louis, or even between Memphis and New Orleans, where the water is deep enough for all craft except the great ocean steamers, yet there is no such falling off in traffic on the Ohio" and that "About the only freight that comes to us from the Mississippi is coal which is shipped all the way from Pittsburgh."

Such is the Ohio River—unquestionably the river of greatest value to the trade and commerce of the entire country, the feeder of the South and the Southwest and the greatest feeder of all to the Panama Canal. If there is no falling off in traffic on the unimproved Ohio, and there is not, what would its tonnage be and what would be the extent of the beneficial effect of the improved Ohio on each and every interest in the Ohio Valley? It cannot be estimated. But with unity of action the improvement can be accomplished.

"For Mother's Sake," which is billed to appear at the Opera House Oct. 11, is highly spoken of by the press throughout the country. The stage settings are said to be magnificent, the story thrilling and pathetic and the comedy plentiful and varied.

MORE THAN SPOT COULD STAND

Spot would not pull the wagon for the two little girls.

"Never mind," said Ethel, "I know how we can make him go. Let's tie a tin can to his tail. Brother Tom makes dogs run by tying cans to their tails."

A tin can was found and tied on. Both little girls got in the wagon and by pulling at the lines finally got old Spot to his feet. The dog heard a strange rattling behind him. He turned to one side to see what it was and the can slammed against the wagon on the other side.

Then Spot began to run. The faster he ran the louder the tin can rattled.

SPOT BEGAN TO RUN.

The little girls screamed and pulled on the lines, but there was no stopping Spot.

They saw a gentleman coming up the street. "Oh, papa," Daisy cried, "stop him—stop Spot! We'll be killed."

Daisy's papa stopped the runaway. Then he asked, "Why, little daughter, what's this you've tied to Spot's tail?"

Both little girls were crying. "It is just a tin can we tied to his tail 'cause he wouldn't go," Ethel said a tin can would make him go," Daisy explained.

"Well, it did make him go," Daisy's papa said, laughing. "But I don't believe you ever want to try it again, do you?" Both little girls said no. Then Daisy's papa put them in the wagon and led old Spot home, a sadder and a wiser dog.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

Why They Did Not Marry

Mr. Jim Panzee was very much in love with Miss Bab Boone, who was known to be a very terrible flirt.

But Jim did not seem to care, though the young lady was very hard to suit. He tried his best to please her. Putting on his best looks he would come and sit for hours at the foot of her tree and sigh and snivel and look coy, and she would sit behind her palm leaf fan and look bored and weary.

But she liked Jim for all that, and I think they would soon have been married, as Jim was about to propose, but for one little event.

"You are so hard to please," he said one day. "I have brought you all kinds of nice things, and none seem to suit you. You don't like figs unless I dry them and take all the seeds out."

"IS IT STONED?"

You won't eat cocoanuts because it's so hard to chew them. What can I get you?"

"Oh," she said wearily, "I should so like one of those lovely purple plums that grow up on the mountain."

"I'll go to the ends of the earth to please you, dear. I'm off," said Jim as he ran on, his beautiful tail dragging behind him. After much hard climbing he secured a fine luscious plum and ran to her with it.

"Here, dear one," said Jim. "I have brought it," holding it up to her. She looked at it a moment, shut her eyes slowly and said: "Is it stoned? You know I can't really take the trouble to stone it."

"That's a lazy thing," said Jim. "Look! I'll never marry you!" And he didn't.

Don't be lazy, girls.—Detroit Journal.

COW ATE DYNAMITE

AND FOR A TIME THERE WAS CHAOS ON THE FARM.

Peculiar Diet of Bovine Simply Unsettled Everything—Caused Labor Complication Among Other Things.

Queer demands are coming from the farmers on the line of the new aqueduct, says the New York Times.

A claim for "one dynamited cow" was settled the other day. When the claim reached the controller it called for $425. The controller turned it over to the board of water supply, which in turn sent Engineer Charles E. Davis to investigate. The claimant was John McCauley, of Brown's station, Uster county. The engineer, long force had been at work near his place. The claim, he said, included the tramping down of growing grain.

"Was the cow blown up?" asked the engineer.

"Not exactly," said the claimant, "but she scared us all to death. You see, one of the engineers had left a stick of dynamite in a field and the cow ate it. She probably thought it was an ear of corn or something. You know how hard it is to get any hired men in this section. Why, the department of agriculture has sent out circulars telling the farmer how to get over the labor difficulty. I've got one of them up to the house."

"Well, some of the help I have had read that circular that was lying about the house, and then they kicked for more pay. There was Ed and John—"

"What's that got to do with the cow?" asked the investigator.

"Well, I was telling my story in my own way. You see, labor is scarce, and I had got that darned circular locked up in a closet, and I was hoping to keep Bill with me for a little, when Bill and I was walking through that field toward the cow. We saw her eating something and we didn't mistrust anything until we got up close to her just as the end of the stick was sticking out of her mouth, and I saw what it was."

"What's she eating?" asked Bill. "I didn't feed her anything."

"Bill," says I, "if there's one thing of which I wouldn't suspect you it's work. I know darn well you didn't feed that cow anything. But she's fed herself," says I, "and it's darned hot stuff," says I.

"Bill he looked a little queer."

"What is it?" says he.

"Dynamite," says I.

"My God," says he.

"He stood still for so long a time that I thought he wasn't afraid. All of a sudden the cow turned and walked toward him."

"Drive her off; we'll both be killed," says Bill, picking up a big stone.

"Don't you do it," says I; "she'll explode. She's full of dynamite, and the slightest jar'll set her off."

"Bill began to laugh—half laugh and half cry, you know, like a lady summer boarder I once had who found a toad under her bed when she was looking for a man. Then I says,

"Bill, it's up to you to do something."

"Why is it up to me?" says he. "You own the cow."

"That's just it," says I. "I own the cow and you are working for the man that owns her."

"Bill gave me a look. Then he says:

"Well, I ain't working for him no longer," says he, and with that he cut across the fields without waiting for his wages."

"Well, my family and I stayed that night at the home of my brother, five miles away, to make sure of being safe. In the morning I went back to the farm and found that the cow was dead. The dynamite had poisoned her. John Wilkey, the dare devil of the neighborhood, carried off the body for $10."

The engineer found upon questioning the force in the neighborhood that a stick of dynamite had disappeared. So he settled for $150. The farmer took the money.

"Say," he said, "you know I have a telephone in my house. Day before yesterday Bill called me up."

"Say," says he, "is that cow dead? If she is I'm coming back for my wages."

"You'll get no wages," says I."

Sermon in a Few Words.

We are very much impressed by something we saw and heard while passing along the street a few evenings since. A young girl was standing in front of a store, and near her, with a hang-dog expression on his face, was a young stripling of a boy. As we passed the two, the girl said to the boy: "Any one who speaks of my father as 'the old man' is not worthy of my respect." From the tone of her voice, we knew that the girl spoke from the impulse of a moment, but there was a whole sermon in her utterance. We don't know the girl, but if she lives she will develop into a noble womanhood, and the world will be the better for her having lived in it. And the boy, if he has any redeeming qualities in him, will profit by the lesson given him in that one sentence.—Burlington Chronicle.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, cures nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as general tonics to the system. For positive local help, use as well

"What is the hidden meaning of your language?" quoth the scribe, "Going to see his best girl" was the laconic answer.

Speaking of Bill reminds us of his remarks a-ment the birth of twins. "If I was that feller" said Bill "I would call them Pete and Repeat." A bystander chirruped up with "what would you call the next pair?" "Kate and Duplicate" said Bill. "And the next said Mr. Bystander? "Tow-head and Dittohead" said Bill.

Bill rarely fails to come across.
Kelly Landes is a pessimist. His elongated vision into future events enables him to form opinions which run diametrically opposite to the tale told and oft repeated. For instance if some one should say that John Smith said that Sam Jones received a salary of $3,000 per from the house of Kuppenheimer in recognition of his services as traveling salesman Kelly Landes would not believe it.

A great many odd and funny things happen in connection with this show. A certain groceryman presented Ollie Tucker an unprecedented large grocery bill. Unthoughtedly and almost unconsciously Tuck murmured "My name is Morgan, but it ain't J. P."

Claude Guess was earnestly solicited to go to Elizabethtown for a ball game. He was seized with the ball fever, all right, but only said: "I would if I could, but I can't. Because I'm married now."

The moving picture show has had a steady run now since some time last spring. For a continuation of performances it certainly takes the whole bake shop. For the most part the attraction has been good. The Marion people have been generous—the boys in charge have made many friends as well as many dollars. Not many nights ago a band of spirits vowed a vow that if Miss Idaho on her bucking broncho came prancing over the plains any more they would lie in wait for Morrison and Street after the performance was over and would fall on them and do violence—physical violence.

Strange to say on that particular night Miss Idaho failed for some cause or other to mount her bucking broncho but modestly stood aside and watched "Red wing weep her heart away."

Poor Red wing. Her heart is in a terrible condition. It must be shattered and shattered, torn and scattered. We have no doubt but that it has wept barrels of blood.

Her powers of recuperation though are marvelous. Each night—, notwithstanding the blood shed the night before, she comes back smiling and singing.

The first part of the performance was passed. The massacre of the innocents left the audience in cold shivers—the Angel appeared. Joseph and Mary fled to Egypt carrying the infant Jesus. At this juncture Cam discovered the word baptizing. "Now, in a few minutes from this" blithely chimed Cam "you will see settled a vexatious question that has baffled the wise men of all ages. From the earliest dawn of civilization to this good hour, "To dip or not to dip" has been the question.

Demosthenes and Cicero whose emotion has permeated the thought of every century since departure from this mundane sphere both plainly state that Christ was immersed. The ancient Chaldean Sages and the Persian magi all unite in the one declaration "Christ was immersed." "Let me tell you my friend" said Cam in a low thrilling auctioneers tone "Very few believe anything else in these days of research and the wide dissemination of knowledge." By this time those representing Christ and John had started down into the water. "See—See!" said Cam "will you believe your own eyes?" "there is only one way to baptize and that is to plunge under." But contrary to Cam's expectations John stooped down, dipped up some water and poured it on the head of Christ while "Ohs" sounded all over the house. Cam's disappointment was acute. The benighted Methodist laughed softly. Cam Wallace calmed down and a great silence settled on him.

Children Should Be Taught.

not to read in the twilight, not to stoop too much over their tasks, not to strain their eyes in any way. Thus may eyesight be saved in most cases. But when the damage has been done, waste no time in bringing your little ones here to have their eyes examined free, to get them what they need in glasses at fair prices.
