FLEET AT RIO JANEIRO

Reached Brazilian Capitol Sunday,
15 Days Out From Port of Spain.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 13.—The American fleet of sixteen battleships entered the port of Rio Janeiro at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, after a passage from port of Spain, Trinidad, of more than 3,000 miles, unmarred by serious accidents and ending with a royal welcome from thousands that had gathered to greet the visitors.

The fleet weighed anchor at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of December 29 at Port of Spain, and exactly at 4 o'clock Sunday the vessels were swinging their anchors in this beautiful harbor. All of the battleships are here, but the supply ships Culgoa and Glacier are still at sea, not being able to keep up with the others. The fleet has now covered about 4,000, about a third of the distance of the voyage to San Francisco.

Thousands of curious spectators took points of vantage on the roofs of public buildings and elevated quays to witness the arrival of the fleet. The ships were greeted with waving flags.

As soon as anchorage was made Brazilian Minister of Marine, Admiral Alencar, captain of the port, American consul, commandant of naval divisions and civic authorities, went on board the Connecticut and extended a hearty welcome to Rear Admiral Evans, his officers and men.

Not less than 15,000 to 20,000 persons were about the boats which gathered at the sides of the ships and 50,000 were gathered on shore to celebrate the coming of the fleet.

Dr. Daughtery Locates in Missouri.

Dr. W. T. Daughtery, one of the best-known physicians of Crittenden county gives up his practice here to locate in Sikeston, Mo.

Dr. Daughtery was born and reared in Crittenden county and comes of one of our best families. He spent his early life on the farm and after reaching his majority he attended school in Marion. Later he entered the Medical Department of the University of Louisville and graduated from this school March 29, 1897. He located in this county soon after his graduation and has practiced his profession here since that time. He has made an enviable reputation as a physician and surgeon and has always retained the respect of the profession as well as the laity.

The people of Marion regret very much to lose him as a citizen and physician, but we bespeak for him success in his new location and commend him to the confidence of the people of Missouri.

A Tribute To Masonry.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 23, 1907. EDITOR PRESS:—At 4:30 p. m., Friday "before Christmas," three of the faculty of Kentucky Wesleyan Academy left the home of Cashier J. P. Bussey, of the Farmers & Traders Bank, Campton, Ky., to take passage over the Mountain Central R. R., bound respectively for Millersburg, Nicholasville and Louisville. The moon that had retreated from its zenith toward the west shone from a star-jeweled sky and lighted up beautifully the county seat of Wolfe and its surrounding mountains. The tiny car carried us safely over the narrow gauged road that winds a circuitous route among the great hills of eastern Kentucky that were with majestic dignity the decorations of vine and holly planted upon their rugged sides and summits by the hands of Nature's God. Here and there a mountain cataract leaped from the crevice of a rock and mingled with a rushing stream below, while again and again on embottled heights bristled with bayonets of ice, the result of an edict borne by north wind, couriers of the winter king, who is fast claiming all the territory of fair Kentucky for his own.

At Campton Junction connection was made with the L. & E., that coquets with mountains and plains until almost to the suburbs of Lexington. In five minutes the writer made connection at Lexington with the C. & O. and at 1 p. m., alighted at 7th Street Station and after a hasty refreshment boarded a 2nd St., car for the Masonic Widows and Orphans Home, the mecca of many a Kentucky mother.

There is no place more hallowed by happy re-unions than the reception room in this home.

Frequently in the last few days have we witnessed the quick entrance into this room of some mother from a distant part of the state, a messenger sent for her children, the sound of children's footsteps coming down the hall, the flash of joy that falls only from a mother's eye and the rapturous clasp of mother and children. Truly this room is the most hallowed place in all Kentucky! On Sunday as we sat in Sunday School and at services at 3 p. m., in the new chapel that is as beautiful as a classic thought, and listened to the perfect blending of 300 childish voices in recitation and song we thought of the many silent graves that mark the resting place of the departed and fancied their spirits hovered aloft.

Just now the home is decorated for the Christmas holidays and the children are anticipating gifts and a Christmas dinner.

Mr. Adams the new superintendent seems to have won the hearts of the entire home and is a very busy and patient man, realizing the responsibility of his position.

The Masons of Kentucky have builded wisely and beautifully for the sons and daughters of their deceased brothers, and now it is our watch-care to note the discipline and results, the consummation of their wishes to be developed by this noble institution.

These notes are dropped to dear Old Crittenden and then we will again bid adieu to the mountains, a country of bright girls and boys and men and women of sterling character.

Another Old Bachelor Surrenders.

Chas. D. Haynes, the efficient engineer at the Kentucky Flour Spar Co. mill, surprised all his friends by getting married at Morley, Mo., on Dec. 29, last, to Miss Belle Fralick. The first intimation their friends here had of the wedding was when they arrived at the home of the groom in this city.

The groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. and was born and reared here and numbers his friends by the score, and he received congratulations on all sides.

The bride was a former resident of the Salem section and a daughter of Will W. Fralick, who recently moved to Missouri.

BECKHAM SHY THREE VOTES

Anti-Beckham Scheme to Postpone Vote Failed to go Through.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 14.—The capital city arose this morning in a state of feverish excitement. Rumors were rife all night that no division would be taken at today's session of either house and that the anti-Beckham forces, both Republican and Democratic, had combined to postpone a vote until Jan. 21. When it came to a show-down, however, the Beckham men won out handily. It was everywhere conceded that if the first ballot indicated that Beckham needed but two or three votes to win every effort will be made to unseat a sufficient number of Republicans.

At the vote this morning in separate session Beckham failed of election by just three votes. The vote was as follows: Senate: Beckham, 18; Bradley, 16; Gen. Castleman, 1; Dave Smith, 1; John Doe, 1; Charles Wheeler, 1. Charleston and McNutt, of Louisville, Tabb, of Hardin county, and Campbell, of McCracken county, were the bolters. In the lower house the vote stood: J. C. Beckham, 48; W. O. Bradley, 48; James N. Kehoe, 1; David Baird, 1. Denman, of Metcalfe county, and Lillard, of Boyle, did not answer the call. McKnight, of Maysville, and Mueller, of Louisville, voted for Kehoe and Baird respectively. A vote will be taken every day at noon until an election is reached.

The supporters of Gov. Beckham are jubilant; the defection did not take them by surprise and they are very confident of electing their man in the next few days.

The House and the Senate this morning adopted the same rules for the joint session as obtained at the last session, except that the Speaker of the House will preside instead of the Lieutenant Governor.

The Speaker was not ready to announce his committee today; they will not be completed until tomorrow. Senator Combs introduced the model license law in the Senate.

Finley Fogg was elected Prison Commissioner and Frank Kavanaugh librarian in joint session.

Senator Thomas H. Paynter, discussing the senatorial race yesterday said:

"There is not the slightest doubt in my mind that Governor Beckham will be elected United States Senator. The claim that Governor Beckham, if not elected on the first ballot, cannot be elected thereafter, is entirely without reason. There are absolutely no grounds upon which to base such an assertion.

Governor Beckham said that he was well satisfied with the situation. The first of the delegations of boomers, who are expected to come to help along in the senatorial race, to arrive from Bardston, and included a number of well-known men who are interested in seeing Governor Beckham chosen.

Not an opportunity will be lost to gain a point anywhere which will be of profit. Naturally rumors of various kinds, most of them wild and incredible, are afloat. These, however, are given little credence. One which gained circulation to the effect that a switch would be made from Gov. Bradley to some "Man of the Hour" intended to beat Beckham, was a sample.

Bits of By-Play.

Thirty-three years ago a short, fat Dutchman held tightly to the side of his buggy while wending his way from Marion, Ky. to Fredonia. The rocks and ruts caused his craft to ride like a birch canoe on the Ohio when it is rough. The ground was covered by a light snow and it was bitter cold. The Dutchman's fat, chubby arms beat wildly to and fro to keep from freezing and he urged on his horses. Crossing Livingston creek the speed increased and in a very few minutes the Dutchman drew up in front of Jake Crider's hotel. Calling Mr. Crider to the door he inquired whether or not he could stay all night. Mr. Crider replied that he had plenty of corn and hay for his horses and plenty of hog and hominy for the Dutch but no beds for anybody, unless they were willing to sleep with a dead man.

"Oh, dots all right, Mr. Crider," replied the Dutchman, "I was used to sleeping mit dead people."

Of course he had a mental reservation that Mr. Crider was joking. The corn and hay proved good and plenty as did the hog and hominy.

"And now," said the host, "follow me and I will show you where you sleep."

Lighting a candle he led the way to a room. Opening the door they were met by a breath of cold grave-like air. Lying on a bed in a far corner was what appeared to be a six foot corpse covered all but the face with a winding sheet. The chin stuck up straight in the air and the hands were crossed on his peaceful breast. The scene was so realistic that the Dutchman fled in terror and only by much persuasion was brought back and introduced to Mr. P. S. Maxwell, who today bears no resemblance whatever to a corpse. The Dutchman was Mr. Jake Scholen, now traveling for Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co., of St. Louis.

-O-O-

Following the above occurrence Mr. Scholen sold bills of dry goods for Mackey Nesbitt to Mr. Jasper Wyatt and to Dave and Walter Byrd.

Mr. Scholen traveled his territory in those old time days selling goods and collecting for those sold on the previous trip. About thirty or thirty-five years ago he rounded in at Salem with quite a lot of money. Collections at Salem were splendid. Collections at Marion were still better. The last collection was made in the store of Mr. J. N. Woods and with six or eight thousand dollars he started for Mattoon. The ground was deep in snow and he rode in a sleigh. The quantity of money he carried had been getting on his nerves for some days. He was suspicious of everybody and he imagined there lurked a robber bold behind every clump of bushes. He could almost feel a cold knife blade down his spine. In this condition he came to the Milton Terry place just beyond the Harrison trestle. From out behind a clump of trees he saw a man coming. He came straight for the sleigh and carried a long rifle in one hand and a butcher knife in the other. The supreme moment of his life had now come. He must give up Mackey-Nesbitt's money or fight this bold highwayman to the death. He decided to fight and forthwith went down into his grip and hauled forth his six shooter. Standing up in his sleigh he called on the highwayman to halt. Mr. Milton Terry halted. "Now you trot the other way," Mr. Terry trotted. After the brave Mr. Scholen had gotten out of sight Mr. Terry went on over to George Howerton's and helped him kill hogs.

Contemplates Taking Such Steps.

The Woodmen of the World held their regular meeting at the Odd Fellows' Hall Monday night.

The following officers, who were elected at a meeting in December, to serve during 1908, were duly installed:

A. J. Butler, Past Con. Com.

Jas. H. Orme, member Board of Managers for three years.
T. Acheson Frazer, A. J. Driskill and Walter Travis, Camp Physicians.

As is characteristic with Rosewood Camp to render substantial assistance and good cheer to its members, some benevolent work was ordered done, to make glad the hearts of some who were in need.

One candidate was initiated into the mysteries of Woodcraft, and seven applications for membership were favorably acted upon.

The question of building a new and well arranged W. O. W. Hall was discussed, and while we understand there was no definite action taken in the matter, the sentiment of the lodge is strongly in favor of the project, and we predict that before many months Marion can boast of as handsome a W. O. W. building as can be seen in any city of similar size.

Pays the Full Amount.

The Association house in charge of Baird and Conger at this place does not hold back 40 per cent. of the value of the tobacco it receives, but is paying 100 per cent. on all tobacco delivered here. This is in accordance with the contract Judge Towery made with the Imperial Tobacco agents when the sale was made and is not understood by all tobacco growers.

Pogue A Winner.

M. F. Pogue was reelected to the office of assistant Clerk of the house by a good majority. He received thirty-one votes while both of his opponents received only twenty. Ed. O. Leigh of Paducah was his strongest opponent but the opposition to Pogue was never material. Leigh received only fourteen votes and Lindsey South of Frankfort the other candidate only six.

HON. M. F. POGUE

Judge Walker Very Low.

As we go to press we learn that City Judge, W. Hale Walker is in a critical condition and is not expected to survive the night. His relatives have been notified and some of them are here.

Should Judge Walker succumb to this present illness, one of the best known men in the county will pass from the stage. He took great pride in his scholarly attainments and was one of the best posted men on all subjects one would meet anywhere. He has been city judge several years.

Some Facts About the Rise of the Picture Post Card.

Three or four years ago all the facts about the picture post card industry could have been related in a few words.

In fact, so far as the United States was concerned, there was practically no story to tell. There may have been one hundred shops in the entire country where persons in search of picture post cards could find a small stock from which to make a selection. Originating in Europe, these cards had not met with little favor except on the Continent, where they found a somewhat ready sale as expensive souvenirs, and this had been the condition of affairs for many years. Suddenly, however, the tide turned, and, where manufacturers had hitherto been unable to dispose of their stock, they now found it impossible to supply the demand—an imperative cry for picture post cards coming from every part of the world, from Asia and Africa, as well as from America.

Millions upon millions of them are mailed during the year in this country. In New York City alone the post-office handles not less than one hundred thousand of these cards every day, and it is the same story elsewhere—in Chicago, San Francisco, New Orleans, Buffalo, and in all the large cities. Moreover, it is not in the United States alone that these conditions exist. In Europe, too, all the postal services are actually inundated with post cards. It is officially stated that not less than five hundred million passed through the British post-office during 1906.

These are stupendous figures, but, this is the point at which the imagination balks! We can read the numerals, but we cannot comprehend them. Just think of it! One hundred thousand post cards a day—enough, in a year, if laid picture side down, to extend from New York City to a point somewhere between Salt Lake City and the Pacific coast. Five hundred million—so many that one might make a belt of post cards extending completely around the earth at the equator without using more than two-thirds of them.—The Bohemian.

Wilbur V. Haynes is doing a "land office" business in post cards here in Marion and has customers all the United States. We learn that he received P. O. Money Orders for $100.00 in a single day recently. For the amount invested this looks like pretty good receipts and we are glad to see this enterprise growing.

A Higher Health Level.

"I have reached a higher health level since I began using Dr. King's New Life Pills," writes Jacob Springer, of West Franklin, Maine. "They keep my stomach, liver and bowels working just right." If these pills disappoint you on trial, money will be refunded at Jas. H. Orme and Haynes & Taylor's drug stores.

At last the sleigh, being very heavy, got the start of our horses and they could not check it. The horses caught, but the sleigh dragged them down the icy bank.

The old ferryman ran, cut his boat loose and let it float out of the way, making it fast to a willow some fifteen feet below.

of ice lodged against the bank, other ice forced on top of this until it was piled two feet high. The sleigh struck that with a crash. The hides being strapped on good did not bounce off. The horses caught their hind feet in the wet sand and held fast. The old ferryman ran to his boat, saying hold'em boys until I get the old tomahawk, that belonged to Logan, the Chief of the Mingoes, and I will hack and make the ice rough so your horses can hold their feet. He soon made the slick ice look like a horse shoe's rasp.

The ice under the sleigh was giving away, but the old boatman was half way up the steep bank. The horses were nervous, and looking back with one eye at the grinding ice in the river and with the other at the crystal ice that had been broken by the Indian war ax. They could not be content so they both gave a start, and just in time too—for the ice was fast sinking under the heavy load of furs. Up the steep bank they went, the sleigh popping and grinding the fresh broken bits of ice. Jake liked a few feet being to the top of the bank, but there was no stopping the horses. My brother hollered "get out of the way Jake I believe they will make it."

By this time they were on the slick ice, and Jake hollered "hurry for snakes and Jerico." Then one of the traces broke and back the sleigh started toward the river. The horses holding with the outside trace and when they struck the hacked ice they began to check the sleigh. The old boatman jerked a big bear skin off the load and threw it under the back of the sleigh. When the runners backed upon the thick bear skin the sleigh stopped.

The old boatman went to work again with his tomahawk on the ice. My Brother Bill went to mend the broken trace, and I stood at the horses head trying to quiet them.

By the time Jake finished roughing the ice Bill had the trace fixed, and Jake hollered "let'em come." They had a hard pull to get the sleigh off the big bear skin, but they were willing to pull.

When we were on safe ground Jake went to our horses and patting them with his rough hand said "done fine old boys, you deserve a good feed of Indian corn and some good bright fodder." Brother Bill said, "Jake you can have the bear skin for a George Washington's birthday present."

We were now in sight of our warehouse, which was a shed by the side of an old still house. Bill took his seat and began to whistle "My Old Kentucky Home." I walked by the side of our fine load of furs, watching the horses champing their bits and prancing on the frozen snow.

We were passing Bear Head Tavern, when an old lady taking our load of furs to be the stage coach, grabbed up her movables, which consisted of her carpet satchel, a bundle of home knit sox and a lot of dried pumpkins tied up in a linsey bag, which she was taking to her son's wife, whom she had never seen and who lived in Cincinnati. She had intended to make her son a visit, but found the boats were not running on account of so much ice. Out she come with all the haste she could possibly make, and she got along very well considering her size and clumsy load. She wished to return home on the forenoon round of the stage coach, and endeavored to signal the driver. The driver did not see her and in her eagerness she emitted a short quick cry half whoop and half squeal and waved her old umbrella around her head as though she was trying to scare off a detachment of hungry mosquitoes. Brother Bill was studying the advertisements on the other side of the street, that had been put up for his special benefit, and took no notice of the old lady. She knew this and decided her only chase to attract his attention would be to rush out and stop his team, this she decided to do, without remembering that there was ice on the tavern steps. So out she started, but lo! the ice was slick and in the twinkling of an eye she landed (bundles flying in all directions) in the middle of the street. Though Bill was studying fur advertisements but the horses were not, they saw all that had happened and were excited over it they run down the street, hitting the corner of the old still house which caused the sleigh to turn over and deposit our load of furs in front of the warehouse door.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, heartburn, and indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Restorative—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and salivary complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

VALUE OF RIGHT BREATHING.

Health Comes From Knowing How and What to Breathe.

Dust laden with the germs of consumption or other disease inhaled by all who use the streets, but disease is not developed unless the germs find conditions suitable for their lodgment and growth.

With people having catarrh their is an ideal culture medium for these germs, as the irritated membrane and weakened tissues is a hot-bed where germs must thrive and multiply until they are numerous and active.

If you have catarrh, you should use the easiest, simplest and quickest cure, the direct method of Hyomei, whose wonderful medicated air is taken in with the air you breathe, directly following and destroying all germs that have been inhaled, repairing any damage they may have worked and so healing and vitalizing the tissues as to render catarrh and germ infection no longer possible.

The unusual way in which Hyomei is sold dispels all doubt as to its curative properties, for Haynes & Taylor offer to refund the price to anyone whom it fails to benefit. You do not risk a cent in testing the healing virtues of this breath of life, for with every $1.00 outfit Haynes & Taylor give a guarantee to relieve catarrh or money refunded.

It Does the Business.

Mr. E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Maine, says of Bucklen's Arnica Salve "It does the business: I have used it for piles and it cured them. Used it for chapped hands and it cured them. Applied it on an old sore and it healed it without leaving a scar behind." 25c at Jas. H. Orme and Haynes and Taylor's drug stores.

Masts too Tall to Pass Under Bridge.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 9.—A telegram from Congressman Ollie James was received apprising the city officials here that the gunboat Paducah cannot come to this city, the masts being too tall to pass under the Cairo bridge.

The Paducah is now at New Orleans and the suggestion to have a committee go to New Orleans and present the silver service meets with approval. A meeting of the council and aldermen will be called to settle this matter this week.

Simple Remedy For LaGrippe.

LaGrippe coughs are dangerous as they frequently develop into pneumonia. Foley's Honey and Tar not only stops the cough but heals and strengthens the lungs so that no serious results need be feared. Elected to Office But Can't Get It.

Madisonville, Ky., Jan. 10.—Lute Rodgers was recently elected by the city council to the position of work house keeper to take effect the first Monday in January. He executed bond which was accepted by the city council and resigned his position as marshal of Mortons Gap and moved to Madisonville.

When he went to take possession of his office Monday, however, he found that Green Hancock, the former official, refused to vacate or to recognize the newly elected officer.

It is understood that Mr. Hancock claims that Lute is not eligible to the position, on the ground that he was not a citizen of Madisonville at the time of his election.

Mr. Rodgers is naturally exercised about the predicament in which he finds himself. He appeared before the council and asked that steps be taken by that body to put him in possession of his office. The council is advised by its attorneys that the council has done all it can do by electing him and accepting his bond, and says it is a question between him and the old official about getting possession of his office.

Rank Foolishness.

"When attacked by a cough or a cold or when your throat is sore, it is rank foolishness to take any other medicine than Dr. King's New Discovery," says C. O. Eldridge, of Empire, Ga. "I have used New Discovery for seven years and I know it to be the best remedy on earth for coughs and colds, croup, and all throat and lung troubles. My children are subject to croup, but New Discovery quickly cures every attack." Known the world over as the King of throat and lung remedies. Sold under guarantee at Jas. H. Orme and Haynes & Taylor drug store. 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Court House Destroyed by Fire.

Calhoun, Ky., Jan. 9.—The McLean county court house here was destroyed by fire, which was discovered about 1 o'clock this morning. Flames were then bursting from the rear of the building and had gained such headway that efforts to check the fire were unavailing. Important papers in both the county and circuit clerk's office were destroyed.

RESIDENTS REMONSTRATED

Will Not Permit Saloon Near Park Where Remains of Lincoln's Mother Are Buried.

Lincoln City, Ind., Jan. 10.—It is a settled fact that there will be no saloon near the entrance of the park here where the remains of Abraham Lincoln's mother are buried.

When Carter township went dry several months ago a man who had conducted a saloon in Lincoln City proposed to move across the line into Clay township and open a saloon near the entrance of the park. He leased ground and had the building for the saloon about completed when the temperance people of the township got up a remonstrance which contained a majority of names of the legal voters of the township and presented it to the county commissioners at Rockport. The commissioners passed on the remonstrance and refused to grant a license to the applicant for a saloon license. There are two remaining saloons in Clay township but the license of one expires in a short time and that of the second one some time in June.

The proposed opening of a saloon so near the Nancy Hanks park caused considerable agitation among the temperance people of Northern Spencer county and the state forester, it is said, went so far as to assert that if the saloon was opened the proposed improvements on the park would not be made.

Conclusion Of Did The Horse Runaway.

At last when the rear end of the sleigh was in the river, the horse regained their footing, but they could not pull the sleigh up the bank.

We unhitched the horses and led them up the bank, and while Bill stayed with the horses, I went to the closest house and got two more horses.

These horses were rough shod and pulled the sleigh up the bank, when they had done this, and the other horses had been hitched to the sleigh we started home again.

But we hadn't gone more than a mile, when a hog ran across the road in front of the horses and scared them so bad that they ran away.

I shouted to Bill (who was driving) to stop the horses, but he couldn't, and they ran till they ran over a stump and turned the sleigh over and this checked the horses.

When we had righted the sleigh and put the furs in it again we started again.

We stopped at a store in Owensboro and sold our skins for $1 apiece then we started for our home which was three blocks from the store, and we had so much money we didn't go on a trip like that one for three years. Written by WALLACE F. WOOD, BAYOU, KY.

Letter From the Philippines.

Camp Keithley, Mindanao, P. I.
Editor RECORD-PRESS.

Marion, Ky.

Dear Sir:—I shall once more try to write you a few lines, and hope that they may not find the waste basket, and trusting that they may prove of interest to the readers of the RECORD-PRESS, I shall try to give them a description of the Hawaiian Islands.

The 18th Infantry sailed from San Francisco Oct. 5, arriving at Honolulu Oct. 12, staying there for four days. The Hawaiian Islands are in the North Pacific ocean between longitude 154 degrees, 50 minutes and 150 degrees, 30 minutes West and latitude 22 degrees, 16 seconds and 18 degrees, 54 minutes North. There are eight inhabited islands, namely: Niihau, Kauai, Molokai, Lanai, Maui, Kohoolae, Oahu and Hawaii. Three small islands or rocks are uninhabited, Lehua north of Niihau, Kaula, southwest of Niihau, Molokini between Kahoolawe and Maui. Small islands further to the northwest are considered as belonging to the group. The islands are of volcanic formation and each has one or more extinct craters, while on Hawaii, the youngest, there are two living ones. Much of the surface of the islands consists of lava fields, although the major portion is fertile soil. There are no large rivers. The climate is mild and equable; cooler than in similar latitudes on the continent. The northwest trades blow nearly all the year, producing delightful temperatures. The extreme range being from 55 degrees to 89 degrees, with an average 75 degrees. The daily range is about 10 degrees. The average rain-fall for the last sixteen years past at Honolulu is 27 inches. The population by the census of 1900 was 154,000 of which the Hawaiian people comprising nearly 50 per cent.

The principal product of the Hawaiian islands is sugar, about 400,000 tons of raw material being produced annually. One factory refines its product. The physical aspect of the country is that of a volcanic mass, the result of many and continued eruption, weathered down by storms of centuries. On the new island of Hawaii where the upbuilding process still goes on are the highest mountains in the Pacific ocean, Mauna Kea, some 14,000 feet, Mauna Loa is almost as high, while Hualalai is close to 9,000 feet. Geological faults have cut great valleys into the sides of the vast mountain bulks.

City of Honolulu among the greatest variety of cities that are scattered far over the American possession has the oddest form of government, it is probable that it is the most peculiarly governed city in all the world. Although it has a population of nearly 50,000, and is one of the most important sea-ports on the Pacific ocean, it has no mayor or other officials distinctly its own, and it has no city corporation. Its affairs are directed by county and territorial officials only, and it is only distinguished legally from the remainder of Oahu county, which embraces the entire island of the name, by being a separate judicial district and having its own deputy sheriff and district magistrate who serves as police judge.

Honolulu is distinguished in other ways from all other cities of the world. One of these is its having served successively as the seat of government of a monarchy, a republic and an American territory. Its present odd form of government is due to its novel history, but it is quite certain that it will not be many years more before it will have both laws and officials of its own and in this way be like other cities of modern times.

How many of the millions of our people who are ever in search of new fields to stray in, new markets to operate in, or new mountains to climb, new gardens wherein to pluck the sweetest of flowers, to taste of the most delicate fruits, and new seas whose gentle lapping waves are ever caressing new shores; how many know of our garden islands, our own territory? Out here in the midst of the greatest of oceans, although almost lost sight of, just some tiny dots on the map, it is yet so easy and so pleasant to reach, so full of opportunity, so full of all that is desirable and productive, so full of mystery and of history, and with all so loved by nature that she has lavished her best upon them all.

The 18th Infantry sailed from Honolulu Oct. 16, arriving at Manila, P. I. Nov. 3, leaving there the same date for Camp Overton, Mindanao, P. I., arriving there the 7, leaving there the morning of the 8 for Camp Keithley, which lies thirty miles inland, and is 2206 feet above the sea level, and is a very healthy place, nice and cool the year around.

To-day being Thanksgiving day and I have enjoyed a most delicious dinner, and have thought of my friends so far away and wondered what they were doing. I sincerely hope that they all have had an enjoyable time. So wishing all who read the RECORD-PRESS a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, I will close for this time with best wishes to all. Very respectfully,

BURT E. WOODY.

Newspapers Affected By New Postal Regulation.

Washington, Jan. 2.—The post master general has promulgated a new regulation in regard to the newspaper postage, effective yesterday, of vast importance to the newspapers of the country. It reads:

"A reasonable time will be allowed publishers to secure renewals of subscriptions, but they must be renewed after the term for which they are paid within the following periods: Dailies, within three months; tri-weeklies within six months; semi-weeklies within nine months; weeklies, within one year; semi-monthlies, within four months; bi-monthlies, within six months, and quarterlies within six months. Otherwise they shall not be counted in the legitimate list of subscribers, and copies mailed on account thereof shall not be accepted for mailing at second-class postage rate, but be mailed at the transient second-class rate of 1 cent for every 4 ounces."

The effect of this is to require a newspaper to put a 1-cent stamp on every paper where the subscriber is in arrears for the periods fixed above.

The City Man Can Succeed in the Country

By F. A. WAUGH.
Chief Department of Agriculture, Massachusetts Agricultural College.

THE demand for farm labor is now far greater than it ever was in any other country. The city man, therefore, who is now supporting himself and family on laborer's wages can transfer his sphere of usefulness to the country any day. Such a transfer will usually be to his pecuniary advantage and to the physical, intellectual and moral advantage of his family.

Any other city man who does not understand modern and improved specialized farming should begin his country experience by hiring out for one or two years with some man known to be successful in the specialty to which the city man aspires.

Indeed the first thing to be decided by the city family looking countryward is what specialty is to be followed. Some men (and women) have a fancy for poultry keeping, others a taste for fruit growing, others prefer dairying, and so on through the list. Every one of these specialties offers good returns to industrious and intelligent men, but experience proves that a man can seldom succeed in a line wherein his tastes are not engaged.

Most men will naturally and properly be ambitious to establish themselves in the management and ownership of their own farms. After a reasonable apprenticeship served in the employ of some successful farmer, the city man can strike out for himself by renting a piece of land adapted to the specialty of his choice. Then, after another period of probation, he will be justified in buying a farm suited to his needs.

There is abundant opportunity in the country for the city families who want to move thither, but let no one try it on the supposition that anybody can succeed on the farm—success in modern agriculture requires several fundamental personal qualities. These are chiefly industry, frugality, patience and love for country life.

F. A. Waugh

The Human Heart a Restless Sea

By CARDINAL GIBBONS.

breath of prosperity and the winds of adversity as the sea is influenced by the storms that sweep over its surface.

Behold the birds of the air, for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns, yet your heavenly father feedeth them. Are not you of much more value than they? Man, restless man, makes every provision for the future. He sows and reaps and gathers into barns, he is absorbed by worldly pursuits, and yet he is uneasy about the future. The birds neither sow nor reap, and make little provision for the future, yet they perch on the branch and sing their evening song of thanksgiving to God without any misgivings about the morrow. For they know by that instinct which God has planted in their tiny breast that the divine hand which fed them to-day will feed them also to-morrow.

And for raiment, why are ye solicitous? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow. They labor not, neither do they spin. And yet I say to you that not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed as one of these. Now if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to-day is and to-morrow is cast into the fire, how much more you, O ye of little faith. Look at the flowers in your garden. How rich and variegated is their dress! More beautiful to the eye are the tints and shades of these flowers than the Tyrian purple with which Solomon was arrayed in the days of his regal splendor. Now if God gives so beautiful a covering to the flowers of the field which bloom to-day and wither to-morrow, can he neglect to provide suitable apparel for your bodies, which are destined to be transplanted and to bloom forever in the paradise of God?

God forbid that, while you are admonished to avoid the extreme of solicitude, you should fall into the other extreme of idleness and improvidence. If our Lord points out to you the care his heavenly father takes of you, he expects you at the same time to co-operate with him. "God helps those who help themselves."

It is true, indeed, that God feeds the birds of the air. But he does not deposit the bird's breakfast in the nest. The bird must rise early to find it. "The early bird catches the worm." It is true that God crowns the mountains with forest trees and enriches the bowels of the earth with coal and other mineral deposits. But it is equally true that this wood and coal cannot be of service to man without hard and patient toil. It is true that God gives fecundity to the earth, so that it produces grain of all kinds for the nourishment of man, but it is equally true that before these crops can be utilized man must cultivate the soil, plant the seed and reap it and gather it into barns. Christ multiplied the loaves in the desert to remind us of the bounty of divine providence.

The upshot of Christ's teaching is this: You should be active and industrious without excessive solicitude; diligent and laborious with anxiety. Labor to-day as if all depended on your own right arm and brain; trust to-morrow as if all depended upon the providence of God. Use to-day, for it is yours; trouble not yourselves about the morrow, for it belongs to God, it is still in the womb of futurity and may never be born to you. "Be not solicitous for to-morrow, for to-morrow will be solicitous for itself. Sufficient for the day is the evil thereof." Do not derange the order of divine providence by superadding to the care of to-day the solicitudes of to-morrow, which are often imaginary or magnified by the imagination. Like a skillful general, concentrate your powers on the formidable enemy that confronts you now. Do not scatter your forces by striving at the same time to encounter an enemy yet far off and who may never approach you. Endeavor to pass through cares as it were without care. While the mists of perplexity and anxiety may hover about the imagination and disquiet the senses, never let these vapors ascend to the higher and more serene atmosphere where the soul is enthroned and communes in undisturbed union with her God.

Did the Horses Run Away?

After many attempts to pull us to the top we saw they could not do it. Then we jumped out and cut the tugs and said goodbye to the old sled, eggs, furs and feathers, but to our great surprise and delight it landed in some brush and did not get in the water. So the next thing was, how were we to get it up this steep incline?

We first took our horses to a farm-house near by, fed them well and let them have a good rest, then we went to work thinking of a plan to get that old sleigh out of there. Bill suggested that we borrow grubbing hoes and neighbors and cut the ice from the sleigh to the top of the bank, which we did. It was hard work though, but in doing this the horses could get a foothold. Then we took them down and hooked them to the old sleigh. With much whooping and yelling they pulled her safely to the top. So, after thanking and paying the good folks who helped us out, we started on our journey.

After traveling until nearly dark it seemed that we could not find a place to stay for the night. After going some little distance we came to a little log hut. Then we went in and looked around, and we supposed it had recently been vacated by some trapper, for in one corner we found some hay which we fed our horses. After looking in a small closet we found a little piece of bacon and a few potatoes and a skillet without a handle. We built a fire in the big open fireplace and fried a few slices of meat and a few potatoes, which made a very good supper. After getting good and warm we took our buffalo robes and went to bed, and thankful too for such a warm place to sleep in.

Next morning we prepared a hurried breakfast and were soon on the road home, which we hoped to reach by night. We traveled all day without any accidents. When night began to come we were in a few miles of home. We were feeling very tired and felt we would soon be at home. Our horses looked so tired we felt they could not run now. We had not gone one-half mile when our horses took fright at something.

No, James, I never knew. Did they run? Well, yes, they ran.

Well, there is nothing else to tell you boys, only we walked in home. Next morning we went back with another pair of horses and brought our old sleigh home.

No, boys, I don't care to make any more trips like that.

Steamer Butterff Warned.

"Night-riders," according to reports in Paducah today, have turned their attention on steamboats and other common carriers that have been moving tobacco from wayside landings to the city markets.

Men of the crew of the steamer W. H. Butterff, in port Wednesday from Nashville, brought the news that the good boat and her officers had been warned not to take any tobacco from landings to the markets. According to the report the boat would be burned or sunk and her crew would be held responsible by the "night-riders."

Several months ago the Butterff's crew were warned, but Capt. Tyner is no coward. He armed his white crew with Winchester rifles and is accepting all the hogsheads of tobacco that are placed on the banks for his boat.

When the Butterff arrived at Paducah from the Cumberland river Wednesday she had her main deck blocked off with tobacco that came to this city—Paducah News Democrat.

A KENTUCKY WONDER OF WONDERS

That Two Men in the Same Week Should Decline Appointment to a Pat Office is Taken as a Portent of a Hard Winter or Some Equally Undesirable Visitation—The Dog Law Stands Good Show of Being Thrown to the Dogs—Legislative Committee to Investigate the Tobacco Troubles—A More Equitable System of Taxation, Primary Elections and the Senatorial Contest Prove Interesting Subjects of Comment.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 15.—It is an absolute fact that two Kentuckians in the same week have done the unheard-of thing of declining an office with a salary of $2,500 per year and traveling expenses attached to it. Whether this is a sign of a long, cold winter, an earthquake, or some other dreadful happening, is not known, of course, but something else unusual is bound to happen, for such strange events never come singly. C. M. Barrett of Ohio county and Stanley Milward of Lexington both claimed the state fire marshal's job, but Barrett was appointed. Before he went to work, however, he found he might be unjustly criticized in his work because he is the president of the National Society of Equity, and that society has a tobacco branch and the fire marshal would have to investigate the burning of tobacco barns and warehouses by the "night riders," some of whom are supposed to be members of the Society of Equity. Then the place was offered to Mr. Milward, who had been turned down at first, and, wonder of wonders, Mr. Milward declined it. Just think of a Kentuckian declining a good office like that. It is dollars to doughnuts, though, that the third man to whom it is offered will take it and freeze to that twenty-five hundred per. like a duck to a dough-pile.

The first bill introduced in the present legislature was one to repeal the dog-tax law passed two years ago. It was introduced by Senator Smith of Knox county, and the present sentiment of the legislature indicates its passage. The dog law proved both unpopular and ineffective. Nearly every man that owned a dog has blamed the law, and the assessors almost made it ineffective by failing to list the dogs for taxation. For instance, in one county with a population of 20,000, probably 2,800 dogs would be listed, and in an adjoining county with the same population and apparently as many dogs, only 700 would be listed.

A legislative committee will probably investigate every phase of the tobacco troubles in Kentucky, as Senator Newman of Woodford has introduced a resolution providing for a committee of three senators and four representatives to do the investigating. The resolution, which will undoubtedly be adopted, says: "Said committee shall report the conditions prevailing in this commonwealth before the organization of the Tobacco Trust, the conditions prevailing after its organization and before the organization of the various tobacco societies, the conditions since, and in every way try to reach a knowledge of the situation, such as will enable this General Assembly to enact such laws as will protect the rights of our people if our present laws are insufficient. The committee shall also ascertain whether the so-called 'tobacco trust' has the right to do business in this state when pursuing the methods it has followed for several years. It shall also ascertain whether any of our statutes are not enforced by the various officers of the commonwealth."

The expected deadlock over the organization of the house of representatives did not materialize, and everything went through with smooth sailing, all the Democratic caucus nominees being elected by a strict party vote. Now the question naturally arises, what effect will this have on the senatorial vote? Ex-Governor Beckham and ex-Governor Bradley are respectively the nominees of the Democratic and Republican parties for United States senator, and the legislature stands 73 Democrats to 65 Republicans. Four of the Democrats must shall make investigation of whether it is legal and practical to employ convicts in the manufacture of plug and twist tobacco.

This is a sweeping resolution, and the committee will have an enormous amount of work to do if it accomplishes anything. Governor Willson is working assiduously to suppress the "night riders," but they keep bobbing up here and there in various parts of the state and burning tobacco warehouses. Soldiers are being stationed in suspected towns and Gatling guns are being placed in readiness to repel expected attacks by the "night riders." There must be some cause for all this trouble—somebody has been doing wrong somewhere, and as a result the "night riders" are doing wrong now. The tobacco growers feel that a crisis has arrived with them and that it is of as much moment to them as throwing the tea overboard in Boston harbor over a hundred years ago, was to the American colonists.

Maybe this legislative committee may find the seat of the trouble. If over-production has caused the low prices of tobacco, the remedy is to plant no crop this year. If the tobacco trust has forced the low prices to fatten its dividends, then the trust should be fined, as Chief Justice O'Reas said, "till the Judge Landis line of $19,000,000 would look like 36 cents."

An earnest effort will be made during the session to procure or take steps to procure a more equitable system of taxation for the whole state. Looking to this end, the revenue and taxation committee of the State Development association has prepared a bill which proposes an amendment to Section 171 of the constitution, which will enable some future legislature to adopt a system of what is termed "expensive taxation," which will adapt itself to the business conditions and changing situations of all classes of property in the state. Of course the amendment will have to be voted on by the people next November, and it is worded as follows: "The general assembly shall provide by law an annual tax, which shall be levied and collected for public purposes only, and shall be uniform upon all property of the same class subject to taxation within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax, and all taxes shall be levied and collected by general warrants. The power vested in the general assembly to provide for taxation based on income, license and franchise may be so exercised that such taxes may be in addition to, or in lieu of, ad valorem taxation upon such personal property as may be designated by the authority levying the tax. In the latter event such personal property shall not be subject to assessment. All taxes based on income, license or franchise shall be uniform on the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax. The general assembly shall have power to divide property into two classes and to determine what class of property shall be subject to state taxation, and what class or classes of property shall be subject to local taxation.

This amendment, if adopted, may lead to a system of taxation now in operation in Pennsylvania, where farm lands are not taxed at all, for state purposes. Kentucky has had more trouble and more legal controversies over the tax question than her sister states in the past decade, and it is believed this amendment to the constitution, if adopted, will solve the problem and require each class of property to bear its proper proportion of the burden of taxation.

The expected deadlock over the organization of the house of representatives did not materialize, and everything went through with smooth sailing, all the Democratic caucus nominees being elected by a strict party vote. Now the question naturally arises, what effect will this have on the senatorial vote? Ex-Governor Beckham and ex-Governor Bradley are respectively the nominees of the Democratic and Republican parties for United States senator, and the legislature stands 73 Democrats to 65 Republicans. Four of the Democrats must desert Beckham, else he will be elected on the first ballot. Beckham workers say they are absolutely confident and have no fear of the result. Bradley's friends say four or more Democrats will not vote for Beckham and the consequent deadlock will result in the election of Bradley. No one knows really what to expect, but it is certain that if Beckham does not win on the first ballot, a most exciting session of the legislature will follow and much-needed legislation will be neglected.

An important bill that will be introduced this session, will be the one providing a new method of holding state primary elections. It will provide that both political parties must nominate all candidates for state offices on the same day and that day shall be general registration day; that the registration law shall be extended so that every voter in city, town and country must register, and the registration of voters must also serve as primary election officers, thus saving the expense of three sets of officers. The bill further provides that the state shall pay the expense of holding the primaries, thus giving a poor man a chance to make a race without having to borrow enough money to put up his entrance fee. The state now pays the expenses of registration in the election, and it is contended that the additional expense would not be great enough to offset the merits of such a bill.

A bill will be introduced this week to increase the annual appropriation for the Kentucky Children's Home Society from $15,000 to $20,000. Representative Nelson of the home will come to Frankfort to explain to the legislature the necessity for the increase. This is one of the most worthy charities to which the state contributes, and hundreds of poor children are cared for and provided with good homes in respectable families every year.

The first day the senate met, former Lieutenant Governor Thorne walked into the chamber and was given a most flattering reception, in fact it amounted to an ovation, and Colonel Thorne was much affected by it. He made one of his characteristic humorous speeches and said he knew of but one story that fitted the occasion. He said: "In a certain community in another state it is the custom, after the engagement of a young couple is announced at the church, for the bride-to-be to sit in the lap of the groom-to-be the first night he calls. On one occasion a small man was engaged to a two-hundred-pound girl. After the engagement was announced he called on her and, according to the custom, she sat in his lap. He never complained, but along about 11 o'clock she suddenly asked, 'Why, George, dear, aren't you tired?' 'No,' he replied, 'About 9 o'clock I was tired, but now I am paralyzed.' I am paralyzed by this reception, gentlemen," concluded Thorne. He caused a big laugh when he said: "I am in favor of civil service when I'm in office, but opposed to it when I'm out."
