MRS. THOS. H. COCHRAN

Passes Away at Her Home Thursday Morning.

The city was thrown into mourning and sadness pervaded every home when the news was spread last Thursday morning that Elvie Crider, wife of Thos. H. Cochran, was dead. She breathed her last at 2:30 o'clock Thursday morning, surrounded by husband, brother and loving friends who had done all love could suggest to save her life, but all to no avail. Mrs. Cochran had been ill only the fewest number of days, only the week before her death she was well and out in the streets and went to the depot to bid her little son goodbye when he was leaving with his grandma for a few days stay in Evansville.

Her infant daughter born the day of her death, was placed in the coffin with her, it having died shortly after its birth.

The funeral was held at the Methodist church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock and was conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. B. Adams, assisted by Revs. J. F. Price and Virgil Elgin, of Hartford, Ky. The music was an especial feature of the service the songs being favorites of the deceased and especially well rendered. "Asleep in Jesus," "Looking This Way," "Nearer My God to Thee," were rendered interspersed with prayers and remarks by the ministers, which were exceedingly beautiful and appropriate.

The floral offerings were especially profuse and comprised many beautiful designs, formed of sweet and beautiful flowers of many kinds.

The pallbearers were the stewards of the church: Messrs. J. A. Moore, R. I. Nunn, J. W. Lamb, H. A. Haynes, C. E. Welson, J. N. Boston, T. A. Frazer and C. S. Nunn.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather the church was crowded to its full capacity and many ladies even going to the cemetery in the rain.

Mrs. Cochran was held in high esteem and was a much beloved woman.

Equity Meeting.

Marion Local, American Society of Equity, No. 4237, will meet in the Court Hall, at Marion, Ky., Feb. 8th, 1908, at 1 o'clock prompt.

All members should be present and settle their annual dues, and those that have given their names to become members, should settle their dues so you may receive the official paper.

By W. E. SMITH, Sec.

A Broom Factory.

One of the enterprises which will soon be put on foot in the city is a broom factory to manufacture brooms from home grown corn. Mr. John M. Albridge raised several tons of broom corn and the factory will be installed in a suitable house near his residence on R. F. D. No. 1.

Farmers Meeting.

The National Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America, met at Mexico, Ky., Jan. 30, 1908, for the purpose of organizing a county union. The school house being too small to accommodate the vast crowd, the church doors were very cordially thrown open to the union.

No less than 87 delegates were present from the various locals of county.

The house was called to order by our most efficient State Organizer, R. L. Barnett.

Brilliant speeches were given by the members and friends of the union in favor of organization and co-operative work. R. L. Barnett took the floor and explained the purpose of the union and the object of the present meeting.

The following officers were elected:—Rev. Bob Jonson, President; Bro. Will Brown, Vice-president; Bro. Guy Griffith, Secretary; Bro. Rob Thomas, Chaplin; Bro. Ralph Hodge, Doorkeeper; Bro. W. B. Binkley, Conductor; Bro. Edd Flannery, Business Agent; J. N. Towery, County Organizer.

Marion, Ky., was unanimously chosen for the place to hold the next county meeting.

R. L. Barnett then took the floor and delivered the closing speech which in point of eloquence, soundness and excellency will be remembered when he has long since passed over Jordan.

At the close he said in substance, "if is any man here endorses any harm to person, peace or property we would like to know it, all who do not rise to your feet." The house arose simultaneously as one man.

The meeting then adjourned to meet in Marion, Feb. 29, 1908. Princeton Leader please copy.

E. H. MOTT, Secretary.

Co-Operation of Equity Men.

Repton, Ky., Feb. 3.—Now that our State meeting is passed and its work a matter of history, it behooves every A. S. of E. member to get busy and help to make this the biggest year in the history of the organization for real progress and great achievement along every line of Equity work. Every official should resolve to do his best, every member should resolve to co-operate with the officers to the utmost of his ability. A pull all together will surely win. It also seems to me that conditions are ripe for those who have never affiliated with the Society to do so now as the need is certainly apparent to every one and enough has already been accomplished to demonstrate beyond a doubt that with our forces united as we should be that every object of the Society should be accomplished in a short time, and that happiness and contentment would reign supreme in the land and the farmer come to be publicly recognized as the most important factor in the business world. Now I want to urge upon all non-members the great importance of giving their assistance that there may be no question of reaping quick rewards and the benefit may come to all. The Society has surely already provided you with the means so there is no question as to whether it will pay or as to whether it can be done. So come now and help to plan for the future. Give us the benefit of your observation while watching us in our struggle for Equity.

The locals should be busy collecting the 1908 dues forward $1.10 for each member to S. B. Robertson, State Secretary, Calhoun, Ky. Twenty-five cents is to be kept in the local treasury and fifteen cents is to be sent to the county secretary. The total amount of annual dues is $1.50. Let all go to work and revive the dues, and stir up individual interest. Get ready for the busy season that is coming on, when we will be absorbed in the production of crops.

NIGHT RIDERS

Burn Tobacco Factory and Whip Two Men at Dycusburg.

Kuttawa, Ky., Feb. 4.—Three hundred and fifty masked night riders rode into Dycusburg, in Crittenden county, at 1 o'clock this morning, burned the tobacco factory of Bennett Brothers adjoining, shot up the home of William Groves, foreman of the tobacco factory, driving him from the building when he was captured and whipped almost to death.

Henry Bennett, a member of the firm of Bennett Brothers, was taken from his home, tied to a tree and severely whipped. He was left bound to the tree. Bennett Brothers operated an independent factory and have been buying tobacco from nonassociation growers, it is claimed.

When the mob called at Mr. Groves' house they requested him to come out. He declined to do so, and the shooting at once began. Mr. Groves was in a room with his wife and children, and as the bullets began to fly through the windows he deemed it best to come out in order to save the lives of his wife and children.

As he appeared in the porch members of the mob grabbed and bound him. Taking him into the street they whipped him and left him lying there. The mob then proceeded to the home of Henry Bennett and called to him to come out. Hastily dressing, Mr. Bennett obeyed the command. He was then taken away tied to a tree and severely beaten.

The fire loss is estimated at $10,000.

One hundred and fifty members of the mob rode through Eddyville at 4:10 o'clock this morning. They were supposed to have come from Trigg and Caldwell counties. The other members of the mob scattered in different directions and it is not known where they came from.

No attempt was made to molest any other property than that described. The night riders were all armed, and the citizens kept indoors, no resistance being made.

Visit Was Expected.

Paducah, Ky., Feb. 4.—Bennett Brothers owned an independent plant which is reported to have been heavily stocked with tobacco. The distillery was small, but contained several thousand gallons of whisky. The people of the little village did not venture out of their homes until after the night riders had gone. They had been expecting a visit, as Bennett Brothers had received threatening letters. At 12 o'clock about 200 hundred night riders passed through Eddyville and went in the direction of Dycusburg. An hour later the fire could be plainly seen at Eddyville, which is ten miles away. Dycusburg has a population of about 700, and is on the Cumberland river, thirty-two miles above Paducah.

W. B. White Dead.

Mr. W. B. White, after an illness of nearly a year, died Wednesday morning. He had been ill for quite a while, having a cancer of the stomach, which was the cause of untold suffering.

Mr. White was fifty-six years old and was a member of the Christian church and also a member of the W. O. W. Lodge of this city. He was an honest, upright gentleman.

The funeral services will be held at the residence this (Thursday) afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Revs. T. C. Carter and J. H. Butler. The interment at the new cemetery, the W. O. W. Lodge having charge of the services there.

Judge Koltinsky.

The friends of Herman Koltinsky are congratulating him on his appointment as City Judge to succeed Judge W. H. Walker, deceased. He has been advised of his appointment and will receive his commission from the Governor this week.

McConnell-Boyd.

Mr. John McConnell and Miss Annie Bell Boyd, popular young people of Shady Grove, were married at the home of Frank Boyd, Wednesday, January 29, 1908, at 2:30 o'clock, their pastor, R. A. LaRue officiating.

Many friends and neighbors gathered at the home of the bride's parents to witness the happy event. Immediately after the ceremony the crowd proceeded to the home of Mr. Hodge McConnell, where a feast of good things was spread. Feasting, music, cheerful laughter, delightful association of friends and neighbors, age and youth made the occasion a beautiful bouquet of fragrant flowers to carry with us through life.

The happy pair thus enter upon a doubly bright pathway of life, flowered by the best wishes of their host of friends.

A Private Vault.

Any person who has attended a funeral at the new cemetery on a rainy day can see the real need of a private vault for holding the remains of our loved ones above the ground until suitable weather for an interment, can be had. To put those we love under the sod is sad at best, but to feel that the water soaked ground will soon allow the grave to fill with water is heart rending to contemplate. If the grave can be filled with dry earth it will in a large measure prevent the water seeping in. A substantial vault of brick, stone or concrete to hold two or three bodies and with substantial fastenings would be only what is found in cities and what we should have here.

KING CARLOS

And Crown Prince Luis Philippe Are Shot to Death at Libson.

Libson, Feb. 1.—King Carlos and Crown Prince Luis Philippe were assassinated today.

They were shot to death while seated in the royal carriage at Libson just after their return from Villa Vicosa, where they have been sojourning, by a band of men who fired a volley from carbines.

The royal family was driving in an open carriage when a group of men, at the corner of Prasca Do Commercio and Rua Do Arsenal, suddenly sprang toward the carriage and leveling their carbines which had been concealed upon them, fired mortally wounding the King and Crown Prince and slightly wounding the King's second son, Prince Manuel.

Queen Amelia, who arose in the carriage and tried to shield the Crown Prince, was unhurt.

Immediately the police guard fired on the regicides, killing two of them.

Before any of the guards were aware of what had happened the assassins leaped toward the carriage and instantly a fusilade of shot rang out.

In a moment all was terrible confusion, the King and Crown Prince being shot down without the slightest chance to save themselves. Police guards sprang upon the regicides the number of whom was somewhat uncertain, and killed two and captured four others.

One of these committed suicide after being placed in prison.

It is charged that one of the murderers was a Spaniard named Cordova.

The bodies of the King and Crown Prince were removed from the Marine arsenal, in two closed carriages, to the royal palace, Paço Das Necessidades, the late residence of the King, escorted by the municipal guards, mounted.

Death's Harvest.

Mrs. Minnie Smithson, wife of the Rev. J. O. Smithson, formerly pastor of the Shady Grove Circuit, in this county, died Tuesday, January 28, 1908, at her home in Calhoun, Ky., after an illness of several weeks. Her remains were brought to Marion for enternment and were taken to the home of Judge Rochester Wednesday accompanied by her husband, J. O. Smithson, her sister, Mrs. Jones, of Kansas, a sister and two brothers of the husband and the Rev. Virgil Elgin. The remains were laid to rest in the new cemetery Thursday morning by the side of her two infants who had preceded her.

Sister Smithson was forty-two years old and is survived by her husband and seven children. She was a devout member of the Methodist church, a sweet, tender and loving mother and a devoted wife. She was greatly beloved by a large circle of friends in this and Livingston county on account of her sweet disposition and lovable manners.

The Rev. Virgil Elgin, from Hartford, Ky., preached her funeral in the Methodist Church to a large congregation.

Of her father's family only one sister and brother survive her. Mrs. Jones, of Kansas, and a brother in Alaska.

The husband has the deepest sympathy of a host of friends in this county, who remember him when pastor of the Shady Grove Circuit. No Minister ever drew around himself more friends than did Bro. Smithson during one year he spent in our midst.

One by one, the dear ones leave us, as the years roll by. Sister Smithson has found love, rest and home.

Ohio River Runs Oil.

With a breeze blowing from the Illinois shore it was a novel sight to see the oil on top of the water last week forced to the shore and in a sufficient body for the Hanger Hicks Construction Company to have a barrel of it taken up for a test as to its value which they used to a good advantage in oiling machinery. Many who witnessed it claim it to have been the sight of their lives, when oil upon the bosom of one of the greatest rivers of the world could be taken up in barrels. The oil is supposed to have escaped from the newly shot wells up the Wabash in the new oil fields of Indiana and Illinois. But greater sights than this will be for all who live to see the dawning of 1909—when old Uniontown shoots her three wells. We have just as much confidence in the oil being shot from these three holes when the proper depth has been reached, as we have in the men that make the calculations for the eclipses of the sun or moon, and unless they shoot these wells on the sly, we mean to be there at the shooting, and be the first to write it up and give them the congratulations due them for their perseverance and the reward it will have brought. We have it under us, but our citizens are waiting for the spirit to move them and it will be by and by.—Sturgis News Democrat.

SEARCH QUESTIONS.

1. In what sense could Jesus properly refer to Judea as "his own country"?

Here the reference is to Judea, the land of his birth, where he had previously been preaching without success. In a deep sense Judea was "his own country." It was the land of his birth, and for centuries had been connected with him by prophecy. It was also the center of the religious life of the Hebrew nation.
2. In what sense might he have referred to Galilee as "his own country"?

It was equally as applicable, Matt. 13:57; Mark 7:4; Luke 4:24.
3. Give examples of prophets and apostles who were without honor in their own country.
4. Why, and to what extent, is it true, if at all, that a young man is more likely to succeed away from home than in the community where he was born and reared?
5. Would there be more Christians today if miracles were still common?
6. What were the general differences between the people of Judea and those of Galilee?
7. How does this lesson illustrate the beginning and growth of faith?
8. What proportion of your prayer-time do you spend in asking for material blessings?
9. What does Jesus teach as to the relative order of the material and spiritual (Mt. 6:33)?
10. In what sense may we cause Christ to be without honor in his own country?

Women Capable of Grappling With World Problems

By MRS. CLINTON B. FISKE,
President Methodist Women's Home Mission Society.

There is nothing which women cannot accomplish. Many of the greatest undertakings of the world's work could be, and ought to be, carried through by them. They are able in the majority of cases to solve big social problems to better advantage than men, for women know and thoroughly understand home life, which, of course, is the foundation of everything.

I believe that women who have homes of their own and are interested in them are better fitted for work that affects other homes and for the educational, temperance and immigration problems. They can all be coped with more easily by some one who has an ideal home to work from or who thoroughly understands what ideal home life should be.

The women of to-day are better than those of former days; a lot better. Women have more freedom now, but it has not done them any harm. They have just as fine home lives, but with modern conveniences and simpler ways of living they are able to take up other work also. Work for the betterment of the world only broadens a woman's home life and makes her more fitted to be a good wife and mother, and, working the rule the other way, being a good home-maker fits a woman for aiding the world's progress. One is bound to help the other.

The Saving Grace of Work

By DR. MADISON C. PETERS,
New York.

In the United States there are upward of 100,000 convicts. One-third of this number may be classed as youths ranging from the age of 18 to that of 25.

It is a remarkable fact that nearly all of these when arrested had no means of self-support. They had no trades or professions on which to rely for a living.

The same is true of a large majority of the adult criminals. Fully two-thirds of them are unskilled in any branch of industry or knowledge that would enable them to make their way in the world. Herein lies a very important study for the socialist and economist, not to speak of the philanthropist and all who have the reform of the erring at heart. The majority of the criminals are those who have been neglected, who have been allowed to grow up wild, with no guiding or restraining hand.

They are never taught the blessedness of work, and usefulness, the happiness, the necessity of work.

The law compels them to get a smattering of education at the public expense. Consequently it is not surprising to find that almost all the criminals can read and write, but their usefulness to themselves ends there.

After leaving school they become so inoculated with the virus of idleness, and the sinful attractions of the cities are so many and strong, that they will not take the trouble to learn useful trades, and the parents will not urge them. Then they lose control of them altogether, for they did not commence in time.

Instead of a curse, we can turn them into a blessing if we go about it in the right way. And not alone must we try to reform the young criminals already in prison. We must try to first reform those who would emulate them and follow in their footsteps.

How can we do it? There is only one answer. We must teach them to work, and give them useful work to do.

We must establish more industrial schools. We may have many, but not enough.

We hope the time is coming in this country when there will be a law that will make it criminal for a man not to know some useful trade or craft, profession or calling, by which he can make a living and add his quota to the community.

Save the boys! Give them trades! Instead of filling the jails they will become useful citizens.

The Price of Health

By REV. THOMAS E. BARR,
Milwaukee.

There are three old schools of thought taking different attitudes toward sickness. At one extreme is the man who interprets all life in terms of physical science to whom God, soul, spiritual forces, are meaningless terms. It is a question how a man of such ideas can be a competent physician. How can he touch and quicken the hidden soul energies which so often hold the secret of health? At the other extreme is the pure idealist, who repudiates the reality of the material world, counts all its evils as illusions and depends on spiritual ideas and forces for health. If pain and poverty and sorrow are illusions, are not joy and riches and health also deceptive fancies of the mind? Between these is the third position. There are two worlds or planes of being known to us: the physical or material, the mental, ideal, or spiritual. Each has its own forces, its own conditions and laws. The mental is the superior and normally controls the physical. But it controls in accordance with the nature and conditions of the physical. The engineer's idea of a bridge must be wrought out in stone and iron. If the conditions of those physical agencies are not met, disaster follows, as recently at Quebec. No honesty of intent or diligence will take the place of exact compliance with natural law. In the same way, no exaltation of soul life, no dependence on spiritual ideas, no ignoring of facts will grow a new foot where one has been cut off, or restore sight where the optic nerve has been killed, or rid the body of disease when its natural forces are not vigorous enough to expel the poison that has crept into it or when disease has fastened upon vital organs and functions. Given a normal body, and the privileges of enlightened life greatly help to preserve health. It will keep a man free from worry and hold him back from many an imprudent as well as improper action. But no amount of spiritual culture or dependence upon God will restore a body that has been vitally injured by accident or disease, or keep a man in a body which has lost its vital powers. Pure thought is but one of the conditions of health; the others are pure air, pure food, exercise and rest, and a reasonably normal body to start with.

LESSONS LEARNED BY CITIES.

Mismanagement and Financial Troubles Constantly Coming to Light.

New Hampton, Ia., is learning the meaning of depreciation. It recently found it necessary to discard the electric equipment that had been in use but four years and put in an entirely new equipment. For several months it has been trying to sell the old equipment, which cost $15,000, but has not yet found a purchaser. Its scrap value is of course very small.

Fitzgerald, Ga., has apparently learned in part at least the lessons that "trust" and "bust" are practically synonymous and that in the long run it doesn't pay to sell below cost. At least that is the natural deduction from the following item in the Journal of that city:

"Beginning with this month, consumers will only have until the 10th of the month to make their settlement with the city. Water and light will both be cut off on the 11th of each month from this on. Then in the future meters for both water and light will either be sold or rented to consumer. The city will no longer furnish them free of charge. The meters will either be sold at their actual cost or will be rented to the consumer at 25 cents each month. A charge from now on for light connection of $2 will be made, and this fee must accompany the application for a connection."

Falls City, Neb., is learning that it is easier to vote bonds than to sell them, for the mayor writes that no purchaser has yet been found for the 5 per cent bonds voted on July 16 to improve the light and water plant. This is a lesson that other and larger cities are learning to their sorrow, though it should not be a matter of surprise where "improvements" involve the practical wiping out of the present equipment, which has not been paid for.

Hamilton, Ont., is one of many cities that are learning that manufacturers are curiously prone to serve their good customers first. It is disappointed because of the delay in the delivery of the new equipment for its electric light plant. All manufacturers know and allow for the fact that city warrants are apt to cash themselves slowly and that acceptance of supplies or machinery often depends upon crossing the right palm with gold. A manufacturer's agent told the writer two stories to illustrate this.

In one case after trying for two years to collect a bill he was finally paid in city warrants. From then he could cash them only by selling them to the local political boss at a discount that more than absorbed the profits.

In this other case his firm installed some expensive machinery in a city plant. No sooner had the firm's workmen left than the report came that the machinery was not working properly. An expert was sent on to adjust it. After this had been repeated several times a man approached the expert with the remark: "You're a good machinist, but a poor politician. You'll never get an acceptance until you've paid the superintendent $100 and the chief engineer $50." And he was right.

LARGE LEAK IN SPIRIT LAKE.

Light and Heat Plant Shows Material Loss on Eight Months' Operation.

About fifty citizens attended a meeting recently held in Spirit Lake, Ia., to listen to official statements relative to the financial condition of the light and heating plant, with a view to getting the sentiment of the taxpayers on the suggestion to sell the plant. The advisability of issuing bonds to improve the water system was also considered.

Clark Orme made a report of the receipts and disbursements at the power house for the past eight months. A material loss in operating the plant was shown, which it is evident cannot be avoided under municipal ownership and present operating conditions.

A motion that a council be required to submit to a special election a proposition to sell the light and heating plant, provided it be no less than the present indebtedness of the plant, be considered, carried by a four-fifths vote.

The editor of the Boon states that the plant "has always been operated at a heavy loss."

A Doctor's Opinion.

In an address which the president of the Central States Waterworks association declared to be one of the ablest ever delivered before that body, Dr. S. L. Jepson of Wheeling, W. Va., said: "Politics and water are practically incompatible and together cannot produce the best water. Municipal ownership of waterworks is apt to result in politics, and this means a downslide in men and methods, with consequent impure administration and impure water as well."

Dr. Jepson is entitled to an opinion on the subject, for his city is cursed with a political waterworks.

Rejected.

Some months ago the city council of Faribault, Minn., appointed a committee to investigate the local lighting plant with a view to purchasing it. Finding that it was just about self-sustaining and that municipal ownership offered no prospect of any saving to the city or private consumers, the committee made an adverse report, which was unanimously adopted.

Politicians are often men who, not being able to manage their own affairs, are not deterred thereby from taking charge of those of the government. Likewise there be people who, not being able to successfully manage their own affairs, volunteer to take charge of the delicate affairs of others.—Elbert Hubbard in Philistine.

Such agonies as some women suffer, every month, from backache!

Is it necessary? No. It can be prevented and relieved, when caused by female trouble, by taking a medicine with specific, curative action, on the female organs and functions, which acts by relieving the congestion, stopping the pain and building the organs and functions up to a proper state of health. Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the dislocated limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn heavy growths back to flesh again. That is impossible, but I can now surely kill the pains and paings of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I have found the missing link. These poisonous wastes which form in the blood, and pass away from the body as does sugar when added to pure water.
And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer with out help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

Letter From Japan.

Nikko, Japan, Aug. 21.—In my last letter I told of the various portions of the temple dedicated to Ieyasu. All the splendor of those decorations is forgotten when one sees the tomb itself, which is of massive stone, surmounted by a pagoda-shaped urn of finest gold, silver and copper bronze. In front,
on a low table, are a bronze incense burner, a vase of bronze with lotus flowers and leaves of brass, and a bronze tortoise supporting a stork.
This ornament is seen frequently in temples all over the empire, and typifies "length of days." The inclosure is surmounted by a lofty stone wall with balustrade, and shaded by grand old cryptomerias and a luxuriant growth of azaleas and bamboo grass. This unadorned tomb of the mighty shogun, standing in silence and shade behind the splendid red lacquered temples raised in his honor, is a stately finish to this exquisite creation. Massive stairways of stone, each gray with lichen, lead to the tomb, each stone being fitted with such exactness as to stand without mortar the wear and tear of nearly three centuries without slightest displacement.

Temples of Iemitsu, in close proximity to those of Ieyasu, are reached by an avenue that branches from the grand approach. On the right are two temples of Shinto faith, plain, but of much interest. On the left is a red lacquered building dedicated to Amida in which are preserved the bones of Yoritoma, founder of the shogunate. A flight of steps leads to the gate, guarded on each side by gigantic wooden figures painted bright red, and standing in niches.
In the inner court is a massive water basin.

As there is much misunderstanding regarding the religion of Japan
it may be well to say something of it.
There is no Japanese religion in the sense that we ordinarily understand the term. They worship no gods.
Japanese religion, or Shintoism, is simply reverence for ancestors.
They do not pray to them nor do they worship them. They deeply reverence them and erect temples to them, to which they make pilgrimages, not in the sense of worship, but to do honor to the memories of departed relatives and heroes. There are no Japanese gods, neither is there a Japanese heaven or hell. All temples, and the empire is covered with them, have been erected in honor of some one who has passed away, and those relatives, friends and admirers have taken this means of honoring him. Buddhism is taught by many priests and is believed in by many Japanese, but it is an imported religion and does not belong to the people except as it has been instilling into their minds.
There are hundreds of Buddhist temples, but they are no the ones on which greatest reverence is lavished. Buddhism as a religion appeals to Oriental as another religion can, but Japanese put above all religion their reverence for their ancestors.

Near Yokohama the image of the Great Buddha sits in a grove and it is a most sacred spot. The first view of this image is most startling.
It is composed of gold, silver, copper and bronze forming a figure nearly fifty feet high. The mouth is three feet, two inches wide and all other parts are in corresponding proportion. The eyes are of pure gold. The head dress is of snail shells of pure bronze, protecting the head from the sun's rays, and representing the love and gratitude of animals for Buddha's love and care for all animals. The greatest figures in the world are in Japan.

The one in the park at Nara is largest of them all, but the one just described is considered the best work of art. Buddha is always represented in a sitting posture, gazing over the plain, silent, calm, impenetrably mysterious. The sacred figure is hollow and contains a small shrine. After we had inspected it we came across the usual commercialism when the priest asked us to sit on Buddha's thumb and be photographed. We graciously did so, said the small fee and left orders for pictures to be sent us. It is one means of revenue by which the priests are supported. C. E. E.

When the back begins to ache,
Don't wait until backache becomes chronic;

Mrs. L. B. Taylor, of 810 East
Jefferson St., Louisville, Ky., says:
"Several years ago I contracted a cold which settled in my kidneys.
I suffered a great deal from pains across my back and loins and was also much annoyed by the too frequent action of the kidney secretions, especially at night. I steadily grew worse, began to be annoyed by dizziness and a feeling of languor and depression. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and felt relief from the first. I continued the treatment and was soon cured. I gave a statement to this effect in 1900 and am glad to confirm same at this time for the cure has proven to be a permanent one."

A Question that Every Man Should Decide for Himself.

There is one subject in which many is the quickest way of getting rid of a Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a preparation that has won a world wide reputation and immense sale by its cure of this disease? This remedy is for Economize on Table Linen.

The wise housekeeper of today uses doilies instead of table-cloth, says The Delineator. Instead of using a large table-cloth three times a day it is better to have a square for breakfast and luncheon, put on diagonally, or else a set of plain doilies, for either of these insure an attractive table and also save laun-dery at least two large table-cloths a week. A few doilies or a square can be washed out and ironed with very little trouble whenever they need it.

With this partly covered table
there should certainly be a growing plant or fern for the center, no matter how simple it may be. After these things the china really does not matter so much, though for breakfast nothing is so charming as a set of blue and white, which may be picked up almost anywhere for a small sum. Graceful shapes can be easily found.

I should like to go back to the little old town
Where she lived in the long, long ago.
When I thought that her eyes were the loveliest brown
And her brow was far whiter than snow.
I should like to go back to the tree shaded lane
Where we strolled in the hush of the eve,
With my heart throbbing swiftly a drumming refrain
While her hand rested light on my sleeve.
I should like to go back to the banks of the brook
Where she told me it never could be—
To go back to the shade of the vine bowered nook
Where I pleaded my suit on my knee.
I should like to go back just to see her once more—
It would give me great joy to do that;
Since she married my rival who worked in the store
She has waxed most excessively fat.
I should like to go back, for they say he is bald
And in manner is wondrously meek.
And they whisper at times he is viciously mauled
If he pricks up his courage to speak.

In the beautiful hush of the night,
And thank him for thus interrupting my fate,
And to tell him it served him just

By J. C. PLUMMER

When the brig Glenelg received orders at Barbadoes to proceed to Aquin, Hayti, to load for Havre the merits of Aquin, as a port, were canvassed in the fore-castle. A sailor is a living gazetteer of the world and if he hasn't been to a port he has always known some one who has. The reports concerning Aquin were not favorable.

It was described as a town inhabited by niggers, tarantulas, centipedes and scorpions, devoid of amusements and depressing to the soul of the average seaman. Doubtless if Hades was dispassionately described it would be found to have one good feature and Aquin possessed one—the cheapness of white rum. An exchequer must be depleted, indeed, that could not afford a sufficiency of this spirit for a term of blissful intoxication.

We reached Aquin, which lies at the apex of a triangular bay, and dropping anchor made ready to take on a cargo of logwood. Logwood and yellow fever are the chief exports of the town, many vessels carrying away an assortment of both products.

Our skipper was a flinty-cheeked Scotchman so mean that he wouldn't burn sideliights at sea to save oil, and while labor was dirt cheap, he put us to loading cargo while there was lots of necessary work wanting in the rigging.

The cargo came off in lighters, and one day we were notified that the next was a holiday and no work could be sent out. Then Mike, a smooth-faced Irishman, the spokesman of the crew, demanded shore leave of the skipper. Capt. McDewitt suggested work in the rigging, but Mike convinced him that not a stroke of work would be done by the crew that day, and he grudgingly consented. On one point he was immovable; not a penny would he advance us. He knew that money meant a drunk, a fracas and consequent confinement in a calabozo from which we could only be redeemed on payment of fine, and while the Haytians might be behind the times in many things they knew how to levy fines against a skipper who had to have his crew to put to sea. True, the fines would be charged up to us, but then Capt. McDewitt feared we might desert at Havre and leave a balance owing.

That night we held a ways and means committee in the fore-castle and it was barren of results. Not only were we penniless but farthingless. The whole crew, including the cook, could not raise money enough to buy a ha' penny tar.

Ned, the cockney, had had a counterfeit shilling which had been spurned with contumely by many vendors of spirits in many ports, but even this had been stolen from him at Barbadoes.

"Wot's the use of going ashore if we've no money?" growled Ned. Mike was beating a tattoo with a spoon on the tin dish which had contained our supper and said nothing.

"Might as well stay aboard this blooming brig," sighed another.

"Whist," said Mike, "be easy. I'm beginning to see a hole in the clouds."

"What is it, Mike?" we clamored.

"We'll go ashore to-morrow," he answered, "and we'll thray an idee that's come to me. I've been twice to San Domingo and I know the ways of these nayers."

We went ashore early the following morning. The cook came with us to bring back the boat and had agreed to come for us in the evening. He had not been taken into our confidence that Mike had a plan in embryo and simply turned up what he could of a snub nose at the idea of a jaunt on land with no liquor.

We walked demurely up into the town, Mike in the lead. A war was in progress between Hayti and San Domingo and soldiers were omnipresent. And such soldiers. Their crazy quilt uniforms and obsolete guns, together with their evident wonderment at what we saw to laugh over, only made us laugh the more.

Mike could speak only a word or two of Spanish, but presently we found a negro who had been to Jamaica and from him Mike boldly demanded to see the commanding officer. After a good deal of palaver between the Jamaican and the sol-liers we were escorted to a one-story white building which was the headquarters of the commandant.

We found therein a small man strapped to a large sword clothed in a miraculous uniform and with what he imagined was an expression of dignity on his face. Mike at once opened negotiations.

"Tell his royal highness," he said to the interpreter, "that we are English sailors visiting the town and have no money."

"E's no king," put in the cockney, in a whisper.

"Every man likes to be taken for a king," replied Mike.

"The general says you can go about your business," said the interpreter.

"I'd like to tell the nayer where he can go," growled Mike, then addressing the interpreter, "tell his majesty that I can show him how he can put some money in his pocket."

A faint spark of interest appeared to gleam in the eyes of the general. "The general says you can speak, but be quick about it," said the interpreter.

"Be quick, is it? The lousy spalpeen to talk that way to a descendant of Irish kings. Well, let him give us enough rum to get drunk on and then he can put us in the calaboose and the old man on the

Whirled Him Around in a Cross Between an Irish Jig and a Reel.

brig 'll pay whatever fines he lays, as he can't sail without us. Give us the rum and we'll make a stiddy and he can arrest us."

A smile broke out on the lips of the general. He called a soldier who fetched a bottle of rum.

"What," shouted Mike, "one bottle to four sailors. At home the parish priest 'd ripost more than that before supper at a wake. If we don't have the rum we can't get drunk, and if we don't get drunk he can't arrest us for we'll walk about as innocent as chickens on a dung heap."

Again the general called a soldier and we were given each a vessel containing about a quart of rum. Then we were abruptly ushered out of doors.

"What's the program, now?" I asked of Mike.

"We'll sip the rum aisy like till the boat comes for us and then we'll make a night of it aboard. We'll give him no chance to arrest us."

Alas, for our resolution to swindle the general. We had not had a drink since we left Barbadoes and we were doughty vessels. Our sips became more frequent and of greater dimensions. A dapper officer in a uniform which would have made a dead bull frantic with rage picked his way across the plaza. Mike seized him about the waist and whirled him around in a cross between an Irish jig and a reel. The infuriated officer screamed to his subordinates and in a moment there was a real shindy going on. For a while we tumbled Haytian soldiers down like ninepins, but numbers prevailed, and bound hand and foot, we were placed in the calabozo.

What a night we passed. There were four other prisoners, all negroes, and there were several thousand species of vermin. They had taken away our rum and we couldn't sleep.

A plate of frijoles was handed each of us for breakfast and we broke up the monotony of the day by alternately swearing at Mike, the general and Hayti. Another night with its horrors passed and then the door opened and we were released.

When we reached London from Havre the skipper paid us off less 15 shillings deducted for fines paid the general. We growled, but Mike waved us off scornfully.

"If a gentleman won't pay for his diversions," he said, "he's no gentleman at all, at all."

"I'd like to tell the nayer where he can go," growled Mike, then addressing the interpreter, "tell his majesty that I can show him how he can put some money in his pocket."

A faint spark of interest appeared to gleam in the eyes of the general. "The general says you can speak, but be quick about it," said the interpreter.

"Be quick, is it? The lousy spalpeen to talk that way to a dis-cindint of Irish kings. Well, let him give us enough rum to get drunk on and then he can put us in the calaboose and the old man on the

Whirled Him Around in a Cross Between an Irish Jig and a Reel.

A smile broke out on the lips of the general. He called a soldier who fetched a bottle of rum.

"What," shouted Mike, "one bottle to four sailors. At home the parish priest 'd expect more than that before supper at a wake. If we don't have the rum we can't get drunk, and if we don't get drunk he can't arrest us for we'll walk about as innocent as chickens on a dung heap."

Again the general called a soldier and we were given each a vessel containing about a quart of rum. Then we were abruptly ushered out of doors.

"What's the program, now?" I asked of Mike.

"We'll sip the rum aisy like till the boat comes for us and then we'll make a night of it aboard. We'll give him no chance to arrest us."

Alas, for our resolution to swindle the general. We had not had a drink since we left Barbadoes and we were droughty vessels. Our sips became more frequent and of greater dimensions. A dapper officer in a uniform which would have made a dead bull frantic with rage picked his way across the plaza. Mike seized him about the waist and whirled him around in a cross between an Irish jig and a reel. The infuriated officer screamed to his subordinates and in a moment there was a real shindy going on. For a while we tumbled Haytian soldiers down like ninepins, but numbers prevailed, and bound hand and foot, we were placed in the calabozo.

What a night we passed. There were four other prisoners, all negroes, and there were several thousand species of vermin. They had taken away our rum and we couldn't sleep.

A plate of frijoles was handed each of us for breakfast and we broke up the monotony of the day by alternately swearing at Mike, the general and Hayti. Another night with its horrors passed and then the door opened and we were released.

When we reached London from Havre the skipper paid us off less 15 shillings deducted for fines paid the general. We growled, but Mike waved us off scornfully.

"If a gentleman won't pay for his diversions," he said, "he's no gentleman at all, at all."

The finest Coffee Substitute ever made, has recently been produced by Dr. Shoop of Racine, Wis. You don't have to boil it twenty or thirty minutes. "Made in a minute" says the doctor. "Health Coffee" is really the closest Coffee Imitation ever yet produced. Not a grain of real coffee in it either. Health Coffee Imitation is made from pure toasted cereals or grains, with malt, nuts, etc. Really it would fool an expert—were he to unknowingly drink it for coffee. Sold by Morris & Yates.

Change Your Cereal.

As to cereals for a first course, while there are many excellent modern cereals with which every one is familiar, it is well to mention also the old staples, says the February Delineator: oatmeal cooked all night in a fireless cooker or on the back of the range; boiled rice and raisins, or corn-meal mush and raisins; hominy and samp, and plain but nourishing cracked wheat.

To vary the cereal course, once a week have the main dish first, and have the corn-meal mush fried and served with sirup after it. Or, have round cakes of boiled rice or farina with scraped maple sugar or with sirup. And once in a while, give the family a treat of waffles or crullers.

A Valentine's-Day Supper.

A dainty supper plays no small part in the success of a St. Valentine's-Day Party.

If it is a cold night, suggests the Delineator, serve something hot, like fried oysters or scrambled eggs mixed with chopped tomatoes and shredded green peppers. Have sandwiches of breakfast bacon, crisp and thin, mixed with watercress; add ice cream if you wish, but it is not necessary, and if you live in a small town it is expensive. Have a bowl of nuts at one end of the table and stick candy at the other. Serve hot coffee or chocolate with the oysters or eggs, and orangeade if you wish a cool drink.

DANGER OF CATARRH.

Unless Properly Treated with Hyomei, Becomes Serious.

Catarrhal troubles are far more dangerous than they seem at first thought.

If you have catarrh, there is an irritated state of the mucous membrane and weakened tissues which afford an ideal lodgment and culture medium for disease germs, especially those of consumption.

You should get cured as quickly as possible before any dangerous germs that you may breathe lodge on the diseased tissue and work destruction in the throat and lungs.

The easiest, simplest, quickest, surest and cheapest way to cure catarrh is by the direct method, breathing Hyomei. This wonderful medicated air treatment does not drug and derange the stomach, but is breathed in, directly following and destroying all disease germs that may have been inhaled.

The unusual way in which Hyomei is sold by Haynes & Taylor is the best evidence of their confidence in the treatment and should dispel all doubt as to its curative properties. Haynes & Taylor agree to refund the purchase price to anyone whom Hyomei fails to benefit, and you do not risk a cent in testing its healing virtues. A complete outfit costs but $1.00 if it helps you, not a cent if it does not do all that is claimed for it.

If you have catarrh, there is an irritated state of the mucous membrane and weakened tissues which afford an ideal lodgment and culture medium for disease germs, especially those of consumption.

You should get cured as quickly as possible before any dangerous germs that you may breathe lodge on the diseased tissue and work destruction in the throat and lungs.

The easiest, simplest, quickest, surest and cheapest way to cure catarrh is by the direct method, breathing Hyomei. This wonderful medicated air treatment does not drug and derange the stomach, but is breathed in, directly following and destroying all disease germs that may have been inhaled.

The unusual way in which Hyomei is sold by Haynes & Taylor is the best evidence of their confidence in the treatment and should dispel all doubt as to its curative properties. Haynes & Taylor agree to refund the purchase price to anyone whom Hyomei fails to benefit, and you do not risk a cent in testing its healing virtues. A complete outfit costs but $1.00 if it helps you, not a cent if it does not do all that is claimed for it.

American Society of Equity.

To the Officers and Members of the American Society of Equity.
Many letters of inquiry are being received at National Headquarters from the members with reference to the late National Convention, and we have thought it best to prepare a brief summary of the acts for your information.
In the first place the National Convention which was called to meet in Indianapolis, October 22, 1907, was regularly called by the Board of Directors, presided over by President Mr. Everitt. The body was called to order by Mr. Everitt and the credentials committee was selected, each state delegation selecting its own member of said committee. This credential committee made up the roster of the Convention from credentials handed to them by the various delegates. The report of this committee was unanimously adopted and the various other committees were then selected by the states as had been the credentials committee.
The convention then proceeded with its work, part of the time with Mr. Everitt in the chair, part of the time with Vice-President Whiting in the chair, until Wednesday, when Mr. Everitt in a speech before the convention, announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election of the presidency. It was also announced to the convention that it had been agreed that an entire set of National officers should be selected. The Convention then by vote adopted a resolution to proceed with the election of National officers, which resulted in the election of the present officers, without opposition in each case except for the presidency, and in that instance the election of Mr. Barnett was almost unanimous and the gentleman who was voted for in opposition to him, Mr. Wilson, of Oklahoma, at once arose and moved to make his election unanimous, which was done. After his speech of acceptance Mr. Everitt was called for and made a brief speech in which he promised to support the new officers and aid them in every way possible.
It developed during the convention that at the organization of the Society five years ago Mr. Everitt had made a contract with himself, binding the Society to recognize his paper, Up-To-Date Farming, for a period of fifty years, or during the entire corporate life of the Society. A copy of this contract was submitted to a firm of lawyers in Indianapolis and in a written opinion they decided it to be voidable, but advised the body to adopt a resolution declaring it null and void. This resolution was adopted Friday afternoon by an almost unanimous vote.
That night, unknown to the members of the body, who were still at work in the Convention Hall, trying to complete their labors, the ex-President, Mr. Everitt, and six or eight other persons, some of whom are not even members of the Society, met in a bed-room of the same hotel where in the Convention was holding its meeting and went through the process of electing a bolting set of National officers. Mr. Everitt being selected as Vice-President. This so-called list of National officers has appeared in every issue of the Up-To-Date Farming since the National Meeting, immediately under the regular list of elected officers. A systematic warfare upon the new officers and the Convention itself has been pursued by Mr. Everitt in his paper ever since the Convention adjourned. He has sought to alienate the membership by denouncing the Convention as "revolutionary," a "packed Convention," etc. No statement was ever made at more variance with the truth. The Convention took no revolutionary course. It did not depart from those principles of Equity, and it is not the intention of the new officers to depart from those principles. It is the intention of the new officers to maintain this Society, to push the good work already begun to the relief of the toiling millions of farmers from unjust discriminations and the pauper prices which have been prevailing for their products.

We have no personal warfare to wage on Mr. Everitt or anyone who sides with him. He is merely a man. No notice will be taken by us of what he is doing or saying, except as it affects the standing of the new officers with the organization throughout the country.
The conduct of Mr. Everitt the night the convention adjourned in organizing a bolting set of officers rendered it impossible for the new Board of Directors to make any arrangements with him to continue his paper as the official organ. It was necessary for us to have such organ, but we have been hampered through lack of necessary funds which was needed to start such a paper from the ground. However, the new paper, the Equity Farm Journal has already made its appearance, and will be placed in the hands of every member of the Order regularly with the greatest possible speed.
If this Society is to continue and is to be made the power for good which is within the range of possibilities, it is necessary that every member stand by the new administration, which is the only National Organization which the Society now has.
Trusting that we may have your hearty co-operation and high hopes for the future we are,
Very truly yours,
AMERICAN SOCIETY OF EQUITY.
