DIABOLICAL CRIME

Murder of James Sullenger the Most Heinous Crime of County's Annals---Body Thrown In Cistern

Officers Working on Every Clew to Unravel the Mystery and Confidently Hope to Have the Guilty Parties in the Clutches of the Law Soon.

James Sullenger, an aged citizen of the Irma vicinity, nearing the three score and ten years allotted to man, was cruelly murdered, at his stable when he returned Friday night from Lola, in Livingston county, where he had been on a business trip. His death was brought about by a blow in the forehead with some blunt instrument which probably killed him the first stroke, cutting a deep gash and crushing the skull. The body which was then strapped, with plow lines on to a pole of sassafras which had been in his barn for a quarter of a century, was then carried to a cistern at the old Irma school house, which is now abandoned, and thrown into it, after two planks were prized up to permit the body to fall through. The pieces of rope which bound the body to the pole were found in the cistern and the pole besmeared with blood was found far under the school house, a few drops of blood here and there told the story of the awful crime. The pole was readily recognized as having been taken from the barn and also the plow lines. Marks on the planks over the cistern showed plainly where they were prized off to make an opening. Blood on the cistern arch running down to the ground was the cause of the old cistern being dragged for the body.

The last seen of Mr. Sullenger alive was about 7:25 p. m., Friday evening riding toward his home from Lola and about one and one-half miles from home. The family retired early and while his wife felt some uneasiness quite naturally, no search or inquiry was made until morning, when a telephone message to Lola revealed the fact that he left there before dark and should have reached home about eight o'clock p. m. This alarmed the family and the neighbors were notified and a search instituted with the result that his body was found in the cistern as stated. When it was drawn out a most sickening sight was presented. The deep gash in the forehead was supplemented with two gaping wounds, one on each temple which looked as if made with the butt end of a hatchet or a hammer. His coat had been turned up over his head and was pinned with a safety pin under his chin and a rope also tied around his neck over the coat which was soaked with his life's blood. His horse was hitched near, but all indications are that the murder was committed at his own stable when he went there to put up his horse.

The poles and the plow lines with some other evidence in the hands of the authorities show beyond a question that the crime was committed at the stable.

He was not robbed as reported in some of the papers and as currently believed at first. His purse containing $72.45 was in his pockets when his remains were drawn up out of the cistern.

The officers are working on every clew to unravel the mystery and they have some bits of evidence to guide and assist them and confidently hope to have the guilty parties in the clutches of the law before many days.

Everyone has his or her suspicion as to whom the guilty parties are, but the officers are weaving a web from which they can not extricate themselves, the mesh of which is strong enough to bring two, (and may be more), of the criminals to the gallows. The coroners inquest was held Saturday morning but did not develop who the murderers were. Other evidence is still being gathered and every thing will be done to clear the county's name of such a dark and sickening crime.

The dead man was the father of ten children, who with his wife survive him.

The burial took place at Liberty Grove Christian church, of which he was a member. Sunday afternoon.

Office Of POST MASTER

Marion, Ky., April 24, 1908
O. E. M. Jenkins, Esq.,
Publisher RECORD-PRESS,
Marion, Ky.

DEAR SIR:—The new regulations of the Postoffice Department with reference to the special rate enjoyed by all periodical publications necessitates that each and every publisher expressly renew or collect all subscriptions as much as nine months in arrears. This must be done or the subscriptions discontinued. This ruling has been made for the reason that the Postoffice Department is endeavoring to rid the mails of all superfluous and dead mail matter of no use to either publisher or subscriber.

Every publisher will be allowed a reasonable opportunity to bring their publications and publishing methods into full conformity with the spirit and intent of the new regulations. It is very evident that this reform as contemplated by the new regulations in respect to expired subscriptions will not be accomplished in a day, but will take time. It is therefore deemed best to notify you that you may take such action as you deem best to get your publication in harmony with the Postoffice Department and thereby continue to enjoy the Second Class Special Mailing Privileges.

Yours truly,
GEO. M. CRIDER, P. M.

TO THE PUBLIC

R. L. Barnett Declares Statement that Farmers' Union Agreed to Handle No Tobacco For Two Years Strictly False.

Farmers' Union Will Handle all Farmers' Union Men Tobacco Grown, Not Being Pledged to the Association or Other Organization.

I regret that it has become necessary for me to correct some false statements that I have been informed has been circulated by certain Association Leaders, with reference to the action of the Farmers' Union in the handling of tobacco grown during this year of 1908.

The statement is to the effect that the Union has agreed to not handle tobacco for the next two years. Now be it forever understood that no such agreement was ever made between the Union and the Association or any other organization or individual whatever, but such statements are strictly false, and intended to mislead the grower of tobacco, but to the contrary, the Farmers' Union does intend, and will handle all tobacco grown by Farmers' Union men not pledged to the Association or any other organization.

Again I have been creditably informed that the Union members who were in the Farmers' Union Tobacco sale, which was consummated by the committee, of which I was chairman, consisting of about 250,000 pounds of tobacco, is also very unsatisfactory to the member in that Pool. I wish to state as chairman of the sale committee, that such statements are utterly false, and if there was any man in that Pool who was not pleased with that sale, it was some one whose name was overlooked, and did not get in the sale and get the benefits of the price paid those in the Pool.

I further state that such statements are made by designing parties to hurt the Union and to further a condition that the people will not stand for. The conference of the Farmers' Union held on the 14th inst. to which the Tobacco Association officials were invited was intended to get a unanimous agreement between the two organizations, whereby, prices on tobacco could be established and maintained by a joint and unanimous action on the part of both organizations. But since it was the part of the Association officials to ignore any unity of action in setting and maintaining of prices on tobacco the Union like the Association, is not bound by any agreement or otherwise to support any system except that, that is the best interest to every member of the Union. And to this end notwithstanding the seeming selfishness of the Association officials to ignore the real farmers, who actually grow tobacco.

The Farmers' Union officials and members did pass and act, to allow all Farmers' Union members to place their tobacco wherever it was to their best interest, where the Union had no Institution or means of handling of Farmers' Union tobacco, and the same resolution carried with a clause, requesting that no Farmer or Farmers' Union man sign any pledge or contract for more than one year.

This idea being based upon a logical point of reasoning, that the same system of management, that will sell tobacco for this year will sell it again another year. Then why should any organization ask any farmer to sign any contract for more than one year? If any member of the Farmers' Union who has not already pledged his tobacco to the Farmers' Union, or the Association, may have, and does have, the right, where the Union can not handle the Union tobacco, to pledge his tobacco to the association, or any other organization where his interest is best protected, until the Union is prepared to handle Farmers' Union tobacco, but I pause here to say that the Farmers' Union will handle all Farmers' Union tobacco grown in Kentucky that the members of the Union desire that the Union shall handle. And that the Union will have all necessary arrangements for the handling and selling all Union tobacco on its merits raised during the year of 1908. And as for the sale of the Union tobacco recently sold, I refer all parties doubting the satisfaction of the people who sold tobacco, to the people who raised and sold the tobacco and who now have every dollar for their tobacco in their pockets, that their creditors have not received since the sale. And as to the parties to whom we sold, I am sure our people received fair treatment and appreciate the same very highly.

For any Further information regarding the tobacco sale, I refer the public to the Union People in the Pool, and also to the buyer, Mr. Hanks, whom we have found to be a gentleman in all of our dealings.

Respectfully submitted,
R. L. BARNETT.

The Powers Case.

The application of Caleb Powers, that is now being urged before Gov. Willson, with so much earnestness and persistency, gives the lie to his declaration, "that if he could get a fair trial he could prove himself innocent of any complicity or guilty knowledge of the murder of Governor Goebel. His claim has been that one the trial judges were partisan judges, appointed by a partisan governor, for the purpose of convicting him. Now that the governor is a republican, with the power to appoint any judge he may select, it would seem, that Mr. Powers could, at least, get a fair, if not a judge favorable to him in this case. It looks like Mr. Powers is afraid to risk his case, even with a republican judge on the bench.—Tribune Democrat.

"Thorns And Orange Blossoms."

Few plays have attained a more widespread popularity than "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," a virile comedy drama, with scenes and plot laid in England. The story was dramatized from the novel of Bertha M. Clay and is of exceptional interest to all ages and classes. The attraction comes to Marion Thursday May 7th, under the direction of the Rowland & Clifford Amusement Company, with the same cast, the same scenic equipment as used in both the metropolitan runs.

Increase in Its Capital.

The Princeton Ice & Storage Co., has added $10,000 to its capital stock which was necessary to take care of its growing and increasing trade.

The Marion Ice & Storage Co., which is owned by the same parties will begin the manufacture of ice at its plant here May 1st. The plant is being put in condition and thoroughly overhauled and will start with prospects of a fine season and orders for all the ice they can make over and alone the supply for the city of Marion.

English customs and class distinction are thoroughly exploited in that superb comedy drama "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," a dramatization of Bertha M. Clay's world famous novel. The plot deals with a young English girl of poor parentage and a nobleman. They marry, and the subsequent sorry and disgrace should be a portentous lesson to every one.
The comedy is unctuous, genial and always mirth-provoking; the heavier scenes of pathetic strain meet with adequate treatment, all combining in one of the most ingenious and enjoyable perfect dramas of the day. The cast and scenic equipment is the same that created such a favorable impression during the recent Chicago run, and will be seen here Thursday May 7th, under the direction of the Rowland & Clifford Amusement Company.

Illinois Central Lays off Operators.

The block system, which has been in operation on the I. C. railroad for the past two years, was temporarily suspended on the Louisville division Monday. About fifty-five operators were laid off between Louisville and Paducah. The only offices between Louisville and Central City, where three operators are still employed are at West Point, Cecilian, Horse Branch and Leitchfield. Pleasure Ridge Park and Tip Top have night offices, but no day offices.

This move is said to have no connection with the new eight-hour law, but to be due to lack of business.
While the local business holds up well, the thru freight business has fallen to almost nothing, and business has been materially affected by shutting down of the coal mines in western Kentucky.—Leitchfield Ga-

THOUGHTS ON BUSINESS

BY
WALDO PONDRAY WARREN

A TALLOW-CANDLE STANDARD

MAN who had never heard of gas or electric lights might be content with tallow candles. Some business men, because they are not well informed on lines tributary to their business, and are not especially open to conviction, are still content to order candles. And the dealers are obliged to keep a few boxes on the top shelf waiting for the men who insist on having them.

One conspicuous instance of this policy is in the matter of printing. The average business man knows very little about it. Perhaps not one man in ten knows the "point system"—the universal standard of type measurement. Not knowing the first elements of printing, how can he know very much about the latest improvements in color work? How can business men buy printing intelligently when they do not know what the market affords? How can they dictate the characteristics of the printing that is to represent their business? How can they order what is best for their business if they don't even know the best exists?

It is the same in many other lines. The architect must know the latest improvements in bricks; the dry goods man must know the most recent effects in weaving, and so on. Unless this is done there is no telling how far from the mark you may hit. In an electric light age it will never do to stick to the tallow-candle standard.

FIRE FIGHTING, POLICE AND PRISONS IN JAPAN

The Funny Things One Sees

Smiling Round the World

By MARSHALL P. WILDER

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

One evening while going through a street in a Japanese town, Yokohama, I heard a clanking sound at regular intervals, and found it was made by a man who as he walked along was striking a sort of sword on the ground. At the conclusion two plates of bronze or brass were driven together, making a metallic clang. I was told that he was a watchman, paid by contributions of a few sen a month from the households along the way. As he goes about, clanging his sword, it is a comfortable assurance to these people that all is well.

This watchman is for fire chiefly, as the houses of the Japanese town are mostly all of wood, and a fire once started means widespread destruction before it can be got under control.

On a little cart are also carried two folding screens of asbestos, about five feet high, with which the men protect themselves when facing the fire. To anyone familiar with the American fire departments the whole outfit seems like a toy.

The police department will much better bear comparison with those of other countries than the fire department.

I was told that about 125 police belong to each station house. Their names are written on little blocks of wood, in red on one side, and black on the other. The men are on duty in the station house for two hours, and outside for two hours, and the little blocks are turned as they come in or go out, the red or black showing the superintendent at a glance just where the men are.

We were shown the cells, which were about ten feet square, fairly light, very airy, and immaculately clean. There were but five prisoners at the station house, all detained for petty offenses—rickshaw men overcharging, and similar arrangements. Their names were on little wooden tags hung outside the door. These were turned inside, however, and upon no consideration to be looked at except by the proper authority. The side that is clear has only the date of incarceration, and length of sentence printed on it.

The guard opened a couple of occupied cells, showing the prisoners, one man alone in one cell, while three together were in the other. They looked very comfortable, kneeling on straw mats, which are also their beds.

While on our tour of inspection the most frightful cries came at intervals from one part of the main building. As they continued I began to be assailed by a nervous apprehension that I might be called upon to witness some horrible torture, for I felt sure that nothing short of that could call forth such unearthly yells.

When I was conducted into a large room, where about 20 men in very abbreviated white linen suits were squatting about the edge, the shouts were explained. Here was the school for the famous Jiu-jitsu, which is acknowledged to be the most effective and deadly form of wrestling.

We were given seats on the edge of a platform, and two muscular Japs sprang onto the mats in the middle of the room. First they bowed, by squatting down, leaning their left hand on the floor, and bowing their heads. Then standing erect, first one, and then the other gave vent to one of the blood-curdling cries I had heard. This is the challenge, intended to intimidate the antagonist. Suddenly they clutched each other and straining and struggling each strove to dislodge the other's feet from the floor. All at once one of the men made a quick move, which it would be impossible for me to explain, and his antagonist was hurled backwards over his shoulder, landing on the mats with a terrific thud.

This performance was gone through with a number of times with infinite variety in tactics and methods of bringing about the fall, the most marvelous skill and training being displayed.

In addition to the male wrestlers of Japan there is one band—and one only—of women wrestlers—Amazon of enormous strength, who travel about giving exhibitions. Their physical beauty and development are wonderful, and they create the greatest enthusiasm and admiration wherever they appear.

Every man on the Japanese police force is required to become proficient in the Jiu-jitsu. Every day there is practice, with the best teachers, from eight a. m. until noon. About 20 at a time take part in this practice, wrestling with the masters or each other, so that each man's turn in the school comes about once a week.

Fencing is also a part of their education, not for practical use, but merely to make them quick and supple. They practice with long bamboo swords, wearing wadded hoods and gloves.

After the regular modern Jiu-jitsu, two young men gave an exhibition for my edification of the ancient form of the art. It was not so easy nor so finished as the modern method, and was performed with such ardor that arms and elbows were cut rather badly on the sharp edges of the mats. The principal feature of their entertainment was the fiendish shouts with which they inaugurated each clutch.

With all this splendid training in quickness, adroitness and the wonderful muscular power it develops a criminal has no chance at all with a Japanese policeman. One of my party remarked that he should like to see the Broadway squad try to do the things we were looking at.

I am very much afraid a member of that august body would be like a man of straw in the hands of one of Japan's quick, cat-like policemen.

At the Sugamo prison in Tokio I found many features that to an American were unusual.

The corridors of cells were arranged like the spokes of a wheel, one warden sitting on a platform that was the hub. Labor is saved in this way, for one man can watch five corridors of 28 cells each, making in all 140. There are two of these wheels built in the inner court of the prison, so that 280 cells are watched by two men, who sit on revolving stools and, by turning, can take in at a glance the five corridors entrusted to their vigilance.

A head warden sits between the two wheels and maintains a general supervision, so that practically the entire number of prisoners are watched by but three men.

There is another inclosure where there are cells for punishment. The most severe form is the dark cell, where prisoners are punished for insubordination. They cannot be confined in this cell for more than 11 days at a time.

The cell for the next less severe punishment has a little light; so, in gradation, there are several cells for varying degrees of punishment.

The prisoners all work in different shops at basket-weaving, making mats, iron utensils and all sorts of things for which there is a ready market. They work from 6:30 a. m. until 11, when they have their midday meal. This is principally rice, and quickly eaten. Until 12 they rest (sitting comfortably on straw mats).

Advantage is taken of this time for one of the four resident chaplains to give the prisoners a talk. The day I visited the prison it was during this midday rest, and the men in two large work-rooms were sitting quietly listening to a Buddhist priest. Standing before a small altar, that looked like a reading desk, he was placed in a passageway between the two rooms, thus enabling the men in both rooms to hear him. He was talking earnestly, probably pointing out the error of their ways and exhorting them to lead better lives in the future.

Every man is credited with a certain amount of wages for the work he does, and the money given to him when he is discharged, so that he does not leave the prison penniless.

Every method seemed most humane and the prisoners treated with kindness in every way. The same consideration in regard to revealing their identity is practiced here, as in the police stations. Outside of each man's cell is a wooden sign with his name, age, crime and the length of his sentence printed on it. But a little extra tag comes down and hides his name.

After my inspection I came away with the idea that to be sent to prison in Japan was not the worst thing by any means that could befall a man.

FACTS IN QUESTION

Burley Tobacco Growers Make Fitting Answer to the Insinuations of the Governor.

PRESENT A DETAILED STATEMENT

Three of the Most Prominent Members of the Board of Control Join in a Public Declaration Giving What They Affirm Are the Real Facts in the Case.

(Lexington Herald.)

The insinuation in the speech of Governor Willson at the Sunday Law and Order meeting in Louisville that the organized burley tobacco growers are in collusion with the American Tobacco Company to enable the trust more effectively to control the tobacco situation, and the direct charges made at the same time that the farmers' organizations are dominated by shrewd managers "ambitious to increase the power that has come to them," has induced the members of the Board of Control of the Burley Tobacco Society to make a detailed statement of the facts in question. A representative of the Lexington Herald has had an interview with three of the most prominent members of the Board of Control, Mr. Stanley Prewitt, chairman of the Clark County Board; Mr. Rhodes Thomas, chairman of the Scott County Board, and Mr. Claude Williams, chairman of the Woodford County Board.

No Sale to the Trust.

These men reiterate the statement of President LeBus and other members of the District Board that the repeated rumors of a sale of the pooled tobacco to the trust is without foundation. According to their statements, only a very small part of the pooled tobacco thus far sold has been sold to the American Tobacco company, and at the present time no negotiations are pending for further sales.

The only negotiations of consequence between the Burley Tobacco Society and the American Tobacco Company were begun at the suggestion of Governor Willson himself. These men and all of their associates are earnest and zealous in their support of the Burley Tobacco Society as a movement against the trust, and designed only to enable the tobacco grower to get a fair price for his product. Some facts are related to contradict the charge that what the governor calls the farmers' trust is dominated by selfish and ambitious men.

The report has been circulated from time to time that certain officers of the Burley Tobacco Society had purchased a large part of the pooled tobacco. There have been rumors to the effect that Mr. Clarence LeBus, the president of the society, was one of these alleged speculators. The facts as to the case of Mr. LeBus, as stated to the Herald by these gentlemen, are as follows:

Mr. LeBus and His Holdings.

Mr. LeBus, prior to his election as president of the Burley Tobacco Society, was a dealer as well as a grower.

"He had in his possession at that time about 1,000,000 pounds of 1905 tobacco and a smaller amount of 1906 tobacco. He ceased all purchases as soon as he became president of the Burley Tobacco Society, put his 1906 tobacco in the pool, but his holdings of 1904 and 1905 tobacco have never been put in the pool."

Mr. LeBus has had repeated opportunities to sell his tobacco at double the price he paid for it. This advance in price being due, in his judgment, entirely to the efforts of the organization of the growers, he has declined to take advantage of the opportunity to double his money, on the ground that it would be a bad example to others in the movement for him to even sell tobacco that was not in the pool. He informed the District Board of Control some time ago that he will not attempt to sell any of his holdings outside of the pool until the success of the organization is assured. His attitude in this matter has been every thing that could be expected of an honorable man. Instead of endeavoring to use the Society of Equity for his own profit he has deliberately sacrificed the opportunity which it has given him to make money.

No Salaries Paid.

The charge has also been made that the officers of the Society of Equity are paid large salaries, that the organization is expensive, and that if the prices demanded are realized, the grower will actually get very little if any of the advance.

The by-laws of the district organization provide that only the president and the secretary may draw salaries. When Mr. LeBus was elected president he accepted the office on the condition that he was to draw no salary unless the movement proved a success. He has repeatedly said to the Board of Control since then that he does not demand a salary, even in the event of the most complete success of the movement, and that he will leave the matter of his compensation entirely to the District Board.

Not only has he not drawn any salary, not only is he without the slightest assurance that he will ever receive any compensation for his time, but he has paid his own expenses in all of the traveling that has been necessary in the performance of his duties.

The secretary of the society, who devotes his whole time to the work and has charge of the office, is the only of any member of the Board of Control paid officer. Not even the expenses has been paid by the society. These men have not only given their time and paid their own expenses, but they have raised the money necessary to maintain the organization, and to pay for the unavoidable running expenses. They have gone into the movement not so much for the profit to themselves as for the good that they believe will ultimately result to the growers and the business interests of central Kentucky in general.

No man can hear the statement of the case as made by these men and doubt their unselfishness and their disinterested public spirit in this movement. The three of them do not themselves grow more than one hundred acres of tobacco, and neither one of them depends upon this crop. What they have done and what they are doing is for the independence of the tobacco grower more than for their own individual profit.

Attitude of Mr. Thomas.

"I was induced to join the movement at the start," said Mr. Thomas, of Scott county, "largely because I had seen that for years tenants who are sober and industrious were unable to make proper provision for their families, and because I could not deal with the indifferent and arbitrary representatives of the American Tobacco company and maintain my self-respect. If the whole business were to be done over again I would not hesitate a moment to pool my tobacco and join the organization, but I would prefer to stop the growing of tobacco for all time to come to again taking the leadership in my county."

"I expect a reasonable compensation for my time and labor, but have no promise of any salary, and will be satisfied with whatever the District Board may decide upon. My chief interest in the matter is the success of the movement for the benefit of the tobacco grower."

Cost of the Organization.

Figures have been furnished showing that tobacco sold at 15 cents will net the grower 12. In other words, the cost of holding the crop and making the sales through the Society of Equity is about 3 cents. This may vary in the different counties. Each county has its own organization and each County Board of Control regulates its own expenses. The District Board has fixed a maximum charge for redrying of $1.25 per hundred. In some counties—among them Scott—the charge is only $1.00. The storage charges are 25 cents per month per hoghead. There is an inspection fee of $2.00 per hoghead, and the insurance charges are $1.32 per hundred dollars. It is not compulsory that the grower insure his tobacco. He can, of course, save this expense by not carrying insurance.

The whole expense of the District Board, that is, of the general organization, including the campaign for organizing the Society and for cutting out the crop of 1908, according to the statement of those gentlemen to The Herald, will not exceed one-fourth of one cent per pound. In most of the counties warehouse companies and redrying plants have been organized among the growers. These are co-operative institutions, and whatever profits they make go to the tobacco growers, since no single individual is allowed to have a large amount of stock. In most of them $500 is the maximum of stock for one grower. In Clark the redrying plant charges the maximum of $1.25 fixed by the Board of Control.

The District Board has fixed a selling fee of $3.00 per hoghead, but this is paid by the purchaser and not by the grower. The proceeds from this fee are being used in many cases to assist these growers who are without the financial standing necessary to secure loans. In many cases where money is advanced without security, provision is made for the proceeds of this selling fee to go to those who advance the money, and in this way many are able to get financial assistance who could not otherwise. Where no advances are made on pledged tobacco the proceeds of the selling fee will be turned into the district treasury to help pay the general expenses.

In the earlier sales the Board of Control has held back 10 per cent and in some cases this may have given rise to the report of the excessive expense of the organization. This 10 per cent is not held back for expenses, and it will ultimately be distributed among the growers. It is held as an equalization fund so that all pooled tobacco of the same grade will yield to the grower the same return. There may be changes in the prices and a grade of tobacco may be sold at one time at a higher and at another time at a lower price, and the object of holding back the 10 per cent is to make a uniform price for all tobacco of the same grade.

The scale of expenses on the tobacco now held in pool is due largely to the time for which it has been held, and to the fact that some expenses were necessary at the start that will not be permanent. Without the necessity for holding the tobacco sales could be made through the society at less cost to the grower than through the other channels for reaching the purchaser.

The Governor says his soldiers have killed sixteen night riders. He says he knows the leader of the night riders. . . . The Governor must make good or find himself in a most humiliating position. He must capture the leader of the night riders and his lieutenants. He must give the names of the dead night riders killed by his soldiers, with details of the fights in which they were slain, or stand before the state not only humiliated, but discredited.—Kentucky Evening Gazette.

Ought Not Christ to Have Suffered?

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moor's) Church, Chicago.

Ought one person to suffer for another? Damon became a hostage for his friend, Pythias, who, after being condemned to death, was permitted to go home and see his loved ones before execution. Before the return of Pythias Damon was heard to express the wish that he might be permitted to die for his friend; and when, to the surprise of his enemies, Pythias appeared the day before the execution, there was a generous dispute between the two friends as to which one should be permitted to die for the other. It is to the credit of the tyrant Dionysius that his heart was melted by such an exhibition of the self-sacrificing spirit of friendship, so that he pardoned Pythias and expressed a desire to be a partner in their friendship. Has any one from that day to this been mean enough to blame Dionysius for admiring devotion which made Damon willing to die for his friend? The story has been woven into poetry, and is to-day an inspiration to noble minds.

A blacksmith in Germany was seated in the village post office surrounded by the neighbors' children, when a rabid dog appeared in the door, and the noble man, forgetful of self, throttled the beast in the grip of his sturdy hands, but not until the virus had passed into his own blood. The villagers put flowers on his grave every day.

Profit by Another's Suffering. Again, ought one person to receive benefit from the suffering of another? Shall the child refuse to be benefited by the mother's suffering? Shall the country refuse to be benefited by the suffering of its patriot soldiers? If it be true that soldiers do wrong in dying for others and that those for whom they die ought not to be benefited by their sufferings, let us go to Bunker Hill and tear down that monument; let us go to Washington and raze to the ground that white marble pyramid which commemorates the man who suffered the pangs of hunger and cold at Valley Forge. To adopt the claim of Theosophy that one should not receive benefit from the sufferings of another is to turn mankind, sooner or later, into leeches and hyenas; for, if I should not be benefited by the sufferings of another, I, of course, should not suffer for another. My business, then, is to look after myself, and all the sweet ministries of loving sacrifice for others give place to greedy self-seeking.

Self-Sacrificing Love. The spirit of self-sacrificing love, as seen in Christ on the cross, if universally incarnate, would make earth a paradise of peace and joy. War would then cease; for if men loved well enough to die for one another, they certainly would not kill one another. It would close every divorce court; for if husband and wife loved well enough to die for each other, such a thing as unfaithfulness or even unkindness would be impossible. It would solve the problem of labor and capital; for if the laborer and capitalist loved well enough to me for each other, they certainly would not oppress or make unreasonable demands. It would run every business enterprise according to the Golden Rule; for if all men loved well enough to die for one another, there would be no lying or cheating to make money. Herein is the philosophy of the atonement. Faith in Christ and him crucified enables and transfigures character.

Bronson Alcott governed his school in Boston on this principle. "One day," says Mr. Alcott, "I called up before me a pupil eight or ten years of age who had violated an important regulation of the school. All the pupils were looking on, and they knew what the rule of the school was. I put the ruler into the hand of that offending pupil; I extended my hand and told him to strike. The instant the boy saw my extended hand and heard my command to strike I saw a struggle begin in his face. A new light sprang up in his countenance, a new set of shuttles seemed to be weaving a new nature within him. I kept my hand extended and the school was in tears. The boy struck once, and he himself burst into tears. I constantly watched his face and he seemed in a bath of fire which was giving him a new nature. He had a different mood toward the school and toward the violated law. The boy seemed transformed by the idea that I should take chastisement in place of his punishment. He went back to his seat and over after was one of the most docile of the pupils in that school, though he had been at first one of the rudest."

Something like that, only more, Jesus did for us. He took our place, and by the keynote of his own sacrificing love brought the justice of God into harmony with his mercy, while at the same time he awakens in our souls the music of gratitude and makes the discord of sin give way to the harmony of righteousness.

HISTORY OF TOBACCO

Low Prices The Cause of Tobacco Riots Now same as in The year 1863.

In 1863, an extraordinary series of occurrences grew out of the low price of tobacco, says the historian. Many people signed petitions to stop planting for one year. This request was not granted, so they banded themselves together and went thru the country destroying tobacco plants wherever found. The evil grew to such an extent, the assembly passed a law that the malefactor had passed beyond the bound of riot, and that their aim was the subversion of the government.

It was enacted that if any persons to the number of eight or more, should go about destroying tobacco plants they should be adjudged traitors and suffer death.

These occurrences over 200 years ago prove that there is nothing new under the sun. Of course the good old pioneers of this country did not have the trust to contend with, but the trouble in those days proved to be overproduction.

The first law passed by the general assembly of Virginia in 1619 referred to tobacco. The price was fixed at three shillings for the best and the second sort at 18d the pound. The tobacco was inspected and if not vendable at the second price it shall then be immediately burnt before the owner's face.

Tobacco was, in those days, the money used. Later, a law was passed, that if anyone missed divine service he should be fined one pound of tobacco.

In 1628, notwithstanding the law, tobacco declined in price. Then a law was passed to that effect, that no planter should plant above 2,000 plants for each member of his family. The price continued to decline. Now all the bad and half the good should be destroyed, but things gradually became worse until 1681 a treaty was negotiated between the colonies of Maryland, Virginia and Carolina to stop planting tobacco for one year, since the markets were glutted with it, and the value was so low that the planter could not live from the results of his labor. Then followed the riots of 1683, which were followed by the strict laws as mentioned above.—Owensboro Inquirer.

Dynamite Found in Tobacco Barn Near Hampton.

This week a stick of dynamite was found in the tobacco barn of J. C. Foster, of near Hampton. The dynamite was placed in a cinder near where a small fire was usually built when people were stripping tobacco. A long fuse ran underground from the dynamite to the place of the fire coming to the surface there. Had a fire been built at the usual place and tobacco stripper had gotten around it at work, in a short time would have been blown into eternity.—Livingston Echo.
