JOHN AUGUSTUS YANDELL

One of County's Oldest and Most Highly Respected Citizens passed to HIS Reward.

Full of honors returning a well spent life to God who gave it, and carrying with him to the grave the love and respect of all who knew him. John Yandell well nigh a nonagenarian and one of the county's oldest inhabitants passed to his reward Saturday morning last at 2 o'clock at his home near Dycusburg.

The frail emaciated form at last gave up the unequal struggle in which it had been engaged for many weary weeks and months. With him when he breathed his last were his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Koon, who lived with him and his four sons Wm. B. and Thos. J., of Marion.

Milton of Blackford and John who lived at home.

Besides these five children, Mr. Yandell is survived by three other children they being Mrs. S. Gualtney of Charleston, Mo., and Mrs. Jennie Brasher, of this county and Mrs. Hattie Grassham of Livingston.

Mr. Yandell was born in Hopkins county, Ky., Nov. 22, 1822, and moved to this county when quite a young man.

He was first married, Oct. 20th, 1852 to Miss Margaret Crouch who died leaving three children. His second marriage was to Miss Sarah Bishop on Jan. 2nd, 1864, but she preceded him to the grave 21 years ago, dying in 1887.

Mr. Yandell was a man of fine character, and strong convictions. He never left anyone in doubt as to where he stood on any subject. In early life he was elected Sheriff of this county and filled that important office during the troublous times of the Civil war from 1859 to 1863.

He served this county in the Legislature one term (1867 to 1869) with honor and distinction and was true to every trust in all the affairs of his long and useful life.

The interment took place Saturday afternoon at the Koon graveyard near his house, and the services were conducted by Rev. R. A. LaRue, the pastor of Caldwell Springs Church, who made some beautiful and fitting remarks on the life and character of the deceased.

A CALL

For Farmers' Union Meeting To be Held in The City of Paducah on Saturday May 23rd 1908.

Paducah, Ky., April 28, 1908.—To the Members of the Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America, Kentucky Division:

Pursuant to the request of McCracken County Union, in business session assembled, I hereby call a Delegate Meeting of the Farmers' Union of Kentucky to meet in the city of Paducah on Saturday, the 23rd day of May, 1908.

The object of the meeting will be to take definite action with reference to the handling and selling of the 1908 crop of tobacco raised by Farmers' Union people.

The meeting will be called to order at 10 o'clock a. m. sharp.

The above meeting will be one of great importance to Union Tobacco Growers in Kentucky, and you who are members of the Farmers' Union, and those who are not, and expect to join the Union, might do well to not sign any contracts to any organization until after this meeting, as there is plenty time yet to sign contracts to any organization, and above all, be sure you do not sign any contract for the handling of more than one year's crop of tobacco.

The Farmers' Union will handle tobacco grown by all Farmers' Union people during the year of 1908, not otherwise obligated.

HEROES OF THE HOUR

Marion Soldier Boys Make Big Haul—13 Alleged Night Riders Brought In By Company K.

The detail of the Kentucky State Guards of Company K., and which is the home company, stationed here, returned Tuesday afternoon from their raid in Caldwell county where they went Monday armed with warrants of arrests for thirty odd alleged night riders, and as to the fruits of an all night vigil and many long rides in the rain and mud they brought in Tuesday afternoon on the 3:32 train the following:—Guy Sattlefield, Herbert Coleman, Buck Tandy, Jim Tandy, Roger Tandy, Dick Poole, J. B. Malone, John Turner, Bob Oliver, Ott Brown, Roy Merrie, Villias Mitchell and Robt. Oliver. Thirteen in all. Eleven of whom were placed in jail with Alonzo Gray the suspect locked up Monday.

On arrival of the train the defendants accompanied by Ward Headly of Princeton, their attorney, appeared before Judge Blackburn.

The trials were set for next Friday week, May 15, 1908, and bond of each man was fixed at $1,000.00 in each case some of them being accused of being in both the Cardin Factory raid and also the Bennett Bros., raid at which the latter Henry Bennett was whipped.

Information has reached here that six more arrests have been made in Lyon County and that the prisoners will arrive here to-night on the 10:13 train from Kuttawa. Great excitement prevails, but public sentiment favors the efforts, being made by the officers to enforce the law, and the hope is entertained that some at least of the guilty parties will be caught.

The county officials do not give out the evidence in their hands or the basis on which these wholesale arrests are being made but they claim to have the proper evidence and to have their plans well laid and say they have made no mistakes but will ferret the cases to the bottom.

It is currently rumored but not verified by the officials who are reticent that some one of the alleged night riders has turned states evidence and put the whole plot in the officers hands.

The soldiers who made the arrests were—First Sergeant, Chastain Haynes, Second Lieutenant C. V. Franks, Lester Paris, Curtis Pickens Fred Moore and J. A. Farmer.

USEFUL LIFE ENDED.

Charles Clement Dies at His Home Near Chapel Hill After Several Weeks Illness.

Charles Clement was born in Crittenden County Ky., Aug. 1st, 1863, and spent his entire life in the neighborhood where he was born. He professed religion during a meeting which was held by Rev. James Bunton at Oak Grove School house about 23 years ago; and united with the church at Chapel Hill.

He was married to Miss Essie McMurray Jan., 26 1887. To them were born eight children 4 girls and 4 boys.

All of whom are still living. He died on Sunday afternoon, May, 3rd at 15 minutes to 9 o'clock, age 44 years 9 months and 2 days. He had been sick nearly four weeks and suffered greatly during all that time. But the end came as peacefully and quietly as the going down of a summer sun.

During all these years Bro. Clement has been closely identified with the business, social and religious interest of his community.

He was one of the best farmers in the community, and an example of industry and thrift.

He took deep interest in the affairs of his church. He rarely ever missed the regular monthly service. And for a number of years led the church music. The church has suffered a serious loss in his death.

He was one of the very best neighbors and friend, and as such will be greatly missed in the community.

Brother Clements took great interest in the personal welfare of his children and was careful in their education and training, that they might grow up to be good and useful men and women.

Like all the rest of us he was not without his faults, but he was a faithful member of the church, a good and useful man in the community, a good citizen of his county and a good husband and father.

He has ceased from his labors and his works will follow him.

May the blessing of God abide with his companion and children, that in the end they may all meet husband and father in that land where there is no parting and God shall wipe away all tears from our eyes.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to publicly express (what we have said in private, to all we could,) our sincere and heartfelt thanks to all the neighbors and kind friends who so cheerfully looked after the comfort of our father during his long illness, preceding his death. Such thoughtful ministrations are matured only in the hearts of those who love the meek and lowly Savior, and we feel constrained to repeat what our father John A. Yandell said on all occasions that his neighbors were the best people in the world. HIS SONS AND DAUGHTERS.

Dr. J. G. Wolfe of Salem has located in Marion and has as office in the Pierce Building. He is a graduate of the Hospital College of Medicine at Louisville, and is a specialist on diseases of the Ear Eye Nose and Throat.

WANTED—Reliable, enterprising man to sell lubricating oils, greases and paints in Crittenden and adjacent counties. Salary or commission. STETSON OIL COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio. 46-21.

ALONZO GRAY

Alleged Captain of Night Riders Arrested Here Monday—Jail Filled to Overflowing.

Monday morning the 6:28 train brought to the city no less distinguished personage than Alonzo Gray, alleged Captain of the night riders accompanied by his friend and neighbor Thos. Gresham both from the Rinaldo section of Lyon county, near the Caldwell and Trigg County lines, from where 'twas claimed the band came when the raid was made on the Dycusburg and View factories of Bennett Bros. and A. H. Cardin.

A subpoena had been issued for him but it is claimed he did not respond to it after which a warrant was issued and sent to Caldwell county and he was placed under bond for his appearance here Monday. When he appeared before Judge Blackburn he was arrested on a charge of being connected with the raiders who on Saturday night Feb'y. 8th destroyed A. H. Cardin's factory at View, Ky., with thirty five thousand lbs. of tobacco, and on Monday night Feb'y. 3rd burned the tobacco warehouse of Bennett Bros., at Dycusburg and whipped and otherwise abused Henry Bennett. Judge Blackburn fixed his bond at $3000, and his friend Gresham went to Princeton to get it filled. Gray in the meantime being placed in jail. Gresham accompanied by Robt. Butts of Lamasco returned here Monday night with a bond but the officials declined to receive it as it was not properly prepared, or certified to altho' it contained the names of C. C. Butts, merchants of Lamasco, Taylor Gray, father of the prisoner, a wealthy farmer, Robt. Parker said to be one of the wealthiest men of his section and R. L. McGregor also a farmer of that section.

Butts and Gresham returned to Princeton on the noon train. The latter has a brother Albert employed on the I. C. R. R. and another Blake in the U. S. army.

They expected to return Wednesday or Thursday with the bondsmen to secure Grays release but up to the time of our going to press they had not appeared.

APRIL.

H. E. M.

Behold the changeful April skies,
And how the ghost of winter flies,
How the dashing rain drops sweep the air,
With shafts of sunlight here and there.

The wind blows and it rains they say,
But truly it is a sunshine day.

And voices in the greenwood trees
Are shouting springtime melodies.

Far in the field where walks the crow,
The sunlight wakes to fervid glow

For warmer nights make warmer days,
That sweeter fields and woodland ways.

The peach tree blooms against the wall—
The wind blows and the petals fall

And voices in the greenwood trees,
Are chanting spring time melodies.

The brook sings in undertone
'Neath cooling banks over pebbly stone,

And where the brooklet winds its way,
Its shimmering light reflects the day.

Far in yon field deep in the wood,
There is a cooling in its flood,

And voices in the greenwood trees
Are chanting spring time melodies.

The little daisy debonair,
The first to wake, the first to hear

Unlike the sweet Forget-Me-Not
They love the wild neglected spot.

The little Blue-Bell sweet and chaste,
Hath come in early April haste,

And voices in the greenwood trees
Are chanting spring time melodies.

Tired nerves, with that no ambition feeling that is commonly felt in the spring or early summer, can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. One will absolutely note a changed feeling within 48 hours after beginning to take the Restorative. The bowels get sluggish in the winter-time, the circulation often slows up, the kidneys are enactive, and even the heart in many cases grow decidedly weaker. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is recognized everywhere as a genuine tonic to these vital organs. It builds up and strengthens the worn-out weakened nerves; it sharpens the failing appetite, and universally aids digestion. It always quickly brings renewed strength, life, vigor, and ambition. Try it and be convinced. Sold by Jas. H. Orme.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness--nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy--Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative--Tablets or Liquid--and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

Resources and People of the Mountains of Kentucky.

Compton, April 30, 1908.

ED. PRESS:--It was natural that when God desired to talk with Moses He called him to a mountain. It is not wonderful that Christ was transfigured upon a mountain. It was appropriate that Christ should go up on a mountain to pray and from a mountain ascend into Heaven. Out of all the earth, the hill country of Judea was the land that God selected for the home of His chosen people. What about that? March 27 was selected as "Arbor Day" by Kentucky Wesleyan Academy, Wolfe county, Kentucky, and we wandered over the mountain cliffs and under the shade of the pine, holly, laurel and ivy, the evergreen foliage of the mountains of East Kentucky. Standing upon a huge sand stone rock, watching the tops of the mountain pines toy with the fleecy clouds, and noting how fearlessly the girls and boys sprang over dizzy places and crossed with elastic steps and swinging, swaying bridges that hang high above deep and rapid mountain streams, we understood and enjoyed more than ever before the free and independent spirit of a mountain people. Not a bird of the mountain forest was more free and happy than were these young people out for a holiday. One young lady, daughter of a Methodist Minister, stood upon the rock and a clear, strong voice, sang, with her companions, "Down at the Cross," while just across another cliff a group of young men caused the sound of pistol shot to reverberate among the hills. One was an expression of devotion by a noble young woman, the other was the natural set of mountain boys to whom the sound of pistol is music.

We were out in the oil fields, derricks that mark the site of oil wells are as frequent landscape features here as are windmills in Holland. Several wells are run by one power house. The oil is conducted by pipes from the wells to tanks and from the tanks through the pipes to Pittsburg. Some of the yield of these fields help to swell Rockefeller's millions. Returning home, now climbing over a perpendicular rock by flacing our feet in Indian steps hollowed out in the dim past by the red aborigines of our country and anon walking upon a rock platform that encircles a mountain side and is overhung by a projecting rock, in a short mile that extends from the cliffs to Campton. We passed several coal mines.

People in this section make no ado about owning a coal mine. It is not much thought of, if one own land rich in natural gas, oil and coal. In Wolfe county there are 3000 acres under-laid with seams of coal, much of it is of the most valuable quality. South of Campton toward the Kentucky river and about five miles distant is a fifty inch vein of Peacock Cooking Coal; and about the same distance from the county seat is a fifty-four inch vein of Bituminous Cooking Coal. For all mining purposes, there is a sufficient quantity of oak timber. The undeveloped resources of the county are awaiting the magic touch of capital. S. B. Smith, of Campton and possibly others have options on large tracts of land. In addition to all these resources, there is no finer people in the state with finer traits of character.

Campton was founded as the county seat of Wolfe by C. W. Hawks, a cousin to Abraham Lincoln. Lincoln's mother was, before her marriage, a Miss Hawks of the "hill country of Kentucky" and in discussing the life and character of Lincoln in our U. S. History, close at the Academy we found an outcropping of several cousins; however all these cousins are of a different political faith from Lincoln, for the Hawks brothers with many others of this county rode with Morgan under the Confederate flag and were among that General's most daring cavalrymen.

Wolfe is a Democratic county, but frequently a candidate for office who has a large kin-ship in both parties will be elected by virtue of a large relationship; for people in the mountains are true to their "birth and kin." Breathitt, which joins Wolfe, and which has made its own peculiar record in politics and history, has worn out her feud and is coming back to the sisterhood of counties, "clothed and in her right mind."

A few more weeks busily spent in preparing for the Commencement Exercises at the Academy and again our faces will be turned toward Crittenden, where home is but a reminder of those, whose continued absence makes home the saddest place beneath the sun.

Campton is a good business point with one the best banks in Eastern Kentucky, a good school and a kindly people. Thus we shall remember it, with its encircling mountains and the music of its rushing streams.

Letter From Hon. M. F. Pogue.

Frances, Ky., May 4, 1908.
The Crittenden RECORD-PRESS,
Marion, Ky.

Dear Marshall:—In your last weeks issue I read on the editorial page an article, headed "guilty," in regard to the finding of the Chicago court in the case of J. A. Everett, editor of Up-to-Date Farming, against the proprietors of the Equity Farm Journal, naming the delegates who opposed Mr. Everett, in the convention which deposed him and his paper from the head of the American Society of Equity of North America.

The Article in question was not your personal work, but was contributed. Of this I am indeed proud, as I feel that you would not knowingly do any thing calculated to confuse or mislead the people at any time, especially at this time when the Equity people are endeavoring to thoroughly organize the county.

While the article reads a great deal like a sermon, and speaks of "designing people bent on wrecking our beloved society," it is but justice for your readers to know that Mr. Everett is now trying to organize a new organization called the Farmers Society of Equity.

As to the conspiracy referred to which is alleged to have occurred at the National Meeting last October, I enclose the signed statement of a committee appointed by the State Board of the Society of January 23, 1908.

I thank you for your kind offer to publish the article next week and ask the people to read the article which is signed by three as unprejudiced, fair minded Kentuckians as ever lived; Billy Bourland being our near neighbor, and every such a patriot. Then let each draw his own conclusions as to whom he will follow.
Again thanking you for proffered kindness, I am your friend, MARION F. POGUE,
Sec'y, Frances Local A. S. E.
The article referred to by Mr.
Pogue will appear next week and will be headed "to the members of the A.
S. of E. of the State of Kentucky."

Made Trip to Hopkins County.

Dear Mr. Jenkins.—The writer in company with the Hon. J. G. Rochester, made a flying trip into Hopkins county, on the 30, Ult. We, enjoyed the trip hugely indeed.
The farmers in the Eastern part of this good County, we are proud to say are ahead of the farmers down here, lots of corn planted, and some tobacco. Everything went well with us and we were just complimenting ourselves on the nice trip, when right in the midst of our exultation, we drove into the edge of Clear Creek flats, in Hopkins County, and from the abundant rains in the last few days, the water in the flats had spread out all over the same and having gone down left the whole country a perfect quagmire. And as we drove out into the flats a short distance, Judge Rochester, said, see here John, Dog-gone, here, you are the lightest, you know I weigh 180 pounds, you drive thru here and I will walk. Thereupon the Judge, got out of the buggy, and undertook to walk thru, but of course he had miscalculated. His wondrous weight, was too much for the mud, so he began to mire, he jumped from one high clod to another, until finally it seemed to the Judge that there were no other clods to light upon, so he took his stand on one prominent clod and began to hollow, wait, wait, but of course the driver could not stop the team there, neither could he turn back to get the Judge, so there was nothing else to it but to drive on which he did. And the last heard of the Judge, was wait! wait!! wait!!!

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering. The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N.C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public. For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue can tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering women."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Muff, it will do for other suffering women.

THOUGHTS ON BUSINESS

BY
WALDO PONDRAV WARREN

BE A MAN FIRST

BEFORE one can be a sound business man he must first be a sound man. When an artist paints a picture containing human figures he must not try to hide defective proportions of a figure by the clothing, but must first make sure that the outline of the anatomy is correct before he attempts to paint the clothing. One of the worst faults a picture can have is to be "out of drawing." No amount of wonder-work in color or conception can atone for faults in the anatomy of the figures. And there are few to defend a picture in which there are serious faults of anatomy.

There are some persons in business life who think they can cover up the evidences of a defective manhood by laying on thick the colors of an outward business success. They think that if they can only get the place and the power they will also get the honor and the satisfaction that comes from worthy achievement. But like the unskilled artist, they deceive themselves most of all. Nothing can atone for defective character, and nothing can hide it. A few superficial persons may give undue credit to mere appearances, but the critics whose opinions determine the real standing of the work will not be deceived—and their criticisms will take away any shallow satisfaction that may be found in superficial applause. Nothing but sound manhood can win the true reward of sound manhood.

There is a Pink Pain Tablet made by Dr. Shoop, that will positively stop any pain, anywhere in 20 minutes. Druggists everywhere sell them as Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets, but they stop other pains as easily as headache. Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets simply coax blood pressure away from pain centers—that is all. Pain comes from blood pressure—congestion. JOHNSON AT SHILOH

MINNESOTA EXECUTIVE MAKES NOTABLE ADDRESS.

QUESTION OF STATE RIGHTS

Does Not Approve of Commonwealth Being Made Subservient to Inferior Federal Courts—Would Uphold Constitution.

Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota delivered at the dedication of the Minnesota monument on Shiloh battlefield, April 10, an address that will rank as one of the ablest public deliverances of recent times. Spoken on a battlefield that may be taken as the symbol of the great war for the union, the governor took occasion to tell of the peril that threatens our federal form of government. This peril was emphasized by the recent decision of the supreme court in the railway cases going up from Minnesota and North Carolina, which practically makes the state governments subservient to the inferior federal courts. The significance of these decisions is widely understood, and they have given rise to a general discussion of the question of the rights of the states, and Gov. Johnson's speech will rank as an important contribution to that discussion. The dedicatory address in part follows:

Representing the people of the commonwealth of Minnesota, we are assembled on one of the historic battlefields of the civil war to pay our tribute of respect and affection to the memory of the sons of Minnesota who here yielded up their lives for this might continue to be a united nation. Their sacrifice was not for personal gain, but was in response to duty, and a contribution to the civilization of the age, and for the purpose of perpetuating the institution of human liberty.

I appreciate that nothing which I can say will add to or detract from the glory of their achievement, which in itself is an enduring monument to the patriotism and heroism of the American soldier. Their sacrifice, however, was not different from that which has been made throughout all of the ages by those lovers of liberty who believe in a government which might give to all the people the right to life, liberty and property. The love of liberty was not born in this country of ours; it was cradled along the Danube and about the shores of the Baltic, even when Rome had reached the limit of her imperial grandeur. Increasing in intensity with the passing of the centuries, it found its highest expression in the older countries in the great English charter of civil rights, which forever guaranteed to the people of that land immunity from the despotism of those who claimed to rule by virtue of Divine right.

One hundred and thirty-two years ago the great contest of humanity was transferred from the old world to the new, and here, because of the isolation of this country, because of the high character of the man who espoused the cause of liberty, and because of the signal victory achieved by them in that struggle, an opportunity was afforded to crystallize into written law the aspirations of the patriots of all the ages. The men who built the foundations of this government were those who had submitted to the supreme test of patriotism, for those who inspired the constitution of the United States were the same who had pledged their lives, their properties and their sacred honor to the cause of independence.

While the primary object of a written constitution is to define governmental powers, and to limit governmental departments, the overwhelming necessity for such an instrument is to prevent insidious encroachments upon the rights of the individual citizen, both from those in office and from those who by reason of their wealth and power have an influence far greater than that possessed by the average citizen. And so the constitution of the United States was regarded by its framers as an instrument of the most sacred import, an alteration of which could only be made by the people themselves in whom all ultimate power is vested, and then only after the full and freest discussion and widest publicity.

Under the beneficent government so established the nation has prospered and the people are happy. One great cloud came upon the nation in the form of an awful civil war, in which two sections of the country were in conflict with each other. The heroes who rest here gave their lives that this nation might be maintained as it came from our forefathers. On another battlefield of that war, Abraham Lincoln said: "It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated to the unfinished work they have thus far so nobly carried on. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from these honored dead we take increased devotion for that cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion; that we highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that the nation shall under God, have a new birth of freedom, and that the government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Our concern is not of the past, nor wholly with the present, but much with the future. If the destiny of the republic is in the hands of the American of to-day, then it becomes him to be guided and governed only by patriotic impulse and the desire to do that which will most largely contribute to the permanency of republican institutions. Advancing our civilization so that we will not, by recognizing the false claims of selfish interests, and forgetting the American maxim that our object should be to attain the greatest good for the greatest number, incur the penalty which other people have paid, rather let us hold ever in mind that those who framed our government believed in the equality of the people and that the chief aim of government is to maintain that equality.

Under our system of government the nation has reached a material development hitherto unknown. The people have prospered beyond the dreams of those who lived a century ago. But with the development of the country and changes in economic conditions, and particularly with the growth of great private corporations, performing many of the functions of government, has come the necessity for the exercise of strict governmental control, and a rigid enforcement of all the laws enacted to restrain the rich and powerful from encroaching upon the natural and legal rights of the poor and weak.

The constitution of the ancient republic of Rome, which for 500 years had recognized the voice of the people as supreme, was expanded by executive interpretation and contracted by executive administration, until Rome had so completely outgrown its democratic conditions as to become only a tragedy and a tradition. Let us improve the aid of Him on high to preserve us from the errors which ruined Rome, by the avoidance of which America may travel on to that destiny and realize that fulfillment which will be the inspiration of right-thinking men of all ages yet to come.

Our government is divided into three separate and distinct co-ordinate branches: the legislative, the executive and the judicial. Danger will surely come to this republic when any of these departments of government attempt in the slightest degree to usurp the functions of the other. And while now and then it may be that a court of the land, in construing the constitution, may nullify a section of it, I have the faith to feel that the people of the country will rise above the fallibility of judicial tribunals and assert and preserve their own rights. Our duty is not to criticize the executive, the legislature or the judiciary.

Very recently there has come from the highest judicial tribunal in the land a decision of vital interest and concern to the American people, because it has established a principle, as stated by one member of the court, which "would work a radical change in our governmental system and would inaugurate a new era in the American judicial system and in the relations of the national and state governments. It would enable the subordinate federal courts to supervise and control the official action of the states as though they were dependencies or provinces. It would place the states of the union in a condition of inferiority never dreamed of when the constitution was adopted or when the eleventh amendment was made a part of the supreme law of the land." If this is the result of this decision, it is, to my mind, one of the unhappy incidents in the history of our republic, because the very theory of our government is based upon the right of the states to control absolutely their own domestic affairs.

If, then, our whole system of government is changed, have we not only retarded the progress of the republic, but have we not gone back a century toward a centralized form of government which is not to the advantage of the people? What this government needs is not more power. What it needs to-day is to so distribute the privileges under the government that all citizens will have equal opportunity. America has been called the land of opportunity. But American opportunity should not mean a granting of special privileges to any class, but should afford all alike the means for culture, education, prosperity and contentment.

For nearly a century and a half America has presented to the world the spectacle of a happy, prosperous and intelligent people, maintaining a pure democracy founded upon their supreme will. The hallmark of a democracy is that the powers of government are close to the people. Throughout the world, wherever democracy is advancing, its progress is marked by a greater measure of self-government to each community. Will the American people turn to the setting rather than the rising sun? Shall we now, because some laws are found repulsive by a class and interfere with their selfish aims, compromise to deprive our sovereign states of that measure of home rule which until now they have seen fit to reserve to themselves? I cannot believe it. Upon the contrary I believe that the limitations upon state and federal governments, the nice balancing of the powers of each, and of the different departments in each, which have been so efficacious in the past, will be maintained in their full vigor in the future.

Therefore, discharging all of our responsibilities as citizens of a country, refusing to surrender our rights of citizenship in any degree, let us so live that the heroism exemplified on this and other American battlefields may not be simply a tradition, and the national wisdom of our forefathers a mere legend, but that through us and those to come America will reach her full destiny in the permanent establishment of a perfect union, which shall be not for to-day nor for tomorrow, but forever, and be so established that it will be for all of the people, and that their government shall not perish.

The Early Years of Grover Cleveland

His Birth In Caldwell, N. J., His School Days,
His Legal Career, His Rise to the Governor-ship of New York and His Defeat of James G. Blaine For the Presidency In 1884.

WHEN the pastor of the Presbyterian church in the little town of Caldwell, N. J., in 1837 bestowed upon one of his babies the name of the Rev. Stephen Grover, a predecessor in the same pulpit, he probably entertained not the remotest dream that the boy would grow up to discard his first name and become known in world history as Grover Cleveland, twice president of the United States and for the remainder of his life "the most distinguished private citizen in the world."

GROVER CLEVELAND'S BIRTHPLACE, CALDWELL, N. J.

The Rev. Stephen F. Cleveland and his wife, who was Ann Neal, daughter of a Baltimore merchant, had a large family of children. Three years after Grover was born the family migrated, as preachers' families are wont to do. Parson Cleveland became pastor at Fayetteville, N. Y., and later at Clinton, N. Y. The father died when Grover was in his sixteenth year. The family home was then and until the widow Cleveland died in 1882 at Holland Patent, N. Y.

Grover Cleveland attended academics at Fayetteville and Clinton. He had an early ambition to go through Princeton college, but lacked the funds. He became clerk and later assistant teacher in the New York Institution For the Blind, New York city.

Fanny Crosby, the celebrated blind hymn writer, was a teacher in the same school. She and Grover became warm friends. In her reminiscences Miss Crosby writes:

He seemed a very gentle but intensely ambitious boy. Among other very pleasant characteristics which I noticed in him as a careful, hard-working, but not brilliant, lawyer. He had no pyrotechnic, ornamental side. He simply attended to business. Though the Republican state ticket carried Buffalo by more than 1,000 votes, Cleveland was elected mayor by a majority of 3,530. Early in his term he became known as "the veto mayor." He vetoed many extravagant appropriation bills and saved his city at least $1,000,000.

The state of New York soon heard much of this veto mayor. He had been in office less than a year when the Democrats nominated him for governor. New York had not elected a Democratic governor since before the civil war. The Republicans nominated Charles J. Folger, secretary of the treasury in President Arthur's cabinet. Mr. Folger was regarded as a particularly strong candidate, yet Cleveland was elected governor by a plurality of 192,854 over Folger and by a clear majority of 151,742 over all the candidates. Just after he voted on election day he wrote to his brother, the Rev. William Cleveland:

If mother were alive, I should be writing to her, and I feel as if it were a time for me to write to some one who will believe what I write. . . . I will tell you first of all others the policy I intend to adopt, and that is to make the matter a business engagement between the people and myself, in which the obligation on my side is to perform the duties assigned me with an eye single to the interests of my employers. I shall have no idea of reelection or of any high political preferment in my head, but be very thankful and happy if I serve one term as the people's governor. Do you know that if mother were alive I should feel so much was a disposition to help others whenever possible. Knowing that it was a great favor to me to have my poems copied neatly and legibly, he offered to perform that service for me, and I several times availed myself of his aid.

One day the principal of the school upbraided the blind woman for using the clerk's time in that way. Grover told Miss Crosby that she had a perfect right to employ him in that capacity. Inasmuch as her poems were used in the school and also helped to make the institution better known. He advised her to give the principal some "plain prose" the next time he should reproach her. When the official remonstrated a second time, Miss Crosby stood for her rights and won the battle.

When Cleveland was about eighteen years old, he paid a visit to an uncle living in Buffalo. The uncle induced the boy to remain and help him in compiling the "American Herd Book." Grover assisted in several editions of this work, studied law and was admitted to the bar at the age of twenty-two. His first official position was that of assistant district attorney, which he held for three years, during the civil war. Two of his brothers were in the army. Grover was helping to support his mother and sisters. His salary was small. When he was drafted to military service, he hired a substitute and remained at work. Later he was a candidate for the district attorneyship, but was defeated. Then he settled down to law practice. In 1870 he was induced to run for sheriff and was elected, serving for three years.

After another interval of private citizenship, assiduously devoted to his profession, this bachelor lawyer of forty-four years was nominated for mayor of Buffalo on the Democratic ticket in 1881. He had become known safer. I have always thought that his prayers had much to do with my successes. I shall expect you to help me in that way.

Governor Cleveland was precisely like Mayor Cleveland. He was a business governor. It was said of him that he ran the state as he would have run a railroad, mastering the details of the business so that he could run it well. The same writer declares that "he not only preached economy, but he made the state officials practice it. He vetoed bills until the legislators were wild with rage, and he forced through civil service reform."

Grover Cleveland was cordially disliked by the politicians in his party. But his reputation among the people as a plain, practicable, businesslike executive had grown so wide that in the summer of 1884, before the expiration of his gubernatorial term, there was an insistent call for him to accept that "high political preferment" which in the letter to his brother he had declared was not in his head. The great mass of the Democracy throughout the country believed that Cleveland was honest and that nothing could turn him aside from a course which he believed to be right. He was nominated for president at the Chicago convention of 1884, his Republican opponent being James G. Blaine. Mr. Cleveland received a small plurality of the popular vote and an electoral majority of thirty-seven. For the first time since 1856 the Democratic party had carried the presidential election. A man who two years before was unknown beyond his own city and county, a painstaking, laborious lawyer, a ponderous, heavy-set "old bachelor," had entered the lists and swept to the feat "the plumed knight" of twenty years' national renown.

THE GOSPEL FOR HARD TIMES
By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D.,
Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Meady's)
Church, Chicago.

Read Psalm 77.

Florence Nightingale tells us that, when she was on her way to the Crimean war, she heard from the sailors a weird story about birds with black wings and blue breasts that flew across the Black sea during stormy weather, and sometimes perched on the masts, but had never been caught. On dark nights they went to the Mohammedan graveyards, roosted on the boughs of the cypress trees, and mingled their doleful notes with the sighing of the winds. The Moslems declared that the spirits of the wicked dead dwelt in these birds, and that their plaintive notes were the wailing of the lost.

Now, into most of our lives there come at times birds with black wings and blue breasts. We cannot capture and destroy them, and they almost turn our hearts into a cemetery. We have "the blues." Webster says that the word "blues" is a contraction, he might have said a concentration, of "blue devils." It is a word used in classic English, as is the word "dumps." There is a state of mind which Shakespeare could describe only as the "dumps, so dull and heavy," and these hard times are apt to produce that state of mind.

While the author of this Seventy-seventh Psalm was writing the first nine verses there was in his mind a whole flock of these birds with black wings and blue breasts. I believe that God allowed him to have the blues, in order that he might give us the Divine analysis of this state of mind. Having diagnosed the disease, he then gives us the cure.

Let us pluck the feathers from the wings of these blue-breasted birds and examine them one by one, that we may learn just the stuff that the blues are made of.

The first black feather is A Morbid Taste for Sorrow.

"My soul refused to be comforted." There was comfort to be had, but he did not want it. He preferred discomfort.

Some people are never quite so happy as when they are miserable. They get their griefs.

The second feather is A Distorted View of God.

"I remembered God and was troubled."

The remembrance of God ought to have given him pleasure. Infidelity speaks of a God "whose every thought is a star and whose dreams are constellations." He thinks not of men. Such a view of God is enough to give any one the blues.

The third black feather is A Complaining Spirit.

"I complained, and my spirit was overwhelmed."

The more you complain the more cause you will have for complaining. The squid blackens the water about it that it may hide itself in the blackness. It shuts out its own vision, in order that it may shut out the vision of others. And thus a complaining spirit darkens everything about us.

Another black feather is Insomnia.

"Thou holdest mine eyes waking." It is hard to be cheerful when we cannot sleep. The darkness of the mind enters our soul, and gas light will not banish it. The fitting of black wings makes a rustle in our rooms that does not soothe us. Our nerves become tomtoms on which devils beat, rather than harp-strings upon which angels play.

Still another black feather is The Memory of Good Times Gone.

"I call to remembrance my song in the night."

Once he was a nightingale, filling the air with music; now he is a screech-owl, filling it with discords. The fact that he was once happy makes him miserable to-day. Former wealth makes present poverty more oppressive; former health makes present sickness harder to bear.

So much for the analysis of the blues. Let us look for a moment at God's Cures; at the means by which these birds of black wing and blue breast may be driven away, or taken and destroyed.

First, let there be a clean-breasted confession. "This," says the Psalmist, "is my infirmity."

God is not to blame if I am blue. He would make me bright and cheerful. I take the fault as my own. He does not say that it is a sin. There is quite a difference between sin and infirmity. Infirmity is weakness of a good thing, as an infirm eye, or hand, or faith, or love.

Confession of sin brings forgiveness, but there must be no apology. If we whitewash our souls we shall not have them washed white. Paul said: "I rejoice in infirmity, that the power of Christ may rest upon me."

Again, faith in God is a good cure for the blues. The Psalmist says: "Thy way is in the sanctuary." Go to church. Find his way in the sanctuary; walk in it, and it will grow brighter until the perfect day.

Glass, living on Bellville St., Marion, Ky., says: "I cannot express my gratitude for the beneficial results I obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. I have kept this remedy in the house constantly for the past five years and consider it worth its weight in gold. I had been subject to backaches for a long time, in fact, the affliction caused me to spend many sleepless nights. I took remedies and medicines but did not find any relief until I was finally persuaded to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured them at Haynes & Taylor's drug store. They gave me instant relief, in less than a week the pains in my back had vanished as if by magic and I have not been troubled seriously since. Occasionally I have slight recurrences of backache when I catch a heavy cold, but on such occasions I procure Doan's Kidney Pills and they always give me prompt relief.

A New Preparation.

Chamberlain's Liniment is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder, and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by J. H. Orme.

Women.

Twashtri had created Earth all therein, Everything save woman; Her he did begin.

Of the stars he borrowed Two to light her face, Of the moon its roundness, Of the swan its grace.

Lightness of the will, Softness of the flower, Frolic of the sunbeam, Teardrops of the shower.

Cruelty of the tiger, The Peacock's vanity, Hardness of the diamond, The wind's inconstancy.

Restlessness of ocean Peacefulness of grove, Cackling of the parrot, Cooing of the dove.

Piecing these together Pursuant to his plan, Twashtri, world creator Made a mate for a man.
