IMPROVEMENTS MADE.

The Cemetery Association Has Made Many Improvements In the Cemetery During past Year.

The Cemetery Association during the past year has made many improvements in the cemetery, having planted a nice lot of maple trees along all the drive ways, erected a new fence around the entire cemetery, kept all of the walks and drive ways cleaned and put gravel on many of the walks. All of this has been paid for by the money collected from lot owners who were willing to put their lots in the care of the association and pay the nominal expense of three dollars per year for keeping of same.

These people should be encouraged in this work, and should have the co-operation of every person who owns a lot in the cemetery; while it does not take three dollars to keep and properly care for each lot one year, yet there are other improvements that go to beautify the last resting place of our deceased friends and loved ones, and any sum realized above the actual expense of caring for the lots, so paid on, is used to purchase gravel for the walks and drive ways and make other needed repairs and improvements, and the just and equitable way to meet these expenses is for each lot owner to pay three dollars per year to have his lot cared for and place it in the hands of the association and thus not only have your lot properly mowed once or possibly twice during the year, but have it kept every month in the year.

The members of the association say that many decline to pay the three dollars saying that they can keep their own lot much cheaper. To such person we desire to say, that had ever person felt as you do about this matter, the cemetery would today be out side, not a shade tree within it, not a load of gravel would have been put on a drive way, and not a walk within the cemetery would have had the grass cut out of it, or gravel placed on it, and if any of the lots were looked after, they would have been cared for one at a time, and possibly not two lots in the entire cemetery would mowed during the same week, thus leaving the general appearance of the cemetery about the same as if none of us cared for the last resting place of our deceased friends.

There has, and no doubt will always be loyal men and women, who care so much for the memory of their deceased friends, that the cemetery will be kept up by them, but do you believe it is right for the place where your deceased loved ones sleep, to be kept up and cared for at the expense of those few who regardless of the expense are trying to beautify the entire cemetery. Don't you want a part in the laudable work? Don't you think your conscience would be easier if you contributed along with your friends to the improvement of the entire cemetery, instead of keeping your individual lot and letting a few bear the burden of the general improvements that are to be made from time to time. This is a question that every lot owner should ponder over, and when you realize how selfish, not to say stingy, it is for you to refuse to join in this work, we believe that every lot owner will do his or her full part duty and will promptly respond to the call of the Association to place their lot under care of the association and pay the three per year to have it kept and in this way bear their part of the general expense of keeping up the cemetery. There are many who own lots upon which no one is buried and most of them are paying to have their lots kept, now can those who have loved ones buried there refuse to pay the respect to their own dead that mere friends and in some cases strangers show for your dead. We think not and we firmly believe that this year will find many new names added to the list of lots placed in the hands of the association.

In Memoriam.

Thomas R. Arfack son of John E. and Catherine Arfack was born April 9th, 1886 and died June 6th, 1908. His parents died several years ago, for thirteen years he has lived with his uncle, Wm. Arfack. In a meeting held at Rose Bud by Bro. Roland about three years ago, he professed religion. He was faithful to attend church and Sunday School. He had been sick since last Thanksgiving and bore his affliction with patience. I conducted the funeral service at Rose Bud last Sunday in the presence of a large congregation of neighbors and friends. May God's richest blessings be upon the family. R. C. LOVE.

DOUBLE WEDDING.

Two Popular Young Couples Wedded --Bennett-Haynes, Haynes-Croft Nuptials.

An event of more than usual interest was solemnized at the Methodist church in this city Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The principal actors in this delightful drama of a double wedding were, Mr. Wilbur Haynes and Miss Willie Croft, Mr. Trice Bennett and Miss Mildred Haynes.

The Clergyman officiating was J. B. Adams, pastor of the Methodist church who was ably assisted by musicians, ushers, bridesmaids, best men and others whose hearts beat with sympathy and love for the principals in this beautiful affair.

For the benefit of the RECORD-Press readers who live out of town we will say that Mr. Wilbur V. and Miss Mildred Haynes are the son and daughter of Mr. Harry and Mrs. Lizzie Haynes who have long been resident of Marion. Mr. Haynes was Circuit Clerk here for twenty-four years and is at present connected with the Kentucky Fluor Spar Company.

Mr. Trice Bennett is the son of Mr. A. J. Bennett and Miss Willie Croft is a daughter of Mrs. M. E. Croft widow of Mr. George Croft who was a very prominent farmer in this county.

For this occasion the Methodist Church was very appropriately decorated with roses, sweet peas and ferns; the windows darkened and the electric lights turned on.

Promptly on the stroke of two Mrs. Fannie Walker began singing "Oh Promise Me". As the last note died away Mrs. Ollie Tucker began playing the wedding march from Lohengrin and the bridal party were discovered walking up the aisles. Mr. Bruce Babb led the way up the center aisle closely followed by Mr. John Sedberry. These were the ushers.

Following them were Miss Jesse Croft and Gustava Haynes bridesmaids.

Next in order came the maids of honor Misses Ina Price and Miss Allie May Yates after which came the brides Misses Mildred Haynes and Willie Croft, opposite these in the right side aisle was Mr. Trice Bennett with Mr. Chastain Haynes as best man and in the left aisle Mr. Wilbur Haynes with Wilson Adams as best man.

The scene was very impressive, not a sound was heard except Wagner's beautiful music.

The parties all met at the altar. The ceremony was longer than usual on account of the double affair; at the conclusion of which the march down the aisle began to the strain of Mendelssohn's wedding march. This time the brides and grooms walked together while the best men joined the maids of honor and the ushers the bridesmaids.

It has been said that nothing touches the human heart so like a wedding. It was certainly true of this. With feelings mingled with emotion, little understood, the vast crowd watched a very fascinating ceremony.

The costumes of this occasion were all strikingly handsome. Miss Willie Croft was dressed in white satin made princess trimmed with chiffon ruffles and lace. The panel front was trimmed with folds of satin. She wore a white hat of lace decorated with three large white plumes and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her "going away" dress was a coat suit of brown and white striped cloth. The hat matched well and was brown trimmed with brown wings. Miss Mildred Haynes wore a wedding gown of Chiffon cloth over taffeta made semi-princess and trimmed with a band of niched chiffon cloth edged with a frill of narrow venise lace festooned with narrow satin bands over a bodice of embroidered toska net—lace frill Epanletta sleeves and satin ornaments. Her hat was white net and meline trimmed with three large white plumes.

Her "going away" dress was made of Rajah silk, Alice coat Suit over taffeta with hat to match.

The maids of honor were all dressed in white with pink gloves hats and slippers and they carried shower bouquets of pink and white sweet peas.

The bridesmaids wore pink dresses and hats and carried shower bouquets of pink and white sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Trice Bennett will drive to the residence of his sister at Tolu, Ky., and will take a boat from there on their journey to Marietta, Okla.

This is the new home of Mr. Bennett where he is engaged in the law business.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur V. Haynes will take a trip to the lakes of the north and spend their honeymoon at Petoskey Mich., and will be at home in Marion Ky., after July first.

Announcement.

"Mr. and Mrs. Morris Baldauf announce the engagement of their daughter, Cora, and Mr. F. Julius Fohs, of Lexington, Ky.—Henderson Journal."

The above announcement which appeared in the Henderson Journal of Monday, June 8th, will be quite a surprise to Mr. Fohs' friends here, where he is well known. His people all live here and he has spent most of his time here and in this vicinity in mining and geological work for several years. For the past year he has been engaged in "Kentucky State Geological survey" with headquarters at Lexington.

Lola School Closed.

The Lola select school, under the control of M. C. Wright, closed May 23rd, 1908 and we as the board of directors feel that we should say a few words in behalf of the school.

There were eight common school diplomas 7 first 5 second and 2 third class certificate made from this school. We unhesitatingly say that Prof. Wright is second to no man we have ever seen in the school room.

He is at home here and puts forth an unceasing effort from the first to the last day making each day better if possible than the day before. We are sure there has not been a day that any one could point to and say the work was less than it should have been. There was about this school something which we never saw in a school, during the three months there was not a fault found to our knowledge nor was there a jar among the pupils in anyway. About 25 boarding students nearly all preparing to teach attended besides several grown students from their homes in the country. But when we take in to consideration who were in attendance and who it was at the helm we can readily see and understand why every thing went off so well. First we had a leader unexcelled. Second we had the best lot of young men and young ladies here we ever saw any where and they left the people of Lola loving the last one of them.

The board of directors are all married men but if they will not forget the noble qualities of the fine young ladies and speak a good word to the right kind of boys and in behalf of the young men we recommend we recommend them as gentlemen of noble aspiration, high minded and will make a fine lot of husbands some day.

May Gods richest blessings be their's thru life and while we feel sure these young people will never again all meet in the school room, we pray that not one of them may be missing around the 'Throne' and when our dear old professor looks over the assembled saints he may say I'm so happy to see that not one of the boys and girls who were so good and kind to me at Lola in 1908.

If one feels dull and spiritless, in the spring or early summer, they call it "Spring Fever," but there is no fever—usually. It is the after effect of our winter habits. The nerves are mostly at fault. Tired, worn-out nerves leave us languid, lifeless and without spirit or ambition. A few doses of Dr. Shoop's Restorative will absolutely and quickly change all of these depressing symptoms. The restorative of course won't bring you back to full health in a day or two, but it will do enough in 48 hours to satisfy you that the remedy is reaching that "tired spot." Druggist everywhere are advising its use as a prompt general tonic. It gives more vim and more spirit to the spoonfull than any other known nerve or constitutional tonic. It sharpens a failing appetite, aids digestion, frees sluggish livers and kidneys, and brings new life, strength and ambition. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by Jas H. Orme.

Heroic and Civic Patriotism.

In trying to express our thoughts on civic patriotism, we can only reflect our minds to the history of the past. "Some writers have said, the past has taught its lesson, the present has its duty, and the future its hope,"—as we can speak the truth of the men that has past, of those who have lifted up the civilization of mankind, we are to call the name of such heroic men as: George Washington Jefferson, Webster, Clay and Lincoln, men who has raised the sword of "freedom," and signed the Declaration of rights, those who taught the bills of honor and credit such men do not and cannot die.

If we the people become indifferent, you may be sure the public officer, however strong and true and well meaning, will be inadequate for the task.

"Lincoln said, as he journeyed to Washington in 1861, in response to the address by Gov. Morton, of Indiana, at the city of Indianapolis:"

In all the trying places in which I may be placed, and doubtless I will be placed many such, my reliance will be upon you, the people of the United States, and I wish to remember now and forever that it is your business, not mine alone. "No truth was ever more manifest or more significant, than now, than that uttered by Mr. Lincoln. He today the one whose achievements have heightened human aspiration and broadened the field of opportunity to the cares of men. While the party with which we stand, and for which he stood, can justly claim him, and without dispute can boast the distinction of being the first to honor and trust him, his fame has leaped the bounds of party and country and now belongs to mankind and the ages.

As Horace Greely once said: "I doubt whether man, woman, or child white, black, bond or free ever accosted or reached forth a hand to Abraham Lincoln and detected in his countenance or manner of superiority or betrayed of disdain. Bancroft the historian, alluding to this characteristic, which was never so conspicuously manifested as during the darker hours of the war, beautifully illustrated it in these memorable words: As a child, in a dark night, on a rugged way, catches hold of the hand of its father for guidance and support. Lincoln clung fast to the hand of the people and moved calmly thru the gloom.

Those whose services and sacrifice preserved unimpaired the liberties we enjoy, for ourselves and prosperity, piety and "Patriotism" have always been closely allied, people of age can recollect the fervent words and recall with fond affection the matchless voice of dear old Bishop Simpson who said in 1861: "Nail the flag just below the cross! that is high enough—Christ and Country, nothing can come between nor long prevail against them.

The life of heroism is not confined to any age are people nor are they limited to any particular, but for all the people living. Men of heroic we have them today, if some one was called to name the most noted and "greatest men" of today we would be impressed to mention the names of, Theodore Roosevelt, W. J. Bryan, William H. Taft and Charles Warren Fairbanks.

"In parts, if patriotism had its way there would be but one political party and but one electoral ticket in any State of the Union, because political duty would enforce it. In many respects the years 1898 and 1899 have been the great years of the Republic.

There is not under any sun or any clime any man or government that cares to insult the flag of the United States, not one. We are a greater and a broader people on account of these achievements. "Uncle Sam" has been made a wide known citizen of the world.—Edward D. Stone.

Some Marion People Profit by neighbors' Experience.

It's a wise man who profits by the experience of his friends and neighbors. Here is a chance to do it, and every man, woman or child in Marion who knows the misery of a bad back, the nervousness and restlessness caused by kidney complaint or the annoyance of urinary disorders, will show uncommon wisdom to profit by this citizen's advice.

G. W. L. Nesbitt, living on Depot St., Marion, Ky., says: "Kidney disease had reduced me to a chronic invalid. I suffered so severely from this complaint that I was unable to get out of bed and no one can describe the suffering I endured. The kidney secretions were thick, filled with a sediment and my limbs were badly swollen. The doctor said I had dropsy and held out little hope of my recovery. I could not raise my arms above my head, in fact there was an almost complete paralysis of the right side. I had no hopes of ever getting better when a relative advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and a box was procured for me at Haynes & Taylor's drug store. I improved from the first and continued taking this remedy until all symptoms from which I had been a victim disappeared. In three months I was a well man and was back at work as usual. That Doan's Kidney Pills is the best kidney remedy in the world I am thoroughly convinced.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF AGONY

Will You Continue to Suffer From Catarrh in the Face of This Testimony?

"I suffered for fifteen years with catarrhal troubles so bad that I had to leave the sea. I could not lie down at night to sleep, on account of the constant catarrhal dropping. I went to two different hospitals for treatment, but without any lasting benefit. I was constantly raising yellow and green phlegm, and the trouble was so unbearable and nauseating that I was ashamed to go out in company. I have only used two bottles of Hyomei, and have been cured by the remedy. It has made full and complete recovery."

Capt. Willneff.

Hyomei is a dry, healing, antiseptic air, extracted from the Eucalyptus groves of Australia. It is a pleasure to use Hyomei, because you do not take it into the stomach; you simply breathe in this germ-killing air, and relief is immediate, and complete recovery comes in a few days. Hyomei outfit, including an inhaler that that will last a lifetime, costs $1.00. If it does not cure your catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, coughs or cold, Haynes & Taylor will give you your money back.

MAKE IT YOURSELF

Tell Our Readers How to Mix Rheumatism Cure.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable, yet simple and harmless, prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggist here will mix the prescription for our readers, if asked to.

ECONOMIC CREED

How the Great Staples, Cotton and Tobacco, Are Absorbed For the Benefit of the Trusts.

WORSE THAN AFRICAN SLAVERY

The Tobacco Situation Discussed by a Mississippian—Compares the Tobacco Controversy With the Struggle of Cotton With Capital—Kindness and the Club.

Lexington, Ky., April 22, 1908.

My Dear —: The tobacco situation is the absorbing issue in our state and ought to have been fought to a finish long ago. A Mississippian by birth and until within recent years a resident of that state, I know something of cotton economics and nothing at all of tobacco, save what comes through the pipe and the press.

The struggle of Capital versus Cotton has been on in the Gulf states ever since the cotton-gin was invented, and capital now holds cotton down to nine and ten cents—the great staple which requires ten cents a pound and thirteen months in the year to grow and harvest. For several years after the war cotton was taxed in the hands of the "suppliants" planter three cents a pound by a reconstruction congress—an outrage which expired by limitation or repeal.

Think of the New England spinner paying ten cents a pound for raw cotton and weaving it into thread, realizing 8000 per cent on his manufactured product! Ten cents worth of raw cotton makes 600 spools of thread, for which the consumer pays 5 or 6 cents per spool—total $30 to $36; that ought to satisfy the limit of economic greed; but it does not.

The tobacco grower is equally a victim. The grower is not allowed to sell a single twist of his own product. It must be sold in bulk so that the trust may get it all. The grower still toils, year in and year out, under a system worse than African slavery. The ante-bellum slave and his wife and children were well clad, supplied with ample food, a comfortable cottage, medical care when sick, and a half day off every Saturday—with no thought of tomorrow, and he came to the end of every season happy and out of debt.

It is now published that the American Tobacco company is about to yield to its white slaves some of the rights of freedom. It is difficult to say to whom credit may be given for this consummation so long and so devoutly wished for. Nobody can endorse the acts of masked men who kill or whip old men and frighten women and children. Some years ago, when farther South, I read of Kentuckians riding down the toll-gates; the people now have free and better turnpikes, I understand. I do not know to whom the credit is due.

I recently saw a very pertinent and suggestive cartoon: A Dutchman seated by the wayside with his trained dog; enter member Humane Society. Member Humane Society: "Ah, I see; you educated your dog all by love and kindness, did you not?" "Yah," replied the Dutchman, revealing a piece of sharp timber, "loof unt kindness, unt der clobber."

Bayonets legislate during war, but I deny that they think any more than some other brainless law-makers. If the "club" can help a little in times of peace—May the Lord overrule all error in the interests of ultimate good.

Very truly yours for
A Fair Distribution of Profits.

ON POOLING TOBACCO

(By request.)

(Letter from Jefferson County, Indiana. This clipping is sent with request that it be published, but the name of the paper in which it first appeared is not given.)

"Once to every man and nation
Comes the moment to decide
In the strife 'twixt truth and falsehood,
For the good or evil side.

"Then it is the wise man chooses,
While the coward stands aside,
Waiting in his abject spite
'Till his Lord is crucified."

It seems that the time has come in our life (if indeed it has not already passed) when we, the tobacco growers of southern Indiana, should decide to take our stand with our brethren of Kentucky in their struggle with the tobacco trust. Let us no longer let our cowardice, or rather our love of present gain, cause us to stand idly by watching the struggle or speedily assisting the speedy end of everything is lost. There is no one but what admits that the result of this "Tobacco War" means much to us all, but there are very few who even pretend to believe that the American Tobacco company is a friend of the grower. We ought to know they are only using us as weapons to force the Kentucky growers back under their control, and we have never yet heard anyone say they thought the present prices of tobacco would be maintained for over one season after they had done so. They will probably make us "pay the cost of the war." But a few of the farmers here seem to be on "easy street" no matter what happens. They say, "We will only raise tobacco while we get good prices, and then we'll quit." These men profess to be good Christians, but they probably have never given very serious study to the scriptural lesson of the good Samaritan or thought as to how they should treat their neighbor when he had "fallen among thieves." Someone has compared us to the Tories who fed and sheltered the British soldiers during the Revolution, but it seems that is not a very good comparison, for they really sympathized with England and felt friendly to her soldiers, while we have no such motives in our help of the Tobacco Trust.

While our co-operation has never been very actively sought, perhaps through lack of encouragement, we believe without it the Society of Equity will fail of its object, and we also believe we should either raise no tobacco this year or else pool what we do raise and then stand to our pledges. It is the only fair thing we can do and the only thing we can do to partly compensate our neighbors for the mean advantage we have taken of them for the last two years. And doing this involves but little sacrifice on our part; most of us own our farms and can very well do without a tobacco crop for one year, anyway. In our opinion anything else is not only unneighborly, but un-Christian, and we believe it would be the means of bringing this so-called "tobacco war" to a successful close, with the success on the side of the farmer, within the year; for we think there is no corporation that could stand any length of time against the united strength of the farmers. Verily,

"The fault is not in our stars, but in ourselves if we are underlings."

UNCLE HENRY.

A VOICE FROM GEORGIA

For the Consideration of Independent Tobacco Growers.

The following poem written by Sidney Lanier in 1870 shows that some of the questions that engage farmers now were old even in that day; and there are still Joneses who have their "private argument." When so many are railing against trusts as the cause of all their ills and against John D. Rockefeller as the incarnation of the trust spirit, it is interesting to know that the General Education Board in co-operation with the Southern Education Board, has for years been trying through farmers' institutes and other agencies to induce the Southern farmer to diversify his crops and to use better agricultural methods. The funds for this educational campaign for the benefit of Southern farmers have largely been supplied by Mr. Rockefeller. If farmers would use the practical common sense that Mr. Rockefeller is willing to pay for having commended to them, they would be less easy picking for trusts and corporations. They would at least make the game more interesting for the corporations. "Jones's" short-sighted grasping has kept the cotton planter in the clutches of the cotton manufacturer, as the independent tobacco planter threatens to keep the tobacco growers in the clutches of the Tobacco Trust.

Jones's Private Argument.

That air same Jones, which lived in Jones.

He had this pint about him:
He'd swear with a hundred sighs and groans

That farmers must stop gittin' loans,
And git along without 'em.

That bankers, warehousemen and sich
Was fatt'nin on the planter,
And Tennessee was rotten-rich
A-raisin' meat and corn, all which Draw'd money to Atlanta.

And the only thing (says Jones) to do
Is, t'at no heat that's boughten,
But tear up every foot o' b
And plant all corn and swear for true
To quit a-raisin' cotton.

Thus spouted Jones (whar folks could hear,

At court and other gatharin's),
And thus kep' spoutin' many a year,
Proclaimin' loudly far and near
Sich addlesticks and blatherin's.

But, one all-fired sweatin' day,
It happened I was hoein'
My lower corn-field, which it lay
Longside the road that runs my way,
Whar I can see what's goin'.

And after 12 o'clock had come
I felt a kinder faggin',
And laid myself un'neath a plum
To let my dinner settle sum,
When 'long comes Jones's waggin.

And Jones was settin' in it, so,
A-readin' o' a paper.
His mules was goin' powerful slow,
For he had tied the lines onto
The staple of the scraper.

The mules they stopped about a rod
From me, and went to feedin'
Longside the road, upon the sod,
But Jones (which he had tuck a tod)
Not knowin' kep' a readin'.

And presently says he, "Hit's true;
That Clisby's head is level.
There's one thing farmers all must do,
To keep themselves from goin' tow
Bankruptcy and the devil!"

"More corn! More corn! Must plant less ground,
And mustn't eat what's boughten.
Next year they'll do it—reasonin's sound;
(And cotton will fetch 'bout a dollar a pound).

Therefore, I'll plant all cotton!"

The Funny Things One Sees

Smiling Round the World

By
MARSHALL P. WILDER

(Copyright, by Joseph H. Bowles.)

While at the Imperial Hotel, Tokio, we were permitted to witness a portion of a Japanese wedding, that is, the feast and reception. Like our Hebrew friends in America, the Japs now hire the parlors of a hotel, chiefly because their little doll houses are so small. It was very funny; the women all like embarrassed images, done up in their best kimonos and not saying a word, while the men, in stiff, badly-fitting European "store clothes," stood around in little groups and talked, looking like animated tailors' dummies.

One young man picked out a native air on the piano with one finger, while the children were the only ones who were at all happy, or didn't look as if they wished they hadn't come.

Says Mrs. Peace to Miss Sharp, a caller: "My husband and I never dispute before the children. When a quarrel seems imminent, we always send them out."

Miss Sharp: "Ah, I've often wondered why they're so much in the street!"

Hateful thing, wasn't she?

Japanese trains are small and slow, and seem not to think it necessary ever to be on time. Smoking is allowed in every class, even in the sleeping cars.

The bedding is clean and sufficient, but there are no springs in the beds, absolutely no privacy, and one tiny window for the whole compartment, public opinion being usually divided as to whether it shall be opened or closed.

This reminds me of a story my friend, Col. Cody ("Buffalo Bill") used to tell. He said that once upon a time an Englishman who had never been in the west before was his guest. They were riding through a Rock Mountain canyon one day, when suddenly a tremendous gust of wind came swooping down upon them, and actually carried the Englishman clear off the wagon seat. After he had been picked up, he combed the sand and gravel out of his whiskers and said:

"I say! I think you overdo ventilation in this bloomin' country!"

My berth was over the wheels, and this, together with a roadbed of which a coal railroad in Pennsylvania would be ashamed, produced such jolts and bumps that my brain felt as though it had been through an egg-beater. The compartment was full, one occupant being a German army officer, who, beside being in full uniform, even to enormous fur-lined overcoat, sword and spurs, brought in to choke the little available space a satchel, a large flat wicker hamper and a packing box. He also had a very industrious and far-reaching snore with him.

The third occupant being a traveling Catholic priest and, like the soldier, dier, a man of huge proportions, I was rather interested to know which of these was to occupy the berth over me, for it seemed a flimsy sort of affair, and I took particular pains to see that it was well propped up.

I was rather relieved to find it was to be the soldier, for I consoled myself with the old adage that the pen is mightier than the sword and decided it would be a worse calamity to have the church down on me than the army. Even if sleep with all these considerations had been possible, the frequent stops would have completely put it to flight, for the moment a train arrives at a station, no matter what the time of night, the sellers of lunch boxes, hot milk, tea or tobacco begin to cry their wares, in tones that are like the wailings of lost souls, and for penetration and volume unequalled by anything in my experience.

The sellers of tea at the stations will give you a small teapot filled with hot tea, and a tiny cup, all for three sen, or a cent and a half in American money.

At the railroad stations during the war with Russia one was sure to see parties of wounded soldiers returning from the front; or those who were departing for the seat of war. These latter were always attended by a crowd of men and women, who waved as the train moved away. This shout is really more of a screech than a good, round cheer, such as would be heard in America, for it seems as if there is some physical reason why the Japanese people cannot raise their voices without producing the most blood-curdling sounds. The street cries are all strident and unpleasant; the commands of officers to their men, tinny and rasping-like, while Japanese singing, to a foreigner, is conducive to nervous prostration.

I have spoken somewhat of the external attitude of these people. Of their interior attitude of heart and mind much more might be said, especially in regard to their late war with Russia, which was going on at the time of my visit. This was something they would not talk about. Any mention of the subject was met with an adroit change of the conversation into other channels; but intense patriotism, the most supreme confidence in their ultimate success reigned in every heart. Examples of the most heroic self-sacrifice were not lacking. A Japanese mother had given her three sons to the war. The first was reported slain. She smiled and said, "It is well. I am happy." The second lay dead upon the field. She smiled again, and said, "I am still happy." The third gave up his life, and they said to her: "At last you weep!" "Yes!" she said, "but it is because I have no more sons to give to my beloved country!"

Now, this is all very beautiful, but as my mission in life is laughter instead of tears, I want to say that it reminds me of a little story of our country and our war—the war of the great rebellion. When, in answer to the call for troops, the blood of our noble volunteers had been poured out upon southern fields for three long years, there arose a class of men called "bounty jumpers" who, acting as substitutes for drafted men and taking a large sum of money for the job, sometimes "jumped the bounty" and disappeared instead of going to the front to serve Uncle Sam. These men were subjected to a medical examination which, in the hands of unscrupulous physicians (who received a large fee if the man "passed"), was not always as rigorous as it should be. A doctor who was seen coming out of the examining room with a very sour face was greeted by a friend with a "Hello, Doc! What's the matter? Didn't you pass your man?"

"Pass nothin'!"

"Why, he looked all right!"

"All right! Why he was sound as a nut; but the colonel of the regiment suggested we stand him up on a high table and make him jump to the floor, and, by Jove! if his confounded glass eye didn't fall out and spoil the whole business!"

The working class still cling to the ancient costume and methods. Today ladders are made of bamboo, the rungs lashed fast with rope, as they have been made for generations. The streets are watered with little carts having a row of holes at the back, and pulled by men, who fill them slowly and laboriously one bucket at a time, while the sidewalks are watered by two perforated buckets, suspended from a bamboo pole laid across the shoulders of a man, who trots in and out between the people, turning and twisting until the walk is thoroughly sprinkled.

Everything seems to be done the hardest way, and those who work, work very hard. The few men who have a horse dray never sit and drive, even when the dray is empty, but always walk ahead, dragging the patient brute along. Loads are more frequently carried on hand-carts, pulled by men, women or boys. In going up a hill three or four men will pull on push, intoning a sort of droning song as they work.

In the country districts life in its most primitive and ancient aspects may be seen. In the rice fields men and women work side by side, their ankles bleeding from contact with the stubble, wielding tools of a pattern as old as the cultivation of the grain.

The evolution of the new Japan from the chrysalis of the old is an interesting study just now. All signs point toward the springing up of a new country, full-fledged, ready to spread its bright wings and fly away from the old, that has wrapped it close for so many centuries; but the time is not yet.

Fred A. Casner, of Shady Grove, was here Wednesday, although a citizen of Crittenden, he is quite enthusiastic over the Webster county fair which is to be held near his home this year at Providence. Fred always takes the lead in all movements where enterprise is needed.

The Sunday School Institute at the Presbyterian church U. S. A. last Monday afternoon was a very enjoyable meeting. The normal work was exceedingly interesting for those who attended. The night session at 8 o'clock p. m. was not held as the rain and electrical storm prevented attendance.

Praise For Mr. John C. Latham's Philanthropy.

Mr. John C. Latham, the noted philanthropist, whose native city is Hopkinsville, Ky., has returned good for evil, as it were, in that he has donated the beautiful and valuable building lot on which his tobacco barn stood when the night riders destroyed it, to the Methodist on which to erect a new church. It takes a good-hearted man to do a thing like that.—Hartford Herald.

People Against Telephone Company. Who Will Win?

The fight of the people against what they believe to be an unjust raise in the rates charged on telephones, is assuming a more definite shape as the fight progresses. Some days ago the grocerymen of Marion, signed a petition to the Central Home Telephone Co., requesting them to let the old rates of $2.00 for business houses stand, and notifying the company, that in the event it could not grant the request, to take out their respective phones not later than June 10th, 1908. The writer is informed that to this request the company has refused to concede; he also has reliable information that a petition signed by more than 100 citizens has been turned over to the company in which the company is notified to remove their respective phones, this notice was given prior to June 1st, and the company instructed to take out the phones when the increase in rates went into effect. Many who signed the petition and others who gave individual notices to take out their phones report that the company has failed to remove their phones. It is understood that on Wednesday night, June 10th, when the groceries close, that each one will cut out his phone and in this way all groceries will discontinue the service at once and the same time. This is the only effective way to wage the fight of the people against this corporation, and if the people who have notified the company to move their phones will force them to take them out at once, and should they fail each person cut out his individual phone, the service will be of no value to the few who are inclined to keep the phones at the increased price and within a few days the fight of the people will be won. This company has been given the most liberal treatment by the people of Marion and it is now a question whether or not the people will stand as one man and win this fight, or whether they will submit to this raise in price, likely at any future day to be followed by another raise.

The company tells us that we can keep our phones at the old rate by going on a party line. That means a line that four residences are on; and they tell us that the service will be perfectly satisfactory. How is this? when only a few months ago they told the people of Marion that were using a party line, connecting a man's residence and store, or his residence and office on the same line, that they could not give satisfactory service on party lines, and for this reason cut out all party lines in Marion, thereby raising the price of phones to the merchant who had his store and residence on the same line. If they could not give you good service then as they claimed, with your residence and business house on the same line, how can they now hope to give good service with four families on the same line? Do you not believe that it is another effort to raise prices, just as it was when they wanted to cut out party line service. Is it not inconsistent? These are things for the people to think about, for they show the inclination of the Central Home Telephone Company to raise rates when ever the people will submit to it. Think, act, act right and the fight will be won by the people, whose will is always supreme in matters of this kind.

Heart Strength

Heart strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is actually directed to these weak and ailing nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it cures real, genuine heart pain.

If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

THE PEOPLE VERSUS THE TOBACCO TRUST

Extracts From an Article by Congressman A. O. Stanley.

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

The trust has been enabled to purchase competing concerns, often at its own figures, by two methods. First, shutting its rivals out of the market by preventing jobbers and retailers from handling other than trust-made goods, and, second, by inordinately increasing the cost of production on the part of its competitors by a secret control of articles of prime necessity in the manufacture of the finished product, such as boxes, licorice, etc. The tobacco trust, in selling to jobbers, has made it a condition precedent that these persons who handle their goods shall not offer for sale the product of any independent dealer. In this way it has both determined to crush all present competition and to prevent forever the introduction of any new brands.

Exposed in Court.

The subservience of the jobber has been secured in two ways: First, by offering special inducements and secret rebates to those dealers who handle trust goods exclusively; second, by peremptorily forbidding the jobber to offer for sale tobacco of any kind not manufactured or controlled by the combine. In Massachusetts 200 independent jobbers and retailers were put out of business by this method in ninety days. The American Tobacco company was then brought to justice long delayed in the case of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts vs. A. Strauss, tried and convicted for this infamous system of boycotting. In New York this same system is revealed in the noted case of A. Locker vs. the American Tobacco company. Another favorite method of covertly destroying the property of a competitor is by imitating some popular brand of tobacco by putting up a package of trust-made goods almost similar in appearance, in size, color, name and trademark, and flooding the territory in which the rival company has established a demand for its product. This spurious package is often sold below cost, and merchants handling it are given special premiums, purchasers are tempted with tags and coupons.

The fight between a brand of tobacco known as "Central Union," manufactured by Hugh Campbell of Virginia, and an imitation known as "Union Leader," finally ended in the courts. In this case Mr. Campbell destroyed this nefarious method of destroying the property of an independent dealer marked for slaughter in the secret councils of the trust.

This combine has not only destroyed the business of its competitors or forced them to surrender plants, trademarks, brands and good will by the lawless methods I have just described, but it has attempted to force honest men to become their subservient tools, to lie and to masquerade like bondsmen in obedience to the designs of their master. And more: the president of the American and Continental companies stooped to give his personal supervision to this infamous business.

Now, these stool-pigeons are created by this trust for the accomplishment of three purposes: First, to deceive the producer and consumer of tobacco who desires to sell to or purchase from an independent dealer; second, for deceiving the federal government; third, for throttling honest, patriotic and wholesome legislation for the relief of the tobacco growers in this country.

Since the introduction of the resolution charging these offenses, the trust has been indicted in New York, and that indictment, containing over 132 pages of printed matter, contains many of the most serious charges which I made in the House of Representatives. I supported the charges by masses of documentary evidence, and those who are now following the trial of this celebrated case have seen the proof of the guilt of the trust of all these serious offenses.

After the American Tobacco company had secured either the assimilation or the destruction of the manufacturers of tobacco and of the jobbers and retailers, they had absolute control of the tobacco from the time it left the hands of the farmer until it reached the consumer. The greed of this trust is absolutely insatiable, and it next determined to control the price of this product and to buy at the smallest cost at which the farmer could be forced to produce it.

Tobacco as a rule is raised by tenants, who are poor men whose lives have been spent in this business, and it seemed to be the opinion of the trust that no matter how unprofitable it might make the production of this plant that these uncomplaining tillers of the soil would still continue to raise it. In their effort to destroy the value of leaf tobacco and to control its price and production, the trust at first made not the slightest attempt to conceal its design. It is amazing to contemplate the absolute disregard both of the law and the wrath of the people which this trust displayed.

An agreement was reached between the American Tobacco company, the Imperial Tobacco company, and the Liggett, that is, the purchasers for the European manufacturers, by which there was to be no longer even the semblance of competition, and to simplify matters, it was agreed that the brokers and tobacco dealers who had formerly purchased this tobacco from the farmers and sold it to the manufacturers should all be put out of business. These men lost their occupation in a day, and thousands of tobacco growers who had spent their life in a study of the market and in obtaining skill in judging and handling tobacco both for domestic and foreign market were put out of business.

It was proposed to buy this tobacco directly from the farmer, and in order that no two men should ever bid upon the same tobacco plant, it was agreed that this territory, comprising western Kentucky and northern Tennessee, known as the "Black Patch," should be divided into districts, set off by metes and bounds; one trust agent was to go into a well-defined district, which he was not to leave, and no other trust agent was permitted to enter the territory allotted to him. He was told to purchase all the tobacco grown in that territory. From the common stock secured by these buyers the Italian government, the French government, the Imperial Tobacco company and the American Tobacco company each received its allotted share under the terms of the previous agreement.

The effect of this bold plot upon the area which had been doomed to destruction by the trust was magical. It was as far-reaching and as pathetic as the deceleration of war. This "Black Patch," as it is called, raises a very fine quality of export tobacco. This in the memory of living men had never sold for less than 5 or 6 cents. As a result of this decree of the trust the price of tobacco dropped instantly from 6 or 7 cents to 3 cents. Mr. E. M. Flack of Hopkinsville, probably the best informed broker in this section, testified before the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives in 1904, that in the territory between Hopkinsville and Clarksville he could purchase all the tobacco raised that year at 3 cents all round.

Persons who have not carefully investigated this question can have not the faintest idea of what it meant to the tenantry of that fertile region. One man, after a year of the hardest character of toil, cannot raise over three acres of tobacco, or more than 1,000 pounds to the acre. This tobacco is practically all raised on shares; one-half of it is the property of the landowner. Now, the share of the tobacco tenant would be 1,500 pounds. At 3 cents a pound the tobacco tenant would receive $45 for a year's work.

At the time the tobacco raisers of western Kentucky organized for their preservation, it was impossible for a farm hand engaged in raising tobacco, no matter how industrious or capable, to make over 20 cents a day. To save themselves from certain ruin their wives and daughters were taken from the fireside, the children were brought home from school and men and women, old age and helpless childhood, half fed and clad in rags, were seen everywhere in the fields.

Finding every market except the American Tobacco company closed against them, the farmers attempted to create one. This they could not do on account of a provision of the revenue laws which makes tobacco sold in less quantities than a hoghead subject to the same provision as manufactured tobacco, and in the hands of all persons except the purchasers of it subject to a revenue tax of 6 cents a pound. Petition after petition was sent to congresses for a repeal of this tax, and on Jan. 28, 1904, the farmers of Kentucky and Tennessee met at Guthrie, Ky., and passed the following resolutions, which graphically describe the condition of their country and contained an eloquent appeal for relief at the hands of the federal government:

"We, the tobacco growers of Kentucky and Tennessee, in convention assembled at Guthrie, this 28th day of January, 1904, do hereby petition and most respectfully represent: That in the midst of the vaunted prosperity said to be deluging the other parts of our blessed country, the tobacco raising sections are in the very throes of calamity, the people hard up, farm laborers in want, nobody prospering, everything languishing.

"That the effect of the revenue laws relating to tobacco has been to bring to the verge of ruin one of the richest countries God has made, destructively damaging to landholders and farmers, distressingly impoverishing to tenants and laborers, by placing in the power of corporations to fix the price and to combine to control.

"That under the prevailing system the grower can only sell a small quantity in the hand; that all the people about him to whom he might sell are growers like himself, or nearly all, and therefore he has no one to whom he might sell; that the small quantity he might sell would not justify him going into non-tobacco regions and find a customer; that, therefore, he has no one else to sell his crop to except the combined agents; that there is no longer competition in the buying, the leading tobacco markets of the world have been abandoned by the army of buyers and agents from abroad, from all the principal countries of Europe who sat daily around the tobacco board and bid against each other; that the auction rooms are dismantled and abandoned, and where activity and prosperity once reigned is now desolation and stagnation; that a few buyers for corporations all in combination, alone remain to fix the price and take as much or as little as they wish; that there is no one else to whom they may sell—no exemption, no rivalry—and the result is that prices rise rarely above the starvation point.

"Therefore, we earnestly petition and pray the Congress of the United States to so amend the revenue law as to permit any person (farmer, merchant or dealer) to sell leaf tobacco in the hand, leaf tobacco stemmed and twisted, not mixed with any foreign ingredient or flavoring, to the consumer or to the trade in any quantity free of any tax whatever.

"F. G. EWING, Chairman."

Killed in Senate.

Three successive congresses, without a dissenting vote, have passed a bill taking the tax off of leaf tobacco, and as many times the trust, by its secret and nefarious machinations, has pigeon-holed and throttled that same measure in the Senate. Unable to secure relief from the federal government and having experienced the remorseless rapacity of the trust, they determined, as a last resort, to protect themselves.

The farmers of the "Black Patch" formed themselves into farmers' protective associations. In these associations there are today in the neighborhood of 50,000 men. Their tobacco is turned over to the association, with the written authority to hold it until a fair price can be obtained. This the tobacco trust for a long time refused to purchase, until driven by necessity to do so.

For nearly two years not a leaf of it was sold. The planter and landlord waited upon his tenant; the banker and merchant refused to sue the landlord, and this whole area displayed a patience and patriotism, a fortitude and unanimity of action and purpose hitherto unknown in the history of farmers' organizations.

The farmers attempted to secure money in New York; the trust prevented it. Bankers and men of property advanced the last they could obtain to their more needy brethren. The trust, refusing to buy this tobacco from these organizations, secretly offered excessive prices as an inducement to the more needy to break their solemn pledge and their contracts.

In order to prevent this sort of thing, the planters first earnestly pleaded with the buyers not to purchase pledged tobacco. This was unheeded. Nevertheless, the association succeeded. It has forced the trust to buy 200,000,000 pounds of tobacco in no way superior in quality to tobacco which it confiscated in 1903, at an advance of not less than 10 cents a pound.

In some instances and in some localities individuals have become impatient, and at times have followed the example of the American Tobacco company in a disregard of the law. The property of the trust in several towns has been destroyed, and individuals in the employ of the trust who made themselves especially obnoxious, have suffered violence. These occurrences have been severely reprimanded by the officers of the association, and it is devoutly hoped by the good citizens everywhere that all acts of violence, whether to persons or to property, may be prevented.

I do not mean to be understood as saying that any of the things which the trust has done justifies their victims in a resort to violence. It is, nevertheless, a fact that the rapacity and lawlessness of the trust has occasioned these outbreaks, and has brought into existence the much-dreaded and much-discussed Night Rider.

HEROISM OF FARMERS

Letter From Oklahoma to Member of the Burley Tobacco Society.

Enid, Okla., April 2, 1908.

Dear Sir—I could not refrain from writing to you to express my admiration for the heroism of the Kentucky farmers' associations. It is gratifying to our national pride to find that the old fire of liberty is only smoldering in the breasts of the American people and not dead as some of us had begun to fear. For the sake of our American manhood, stay with them to the end. The destiny of the American nation depends upon the grand old state of Kentucky. Do not allow yourselves to be defeated by spies and traitors. Hurrah for Old Kentucky!

If your people get short on grub, appeal to the farmers of Oklahoma and Kansas. They should send carloads of flour and meat. They also have money. May the God of Justice aid you.

If I were not so busy I would come up just to see such a grand lot of farmers as you must have there. God bless them! Yours for the success of the good cause.

JOHN B. STOUT.

A Resting Place.

(Winchester Democrat.)

Another squad of Governor Wilson's soldiers rode into Winchester Saturday morning. After eating breakfast, they went to bed and slept all day, with neither pickets nor sentinels out. This furnishes an explanation why these soldiers come here without request of the civil authorities, and without reporting to the civil authorities. They simply come here for rest and sleep in a good, safe place. They know this is the headquarters of the Burley Tobacco Growers' association, they know that the members of that association have even a higher regard for law than Governor Wilson has, and they know that they can sleep here without danger of surprise and capture by Night Riders, but with all that soldiers in time of peace are disaffected, and the citizens here prefer that they should stay away.

It is a deplorable fact that the trust has been able to shift the fight against the Burley growers on to the shoulders of the independent growers.—Dover News.

CONDEMNNS ACTION OF SOLDIERS

Grand Jury of Hopkins County Protests Against Troops Going Out Without Civil Officials' Orders.

(Evening Post.)

Madisonville, Ky., May 15.—Before the grand jury was dismissed Saturday afternoon they made a report on the soldiers who were riding over the county last week, and the report is a warm one, which follows:

"To the Honorable Judge of the Hopkins Circuit Court: We, the grand jury of Hopkins county, beg leave to report that we find that on the night of May 10, 1908, Company G, Third Regiment of Kentucky State Guards, stationed at Earlington, in Hopkins county, Kentucky, or a part of said company, under the command of Captain Paul Price, was ordered into active service and under command of Major Albrecht made a trip through a portion of this county. We have been unable to ascertain whether or not these troops were ordered into active service by the proper authorities, but we find that the commanding officer, Major Albrecht, did not report to any civil officer in Hopkins county or any civil officer of any of the towns and cities in said county, and we heartily condemn this violation of the spirit of the law which says 'the military shall be at all times and in all cases in strict subordination to the civil power.'

"The commanding officer, when he took command of the said troops, was within four miles of the sheriff and jailer of this county, and could easily have communicated with either or both of them by telephone, and yet he willfully or ignorantly failed to follow the law and report to either of said officers. We condemn this practice, not only because it violates the constitution and the law, but because we regard it as exceedingly dangerous. For if on the same night Major Albrecht had the troops out on the sheriff with a posse had been out on the same mission, neither knowing of the action of the other, a serious clash might have resulted and much innocent blood been shed. Having the utmost confidence in all the civil officers of the county, we recommend that in the future if the military should be called out in this county that the commanding officer report to the proper civil officer as the law prescribes, and let the military at all times be in strict subordination to the civil authorities, thereby averting all chance of a possible clash between them. We make this report to the court, because we can find in the law no penalty against the peculiar violation complained of herein, and request the court to have this report spread upon the record.

"L. D. Hockersmith, foreman; J. A. Rudy, E. D. Cox, J. H. Brown, W. J. Burton, T. M. Brooks, Natt Scott, W. L. Withington, Moses Harris, W. J. Halley, C. L. Ross, W. R. Webb."

The question of whether or not the governor is going beyond his rightful powers in sending troops into counties where they have not been called for is one which should be investigated and settled. Has the governor a right to transgress or manufacture law in order to enforce law? Is the state under martial law? Is the present state government of Kentucky a military despotism in alliance with the American Tobacco company?

In addition to the main act of lawlessness in sending troops into a county without the request or even consent of the civil officers, the soldiers are getting a long list of lawless deeds on their record. In Christian county they shot and killed a negro woman in her cabin, peacefully engaged in mending garments. In Bracken county one charged along the highway on Sunday morning and by firing a pistol frightened people on their way to church; soldiers turned their horses into a farmer's pasture without his knowledge or consent and the horses killed two fine colts; they stopped and searched a man out driving up his cows in the morning. In Bourbon county they held up and frightened a young man on the highway. In Clarke county, three miles from Winchester, they frightened a man and his wife, aged respectively sixty-five and seventy, and compelled them to put out their lights; they rode on further and shot up the Pilot View schoolhouse door, and further on, frightened a negro tenant family until they fled in their nightclothes to the house of the landlord for protection. No effort has been made to secure a complete list of misdemeanors on the part of soldiers. These instances have come unsolicited and unsought to the attention of the writer.

Some persons discourage investigation of the governor's prerogatives and of the misdeeds of the soldiers, because they say the governor has the pardoning power, and even if found guilty, could pardon not only soldiers, but even himself. However, the fact that the governor may abuse the pardoning power is no excuse for servile submission and neglect of duty on the part of county officers and the courts. Let them do their duty and leave the governor to do or not to do his duty, as he may elect.

While we must wait two years for another legislature, we shall have another then, and if the governor lays himself liable to serious action, two years from now will not be too late to act. It is of the utmost importance to put the question to the test of the courts. Is the governor violating the law or acting without the sanction of law in sending troops into a county without the request or consent of the civil authorities?

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

Copyright, 1908, by Edwin A. Nye.

TO THE BOYS OF FORTY.

A Greek philosopher has pictured man as being born in a well built house and living therein during childhood. As he grows he pulls down the walls, stone by stone, until he stands finally in the undimmed sunlight.

Is it not so?

How many stones have we had to pull down that we might see over? Some of us still have stones in the way. And some of us—the wise old boys—have put all the stones they have pulled down into a great pile and got on top of them for a wider view.

For twenty years at least we have been trying to widen the horizon, to get a comprehensive view of life.

But—

The peril of the larger vision is this: As we see further and know more disillusion comes to rob us of our youthful enthusiasms. Shall we, having a man's head, still keep beneath it the heart of a boy? Will disappointments destroy faith? Will the larger knowledge lower ideals?

It must not be!

At twenty the stones are in the way. The outlook is small. The young man cannot see far, know much or feel deeply. The near, the noisy and the sensual attract him. His ideal of a picture is the stirring battle scene. His ideal of music is the noisy band. He is caught by movement and hilarity.

Having learned the better way at forty, we must still keep our hearts young. Therefore we find our ideal music in the laughter of a child. The pictures we admire are those of peaceful landscapes. The glitter and the book no longer catch our fancy. A book by the fire, a dear face across the table—these are the things that appeal to the chastened enthusiasm of forty.

You see, at two score years a man puts the proper value on the real things of life. He has learned to discriminate. The world has dawned on him. He has pulled down the stones.

Boys of forty and over: We have not lost our boyish visions. No, sir! As the master painted "Amphio" (wider) on the picture of his pupil, so we have pulled down the stones to get a farther look.

Let us therefore stand in the undimmed sunlight and keep sweet!

The Eclipse of The Sun.

On Sunday, June 28, the moon will pass between the earth and the sun causing an eclipse, which will be visible throughout the entire United States and also in, Central America, northern South America and southwestern Europe, and the extreme west coast of Africa. 9 h. 39 m. a. m. The moon's disc will then slowly encroach on that of the sun until its center reaches at 11 h. 8 m. a. m., when seven-tenths of the sun will be covered. After this instant it will begin to move off its center and the eclipse ending at 12 h. 53 m. p. m.

This woman says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved her life. Read her letter.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words. For years I suffered with the worst form of female complaints, continually doctoring and spending lots of money for medicine without help. I wrote you for advice, followed it as directed, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has restored me to perfect health. Had it not been for you I should have been in my grave to-day. I wish every suffering woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

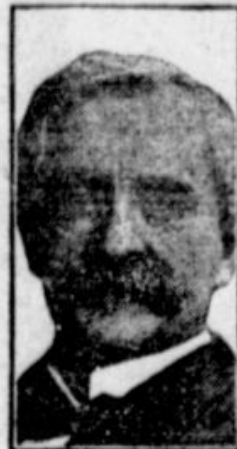

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

ELECTRIC BITTERS THE BEST FOR BILIOUSNESS AND KIDNEYS

Does God Answer Prayer?

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D.,
Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.

God as King hears and answers the petitions of his subjects. Prayerlessness ignores the ruler of the universe by refusing to petition him. The prayerless man has placed himself outside the pale of civilization by denying to the ruler the right to hear the petitions of his subjects. If he admits that there is a God, while at the same time he denies that he answers prayer, he has brought his God down to the position of the petty savage chieftain who lives for his own pleasure without regard to the welfare of his subjects. Prayerlessness is, therefore, a species of barbarism.

Any man as a subject of the King may come before him with petition. If he has a grievance, let him not tell it to others, and thus backbite the King. The King invites him into his presence, and will give audience even to his complaints. "Let him come boldly unto the throne of grace, that he may obtain mercy and find grace to help him in time of need." God is enthroned in grace and invites every subject in need to approach with boldness. And the promise is clear: "My God shall supply all your needs according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." The resources of God's throne are at the disposal of all his needy subjects. With such a king would it not be wrong to refuse to make petition? Would it not be disloyal? Prayerlessness is, indeed, disloyalty to the King of the universe. God as Judge.

God as Judge hears and answers the prayer of a plaintiff. In the parable of the Unjust Judge (Luke 18:1-8) the widow has a grievance against her adversary, and pleads that he shall be punished. Though the judge is unjust, his judicial position compels him to hear her plea, and her importunity constrains him to grant her petition. The argument is that, if an unjust judge is compelled by official position to hear the plea, and constrained by the importunity of the plaintiff to grant it, how much more will a just God respect his judicial position and answer without demanding importunity.

But a just judge cannot forgive a man who has been proved guilty, unless satisfaction to justice can be made. Mercy is inflexible. It may be based upon kindness, but that does not rid it of inflexibility. Then how can a prayer for forgiveness be answered without impeaching the justice of the judge? Only by another's bearing the sinner's guilt.

To say that confession of sin is atonement enough ignores the righteousness of God. Confessing debt does not pay debt; it rather enforces the obligation to pay. But if the debt has been paid by another, it would be a gross injustice to demand a second payment.

God as Father. God as Father hears and answers the prayer of his child. If you confess the fatherhood of God and then deny that he is influenced by the cry of his child, you would degrade him below the level of the beasts of the field and the birds of the air, for they heed the cry of their young in distress and hasten to their relief. So right is it for the Father to hear the prayer of his child that the universal consciousness of mankind gives him no option. He must hear it, or be branded as infamously heartless. Even pagan ethics demands it. For a parent to be insensible to the cry of his child is a sign of insanity or depravity. To deny that God answers prayer, while we believe in his fatherhood, is, therefore, to charge him with insanity or depravity.

Reward of Obedience.

The father has, of course, the right to use his superior wisdom in deciding whether or not the child's request shall be granted. The child has no right to command the father except by his obedience. In nature we can command only by obeying. If we obey the laws of electricity or steam, we may command them and they will do our bidding. But if we refuse to obey their laws, they refuse to obey us. And so when God promises upon certain conditions, and we fulfill the conditions, his promise becomes our command, and we may lovingly insist upon its fulfillment. As a father to give a child what every whim of fancy or selfish desire might prompt him to ask would be to injure the child and make the order of home give place to the anarchy of discordant demands. As a Father, God gives to his child all he asks within the limitations of his superior wisdom.

As a subject petitioning a ruler, as a plaintiff pleading before a judge, as a child crying to a father, every one ought to pray. Not to pray is, therefore, to lead an immoral life in our relation to God and man, in that we are not doing what we ought to do. To pray in the name of Jesus Christ is to draw upon the resources of the King of the universe, to receive pardon from the "Judge of all the earth," and to have the constant care of a loving Father.

THOUGHTS ON BUSINESS

BY

WALDO PONDRAY WARREN

TEACHING EMPLOYES

INSTRUCTIONS to employees may with profit be occasionally repeated. Even those who thoroughly understand them are helped by having their minds refreshed on some of the points, while to the majority the repetition will come with all the force of a new idea. A teacher, referring to a recent experience with her class, remarked: "Education is largely a process of pouring water through a sieve in the hope that some will cling to the meshes."

Sometimes it is found that the second explanation of a process, method, or attitude, accomplishes more vital work in the development of the employee than does the first. The reason for this is that the first explanation has prepared the mind for it, so that when it is explained a second time there is enough of the first thought left to answer to the second—to appreciate it and make it welcome.

The average employee likes to learn more and more about his business; and if instruction be given in the right way it becomes an effective quickener of every phase of purpose and energy.

Many employers and managers need to be reminded of the undeveloped resources of their men and women. It is just as much a part of good business judgment to work the field of individual capacity as it is to work more and more thoroughly the fields of trade.

A Great Meeting.

The General Meeting of the Regular Baptist which has been in anticipation for several months was held with the Pleasant Hill church near Marion, Ky., June 4th to 7th inclusive. There were about fifty delegates present, twenty-three of whom were ministers.

The churches represented in this meeting are located in Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri Mississippi, Indiana, Illinois and Kansas. These churches have heretofore been contending for the same great truths practically as a unit and in order to increase their efficiency for the propagation of these principles this meeting was held to secure a united effort and thorough co-operation of its different bodies.

The meeting met at 10:30 a. m., Thursday June 4th, and after devotional services the temporary organization was effected by electing Elder E. H. Burnam, Richmond, Ky., and Rev. W. W. Mullens, Nashville, Tenn., Clerk. The moderator appointed a committee on credentials. After hearing letters read from several churches the messengers were seated in regular order.

The temporary organization was made permanent and the committee appointed to arrange a program, reported the following subjects for discussion: 1. Articles of faith. 2. Our publications. 3. Church literature. 4. Spread of the gospel. 5. Ministerial supply. 6. The great need of spirituality. 7. The advisability of holding annually a general meeting.

The discussion of all the above subjects was in sweet general toleration and a remarkable spirit of unity prevailed during the entire session. The disposition for self-exaltation seemed to be conspicuously absent. Each esteemed the other better than himself.
