All Explained Now.

Last week the Crittenden RECORD-Press came out at noon instead of "after six o'clock as usual." The foreman, Cleveland Stone got the forms made up and had everything ready a full half day ahead of time. This had never occurred before although the "PRESS" and cular and pony mill and the present localities where necessary, so that varied carrer. Of course it caused comment and as Cleve had celebrated his 23rd birthday and first wedding anniversary last week we did not think anything of it. Some did however and ing from a drilled well on the hill transportation. said "Cleve is getting ready to shoot above the town. We have two fire-crackers and take a day off July fourth, and maybe go up in the balloon." Others surmised that he wanted to attend the ball game and see Marion wipe some amatuer team off the earth. He claimed himself that he only wanted to get caught up so he could "work his garden Saturday." Sunday afternoon the matter was explained fully when it became known that Dr. Clement and beautiful little girl of twelve pounds weight. Cleve smiled and said he was delighted.

Kentucky Girl to be Hostess.

Denver, Colo., July 3 .- The hostess of the Democratic National Convention will be Mrs. John E. Osborne, wife of the Governor of Wyoming. She was a former Kentucky years of age. She is a bride of a year. No Democrat in Denver has a higher regard for W. J. Bryan than Mrs. Osborne, who is truly Democratie, although she declares she is not interested in woman suffrage or any other political subject.

She admires Bryan however, although, by reason of his close acquaintance with her husband, he gave away the secret of their betrothal. When the commoner was touring Kentucky he suddenly turned to Urey bealth. I will ring off. Woodson, secretary of the National Committee, and told him, when they reached Princeton Ky., to hunt out the girl John Osborne was to wed.

Woodson had not heard a thing of the betrothal, but as Princeton is not so large, his task was not a hard one and by evening Princeton new Lena Smith was to become the first lady of Wyoming. On their way West Bryan met the happy couple at Lincoln, and Mrs Osborne forgave him.

The governor says that his soldiers have killed sixteen night riders. He says he knows the leader of the night riders. He claims to be possession of the details of their organization, including the oath that binds them together. These are three things which make the farmer happy.

Going Democratic.

Lincoln, Neb., July 7 .- In his conference with Bryan to-day James renounced all claims on the vice presidency. He assured the Nebraskan that his nomination for vicepresident would not be wise, as Kentucky is going Democratic anyhow, and the vice-presidency should be used to strengthen the ticket. James says Kern and Mitchell are both strong in Kentucky.

James is bitter toward Judge Parker on account of the Cleveland resolution. "If Parker wants to clear the field of mortuary literature is dead anyhow," said the big Ken-Bryan banquet here to-night. Bryan made him take lunch at Fairview.

Notice to The Tobacco Growers of Crittenden County.

You will observe by examining the constitution and by-laws of the stemming district tobacco Association, that each county in said district is requested to select one delegate from each magisterial district to form a county board for the purpose of transacting all business partaining to the sale of dispositions of our 18 or of tobacco. The chairman of said county board according to the constitution will be a member of the executive board of the district at Hendersom, therefore I request all tobacco growers to meet in their respective magisterial districts on Saturday, July 25th, 1908, at 2 p. m., and perform this important duty and those who are elected as delegates from the various districts in the county will meet at Marion on the first day of August, to organize a county board. Any compenent man residing in your district who is a tobacco grower, is eligible to be a delegate, he is not required to be a member of any other organization other than the stemming district tobacco Association and if he has pooled his tobacco that maks him a member of that same magisterial district have two or more voting places, for the benefit of those. I would suggest that the voters of Piney district meet at Iron Hill and the Marion district in which Squire James resides, will meet at tobacco factory near the depot, and Dycusburg district will meet at Frances, Union at Levias, Hurricane at Sheridan. Fords Ferry at their usual voting place, Bells Mines at Rosebud and Squire Postleweight district at the court house.

I would suggest that at each place of meeting that some tobacco grower call the meeeting to order and state the object of the meeting then nominate some one for chairman the nominations for delegates will be in order after which the chairman will take the vote and the one receiving the most votes will be your delegate. Hoping this notice will be understood by all tobacco growers and that the delegates elected will have no selfish motives of their own, but the good of the Association at heart only. This notice will not appear in print but once, therefore keep it.

Men of brains, though they be not Christians, cannot fail to give to the Bible a very high place as a literary, ethical and religious force in the world. Such a man was Benjamin Frank lin, who said: Young man, my advice to you is that you cultivate an acquaintance with, and a firm belief in, the Holy Scriptures, for this is your certain interest."

Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the 'Declaration of Independence," said: "I have said, and always will say, that the studious perusal of the sacred volume will make better citizens, better fathers and better husbands."

Daniel Webster, than whom a brainier man has not lived under our flag. said: "The Bible is the book of all others for lawyers as well as divines, and I pity the man who cannot find in it a rich supply of thought and rule of conduct." "It is a belief in the Bible," wrote Goethe, "which has served me as a guide of my moral and literary life. No criticism will be able to perplex the confidence we have in a writing whose contents have stirred up and given vital life and energy by its own. The further the ages advance in civilization the more the Bible will be used."

Matthew Arnold has not been ac cused of sympathy with Christianity, but he had brains and he wrote: "To the Bible men will return because they cannot do without it." The Bible Essential.

Diderot, the French unbeliever, when he looked from the ecclesiastical machine which he had cause to criticise, to the Bible itself, wrote: "No better lessons can I teach my child than those of the Bible."

Even Prof. Huxley, though he had a narrow, scientific spirit, was compelled to write: "I have always been in favor of secular education without theclogy, but I must confess that I have Office in Press Building, Room 7. been no less seriously perpiexed to know by what practical methods the mers' organ of the U. S. and the religious feeling, which is the essential basis of moral conduct, is to be kept up in the present chaotic state of opinion on these matters without the use of the Bible."

Rosseau, strong and independent, though skeptical, wrote: "Peruse the books of philosophers, with all their contemptible are they when compared with the Scriptures. The majesty of the Scriptures strikes me with ad-ucational force. Webster's Strong Tribute.

Great men, though not Christians, give the same high estimate of Jesus Christ. Daniel Webster wrote: "I believe Jesus Christ to be the Son of God. The miracles which he wrought establish in my mind his personal authority and render it proper for me to believe what he asserts."

Ralph Waldo Emerson said: "Jesus is the most perfect of all men that have yet appeared."

Napoleon Bonaparte, with a mind as discriminating and logical as Webster's, held the same yiew. "I know men," said Napoleon, "and I tell you Jesus Christ was not a man. Superfi-cial minds see a resemblance between Christ and the founders of empires and the gods of other religions. That resemblance does not exist. There is between Christianity and other religions the distance of infinity. Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne and myself founded empires. But on what did we rest the creations of our genius? Upen sheer force. Jesus Christ alone founded his suppre upen love; and at this hour millions of men will die for

On one occasion Gen. Bertrand expressed to Napoleon his doubt as to the delty of Christ. "If you do not | believe that Jesus Christ was divine," returned Napoleon, "I wrong to appoint you general."

What Renan Wrote. Ernest Renan, who lost his professorship in the University of Paris on account of his infidelity, wrote of Christ: "All history is incomprehensible without him. He created the object and fixed the starting point of the future faith of humanity. He is universal conscience has decreed the title of Son of God, and that with justice. In the first rank of this grand family of true sons of God we must place Jesus. The highest conectousness of God that ever existed in the breast of humanity was that of Jesus. Owsley Stanley's reply to Dalzell was crushing and conclusive. He painted the two men, Hamilton and Jefferson, precisely as they were, and placed them precisely where anthentic history will put them the Virginian the wisest of political philosophers; the West Indian the most brilliant of political adventurers. Many of Stang s political friends tried to dissuade on from the encounter. They did not know much about Hamilton and Jeffereon, but they knew a deal of John Daizell, whose concinsions they had perer embraced, but whose statements of facts they had mare challenged.

Stanfey did not dare to enter the lists without being armed cap-a-pie, and he spent a week of almost cease less investigation night and day. He searched fifty volumes and drew from manuscripts in the national library and the state department. When he began the Democrats were apprehen-sive and the Republicans confident. A few minutes the Democrats were sanfune and the Republicans confused. Both were astonished. Never before in more than 100 years of historymaking had the American congress sens the two great fathers of American politics as they were and as they will be estimated by the future Gibbon Alexander Hamilton was born a British subject, in the insignificant island of Nevis, in the West Indies. His father was a Scotchman and his mother a French woman. In his earliest youth he gave earnest of the splendid genius of which nature had endowed him. Ere he was twenty he was the first political controversialist in the colony of New York, whether with tongue or pen. His motto might

"Why, then, the world's mine oyster, Which I with mind will open."

As a political writer he was greater than Paine and little inferior to Burke. As an orator be was, perhaps, second to Henry only of the Revolutionary generation. Had he gone to London he would have been capable of filling a bigger place in English annals than the younger Pitt. Had he gone to France and escaped the Terror he might have been second to Napoleon Bonaparte alone, an honest Talley rand, a more fortunate Massera.

Instead, Hamilton came to America and assumed the role of Hampden. He opposed Lord North, not for the tax he levied so much as the principle it involved. It was a little bit of a tax a great piece of folly on the part of the ministry, though not oppressive; but if allowed to be a precedent, it was in the power of the crown to make serfs of the colonists. Hamilton entered the army and became the secretary of the commander-in-chief, and in the field he was as daring as he was able in the forum. That arch-flatterer and matchless scoundrel, Talleyrand. declared that Hamilton was greater than Napoleon or Fox, which is all bosh; but Hamilton's eulogists are absurd enough to take what the unscrupulous French miscreant said for his real opinion. Well might the shade of Hamilton pray to be delivered from American history as she is writ.

Hamilton is actually held up as the father of the constitution, when the one thing for which he had more contempt than for that instrument was the Articles of Confederation which it supplemed. As for patriotism—the real stuff, not the brand described by Walpole-Ramilton had none and it was impossible for him to have any, having expatriated himself at the age of sixteen years. The patriotism that springs from the heart and fills the soul is not a plant that can be carried from offme to clime. The patriot is made of the boy that plays erected the speins sambols in the orthard, reeithes in the shade of trees in happy happaged in is "costaling" in the submotrous as it is imparted from urcars to makes, and A to all over and ardinal the playground. Washington and Henry, Adams and Putnam, Rutledge and Marion, were patriots. So were old George Chaton and Philip Schurles These were

He had the gift of organiand he brought order out of nece; but he had too much mental ategrity or mental pride to pretend that the protective system was not a hardship on the people. And Mr. Stanley quoted from him some language that sounds marvelously Demcoratio on the tartif question.

Mr. Dalzell made this declaration: "He certainly is a bold man who, in the face of history, continue today that the permanent policies which have entered into the statutes and character of our nation are not the policies dictated by Hamilton and his

And to that Mr. Stanley retorted: "Here my temerity may argue more than my judgment, but I deny it. There never was a deduction more absolutely unfounded hurled defiantly into the teeth of history.

"What were the policies of Alexan-Hamilton? "He would have had a president for ife-he is elected every four years. "He would have senators during good behavior-they serve a fixed and lefinite term of six years.

"He would have the executive armed with an absolute veto-you can by two-thirds majority annul that veto. "He would have mustled free speech -Jefferson opened the deliberations of this house to the naked view and candid criticism of a free and untram-

"He defended the alien and sedition aws they are repealed. He founded a national bank-it is demolished. All his cherished and vaunted schemes are 'gone glimmering in the dream of things that were,' exploded fallacies, they litter the debris of history.

"I challenge the gentleman from Pennsylvania to give me one single solitary policy of Hamilton which was ever crystallized into law that lived. His policies are gone, his followers are dead. There are only left his apologists and his eulogists."

If Jefferson had not come back from France when he did it is more than possible that the colonies would have sought the protection of England, and that would have resulted in a return of allegiance to the British flag. When the French revolution came it was hailed with approval by the best of the intellectual world, including Edmund Burke, Charles James Fox, Thomas Jefferson and Thomas Paine. It was the revolt of liberty against despottsm, the long-delayed triumph of light over darkness; but in the compensations of human affairs the atrocities of the Terror were commensurate with the centuries of enormities that privilege had perpetuated in France, and there was a revulsion of public opinion. Even Burke became the most formidable of all the adversaries of the revolution he had applauded. Hamilton agreed with Burke, and so did a far greater than Hamilton-even George Washington.

There was actual war between France and the United States, and numerous battles fought on the water between the two powers. Washington was again appointed commander inchief, and chose Hamilton as his chief lieutenant. England and France were in a death grapple. Had war been declared and waged for a year it is morally certain that British rule would have been re-established in our coun-Jefferson prevented that war, and by that act he saved the Union. Mr. Dalzell had the temerity to challenge the conduct of Jefferson in the acquisition of Louisiana and asserted that the thing was accomplished in spite of Jefferson. And now it was that the Lord delivered the accomplished Pennsylvanian into the hands of the brilliant Kentuckian. Stephen A. Douglas, in reply to Seward, did not tower above his adversary more gigantically than did Stanley over Dalzell. It was this part of the speech that showed what a gentus for research is possessed by the gifted orator from the Second Kentucky district, It is too long to quote. One must read it entirely to get a proper conception of it. It is not at all remarkable that Mr. Daisell was content to allow that the debate is a closed incident. Every intelligent onlooker in our political Timps should read Deixell's speech and then read Stanley's reply. When Stanley came to discuss the duel betreet Burr and Hamilton he put an entirely new phase on the controversy. Hamilton was a believer in the code. He was on the field as Lauren's second in the duel with General Charles Lee. He sought a quarrel with John Adams that could have been settled, according to his ideas of persons honor, only on the field. He challenged James Mearce, and would have fought him if Aaron Burr had not On the field of Weehawken he decould wipe his glasses to make his vision clearer, and yet we are told that his intention was to fire in the For years he had assailed Burr, and for years Burr held his peace. Hamilton's eulogists tell us that he accepted Burr's call to the field because the standards of those days made it imperative that he should do so. To that Stanley made this inexuryou can pardon the acceptor of a challenge and condemn the sender. By that barbarous code he who was chargwith an infamous offense could not clear his skirts by proving its falsity. To prove the charge false and to fall to resent it was to aggravate the imputation of cowardice, in that day more odious than vice or crime. The same perverted public opinion which necessitated the acceptance forced the sending of a challenge."

Could a retort be more conclusive? If Hamilton was a martyr of the barbarous code when he accepted, it necessarily follows that Burr was also a martyr when it required him to send the challenge.

Those fond of the brilliant, the ornate, the exuberant, the splendid, can find it in these passages with which

Stanley closed his speech: "For centuries neither the telescope of the astronomer nor the researches of science could solve the mystery of that misty light, that glimmering gosat last the spectrum revealed in this nebula unborn worlds, held in a shimmering gauze; revolving masses of inpassing cycles of time, growing denser without, shrinking within, forming smoky concentric oircles, a whirling luminous fog, congealing into molten rings drawn by their own gravity into rude globes, and these spinning spheres shaped by the plastic hand of Divinity like clay upon a potter's wheel, into planets and their satellites, new solar systems, swinging for the first time into their orbits in the trackless, fathomiess depths above. Thus God peoples the heavens with radiant worlds.

"I have fancied that those daring bands of extles, forgotten by one world and lost in the dark wilds of another, living and dying in ignorance of the mighty destiny of their children's chilwhom a thousand years are as a day or a watch in the night when it is passed,' saw an unborn and pulssant ery, persecution and death, through which succeeding generations passed, first to independence, then to the mastery of the land and sea.

She was next married to W. I. Tabor on Oct., 9th, 1902, and of this union a son and daughter survive to cheer the bereaved husband.

She was deprived of her mother when Amanda was very young, and her venerable father, James Matthews was called home at the ripe age of 83. Three brothers and two sisters survive her: W. H. Matthews, of Creeltown, Ill., John A., of Bordley Ky., Jas. I., of Iuka, Ky., Elizabeth McDowell, Creswell, Ky., and Eliza F. Matthews wife of G. W. Matthews, this county.

Although many weeks have come and gone since her departure it seems but yesterday that she went, so deeply did he amiability, companionship and never dying devotion to family and friends impress all that these lovely traits still linger, and it seems that we only dream.

The writer cherished her as a dear school mate kind and gentle to all, and these estimable qualities expanded as she grew into womanhood A more devoted wife and mother never lived. She was a devoted member of the Caldwell Springs Baptist church.

Fish Washes his Hands off of Illinois Central Railroad.

Chicago, June 25 .- The Inter-Ocean today says:

Within the last few weeks Stuyvesant Fish, former president of the I. C. railroad, is said to have sold approximately 10,000 shares of his Illinois Central holdings. With the liquidation of the balance of his holdings-a matter of 2,500 shares -which, it is presumed, will soon take place, he will discontinue his interest in the road he began to build thirty years ago, and over whose destinies for twenty years he presided as president. The Fish connection with Illinols Central affairs, now believed to be drawing to a close, covers a remarkable period in the railroad history of country, and in that period no figure was more canspicuous than Stuyvesant Fish. The picturesque and longdrawn-out fight waged against him by Edward A. Harriman for the control of the Illinois Central, defeat in which is apparently acknowledged feeling will quickly depart when using death angel at bay, never flinching with the sale of stock, was only a type of the battles he fought thru three decades.

Dr. King's New Life Pills The best in the world.

Proof is inexhaustible that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Read the letter Mrs. E. Hanson, 304 E. Long St., Columbus, Ohio, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was passing through the Change of Life, and suffered from nervous-ness, headaches, and other annoying symptoms. My doctor told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good for me, and since tak-ing it I feel so much better, and I osh again do my own work. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pink-ham's Vegetable Compound did for me during this trying period."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN. For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively oured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, fistulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.
