CIRCUIT COURT IN SESSION--JUDGE GORDON PRESIDING.

James Herron Indicted for Man Slaughter--Released on $2,500 Bond.
Returned to His Home
In Illinois.

UNTIL JUNE TERM OF COURT.

Ernest Slayden on Trial for the Murder of J. W. Sullenger
--Full Synopsis of Case Will Appear In Next Issue of the Record-Press.

James Herron who surrendered to the authorities after the killing of Fred Daugherty and who was carried to the Henderson jail for safe keeping, where he has since been confined, was brought here Tuesday on the 11 o'clock train following the finding of an indictment, by the grand jury now sitting, for man slaughter, the penalty for which is two to twenty-one years in the penitentiary at the discretion of the jury. He was accompanied by his brothers several friends and went direct the Court house from the train.

Judge Gordon fixed his bond at $2500.00 and it was immediately filed, being signed by several prominent citizens, after which he was released from custody and accompanied by his brothers and several friends went to the New Crittenden Hotel for dinner and in the afternoon went to Cave-in-Rock, Ill., the home of the family.

"The night rider" cases which were set for trial last Friday, were all postponed until next court excepting four cases which were on docket to succeed the Sullenger murder case which has been engaging the court's attention the whole week. The defendants are Alonzo Gray, Tom Jones, O. C. Peek and Boone Bush, and they were all here ready for trial, we are informed, excepting Alonzo Gray who is sick and unable to appear. Judge Gordon took this case under advisement Wednesday morning and on account of the illness of one defendant and one of the attorneys in the case, granted a continuance until the June term for the four named defendants.

Ernest Slayden, who has been confined in the Henderson jail for safe keeping since the November term of Circuit Court was returned here for trial last Monday afternoon. He stands indicted for willful murder, the penalty for which if convicted is life imprisonment or death. If neither of these penalties is inflicted he could be cleared or the jury may disagree.

The regular panel was quickly exhausted and only two jurors obtained. When the case was called Thursday morning Judge Gordon ordered a venire of one hundred men summoned from the extreme eastern section of the county. This number was exhausted by two o'clock Friday afternoon and only five men were left in box. At that time Judge Gordon ordered another seventy-five, instructing the sheriff to have special regard for the fact that jurors would be difficult to secure in the county of Crittenden.

The last ten men placed in the jury box from the second venire were sufficient to fill the panel, more on account of the fact that the Commonwealth and the defense had exhausted their challenges, than to the fact that either side was satisfied with all the men in the box. It is said five days have been consumed by the commonwealth in examining its witnesses--sixty in number. The defendant, pale and thin from long confinement was placed on the stand Tuesday afternoon to testify in his own behalf, and there are probably twenty more witnesses for the defense, and the entire week will no doubt be taken up in examining witnesses and in speeches. This is one of the most noted murder trials on record and is attracting wide spread interest. The court room is crowded at each sitting of the court even standing room being at a premium. The defendant is constantly attended by his wife, who by her youth and beauty has enlisted much sympathy, and also by his mother. He is represented by Hon. L. H. James and Mayor John W. Blue.

The murdered man belonged to one of the county's best known families and has a large circle of relatives.

Hon. John L. Grayot has besides, County Attorney Henderson, the Hon. A. C. Moore to assist in the prosecution, and the speeches on both sides it is predicted will be record breakers in Crittenden county criminology.

We will publish next week a full page synopsis of the Sullenger murder and the trial. On account of its volume we could not get it condensed and ready for this week's paper. The following are the jurors trying Slayden for his life: B. L. Perkins, Lee Travis, E. L. Taylor, J. W. Smith, D. Rawlston, J. K. Smith, G. W. Davis, W. D. Hankins, Josh McDaniel, Bird McDaniel, G. W. Hunt, Ed Edge Crue.

TOBACCO GROWERS MEET--JUDGE GORDON'S ADDRESS ADVISED ORGANIZATION

The Tobacco Growers, of Crittenden county, met in Marion Saturday pursuant to call of County Chairman W. B. Rankin, of the Stemming District Association.

He called the meeting to order in the opera house at 1:30 p. m. Judge J. F. Gordon was the first speaker and he concentrated into his thirty minutes talk many excellent ideas and much splendid advice to the farmers. He advised them to hold on to their organization, and to take to give them up now, meant to set back the hands on the dial of their prosperity for many years. He said the Stemming District Association had done much good for the tobacco raisers of this district. He urged his hearers to hold its reputation for law and order forever as unassailable as in the past. He said that lawlessness could not be tolerated and would injure the cause of any one using it to enforce others into their way of thinking or acting. He advised persuasion to obtain the co-operation of your neighbor; but never violence. He said to obtain success farmers' organization must stick strictly to business; keep out of politics, and be of a law abiding and peaceful citizenship.

His speech was much appreciated as shown by the frequent applause. General Manager Wm. Elliott was the next speaker. He is a business man and makes a business like speech. He reviewed the situation as seen from the standpoint of general manager and urged the farmers to stand by him and the executive committee in the management of the officers of the Association. He urged them to pool this year's crop, if they wanted to realized fully on their unsold tobacco of last year's pool. He says that if the growers will pool up this year's crop the present holdings will soon go at good prices otherwise the buyers will get the unsold tobacco at the same price to which they will depreciate this year's crop if not pooled.

Judge Tower and W. B. Rankin both made splendid addresses and advised all growers to pool, and named the Stemming Association as their preference. Judge Tower said that it would be ingratitude to desert the Stemming Association now, when two years ago, it had rescued Crittenden county from the grasp of the trust octopus, putting us in one of the best markets of the world. Prof. J. W. Kascoe spoke of the need of co-operation and harmony among the different organizations.

The following resolution was read and unanimously adopted.

RESOLVED:--by the undersigned representative tobacco growers of Crittenden county, Kentucky, and, as well, representative members of the Stemming District Tobacco Association. That resident buyers of this district be respectfully requested to receive, handle and prepare for market all tobacco bought beyond the confines of this Stemming District in the counties where said tobacco is bought; and the future to import no more tobacco, whether bought from dumpers or other Associations. Into this district. And be it further resolved, That the mandates of honor and equity require that the buyers referred to should ship tobacco hitherto imported into this district under its true name and not as Stemming District Strips.

MARION F. POGUE, Secretary.

AS OTHERS SAW IT.

Last Saturday, March 20th, the tobacco growers of Crittenden county held a big meeting at Marion, Ky. Judge Fleming Gordon, of Hopkins county, made the leading Address. He was followed by our committeeman for Crittenden county, and by Manager William Elliott, Judge Aaron Towery and others.

Manager Elliott was deeply impressed with Judge Gordon's address. "Judge Gordon," I quote Mr. Elliott, "simply made the best speech I ever listened to on the subject of farmers' co-operation. I wish ever tobacco grower in the district could hear Judge Gordon. He is a man of impressive presence, a forcible, practical, convincing speaker, and impressive to a degree, because of his sincere belief in the cause of farmers' co-operation. We really must prevail on Judge Gordon to come to Henderson county in the near future."

"Our Committeeman, Mr. W. B. Rankin," continued Mr. Elliott, "addressed the growers to great good purpose. Mr. Rankin in his address did not mince his words, and in speaking of the enemies of the Association and their hostile practices he simply called a spade."

The Hon. Marion F. Pogue, read the address of the Henderson county tobacco growers to the tobacco buyers, and then on motion of Judge Aaron Towery the tobacco growers of Crittenden county unanimously endorsed the same and adopted word for word the resolutions contained in that address.

It was a great meeting. Farmers are rapidly educating themselves up to co-operation standard.

This writer heard Judge Gordon deliver an address to the delegates to the State Union meeting at Madisonville, and was deeply impressed with the strength and sincerity of the man. We must have him here in Henderson at an early date.--Henderson Gleaner.

The Times on yesterday received the following communication from general Manager Ewing directed to Salesmen of the Association:

Guthrie, Ky., March 17, 1909.

To Salesmen of the Planters' Protective Association:

You will recall that it has been the desire of the Board of Directors that all unsold tobacco of the 1907 crop remaining unsold be sold as rapidly as possible, and that any part of the 1908 crop not coming in competition with the unsold of the 1907 crop, or any tobacco going into the stemming or redrying trade might be sold. It is my pleasure to announce that there is now no leaf of any character unsold which will prevent the sale of the 1908 leaf. You are therefore instructed to put on sale everything but lugs of the 1908 crop.

EWING ORDERS SALE 1908 LEAF TO BEGIN

Below is a summary of the stock condition to date:

Sold 1907 crop, 54,386 hogheads.

Graded and ready for sale to date, 1908 crop, 6,234 hogheads.

Sold under pooling arrangement and in light hoghead of the 1908 crop, about 15,000,000 pounds.

Yours truly,

F. G. EWING

Resolution; Which Referred to and Means

AND ORDERED TO BE PRINTED.
ON SIDE OF COMMON PEOPLE

Trusts, Combines and Monopolies Will Sit up and Take Notice of the "Big Kentucky Congressman" --Hasn't Forgotten Taft's Promises.

Whereas the President of the United States, William H. Taft, on August sixteenth, nineteen hundred and seven, in a speech at Columbus, Ohio, used the following language:

"A graduated income tax would also have a tendency to reduce the motive for the accumulation of enormous wealth, but the Supreme Court has held an income tax not to be a valid exercise of power by the Federal Government. The objection to it from a practical standpoint is its inquisitorial character and the premium it puts on perjury. In times of great national need, however, an income tax would be of great assistance in furnishing means to carry on the Government and it is not free from doubt how the Supreme Court, with changed membership, would view a new income-tax law under such conditions. The court was nearly evenly divided in the last case, and during the civil war great sums were collected without judicial interference, and, as it was then supposed, within the federal power;" and

Whereas in his inaugural address he gave to the American people no suggestions relative to the passage of a revenue measure containing a tax upon incomes; and

Whereas in his first message to the Congress of the United States, upon the sixteenth day of March, nineteen hundred and nine, upon the question of the passage of a bill to raise revenue, he gave to Congress the information that there would be a deficit in the Treasury of the United States by July first of one hundred millions of dollars: Therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the House of Representatives of the United States of America respectfully request the President of the United States to advise Congress as to whether or not in his opinion the "times of great national need" have not come when "an income tax would be of great assistance in furnishing means to carry on the Government;" and if so, that he will communicate to the Congress his recommendations relative to imposing a tax upon incomes, to the end that the rich may bear their just proportion of the burdens of the Government.

TWENTY YEARS IN PRISON FOR THE COOPERS, IS THE VERDICT OF THE JURY.

Nashville, Tenn., March 20.--After filling bond worth nearly a million and a half dollars, Col. D. B. Cooper and Robin J. Cooper retired to the home of Judge J. C. Bradford to night and discussed the next move in the case.

For the present Col. Cooper will make his home with Mrs. Burch, and Robin will return to his old quarters with his uncle, Judge J. C. Bradford.

Col. Duncan Brown Cooper, and his son, Robin Cooper, are guilty in the second degree of the murder of former Senator Edward Carmack.

That is the verdict of the jury after deliberating nearly seventy hours.

The punishment of the defendants is fixed at twenty years, each, in the state penitentiary.

The jury which heard the evidence regarding the death of ex-Senator Carmack yesterday made its first report. "Not guilty," was the verdict as to ex-Sheriff John D. Sharp. "Hopelessly tied as to the defendants, the Coopers," were the words of Foreman E. M. Burt. Judge Hart sent the jury back to its room to deliberate further regarding the case as affecting Col. Duncan B. Cooper and Robin Cooper.

This morning the jury again reported, and at this time brought in a verdict in accordance with the foregoing announcement.

This is the sixtieth day since the trial of the Coopers and Sharp began, and it is four month and one week since Carmack was shot down on the streets of Nashville.

Cooper and Carmack were warm friends up to about three years ago, and Cooper, as editor of the Nashville American, had made Carmack its editor in chief. The break and feud between the two occurred over Democratic politics in which both were leaders of opposing factions.

The defendants received the verdict of the jury calmly, and Col. Cooper's daughter did not even shed tears. As soon as the verdict was announced, the attorneys for the defense claimed that the verdict of yesterday which cleared Sharp, definitely reported disagreement as to the Coopers, and on the ground that the jury said it was hopelessly hung, asked for a new trial. The Coopers were admitted to $25,000 bail, each, pending Judge Hart's decision. In the event he overrules the motion, an appeal will be taken. The verdict was returned at 9:45 this morning.

PROF. CHARLES EVANS

Writes Interestingly of Major Clement. Will be Appreciated by His Many Friends.

Ardmore, Okla., March 9 '09

Miss Eliza Cruce,

My Dear Pupil Friend,

Your postal came the other day and I was glad to get it for several reasons. First to hear from you, for while you are over there in Marion and supposed to be going to school yet you are my school girl, yet and all the time. Second it gave me a picture of a piece of Marion and one to appreciate because it tells of a life of a friend that has made his life worth while. I was told by best authorities that Ollie M. James could have been nominated at Denver this last year on the ticket with Bryan for Vice President.

It gave me great sorrow to hear of your grand father's death. Not simply because he was a loved one of my very warm friends but because I had learned to know him for over ten and more years as a close and personal friend. While he was old enough to be my grand father yet I never thought of him other than a man of young temperament and with all the humor and vigor of early manhood. I have talked with him for hours at a time and I never found him other than full of information - charming in conversation and potent in thought. I always left him with a better reverence for sterling manhood.

I am doped yet to sit down and write a line or two to the RECORD PRESS telling his friends and mine what a man he was.

Why I am impressed to do so is because the feeling as an uncommon one to me. In the last few years funerals and the passing of men and women have meant but little to me unless they have meant very much. That is so sacred and beautiful is this thing called death that I dare not mock at or disturb the harmony between my reverent spirit and it by saying that all death means much to me. But here is a man that taught me to lead me and strangely won my love and the thought of his passing calls from me a thousand tributes.

And while I am talking this way to his grand daughter I should like for you to know what were some things I found of extraordinary worth in your grand-father. I read just a few moments ago a list of names, all men of imperishable fame that had their birth one hundred years ago. After reciting some individual traits of some it said "Sincerity, uprightness, kindness these are the cardinal virtues of life." I believe that with all my heart. Judged by these, your grandfather must be a lasting memory to all who met him. If these in their development develop greatness then you and all his progeny have cause to rejoice that greatness courses through your veins.

Sincerity is the prettiest word in the vocabulary of man. It means without deception, true to the core. There is not a man living or dead that could say there was a single trace of insincerity in Mr. Clement's nature. He hated nothing as he did double dealing. It caused men to misunderstand and criticize him, this uncompromising attitude toward littleness, but it was a man, a high minded man that stood within his shoes.

With powers as far above dull brutes endowed

In forest, brake and den

As beasts excel cold rocks and brambles rude

Uprightness is another name for integrity. Integrity is another name for oneness. I smiled the other day of complete satisfaction as I read in the RECORD PRESS a line in tribute to your grand father which said "you always knew where to find him on any question." Andrew Jackson had no greater or more practical integrity than Mr. Clement. He bowed absolutely to the line of right let the chips fall where they may. To me such a power exercised every moment in these days when it is considered wise "to crook the pregnant hinges of the knee" "that thrift may follow fawning" is nothing less sublime.

And as for kindness. I know that as God gave him to see it he cherished it as the apple of his eye. His brusque speech, his imperial will, his scorn of the de-ceptive, all served to hide the great love for the pure and holy, charity toward the weak and erring and fidelity to all the ideal in church and state. But all of these were in his heart for I have seen them assert themselves time after time. Why, Eliza, I was never in his presence an hour in my life that he did not disclose some happy charity toward the poor, some deep reverence for the bible, some consuming passion for the State and Nation. He never hid by peculiar mannerism or eccentric speech these elements of greatness from those who looked with any degree of penetration upon his life. His nobleness could not be hidden, by small eccentricities any better than you could veil the statute of Liberty with a handkerchief.

But all this seems cold and formal compared with my best memories of the man. I was but a boy and he was old in years when I first knew, but instinctively I revered and loved him when I saw him and what is strange but true he called me comrade from that day. We say he is gone but it is not true. "For to live in hearts we leave behind is not to die." Marion, the county of Crittenden and the state of Kentucky will keep that straight and erect figure, that erect and straight life in admiration and respect until a more stalwart soul comes to obscure, and that will be long indeed.

Ollie Wants to Know.

Washington, March 18.—Representative James, of Kentucky, wants to know the present attitude of President Taft in regard to the income tax, and he introduced a resolution today to procure this information.

CURES INDIGESTION

All Distress From Stomach And Digestion Vanishes in Five Minutes.

Take your sour stomach—or may be you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach, it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50 cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of stomach misery.

The correct name of your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; the following mixture after each you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, eructus in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness and many other similar symptoms. If your appetite is killed, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin. 39-42-

Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been expelled from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for these ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lanham, of Warrensburg, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Voll, of 903 Ellison St., Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble, you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then you will do as over two million people did last year—go to your drugist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds and hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no time should be lost taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 503 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

OBITUARY.

Ethel B. Lofton, daughter of J. G. and Mary C. Lofton, was born January 11, 1878; died February 2, 1909, aged thirty-one years and 21 days.

Brownie had been in poor health for several years, but was not considered dangerous until a few weeks previous to her death, when that dread disease, consumption, seemed to take firm hold on her.

Everything was done for her that loving hands could do, but the end soon came and she passed away peacefully and happily. She was laid to rest in Mt. Zion cemetery, attended by a large concourse of relatives and friends, Rev. J. B. Adams and R. C. Love conducting the burial service. She professed faith in Christ at Hurricane several years ago.

She leaves behind her a mother, a brother and a sister, and several half-sisters and a half-brother.

As a true friend I would admonish these desolate, aching hearts to take comfort and consolation in the sweet reflection that the parting is only temporary, and look beyond life's dark vale where, at best, only a few days are bright, to a happy meeting in a better home than human hands can prepare.

It must be so, and we shall there enjoy the full fruition of "pleasing here of fond desire," and that "longing after immortality" that comes to all at some time in our lives to lift us above the disappointing and unsatisfying things of life.

Her friends were legion and we all miss her.

A FRIEND.

CHAPTER VII.

In Which I Suspect Evil.

Early dawn reached us in sudden gray, the sun a shapeless blob of dull red, with no vestige of its golden light forcing passage through those dense clouds of misty vapor closing us in as between curtained walls. The swell of the sea was not heavy, but the pervading gloom gave to the surrounding water a peculiarly sullen appearance, through which we tore, reckless of accident, at full speed. A new hand was at the wheel, Johnson having gone below an hour since, but I still clung to the bridge, my eyes heavy from peering forth into the fog.

bank, my clothing sodden with the constant drip.

Only a few of the men were visible three or four grouped about the capstan on the foremast head, and as many more huddled along the lee side of the chart-house. Evidently regular watches were already chosen, and a portion of the crew had been turned in for their trick below. Tuttle himself, clad in wet, glistening oilskins and looking gaunt and cadaverous, his chinboard forking straight out over the high collar, was standing aft, beside the fellow who still kept guard over the companion. I moved across to the starboard end of the bridge, and, when he glanced around, made signal for him to join me.

"Not very much chance of any one overhauling us in this fog, Mr. Tuttle," I said, pleasantly. "It would be like hunting a needle in a haystack."

"Tis as the Lord wills," he returned, rather sourly. "Man proposes, but God disposes. The sun will lift that whole outfit in another hour. How far do you figure we're off shore?"

"Figure it for yourself. We're doing all of 16 knots, and have been for four hours at that speed. With another to be added, even our smoke ought to be below the horizon. We've given them the slip all right, and from now on it's merely a question of steaming to keep ahead. I don't recall anything in the Chilean navy that can overhaul us. What discoveries have you made below?"

He turned his crafty, glittering eyes toward me, twisting the lump of tobacco under his tongue. In some way, beneath the revealing daylight, I became even more distrustful of the man, more conscious of his hypocrisy.

"Not a great deal," his mouth attempting a grin; "except that we've got the crew caged. Everybody was ashore but the harbor watch."

"Then you found the fore-castle empty?"

"Nothin' there but dunnage and bilge water; regular sea-parlor, sir."

"And no officer on board?" I asked, scarcely believing it possible.

"No, having the engineer, so far as I know. The cabin was locked up by your orders, so I let that alone."

"And that, then, is all you have discovered, is it, Mr. Tuttle?"

He shifted his long legs, but made no effort to turn and face me.

"Well, I guess that's about the whole of it," he answered, slowly, as though deliberating over the choice of words. "Only I'm a bit puzzled about some things what don't look just right. We started out, as I understand it, to run off with a Chilean warship named the Esmeralda, a schooner-rigged steam yacht. That was the contract, wasn't it, sir?"

I nodded, gravely, wondering what the man could possibly be driving at. "That was my understanding," his nasal tone becoming more pronounced and disagreeable. "And somehow what we've got here looks just a bit odd. This here is a schooner-rigged steam-yacht all right, an' I guess the tonnage isn't very far out of the Esmeralda class, but we haven't found a blame Chilean on board—two Swedes, a Dutchman, two Kammas, an' a bloomin' English engineer."

"Well, what of that?" I broke in impatiently. "You know as well as I do that the entire Chilean navy is filled with foreigners."

"Sure," he coincided, with a swift, questioning glance toward me; "that's all true enough, sir, but I never saw a whole crew of those beggars an' no Chilean bossin' 'em. But then that's only a part of it. Every one of them small boats down there, an' the life-preservers hangin' in front of the cabin, have got the name Sea Queen painted on them. Dam' if it ain't, here, too, on this tarpaulin."

I bent over the rail looking down at the lettering he pointed out, yet with no feeling of uneasiness.

"Beyond doubt, that was the yacht's name before the Chilean government purchased her and renamed her Esmeralda for their service. She was bought from English parties, I've heard. Probably the new owners have found no opportunity to repaint the name."

Tuttle drew forth a red bandanna and blew his nose, his voice more suddenly insolent as he resumed speech.

"Glad ye take it so cool, an' maybe yer right. However, it looks dam' odd to me."

I glanced aside at the wheelman apprehensively. The fellow was gazing straight ahead of him into the rapidly thinning fog. It was the manner of the mate more than his words that impressed me.

"See here, Mr. Tuttle," and I dropped my hand rather heavily on his sleeve, "kindly explain exactly what you are driving at. Do you intend to insinuate that we have made a mistake in the dark, and run off with the wrong vessel? Why, man, that is impossible. We are sailors, not landlubbers. Both of us have had chances to see the Esmeralda, and you certainly knew where she was moored yesterday."

"Well, when I come to think it over, I don't feel quite so everlastingly sure about that. The mind of man is mighty deceitful," he admitted, slowly. "You see, I never saw her any closer than maybe a mile, an' even then she was half hid behind other shippin'. Of course I took notice of her outline an' rig, but I didn't pay much attention to details. To-night we was all of us excited, an' colors don't show up much in the dark! Now, her funnel is painted red, an' unless I'm a liar the Esmeralda's was black with a yellow stripe round the top. You see, Mr. Stephens, we kept in pretty close under cover all yesterday, an' maybe they hauled the Esmeralda up to the government docks, and run another boat into her anchorage."

I laughed aloud, not in the least impressed with his argument.

"A very likely story that there were two vessels in that harbor so near as to deceive all of us."

He remained stubbornly silent, evidently unconvinced, plucking at his shirttail.

There is a certain way of settling the matter," I went on, decisively. "This is, by an examination of the papers in the cabin. Take charge of the bridge, and I'll run down and clear up this affair beyond any further controversy. We may even have one of the ship's officers sawed away there, clearing off his late celebration. If there is, he's due for a rule awakening. Keep the yacht's head as she is, and I'll be back directly."

I was aware that he watched me closely as I descended the steps, but felt little interest in such surveillance. That we could have been guilty of so serious an error as he suggested was beyond possibility. Nevertheless the mere suspicion was irritating, leaving me filled with a vague unrest. It was quite true that I might have been deceived. I realized that, because I had enjoyed no opportunity to observe the Esmeralda in daylight, and no occasion to study her lines with care at any time. To me she had appeared merely as an extremely graceful vessel, interesting to the eye of a seaman. But Tuttle and his crew must have known the truth. If we were, indeed, on board the wrong vessel, it was from no innocent mistake of the darkness, but rather the result of deliberate plan, the full purpose of which was beyond my comprehension. I swore savagely under my breath, even as I halted sarcastically at the vague suspicion, aroused halfily, as I well recalled, by my increasing dislike of the wheelman. The wrong ship? Why, the very conception of such an accident was grotesque, ridiculous, believed! It was the hallucination of a fool. One of the men assisted me to climb the slide across the companionway, and, bidding him stand by for a hall, I started below, my fingers on the brass rail, my feet firm on the rubber-lined stairs.

These led into as handsome a stateroom as ever I remember gazing upon. Everything was effective and elaborate taste, evidencing an expenditure that made me stare about in amazement. So deeply did it impress me that I remained there grasping the rail, gazing about in surprise, hesitating to press my investigations further. Yet this feeling was but momentary, the very desertion and silence quickly convincing me that the cabin contained no occupants. The movement of the vessel, the tramping of men on the deck, and the ceaseless rattle of the screw were more noticeable here than forward, and no seaman, however overloaded with liquor, could have slept undisturbed through the hubbub and changes of the past few hours.

Inspired to activity by this knowledge, and eager to settle the identity of our prize, I began closer examination of that impressive interior, although not entirely relieved from the spell of its royal magnificence. Six doors, three upon each side, opened from the main cabin. The full-length mirrors occupied the spaces between, and the doors themselves were marvels of decoration and carving. Another, beneath the stairs, led directly into the steward's pantry, and a small, besides, a passageway leading forward, probably to the lazarette storerooms. The others, as I tried their knobs, exhibited merely comfortable staterooms, fitted up for use; three contained two bunks each, the others only one. Four of the bunks had been carefully made, but the remainder were in disorder, as though lately occupied. Everything impressed me as unusually clean and well-kept, evincing strict discipline. The first I noticed was a roll-top at the foot of the bed, and with no little of papers lying anywhere about. I figured, was probably the berth of the first officer; the captain's room would naturally be the one farthest from the main cabin.

The upright piano, with the high-backed cushioned chairs surrounding it, blocked my view aft, but on rounding these I observed a closed door, which apparently led into a room extending the entire width of the cabin. Never suspecting that it might be occupied, I grasped the brass knob, and stepped within. Instantly I came to a full stop, dazed by astonishment, my teeth clenched in quick effort at self-control. The entire scene burst upon my consciousness with that first surprised survey—the draped portholes opening out upon the gray sea, the brass bed screwed to the deck, the chairs upholstered in green plush, the polished table with a vase of flowers topping it, the glimmering front of a book-case in the corner, the floor rug into which my feet sank. All these things I perceived, scarcely realizing that I did so, for my one true impression concentrated itself upon the living occupants.

There were two present. At a low dressing table, her back toward me, from a mirror, yet with eyes fastened upon an open book lying in her lap, sat a woman. The jeweled head yielded me only an indistinct outline of her features, yet the full throat and rounded cheek gave pledge of both youth and beauty. Standing at most directly behind her chair, with short, curly locks, crowned by a smart white cap, her hands busied amid her mistress's tresses, was a maid, petite, roguish, fluttering about like a hummingbird. The latter saw me at once, pausing in her work with eyes wide open in surprise, but the preoccupied mistress did not even glance up. She must have heard the sound of the door, however, for she spoke carelessly:

"I thought you were never coming! What caused you to sail so suddenly?"

These unexpected words, uttered so naturally, served partially to arouse me from the dull torpor of surprise. I clenched my hands, wondering if I was really awake, and stared back into the frightened eyes of the maid, who appeared equally incapable of articulation. Suddenly she found voice.

"It is not as one, madame," she cried, shrinking back. "Non, non; it is an homme étranger."

"What is that you say, Celeste?" and the other arose swiftly to her feet, the open book dropping to the floor as she turned to face me. Instantly I recognized her, in spite of the long hair trailing unconfined far below her waist—recognized her with a sudden leap upward of my heart into my throat. There was no semblance of fear, only undisguised amazement, in the dark gray eyes that met mine.

"What—the meaning of this strange intrusion? Are you a member of the crew?"

Instantly my cap came off, the thought occurring to me of what a rough figure I must be making in my soaked jacket, with the glittering peak of my cap shadowing my face.

"No, madame; and I bowed before her. "I am not one of your crew. My entrance here was entirely a mistake."

She leaned forward, one white hand grasping the back of her chair, the expression in her eyes changing as she read my face, perplexity merging into faint recollection.

"I do not quite comprehend," she confessed at last, changing her speech to a slightly broken Spanish. "You—you are Señor Estevan?"

THE PERFECT WAY.

Scores of Marion Citizens Have Learned It.

If you suffer from backache, there is only one way to cure it. The perfect way is to cure the kidneys.

A bad back means sick kidneys. Neglect it, urinary troubles follow.

Doan's Kidney Pills are made for kidney's only.

Are endorsed by Marion people.

William Redd, farmer, Marion, Ky., says:

"I was subject to sharp twinges through my loins when I stooped or lifted and was also troubled by a pain in the small of my back. At night I had an acute backache and when I arose in the morning, I felt very lame. I tried easily, felt dull and languid and at times was very nervous. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and I was forced to arise from three to four times during the night on this account. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at Hayes & Taylor's drug store and after using them about three days, I received great relief. I continued taking the remedy until I had finished the contents of one box, at which time I was cured. I am pleased to give this preparation my endorsement."

Girl Killed by Bull!

Carleton, Mich., March 9.—Returning to her home at the Heiss farm near Seaford, Miss Becky Heiss, accompanied by her favorite dog, was charged by a bull as she was crossing a field. Miss Heiss fled for the fence and the dog charged the bull, fastened on him but was thrown off.

The bull reached the young woman when she had come within a few steps of the fence. He caught her on his horns and hurled her against the barrier. Then the dog came up and got so busy that the bull turned his whole attention to the woman's defender. Miss Heiss got over the fence when the dog let go and leaped to safety.

Miss Heiss was able to walk home but took to her bed, her death occurring the next day from internal injuries.

This machine is adapted for distributing or spraying anything in the dry powder form, such as paris green on tobacco plants. Some use wood ashes or plaster mixed with paris green to thin it, but usually the pure paris green used in a very light misty spray. The least amount of the work. It will spray two rows at a time as fast as the operator can walk. It may be adjusted to any width row wide or narrow planting. The reservoir holds about 1 1/2 quarts of powder or over 4 pounds of paris green. This duster may be operated by a man or boy without any experience, as the working parts are very simple. It is provided with an agitator working back and forward in the reservoir producing a constant flow of powder which is blown out by the fan, and has a gauge for adjusting the amount of powder to be used. This is arranged so that a large or small amount may be sprayed, which in many cases is necessary. The sprayer is furnished complete as shown in cut with two tubes, two nozzles, one Y, two elbows and an adjustable carrying strap with snaps at each end. The weight of the machine is about six pounds. Full instructions on each duster. This duster is nicely painted a bright red, which makes it very neat as well as durable. Alcohol not needed

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a strong drink. As now made, there is not a drop of alcohol in it. It is a non-alcoholic tonic and alterative. Ask your own doctor about your taking this medicine for thin, impure blood. Follow his advice every time. He knows.

We publish our formulae
We banish alcohol from our medicine
We urge you to consult your doctor

Ask your doctor, "What is the first great sign of health?" Nine doctors out of ten will quickly reply, "Keep the bowels regular." Then ask him another question, "What do you think of Ayer's Sarsaparilla for constipation?"

The people are not afraid to go with a good railroad. Yesso is located 20 miles west of the Pecos river, 8 miles north of the Yesso creek and 10 miles south of silo, with running water, making it a sure country for rain. We have the crops to show you, and wells to show you good water. We have crops that were raised last year, and we don't have a wait for a railroad. We have one completed. We have all kinds of deeded lands for sale in New Mexico. Now is the time to come if you want the best. It is about all gone, and then where can you get a free home? We have an altitude of 4,000 feet, just right for good health and warm winters. We have had 24 inches of snow this winter. Gentlemen I traveled all over a hundred by two hundred miles before I filed and saw three crops raised. Don't you think I tried to get the best? I filed one year ago; have bought 240 acres of deeded land, town lots in Yesso and Ricardo and a section of school land, and that is enough to show you what confidence I have in Yesso and Ricardo. They are 14 miles apart and are good enough for me. Don't you think they are for you? After I have invested $5,000, don't you think you can afford to spend $24.00 to get a free home? My office at Ricardo is in the Royal Blue Hotel, and just one block north of the depot at Yesso. Come direct to Yesso, N. M., I have better conveniences to show land from there. Will file you on plains land, or in the Pecos valley. Both towns are prosperous ones and all lands are surveyed. Write me or comes to see me at Ricardo, my postoffice address. We guarantee all work. Home, Sweet Home.

Senator McLaurin of Mississippi tells a story to illustrate his conception of the difference between the treatment of the colored brother up north and down south. A Mississippi ducky went up to Kansas and shortly got stranded. He begged for food and shelter from door to door and got neither. Finally he wandered back to Mississippi and knocked

"What are you doing at my front door, you black rascal?" "I want something to eat." "Well, go around to the back door and get it then, you rascal," said the white man. Then the old negro, remembering the polite way in which his requests had been refused in Kansas, threw up his hands and exclaimed. "Bless Gawd, Ise among my own people at last."—Washington Star.

That's the Way to Pronounce Hyomel, the Money-Back Catarrh Cure.

As doubt exists in the minds of many readers of the Crittenden Press let us say that the above is the proper pronunciation of America's most wonderful catarrh cure. Haynes & Taylor are the agents for Hyomel in Marion and they will sell you an inhaler, a bottle of Hyomel, and full instructions for use, for only $1.00. And if it fails to cure acute or chronic catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, croup, hay fever or coughs and colds, they will give you your money back. The person who suffers from catarrh after such an offer as that, must like to snuffle, spit and wheeze, and be generally disgusting.

Read what Mr. G. F. Lowe says: "I have used Hyomel for a case of nasal catarrh which had bothered me for a long time. MISSING BOY IS RETURNED TO FATHER

Sensational Kidnaping of Willie Whitley Ends Happily at Cleveland.

ABDUCTORS ARE CAUGHT.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 22.—Before retiring for the night Mr. Whitley admitted that he had paid $10,000 to a woman in a candy store. Whitley believes the woman was an Italian but refuses to disclose her identity.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 22.—

Willie Whitley, the missing child, has just been returned to his father in the Hollenden Hotel. The lad walked into the lobby and was grabbed by his father.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 22.—Willie Whitley, who caused the police of the entire country endless worry since he was kidnaped from school at Sharon last Thursday, was returned to his father at Hollenden Hotel here tonight at 8:30 in compliance with the agreement entered into between the kidnaped boy's father and an agent of the kidnapers here today. The boy was placed on a street car on the out skirts of the city and started to the hotel shortly after 8 o'clock. Two boys recognized the lad on the car, and, taking him in charge, conducted him to his father, who was waiting according to a pre-arranged plan which he had followed at the dictation of the kidnapers. The boy wandered about the hotel lobby unannounced for several minutes, asking the bell boys for his father, before the latter knew his son was in the big foyer. The moment the anxious parent heard that a strange boy was in the hotel sauntering in aimless fashion, he rushed across the lobby, grasped him in his arms and smothered his face with kisses. An attempt had been made to disguise the lad. He wore a pair of smoked glasses and a large tan cap, which was pulled down over his ears, and the father said it would have been difficult to have recognized the boy in such garb had he passed him on the street. Willie is in perfect health. He says he has been well treated, and ever since his capture has been constantly indoors. He believes he was taken from Sharon to Warren, thence to New Castle. It is his opinion, expressed in happy school boy way, that he was in Ashtabula Saturday night at the time his father was to leave his $10,000 in Flat Iron Park. Whitley senior, refused to state whether he paid ransom or not.

Sharon, Pa., March 22. The first act of J. P. Whitley upon the recovery of his kidnaped son tonight was to call his wife over the long distance telephone. Mrs. Whitley evidently expecting news, did not collapse but manifested the most perfect self-control. Not only was the family overjoyed at the receipt of the news, but the entire community is sharing their happiness, and a great demonstration is being arranged for the return home of father and son, who are expected at 12:16 tomorrow afternoon.

The news spread fast over the entire country, and within two hours after the message came, more than fifty telegrams of congratulation had been delivered to Mrs. Whitley. Content with the delivery of his son, Whitley has sent no further word as to the manner he was found, but Detective Ward gave out a statement tonight detailing the acts leading up to recovery. A letter directing Whitley to come to Cleveland was received this morning. He was given explicit directions about leaving the train from where he was told to proceed to Dunbar's drug store, corner of Wilson avenue and St. Clair street, where he was to ask for a note left for William Williams. The note said: "If you attempt to catch up with us you will never get your boy." Detective Ward also stated tonight that search for the abductor and confederates will now be taken up in earnest.

BIG REWARD OFFERED.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 22. The Senate tonight unanimously adopted a concurrent resolution offering a reward of $15,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers of Willie Whitley.

SUBJECT ARRESTED.

Youngstown, Ohio, March 22. Joseph Weiss, of this city, was taken into custody here tonight. While the police are reticent concerning the arrest, it is understood that his detention is in connection with the Whitley kidnaping case. C. C. Cross, the Sharon school house janitor, is here and declares there is little doubt the man is the one who kidnaped Willie Whitley.

DEATH PENALTY FOR KIDNAPING.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 22. A bill making kidnaping a felony punishable only by death by hanging was introduced in the senate tonight by James, of Luzerne county. James bill allows of no judicial discretion as to punishment of kidnaper, providing for the death penalty only. It further provides that the person convicted of assisting in kidnaping be imprisoned for life or such term as court may direct.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 23. In the arrest here tonight of the men and woman having $9,790 in their possession, the police believe they have captured the kidnapers of Willie Whitley. In fact the woman in the case, who was greatly excited, admitted she had been responsible for the kidnaping. Beneath the woman's skirt was found $9,790. All of it but $40 was found in packages with the original slips placed on the money when Whitley took it from the bank still around it.

Letter from Oklahoma.

Milburn, Okla., March 17, '09. Mr. S. M. Jenkins:—You will no doubt be surprised to get a letter from me, but I thought as I had nothing to do, would write you a few lines.

I am enjoying good health and a good time. The weather is nice and everything is in bloom, most all the farmers are through planting corn and many of them fixing to plant cotton. I am working for Gill Bros. at this place and have been employed since last October and like my job very well.

When I first came out here I herded cattle for Uncle Joe. He and Aunt Fannie are getting along fine. Aunt Fannie is entirely well and is getting fat; but she was in a dangerous condition for a while and we thought she was going to pass over the dark river, but God spared her. She intends to start for St. Louis next week for a week's visit and then I think she really needs the rest for she has so many things to worry her. Grandma and Aunt Cora are both well and the babies are as fat as pigs.

I have been here, since last July and have gained 30 pounds. I think I will be at home in a month or two for a short visit and then return and go from here to Idaho or Montana and herd cattle, for punching cattle just suits me and agrees with me also.

Now I think this is one of the best places a person ever hit, mean for a farmer or a man who has money to go into business. Now, on the square, if I had $20,000 I would buy land, for one can buy land that I will put up against any in the United States. It is a black, sandy soil and produces a bale of cotton to the acre. Corn and wheat grow fine and we also have plenty of timber at a reasonable price. This land can be bought for $5 per acre and in ten years it will be worth $50 per acre. I read the dear old Record-Press every week.

GOOD HOME RECIPE

Mix This Simple, Helpful Recipe At Home And Try It, Anyway.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered as the most certain prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

A druggist here at home, when asked, stated that he could either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription for our readers, also recommends it as harmless.
