WIND JAMMERS

Are Needed by the American Society of Equity—Until We, Through Thinking, Learn To

REASON AND REASON ACCURATELY OUR EFFORTS

In the Greatly-Needed Revolution Will be Fruitless—This Was Written and Printed for You, Mr. Reader.

FROM TOWARD THINKING.
JOHN BUTLER, EDITOR.

Mental power is the result of organized thinking. Mere memorizing of what others have done is not organized thinking. Organized thinking comes whenever the individual sets himself a definite task and then determines and applies the ways and means necessary for the accomplishment of that task.

A. S. of E. work calls for just the organized thinking needed for the practical purposes of life. It is a mental activity out of which grows skill in doing, and skill in doing is one of the chief purposes of A. S. of E. education.

If the purpose of the A. S. of E. is to secure equity and fair dealing in all the business relations of life, the purpose brings us face to face with the present order of things. We must admit that there are few, if any, relations of life in which equity and fair dealing obtain. To change those few to many, to all the relations of life, can not be done unless by organized thinking and, therefore, the acquisition of the great skill it will require to make such great changes.

Until we, through thinking, learn to reason and reason accurately concerning industrial phenomena and the immorality of selfishness, our efforts in the greatly-needed revolution will be fruitless.

What we need in the A. S. of E. are not vociferators, wind jammers, bubble blowers, or gallery stormers, but thinkers!

We don't believe any one who has read this say will disagree with what has been written, but we fear the majority of them will think it was written for some one else.

This was written and printed for YOU Mr. Reader. Do you think? Do you organize thinking? Do you systematize your thoughts and get them into working order? If you do, 'tis well; if you don't, begin to educate yourself to do so, for you'll not amount to much for yourself nor any one else till you do. —Tobacco Tidings.

After Defendants In Night Rider Suits.

United States Deputy Marshal Elwood Neel left Friday for the counties of Lyon, Caldwell and Crittenden to serve papers on defendants in the night rider damage suits in the United States court. The principal defendants in the Henry Bennett case have been served, but in the other three cases a large number of defendants have not been found.

Deputy Neel will disguise himself and go horseback this time, starting on his trips before daylight. He has engaged a fine saddle horse at Princeton. —Paducah News Democrat.

EX-SENATOR DEBOE

Tipped as Successor to Combs—May Become Minister to Peru or Brazil—Has Good Chance of Appointment.

Louisville, Ky., April 1.—The word is now being passed among Republicans that former United States Senator W. J. Deboe has a good chance of appointment as minister to Peru or Brazil.

Of course, if he should land, Leslie Combs will have to pack up his clothes and come home. Mr. Combs' return to Kentucky to make a berth for Mr. Deboe will make cold chills run up and down the backs of the anti-Bradley men in the state.

Reports relative to Mr. Deboe may not be authentic, but a number of prominent Republicans are discussing them. However that may be, it is known that Mr. Combs will have to work a miracle to retain his place as minister to Peru.

It is practically certain that Combs will be succeeded by a Kentuckian, and it is not unreasonable to figure that Mr. Deboe will have a good chance. There are doubtless many senators who would like to see Deboe given recognition.

Caldwell County Notes.

(From PRINCETON LEADER.)

Judge J. F. Gordon, of Madisonville, was in the city Wednesday, enroute home from Mariou where he had been attending Court for the past ten days.

Judge T. J. Nunn, of the Appellate Court, was in our city Wednesday a few hours on his way to Marion, his former home.

Sheriff Flannery, of Marion, passed through the city Wednesday for the Eddyville Penitentiary with Ernest Slaven, who was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Crittenden circuit court last week for the murder of his father-in-law, James P. Sullenger, several months ago.

Wednesday afternoon at the City Hotel Mr. J. W. George and Mrs. Clyde Worth were united in marriage, the ceremony being pronounced by Rev. J. W. Ellington, of Portageville, Mo., the father of the bride. The newly wedded couple are both residents of Crittenden county, and left soon after the ceremony for Hardesty, their future home. The groom is a young miner and while this is his first venture upon the matrimonial sea, it is the third for the bride, who is only twenty-two years of age.

The contract between the Illinois Central and the various mine companies in this section of the State covering the furnishing of coal for engines expired at midnight, March 31. This will no doubt cause most of the mines in the territory to close down until new basis of prices is decided upon by the company and the coal operators. These people will have a meeting within the next ten days for the purpose of renewing these contracts.

We will offer at public sale, at the Court House door in Princeton, Ky., Monday, April 19, between the hours of 10 and 12 a. m., the church building and adjacent lots formerly owned by the First Presbyterian church, situated on North Jefferson street one and a half blocks north of the public square in Princeton, Ky. Terms and conditions made known on day of sale.

Celebration.

On March 29th, 1908, H. B. Stembbridge and J. A. Stembbridge celebrated their birthdays. H. B. Stembbridge being seventy-four years old and J. A. Stembbridge being thirty-three. He had a dinner prepared and a good many of the neighbors and two of the children were present, and at 12 o'clock all partook of the dinner which was composed of the good things that nature has by the help of man provided to eat. All enjoyed a good time.

Uncle Henry, as he was called, is the father of twelve children and eleven are living and grown. In politics, he is a staunch Democrat, his religious principles is a Primitive Baptist, he is a kind and a good neighbor, and a kind up-right man, and the wish of one all is that he may live to celebrate several birthdays yet if it is according to the will of God who directs all things for our good.

BULLETIN ON FLOURSPAR

By F. Julius Fohs—Comprehensive Work Issued by Kentucky Geological Survey.

Lexington, Ky., April 5.—The Kentucky Geological Survey, Charles J. Norwood, director, has just issued Bulletin No. 9, a volume treating on the "Flourspar Deposits of Kentucky," which is the most complete publication on this mineral ever gotten out in the United States. It is by Assistant Director F. Julius Fohs, and is replete with data relating to the general occurrence of flourspar, its technology, etc. Necessarily the bulletin deals chiefly with the deposits in the western end of the State. The bulletin says the deposits of flourspar Central Kentucky have received less attention from prospectors than they may deserve. In fact, it seems not improbable that systematic explorations of those rocks that lie below the limestone will develop flourspar deposits of importance. It is also intended to work a further study of the barytes deposits of that part of the State.

GOOD OPINIONS WELL STATED.

Henderson, Ky., March 20, 1909.

Editor Tobacco Tidings:
Dear Sir—I am in receipt of a letter from a most ardent supporter of the America Society of Equity, one who believes in the efficiency of the A. S. of E. to protect the farming industry. Asking an opinion in one breath, and advocating a most vigorous policy in the next, he says: "I'm in favor of an A. S. of E. pool this year, and for the succeeding years. I'm in favor of separating the sheep from the goats. I'm in favor of a real 'square deal.' I would say that no one may have the privilege of pooling his tobacco who is not man enough to pay the same costs his fellows pay. All of the officers of the A. S. of E. that I have talked too, think that the A. S. of E. Should not play second fiddle to any so-called auxiliary. Thinking so, I hold they should think out loud."

Now, I admire this gentleman's earnestness as well as his fighting proclivities. I believe you will, but at the same time I a little doubtful as to the expediency of such strenuous action. I think all of successful tobacco pools in Kentucky have been A. S. of E. pools. It was the A. S. of E. that taught us how to pool. It was the A. S. of E. that organized the several tobacco associations and put them in working condition. It is the plan of the A. S. of E. that each type, or rather the growers of each type, should manage their own affairs; that is, the details.

The A. S. of E. was big enough and broad enough to consent that those not members of the A. S. of E. might become members of the tobacco associations by pooling. But it was contemplated that the several tobacco associations meet together at least annually around the A. S. of E. hearthstone, and there take counsel, the one with the other, for mutual interest and the general welfare. It was also contemplated that those pooling would assuredly come up like men and join the A. S. of E. after being made beneficiaries of its effective and practicality.

Much can be said, pro and con, as to the foresight of those who shaped that policy. Personally, I think it was the best that could have been done at the time, and has hastened the time of demonstrating the efficiency of the A. S. of E. and brought blessings to thousands who could have received them through no other source. The tobacco associations, however, have been tempting fields for those who have a greater regard for self-interest than public weal; consequently, organization has not been fostered and pushed as it should have been. There has been too much of the glamor of hero worship, and not sufficient regard or appreciation of the real power that was holding the trust at arm's length, viz: the number pooling and their cohesiveness.

Growers, I think, are realizing that more and more, and are looking to the A. S. of E. as the proper fold, and are getting in at a rate that will include all the tobacco growers in the state before the 1909 crop is housed. Wherefore I think there is little doubt of the 1909 pool being an A. S. of E. pool in its broadest sense.

It's my opinion that the opponents

SCREAMED IN TERROR

As Flames Entered the Cell Windows—Military Prison at Leavesworth Burns But Inmates are Saved.

Leavenworth, Kan., April 5.—The military prison at Leavenworth was destroyed by fire late tonight. The prisoners were removed from the cell houses under guard of United States troops and confined in stockade. None of the prisoners escaped, so far as a hasty resume of the situation after midnight showed, but this may not be definitely known until daylight.

Owing to the low water pressure the fire department at the fort was almost useless. The fire was fought by the soldiers who were ordered out of their quarters, and those who were on leave in the city were at once called back to the post.

Two soldiers were injured while fighting the flames, but none of the prisoners were hurt in any way.

Much excitement attended the removal of the prisoners, many of whom are desperate characters. It was feared they would make an organized break for safety.

The fire broke out about 10 o'clock in the tailor shop and it was soon seen that the building was doomed. A great outcry at once broke out in the prison, the convicts fearing they would be burned to death. They battered on the doors of their cells as the light of the fire streamed through the windows. Many screamed in terror, as the authorities for a moment refused to remove them. All the soldiers that could be spared from the ranks of the fire fighters were detailed as guards and then the delivery of prisoners began.

WOOL GROWERS TO MEET APRIL 15, 1909.

State Headquarter, Kentucky State Union A. S. of E. Calhoun, Ky., March 24.—To all members of the above named society in Kentucky who are interested in the production of wool:

Please take notice that in accord with a resolution adopted at the late state convention held at Madisonville on January 14-15 it has become our duty to call a convention for the purpose of organizing a Wool-Growers department of the American Society in Kentucky, said convention to be composed of delegate selected from the several county unions of the state, and in counties having no county organization, locals may send delegates, number of delegates, however, to be on same basis as is provided for the convention, A. S. of E.

By authority vested in us as outlined above, we hereby call said convention to meet in Elizabethtown, Hardin county, on Thursday, April 15, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of organizing such wool growers department, and for the transacting of such business as pertains to the full purposes as are set forth in the foregoing. Respt.

PRESBYTERIAN UNION IS GIVEN A KNOCKOUT.

Nashville, Tenn., April 3.—The Cumberland Presbyterian Church in Tennessee this afternoon won the noted church case with which the Tennessee Supreme Court has been wrestling for two years. The Supreme Court, in an opinion of ninety-one pages, delivered by Justice M. M. Nell, holds that the steps sought to be taken by a portion of the Cumberland Presbyterian church in uniting with the Presbyterian church U. S. A., were not effective.

It was held that the Cumberland church still exists, and that its members still retain its creed, doctrines, etc. It was held that unionists had allied themselves with another different church and doctrines.

The Cumberland are given the church property, and the unionists are adjudged not to have a right or title to it. Their bill, in which they sued to recover church property in Fayetteville Tennessee, is dismissed with cost.

FISCAL COURT

Met Tuesday at the Court House—Entire Board of Magistrate Was Present—Many Claims Allowed.

The Crittenden county fiscal court and court of claims met Tuesday, the entire board of magistrates being present—Esquires Hodges, Postleweight, Beard, Phillips, Marks, Yandell, James and LaRue.

One of the most important questions which came before the board was that of the stock law, a petition having been presented by D. A. Lowery and 100 others asking for a vote of the people on the subject. The board by a vote of six to two decided to let the people vote on it at the next general election.

The Dun Springs bridge and several other important matters, besides claims of all kinds, also engaged the board's attention.

The session held over to Wednesday, at which time it was thought all business could be transacted.

OLLIE JAMES RECEIVES STORM OF APPLAUSE

And Business of House Suspended For Some Minutes, While Many Members Including

REPUBLICANS CROWDED HIM TO CONGRATULATE

Him Upon HIS Great Efforts When he Concluded, what Was Said to Be The Best Speech on the Payne Tariff Bill.

'ROASTED' PROTECTION GIVEN SUGAR AND COFFEE TRUST.

Washington, April 3.—"There is loot enough in it for us all," was the conclusion of Ollie James' speech on the Payne bill in the House today, which created a greater uproar of applause among the Democrats than any tariff speech delivered this session. Mr. James spoke about fifty minutes.

From the start he attacked the inconsistencies and injustices of the pending bill and his conclusion was a climax of denunciation which fairly swept the minority members from their feet. He ridiculed the agriculture schedules and "roasted" the protection given the sugar and tobacco trust.

He received a storm of applause when he concluded and the business of the House was practically suspended for some minutes, while many members, including several Republicans, crowded about him to congratulate him upon his efforts.

What probably will be the last week of general debate on the Payne tariff bill was begun in the house today. The session convened at 10 o'clock with every prospect of a busy day of speech making.

Declaring that the Payne bill "goes one step further in the pillaging of humanity," Mr. James asked what is "a reasonable profit" that the Republicans claim the measure would allow? Who shall decide? He asked "shall it be left to Andrew Carnegie?"

"Pricked by a conscience that has allowed him to loot for many years, Mr. Carnegie," he said, "commenced to establish in the various cities and towns of the country libraries, where hungry, ragged men may read of feast they could not attend, and of comforts

ESCAPES GALLOWS BY NARROW MARGIN---ERNEST SLAYDEN GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

For the Murder of James Sullenger---Jury Out Only Fifty-five Minutes-- Trial Lasted Nine Days--Three Days Spent in Securing Jury--Two Special Venires Summoned.

HARDEST FOUGHT CASE IN CRITTENDEN CIRCUIT COURT FOR MANY YEARS.

(By J. W. HUTCHEN)

The defense caused Hutchen to admit that he told Robt. Sullenger that if he insisted on keeping back what he knew about the case he would put him in jail. Hutchen said he did it because he found the boy had knowledge of facts that would tend to throw light on the case and refused to tell what he knew.

The next witness was Mrs. Jenie Morris. She almost positively identified the pole in evidence.

There was followed by Mrs. Allie Sullenger, who was questioned mainly about remarks she overheard Slayden make, and her evidence was mainly cumulative. She was followed by Mrs. William Clark. Mrs. Clark told the jury that long after the body had been taken from the well, Ernest Slayden told her that: Mr. Sullenger would have done that himself. He could have made a kied of halter and swung himself down into the cistern; then reached out and covered it up then took his knife and cut the rope and let himself fall in. She said he explained that the wounds in his head might have been made by the fall into the well.

Albert Travis, jailer of Crittenden county, told of the visit of the Myers or McCool woman to the jail. He said that the woman was in the jail when Mrs. Slayden entered and that she hid from her.

Ermine and Bertha Sullenger were next placed on the stand. They corroborated their father by saying that they were about the store on the night of the murder and that they saw no horse or horses and rider pass out that way that night.

Mrs. Alvin Curnel was the next witness. She corroborated other witnesses regarding remarks said to have been made by Slayden regarding the suicide theory.

Henry Sullenger was the next witness. He said that he heard Ernest Slayden talking about suicide. He told of having a pair of plow lines at his home, and said that one of them was of one size and the other of another. He said he believed the ropes found in the cistern were of two sizes. Sam Sullenger, Jr., Dee Sullenger, James Hudson, Sam Curnel were all corroborative as to statements alleged to have been made by Slayden about suicide, etc. Following these Amanda May, an old negroess, was placed on the stand. She corroborated other witnesses who had testified that they heard horses passing to and fro on the road between James Sullenger's home and Lola the night of the murder. Jesse Porter had said that on the night of the killing he had heard a horse, traveling very rapidly, pass his home going toward Lola.

Aunt Mariah May told the jury she was awake late that night and that she heard a horse go into Lola very late, and later heard a horse, or two horses leave Lola and go back toward James Sullenger's home. She was corroborated by Amanda May, another negroess. The latter stated that she heard a horse go into Lola but did not hear one leave there that night.

Mrs. Rob't Parish, of Lola, was the next witness. She said her mother was ill that night, and that she had occasion to be awake. She said that sometime about midnight she heard a horse pass her going toward Lola—that it was a racking horse. She said in about fifteen or twenty minutes afterward she heard two horses going in the opposite direction—one racking and the other short-losing. She thought it was some one who had come to call Dr. Davis. She said sometime toward morning she heard another horse pass going toward Lola, and that it was short-losing.

Anderson P. Pe was then placed on the stand. He was asked if the horse belonging to Henry Slayden, at Lola, is a short-loper. He replied that it was—that he had been riding all the day before with Henry Slayden, and that the horse's short-losing gait was the best it had under the saddle.

Dr. W. C. Davis the next placed on the stand. His evidence was regarding certain cases statements he had overheard and was not considered of importance.

Peter Sullenger, the oldest son of James P. Sullenger, was the last witness in chief for the Commonwealth. His statements, which were not corroborated by other witnesses, as to one point, were damaging to the defendant. He said that Ernest Slayden told him, on Saturday after the murder, that he (Ernest Slayden) had thought he heard Mr. Sullenger come home that night, and that he had gotten up from the supper table and gone down to the lot. That when he reached there—or before he reached the lot he thought he heard the chain rattle at the gate, but that when he got down there he saw no one. Peter said Slayden told him he then turned out the cows and went back to the house.

After a conference of half an hour, the defense began the taking of evidence. John W. Hutchen was recalled by the defense and questioned regarding statements to the effect that the defendant was innocent. Hutchen reiterated his original statement, saying he had made such statements, but that he did it to keep down a mob.

The court ruled that the question was irrelevant, but the Commonwealth made no objection and he was permitted to answer.

The next witness was John Boley, a convict serving a term in the Eddyville penitentiary for house breaking, sent up from Henderson county. Boley had been brought here by the Commonwealth, but had been held by the defense. He was asked regarding a statement to Jailer Jennings that Slayden had told him he killed Sullenger for his estate, but he denied it. He said if he said it to Jennings it was untrue. When asked if Slayden, while in jail at Henderson, had joined in a plan to escape, Boley said he had not.

The next witness was Frank Miller. Miller was brought here by the Commonwealth from the Henderson jail. He testified that Ernest knew of the plan to escape, and said that Slayden had once said, while in jail at Henderson, that he intended to get out; go down to his mother's at Lola and stay in the attic a few days; that he would then go to Canada, where that "feller that committed rape went."

The defense then placed Ernest Slayden on the stand. He was questioned for nearly an hour by his attorneys, he making denial of numerous statements attributed to him by the Commonwealth witnesses, and admitting others. He denied the conversation said to have been overheard by Hutchen in the Gill House. On cross-examination he made a good witness for himself.

When court adjourned Tuesday evening Slayden was still on the stand, and was recalled Wednesday morning.

At the forenoon session, Slayden admitted writing the letters to the McCool woman at St. Louis. When asked why he had written to her he said he did not know of anything else to say. He was asked by Mr. Grayot to read the letter in evidence, and replied that he did not want to read it. He was forced by the court to read it, however, which he did. In the letter Slayden spoke to her in endearing terms, telling her that he still loved her and apologized for not writing oftener. He told her he could hardly wait until July fourth to visit her; that if he had the money he would go to see her and remain a week. He asked her in two places to send him her room address, using a post-script to make the last request.

Slayden admitted many of the conversations alleged by the Commonwealth witnesses, but denied that he made certain statements during these conversations. He was asked by Mr. Grayot about the rope found in the cistern. He admitted that the rope in evidence was that taken from the cistern, all but one piece—a bridle rein, which Mr. Grayot asked him find among the rope. He stopped down from the stand and searched among the rope, finally singling out the piece, which he denied was with the rope in the cistern.

Slayden said he did not go down to the barn after supper on the night of the murder. He said that he and Bob turned the cows out before dark—that he opened the gate and that Bob drove them out of the lot. He said he left the dining room—or kitchen after supper and went to the well and drew a bucket of water, after which he went directly to the front and sat down on a bench with his wife, where he remained until about eight o'clock, when he retired. He said he was awake at half-past ten, as he heard the clock strike the hours until the half was reached. He said he did not leave his bed room after entering it until next morning. He denied that he rode Mr. Sullenger's horse to John Sullenger's and then rehitched it at the gate of the school house lot and rode the other horse down to the house. He denied that making any statements to the jail birds at Henderson, and denied that he knew of the plot to escape jail. His testimony was mainly a denial of all statements alleged to have been made by him by other witnesses. He admitted writing to the St. Louis woman from the jail at Henderson; but said that he had not had anything to do with her after his marriage to Mr. Sullenger's daughter.

Slayden made sweeping denials of the statements attributed to him by Hutchen, the detective. He said no such statement was made by him at the Gill hotel, as was alleged to have been made by Hutchen, but he did not outline any conversation he had with his wife on that occasion. Slayden admitted that he did explain to divers persons that Mr. Sullenger could have let himself into the cistern, but denied that he said he could have knocked the holes in his head by pulling himself up against the top of the cistern.

He denied that he struck to the suicide theory after he had seen the condition of the body, and denied that he objected to blood hounds being carried to the scene. He said he told his wife to see if Mr. Sullenger had returned home Saturday after his disappearance and if he had not, to bring his Sunday pants, for he would have to go and see about him.

The next witness placed on the stand was Mrs. Ernest Slayden but she was not permitted to testify. She was followed by W. W. Parks, formerly a storekeeper and gauger in the employ of the government service. Parks was placed on the stand for the purpose of contradicting Detective Hutchen. Hutchen had stated, that on the night Slayden was arrested he had gone to a room in the Gill house and had overheard certain conversation between Slayden and his wife. Parks' testimony was to the effect that he had gone to the room occupied by Detective Hutchen on that night, had crawled under the bed Hutchen occupied, and had overheard the conversation between Slayden and his wife, and that no such conversation occurred between Slayden and wife as was alleged by Hutchen.

Parks also stated that on the second day of May last year he was on a train between Marion and Blackford and that he overheard Hutchen say that Ernest Slayden was not guilty, but that he (Hutchen) could convict him for $1500 or $2,000. On cross examination Parks at first said he was studying to be a detective under "detective company" in Louisville, but when pressed as to the name of the agency he admitted he was not, but said he had been reading a detective book.

Thirty minutes after Parks testified he was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Pickens and Gilliland on a charge of perjury. The warrant was sworn out by Detective Hutchen.

At this point Walter McConnell, J. A. McAbee, Cam Crayne and Dozier Hill, were introduced one after the other for the purpose of showing that Detective Hutchen had made the statement in their presence that Slayden was innocent. They were not permitted to testify, the court holding that the point had no bearing upon the case; saying that the jury was not trying the case from Hutchen's opinion.

Green Crawford was next called. He was a member of the Coroner's jury that sit on the inquest of James P. Sullenger. Mr. Crawford said that he saw some blood about the Sullenger barn, but that it appeared to be dry or old blood.

Coroner Charles Walker was next called. His testimony was about the same as that of Crawford. He said he did not see much blood.

The Coroner was followed by Mrs. Henry Slayden. She testified that her husband, Henry Slayden, did not leave home the night of the murder. She was followed by Dr. Henry Slayden, father of the defendant. Dr. Slayden testified regarding statements to have been made by him, denying a number of statements, especially those testified by Hutchen. He denied that he told Hutchen the reason he had kept his horse in the lot the night of the killing was because he had to go to Manus Magrue's early Saturday morning. Dr. Slayden said he did not leave his home at all on the night of the murder. He said he heard of the killing about four o'clock on the afternoon of the next day after the killing.

Ed Slayden and his wife followed Dr. Slayden. They testified that neither Ed nor Dr. Slayden left their home in Lola the night of the killing.

Lawrence Tackwell was the next witness. He said he heard a number of people over about the Sullenger home talking the suicide theory besides Ernest Slayden. He also said he saw some blood that was being talked about at the stable but that it looked old to him.

Thomas Hardin was next introduced. He said that he lived on the road between Sullenger's and Lola and that he had a five watch dog. He said he did not hear his dog bark that night.

Charles Brown was next introduced. He also said he had a good dog and did not hear him bark that night. He was asked by Mr. Grayot if he awakened everytime his dog barked and he said he did not—if he did he would be awake up to time.

The last witness was Mrs. Gill. She was introduced for the purpose of contradicting Hutchen. She said on the witness stand that Hutchen said if she would say certain things about his living at her home the night Slayden was arrested he (Hutchen) would take care of her. Her testimony concluded the evidence and both sides rested. The arguments were commenced at once, Hon. A. C. Moore, for the prosecution making the opening speech. He was followed by Mayor John W. Blue, for the defense, and he by Hon. C. R. Henderson for the prosecution. Court then adjourned until Friday morning, when Attorneys James and Grayot concluded their arguments.

Ball of Snakes.

The Dixon Journal claims the honor of printing the first spring snake story. Here it is:

"Tom Wilson and Bluke Polly, of the Tilden country, a few days ago, while digging in the hill known as Buffalo Wallow, looking for some kind of animal, they knew not what, were surprised when they unearthed a ball of snakes the size of a water bucket. There were twenty snakes in the ball, ranging in length from two and a half to five feet. There were six different species of the snake tribe in the ball, including copperheads, black racers, blue racers, garter, spreading adders. A faithful dog killed all the snakes. This is a true story and is vouched for by Mr. Tom Wilson, an honorable citizen of of the Tilden country. Who can beat this for a snake story?"

W. CLIFT STANDS BY FARMERS' UNION.

ys Union Was Not Organized to Raise Prices and Nothing Else, But to

DEVELOP TRUE BROTHERLY LOVE AMONG FARMERS.

All Classes of People of All Occupations are Organized—Why Not The Farmers?

WILL MEET ANYONE WHO DISAPPROVES OF FARMERS' ORGANIZATIONS.

Ford's Ferry, Ky., March 20, '09.

Dear Editor:—In the issue of the Record Press for March 5, there appeared another article from T. W. Moore in which he made a reply to a letter of February 25. As he did not seem to understand me clearly, I will try, in a more extended article, to inform him just what I think about the Farmers' Union and other unions among the farmers.

In the first place the Farmers' Union was not organized for the purpose of increasing the price of products and nothing else. The purpose of the Farmers' Union is to get the farmers together and unite them to develop a true brotherly love among the farmers, and to advance the interests of farming in as many ways as possible.

Every farmer knows something about some particular line of farming that would be a help to his fellow men, and by coming together and exchanging their ideas on farming, they would become wiser and better fitted to cope with the various problems of farm life. Thus the mutual and social benefit which is caused by unions among the farmers amply repays every farmer for the trouble and expense involved by belonging to them.

Mr. Moore does not seem to believe that the farmers' organizations have had anything to do with the increase of the prices of farm products. He also says the tobacco associations have done no good. My father is an experienced tobacco grower and has worked in tobacco for some forty years, and he says that several years ago the buyers paid $8 for tobacco in Union county and would then come over in Crittenden and buy tobacco just as good for $5.

This can be called by no other name than robbery. Now that the farmers have begun pooling their tobacco the price has improved very greatly within the past few years. The English buyers have conceded the fact that the tobacco associations have caused the price of tobacco to advance.

The price of cotton has increased in almost the same manner. This has been caused by the cotton growers pooling their cotton in the Farmers' Unions and by doing this they have saved millions of dollars.

The farmers have never until recently secured the proper price for their products. Many a farmer has been compelled to take his children out of school and put them to work on the farm. After working hard all year in cultivating, housing and stripping the tobacco, when the crop was sold the farmer would receive in return scarcely enough money to recompense him for his own labor, to say nothing of the work done by his own children. These facts are enough to arouse even the most lukewarm among the farmers.

Mr. Moore says that if I could suggest some plan of union that would be free from graft he might possibly agree with me. I do not know of any grafting or scheming in the Stemming District Tobacco Association. I do not know how it may be in other districts. Even should a few corrupt politicians get into the farmers' organizations, should we fall out with the principles of these unions? Should we abandon the church of Christ because a few impious fellows got into that organization? Did the apostles of Jesus abandon the Lord and his teachings because one of their number got to grafting?

Instead of pronouncing the unions no good, as Mr. Moore does, we should knock out the grafters and more firmly uphold and defend the principles of the unions. Every class of people on the face of the earth, from the boot-blacks to the millionaires, are well organized, and why not the farmers? The farming people are the most important class of people in the United States, and if they would organize themselves effectively they would soon come to the front in everything.

Taking all the above facts into consideration, any right-thinking person can readily see that farmers' organizations are all right and that no reasonable objection can be brought against them. I care not what others may think, but as for me, I am ready to defend the cause of the farmers and the laboring class of people as long as there is a drop of blood in my body.

Mr. Moore is mistaken as to my being a "learned school teacher." I have never taught school. I am just a farmer's boy, and nothing else.

If Mr. Moore, or any one else who is against organizations among the farmers, will meet me half way in an oral discussion on this subject, I will bring up facts that will prove that unions among the farmers are perfectly right, justifiable and needed.

Plenty More Like This in Marion. Scores of Marion people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement?

Jane Byford, Marion, Ky., says: "I was greatly benefited by Doan's Kidney Pills and consequently I am in position to recommend them. My kidney trouble was brought on by exposure, together with a great deal of hard work. I suffered from the complaint for two years. I was unable to rest well on account of the dull pains through my back and in the morning I arose feeling very stiff. When I stooped, sharp twinges seized me and caused me intense suffering. I tired easily, felt very nervous and had dizzy spells and headaches. I knew from the sediment in the kidney secretions that my kidneys were disordered and a frequent desire to pass the secretions at night, also proved this fact. Since using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Haynes & Taylor's drug store, I have improved a great deal in every way. I have no hesitation in recommending this remedy as one that lives up to representations."

Starch Eaters

As Truly Enslaved as Are Drug Fiends

By DR. J. R. GIBBS, New York City.

SHORT time ago I was called in to a case of a girl who was suffering from anaemia. She worked in a laundry. I questioned her closely as to her habits of eating and living. I regulated her diet and gave her strong medicines. The case baffled me. Finally she happened to remark that she chewed a lot of starch. I ordered her to quit it, and she promised me she would. But she broke her word again and again. I labored with her three months before she finally gave up starch-eating.

From this girl I got my insight into a habit which after ten years of study I now do not profess to understand. Like many working girls she was a gum-chewer. I wonder how many gum-chewers realize the strength of the hold the habit has upon them? This girl one day forgot to stock up with gum before going to the laundry. Once at her work she could not get away. For weeks and months she had chewed gum as she worked. Her jaws had been incessantly in motion. On this day she was constantly conscious of the absence of the gum. She was unhappy. She had nothing to chew on. She chewed her handkerchief, but it had not the consistency of gum and did not satisfy. The thought of gum became almost an obsession.

Finally, in desperation, she thought of starch. It was white and powdery, but in a short time the moisture of the mouth and the manipulation of the jaws reduced it to somewhat of the consistency of gum. It was a poor substitute.

She chewed starch all that day. The longer she chewed a "wad" of starch the sweeter it became. That evening she noticed that her teeth were whiter than they had ever been before. She confided this discovery to another girl in the laundry, who informed her that she had been chewing starch a long time.

The second girl had a complexion which was much admired. It was white and colorless but very clear. My patient's informant told her that many laundry girls chewed starch for the complexion.

So my patient gave up gum and chewed starch constantly. True, her complexion improved, but she did not know that a clear, white complexion is but an indication of impoverished blood. She kept on.

The odd thing about starch-eating is that starch has absolutely no medicinal virtue, nor does it exhilarate or depress. It is simply an inferior food which makes flabby, worthless flesh. It is a clog to the digestive apparatus, and the starvation of the blood is a sure result of its long continued use. I cannot understand where the appetite—if there is an appetite—comes in. Yet persuading a starch-eater to give up the habit is a long and difficult process.

Liver Trouble Remedy Free

Any intelligent person can be his own doctor in the ordinary case of liver trouble, for the symptoms cannot be mistaken. If the white of the eye becomes yellowish, if the skin becomes sallow, if pimples and blotches appear, if the bowels do not move, if you have sick headache, if you are bilious, you may be sure that your liver is torpid or inactive.

The quickest and surest remedy yet found for the cure of liver trouble or any of its symptoms is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the great herb laxative compound. This wonderful remedy is not only a laxative, but a tonic as well. It will start the flow of gastric juice, thereby soon enabling the liver to do its work naturally. A bottle of this great liver remedy can be bought of any druggist for 50 cents or $1, and in many cases a single bottle has cured a chronic case.

For example, John W. Lee, 619 S. Pennsylvania ave., Indianapolis, Ind., had a stubborn and very long-standing case of liver trouble, with pimples, blotches, jaundice, etc., and it cured him. Mrs. B. Plinchum, Jackson, Ky., says the same of it. Thousands of families keep it in the house against just such an emergency, as you can never tell when some member of the family will need a good laxative.

In order to have you or any other sufferer from the liver make a test of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without personal expense, Dr. Caldwell will send you a free test bottle if you will send your name and address. The sample will show you how pleasant it is to take, how gently it works. It will start you on the cure of your trouble and convince you that you have found a cure. That is the object of the sample, and the doctor urges you to send for it today.

they could not have." He asserted that the so-called reason for the tariff was to be upon watered stock and fictitious values.

Mr. James also characterized the tariff on farm products a delusion and a snare and "a most consummate fraud."

Mr. James attacked the maximum features of the bill. He declared that the plan of the tariff was to punish consumers because the Governments across the sea will not deal fairly with American manufacturers. "Your whole vision," he said, only includes the manufacturer."

Mr. James announced his intention of offering an amendment to authorize suspensions of important duties on commodities or articles of merchandise of foreign make here if the value of similar articles in excess of the value of any trust or monopoly. He insisted that wherever the maximum rate is applied, it would wipe off the free list at least fifty articles. He denounced the sugar and tobacco trusts and advocated an income tax.

This is the most dangerous time of the year to catch cold, and it is the hardest time to cure it. If you should take a cold, a few doses of Kenedy's promptly. Its laxative principle cures the cold by driving it from the system by a gentle but natural action of the

GOOD OPINION WELL STATED.

of farmers' co-operation are doing all they can to increase the acreage in the adjoining States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, also in the southwestern portion of Kentucky, where organization is not particularly strong, and where every artifice known to the ingenuity of the devil has been and is being resorted to foment discension and discord.

The song of the trust siren may prove so alluring to our unsuspecting and covetous neighbors as to induce them to lay aside wheat, corn and potatoes for tobacco, never dreaming that the bunch of "Reubs" that had sense enough and pluck enough to hold their own with the Tobacco Trust might have sense enough to make it exceedingly interesting for a set of unorganized dumpsters. To meet this condition, I think we need the most complete organization that it is possible to effect.
Then, in July, send agents into those States to make personal inspection, and if they report and excessive acreage of tobacco, we should adopt one of two systems, viz: dump the 1908 Kentucky crop, and thereby give them a full dose of tobacco, or else pool the 1909 Kentucky crop and refuse to sell any part of it to a manufacturer that buys the substitute, but sell to the manufacturer's competitor the genuine Kentucky tobacco at less cost than was paid for the substitute, let that be what is may.
However, should our agents report that our neighbors had shown the good sense to stock to wheat, corn and potatoes, and keep their fingers out of the tobacco howl, then we should do all we could to hold up the price on those products.

Holding those views, I think the need of the hour is for organize! organize!
organize!!!

Let there be a local union of the A.
S. of E. in every school district in Kentucky and the tobacco question is settled for all the time.

very truly yours,
THOS. T. BARRETT.

MI-O-NA

Relieves Stomach Misery Almost Immediately.

If the food you ate at your last meal did not digest, but laid for a long time like lead on your stomach, then you have digestion, and must act quickly.

Of course there are many other symptoms of indigestion, such as belching up of sour food, heartburn, dizziness, shortness of breath, and foul breath, and if you have any of them, your stomach is out of order and should be corrected.

Mi-o-na tablets have cured thousands of cases of indigestion and stomach trouble. If you have any stomach distress, Mi-o-na will relieve instantly.
But Mi-o-na unlike most so-called dyspepsia remedies, does more than relieve; it permanently cures dyspepsia or any stomach trouble by putting energy and strength into the walls of the stomach.

A large box of Mi-o-na tablets costs but 50 cents at HAYNES & TAYLOR's are guaranteed to cure or money back.
When others fail, Mi-o-na cures. It is a producer of flesh when the body is thin; it cleanses the stomach and bowels, purifies the blood, and makes rich, red blood. 45 47.

MRS. BEBOUT DEAD.

two weeks' illness. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis G.
Daniel and about ten years ago was married to J. E. Bebout.

She was a good woman in every sense of the word; a devoted wife and loving mother, to true christian and a member of the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church.

She leaves behind her, besides her husband and five children, a father, mother, four sisters, and a brother.
Her sisters are:—Mrs. G. T. Ruck, son, Miss; Mrs. E. J. Murphy, of Paducah; Miss Eva Daniel, Lima, Oh'o, and her brother John H. Daniel, of Lima, Ohio.

She was buried at Chapel Hill cemetery Saturday. The funeral services were conducted by her Pastor, Rev. A.
J. Thompson, and many friends gathered to pay a last tribute of love to one who had been taken from them while yet so young.

TOBACCO TIDINGS.

Since all members, save only a few who have disposed of receipts, hold warehouse receipts calling for 25 per cent, of face value, which balance falls due so soon as sales are made of Association holdings, it follows, I say, that all members are concerned to know, as nearly as may be computed, the present and probable value of all outstanding warehouse receipts.

The estimate to follow I commend as of weighty import, since it is based on information gained by this writer from Manager Elliot and Secretary Thompson, who are—the two of them—in a position to know, and actually do know, more about Association finances present and prospective than any other two named officers. Understand, then, what follows is an echo of the combined voices of Elliot and Thompson.

Much, of course, depends on when present holdings are sold and at what price.

But—
This Association never hitherto issued a warehouse receipt which was not taken up at face value supplemented by a dividend.

Outstanding receipts are worth what they call for.

Let timid and conservative members insure against disappointment by fancying all sorts of adverse circumstances, and, to insure against same, subtract fourteen cents per hundred pounds, or say two per cent., from face value of receipt, and the remainder is present value.

It is impossible to be more definite until the close of the season.

Secretary Thompson, discounting any flim-flamming Trust tortuosities, say it will be rather under than over two per cent. And Thompson knows.

Manager Elliot says receipts are worth all they call for.

Members with all the facts before them are quite competent to form their own conclusions. In matters of this sort I am content to lay the facts before the members. And I am never content until I can give the members all the facts gatherable.

A good member of this Association and a reader of a number of newspapers said to me yesterday:

"The Burley people seem to be terribly regarding the pooling of the current year's crop. If they don't pool, why should we?"

Existing conditions," I answered,
"are quite dissimilar. The Burley people cut last year's crop out—while we produced a normal, or nearly normal, crop. Wherefore without a big crop of Burley this year the world's supply of Burley will presumably be inadequate to meet consumers' demands.
Not so with the stemming type of tobacco—production has kept pace with consumption—no crop has been cut out.
I don't know if the Burley people will pool or not—I see they mean to keep

Sturgis Man Killed.

Carmi, Ill., March 31.—John Gains, a middle aged man from Sturgis, Kentucky, was instantly killed early this morning on the Louisville & Nashville railroad a few miles west of this city. The man was evidently riding the rods and in some manner slipped and fell.
His body was badly mangled.

New Tariff On Fluorspar.

The Payne Tariff bill which will probably pass the lower house next Monday contains a provision putting a tariff of $1.50 on fluorspar instead of 50 cents as now. It is hoped by the friends of the measure that it will pass the senate also, but that remains to be seen.

ARBOR DAY.

Arbor Day was celebrated in Marion by many citizens. About one hundred trees were set on Mary avenue, the new southern extension of Main street which was named for Mrs. Mary Ford, the mother of W. R. Cruce, who has worked so hard to get this street opened, and for Mrs. Mary Baker, the wife of A. J. Baker, who also took great interest in this road, and Mrs. Mary Blue, wife of Mayor Blue the Illinois Central railroad attorney, who advised the company to put in the crossing and for Mrs. Mary Wilson, wife of R. W. Wilson, who owned the land until recently, and for Mrs. Mary Jenkins, mother of S. M. Jenkins, who gave the land for the street.

At the Graded School Prof. King and his enthusiastic pupils set a number of trees on the campus, one being set and named by each of the grades.

Quite a number were set in other parts of the city.

Puerto Real, Spain, April 3.—Vice Admiral Pascual Cervera, who commanded the Spanish fleet in the battle of Santiago de Cuba, died here this afternoon.

NOTICE TO TOBACCO GROWERS.

Owing to conditions over which we have no control, we are compelled to close the factory at this place after April 7, until further notice. Your executive board and general manager have done everything in their power to keep their house open but, owing to the fact that so much tobacco has been delivered in bad condition, it is necessary to work it up immediately or it will damage in bulk.

There is another matter we would impress on the minds of the tobacco growers of this county. Your committee sold nearly one million pounds of Crittenden county tobacco and agreed to deliver it to the buyer's factories at Providence, Madisonville or Nebo. Up to this time not half of this amount has been delivered. The Providence factory has been filled and closed for the season. The Imperial Co. at Nebo is wanting this Crittenden county tobacco and the representative of that company is calling on your general manager to carry out his contract.

Now, what shall we do about it? The tobacco is sold at a good price, if delivered at the buyer's factory. It is unsold if it is delivered here. We expect the buyer to fulfill his contract. Have we enough business integrity to go to the trouble of hauling our tobacco a few miles farther in order to carry out our obligations? What will the buyers think of us next year if we fail to live up to our contracts this year? Do you want to get, promptly, what is due you on your warehouse certificate? Then let every good Association man, who can possibly do so, deliver his tobacco to Nebo.

Wm. Elliott.

TERRY-GUESS

An April Bride—A Fine Young Couple—Two Prominent Families Unite.

At the home of the bride's father, Z. T. Terry, Esquire, in the Hebron vicinity, on Wednesday afternoon, April 7, Miss Lena Terry was united in marriage to John M. Guess, of Tolu, a son of Mrs. Sarah Guess and the late Jos. W. Guess.

The bride is a strikingly handsome blonde and related to many of the county's best people, the Terrys, Deans and Witherspoons. She graduated from the Marion school and has a host of friends here, where she lived for several years during her school life.

The groom is likewise highly connected with the Shanks, Barnes, Cook, and Yeakey families.

They start out on the matrimonial sea with bright prospects of a happy voyage, and the wish of the editor is that their brightest dreams may be realized.

Don't Be a Mother-in-haste.

If you are a "mother-in-haste," you can expect to have nervous, irritable children, for a child feels his environments keenly; and where there is unrest and a lack of peace in the home, it gets into the child's disposition and then reacts on your own.

Therefore, My Lady, take time to be quiet and deliberate in your actions and do not be "busy" when the boy wants you to pass judgment on the snow-man he is building, even though it necessitates your putting on your golf cape to go and inspect it. Or, when he wants his reins mended or a button sewed on his uniform, do it willingly. And, above all, let him understand that you are never too much in haste to lay down what you are doing, if he, restless and fretful, wants a little petting.—The April DELINEATOR.

CHAPTER IX.

In Which I Learn Our Port.

I sank down into the depths of an upholstered divan without, rested my head within my hands, and endeavored earnestly to collect thought and nerve for the coming struggle. The terrible-ness of our situation only became more apparent as I considered it in the light of the discoveries already made, and in my understanding of the nature of those with whom I was now associated. Neither Tuttle nor De Nova had ever mistaken the Sea Queen for the warship Esmeralda. It was impossible to conceive that these two trained seamen could have made such an error, or that the men under their command had been so utterly deceived. Tuttle's boat came up directly beneath the bows, with the rising lamps burning brightly and revealing the name; every man aboard must have seen it plainly. Yet what object could have led to so desperate an act of piracy? What part was I destined to play in the final working out of their lawless scheme?

The longer I studied over the problem the more thoroughly did I become mystified and confused. What could these men ever hope to accomplish in this lawless fashion? They must be fools or madmen. This was not the age of piracy; every league of sea was patrolled; every port protected by telegraphic communication. Where could they sail? Where could they expect to land? Where on all the round globe could they hope to go to escape the vengeance of British power on the high seas? What object could possibly inspire them to so reckless an act?

Difficult as my own situation undoubtedly was, apparently helpless among this crew of sea devils, without a man on board in whom I could put trust, it was rendered a thousand times harder by the presence of those two women. In what way could I protect and serve them? I wondered if all the crew forward were in the plot, or were the leaders alone involved? Could I count on finding a single honest sailor in all that raffish crew who would stand by me in revolt? There were others on board—the three seamen and the engineer of the yacht's crew, the Chilean officer captured on shore—but they were prisoners, far more helpless even than myself. The longer I thought the darker grew the prospect, the closer the cords of Fate pressed about me. There was nothing to do except to face the conspirators boldly, and thus ascertain the whole truth. I glanced upward at the telltale compass overhead—the vessel's course had already been altered; we were now headed westward, directly out into the broad Pacific.

I met Tuttle at the end of the passage, clinging to the handrail, his skin pale as the head wind. He never glanced toward me, the cool, studied insolence of the fellow causing me to feel more deeply than ever before his consciousness of power.

"The yacht is several points off her course, Mr. Tuttle," I said, sharply, determined to test him. "May I say if the change was made by your order?"

"I swept one long arm toward the north, and, following the direction of his finger, I dimly perceived a spiral of black smoke barely visible above the horizon.

"I thought we had better sheer off, as there was no guessing who that yellow yonder might prove to be."

I remained silent, watching the distant smudge, and occasionally glancing aside into his imperturbable face. He yawned sleepily.

"I rather guess one of us had better turn in, Mr. Stephens," he suggested finally, "for we'll have to arrange about our watches aft."

"Presently, Mr. Tuttle; we haven't breakfasted yet. Meanwhile I should prefer to understand matters a little more clearly. I've just been through the cabins. None of the yacht's officers are on board."

I could see his thin lips drawn back in a sinister grin, which revealed his yellow teeth.

"The Lord helpeth those who help themselves," he returned, plausibly, rolling his eyes. "The race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong."

"I also discovered," I went on, agitated by such abominable cant, "that this vessel we have captured is not the Chilean Esmeralda at all, but the yacht Sea Queen, owned by Lord Darlington, and flying the English flag."

"The hell you say?"

"Moreover, I have not the slightest doubt that you knew it from the first. Now I demand some explanation, Mr. Tuttle. What does this mean?"

He stood leaning back against the rail facing me, his disagreeable grin gone from his lips, his half-closed eyes glinting uneasily.

"Well, what of it?"

"Only that we have committed an act of piracy. Every naval vessel of the civilized world will be used to hunt us down. We shall not be safe on any sea, nor able to land in any port of the globe. If we resist we shall be blown out of the water; if captured, our crime means death. You have deliberately decoyed me into this affair for some secret purpose of your own; you have involved me in your crime, and now I insist upon some knowledge of your plan, and an explanation regarding my future authority on board."

"Oh, you are the captain," sneeringly.

"What more can you want?"

"Then, if I am, we will head directly back to Valparaiso."

"Oh, I rather guess not," and Tuttle's eyes became instantly hard and ugly. "Nevertheless you're captain all right, just so long as you keep the nose of the old girl pointed the way we want her to go."

"That is it, is it?"

"Yes, that's exactly the ticket."

I turned partially aside, glancing toward the wheelman. The fellow was leaning forward over the spokes, evidently deeply interested in our controversy and endeavoring to hear all we had to say. Tuttle followed the direction of my eyes, but with apparent indifference.

"Oh, they all understand about it," he remarked, carelessly. "And now I guess maybe it's about time we gave you the main points to chew on. If you'll step down into the charthouse, Mr. Stephens, I'll fetch some things I want to show you, and be along myself in a jiffy. Then I'll spin a yarn that'll cause you to come with us willin' enough, or else you're a dam' fool."

There was nothing else to do, and I followed him down the bridge steps to the main deck. The charthouse had its single door opening aft, and was a small, plainly built structure painted a dingy gray, with two narrow windows on either side, and just enough space within to contain a deal table, locker, and three rude benches. I sat down upon one of these, filled and lighted my pipe and waited in silence, gazing idly at the chart pinned flat on the table. It was a map of these waters lying off the Chilean coast, and a vessel's course had been pricked upon it from Juan Fernandez to Valparaiso. This did not particularly interest me, and my thought drifted naturally to the woman impatiently awaiting my return in the cabin. What a distressing situation for one of Lady Darlington's birth and refinement! And yet with what dignity of manner had she met the unexpected! It was plain to be seen that hers was a heart of courage, not easily broken under adversity.

And how could I hope to serve her? What would this crew of hell-hounds, these merciless sea-wolves, permit me to do? Trans-ship them upon some passing vessel? Put into some isolated island port? This was scarcely likely, for either act would involve the danger of an exposure they would be little inclined to assume. I comprehended already that it would be according to their decision, and not mine. I had been plainly informed how little my control extended over their desires. And whether were we bound? Into what strange seas? Into what species of wild adventure? The utter impossibility of keeping those two concealed below for any length of time was clearly evident. Ship life was far too restricted. Both Tuttle and De Nova would naturally expect to lodge aft, and it was a privilege they could not easily be denied. Yet what would they say, how would they act, when they finally discovered these two unwilling passengers aboard? What was my duty in all the circumstances? It was all a deep, unsolvable mystery, yet out of its mist constantly floated the appalling face of that woman awaiting me below. I could not desert her. I could not consider anything except how I might best serve her interests, best protect her from the contamination of this hell abode.

Three shadows suddenly darkened the doorway, and Tuttle, accompanied by De Nova and the big seaman named Bill Anderson, entered. The second officer nodded to me in genial fashion, his white teeth gleaming, but Anderson slouched sullenly past and dropped heavily on a bench, his coarse bulldog features devoid of all expression, his square jaws munching the tobacco in his cheek. I took notice of his eyes, staring straight out of the window opposite, dull, dog-like, deeply sunken under thatched brows, his skin like brown leather drawn tight, his short red neck, and gnarled hands. Altogether he appeared a repulsive brute, no more easily subdued than a jungle tiger. Tuttle sidled along to the opposite side of the table, upon which he placed a tightly rolled, yellowish-backed paper, evidently a nautical chart. As I watched him curiously, he suddenly pressed the point of his thumb down upon the paper.

"There's our first port, Mr. Stephens," he announced dogmatically. "There, where you see that red cross."

I bent over, startled out of all assumed indifference as I studied the position indicated.

"The hell you say?"

He nodded, running his long fingers through his thin hair.

"Right you are, sir. I guess there won't be no warships a-trailin' after us down in them latitudes; not at this season of the year."

"But there's nothing there!" I continued, staring incredulously at the map. "Nothing but fog and floating ice. There is no land marked within 500 miles."

"Just the same there's land there," he retorted, positively, his thin lips pressed together. "I've seen it; two islands, and that's where the Sea Queen pokes her nose."

"The Hell You Say."

I could merely sit back, staring at the fellow, who remained leaning both hands on the table, his glinting eyes on my face.

"It's a rum yarn, Mr. Stephens, I'll admit," he said, slowly, his nasal tone much in evidence, "but it's all true, sir, so help me, God! Here's the straight of it, and you listen quiet till I get done. Then I'll answer your questions as long as you've got any to ask."

SAVE THIS, ANYWAY.

Put It In Some Safe Place, For It May Come In Handy Some Day.

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe. Try it: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here in town is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription. No. 4

ARMY OF BATS INVADE BEDROOM OF RECTOR

INMATES HAVE UNPLEASANT EXPERIENCE BEFORE PESTS ARE GOTTEN RID OF.

London.—Inmates of a quiet rectory in Dorsetshire will long remember the latter hours of a recent night.

The rector was aroused in the middle of the night by a great noise in the room. Was it a burglar? Finally he concluded that an army of bats had selected his bedroom for their high jinks. From every part of the room they could be heard playing against mirrors and glasses, swarming up against the ceiling, while to often to be pleasant one would be against the head of the bed, and worse still, the beating of their wings could be felt as they came close to the helpless faces on the pillow.

The rector's alarm was increased by the fact that his wife had a horror anxiety, not only for herself, but also for her curtains, and the nice, new wall paper. Consequently, the husband had to beat himself. Very gingerly he struck a match and lit a candle. This only attracted the wretched creatures nearer to that particular part of the room in which the bed was placed.

The rector had been told that if a lighted candle were placed in the window the bats would depart. He would try this, the wife begging that he would get her a towel.

When she had carefully wrapped her head in the towel the rector proceeded to the window with the candle, dodging the bats which circled around. Having placed the candle on a chair at the open window he hastily retired into bed again and awaited events.

Never more will he try that plan again. The bats had a lot of confederates outside, and these also began to come in, so that it was impossible to count how many there were in the room. Another plan was tried. All the curtains were drawn aside and the east window opened wide. The light was put out and heads were laid on the pillow. Soon the noises got less, and at last ceased, followed by sweet forgetfulness.

BOY OF SEVEN IS A HERO.

Presence of Mind Saves Life of Father in Fight with a Bull.

Freeport, Ill.—Heiko Brauer, a farmer residing a half mile south of Everts, was attacked recently by an enraged bull and was saved from death by the courage and presence of mind of his seven-year-old son.

Mr. Brauer was chasing the bull into the barn at the time of the adventure. He hit the animal a couple of cracks with a stick. This enraged his majesty of the pastures and he turned on Mr. Brauer, knocking him down and butting him savagely.

Mr. Brauer grabbed the bull around the neck and managed to get on his feet for a moment, when the animal downed him again. He also trampled upon him.

Two of Mr. Brauer's sons were present, and it was then that the little boy took a hand in the proceedings. Grabbing a stick, he hit the enraged animal over the head. The bull lifted his head and looked at the boy a moment, apparently wondering at his audacity. This gave Mr. Brauer the chance he was looking for, and he hastily jumped up and got away.

After Mr. Brauer had counted up his injuries he found that they consisted of a fracture of the left arm near the wrist and numerous bruises.

Sleeps Amid Coffins and Shrouds. Greenfield, Ind.—Dave Ellis, Greenfield's weather prophet, ten years ago engaged with a local undertaker a night man and established sleeping quarters among the coffins and shrouds. During all this time Mr. Ellis has missed only one night from his gruesome quarters. He has undergone some thrilling experiences by his stubborn determination to sleep in no other quarters. On one occasion, when a corpse was left in the room near his bed, a scheme was arranged by which the covering on the body could be pulled away by a string. Although badly frightened he refused to be driven away. Many other attempts have been made to break this long record, but all were failures and to-day he defies any man to equal it—every night for ten years in the same bed, except on one occasion, and then "I piled in at seven in the morning," he said.

Say!

Wouldn't you like to have a monthly visit from a friend who would always bring cheer, who would talk to you about increasing the fertility of the soil, who would help till the growing plants and then aid in selling the product at a profit.

This is exactly what THE FARMERS HELPER strives to do. You don't have to read advertisements to find what it says about fattening a pig, nor must you read for half an hour to find what may be said in less than five minutes. Every article is clear, concise and full of practical common sense. We want you to try this magazine and we offer to send to those answering this advertisement a

BIG SEED COLLECTION

These seeds are not a lot of promiscuously gathered ones, but they are from reliable growers, whose name appears upon each packet. The packets contain from 1/4 oz. to 1/2 oz. of seed, the amount in the largest 5 cent package on the market. Here is the collection:—

- 1 pkt. Prize Head Lettuce, large, tender, crisp, good all summer.
- 1 " Imp. French Breakfast Radish, early, tender and crisp.
- 1 " Allhead Early Cabbage, best all-year-round.
- 1 " Matchless Tomato, all season, large, red, solid no core.
- 1 " Prize-Tender Onion, large, yellow, fine flavor, good keeper.
- 1 " Imp. Blood Turnip Beet, fine grain sweet and tender.
- 1 " Early Model Musk-melon, a drooping register, fine.
- 1 " Cumberland Cucumber, best pickling, rapid grower.
- 1 " King of Mammoth Pumpkins, best pie, rapid grower.
- 1 " Mammoth Virginia Peanuts, large, sweet, heavy yielder.
- 1 " Eckford's Mixed Sweet Peas, fine assortment.
- 1 " Tall Mixed Nasturtiums, bright, attractive.

We have bought a large amount of these seed and will give a collection to each one who will send 25c for a year's subscription to THE FARMER'S HELPER and a 2c stamp to help pay postage.

Here is a chance to get a first-class magazine for one year, plenty of seed for the garden and save money. SEND NOW.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life,
says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Grantville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Grantville, Vt.

Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Grantville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

A BRIDE SPRAINS HER ANKLE.

While changing from one train to another a few days ago a bride wrenched her ankle very badly. She was afraid she would be lame for some time for the ankle pained her and was swelling rapidly. One of her fellow passengers brought her a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. The Liniment stopped the pain at once and took down the swelling and next day her ankle was almost as strong as ever.

Mr. L. Roland Bishop, of Scranton, Pa., says: "On the 7th of this present month, as I was leaving the building at noon for lunch, I slipped and fell, straining my wrist. I returned in the afternoon, and at four o'clock I could not hold a pencil in my hand. I returned home at five o'clock and purchased a bottle of Sloan's Liniment and used it five or six times before I went to bed, and the next day I was able to go to work and use my hand as usual. I thought sure I would be laid up, and as we are busy I was very much worried. I cheerfully recommend Sloan's Liniment to all persons who may injure themselves in any way."

ENOCH ARDEN CASE IN INDIANA TOWN

AGED HOOSIER MEETS STRANGER WHO PROVES TO BE WIFE'S LONG LOST HUSBAND.

LATTER GONE FOR 33 YEARS

Mat Schmitt, a Highly Respected Citizen of Jasper, Learns Woman Whom He Married as a Widow Is a Bigamist.

Jasper, Ind.—Tennyson's Enoch Arden has been discounted in an actual event right here in the prosaic town of Jasper.

A few days ago, while Mat Schmitt, aged 78, was sitting in a saloon here drinking beer with a stranger, he made a discovery which will cast a cloud over the remainder of his life. While the two were enjoying a social glass Mr. Schmitt asked the stranger his name. The stranger replied: "My name is Criesam."

Mr. Schmitt looked directly at the stranger and asked: "What's your given name?"

"Rudolph Mathias," replied the stranger.

"Are you married?" asked Schmitt. "I was married," replied Criesam, "but I don't know what ever became of my wife."

"Whom did you marry?" asked Schmitt, somewhat excited.

"Mollie Brante," said Criesam.

Schmitt turned pale and asked: "Where were you married and where do you live now?"

"I was married in Louisville, Ky., in St. Martin's church, by Rev. Father Leander, in September, 1871, and left my wife in November, 1875, and have never seen her since. I am now an inmate of the county poor asylum of this county," replied Criesam.

When Mr. Schmitt heard this his heart sank within him, as he realized that the woman Criesam had left in Louisville was now his wife, and had been since December 7, 1886, at which time he had married Mollie Criesam, then a pretty widow with one small son.

Mr. Schmitt, who for years has been one of the most highly respected citizens of this town and county, brooded over the matter, and finally decided to consult an attorney. He did so, and as a result has filed an action in the circuit court here to have his marriage annulled and to quiet title to some valuable real estate in this town, which Mr. Schmitt says he bought with his own money and deeded to his wife.

Criesam said later that after he left his wife he received one letter from her which he never answered. No court could compel him to tell why he left her, he said. He wandered over the country for years, once visiting a sister who doubted his identity, saying Rudolph Criesam had been killed in a wreck in Kentucky. He left her without convincing her he was her brother.

Mrs. Schmitt is resisting her husband's suit. She says Criesam left her as he said he did, and she later heard he had been killed in a wreck. She waited 11 years before marrying Schmitt. The son is now a prominent Catholic priest in London, having been well educated by his stepfather.

Schmitt's suit will be tried at the January term of the circuit court here, and the case has attracted the greatest interest.

Woman Nearly Buried Alive.

Ellis, Kan.—The timely intervention of a physician who was not satisfied with the appearance of the body prevented the burial alive of Mrs. Thomas Chapman, wife of one of the best known citizens of this part of Kansas.

Mrs. Chapman, who is 60 years of age, was supposed to have died suddenly from heart disease. The body was prepared for burial, but was not embalmed. The funeral was to have taken place in the afternoon.

A few minutes before the casket was to be sealed a physician requested permission to see the body. After confirming his suspicions, the woman was removed from the coffin and placed in bed. While her heart is weak, it is believed Mrs. Chapman will recover.

Resolutions of Respect.

For the first time the silent messenger has entered our midst and on Sunday, January 31, 1909, called to his long home President J. F. Snyder, our last Treasurer.

Our brother was a good man in every sense of the word, ever ready to extend a helping hand to all in need, a devoted husband and father, a good neighbor, a devoted member of this Lodge and Chapter and honored and respected by all who knew him.

To his loved ones our hearts go out in sympathy. Be it therefore resolved:

That in the death of Bro. Snyder his wife has lost a kind husband, his children a loving father, the community one of its best and most honored citizens and Sheridan Chapter one of its most devoted members.

Resolved, 2d, That a page be set apart in our record and these Resolutions be spread thereon, and that a copy be furnished the family and a copy be given the Record-Press for publication.

Resolved, 8d, That this Chapter have the memorial services over our Bro. at Union cemetery on Sunday, May 30, 1909, at 11 a. m.

INDIGESTION.

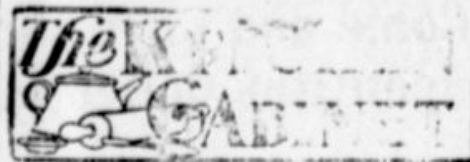

Misery From Your Disordered Stomach Goes in Five Minutes.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diapiesin after eating. Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Bloating, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or symptoms.

Headachs from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapiesin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when our stomach can't. Each triangle will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50 cent case of Pape's Diapiesin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance. 33 37 41 45.

NORAH AND THE SPAGHETTI.

WENT out to the kitchen and found Norah scolding the vrago, Spaghetti on the table. "Bead!" says Norah. "I'm no dago!"

"The nasty stuff—it makes me sick. I hate it, mum, and I never cook it. They say it isn't wormy, but I told her how to fix it up. With cheese and with tomato sauce, and scatter more cheese on the top. But here again, the cook was cross."

"And sure, ma'am, but I think the chase is mighty good—and thin tomatoes. But I row the old spaghetti out. And give old Norah-Irish praties!"

Old-Fashioned Tip-Tops. Beat slightly the yolks of three eggs, then gradually two cups of very cold water, and beat until foamy. Stir this into two cups well sifted flour, making a smooth batter; then strain through a sieve. Add one-half tea spoon salt and one tablespoon melted butter. Mix well, stir in one heaping teaspoon baking powder and the egg whites, beaten to a froth. Bake in hot gem pans.

"Dicky Birds." Take lean pieces of veal; pound thin and season with salt and pepper; put one good-sized oyster in each piece, roll over and fasten a piece of bacon on top with a toothpick. Pack snugly in pan with one-half cup hot water. Season well, and bake about half an hour, or until brown. This is a nice picnic dish.

DELIVER US

From a boiled dinner when the cabbage is cooked in the pot with the meat; when the latter is cold it will taste too strong of the cabbage. Boil only delicate vegetables with the meat. From mason jars that are not thoroughly sterilized before putting in the fruit. Cans and tops should be put into cold water and allowed to come to a boil.

From very fresh bread for sandwiches; they should be made of bread baked the day before.

TO PASS AS LEGAL TENDER

In Colonial Times, and After, Weed Was Locked Upon as Money in the South.

In colonial times, and indeed after the independence of the United States had been established, tobacco was legal tender in the southern states. Thus in Maryland and Virginia all government fees and taxes were payable in tobacco until 1806, when federal money was substituted. But in the meantime the District of Columbia had been ceded to the federal government, with such laws as were in force there, unless specifically altered by congress. So, as a consequence of the pressure of other work and interests upon congress, tobacco remained legal tender in the District of Columbia until recent times. As late as 1883 the fees of the clerk of the supreme court, for example, in any transaction where the federal government was itself a party, were still appraised in pounds of tobacco and settled at the treasury by the old standard of valuation. It is possible that there remain some exceptional fees overlooked by congress which may still be settled in tobacco.

GREAT LOSS OF LABOR.

Probably no reader has the least idea what is the total amount of imprisonment to which offenders in this country are sentenced every year. The figures are remarkable. In round numbers 950 people receive sentences of 4,200 years' penal servitude and 195,000 people receive sentences of 16,600 years' imprisonment. That is a total of 20,800 years. What a dreadful loss this is to the country! Not only have all these people to be fed, clothed, housed, guarded, but they are practically idle—or, at least, their work is of little value. The great majority of them are in the prime of working life, aged from 20 to 60.—London Answers.

Our road overseer did some good work on Marion and Salem road lately, beating rock in the holes. This followed up a few years will grade the places most likely to become mud holes and so greatly improve our roads at a small cost. Is it not worth following up by all our road overseers? Your reporter travels the public roads in various sections, and has observed that "distinguished" mud holes of long-standing that have thus been treated are now the best places during muddy-road seasons.

Duke Losing Out.

New York, April 5.—Changes in the personnel of the respective boards of James B. Duke's $118,000,000 American Tobacco Company and the $20,000,000 American Cigar Company yesterday gave rise to a report that control of these properties was passing to Thomas F. Ryan and the Widener-Elkins group of Philadelphia financiers. Mr. Duke himself was said to be on the verge of retirement to the management of cotton power properties in the South.
